This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 5/12/2015 5:51:36 AM
Subject: Landing Roundup- Tues 5/12

Landing Roundup

Tuesday May 12th, 2015 • Updated 12:50 pm

2 NEW CALLS ADDED BY ROBBY:

Please let us know if you plan to skip either just so we can tell Robby / rearrange to tomorrow

3:00-3:30 PM Call with Robby, Charlie re: Priorities
Dial- In: (202) 734-6456 // No Pin

(Note: call with Dean Treanor is between these two, from 3:30 - 4 pm; you will him on his cell at 202-510-1455, which is in your calendar)

4-5 pm: Call on May & June Planning Discussion
Dial-In Number: (202) 794-7025 // No PIN

3 New Missed Calls / Call Requests:

Brian Deese
Sunday, 3:45 pm, via cell (and again via email today)
Cell: 202-503-5937
Was just trying to catch you on 111D in next 24-48 hrs.
(If you want to try him today, 202-456-1404 is his asst Daniel)

Laura Meckler
Via email
Work: 202-862-9212
Cell: 202-446-4530
Wants to talk with you about trade generally, but specifically, "One angle I'm looking into is whether the face of unions today-where most members (gov't workers, teachers, etc.) are not subject to outsourcing may give Hillary some space on the issue"

Tina Flournoy
Yesterday May 11, 6:35 pm via cell
212-348-2507
Would appreciate a call back.

Tonight:

Updated Dinner Attendance:
Reserve Cut At Setai Restaurant: 40 Broad Street, 2nd floor, Private Wine Gallery (Res under Haim Saban)
Haim Saban - Laura Hartigan - Alex De Ocampo - Robby Mook - John Podesta - Jen Palmieri - Dennis Cheng - Brynne Craig - Adrienne Elrod - Amitai Raziel - Huma Abedin

THURSDAY HUGE FINANCE Update:
Dennis' team just let us know that HRC now has to attend a funeral on Thursday afternoon and has to leave the event at 5:30 pm. They have to move up the entire program so she can speak at 3:30 pm and they can begin the reception at 4:00 pm.

Dennis said that given the change in circumstances you don't need to come up just for the reception from 4:00-5:30 pm. However, since you already have a mostly non-refundable 2:00 pm flight (we can recoup $200 in credit) you still have the option of coming up for the evening if you think it's worthwhile.

Please let us know your preference here. We can't cancel the flight but can cancel the 9:05 pm Acela back to DC.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Heather Boushey" <HBoushey@equitablegrowth.org>
To:	"Milia B. Fisher" <mbfisher@americanprogress.org>
Date:	8/14/2015 11:00:11 AM
Subject:	For my conversation with JDP on Monday
Attachments:	Draft Deal Summary Memo[1].docx Landlord Second Round[1].xlsx CashFlowEquitableGrowth2015-2017-HB.xlsx org-chart-floorplan.pdf

Hello Milia,

On the agenda for our meeting Monday (9:45 am) is an update on the transitions and potential office space; the latest updates on revenue and prospects; and a request to post for two positions that were in our 2015 budget — a special assistant and a policy analyst. Plus, anything else John wants to discuss.

A few details:

1. Below are Ed's notes from his call today with Steve. We understand Steve and John are talking today at 3:15 so I'm including this in case it's helpful for that conversation.
2. For the attachments, the cash flow budget needs on the first tab, "Cash Flow 2015-17" printed. It is laid out to print IN COLOR on LEGAL paper.
3. The floorplan is a first cut — we put people into offices to get a sense of space (it will fit us bursting at seams if we fill in our full staffing plan), but we did not focus on the actual best seating.

Thanks,
Heather

From: Ed Paisley <epaisley@equitablegrowth.org >
Date: Friday, August 14, 2015 11:40 AM
To: Ed Paisley <epaisley@equitablegrowth.org >, "Daetz, Steve" <sdaetz@sandlerfoundation.org >
Subject: Details for today's noon conversation

Hi Steve,

Here's an email to tee up our conversation today. On my list are these things:

1). Update you on the office search — the three attached docs explain what we've done to date, where we stand with a final suggested location, and how this fits in with our five-year staffing plan.

(Steve will review the docs —I sent them to him right before our call, which he didn't appreciate, but I explained in our conversation that I just wanted him to review the approach of the memo and the pricing outcomes. He thinks this is a good approach for the board but will get back with any specifics. The main thing we discussed is timing for board approval of a lease if things move more quickly with the sublandlord of the office space. We discussed either a series of quick phone-only board meetings our perhaps a Unanimous Consent doc with the details of the lease to happen first by email, then a second meeting with all the other stuff the board needs to approve below.)

2). Update you on the separation agreement that Alex is working up—basically a doc that allows Equitable Growth and CAP to identify everything we need to deal with and sort it out methodically.

(Steve really likes this idea but wants to ensure flexibility right up to the end, which is something Alex and Torey and I also agreed upon, so good to go here. I should have the initial draft of this doc in hand by the end of the month.)

3). Update you on Debbie's progress on several fronts—two questions for you about the financing of health care and retirement savings that she'd like to make sure are possible or practical.

(Steve said we should benchmark to CAP on both bennies and one other organization to give the board a one-page feel for what's being decided. He thought the CAP bennies on retirement savings were appropriate but suggested that the different in health care costs given our shift to a smaller organization means we can't expect to match apples to apples with CAP)

4). Discuss what else besides the preliminary 2016 budget and the office lease to discuss at the first board meeting—mainly whether the board wants to weigh in on the health care and retirement savings decisions (Steve said the main thing is to provide the board with comfort on the revenue side of the ledger as we can adjust our spending to meet contingencies, and the Sandlers can backstop if absolutely essential. He said a preliminary 2016 budget is okay, but would like it to be as non-preliminary as possible.)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

5). Update on Finance and Admin Manager search— a few worthy bites from our posting and one good candidate Debbie sent our way who I'm going to have a preliminary chat with later today.

(Steve is very happy we may not have to pay a headhunter. I told him I'm talking to one promising candidate today,but added that out of about 50 resumes received since we posted the job on our site and around the web there were only a handful of plausible candiates. He added to make sure the hire is a good culture fit given the importance of the position.)

6). 1023 update—I read thru it all one last time this morning and will send it back for filing by our lawyers with Heather's sig this afternoon.

(It is being filed today! He's happy, thought I think slightly annoyed at the time spent angling for an accelerated ruling request from the IRS.)

And obviously anything else you'd like to discuss.

(He suggested I keep him updated next week on the office lease situation as that might involve some further steps by the Sandlers to nail down the signing and deposit.)

Thanks,

Ed

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ryan Decos" <rdecos1@gmail.com>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	3/31/2015 12:13:26 PM
Subject:	Hillary Clinton Presidential Campaign Jobs

Hi Mr.Podesta,

I graduated from the University of West Georgia with a Bachelor of Science in Sociology in July 2013. I have been searching for a job in politics since graduating. I did a Fellowship Internship for the Michelle Nunn for US Senate & Jason Carter for Governor Campaign through GA Victory 2014 this past fall. Anyway, do you have any information on paid full time jobs with Hillary Clinton's Presidential campaign once she announces in April? I can send you my resume if you would like? I look forward to hearing back from you soon!

Thank You,

Ryan Decos

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Laura Tyson" <ltyson83@gmail.com>
Date:	1/2/2016 7:43:20 AM
Subject:	Happy New Year

Wishing you a happy New Year. 2015 was challenging, but we ended in a good place thanks to your help and support. Look forward to working with you to elect the first woman President of the United States.

Have a great New Year.

-John

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Lee Saunders" <lsaunders@afscme.org>
Date:	1/2/2016 10:00:02 AM
Subject:	Happy New Year

Wishing you a happy New Year. 2015 was challenging, but we ended in a good place thanks to your help and support. Look forward to working with you to elect the first woman President of the United States.

Have a great New Year.

-John

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"URGENT ALERT \(via HMPAC.com\)" <democrats@hmpac.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	11/7/2015 10:09:45 AM
Subject:	ANOTHER Obamacare ruling?!

The Hill: Supreme Court to rule on Obamacare contraception mandate. Click here to help Democrats protect Obamacare

John, we HAVE to stand up for the millions of American women who rely on their healthcare for affordable quality contraception and for President Obama's legacy by protecting Obamacare.

BUT, we can't do that alone. Tuesday is just one year from Election Day. Between Tuesday and the election the GOP is going to do everything they can to make it harder for a woman to make her own healthcare choices.

That is why we need your help.

Can you donate now to stand up for Obamacare and women everywhere?

If you've saved your payment information with ActBlue Express, your donation will go through immediately:

Donate $5 now

Donate $35 now

Donate $50 now

Donate $100 now

Or, donate another amount

This email was sent to: podesta@law.georgetown.edu. Make sure you continue to get updates from House Majority PAC by adding democrats@thehousemajoritypac.com to your address book or approved sender list.

If that is not your preferred email address, you can update your information here.

Contributions or gifts to House Majority PAC are not tax deductible.

If you'd like to still get updates from House Majority PAC but less frequently, click here to sign up for 1-2 emails per month. Click here to unsubscribe.

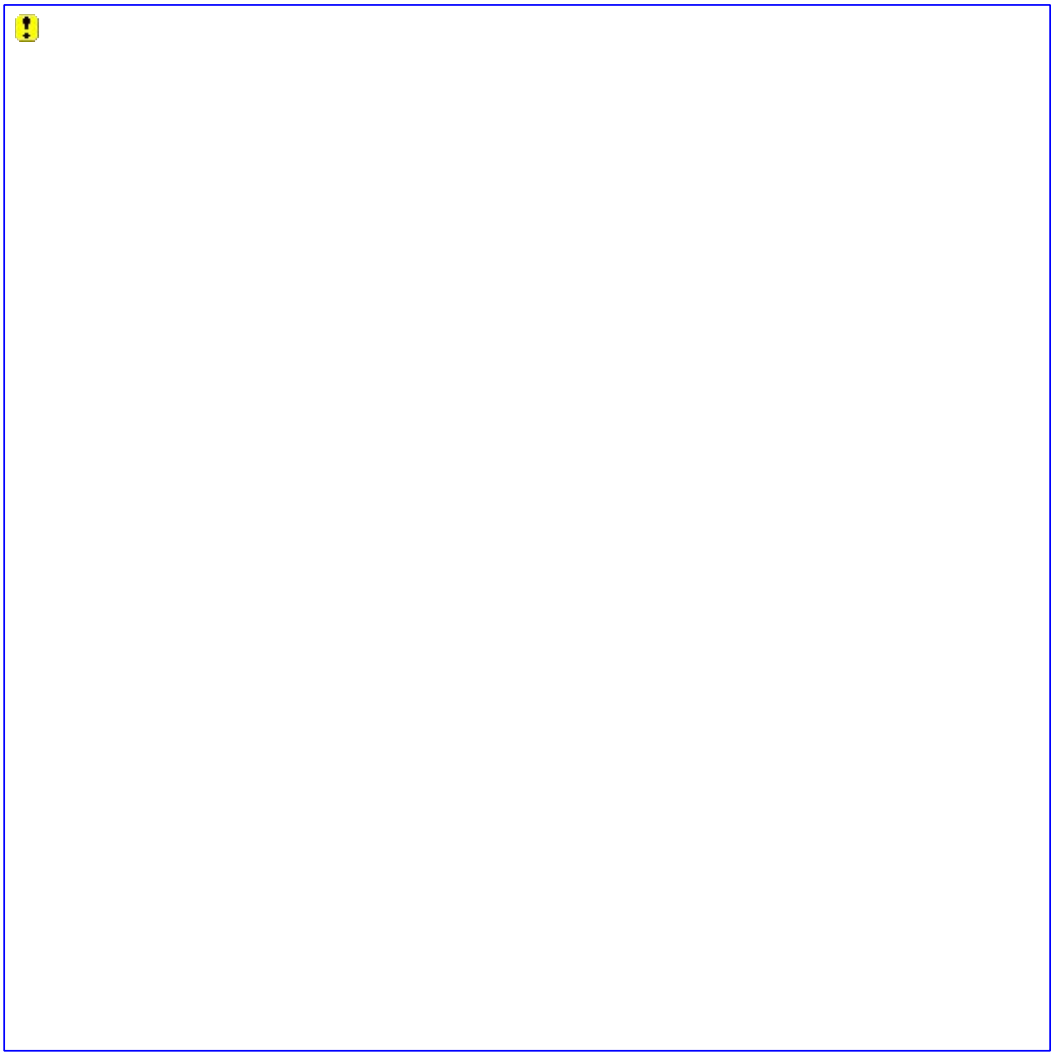
Paid for by House Majority PAC.
www.thehousemajoritypac.com. Not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	john.podesta@gmail.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	10/2/2008 4:35:55 AM
Subject:	Delivered: Re: Tentative agenda for Friday
Attachments:	Attach 1

Your message was delivered to the recipient.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.



From:	GIDEON <mond1967@zahav.net.il>
To:	Podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	11/6/2014 1:54:58 AM
Subject:	Fw: GIDEON (I can't believe t his!!!!)

----- Original Message -----
From: Tracy Mayfield
To: Gideon Rodeh
Sent: Wednesday, October 29, 2014 10:33 PM
Subject: GIDEON (I can't believe this!!!!)

WOW -- I literally cannot believe this:

This morning, Nancy Pelosi asked you to step up for Brad. When I went to check the numbers, I saw something AMAZING:

1. Your response was spectacular (ok, I expected that)
2. But as of 3pm, we're within striking distance of $1 MILLION(!!!) raised online for Brad. *SERIOUSLY.

$1,000,000.00 has A LOT of zeroes. And honestly, your support COULD NOT have come at better time.

Why? This week alone, Boehner and billionaire Republicans are pounding the Chicago airwaves with over $2.5 million against Brad.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

So Gideon, we need your help right away.

Chip in for Brad, answer Nancy's call-to-action, and help us reach $1 MILLION strong!

If you've saved your payment information with ActBlue Express, your donation will go through immediately:

$5 >>	$35 >>
$50 >>	$100 >>
$250 >>	Other >>

GO GO GO!

Tracy

P.S. SO MANY ZEROES!!!

Paid for by Schneider for Congress

Schneider for Congress, PO Box 1318, Deerfield IL 60015

This message was sent to: mond1967@015.net.il | Change or update your email address by clicking here .

We believe that emails are a crucial way for our campaign to stay in touch with supporters like you. However, if you'd prefer to take a break from emails, click here . If you'd just like to receive fewer emails, you can click here .

Our campaign is powered by supporters like you. Your grassroots support is critical to helping Brad fight back against right-wing attacks. If you'd still like to unsubscribe from our emails, click here . If you'd like to donate to our campaign, please click here . Thanks for having Brad's back!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	GIDEON <mond1967@zahav.net.il>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	10/13/2014 5:53:02 AM
Subject:	ONDCP

January 18 2014–01–18

Gideon Rodeh
Moshav Ben Ammi
Israel
--US Senate Committee on Armed Services/Washington

Dear Sir,

Subject: Disentanglement from Afghanistan

I have been conducting a pertinacious correspondence with your Committee in latest four years trying exerting pressure on US Establishment that might have eventually got NATO Troops been pulled out of Afghanistan. According to TV Program dedicated to US Arsenal as many as 7000 UAV are being stored unused in Magazines instead of attacking targets in Afghanistan with the following emerging advantages:
1) Severing Terror Organizations' from their Financial Sources
2) Salvation of millions of potential Drug Addicts from awful agony and death.
3) Acceleration of Troops pulling out from Afghanistan due to Intensification of Aerial raids.
4) Restoration of US Deterrence as a result of UAV strengthening.
I believe in Terror Overwhelming defeat under those circumstances.
5) I remember UN 1946 Chapter 51 (self defense right that every country deserves) but being surprised by US failing of its Exercise in spite of its Technical Preponderance
6) Despite my Thorough UAV Special Version Design for Narcotic Vegetation Eradication even one word of Acknowledgement has not reached my mailbox hitherto.
7) Ignominious for a Super Power isn't it?

Sincerely,

Gideon Rodeh

l

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	tarullos4@yahoo.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/2/2008 5:03:26 AM
Subject:	Delivered: Re: Decision Memo on G20 Meeting Attendance
Attachments:	Attach 1

Your message was delivered to the recipient.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Marissa Astor" <marissa.astor@icloud.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com> "Jennifer Palmieri" <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com> "Kristina Schake" <kristinakschake@gmail.com> "Huma Abedin" <huma@hrcoffice.com> "Philippe Reines" <pir@hrcoffice.com> "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com> "Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com> "Sawsan Bay" <sbay@hrcoffice.com> "Shannon Currie" <scurrie@bsgco.com> "Jim Margolis" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com> "Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com>
Date:	3/9/2015 6:09:00 AM
Subject:	Call – 1:30pm EDT

Dial-In Number: (202) 765-0457 // PIN: 85870

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	john.podesta@gmail.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	10/23/2008 10:45:36 AM
Subject:	Delivered: Re:
Attachments:	Attach 1

Your message was delivered to the recipient.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	john.podesta@gmail.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/10/2008 1:55:40 PM
Subject:	Delivered: Re: draft read out
Attachments:	Attach 1

Your message was delivered to the recipient.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jake Sullivan" <jake.sullivan@gmail.com>
To: "Karen Dunn" <KDunn@BSFLLP.com>
Date: 12/6/2015 7:20:05 AM
Subject: Re: Mock for Tuesday

I'd like to test out Wall Street rebuttals (to attack on donations)

I agree with Karen on testing raise-your-taxes back and forth.

On Dec 6, 2015, at 2:16 PM, Karen Dunn <KDunn@BSFLLP.com > wrote:

Thanks!

I want to understand the degree to which taxing the middle class still resonates. I am sure there are a number of ways to frame this. Four years ago, invocation of the middle class (growing, expanding, strengthening) in all things was huge. Is this still the case?

And of course now there is much you are probably already testing re: national security and guns. Would be interested to know how much "keeping our families safe" trumps other related valences since it would be a sweet spot for her as a female CiC.

-----Original Message-----
From: Mandy Grunwald [gruncom@aol.com]
Sent: Sunday, December 06, 2015 02:12 PM Eastern Standard Time
To: Ron Klain
Cc: John Podesta; jim.margolis@gmmb.com ; jbenenson@bsgco.com ; sara.solow@gmail.com ; Kristina Costa; Tony Carrk; Huma Abedin; jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com ; Jake.Sullivan@gmail.com ; Karen Dunn; Karen Dunn; Barnett, Robert; ron.klain@revolution.com
Subject: Re: Mock for Tuesday

Mazel tov, Karen!

And a question for the team.

We are about to poll in NH and IA. Are there any thorny strategic questions for the debate where we feel we need guidance from a poll?

Thx

Mandy Grunwald
Grunwald Communications
202 973-9400

On Dec 6, 2015, at 2:09 PM, Ron Klain <rklain@aol.com > wrote:

Debate People,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Attached is a full mock script for Tuesday. Please review and comment.

As for the session itself, we will do some Q-and-A drills before we start the mock. So we won't get through this entire mock, but we will use pieces of it. I will send around a proposed agenda later today.

And of course, Karen will be having a baby on Tuesday early morning, so, she'll probably be an hour or two late for our 9am start.

Ron

<HRC16-Debates-3rdDebate-Mock1-1206-r.docx>

The information contained in this electronic message is confidential information intended only for the use of the named recipient(s) and may contain information that, among other protections, is the subject of attorney-client privilege, attorney work product or exempt from disclosure under applicable law. If the reader of this electronic message is not the named recipient, or the employee or agent responsible to deliver it to the named recipient, you are hereby notified that any dissemination, distribution, copying or other use of this communication is strictly prohibited and no privilege is waived. If you have received this communication in error, please immediately notify the sender by replying to this electronic message and then deleting this electronic message from your computer. [v.1]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Deese, Brian C. EOP" <Brian_C_Deese@who.eop.gov>
To:	John.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	8/17/2015 8:42:14 AM
Subject:

My China trip got bumped to labor day wknd so we have a little more time. We're sending folks out next week in advance of it. If you are around and could connect early next week on it, that would be great. Hope you're well. Brian

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Glenn Thrush" <gthrush@politico.com>
Date:	3/2/2016 7:23:19 AM
Subject:	Re: let me use this on the record

Fine

On Wednesday, March 2, 2016, Glenn Thrush <gthrush@politico.com > wrote:

> "She just got back to work," says her campaign chairman John Podesta, who hit the road with Clinton during several pre-Super Tuesday swings. "The thing that sets her apart from everybody else is her capacity to just get back up… after New Hampshire she didn't just take the loss or get all down. It's something people have always said about her, but this whole experience really proved the point… What grit she has."
>
> Glenn Thrush
> Chief Political Correspondent/POLITICO
> Senior Staff Writer/POLITICO Magazine
> Cell: (202) 731-4974
> http://www.politico.com/reporters/GlennThrush.html

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Lorella Praeli" <lpraeli@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 7/3/2015 6:11:39 AM
Subject: Re: Hi

Good idea

Sent from my iPhone

On Jul 3, 2015, at 1:06 PM, Lorella Praeli <lpraeli@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

agreed.

On Fri, Jul 3, 2015 at 1:04 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

How much pickup with anything this weekend get?
If we think this is a dead weekend, my gut would be to get a week-long plan put together leading up to La Raza. Call to action to the groups, ask CHC members to write op eds, Univision interview, etc. then we need to make more news at La Raza.
In any case, I'd rather focus on getting lots of pickup and organizing around some news at La Raza than getting some one offs that don't penetrate as much.

On Jul 3, 2015, at 12:53 PM, Lorella Praeli <lpraeli@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Alex, who works for Haim, called a few minutes ago. Same message- Haim thinks HRC needs to be on the forefront of this and show that she's an integral part of the community, lift up and be proud of the contributions Latinos make. I shared what she has said and reminded him that all of this happened in the wake of Charleston. He asked to call him and share our plan and get input from them. let me know how you feel about that.

Agree with all that's been said. Would be good to have HRC do a Univision interview soon and say something to English media.

Amanda, myself, and others can also be on SLM delivering the message. Other surrogates can really hammer the GOP and make this about the Party of Trump. It's about condemning Trump and the lack of R leadership. It's not just his comments, but the policy implications that all the Rs agree with.

Espuelas is on Face the Nation (see below)- if we have a good relationship with him, can we make sure he's seen what HRC has said on this ?

(Face the Nation": Sen. Bob Corker ... Sen. Amy Klobuchar ... Rick Santorum ... Panel: Mike Allen, Ruth "The Truth" Marcus, Peter Baker and talk-show host Fernando Espuelas)

Other thoughts:
-Do we have anyone going on TV this weekend?
-Thinking about the early 4, there is the Trump International Hotel in Vegas. Maybe there is an organizing opportunity next week. Would be good to reach out to UNITE HERE.
-Online: Engage Latinos and give them something to do so we can galvanize them against the GOP and affirm their values for the contributions they make. And let them know that we stand with them--that the platform of HRC is the platform that stands with Latinos and lifts up their contributions.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Rick Dunham (@rickdunham)
7/3/15, 8:16 AM
An Hispanic GOP activist on Donald Trump: "It's a level of idiocy I haven't seen in a long time." apne.ws/1eoJrch h/t @AP

On Fri, Jul 3, 2015 at 12:24 PM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
July 13.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jul 3, 2015, at 12:21 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

What day is La Raza?

On Fri, Jul 3, 2015 at 11:49 AM, Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
We can't do enough on this issue honestly. So my answer is yes on all of if - which is about resources.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jul 3, 2015, at 11:40 AM, Xochitl Hinojosa <xhinojosa@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

Univision was actually really happy about her comments and the tweets coming from Amanda. They would obviously love an interview with her whenever we're ready.

I think she should proactively mention it tomorrow, but happy to work with NH on trying to get a question in. Let me know what everyone prefers.

On Jul 3, 2015, at 11:17 AM, Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

Haim hit all of us
Called me yesterday afternoon with same message. I told him she had said something but he says he's only heard her talk about immigration. And if Haim is raising it, it means he's hearing it from his Univision colleagues. I told him I'd send what we had said so Kristina if you have that, would be great.
Also told him about la raza but he thought that was too late. Do you think we would get it as a question at the press avail tomorrow? Cause it would be perfect opportunity.

On Jul 3, 2015, at 11:14 AM, Xochitl Hinojosa <xhinojosa@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

I really like the idea of a challenge on the 4th and mentioning it in the media avail- press will love it. It should also be in her speech at NCLR.

On Jul 3, 2015, at 11:02 AM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

Maybe we could issue a challenge on social on the 4th, she could say in the media avail to get it in video on Saturday and hit it again with Brianna on Tuesday.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jul 3, 2015, at 10:54 AM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Adding Amanda and Xotchil.
>
> Haim is right - we should be jamming this all the time.
>
> A and X - can we think about what else we should do? Issue a broader challenge? Do something tied to Fourth of July were we declared all equal? Get CHC to do a letter?
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Jul 3, 2015, at 10:51 AM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > She has spoke about his comments, but didn't say his name. She also condemned republicans for not attacking him. Want us to pull the examples of when she did? She could hit it again because he's still out there saying it.
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Jul 3, 2015, at 10:39 AM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Haim thinks we are under reacting to Trump/ Hispanics. Thinks we can get something by standing up for Latinos or attacking R's for not condemning
> > >
> > > ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> > > From: Haim Saban <kussa@saban.com >
> > > Date: Friday, July 3, 2015
> > > Subject: Hi
> > > To: Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >
> > > Cc: "john.podesta@gmail.com "
> > > <john.podesta@gmail.com >
> > > .
> > >
> > > All good tx
> > >
> > > John can share with you.
> > >
> > > From: Robby Mook [mailto:re47@hillaryclinton.com]
> > > Sent: Thursday, July 02, 2015 7:01 PM
> > > To: Haim Saban
> > > Subject: Re: FW: Hi

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Perfect. Let me know if you need anything from me!

On Thu, Jul 2, 2015 at 10:00 PM, Haim Saban <kussa@saban.com > wrote:

> On the phone with him
>
> From: Robby Mook [mailto:re47@hillaryclinton.com]
> Sent: Thursday, July 02, 2015 6:50 PM
> To: Haim Saban
> Subject: Re: FW: Hi
>
> Just talked to John. He's calling you shortly.
>
> On Thu, Jul 2, 2015 at 3:53 PM, Haim Saban <kussa@saban.com > wrote:
>
> > Resending to your current email. Tx.
> >
> > +1 (310) 557-5111 .
> >
> > From: Haim Saban
> > Sent: Thursday, July 02, 2015 12:27 PM
> > To: 'Robby Mook (robbymook2015@gmail.com)'; 'john.podesta@gmail.com '
> > Subject: Hi
> >
> > Can one of you please call me at your earliest convenience? Tx

--
Lorella Praeli
Director of Latino Outreach
Hillary for America
203.417.1436
@lorellapraeli

--
Lorella Praeli
Director of Latino Outreach

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Hillary for America
203.417.1436
@lorellapraeli

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Adrienne Elrod" <aelrod@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 4/16/2015 6:55:41 AM
Subject: Re: Politico (Karni) | Gay Marriage

Christine Quinn had long convo w/ Annie Karni. Christine and I talked before, and she called me after to give me the rundown. I think her validation will help tremendously.

Adrienne K. Elrod
Spokesperson
Hillary For America
www.hillaryclinton.com
@adrienneelrod

On Thu, Apr 16, 2015 at 9:32 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> Let's get technical with her and pick through the transcript from Terri gross if we need to. To Tony's point yesterday, she refers to it as a position she HAD in the context on evolving along with the rest of the country.
>
> On Apr 16, 2015, at 11:10 AM, Adrienne Elrod <aelrod@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> FYI - had a good chat w/ Fred Sainz at HRC and Chad Griffin is going to call Annie Karni.
>
> He will also call and validate reaffirm the fact that she hasn't "flip flopped" on this issue to other reporters if need be.
>
> On Thu, Apr 16, 2015 at 8:07 AM, Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > He's already indicated he didn't see it as a change - Adrienne - let me know if you want help on this.
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Apr 16, 2015, at 11:05 AM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > I'm sure he would do it. His comms person is Fred Sainz - fred.sainz@hrc.org .
> >
> > On Thu, Apr 16, 2015 at 9:53 AM, Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > What about asking Chad Griffin to weigh in? He does not consider what she said as an "evolution"
> > >
> > > On Thu, Apr 16, 2015 at 9:35 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
> > > > Adrienne is working with Michael on points, not Hillary Clinton (or the Human Rights Campaign for that matter). iPhone autocorrect mishap.
> > > >
> > > > On Apr 16, 2015, at 8:30 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > >
> > > > HRC is working with Michael on the points, but separately we should get to Annie early on this.
> > > >
> > > > Begin forwarded message:
> > > >
> > > > Resent-From: <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Michael Morey <MMorey@skdknick.com >
Date: April 16, 2015 at 8:21:55 AM CDT
To: Brian Fallon <brianefallon@gmail.com >
Cc: Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >
Subject: FW: Hillary and gay marriage

See below. You have any talkers for her?

Mike Morey | Senior Vice President | SKDKnickerbocker
212.561.8730 (O) | 914.382.1762 (C) | Mmorey@SKDKnick.com | Twitter: @MikeMorey

On 4/16/15 8:11 AM, "Annie Karni" <akarni@politico.com > wrote:

> Not exactly sure-- but if we could chat this afternoon, that would be > great.
>
> Glenn Thrush says hello-- he may be involved in this story, as well.
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Christine Quinn [mailto:christinecquinn@gmail.com]
> Sent: Thursday, April 16, 2015 9:01 AM
> To: Annie Karni
> Cc: Michael Morey
> Subject: Re: Hillary and gay marriage
>
> Would love to chat. I have a packed am - what is your deadline
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> > On Apr 16, 2015, at 8:37 AM, Annie Karni <akarni@politico.com > wrote:
> >
> > Hi Speaker:
> >
> > Would you be willing to chat or email today regarding Hillary Clinton's new stated position on gay marriage? We're working on a story on the Clintons long, complicated relationship with the issue.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

I'm sorry I haven't been able to use our other interview yet: it will get worked into my coverage of the campaign when the time is right,

Annie

Sent from my iPhone

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Susan Kleinberg" <s2slk@me.com>
To:
Date:	1/28/2016 4:09:30 AM
Subject:	To an intriguing 2016...

Palazzo Fortuny Installation, Venice, May 2015

All best,

S. Kleinberg Studio

www.susankleinberg.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Karen Finney" <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 4/14/2015 4:16:32 PM
Subject: Re: Hillary Clinton Was Asked About Email 2 Years Ago - NYTimes.com

For the last one I'd say we'll respond when appropriate but we also aren't going to let this kind of charade distract from what this campaign is about: people

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 14, 2015, at 11:07 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> This reflects talking this through with Jen and then Karen, let's tweak but try to turn around quickly. Adding Cheryl and Heather as well for their eyes.
>
> Surrogates Q&A in Response Issa Letter/NYT Story
>
> - We've been over this, and over this, and over this again. She had an email account. She used that email account to correspond with over 100 people inside the State Department, outside the State Department, likely even some Republicans.
>
> - This was not a secret being kept, it was an email address. And she followed the letter and spirit of the law.
>
> - And let's remember something. This was a 2012 letter, isn't it interesting that it's coming out over 2 years later in 2015, the first day she begins campaigning in Iowa? What does that tell you about this? It tells you that this is more of the same partisan charade by the Republicans, the same Republicans who are turning to this because they didn't find any smoking gun on Benghazi.
>
> If asked about the mention in the story about violating the rules in the foreign affairs manual:
>
> - Let's remember something, 6 weeks ago the State Department email servers went down and they asked that people use their personal accounts.
>
> If pressed on whether Hillary Clinton gets to play by her own set of rules:
>
> - Well I'll tell you this, she has asked the State Department to turn over all 55,000 pages of her emails, and it's still not enough. So I'd say that the Republicans try and hold her to a different standard because they are afraid of what she has to offer as a candidate.
>
> - She's out there talking to voters, listening to their ideas and talking through some of hers.
>
> - It's important not to let these partisan attacks go unresponded to, but that's not what she's focused on.
>
> On Tue, Apr 14, 2015 at 10:46 PM, Adrienne Elrod <aelrod@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>> perfecto!
>>
>> On Tue, Apr 14, 2015 at 10:44 PM, Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>> Talked to Nick who talked to Jen - we've got a good response, I'm in good shape. We may just need to tweak for talkers who are out tomorrow.
>>>
>>> Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Apr 14, 2015, at 10:31 PM, Adrienne Elrod <aelrod@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

How do we handle guys?

Karen has CNN new day at 7a and msnbc at 9a. Canceling seems like we're hiding this late but ideally will have more than just punting to positive

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 14, 2015, at 9:51 PM, Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

I've got TV in the morning - do we cancel? If not I'll need a response; and we've got talkers who also need guidance.

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 14, 2015, at 9:47 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

This cropped up today. We're on background in it. See below.

http://mobile.nytimes.com/2015/04/15/us/politics/hillary-clintonwas-asked-about-email-2-years-ago.html?referrer=

Hillary Clinton Was Asked About Email 2 Years Ago

WASHINGTON — Hillary Rodham Clinton was directly asked by congressional investigators in a December 2012 letter whether she had used a private email account while serving as secretary of state, according to letters obtained by The New York Times.

But Mrs. Clinton did not reply to the letter. And when the State Department answered in March 2013, nearly two months after she left office, it ignored the question and provided no response for it.

The query was posed to Mrs. Clinton in a Dec. 13, 2012, letter from Representative Darrell Issa, the Republican chairman of the House Committee on Oversight and Government Reform. Mr. Issa was leading an investigation into how the Obama administration handled its officials' use of personal email.

"Have you or any senior agency official ever used a personal email account to conduct official business?" Mr. Issa wrote to Mrs. Clinton. "If so, please identify the account used."

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
To view this discussion on the web visit https://groups.google.com/d/msgid/hrcrapid/-5567371140890882 93%40unknownmsgid.
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
To view this discussion on the web visit https://groups.google.com/d/msgid/hrcrapid/4810174316244966154%40unknownmsgid.
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .

To view this discussion on the web visit https://groups.google.com/d/msgid/hrcrapid/CANu9wN7Vg%3Dhd8uiFDKLTqsusijMVOP0UyT3YZRhoaZMi%3DzfXZQ%40mail.gmail.com.

For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
To view this discussion on the web visit https://groups.google.com/d/msgid/hrcrapid/-1287219917752590156%40unknownmsgid.
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Mary Pat Bonner" <mpbonner@bonnergrp.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> davidbrockdc@gmail.com
Date:	9/10/2008 12:57:47 PM
Subject:	Book1.xls
Attachments:	Book1.xls

Here is our current commitment sheet -- $1.7c4 and $400K c3 so far with about 60 people left to decide

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Campus Broadcast" <broadcast@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	"Campus Broadcast" <broadcast@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	10/8/2014 8:05:29 AM
Subject:	Update on Ebola Outbreak: Georgetown's Trav el Policies and Health Protocol

Dear Members of the Georgetown University Community:

We are writing today to ensure that all members of our community are aware of our policies and procedures related to the Ebola virus outbreak in West Africa. Georgetown University, along with MedStar Georgetown University Hospital, the DC Department of Health and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), continue to monitor the outbreak of the Ebola virus in West Africa and its global impact.

While the risk of the Ebola virus affecting our campus community is low, the university has a policy in place to address travel to West Africa and has implemented a protocol to educate our community, identify individuals who may be at risk of exposure and monitor travelers returning from affected regions.

Travel Policy

As we wrote in August, Georgetown continues to prohibit university-sponsored travel for all of its students, faculty and staff to Liberia, Guinea and Sierra Leone. This guidance is consistent with CDC travel warnings to avoid non-essential travel to these areas. This means that university funds will not be used to support trips to these areas, nor will the university facilitate or otherwise endorse travel to these areas until further notice.

This policy will remain in effect as long as the CDC maintains the current warnings. If travel warnings for new locations are issued by the CDC, the university's travel policy will extend to those areas as well.

Personal Travel

Georgetown University strongly urges all members of the community to avoid personal travel to these areas. If there are compelling personal reasons for such travel, the University urges students, faculty and staff to contact Joseph Yohe, Associate Vice President for Risk Management at 202-687-6622 orjoseph.yohe@georgetown.edu , prior to departure. Faculty should also review personal travel plans to these areas with their Campus Executive Vice President, and staff should review with the Senior Vice President and Chief Operating Officer, as appropriate, and comply with all relevant policies.

Health Protocol

Georgetown is following the CDC's recently released guidance: Advice for Colleges, Universities and Students about Ebola in West Africa in our response-planning efforts. In order to protect our campus community from the Ebola virus, we ask that – before coming back onto campus - any faculty, staff or students who, in the last 21 days, have:

traveled to a region with known outbreaks of Ebola; or had direct exposure to a person known to have an Ebola infection contact Joseph Yohe, Associate Vice President for Risk Management at 202-687-6622 or joseph.yohe@georgetown.edu . Members of our community are expected to follow our monitoring protocols, which will be based on an individualized risk assessment.

It is important that all travelers adhere to these procedures in order to protect the health and safety of our campus community. Georgetown will continue to monitor updates from the CDC, the World Health Organization and the DC Department of Health in order to provide the most up-to-date and accurate information available.

For additional information about Ebola, including signs and symptoms, transmission and risk of exposure, and what to do if you are exhibiting symptoms, please see FAQs excerpted from the CDC website here .

Sincerely,

Joseph Yohe
Associate Vice President for Risk Management

James C. Welsh
Assistant Vice President for Student Health

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	H <hdr29@hrcoffice.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	5/2/2015 4:23:56 AM
Subject:	WJC NBC interview

MS et al -

We got a readout of WJC's NBC interview from our friends in Africa.

Going in, NBC agreed to do 70 percent of the piece on work of the Foundation and 30 percent about the book. Cynthia McFadden was the interviewer and didn't ask one question about work of the Foundation. Not one.

Absurdly, NBC is still promising Craig that they will stick by 70-30 agreement by using footage of the events and Cynthia describing the work of the Foundation. Not sure it will help, but I called Chuck Todd (as head of political unit) to let him know how outrageous and ludicrous this was and that our side of the house is watching to see how NBC handles this. The piece will air on Monday on the Today show.

I think we have to make this public. We are being hit by the press for not getting more attention for the good work of the Foundation, take a network to Africa to see the work, give them an interview with the President, and they do not ask ONE question about the work of the Foundation.

Craig has gotten in touch with NY mag this am to do a story about how grossly the media has handled the story on book/foundation and make this experience with NBC part of that story.

I also think we need to make it appropriately known on our "briefing" page on the website where all of our response content will live (it will be hillaryclinton.com/briefing). Will figure out a way to do so in a rational, dispassionate way. But think we need to do.

Below is a summary readout of the interview. We should have a transcript soon. Jen

-Tone was calm and civil.

-Says he has never knowingly accepted money from someone trying to influence government decisions, and if he knew that was any donor's goal, he wouldnt take their money

-says there is not a "shred of evidence" they did anything wrong.

-said the 990 forms were an innocent mistake

-says he does not think foundation is hurting HRC campaign

- Said it will be up to voters to decide if there is an appearance

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

problem, he is confident they will come to the right conclusion

-said he might step down from Foundation if she wins - if he is asked to do something in government

-Blamed media in having double standard with him compared to other presidents. His best lines were a riff saying the "theory of the case" behind the allegations was nuts in that you have government officials being influenced by philanthropic donations to poor people.

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Singh, Pavneet" <Pavneet_Singh@nsc.eop.gov>
To:	"Pavneet Singh" <pavneet@gmail.com>
Date:	5/2/2015 6:44:44 AM
Subject:	Thank you

Dear Friends,

Today is my last day at the White House. It has been a great privilege and a tremendous honor to work with you, to serve this President, and to deliver sound policy for the American people. Thank you for being hardworking, but light-hearted colleagues. I would say this is a once in a lifetime experience. But as I leave here I'm confident that the President and our senior leadership have inspired a generation of thoughtful leaders and policy makers who will continue to make a difference in the future.

So, instead of goodbye, I look forward to meeting again.

All the best,

Pav

Pavneet Singh
Pavneet@gmail.com
510.299.1655

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 3/27/2015 3:15:18 AM
Subject: Fwd: John

Did u see izzy
How was Blair house?

Sent from my iPad

Begin forwarded message:

> From: Israel Klein <IKlein@podestagroup.com >
> Date: March 27, 2015 at 5:49:20 AM GMT+6:30
> To: Tony Podesta <podesta@podesta.com >
> Subject: John
>
> Just ran into him on the street next to the WH. We talked for a little bit and he recognized me, but pretty sure he didn't remember my name. he was extremely friendly and mentioned he was meeting up with you in China In a couple days.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Bajwa, Kamran S." <kamran.bajwa@kirkland.com>
Date: 1/2/2016 9:47:30 AM
Subject: Re: Meeting Tuesday Jan 5 in NY?

Absolutely. Nice to make your digital acquaintance, Kamran. Would 2:00pm at our Brooklyn HQ be convenient? Our address is 300 Cadman Plaza West.

Moving John to BCC.

Best,
Milia

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

On Sat, Jan 2, 2016 at 4:38 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Milia
> Can you find a time.
>
> On Saturday, January 2, 2016, Bajwa, Kamran S. <kamran.bajwa@kirkland.com > wrote:
>
> > Hi John,
> >
> > Happy New Year. I wanted to follow up on our brief conversation a few weeks back and see if you would be available to meet this coming Tuesday in NY? I will be in town for work and my schedule is flexible on Tuesday so if you can meet, I can come to you at a convenient time and place anytime prior to 5pm.
> >
> > Best,
> >
> > Kamran
> >
> > ---
> > Kamran S. Bajwa | Partner
> > Kirkland & Ellis LLP
> > 300 North LaSalle Street
> > Chicago, Illinois | 60654
> > T: 312.862.2022
> > F: 312.862.2200
> > www.kirkland.com
> > ---
> >
> > On Dec 21, 2015, at 9:27 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
> >
> >
> > Please send my regards. He's a great guy.
> >
> > On Monday, December 21, 2015, Bajwa, Kamran S. <kamran.bajwa@kirkland.com > wrote:
> >
> > > John, just a quick note to say I was catching up with my senior partner Bill Singer back in the office and letting him know of my intentions to help your campaign as much as I can. He was very effusive in his praise of you and asked me to send along his regards. I will look forward to being touch after the break.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Best,

Kamran

Kamran S. Bajwa | Kirkland & Ellis LLP
300 North LaSalle Street | Chicago, Illinois | 60654
Direct Dial: 312.862.2022
General Fax: 312.862.2200
Email: kamran.bajwa@kirkland.com
Web: www.kirkland.com

From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Saturday, December 19, 2015 8:42 PM
To: Bajwa, Kamran S.
Subject: Re: Our meeting - St. Regis NY

Kamran,

Can't remember whether we discussed Trump's effect on ISIS/radical recruitment. You following that?

John

On Saturday, December 19, 2015, Bajwa, Kamran S. <kamran.bajwa@kirkland.com > wrote:

Dear John,

It was a pleasure to meet this past Th in NY. As discussed, I want to do whatever I can by way of sharing ideas, raising funds, recruiting campaign volunteers, and anything else that can help with your campaign. I hope my small efforts to introduce you to a growing group of professionals like myself will be able to boost your important work for Secretary Clinton's campaign.

I come to NY frequently and would welcome the opportunity to sit with you and discuss the best way to coordinate our efforts. If you will be in NY Jan 5, I will be free that day to meet you at any time and place convenient for you.

Best wishes for a joyous and happy holiday season,

Kamran

Kamran S. Bajwa | Partner

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Kirkland & Ellis LLP

300 North LaSalle Street

Chicago, Illinois | 60654

T: 312.862.2022

F: 312.862.2200

www.kirkland.com

The information contained in this communication is confidential, may be attorney-client privileged, may constitute inside information, and is intended only for the use of the addressee. It is the property of Kirkland & Ellis LLP or Kirkland & Ellis International LLP. Unauthorized use, disclosure or copying of this communication or any part thereof is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by return email or by email to postmaster@kirkland.com, and destroy this communication and all copies thereof, including all attachments.

The information contained in this communication is confidential, may be attorney-client privileged, may constitute inside information, and is intended only for the use of the addressee. It is the property of Kirkland & Ellis LLP or Kirkland & Ellis International LLP. Unauthorized use, disclosure or copying of this communication or any part thereof is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by return email or by email to postmaster@kirkland.com , and destroy this communication and all copies thereof, including all attachments.

The information contained in this communication is confidential, may be attorney-client privileged, may constitute inside information, and is intended only for the use of the addressee. It is the property of Kirkland & Ellis LLP or Kirkland & Ellis International LLP. Unauthorized use, disclosure or copying of this communication or any part thereof is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by return email or by email to postmaster@kirkland.com , and destroy this communication and all copies thereof, including all attachments.

--

Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Zadaai Gonzalez" <zgonzalez@engagecuba.org>
To:	John.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/1/2015 4:48:12 AM
Subject:	Engage Cuba Holiday Event at Embassy of Cuba

Dear Mr. Podesta,

Engage Cuba would like to formally invite you and your wife to attend the one-year celebration of U.S.-Cuba ties and holiday party at the Embassy of Cuba.

We sincerely hope that you will be able to join us at the event.

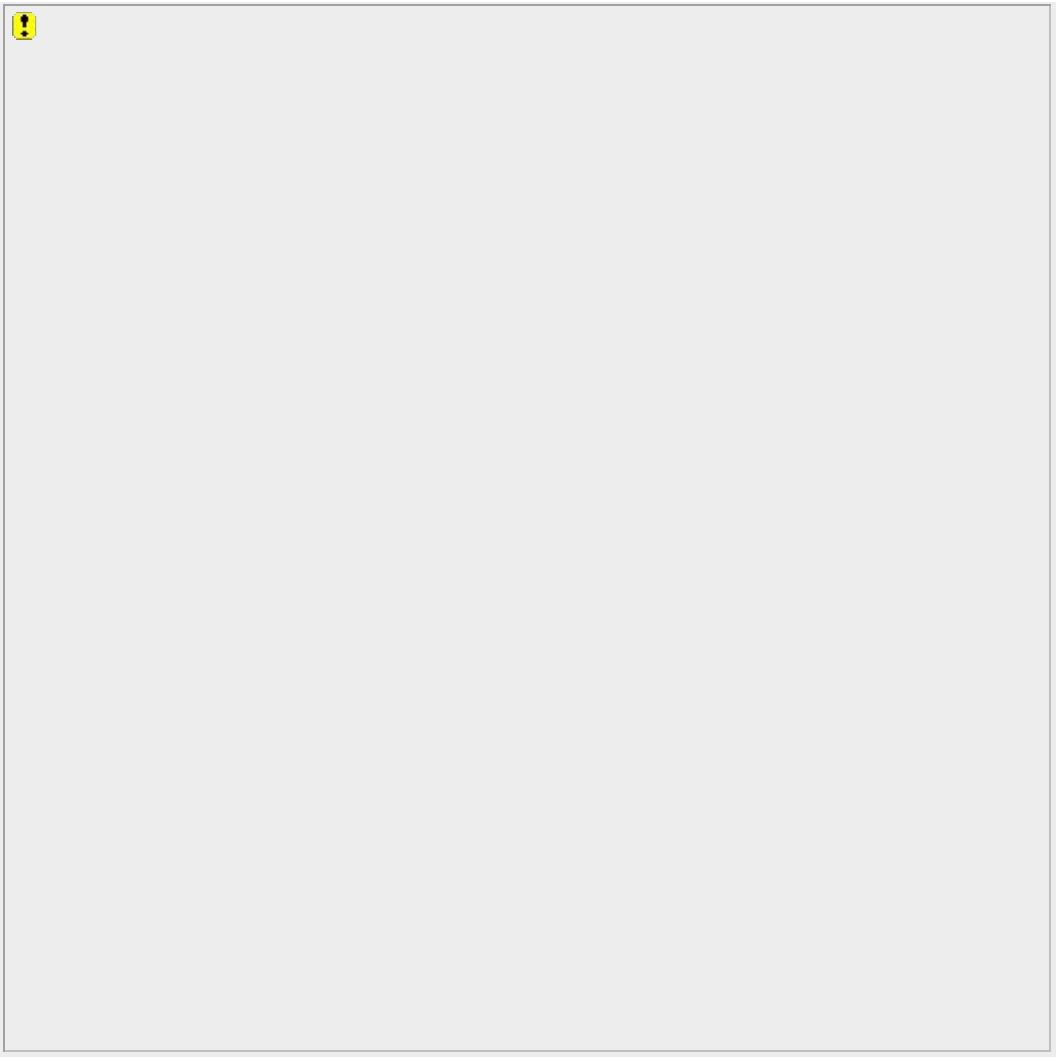
Details are as follows:

Engage Cuba Holiday Party & One-year U.S.-Cuba Ties Celebration
Wednesday, December 16, 2015
Embassy of Cuba in Washington, D.C.
6:30 pm

Invitation is below.

Please let me know if you have any questions and or if you have any trouble registering.

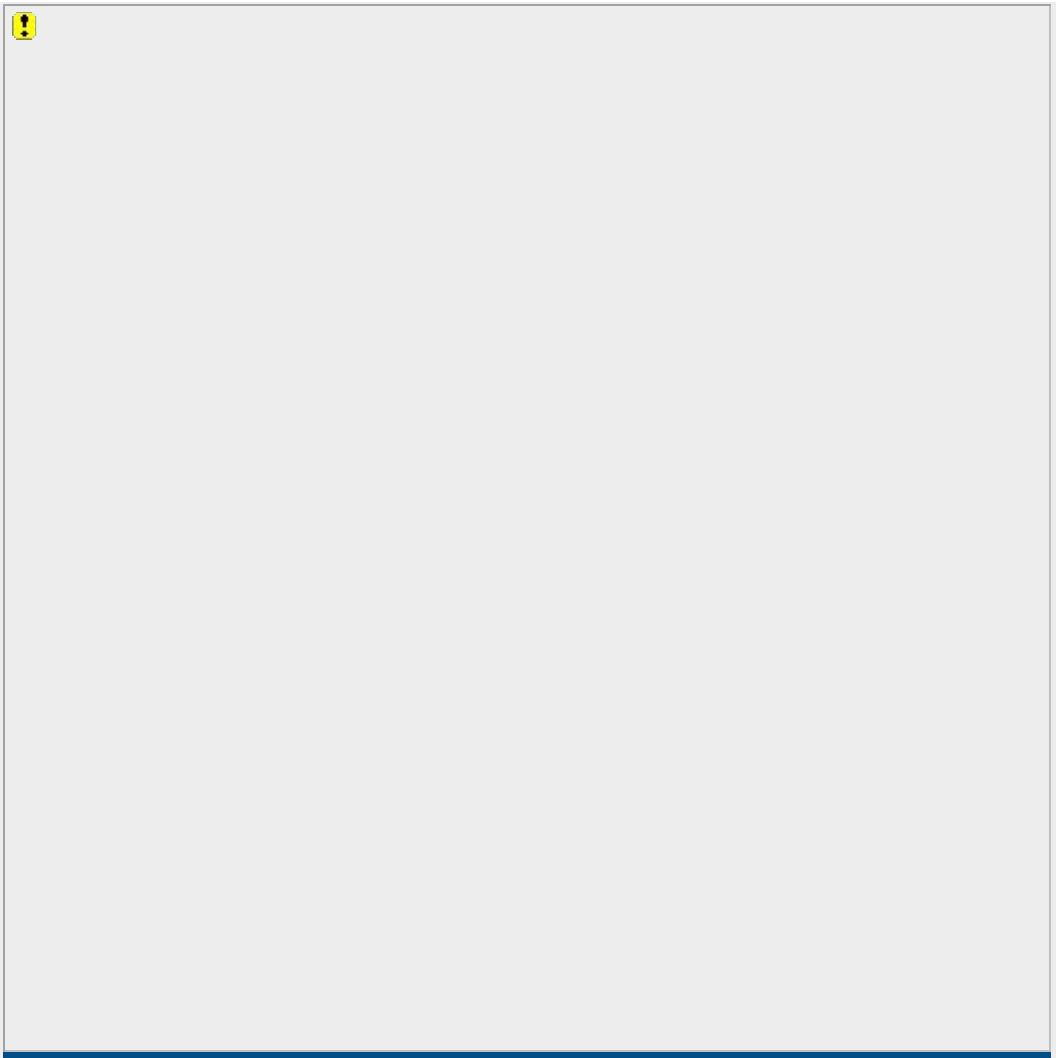
Many Thanks,



--
Zadaai Gonzalez
Fall Policy Fellow

Engage Cuba
1301 Pennsylvania Ave. NW, Suite 500
Washington, DC 20004

Cell: 401-527-9167



1301 Pennsylvania Ave Suite 500, Washington DC, District of Columbia 20004, United States

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

1301 Pennsylvania Ave Suite 500, Washington DC, District of Columbia 20004, United States

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

RSVP

About Engage Cuba

Engage Cuba is a bipartisan 501(c)(4) public policy organization dedicated to coalescing and mobilizing American businesses, non-profit groups and concerned citizens for the purpose of supporting the ongoing U.S. Cuba normalization process and enacting legislation to reform U.S. travel and trade restrictions with Cuba.

1301 Pennsylvania Ave Suite 500, Washington DC, District of Columbia 20004, United States

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Oren Shur" <oshur@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Joel Benenson" <jbenenson@bsgco.com>
Date: 1/20/2016 4:52:10 PM
Subject: Re: DRAFT: "We Can't Wait" Speech

I think there's a lot of really strong stuff in here, really nice work Dan - one small suggestion that might help achieve what Joel is flagging here could be to bring the recipe for gridlock language up in the speech so that it's connected to the framing graph on delivering real results - so that shes presenting the clear choice early on.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 20, 2016, at 11:16 PM, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com > wrote:

I think John is right and there is so much kitchen sink, I'm losing the core argument. I've read the speech twice and I'm not sure we are teeing up "the choice" that we want voters to think about when they caucus nor am I finding the two to three sound bites that we would love to see picked up every day. I thought the short version that were sent around on the 18th are closer to the essence the of the argument and instead of trying to put some "issues" "plans" I would pare down and have a policies/solutions that animate and reflect the values that are driving her: fairness, lifting each other up, having each others backs.

All the candidates have the experts stumped (Carson early; Trump; Cruz, Sanders) are all focusing on the core values they hold and are fighting for a simple vision of where we want them to be. I think we have the latter with real differences in people's lives but we're not hitting on values enough (why she is fighting for each thing) as the linchpin between what she will do on the policy side and the real differences those will make in peoples lives.

From: speechdrafts@hillaryclinton.com [mailto:speechdrafts@hillaryclinton.com] On Behalf Of John Podesta
Sent: Wednesday, January 20, 2016 8:54 PM
To: Dan Schwerin
Cc: Speech Drafts; Matt Paul; Lily Adams
Subject: Re: DRAFT: "We Can't Wait" Speech

I like a lot of this, but it has the feel of the kitchen sink being thrown in. Can we pare some of the less important stuff out or do you think she wants to see it all in? In the here's where we agree graph, I'd make Wall St last.

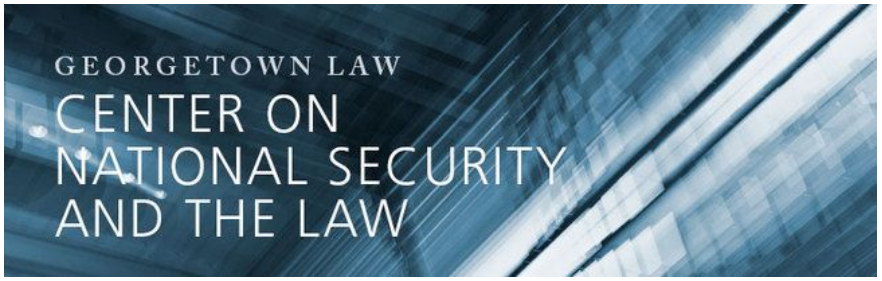
On Wednesday, January 20, 2016, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
Team, attached is a full draft of a speech based on the outline we gave HRC yesterday. At its core is the argument that Sanders' ideas will lead to gridlock, not action, and Americans can't wait to see results.

This is about 2800 words, which is roughly 25 minutes. So cuts welcome.

I need to get to HRC and WJC soon, so I apologize about the short-turn around but would love reactions ASAP.
Thank you.
Dan

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	FES33@aol.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	6/6/2008 1:16:23 PM
Subject:	acorn



John
have you weighed in on press strategy to help contain this mess. I suggested Mccurry but I figured you would have better info
Frank

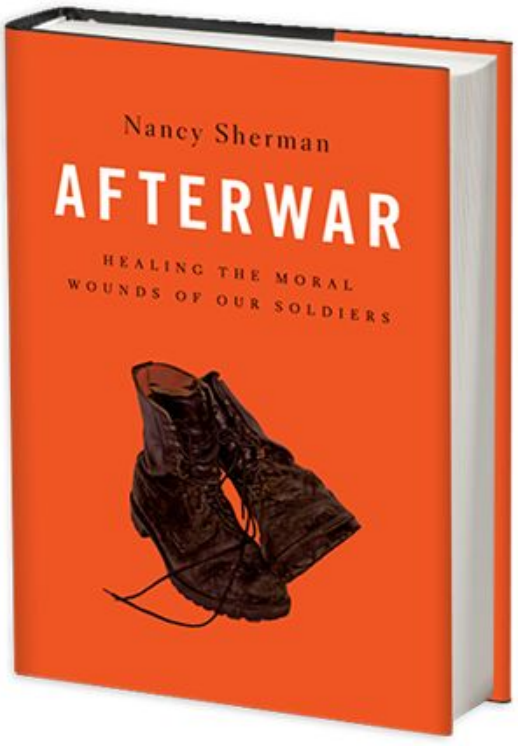
This e-mail and any attachments thereto, is intended only for use by the addressee(s) named herein and may contain legally privileged and/or confidential information. If you are not the intended recipient of this e-mail, you are hereby notified any dissemination, distribution or copying of this email, and any attachments thereto, is strictly prohibited. If you receive this email in error please immediately notify me and permanently delete the original copy and any copy of any e-mail, and any printout thereof.

****
Get trade secrets for amazing burgers. Watch "Cooking with Tyler Florence" on AOL Food.
(http://food.aol.com/tyler-florence?video=4?&NCID=aolfod00030000000002)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Elisa M Smith" <ems287@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	"All Faculty and Staff" <AllFacultyandStaff@law.georgetown.edu>
	"All?? Students" <allstudents@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	11/2/2015 1:47:21 PM
Subject:	Just A Reminder: Discussion tomorrow on AFTERWAR by Nancy Sherman

Just a reminder!



Please join us tomorrow, Tuesday, November 3 to discuss Georgetown University Professor of Philosophy Nancy Sherman's newest book AFTERWAR .

Professor Sherman's book explores the moral and philosophical complexities of homecomings for modern veterans, the largest reintegration of service members back into society since Vietnam. The book has been called "urgently necessary" by National Book Award winner Phil Klay. The expert panel will include author Nancy Sherman; Professor Rosa Brooks, Georgetown Law; Col. Joe Thomas, Center for Middle East and Islamic Studies; Philip Carter, Center for a New American Security; and Professor Mitt Regan, Georgetown Law.

WHEN: Tuesday, November 3, at 3:30 pm.
Reception to follow.

WHERE: Gewriz 12th Floor

Please RSVP here .

Office of Special Events
GEORGETOWN LAW | rsvp2@law.georgetown.edu
600 New Jersey Avenue, N.W. | Washington, D.C. 20001
Office: 202.662.9505 | Fax: 202.662.9448

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"DEM ALERT \(via HMPAC.com\)" <democrats@hmpac.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	2/29/2016 9:23:30 AM
Subject:	wild info inside

The latest stunt from the GOP – to stop President Obama from doing his constitutional duty and filling the vacancy on the Supreme Court – has us FUMING.

Their antics are proof positive we've GOT to elect a Democratic Majority this fall. But the GOP is going to have their eyes on our FEC report to see one thing: if we've got the strength to hold them accountable for their failure to do their job.

That is why before midnight tonight we've got to make sure we close the gap in our fundraising totals. John, can you donate to help support President Obama's agenda and elect a Democratic Majority in 2016?

Donate $5 now >>

Donate $25 now >>

Donate $50 now >>

Donate $100 now >>

Or, donate another amount

This email was sent to: podesta@law.georgetown.edu. Make sure you continue to get updates from House Majority PAC by adding democrats@thehousemajoritypac.com to your address book or approved sender list.

If that is not your preferred email address, you can update your information here.

Contributions or gifts to House Majority PAC are not tax deductible.

If you'd like to still get updates from House Majority PAC but less frequently, click here to sign up for 1-2 emails per month. Click here to unsubscribe.

Paid for by House Majority PAC. www.thehousemajoritypac.com. Not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
Date: 1/9/2014 9:28:00 PM
Subject: Fwd: Re:

Call list

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

Begin forwarded message:

> From: Mark Childress <mbcslmmbc@gmail.com >
> Date: January 9, 2014 at 10:36:54 PM EST
> To: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
> Subject: Re:
>
> Good to hear! Give me a call-- my cell is 6179978761 but am headed to the country and the better number is 434 823 4788.
>
> Sent from my iPad
>
> > On Jan 9, 2014, at 10:14 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
> >
> > Better than expected. Talk over the weekend?
> >
> > JP
> > --Sent from my iPad--
> > john.podesta@gmail.com
> > For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com
> >
> > > On Jan 9, 2014, at 7:14 PM, Mark Childress <mbcslmmbc@gmail.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > How is it going?
> > >
> > > Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 4/23/2012 11:04:03 AM
Subject: Re: Published Results from Corporate Review.DOCX

Yes - he said he's very interested (I spoke to him yesterday) and he shot you an email to say he was interested.

cdm

On Mon, Apr 23, 2012 at 3:55 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

I am going to let this go and not distribute. Russel Reynolds women are having breakfast with Leslie tomorrow. Claimed they couldn't schedule him in NYC. If he remains interested and you agree with me that he would be good, I think we pick two from the peeps you are seeing tomorrow and Leslie and make them the three finalists for WJC.
Other person who said he wasn't interested and then changed his mind is Ira Fishman, but unless you disagree, I'm not inclined to go there unless we think the current group won't cut it.

On Sun, Apr 22, 2012 at 2:55 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:
> I am good with it except part that says foundation president reports to the > foundation ceo - is that settled and have you been telling folks that re the > organizational structure?
>
> Also - sent you an email earlier in the day re one of the top candidates who > has not heard from spencer and thus is not scheduled for an interview . . .
>
> cdm
>
>
> On Sun, Apr 22, 2012 at 2:51 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > > wrote:
>>
>> Cheryl,
>> Interviewees are asking for anything related to corporate review. This >> was the draft developed to be sent to all staff. Don't think that >> ever happened, but I think it is safe to share on a confidential basis >> with candidates. Thoughts?
>> John
>>
>> ---------- Forwarded message ----------
>> From: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
>> Date: Wed, Feb 8, 2012 at 3:15 PM
>> Subject: Fwd: Published Results from Corporate Review.DOCX
>> To: Seher Syed <ssyed@americanprogress.org >
>>
>>
>> can you print this attachment for me.
>>
>>
>> ---------- Forwarded message ----------
>> From: Reynoso, Jennifer <jreynoso@stblaw.com >
>> Date: Mon, Jan 30, 2012 at 3:14 PM
>> Subject: Published Results from Corporate Review.DOCX
>> To: "Bruce Lindsey (brucerlindsey@aol.com)" <brucerlindsey@aol.com >,
>> "john.podesta@gmail.com " <john.podesta@gmail.com >, "Cheryl Mills

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>> (cheryl.mills@gmail.com)" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >, "Anna James >> (aj66@nyu.edu)" <aj66@nyu.edu >
>> Cc: "Bjorklund, Victoria B" <vbjorklund@stblaw.com >
>>
>>
>> Dear All,
>> At the Foundation staff meeting, a member of the staff asked whether >> the Foundation would distribute the “results” of the corporate review >> to the staff. In response, we have prepared the attached document for >> your review. Please let us know if you have any comments.
>> Regards,
>> Jennifer
>>
>>
>> IRS Circular 230 disclosure: To ensure compliance with requirements >> imposed by the IRS, we inform you that any tax advice contained in >> this communication (including any attachments) was not intended or >> written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of (i) >> avoiding tax-related penalties under federal, state or local tax law >> or (ii) promoting, marketing or recommending to another party any >> transaction or matter addressed herein.
>> CONFIDENTIALITY NOTE:
>> The information contained in this email message and any attachments is >> legally privileged and confidential information intended only for the >> use of the individual or entity to whom it is addressed. If the >> reader of this message is not the intended recipient, you are hereby >> notified that any dissemination, distribution or copy of this message >> or its attachments is strictly prohibited. If you have received this >> email in error, please immediately notify us by telephone, fax, or >> email and delete the message. Thank you.
>> _____
>>
>> Jennifer Reynoso
>> Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP
>> 425 Lexington Avenue
>> New York, New York 10017
>>
>> Tel: (212) 455-2287
>> Fax: (212) 455-2502
>> jreynoso@stblaw.com
>> _____
>
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jose Villarreal" <jhv.cg@att.net>
To: "Debbie Fine" <DFine@americanprogress.org>
Date: 4/17/2015 11:33:21 PM
Subject: Re: Staff Transition

Debbie - you have been a big part of CAP's success. Your contributions are too extensive to enumerate but I want to thank you for the graceful and cheerful demeanor that you always exhibited in your interactions with the board. I, for one, look forward to staying in touch with you as you embark on your next venture. Cheers! Jose

Sent from my iPad

On Apr 17, 2015, at 4:56 PM, Debbie Fine <DFine@americanprogress.org > wrote:

> Dear Members of the Board,
>
> Thank you for allowing me to a small part of this amazing institution. It has been an incredible experience and an honor, in particular to have the opportunity to work closely with all of you. I will miss CAP, but consider myself a permanent part of the family.
>
> I look forward to seeing the great things you will all do in the future. And I hope to stay in touch. I can be reached at debsfine@gmail.com or 917-373-8308.
>
> Warm wishes,
> Debbie
>
> From: Neera Tanden
> Sent: Friday, April 10, 2015 4:41 PM
> To: rcleone@earthlink.net ; ses@sandlerfoundation.org ; hms@sandlerfoundation.org ; Jose Villarreal; tomd1175@gmail.com ; Tom Steyer; jstewart@albrightstonebridge.com ; Carol Browner; wyssh@loreda.org ; Glenn Hutchins (glenn.hutchins@silverlake.com); John Podesta
> Cc: jdemesmin-rodrigues@sandlerfoundation.org ; sdaetz@sandlerfoundation.org ; shyde@sandlerfoundation.org ; veronica@daschlegroup.com ; esuhr@fahrll.com ; davis.debbie@loreda.org ; hutchinsoffice@silverlake.com ; Eryn Sepp; eirodriguez@verizon.net ; Lindsay Hamilton; Alex DeMots; Debbie Fine; Stephanie Thomas; Audrey J. Juarez; Carmel Martin; Winnie Stachelberg
> Subject: Staff Transition
>
> Dear Members of the Board,
>
> After more than a decade of service to the American Progress, Debbie Fine will be leaving us for a fantastic new opportunity as the Deputy Director of Global Philanthropy at J.P. Morgan Chase. We are incredibly grateful for her years of dedication, hard work, effective leadership and sense of humor. Debbie has been part of American Progress from the very early days, helping build its infrastructure and establishing a legal team that protects CAP without hindering its programmatic goals. She has been a true team player, filling many roles as needed over the years. Few have worked as hard to make CAP the place it is and I will miss her spirit as well as her counsel.
>
> I am pleased to announce that Alex DeMots will be leading the legal team as our new General Counsel. Alex has served as in-house counsel at American Progress for more than seven years, and as VP and Deputy General Counsel since 2011. During that time he has been an effective leader, helping to guide the legal team with excellent problem solving skills, and working with American Progress staff to ensure legal compliance in all manner of activities. He has been particularly effective in guiding us with judiciousness as the world of nonprofits and electoral activities has been radically altered. I know he will make a strong General Counsel. In addition to his years of experience at American Progress, he served as counsel to Chairman Robert D. Lenhard at the Federal Election Commission and spent two years as an associate with Trister, Ross, Schadler & Gold, specializing in advising nonprofit organizations on the full range of issues relevant to them. Alex is a graduate of Georgetown University Law Center and the University of Michigan.
>
> I am recommending that the board appoint Alex as the new Corporate Secretary effective April 20, 2015. As described above, he has a wealth of experience in legal matters impacting tax exempt organizations, including best practices in governance, and he has already worked side by side with Debbie during his tenure here on these issues.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

If you agree with my recommendation, please email Debbie Fine to let her know at your earliest convenience at dfine@americanprogress.org , and complete the attached Unanimous Consent and submit it to Debbie by email or fax to 202-315-0453 by Thursday April 16.

If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to ask me.

I look forward to seeing you in May.

Thank you as always for all that you do,
Neera

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Safeway <safeway@email.safeway.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 8/19/2015 11:05:01 PM
Subject: Mary, click once and save more.

Don't miss out on these fast deals | View with Images

Hello, Mary!
See what savings you're missing.

just for U

New! One-click Savings

You won't believe how easy just for U one-click is. See what you've been missing in seconds.

Red Bell Peppers
Each. Excludes Organic.

Expires: 08/25/15

$1.18

Add Item

Coupons & Deals

View All Offers

Dannon
Light & Fit Yogurt
32-oz.
Expires: 08/25/15

$3.50

Add Item

Green Zucchini
Squash
Each. Excludes Organic.
Expires: 08/25/15

$1.18

Add Item

Our Store | Recipes & Meals Nutrition | Pharmacy & | Like Us | Follow Us | Follow Us

For questions, please contact customer support at (877) 258-2799.

You've received this email because our records indicate you supplied an email address when you submitted your Card application, contacted us via our website or signed up via our website to receive email.

Click here to unsubscribe from all Safeway email lists. To read our privacy policy click here .

Copyright © 2015 by Safeway Inc. All rights reserved.
Safeway, Inc. 5918 Stoneridge Mall Road, Pleasanton, CA 94588

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	physiodc@gmail.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	8/14/2014 6:00:09 AM
Subject:	Appointment Reminder

Dear John,

This email is to remind you of an upcoming appointment at Washington PhysioDC

Details:
Date / Time: 08/15/2014 11:45 AM
Location: Conn Ave

There is no need to respond to this email unless you cannot make your appointment.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Froman, Michael B" <fromanm@citi.com>
Date:	9/6/2008 10:23:27 AM
Subject:	Re: Chicago

give me a sense of what materials you are working on

On Sat, Sep 6, 2008 at 5:19 PM, Froman, Michael B <fromanm@citi.com> wrote:
>
> Assuming the hurricane passes, I plan to get to Chicago around 10:30 am tomorrow. If you're going to be in early and want to meet, please let me know.
>
> I am working up some additional materials which we can discuss when we see each other tomorrow.
>
>
>
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Amitabh Desai" <adesai@clintonfoundation.org>
To:	"Hannah Richert - PC" <hannah@presidentclinton.com>
Date:	4/6/2012 3:49:18 AM
Subject:	for WJC: green corporations
Attachments:	CDP-KeyFindings-2011.pdf

Dear Hannah, the attached 2-page analysis on corporations that have invested in improving their environmental impact may be of interest for the President. It also concisely makes a case for doing something at CGI on corporations' planning for water resources – would have benefit of helping businesses bottom lines while also [hopefully] reducing environmental degradation. Sincerely, Ami

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Josh Schwerin" <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 6/18/2015 10:00:26 AM
Subject: Re: Fwd: Martin O'Malley: Zero out fossil fuels by 2050

We need the get to 80% emission reduction by 2050. Which implies close to a zero carbon energy sector.

On Jun 18, 2015 4:52 PM, "Josh Schwerin" <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Martin O'Malley published an op-ed this morning calling for 100% renewable energy by 2050. Tom Steyer has praised it as well as some other environmental types.
>
> I don't know much about the issue but zeroing out fossil fuels in 35 years seems unrealistic. We're considering asking friends to pitch a smart enviro reporter or columnist on a story about how this may be well-intentioned but its not a serious proposal. Does that seem right to you?
>
> Martin O'Malley: Zero out fossil fuels by 2050
>
> http://www.usatoday.com/story/opinion/2015/06/18/pope-francis-encyclical-clean-energy-technology-campaign-column/28859409/
>
> Martin O'Malley9:19 a.m. EDT June 18, 2015*
>
> Today, Pope Francis published his first encyclical —an official teaching document to all 1.2 billion Catholics — on the moral imperative of addressing climate change. He is not alone among leaders of world faiths making such a clarion call for action.
>
> We have come a long way as a nation in making ourselves more energy independent. Now is the time to take this progress to the next level — the future of our country and our planet depends on it.
>
> New technologies now put an independent clean energy future decidedly within our reach as a nation.
>
> But reach for it we must.
>
> Clean energy represents the biggest business and job creation opportunity we've seen in a hundred years. And reliance on local, renewable energy sources means a more secure nation and a more stable world.
>
> Given the grave threat that climate change poses to human life on our planet, we have not only a business imperative but a moral obligation to future generations to act immediately and aggressively.
>
> This is why protecting the United States from the devastating impact of climate change — while capitalizing on the job creation opportunity of clean energy — is at the center of my campaign for president .
>
> All of us can acknowledge that with an "all of the above strategy," President Obama has made the United States more energy independent in every category of fuels, including oil and gas.
>
> But America did not land a man on the moon with an "all of the above strategy." It was an engineering challenge.
>
> Making the transition to a clean energy future is also an engineering challenge.
>
> We cannot meet the climate challenge with an all-of-the-above energy strategy, or by drilling off our coasts, or by building pipelines that bring oil from tar sands in Canada.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Instead, we must be intentional and committed to one over-arching goal as a people: a full, complete transition to renewable energy — and an end to our reliance on fossil fuels.

Saving the world is a goal worthy of a great people. It is also good business for the United States of America.

I believe, within 35 years, our country can, and should, be 100% powered by clean energy, supported by millions of new jobs. To reach this goal we must accelerate that transition starting now.

As president, on day one, I would use my executive power to declare the transition to a clean energy future the number one priority of our Federal Government.

I would create a new Clean Energy Jobs Corps to partner with communities to retrofit buildings to be more energy efficient, improve local resiliency, create new green spaces, and restore and expand our forests so they can absorb more greenhouse gases.

I would retrofit federal buildings to the highest efficiency standards and require new federal buildings to be net-zero, require the federal fleet to be subject to low- or zero-emissions purchasing agreements, and require all federally-funded infrastructure projects to meet climate resiliency standards .

As president, I would direct the Environmental Protection Agency to take aggressive action to limit greenhouse gases: expanding rules to other large sources of emissions beyond power plants, adopting a zero-tolerance policy for methane leaks from current oil and gas production, and setting higher energy efficiency standards for new buildings while requiring energy costs to be transparent to building tenants and purchasers.

And I would reject projects like Keystone XL and drilling off our coasts and in Antarctica and Alaska . Furthermore, I would keep domestically produced oil and gas in the U.S., instead of selling it abroad — unless there is a clear strategic security rationale.

Beyond executive actions, I would make clean energy deployment — and employment — a first-order priority.

I would set a national, cross-sector Renewable Electricity Standard so our nation is powered by 100% clean energy by 2050, and a national goal of doubling energy efficiency within 15 years. Many states like California and Maryland are already leading the way forward for the United States.

I would fight for federal legislation for a cap on carbon emissions from all sources, with proceeds from permits returned to lower and middle-class families, transition assistance, and new jobs with the Clean Energy Corps.

As president, I would support a Clean Energy Financing Authority to support projects to increase efficiency and resiliency upgrades in cities, towns, and rural communities nationwide.

I would prioritize modernizing our electric grid to evolve to support localized, renewable energy generation, reduce electricity waste and increase security from sabotage or attack.

And I would increase our investment in basic clean energy research so the U.S. can reclaim the lead on energy innovation, including advancing development, deployment, transmission and storage for renewable energy and new efficiency technologies.

The fact is, there is no either/or choice between our prosperity and protecting our planet — we can create a future where there are more jobs, and a future with a livable climate. And there is no future for humankind without a livable climate.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The reality, as I learned in Maryland, is that the two goals are indivisible. Driven by ambitious targets, we created thousands of new jobs while deploying clean energy technology and reducing greenhouse gas pollution by nearly 10% over just seven years.

As the nation, we can do far more — with a bold vision for America's clean energy future and the strong leadership needed to get it done.

Martin O'Malley has served as the governor of Maryland, mayor of Baltimore, and a city councilor — earning a reputation as a bold, progressive, and pragmatic executive who is willing to take on our toughest shared challenges.

In addition to its own editorials, USA TODAY publishes diverse opinions from outside writers, including our Board of Contributors . To read more columns like this, go to the Opinion front page .

--
Josh Schwerin
Spokesperson
Hillary for America
@JoshSchwerin

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
Date: 11/21/2015 3:10:09 AM
Subject: Re: 404 PAS - 12C Punch List

Yup

On Nov 21, 2015 9:52 AM, "Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com > wrote:

> Thanks
> Are u on your way to DC
> I'm on my way to NYC
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Nov 21, 2015, at 9:01 AM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
>> Smoke detector is fixed.
>>
>> On Friday, November 20, 2015, Mae Podesta <mpodesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>>> I have a request in for this and they were checking with the manufacturer about something
>>>
>>> On Nov 20, 2015, at 14:28, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>>>
>>>> The shades in Mae's room work but are off cycle. The middle one goes up when the other two go down.
>>>>
>>>> On Friday, November 20, 2015, Tony Podesta <podesta@podesta.com > wrote:
>>>>> Anything else?
>>>>>
>>>>> Sent from my iPhone
>>>>>
>>>>> Begin forwarded message:
>>>>>
>>>>>> From: Fran Shapiro <fran@mercedesberk.com >
>>>>>> Date: November 20, 2015 at 1:35:03 PM EST
>>>>>> To: Robert Siegel <rsiegel@GHENTREAL.COM >
>>>>>> Cc: "jboyle@sciame.com " <jboyle@sciame.com >, Noel Berk <noel@mercedesberk.com >, Sarah Gabbay <sarahg@mercedesberk.com >, " huyscondo@gmail.com" <huyscondo@gmail.com >, Tony Podesta <podesta@podesta.com>
>>>>>> Subject: Re: 404 PAS - 12C Punch List
>>>>>>
>>>>>> Hi Bob
>>>>>>
>>>>>> Looks like most or all STILL pending. Please advise!!
>>>>>>
>>>>>> Thanks
>>>>>> Fran
>>>>>>
>>>>>> Fran Shapiro
>>>>>> Licensed Real Estate Salesperson
>>>>>>
>>>>>> Engel & Völkers Mercedes/Berk

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

783 Madison Avenue, 3rd Floor
New York, NY 10065
Tel: +1 646-661-2079
Cell: +1 347-556-4409
mercedesberk.com

On Jul 28, 2015, at 12:41 PM, Robert Siegel <rsiegel@GHENTREAL.COM > wrote:

Fran

Per our discussion and my inspection today, I have forwarded the list to Joe and he will give me schedule to correct.

Bob

From: Fran Shapiro [mailto:fran@mercedesberk.com]
Sent: Monday, July 20, 2015 2:41 PM
To: jboyle@sciame.com ; Robert Siegel
Cc: Noel Berk; Sarah Gabbay; huyscondo@gmail.com ; Tony Podesta
Subject: 404 PAS - 12C Punch List

Hello Joe and Bob,

I hope this finds you well!

Mr. Podesta has asked us to check on a few things for him with respect to 12C. I don't know if these things fall under your responsibilities, but if not, perhaps you can point me in the right direction:

- the French doors in the living room do not close properly (after the hardware replacement)

- there is a strip of metal missing between two of the glass panes on the right-hand French door in the living room

- there is some peeling paint on the ceiling of the living room (close to the French doors) that is in need of repair

- there is a small defect in the window frame on the south-facing window that needs to be repaired

Please advise how we can get these items addressed and resolved.

Thanks
Fran

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Fran Shapiro
Licensed Real Estate Salesperson

MERCEDES/BERK private real estate
783 Madison Ave, 3rd Floor – New York, NY 10065 |
P: 212.452.3070 x206 | F: 212.452.3074 |
C: 347.556.4409 | E: fran@mercedesberk.com
www.mercedesberk.com

P Please consider the environment before printing this email.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	john.podesta@gmail.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	10/30/2008 4:02:29 PM
Subject:	Delivered: Re: Friday call
Attachments:	Attach 1

Your message was delivered to the recipient.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Luke McFarland - Feder for Congress" <Judy@judyfeder.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 10/21/2008 7:42:43 AM
Subject: Judy's On Network, Buy a Spot!

John--

It's go time.

You've already seen our first three commercials. They aired on cable in key markets across the 10th District – to build Judy's profile and lay the groundwork for our big push in the final weeks of the campaign.

It's time to go up on network TV. A strong network buy is key to our ability to win this race. This morning, we aired our first sport on network TV, but in order to make sure voters have the chance to see it as many times as possible before the election, we have to make sure we make the strongest media buy we can.

Wolf is on network as well, and we need your help to match him dollar-for-dollar.

Help us make a strong network buy. Pick the show you want the ad to run in, and then purchase the spot for us.

Below are the programs and actual costs per spot:

The Food Network- $23

The Daily Show- $53

The Colbert Report- $106 (2 spots)

Monday Night Football on ESPN- $150

Hardball on MSNBC- $265 (5 spots)

ABC 7 News at 12- $500

Fox Morning News- $600

The View- $750

CBS 9 news at 6 - $865

Good Morning America- $1400

NBC 4 News at 5 - $1620

Judy has made a convincing case for change over the course of this campaign. We also have an incredibly strong ground game on behalf of the Obama-Warner-Feder ticket in VA-10.

But to win we need a strong broadcast buy. Contribute today to help us get our message out to voters in the 10th district.

Thanks for all you do,

Luke McFarland
Campaign Manager

P.S. Remember to check the ad out by clicking here!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

CONTRIBUTE JUDYFEDER.COM VOLUNTEER

Paid for and Authorized by Judy Feder for Congress

6818 Tennyson Dr
McLean, VA 22101

send to a friend

To unsubscribe from this mailing list, click here
POWERED BY PONGP SOFTWARE, INC.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 1/29/2016 10:53:56 AM
Subject: Re: 1.29.16 HFA IA Day 3

I've got all the Labor president's schedules / and Clinton schedules wanted to talk thru what you'd like to do

Robby is canvassing tmrrw/sticking around DSM

Huma suggested last night you spend a day with HRC and a day with WJC
but we can talk thru it all tonight

I've worked out manifest issues so you have options.

On Fri, Jan 29, 2016 at 5:51 PM, Sara Latham <slatham@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> yep was planning to meet you at RON on arrival!
>
> On Fri, Jan 29, 2016 at 5:51 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
> > Should we try to catch up tonight?
> >
> > On Friday, January 29, 2016, Sara Latham <slatham@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> > From: Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com >
> > Date: Fri, Jan 29, 2016 at 5:43 PM
> > Subject: Re: 1.29.16 HFA IA Day 3
> > To: Readout <Readout@presidentclinton.com >, "synergy@hillaryclinton.com "
> > <synergy@hillaryclinton.com >
> > Cc: "mpaul@hillaryclinton.com " <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com >, "ladams@hillaryclinton.com " > > <ladams@hillaryclinton.com >, "slatham@hillaryclinton.com " <slatham@hillaryclinton.com >, " > > pburgwinkle@hillaryclinton.com" <pburgwinkle@hillaryclinton.com >
> >
> > HFA Organizing Event
> > Muscatine, IA
> > OPEN PRESS
> >
> > Ropeline
> >
> > He signed a sax for a nice high schooler, which folks seemed to go nuts over. Other than that no issues > > on the ropeline.
> >
> > Color | New | Flags
> >
> > Created some contrast with Sanders:
> >
> > Said congress won't pass free education. And used some of the same language from earlier today.
> >
> > WJC just said that it's fine to say you're for a single payer system. He acknowledged that if > > we didn't have something to build on, maybe it's what we should be doing. But, that we > > can't afford to rip away the progress we've made - that we need to build on what we have.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He made the same Wall St. argument/contrast he did earlier today. He also used the bit on Bernie calling Planned Parenthood on others the establishment. Adlibbed a bit this time saying that just because people aren't for sure doesn't mean that they're the establishment.

Said people who can afford to pay for their children's education (i.e.: him) should not get it for free. That everyone should contribute their fair share. That it'd unfair to take away money from those who need it.

Said the 90's were good, but that we need to upgrade that to get similar results in new and challenging times.

Fun fact: As it turns out, and per WJC, watermelons aren't very good when they're north of 40 lbs - because they're mostly water. He offered as much after reminding the crowd here that the world record for watermelons stood at some 270 lbs, at one point. And, that it was grown in AR while he was Governor.

Remarks

About 350 more Iowans showed up to see WJC here in Muscatine.

The field organizer (Fernando) that introduced WJC was pretty good.

WJC shared a fun little story about watermelons & acknowledged that delicious wine is made in Muscatine.

Piggybacking off of what Fernando said during his intro, WJC started by talking CHIP and health care.

He transitioned and shared a couple of the stories of the folks he's met while out here.

He then spent some time framing the election and laying out what's at stake. Covered college affordability, ISIS, immigration, trickle down economics (we did it before, we can do it again), community-police relations, voting rights, and gun safety.

Had some fun with the GOP, saying they "name and blame." Used his cold/Obama line. And said they've now resorted to blame HRC.

He created some contrast with Bernie. (Insert language above).

Closed by delivering all of the biographical points.

On Jan 29, 2016, at 1:52 PM, Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

> HFA Organizing Event
> Ottumwa, IA
> OPEN PRESS
>
> Ropeline
>
> No issues on the ropeline.
>
> Color | New | Flags
>
> Said the GOP would blame Obama if the sun didn't come up in the AM.
>
> Said that in comparison to the GOP, Democrats occupy the real world when they debate.
>
> Even though he never mentioned him by name, he took a couple of jabs at Bernie:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Summarized Bernie's closing argument as follows: "yeah, I'll break up the big banks, tax millionaires and billionaires, and give you free education." Called Bernie's argument pretty catchy. But, said we need real answers to real problems. That it may not be emotionally satisfying, but that it's the truth. And went on to articulate HRC's colleague affordability plan.

Said her opponent's health care plan is fairly new, that it was released a couple of days ago - ahead of the last debate. He then articulated HRC's plan and made the practical argument. Closed by saying that we need to "focus the power of the presidency to further improve the ACA."

Tackled Bernie's establishment comment as well. Argued forcefully that NOT Planned Parenthood, NOR the progressive papers, NOR any of the people who work on progressive issues, OR the progressive newspapers in IA and NH that have endorsed her are part of the establishment.

Said that he and Obama are the only two Presidents since Eisenhower to have Republican Sec.'s of Defense.

Said America's approval rating went up 20 percent while she was SoS.

Remarks

350 deep here in Fairfield.

WJC was fired up

Said he saw the strength and diversity of America yesterday while traveling throw IA. He shared the stories of some of the folks he's met since being here, covering the issues of health care, prescription drug abuse, and immigration. Said he was telling these stories because the election was about them (the people).

He then dove into articulating what's at stake these elections.

Said most folks are angry because change hasn't caught up to them yet.

Said it isn't close. HRC's the best change-maker.

(Insert all of the Bernie language).

Covered the economy and said we need to recapture the American Dream. Brought out his charts, compared and contrasted his performance with Reagan's, and said only one person can get us back on track.

Covered ISIS, Muslims, and the GOP's fear-mongering.

Said the doesn't want to run against her, so they're constantly attacking her. And, went on to offer all of the biographical points he's been making.

Closed with his bit on Flint.

On Jan 28, 2016, at 8:58 PM, Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

HFA Organizing Event
Ottumwa, IA
OPEN PRESS

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

400 strong here in Ottumwa. They were pretty rowdy.

Over 1,600 Iowans heard WJC make the case for HRC today. (h/t Patrick).

Remarks were good. WJC was rapid firing. Stuck to his usual construct and was forceful about why he thinks she's the best change-maker he's ever met.

No Q's on the ropeline.

We're, theoretically, done for the day.

Color | New | Flags

Making the point that income inequality has been something he's both cared about and has credibility on, WJC said he's probably given more speeches about income inequality than anyone currently running for office.

Offered this fun fact: Turkey's can see better than humans.

Said we need answers over angers. Hope over fear. And action over rhetoric. Said HRC is the only one equipped to help us achieve all of that.

Made some contrast on health care.

Said he's tickled that she's tagged as part of the establishment. That her opponent calls Planned Parenthood the establishment. And then went on to use his language on HRC going to Wall St. to call them out.

Remarks

Started by effectively articulating what's at stake & why people are apprehensive about the future. Said we need to finish the recovery started under Obama and that we need to bring back the middle class.

Said we can do it because we've done it before. (pulled out his charts and gave Reagan the business).

Said we shouldn't turn our backs on important issues or turn Muslims into demons. That we should be doing this together.

Covered BLM, immigration, prescription and heroin drub abuse, dark money in politics, and voting rights.

Said that while it's important not to let the GOP not to rip away all the progress we've made, we need to work together - that we need more friends and fewer enemies.

He then moved on to the issue of guns, which he fleshed out a little bit. And then ISIS. And the frustration folks are feeling.

After he made the turn, he spent a significant chunk of time on all of the good things HRC has made happen - as a private citizen, as a Sen., and as SoS.

Covered health care.

And, the sanction on Iran. He praised HRC's effort profusely and suggested that both Obama and Kerry have acknowledged how important they've been.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

And, Wall St. (Insert color).

Closed by saying we don't have time to start over and try and get things done. Said we need someone who want to continue to build on the success achieved. That we need a change-maker. That we need HRC.

On Jan 28, 2016, at 6:16 PM, Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

HFA Organizing Event
Washington, IA
OPEN PRESS

I thought this was one of the most focused of all of the cases he's made on behalf of HRC. Will send the transcript when I have it.

Ropeline

Was asked by NBC how he feels going into the home stretch. He said he feels good. That folks are being receptive. That he's made the case he's wanted to make and that HRC has worked hard. That all that's left now is to leave it all on the floor.

Color | New | Flags

Said that he is indeed mad about all of the problems we're facing (i.e.: college affordability and kids being crippled by debt), but that ultimately what we need a change-maker. And that said change-maker is HRC.

Remarks

WJC was pretty fired up here in Washington, where WJC addressed 300 people, which I'm told is a pretty decent-sized crowd.

He started by arguing that we can't afford not to elect HRC, because she would lead with more friends and fewer enemies.

Talked about HRC's toughness, using the 11-hour Benghazi hearing as an example.

Forcefully pointed out that she's the only candidate to have gone to Wall St. to warn that if they didn't cut it out with home mortgage securities that they'd drive the economy into a ditch.

Pointed out the HRC's best friend from Chicago and dozens of people from AR are here knocking doors on her behalf, that it should tell you all you need to know. That she's isn't anything like the caricature that the GOP likes to paint.

He then dedicated a chunk of time speaking about all of HRC's accomplishments a private citizen, as a Senator from NY, and as SoS.

He also created a bit of contracts on health care, but stuck to what he's been saying this whole time.

Said she would make good things happen on the good days (i.e.: when he reversed trickle down economics or signed peace in Ireland), on the bad days (i.e.: the day President Obama must've had after San Bernardino), and also on the other days.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He closed by talking about Flint.

On Jan 28, 2016, at 3:39 PM, Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

HFA Organizing Event
Cornell, Mt. Vernon, IA
OPEN PRESS

Ropeline

Was asked by the student newspaper to articulate some of the foreign policy differences between HRC and Sanders. WJC didn't take the bait and instead opted to talk about all that HRC did around Iran and the sanctions.

Was also asked by a Norwegian reporter what it would take to win on Monday. WJC said "for folks to show up."

Color | New | Flag

Said we dont have shared prosperity and that the American Dream isn't exactly alive for everybody. That job #1 for the next POTUS will be to restore broad-based prosperity.

Said the GOP can't kill or occupy or bomb everyone to the stone age.

Brought his charts out again. Seemed to work better here, with WJC drawing a few laughs.

Covered health care a little bit, making the practical argument about not having 60 votes in the Senate. Said that he believes that the Republican Governors that haven't taken the MedicAid Expansion money will eventually do so, because it creates jobs. Didn't mention Sanders by name, FYI.

Said that the success of a President depends on what your positions are and what you know, but that it also depends on what you can do and whether or not you can work with others — that there's a difference between a change-talker and a change-maker.

Said that his sick of all this cynicism and all of the yelling, because it has nothing to do with people. That if folks are sick of it too, they should support a change-maker. And, that's HRC.

Remarks

WJC started by articulating what's at stake, and why we can't afford to let Republicans reverse everything that Pres. Obama has accomplished.

In framing what's at stake, he used climate change, voting rights, immigration, ISIS, and the economy under him (VS Reagan) as examples.

He then went on to talk about some of HRC's plans and positions, particularly health care and drug abuse. (Insert contrast language).

Had a little fun with the GOP, reminding folks about their 3D strategy. And, how they like to blame others for all of our problems, mainly Mexicans, Muslims, and President Obama and HRC.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He closed strongly saying we need a change-maker and not a change-talker (insert change-maker language), and dove into all of the things HRC has done as a private citizen, as a Senator from NY, and as SoS.

> On Jan 28, 2016, at 12:28 PM, Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com > wrote:
>
> More Halperin on the way out.
>
> He asked what it meant that Michael Whouley is with him in IA. WJC said that he helps with keeping his head in a good space.
>
> Mark followed up and asked what Whouley being here meant for HRC. WJC said that hopefully it meant good things because like HRC all that Whouley has touched he's made better.
>
> On Jan 28, 2016, at 12:20 PM, Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > HFA Organizing Event
> > Waverly, IA
> > OPEN PRESS
> >
> > Ropeline
> >
> > Halperin and Showtime caught him for five seconds on the ropeline. They asked if he was excited or nervous about Monday. WJC said he was excited!
> >
> > He then asked what he thought would happen on Monday, and WJC walked away.
> >
> > Color | New | Flag
> >
> > He said trickle down economics is a failure and we can't go back. (He held up his graphs!).
> >
> > Argued that we shouldn't resent success, but that we should rather move forward together.
> >
> > Said it's slightly crazy that you only need to be 14 years old in IA to have a gun permit.
> >
> > Said Liberal Republicans don't exist anymore.
> >
> > Joked that he stared at HRC for several weeks before they actually met.
> >
> > Remarks
> >
> > Started by framing the election and articulating what's at stake. He also talked about America's potential.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He then covered clean energy, gun safety, voting rights, inclusive politics, and the Benghazi Committee.

He transitioned and made all of the biographical points he's been making, forcefully arguing that HRC has been a change maker her whole life.

He closed by making his Flint argument & by making the same points he made last night re her faith.

We're on to the next.

On Jan 27, 2016, at 10:16 PM, Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

> + Matt & Lily. Apologies guys.
>
> On Jan 27, 2016, at 10:15 PM, Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > BILL CLINTON: Everything she ever touched, she made better, I'm just telling you, including me. It's like just second nature and it's why a lot of these people, they don't really know how to deal with her or cover her or anything, you know. But it's evident.
> >
> > QUESTION: Do you think we're covering her wrong?
> > BILL CLINTON: I'll tell you another example. Her best friends from childhood are coming down here, I think starting tomorrow from Chicago to canvass for her. She hasn't lived in Arkansas since [inaudible] January? 90 of them almost, 89 are going to New Hampshire, just getting four days going door to door.
> >
> > At their own expense and a lot of them can't afford the trip. But they're doing it because they know her and they believe in her and they have got [inaudible] personal stories of how she made a difference and what kind of person she was.
> >
> > And that's all that matters. The rest of the stuff--
> >
> > QUESTION: Do you think the general public knows the real Hillary?
> > BILL CLINTON: What?
> >
> > QUESTION: Do you think the general public knows the real Hillary?
> >
> > BILL CLINTON: I think they're getting to know it, I think seeing their -- I think seeing the debates helped. I think seeing her go through that 11 hours helped. Remember what that guy in the CNN Town Hall meeting? He said, "I was a lukewarm supporter of yours." He said, "I saw that 11 hours. I am done [inaudible]. Nobody else in America could have done that."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

QUESTION: Do you think that [inaudible]?

BILL CLINTON: I think it helped.

BILL CLINTON: But I think it all helps. I think the more people see her, [inaudible] they'll know what she cares about. But I think having her friends out there helps.

QUESTION: Do you think that Benghazi testimony was the strongest moment of her campaign?

BILL CLINTON: No, I think she's had a lot of strong moments.

QUESTION: Senator Sanders has gone after your wife for holding a fundraiser tonight. What's your response to that?

She spends enough time in Iowa?

BILL CLINTON: I think the far more important thing is before this economy cratered, she's the only person running for president in either party who went to Wall Street and said "You guys are dragging the economy in the ditch. You'd better change."

QUESTION: Do you think [inaudible]?

BILL CLINTON: Thank you. What?

QUESTION: Are you surprised Bernie Sanders isn't gung ho about a debate in New Hampshire?

BILL CLINTON: I don't know. I haven't thought about it. I think she said she'd do it if everybody showed up. I think debates are good for people, because they flesh out, you get to hear people talk about why they propose to do certain things.
And I personally think she's right about the healthcare thing, based on my experience. I have a -- nobody ever even got a healthcare bill for universal coverage out of committee from Harry Truman to me. But we got it out of two committees.

[Inaudible] situation. [Inaudible] when the Affordable Care Act passed. I was doing handstands of ecstacy [inaudible]. It's a lot easier to from 90 to 100 than from zero to 100 through 60 votes in the Senate and the House has voted 60 times to repeal it.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

So I think the debates, though, they let you answer whatever questions people have, whatever they have. The public decides what they think is relevant.

QUESTION: [Inaudible] pie in the sky, that it just isn't possible. Is she angry enough to win in an election that we've seen where anger really has paid off?

BILL CLINTON: What?

QUESTION: Donald Trump is pretty angry. He's resonating with voters. Is she angry enough to win [inaudible]?

BILL CLINTON: It's important, if you're in this position, to have no feelings about that except you're trying to help people. She's angry that so many Americans have not participated in the recovery, have had their own potential and their [inaudible], their children [inaudible].

She's angry that we haven't done anything for these areas that have been left out and left behind, like Coal Country. She's angry that we haven't done enough to help people in this prescription drug and opiate epidemic. She just thinks about -- it's like when she called the Mayor in Flint: "What can I do to help?" That's what drives her.

What I said tonight is exactly who she's been for ever since the first day I met her. Do all the good you can. Her instinct is not who can I attack, who can I blame? It's not that you shouldn't ask people to take responsibility when they make mistakes, but her immediate instinct is what can I do to make it better. And that's what we need right now.

QUESTION: President Clinton, when you think about the general election map if Donald Trump blows this thing out and it's a Hillary Clinton match against Trump, what should voters be thinking about this week in terms of what Bernie Sanders' candidacy would look like up against Donald Trump versus your wife?

BILL CLINTON: I don't think like that. I think what voters should be thinking about this week is who is most likely to make my life, my children and grandchildren's lives and this country a place of shared prosperity, a force of security and peace and a place where we come together around solving our common social problems like [inaudible]. Who would be better?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

QUESTION: But do you--

BILL CLINTON: The politics will take care of itself if people make the right decision about who's the most likely to have a positive impact.

QUESTION: And do you think the conventional wisdom will matter here for Donald Trump. I mean, if you've got Cruz who's got a better ground game, but Trump's got five million Twitter followers?

BILL CLINTON: I have no idea. I have no idea. It depends on whether it's an evidence-free or an evidence-matters election. It depends on whether people vote for someone who has a real chance to help them make their lives better. Those things are imponderable.

Anger can be a good thing, properly channeled. Apprehensiveness can be a good thing, properly channeled. It depends on how it shakes out. All we can do, all she can do is be who she is, who she's been all her life. I think it will be in the end what the American people want.

QUESTION: Do you think those people who are really angry -- do you see an opportunity for a crossover between a Clinton and a Trump voter?

BILL CLINTON: Well, I think first of all she's the very first person to say, "Hey I know they vote Republican. We ought to do something for Coal Country." We have not done a good job in America in dealing with the areas that get hurt from globalization or from the rise of climate change or anything else.

Coal employment in American peaked 95 years ago. It's not like we just learned about this. Thousands of jobs were lost when President Bush, ostensibly a pro-coal president was in office because he couldn't stop the rise of natural gas.

QUESTION: Yes.

BILL CLINTON: And so look, I think there's an opportunity for everybody to get votes everywhere if you run a people-centered campaign and you trust people to think. You've got to really trust people. You've got to say, "There's a lot of stuff you've got to let go."

There's a lot of stuff you've got to step away from. If you run a people-centered campaign that's future oriented, I think there's opportunity everywhere.

On Jan 27, 2016, at 8:53 PM, Angel Urena <Angel@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

HFA Organizing Event
Mason City, IA
OPEN PRESS

Ropeline

Took about 10 questions on the ropeline, most notably one about the NH "debate" and Sanders' decision to skip it. WJC said it's up to Sanders to decide what he'll do, but that HRC has said that if folks agreed to show up that she'd be there.

The rest were Q's about the economy, Trump channeling anger, and the state of the race here. WJC stuck to most of what he's been saying.

He didn't break anything, but I'll send a transcript around shortly nonetheless.

Color | New | Flags

WJC opened his speech by saying that HRC was in Adele earlier today. And that soon enough folks here will have the entire family in the state. He joked that Charlotte will be the difference-maker this election. That she can persuade him to do anything.

Recycled his 3Ds line & joked that you almost have to admire the GOP, because what's a fact here and there - that they live in a fact-free world.

Said we can't allow for the perfect to be the enemy of the good, that HRC will get the show on the road. That there's only one person who's a proven change maker on hostile territory and that's really important.

Reiterated that every single attempt to pass health care has always required 60 votes. That he and HRC were the first to do so. And that yeah they weren't successful, but that she ultimately got CHIP with Kennedy.

Said Newt told him that HRC was brilliant in the senate.

Said we have to deal with what we've got, i.e.: sixty Republicans in Congress.

Used his Flint bit, which got noticed.

References the Obama interview, saying he said that she's ready to be President.

Remarks

He started by covering a couple of issues, including climate change and immigration.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He then had a bit of fun with the GOP, saying that they're masters at labeling and blaming. (Insert 3Ds line).

Followed that up by making a lot of the biographical points he's been making on the trail. He talked about her time as a public citizen (insert health care line), as a Senator from NY, and as SoS.

Covered the economy: asked rhetorically: You don't mind if Warren Buffet makes money if he creates jobs, don't you?; and made the case why HRC will make the economy work for ever American again. He also said she's the only person running for President that went to Wall St. to speak against speculation.

Talked Flint. (Used his usual line).

Closed pretty strongly by saying she's the best change maker he's met. (Insert Obama line).

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Leslie de Leon" <ld333@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	"All Students" <allstudents@law.georgetown.edu> Announcements <Announcements@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	5/1/2015 8:57:20 AM
Subject:	Indoor venue for 12:30 wiffle ball tournament today

Rain or shine, we're still playing ball today at 12:30pm, 4th floor basketball courts. Hoya Saxa!

Resistance Tubing Stretching Session:
Wed, April 29th & May 6th
12:30-1PM & 5-5:30PM
with Rhonda & Molly
Studio 1

Wiffle Ball:
Fri, May 1st
12:30-1:30pm
with Jason & Kylene
Tower Green Quad
(Rain site: 4th floor basketball courts)

Foam Rolling Class:
Mon, May 4th 1:30 – 2PM
with Rhonda
Studio 1

Free Throw & 3-Point Curry Challenge*
Fri, May 8th 1-1:30PM
with Jason and Molly
4th floor basketball courts

NEED A STUDY BREAK?

4/29-5/8

ADD THESE EVENTS TO YOUR CALENDAR

Join us for one or all of the following activities organized by the Sport & Fitness Center. It's a great way to give yourself a study break and move around a bit! The books will be there when you get back!

STAFF & FACULTY NEED BREAKS TOO!

*LeBron and Steph will not be making guest appearances.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Amanda Renteria" <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 10/25/2015 12:45:28 PM
Subject: Re: one chain on DOMA

The hope is to squash the story bc it's not going away.
Sent from my iPhone

On Oct 25, 2015, at 7:35 PM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> What do we actually have to do here? I'm not sure a statement will help us. Do we need to response to the Huffington Post? Is that the main request?
>
> On Sun, Oct 25, 2015 at 7:04 PM, Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > What about broadening the perspectives at that time?
> > Acknowledging there were a lot of diff views vs she was wrong. ?
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Oct 25, 2015, at 6:57 PM, Tony Carrk <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > And also for awareness for everyone to have, attached are HRC's comments on DOMA Carter from my team put together.
> > >
> > > ---
> > >
> > > From: Dan Schwerin [mailto:dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com]
> > > Sent: Sunday, October 25, 2015 6:56 PM
> > > To: Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com >
> > > Cc: Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com >; Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com >; Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com >; Heather Stone <hstone@hillaryclinton.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>; Marlon Marshall <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com >; Tony Carrk <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com >; Brynne Craig <bcraig@hillaryclinton.com >; Sally Marx <smarx@hillaryclinton.com >; Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >
> > > Subject: Re: one chain on DOMA
> > >
> > > I think everyone agrees we shouldn't restate her argument. Question is whether she's going to agree to explicitly disavow it. And I doubt it.
> > >
> > > On Oct 25, 2015, at 6:53 PM, Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > There is no way we have friends to back us up on her interpretation. This is a major problem if we revisit her argument like this. It's better to do nothing than to re-state this although she is going to get a question again.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Working w Dominic now.

Sent from my iPhone

On Oct 25, 2015, at 6:34 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

I'm not saying double down or ever say it again. I'm just saying that she's not going to want to say she was wrong about that, given she and her husband believe it and have repeated it many times. Better to reiterate evolution, opposition to DOMA when court considered it, and forward looking stance.

On Oct 25, 2015, at 6:28 PM, Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Jumping on a call with the kitchen cabinet now to give them an update. Will turn to this ASAP.

The most recent Blade article has Elizabeth Birch quoted as saying there was no amendment threat in 1996. Hilary Rosen has already tweeted the same. I'll ask on the call, but my sense is that there aren't many friends who will back us up on the point. That's why I'm urging us to back off as much as we can there.

More soon.

On Sunday, October 25, 2015, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

I'd welcome specific edits. I'm fine not mentioning WJC if that's problematic, but my two cents is that you're not going to get her to disavow her explanation about the constitutional amendment and this exercise will be most effective if it provides some context and then goes on offense.

On Oct 25, 2015, at 6:15 PM, Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

If the criticism is that she has said before and reiterated on Friday then hit by Bernie yesterday is t that the context?

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Oct 25, 2015, at 6:00 PM, Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Sorry, on phone so focused more on overall thoughts than line edits. Can call you directly if any of this is unclear. Sending to all so people can react, push back, etc.

I originally flagged HRC's Maddow remarks as potentially problematic in part because her wording closely linked her to two unfavorable policies of the past even as no one in the community was asking her to "own" them. Given that, my recommendation would be to make this statement about just her, her evolution, and her record -- not bring in WJC.

Relatedly, if we release a statement tonight, it will very clearly be in response to the Maddow interview. To the extent we can, I advocate for owning that so that we can clean this up completely, rightly position her as a champion of LGBT issues, and make sure we move on from any discussion of looming amendments or her being involved in passing either DADT or DOMA. Without getting into the weeds, can we say that the broader point is that the country is in a different place now on LGBT issues -- and thank goodness it is -- and that she's so happy each policy has been placed in the dustbin of history?

Last thought: I have raised this a few times to a smaller number of people on this thread but will flag this for the larger group as well. At Keene State College, she specifically cited friends playing a part in her evolution, which we echo here. That's fine, IMO, and quite believable. But if I were a reporter and wanted to keep the evolution story alive, I would start asking which friends she was talking to and ask us to provide them. Not a problem per se, but I think it is worth flagging now so we aren't caught by surprise later.

On Sunday, October 25, 2015, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> This is a little long, but see what you think. Tried to 1) place this in a context of 'asked and answered,' 2) point to how they've both forthrightly explained their evolution, 3) cite her positive LGBT record, 4) get in a little dig at Sanders for being so backwards looking.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

STATEMENT

In 2013, when the Supreme Court was considering whether to uphold the Defense of Marriage Act (DOMA), Bill and I explained publicly how and why we became strong supporters of marriage equality. Bill, who signed DOMA nearly twenty years ago after an overwhelming vote in Congress, called the law a discriminatory vestige of a less tolerant America and urged the Court to strike it down. I added my voice in support of marriage equality "personally and as a matter of policy and law." As I said then, LGBT Americans are full and equal citizens and they deserve the full and equal rights of citizenship. Like so many others, my personal views have been shaped over time by people I have known and loved, by my experience representing our nation on the world stage, my devotion to law and human rights, and the guiding principles of my faith. That's why, as a Senator, I pushed for laws that would extend protections to the LGBT community in the workplace and that would make violence towards LGBT individuals a hate crime. And as Secretary of State, I put LGBT rights on the global agenda and told the world that "gay rights are human rights and human rights are gay rights." In my speech last night in Iowa, I didn't look back to the America of the past, I looked forward to the America we need to build together. I pledged to fight for LGBT Americans who, despite all our progress, in many places can still get married on Saturday and fired on Monday just because of who they are and who they love. In this campaign and as President, I will keep fighting for equality and opportunity for every American.

On Sun, Oct 25, 2015 at 4:03 PM, Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> +Amanda's work account.
>
> On Sunday, October 25, 2015, Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> > From Richard:
> >
> > Since I was asked on Friday about the Defense of Marriage Act in an interview on MSNBC, I've checked with people who were involved then to make sure I had all my facts right. It turns out I was mistaken and the effort to pass a constitutional amendment banning same-sex marriage came some years later. The larger point I was trying to make about DOMA, however, is still true. It was neither proposed nor supported by anyone in the Clinton administration at the time. It was an effort by the

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Republicans in Congress to distract attention from the real issues facing the country by using gay marriage, which had very little support then, as a wedge issue in the election. The legislation passed by overwhelming veto-proof margins in both houses of Congress and President Clinton signed it with serious reservations he expressed at the time. Luckily the country has evolved way beyond this in the last 20 years and most Americans, including the Supreme Court, now embrace LGBT equality. We are a better country for it. Although there is much work that remains, and I'm eager to help advance the day when we are all truly equal.

On Sun, Oct 25, 2015 at 4:51 PM, Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> + JP's personal email
>
> On Sunday, October 25, 2015, Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Here is what Gautam put together to be helpful:
> >
> > "I'm not my husband. I understand why he believed that was the right thing to do at the time, but obviously I wish it had gone differently. Look, we've all come along way since the 90s and I'm proud to have been a part of an Administration that has made it possible for gay troops to serve openly and loving gay couples to get married. I'm also proud of MY record as Secretary of State. I think the community knows I will be the ally they deserve."
> >
> > On Sunday, October 25, 2015, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > This WJC op-Ed may be helpful:
> > >
> > > https://www.washingtonpost.com/opinions/bill-clinton-its-time-to-overturn-doma/2013/03/07/fc184408-8747-11e2-98a3-b3db6b9ac586_story.html
> > >
> > > Bill Clinton: It's time to overturn DOMA
> > >
> > > The writer is the 42nd president of the United States.
> > >
> > > In 1996, I signed the Defense of Marriage Act. Although that was only 17 years ago, it was a very different time. In no state in the union was same-sex marriage recognized, much less available as a legal right, but some were moving in that direction. Washington, as a result, was swirling with all manner of possible responses, some quite draconian. As a bipartisan group of former senators stated in their March 1 amicus brief to the Supreme Court, many supporters of the bill known as DOMA believed that its passage "would defuse a movement to enact a constitutional amendment banning gay marriage, which would have ended the debate for a generation or more." It was under these circumstances that DOMA came to my desk, opposed by only 81 of the 535 members of Congress.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On March 27, DOMA will come before the Supreme Court, and the justices must decide whether it is consistent with the principles of a nation that honors freedom, equality and justice above all, and is therefore constitutional. As the president who signed the act into law, I have come to believe that DOMA is contrary to those principles and, in fact, incompatible with our Constitution.

Because Section 3 of the act defines marriage as being between a man and a woman, same-sex couples who are legally married in nine states and the District of Columbia are denied the benefits of more than a thousand federal statutes and programs available to other married couples. Among other things, these couples cannot file their taxes jointly, take unpaid leave to care for a sick or injured spouse or receive equal family health and pension benefits as federal civilian employees. Yet they pay taxes, contribute to their communities and, like all couples, aspire to live in committed, loving relationships, recognized and respected by our laws.

When I signed the bill, I included a statement with the admonition that "enactment of this legislation should not, despite the fierce and at times divisive rhetoric surrounding it, be understood to provide an excuse for discrimination." Reading those words today, I know now that, even worse than providing an excuse for discrimination, the law is itself discriminatory. It should be overturned.

We are still a young country, and many of our landmark civil rights decisions are fresh enough that the voices of their champions still echo, even as the world that preceded them becomes less and less familiar. We have yet to celebrate the centennial of the 19th Amendment, but a society that denied women the vote would seem to us now not unusual or old-fashioned but alien. I believe that in 2013 DOMA and opposition to marriage equality are vestiges of just such an unfamiliar society.

Americans have been at this sort of a crossroads often enough to recognize the right path. We understand that, while our laws may at times lag behind our best natures, in the end they catch up to our core values. One hundred fifty years ago, in the midst of the Civil War,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

President Abraham Lincoln concluded a message to Congress by posing the very question we face today: “It is not ‘Can any of us imagine better?’ but ‘Can we all do better?’”

The answer is of course and always yes. In that spirit, I join with the Obama administration, the petitioner Edith Windsor , and the many other dedicated men and women who have engaged in this struggle for decades in urging the Supreme Court to overturn the Defense of Marriage Act.

On Oct 25, 2015, at 4:19 PM, Kate Offerdahl <kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Hi all - we are going to do 4:30.
>
> Those here at the Hilton can take the call from the staff room.
>
> Call-In: 718-441-3763 , no pin
>
> On Oct 25, 2015, at 4:14 PM, Heather Stone <hstone@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Looping in Kate. She is going to get it scheduled.
> >
> > On Sunday, October 25, 2015, Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > All times are good for me.
> > >
> > > On Sunday, October 25, 2015, Heather Stone <hstone@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > Sounds like tony can do 4:15? Can others? If not I could do anytime before 5:15 or after 6.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Sunday, October 25, 2015, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Adding Dominic.
>
> Agree--let's get our people on a call and push back
>
> I'm also tied up for next few hours @ finance stuff. But let's get this moving.
>
> On Oct 25, 2015, at 3:48 PM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Adding Tony, who recalls this from '08 when she made a similar argument. We did not turn up much to support idea that alternative was a constitutional amendment.
> >
> > Also adding Schwerin. I think we should pull her statements around the time she embraced marriage equality and place greatest emphasis on the fact that she fully acknowledges that she evolved.
> >
> > I'm on calls next two hours but Maya has my proxy.
> >
> > ---
> >
> > From: Jennifer Palmieri [mailto:jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com]
> > Sent: Sunday, October 25, 2015 3:46 PM
> > To: Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <jp66@hillaryclinton.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >; Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >; Maya Harris

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

<mharris@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Marlon Marshall <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com >; Heather Stone <hstone@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: one chain on DOMA

Think all of us are getting incoming from friends in LGBT community about DOMA comments.

HuffPo has reached out to us. I heard from Socarides that NYT was doing something.

I have no understanding of the issue – but clear this has a head of steam.

Brian can put a statement out, but policy and political need to tell us what you want us to do.

I would suggest a conference call with relevant parties for how we are going to handle all around – press, groups, politics. I have a bad schedule for rest of day and may not be able to be on such a call but don't think I am needed. We just need guidance and then on political end think we need a plan for how to hose down anxious friends.

--

Dominic Lowell

LGBT Outreach Director | Hillary for

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

America

661.364.5186

dlowell@hillaryclinton.com

--

Dominic Lowell

LGBT Outreach Director | Hillary for America

661.364.5186

dlowell@hillaryclinton.com

--

Dominic Lowell

LGBT Outreach Director | Hillary for America

661.364.5186

dlowell@hillaryclinton.com

--

Dominic Lowell

LGBT Outreach Director | Hillary for America

661.364.5186

dlowell@hillaryclinton.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--

Dominic Lowell

LGBT Outreach Director | Hillary for America

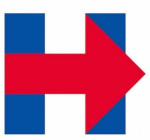
661.364.5186

dlowell@hillaryclinton.com

--

Dominic Lowell

LGBT Outreach Director | Hillary for America



661.364.5186

dlowell@hillaryclinton.com

<HRC DOMA.DOCX>

--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Gene Karpinski, League of Conservation Voters" <josh_hicks@lcv.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 2/25/2013 8:04:13 AM
Subject: Environmental Majority Council Update

LEAGUE OF CONSERVATION VOTERS

Dear John,

In the face of the most anti-environment House of Representatives in history, LCV has succeeded in leveraging our unique blend of insider tactics and outsider pressure to make progress on climate change and to protect our air, water and wild places.

Your partnership in this work continues to have a real impact. Already you've helped mobilize tens of thousands of LCV members across the country to call on President Obama to take decisive steps to curb dangerous carbon pollution. And, you've helped urge his administration to use the bully pulpit to elevate the issue of climate disruptions and climate solutions in the public discourse.

So I hope you were as proud as I was when President Obama went before Congress and drew a line in the sand for Congress to act on climate change. Congratulations and thank you. Our journey is far from over, but we are moving forward.

Enjoy the Environmental Majority Council update below and as always, please reach out if you have any questions or feedback.

Onward,

Gene

"For the sake of our children and our future, we must do more to combat climate change…If Congress won't act soon to protect future generations, I will."
- President Obama, 2013 State of the Union address

LCV Announces 2012 National Environmental Scorecard

The League of Conservation Voters recently released the 2012 National Environmental Scorecard , the go-to yard stick for evaluating the environmental records of members of congress for more than 40 years. Here's the score for 2012:

- 85 House members and 37 Senators earned a score of 90 percent or greater on the 2012 Scorecard.

- 175 House members and 17 Senators earned an abysmal score of 10 percent or less.

- The average House score in 2012 was 42 percent and the average Senate score was 56 percent.

Of course, you already know much of this. Given the high stakes before us, we need to reach millions more people to ensure they know how their legislator is voting. That's why we've completely overhauled our Scorecard website to make it easier for you to access and share the information not just from this year, but every year since the National Environmental Scorecard was first released in 1971. If you haven't yet seen it, I hope you will take a look by clicking here.

"Forward on Climate" Rally

On Sunday, February 17th, over 40,000 environmental activists from across the country gathered on the National Mall in Washington, DC to urge President Obama to take action on climate policy. The "Forward on Climate" event was the largest climate rally in U.S. history. To read more about the rally, please click here and also check out the photo below of the LCV team in action during the rally.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

LCV's National Poll on Climate Change Released

Earlier this month, LCV released a poll conducted before the President's State of the Union address which showed an overwhelming majority of American voters view climate change as a real and tangible problem, with 61% saying the effects of climate change are already affecting them personally or will in their lifetime. Sixty-five percent of Americans support "the President taking significant steps to address climate change now," including 89 percent of Democrats, 62 percent of independents and 38 percent of Republicans.

To read more about the poll and its results, please read our detailed memo or check out this Huffington Post article on the poll.

LCV & State LCVs Annual Conference in May

Please join me for LCV and State LCVs Annual Conference, which will be held on May 2-4, 2013 in Grand Rapids, Michigan. We are at a crossroads. We can either rebuild power to solve the greatest environmental challenges before us, or we can allow special interests to gut longstanding environmental regulations and foster inaction on the climate crisis. The next generation is counting on us to safeguard our planet. With your partnership, we will succeed.

Join environmental leaders from around the country for an up close experience of what makes the LCV state/national network so strategic and effective. If interested in attending or to learn more, please contact Josh Hicks at (202) 454-4565 or josh_hicks@lcv.org . This is one conference you don't want to miss!

GiveGreen*: Because not all money is "green"

Recently, LCV Action Fund endorsed Congressman Ed Markey, who is running for the U.S. Senate in Massachusetts. Congressman Markey has earned an impressive LCV lifetime score of 94%. Even more importantly, there's no greater environmental champion in Congress than Ed Markey. He has made addressing the climate crisis and advancing clean energy the cause of his career. He has also been the biggest champion of the effort to protect the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. He'll be a true leader in the United States Senate. To read more about LCV Action Fund's endorsement of Rep. Ed Markey for U.S. Senate, please click here.

We hope you will join us in supporting Congressman Ed Markey, who is featured on LCV Action Fund's GiveGreen website, www.givegreen.com , the only bundling website devoted exclusively to raising money for environmental champions and candidates. Bundling through GiveGreen magnifies the power of your contribution by calling attention to the environmental values that drive you to support the candidate in the first place.

Paid for by League of Conservation Voters Action Fund, www.lcvactionfund.org, and not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

Update Your Profile
To Unsubscribe Click Here

1920 L Street, NW Suite 800
Washington, DC 20036
202-785-8683

POWERED BY blackbaud nonprofit software

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Faiz Shakir" <faiz.shakir@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	5/30/2015 9:56:24 AM
Subject:	Re: Sadia

Dear fashionistas, is there any good baby Hillary gear amid all this wacky stuff you're rolling out on the runway? She's already a fervent feminist and could use the appropriate attire

On Apr 29, 2015 7:01 PM, "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Have to have Sadia visit Brandywine St. For dinner soon. Can't wait to meet her. Love to Mom.
>
> On Wednesday, April 29, 2015, Faiz Shakir <faiz.shakir@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > hey Jennifer and John, apropos of nothing except fatherly pride, I thought I'd share a couple of photos of our daughter Sadia with you.
> >
> > We're not sleeping much, but we're doing fine despite it.
> >
> > Hope you both are doing well and enjoying Brooklyn

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Steve Gold" <stevegoldada1@gmail.com>
To:	stevegoldada@stevegoldada.com
Date:	12/17/2014 9:41:23 AM
Subject:	More than 5% Accessible Housing Units

More than 5% Accessible Housing Units. Information Bulletin #396 (12/2014)

Under Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, recipients of "federal financial assistance" were prohibited from discriminating. It took nearly 15 years for HUD to finally promulgate what nondiscrimination meant in the housing arena. Then in 1988, HUD's federal regulations set a floor - 5% of federally funded housing had to be mobility accessible for people with mobility disabilities (and another 1% for hearing and visual disabilities).

For a number of years, the disability community could not enforce the 5% minimum, even though we believed it was grossly too low and inadequate. Even with the 1990 and 2000 census, we did not have a handle to push higher than 5%.

Now, with the 2010 census we can. The primary federal financial assistance housing programs that the 2010 census impacts are the HOME Investment Partnership, Project Based Housing Vouchers, and Public Housing.

HUD's federal regulation 24 CFR ? 8.22 (c) states that HUD "may prescribe a high percentage ... upon request ... based upon demonstration ... based on census data...."

Disability Advocates - here's a suggested battle plan. First, you must use the Census's "American Fact Finder" and determine for your county the percentage of persons "with an ambulatory difficulty" whose incomes are under the poverty levels. It is critical to remember that this data does NOT include persons institutionalized in nursing homes. Second, you must contact your local HUD FHEO office and request at the least that prospectively HUD enforce the increased percentages.

To wet your interest, here are some preliminary results: Philadelphia, PA, 13.2%; Washington county, PA.15.3%, Chicago, Ill, 9.4%; Baltimore, 13.8%; Orleans Parish, New Orleans, 10.65%; El Paso, TX 9.8%; Lafayette Parish in Louisiana, 9.46%.

No more excuses! The data is now available. It's up to you, the advocates, to make it happen.

Steve Gold, The Disability Odyssey continues

Back issues of other Information Bulletins posted after 10/2013 can be found only at http://stevegoldada.blogspot.com/ Information Bulletins before 10/2013 are available online at http://www.stevegoldada.com with a searchable Archive at this site divided into different subjects.

To contact Steve Gold directly, write to stevegoldada1@gmail.com or call 215-627-7100. Ext 227.

--
Steve Gold, The Disability Odyssey continues

Back issues of other Information Bulletins are available online at http://www.stevegoldada.com

TO UNSUBSCRIBE FROM THE LIST:
To Unsubscribe from this mailing list, send a message to majordomo@stevegoldada.com and in the body of the message include ONLY:
unsubscribe stevegoldada

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: johnson_lo <johnson_lo@mail2000.com.tw>
To:
Date: 12/31/2008 3:58:31 AM
Subject: 教堂 可自調角度欣賞

From:Atlas.Margaret Kao
To:johnsonlo
Date: Wed, 31 Dec 2008 13:49:26 +0800
Subject: FW: 教堂 可自調角度欣賞

!! 360

http://www.photojpl.com/flash/08mallet.html

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nikki Budzinski" <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Heather Stone" <hstone@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Marlon Marshall" <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Amanda Renteria" <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Tracey Lewis" <tlewis@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Brynne Craig" <bcraig@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Jared Mueller" <jmueller@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	12/19/2015 12:36:36 PM
Subject:	Big Labor Update

Good evening-

I sent this email to a broader group this evening since there are many updates that I know touch different people. Please let me know if you have any questions. I have shared a tracking spreadsheet with many of you on this email thread. If you don't have it, but would like me to share it, let me know. I will track in this spreadsheet the member to member work in states that unions have been willing to share. This is not exhaustive, but should be a helpful snapshot of where things are moving. I will continue to keep this updated.

-I am going to be prioritizing outreach to the building trades unions to push them on member program, building out hardhats events, outstate buses and staff deployment in state. In Iowa, I am building a GP surrogate program to engage trades members with the IA campaign.

-New Hampshire: Monday weekly at 9am-NH Labor Call starting Monday, December 21st, 2015. Invited: National Political Directors, MA labor leaders and NH labor leaders. Each call with be joined by NH Political Director Kari Thurman and Mayor Walsh's campaign manager Megan Costello. Kari will be outlining specific asks and goals on each call.

-Iowa: We are planning twice a week Iowa labor calls with National Political Directors and IA labor leaders and the IA team starting on Monday, January 11th at 1:30pm. Monday calls will outline specific weekly goals and Thursday calls will report out on sign ups for weekend of action. Before January 11th we will continue weekly check in calls through the holidays.

-Nevada: January 7th National Political Directors (confirmed today Monroe, LIUNA) come to Las Vegas to join labor meeting with in state building trades leaders and Nevada team, walk thru specific asks and needs. I will be doing individual follow up with Carpenters, NEA and AFSCME and Team Nevada this day.

Immediate Needs for Direction:

1. UFCW Endorsement-We are on track to receive the UFCW/RWDSU endorsement on January 11th. They will do this by phone from Des Moines, IA. They are requesting that HRC, post Black Brown debate, stop by a UFCW/RWDSU rally to thank them for the endorsement in Des Moines. Prior to the debate, we can release joint statements announcing the endorsement. I have spoken with Team Iowa about this and they are on board with a post-debate stop by. I would like to lock this in and then they can start planning. Is this possible?

2. ATU-Would HRC participate in a public transit forum in Iowa with ATU members? The goal with ATU is to keep them neutral. Neutral has value with the AFL-CIO endorsement. They are asking if HRC would be willing to participate in the forum in Iowa on January 16th. I do not know if this is possible with the IA team. And if not, I would like to revisit releasing her teletown hall remarks with ATU members which was very good but because of a slight-over statement on privatization release was shut down. I'd like to revisit this as a way for us to offer something to ATU if the forum will not work out.

3. Call Sheets: 4 calls total broken down below=2 new endorsements

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

-2 calls OPEIU-Former President Mike Goodwin and New President Lanigan (I believe they will endorse after)
-1 call IAM-Congratulate New Machinists President Bob Martinez
-1 call IBEW Local 3-There will be three leaders on one call, HRC provides a brief hello and ask for their endorsement. They will endorse. See note below.

4. IATSE (83,000 members + ability to move Nevada program)-They would really like to endorse but they would also really like us to sign a MOU with their union to use their members for events. We are using IATSE for our events today, just without the MOU. I have spoken with Vice Chair a few times about this and have gotten concessions from IATSE...specifically that a MOU wouldn't go into effect until April 1st, post early state/March primaries. They will also adjust required hotel accommodations from 60 miles to 90 miles of travel, making it a very unlikely cost to incur. IATSE has also flagged for me that vendors often do their own mark up of labor which a MOU would definitely head off. It would add some additional work for Advance/Vice Chair office to facility. Obama signed this agreement in 2012. I'm hopeful we can sign for April 1st.

Notes:

1. Labor has added a additional 39 leadership names to Leadership Councils in the following states since December 9th: AZ, AR, LA, MS, NE, NC, OH, AK, HI, ID, IL, UT and WA. We continue to reach out and build. Thank you to my intern Peter Berg for his help.

2. I assisted the Massachusetts team with labor build for the NH planning meeting on Friday, December 18th. The meeting was well attended and led to setting up NH labor calls on Mondays at 9am with Walsh Team, NH team and National/State labor.

3. MOU-I have noted in the spreadsheet the unions that are supporting a coordinated labor effort. This is important and something as a campaign we should continue to strongly encourage. When up and running it will be a shared data set of union membership lists for coordinated canvass and phone program. They are 75% of the way there but need to finalize a few remaining pieces, most notably where the data will be housed. In 2008, it was AFL-CIO LAN but with the NEA it is likely going to be AV VAN.

4. Hillary Victory Fund-Labor has committed and is sending $865K toward HVF in 2015. There are a few additional outstanding requests (noted in the spreadsheet) that should take us over $1 million. I will make follow up calls on Monday.

3. Data Swap-AFSCME is anxious to execute the data swap with us effective Jan.4th. I'm working with Simon Vance on executing this. NEA is on hold until NGPVAN provides additional information. We are hopeful this will be resolved soon. The swap is with four early states now and will expand to CO and MN next.

4. NEA hosting a Early States/March states member message training in Washington DC from Jan. 22nd-24th with 5 NEA members from each of the following states to be trained spokespeople/supporters of HRC. States participating: CO, MN, VA, KS, FL, SC, AR, GA, TX, LA, MS, MI, MO, NC, OH. They have asked us to join for this training and I am working with paid media.

5. January 12th-We are hosting a General President message meeting with the campaign. John Podesta is hosting with the paid media team. We will be inviting National Political Directors as well in Washington DC from 9am-11am.

6. I will be sending separately a list of 2016 Union Conventions that many endorsed unions are setting as priorities since we missed conventions in 2015. I just want to start flagging now and will send a comprehensive list very soon.

7. AFL-CIO Endorsement Numbers and Update:

Based on per capita and the real AFL-CIO vote, which we need 2/3 or 6.2 million members of the 9.3 million AFL-CIO members.

AFL-CIO Executive Council meetings February 21-22nd, which seems to be remain the most likely timeframe for

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

HRC endorsement.

Today HFA has 4.1 million (44%)
Today Sanders has 831,908 (9%)

Including UFCW, IATSE, OPEIU, SMART, Seafarers, MEBA, TWU=1,548,981 (New HFA AFL-CIO Total 5.6 million)

In order to cross 6.2 million I think the most possible outreach is UAW (400K) plus the Letter Carriers (181K).

- UFCW/RWDSU (1,030,981 members + Iowa field support + NY phone space + NH buses)-If we can confirm HRC to do a endorsement event in Iowa with President Marc Perrone and Stuart Appelbaum, they will endorse via EBoard phone vote on January 11th. I've spoken with Matt Paul and he is supportive of the idea. In addition, they would like help with delegates (I have spoken with David), reconnect with policy (I can facilitate) and HRC town hall with members before March in a March primary state (perhaps in Colorado on immigration, where UFCW is very big).

- OPEIU (102,401 members + deployed people for HRC in 2008)-The wanted to endorse on December 14th in Midtown but HRC schedule couldn't permit. Two phone calls, 1. Outgoing President Michael Goodwin and 2. Incoming new President Rich Lanigan, would very likely just get the endorsement done. Goodwin retired at the 12/14 meeting, which was why the push then.
- IBEW Local 3 (10,000 members across NY + buses to NY + NY phone bankers)-I am working with the big New York IBEW Local union to make a independent endorsement form their Intl soon. The Intl is allowing local unions to endorse this year (crazy but true). Its important that we get a IBEW Local union endorsement on the board because Sanders has been collecting small ones in the NE, approximately 8 local IBEW unions. IBEW Local 3 is very open to endorsing, they would just need one call with their three top leaders on the phone with HRC, she'd ask for their support, and they'll do it.
- Other unions to come on board, before February 1st I estimate: Seafarers, MEBA, SMART, TWU (total members=333,000 members)
- ATU-We need to keep them neutral. After CWA's endorsement, ATU would be the next to go to Sanders. I've been dragging my feet and their requests slow walking but we're at a point where we need to decide engagement. I don't want to lose them to Sanders but I think it creates more distension within the AFL-CIO, which is not helpful if we want to put this to bed.

Let me know if you have any questions. Thank you.

--
Nikki Budzinski
Labor Outreach Director
Hillary for America
646-854-1442 (direct)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Amitabh Desai" <adesai@clintonfoundation.org>
To:	"Bruce Lindsey" <blindsey@clintonfoundation.org> john.podesta@gmail.com "Laura Graham" <lgraham@clintonfoundation.org> "Doug Band - PC" <doug@presidentclinton.com> "Justin Cooper - PC" <justin@presidentclinton.com>
Date:	12/22/2011 8:40:53 AM
Subject:	Fw: Island energy

Should we schedule a call amongst this group to discuss this?

----- Original Message -----
From: Darien Sturges
To: Amitabh Desai
Sent: Thu Dec 22 15:38:46 2011
Subject: Island energy

Hi Ami,

I wanted to keep you in the loop because we've talked about this before, and because I know the President is passionate about helping islands.

The UNDP has indicated they want to support CCI, via the SIDS DOCK Island Fund. This is a $100mn fund that was established at the Copenhagen conference ($40mn has been raised to date).

We are considering a new approach, to structure the initiative as a "contest" - challenging the private sector (ie GE, Siemens, Vestas, etc) to design an innovative island-wide renewable energy plan. Something that takes a specific island to a specific target - say 80% or even 100% renewables (wind, solar, waste, hydro). The "winning" plan would be financed via the SIDS DOCK fund.

The UN feels they have the funding to support 5-6 participating islands, although realistically only 2-3 island governments will be "ready" to be a part of the program this year. Possibilities include Mauritius, Maldives, Grenada, Tonga and others, but it's still TBD.

The idea would be to announce the initiative and the contest at the Rio 20 conference in June. My question to you is whether there may be interest from the Clinton Foundation in jointly sponsoring this, and possibly announcing the winners at CGI next September? Especially if the theme of the event will be energy.

The early part of next year would be spent getting this message out to island governments, vetting the potential target islands, structuring the program, etc.

Concurrently, CCI would develop the legislative roadmap, business models, etc, that would be needed to implement the projects.

All of this is still in concept stage, and we're likely going to meet with the UN again in New York in early January along with representatives from SIDS (Small Island Developing States) to develop this further.

Would love to hear your thoughts...

Happy holidays

Darien

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	H <hdr29@hrcoffice.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	4/2/2015 6:52:34 PM
Subject:	Could I call you tomorrow before the meeting btw 8:30-9:30am?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Anzalone" <john@algpolling.com>
To: "David Binder" <David@db-research.com>
"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
"Navin Nayak" <nnayak@hillaryclinton.com>
"Teddy Goff" <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 12/29/2015 5:57:17 PM
Subject: Re: Signage

I would consider reversing

Strong Economy, Safe America

John Anzalone

Partner

Anzalone Liszt Grove Research

(o) 334.387.3121

Website | Twitter | LinkedIn | Facebook

From: David Binder <david@db-research.com >
Date: Tuesday, December 29, 2015 at 5:48 PM
To: Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >, Navin Nayak <nnayak@hillaryclinton.com >, Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Rich Davis <rich@dixondavismedia.com >, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com>, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >, Jim Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >, Joel Beneneson <Jbenenson@bsgco.com >, David Dixon <david@dixondavismedia.com >, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >, Alex Hornbrook <ahornbrook@hillaryclinton.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >
Subject: RE: Signage

And I like the first of the two of Navin's as well. I thought Safe America, Strong Economy worked when we showed it to groups, tieing together priorities with our strengths.

From: Kristina Schake [mailto:kschake@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Tuesday, December 29, 2015 6:43 PM
To: Navin Nayak <nnayak@hillaryclinton.com >; Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Rich Davis <rich@dixondavismedia.com >; Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >; Margolis, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >; David Binder <David@db-research.com >; Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >; David Dixon <david@dixondavismedia.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Alex Hornbrook <ahornbrook@hillaryclinton.com >; John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >
Subject: Re: Signage

+ Teddy. Robby's take is that if we don't feel strongly about anything new as we group we should stick with what we have. Speak now or forever hold your peace. Thoughts on what Navin suggested?

On Tue, Dec 29, 2015 at 6:13 PM, Navin Nayak <nnayak@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> a couple of ideas that are less about her and more to her vision and implicitly try to get at the stakes:
>
> Safe America, Strong Economy
>
> Securing the Future

On Tue, Dec 29, 2015 at 5:48 PM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Thanks Rich. We have to finalize it tonight if we are going to have new signage in January. If you have ideas please send.

On Tue, Dec 29, 2015 at 5:45 PM, Rich Davis <rich@dixondavismedia.com > wrote:

> I'm still mulling/experimenting with how to do "stakes" in abbreviated form. I worry these two, while on-message, lack the galvanizing urgency required for the endgame (especially versus a "Join the Revolution" pitch happening on the other side). We have message to communicate, stakes to raise, and urgency to convey. In a perfect world, this endgame slogan would help our side with the emotive contrasts likely to evolve between now and February – Fresh v. Stale, Electric v. Static, Exciting v. Ho-Hum, etc. Anyway, still scribbling in the hopes something like that might emerge…
>
> From: Kristina Schake [mailto:kschake@hillaryclinton.com]
> Sent: Tuesday, December 29, 2015 5:36 PM
> To: Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >
> Cc: Margolis, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >; David Binder <David@db-research.com >; Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >; Navin Nayak <nnayak@hillaryclinton.com >; Rich Davis <rich@dixondavismedia.com >; David Dixon <david@dixondavismedia.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Alex Hornbrook <ahornbrook@hillaryclinton.com >; John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >
> Subject: Re: Signage
>
> Ran these by John who asked if either of these would work. Copying John and Robby in.
>
> Results
> Progressive who gets things done (too long but is there a way to capture that)
>
> On Tue, Dec 29, 2015 at 4:40 PM, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com > wrote:
>
> > I'm for anything without "fight"...anything in our zone, not Sanders.
> >
> > Mandy Grunwald
> > Grunwald Communications
> > 202 973-9400
> >
> > On Dec 29, 2015, at 3:22 PM, Margolis, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com > wrote:
> >
> > > I'll think about stakes... But Making a difference is really a yawner.
> > > Wouldn't change to that
> > >
> > > Jim Margolis
> > > Sent from my iPhone.
> > > Please excuse typos.
> > >
> > > On Dec 29, 2015, at 3:01 PM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > I ran it by Robby who said he likes it but thinks if we are going to change our branding his strong preference would be to hit on our most important message imperative about the stakes. I'm not sure how we do that in a tagline. He asked if this group could you think about that. If we cannot hit on that do people have strong feelings about changing to Making a Difference for You, or stick with what we have? We don't have to change, but felt that Fighting for You wasn't right anymore and we wanted to signal a change for the closing stretch.
> > > >
> > > > On Tue, Dec 29, 2015 at 2:50 PM, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com > wrote:
> > > >
> > > > > Just talking to Joel. We throw out there:
> > > > >
> > > > > MAKING A DIFFERENCE.
> > > > >
> > > > > or
> > > > >
> > > > > MAKING A DIFFERENCE FOR YOU.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Mandy Grunwald
Grunwald Communications
202 973-9400

-----Original Message-----
From: David Binder <David@db-research.com >
To: Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >; Jim Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >; Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >; Navin Nayak <nnayak@hillaryclinton.com >; rich <rich@dixondavismedia.com >; David <David@dixondavismedia.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Alex Hornbrook <ahornbrook@hillaryclinton.com >; John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >
Sent: Tue, Dec 29, 2015 2:26 pm
Subject: Re: Signage

One other option to throw out there: Getting it done for you.

Sent from mobile device

On Dec 29, 2015, at 11:14 AM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Any other feedback on this. Binder was more in favor of the first one - Our fights, are her fights. Any other input?
>
> On Tue, Dec 29, 2015 at 1:14 PM, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com > wrote:
>
> > I like Jim's changes
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Dec 29, 2015, at 11:07 AM, Margolis, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com > wrote:
> >
> > > I'm also for the two Joel picked out.
> > > For signage, though, it should be
> > > Our fights, are her fights
> > > and
> > > She's got what it takes or Hillary's got what it takes
> > >
> > > ---
> > >
> > > From: Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >
> > > Date: Tuesday, December 29, 2015 at 12:55 PM
> > > To: Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >
> > > Cc: Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, GMMB GMMB <jim.margolis@gmmb.com >, Navin Nayak <nnayak@hillaryclinton.com >, Rich Davis <rich@dixondavismedia.com >, David Dixon <david@dixondavismedia.com >, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >, Alex Hornbrook <ahornbrook@hillaryclinton.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >, David Binder <David@db-research.com >
> > > Subject: Re: Signage
> > >
> > > Several options. As you know I have never liked "It's your time"
> > >
> > > Your fights are her fights
> > >
> > > Getting it Done
> > > Gets the job done
> > > Has what it takes > > > She's got what it takes
> > >
> > > My two favorites and I think we can use both:
> > >
> > > Your fights are her fights
> > >
> > > She's got what it takes
> > >
> > > These both go to her strengths and are completely on our message.
> > >
> > > Joel

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sent from my iPhone

On Dec 29, 2015, at 7:59 AM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> We have been talking internally about changing our events signs in January to better reflect the latest research and signal a change to our closing argument. Right now we are using Fighting for Us. The only two other suggestions we have here are Join the Fight and It's Your Time to put the focus on voters, but realize neither really captures our message.
>
> If we are going to change the signs we need to finalize the new language by cob today to start production. I thought we would start this conversation and brainstorming via email, but if we want to get on the phone at some point today too that works.
>
> First, do you think we should change? Second, ideas on what the new sign should say? Once we have your input we'll loop in Robby, John and Huma to make a final decision. Thanks.
>
> --
>
> Kristina Schake | Communications
> Hillary for America

This email is intended only for the named addressee. It may contain information that is confidential/private, legally privileged, or copyright-protected, and you should handle it accordingly. If you are not the intended recipient, you do not have legal rights to retain, copy, or distribute this email or its contents, and should promptly delete the email and all electronic copies in your system; do not retain copies in any media. If you have received this email in error, please notify the sender promptly. Thank you.

--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America

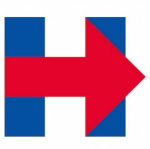
--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America



--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America

--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 10/5/2015 8:22:30 AM
Subject: Re: Wednesday Travel Options

Option A 9:05

On Monday, October 5, 2015, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

John- just wanted to send over some travel options for your return to DC on Wednesday. Two scenarios:

A) return to DC Wednesday evening after Hillblazer session. Session ends at 6:00 pm and dinner begins immediately after. Depending on when you leave you will have to leave dinner early or miss-- flight and Acela options
B) return to DC Thursday morning as debate prep now begins at 10:00 am instead of 9:00 am -- flight and Acela options

Option A

$429 one way	7:29 pm – 8:47 pm	United · Mesa Airlines DBA Unite	1h 18m	LGA-IAD	Nonstop
$429 one way	8:00 pm – 9:26 pm	US Airways · American	1h 26m	LGA-DCA	Nonstop
$429 one way	9:00 pm – 10:19 pm	US Airways · American	1h 19m	LGA-DCA	Nonstop

$215 2171 Acela Express----- 7:00pm - 9:53pm

$160 2173 Acela Express----- 8:00pm - 10:50pm

$160 2175 Acela Express----- 9:05pm - 11:55pm

Option B

$403 one way	7:30 am – 8:45 am	Delta · Shuttle America Delta Co	1h 15m	JFK-BWI	Nonstop
$154 one way	7:41 am – 8:49 am	JetBlue	1h 08m	JFK-IAD	Nonstop

$160 2103 Acela Express----- 6:00am - 8:55am

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Lou Frillman" <LFrillman@marquetteadvisors.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com "Kurt Campbell" <kurtmcampbell@yahoo.com>
Date:	11/18/2015 1:58:58 PM
Subject:

Gentlemen

Want to thank you both for last night. This was very good, and think we made progress in important areas.

Many thanks for trusting me with your time.

Lou Frillman
Sent from my iPhone 612-865-6532
Please xcuse msspld words and grammr

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Christopher Edley" <cedley@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Cassandra Butts" <cbutts.obama08@gmail.com> "Chris Lu" <clu@barackobama.com>
Date:	10/28/2008 7:08:18 AM
Subject:	Jeanne Lambrew

John -- A candid memo, if I may. As Cassandra knows, I feel a bit of tension with Jeanne in the shaping of "the" decision memo and workplan. I haven't read the latest so-called "final" draft, but will try to do so tonight. The fact that she sent it directly to you and Chris Lu gives me pause. (My education and immigration team leaders would not do that.) Much of this, of course, is traceable to how the membership of the health team came about. (Water under the bridge.) Part of it is also that I've tried to be exceptionally light-handed given your relationships and Daschle's stature. Perhaps you instructed Jeanne to proceed this way, although that would be uncharacteristic of you. I assume not.

But, until you instruct otherwise, I'm going to pretend that I'm still responsible for ensuring quality control, including fidelity to Barack's agenda/interests.

This is getting more difficult, because it doesn't at all seem that the needed Hill consultations have taken place. More after I go through the memo carefully. Ciao.

--

(personal email)
Christopher Edley, Jr.
Professor and Dean
UC Berkeley Law School

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Carol Browner" <cmbrowner@me.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	9/8/2009 11:11:39 AM
Subject:	Thx

Appreciated your time and thiughts today. Just to clarify -- Spoke to our lawyer who says that the EPA first step on regulating ghg can be the whole country not just the clean parts. This catches facities that have never been regulated.
The next step or an alternative could be sector by sector and set performance stds. Which would mean the dirtiest sectors could go first.
Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Lou Bertuca" <info@quinnforillinois.com>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	10/19/2014 8:25:23 AM
Subject:	Voting starts on Monday!

Friend,

Tomorrow is your first chance to cast a ballot for Governor Quinn.

Yep, early voting starts Monday.

There are Early Vote locations throughout your area, and you can vote at any one of them, any day of the week -- many of them are even open on weekends.

So, really, why wait?

Add your name to say you'll vote early:

Yes, I'll vote early.
No, but I'll vote on Election Day.

Voting early is a win-win.

Not only is it easier and faster than voting on Election Day, it's a big part of our strategy to stop Bruce Rauner.

By asking supporters to vote early, volunteers can focus on the voters who need to hear from us most.

That could give us a huge advantage going into Election Day, but it only works if everyone pitches in.

Let's show the Governor we have his back -- commit to vote early:

https://www.quinnforillinois.com/commit-to-vote-early

Here we go!

Lou

Lou Bertuca
Campaign Manager
Quinn for Illinois

P.S. We're running one of the biggest get out the Early Vote programs this state has ever seen, because that's what it's going to take to win. Will chip in $5 or more to help get as many supporters as possible to vote early?

Contributions are not tax deductible. State law requires that the occupation and name of the employer be reported for any individual who contributes over $500. Taxpayers for Quinn does not accept contributions from State employees. In addition, the Illinois Procurement Code prohibits certain businesses and their affiliates that have contracts, bids, and proposals with state agencies from making political contributions to state office holders responsible for awarding the contract. For more information about this campaign contribution limitation, please consult the State Board of Elections website .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Paid for by Taxpayers for Quinn. A copy of our report, filed with the IL State Board of Elections is (or will be) available on the board's website (elections.il.gov) or for purchase from the State Board of Elections in Springfield, IL. Taxpayers for Quinn

Quinn for Illinois
676 N LaSalle Street
Ste. 340
Chicago IL 60654 United States

If you believe you received this message in error or wish to no longer receive email from us, please unsubscribe .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Andrea Purse" <andrea.purse@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <John.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	12/29/2015 2:48:24 AM
Subject:	Hi there...

Hi John! Hope all is well and you had at least a short breather over Christmas! No rest for the weary though, I am sure.

I wanted to check in to see if we might be able to steal your Truckee place this weekend--not sure if you or the family are headed there, but the kids were Jonesing for snow if it might be empty!

Thanks so much, and tell the HRC crew I send my love!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Mayor Eric Garcetti" <info@lamayor.org>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 1/24/2016 2:21:50 PM
Subject: L.A. 360: MLK, FLOTUS, and the U.S. Conference of Mayors

Hi John,

Here's a quick rundown of updates from this week.

In Case You Missed It:

- FLOTUS: High praise for L.A. from Michelle Obama
- UBER: The rideshare company begins operating at LAX
- DEEP 6: Sixth Street bridge to close on January 27
- LOCO'L FLAVOR: Watts welcomes Roy Choi's new restaurant
- GREENLIGHT HOLLYWOOD: Encouraging filming in our city

Check out our minute-long video recap.

IN DETAIL:

IN WASHINGTON D.C. AT THE U.S. CONFERENCE OF MAYORS
I went to our nation's capital to address the U.S. Conference of Mayors. There I met with White House officials and other Mayors working tirelessly to create stronger, smarter cities and shared what we're doing to tackle major challenges right here at home.

CELEBRATING MLK
On Monday, L.A. marked the life and legacy of Dr. King. I was honored to ride in the Kingdom Day Parade and volunteer with 1,500 Angelenos renovating a South L.A. elementary school. The unity day was a strong reminder of Dr. King's message that we must all work together to build a stronger, more inclusive society.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

STATE OF THE STATE

Governor Jerry Brown spoke to all Californians about the courage and confidence that has allowed our state to make remarkable progress under his leadership. And in the year ahead, we can seize a unique moment in California's history, and leadership, to enact meaningful change on issues crucial to Angelenos — like seismic safety, traffic reduction, and homelessness.

As always, I'd love to get your feedback on how we are doing on Facebook , Twitter , and on my website , and thanks for reading.

- Eric Garcetti
Mayor

Office of Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti
http://www.lamayor.org/

Office of Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti
200 N Spring St, 300, Los Angeles, CA 90012, United States

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com .

Unsubscribe .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Environmental Justice EPA" <environmental-justice@epa.gov>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 10/2/2014 5:42:31 AM
Subject: [epa-ej] Blog: Your Involvement in the Future of Our Legacy Cities

Environmental Justice Mailing List

Blog: Your Involvement in the Future of Our Legacy Cities

Check out our latest blog post, Taking a Seat at the Table: Your Involvement in the Future of Our Legacy Cities, by Charlene Dwin Vaughn of the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation. In today's post, Charlene discusses the role of the National Environmental Policy Act and the National Historic Preservation Act's role in the planning process and emphasizes that both residents and officials should be better educated about these tools in order to the failures of "urban renewal" in the 1960s.

Also, check out our new Climate Justice in Action Series , which focuses on reframing the conversation on climate change to include environmental justice issues. Read our kickoff post featuring a video from Administrator McCarthy, and contribute success stories from your local area on our interactive climate justice map. In the most recent post in the series, Sherrell Dorsey discusses the positive, transformative impact that community planning and an HUD grant have had on a low-income community in Bridgeport, Connecticut that was further devastated by Hurricane Sandy.

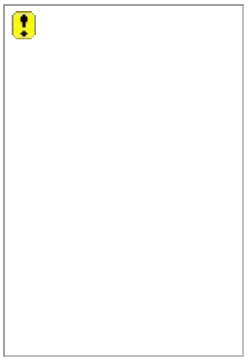
Be sure to add your e-mail address to the subscribe link on the upper-right side of the blog's home page to receive our future posts directly each week. Click the "Like" button to let your friends know about this great resource. Thank you for helping up spread the word!

Link: http://blog.epa.gov/ej/2014/10/taking-a-seat-at-the-table/

00538

If you are not already a member, the Office of Environmental Justice would like to invite you to join the EJ ListServ. The purpose of this information tool is to notify individuals about activities at EPA in the field of environmental justice. By subscribing to this list you will receive information on EPA's activities, programs, projects grants and about environmental justice activities at other agencies. Noteworthy news items, National meeting announcements, meeting summaries of NEJAC meetings, and new publication notices will also be distributed. Postings can only be made by the Office of Environmental Justice. To request an item to be posted, send your information to environmental-justice@epa.gov and indicate in the subject "Post to EPA-EJ ListServ"

To join the listserv go to: https://lists.epa.gov/read/all_forums/subscribe?name=epa-ej



To change the way you receive these emails, go to: https://lists.epa.gov/read/?forum=epa-ej and click "My Account."

To unsubscribe, send a blank email to leave-1509522-526356.442cc20a1800a5e69c3b9dd57d2ef9d0@lists.epa.gov .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Brynne Craig" <dccc@dccc.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/13/2012 11:27:11 AM
Subject:	disturbing report

Wall Street Journal: Crowds Swell at Romney Rallies After Ryan Pick

John --

I just got this disturbing report: Yesterday's Romney-Ryan rally in North Carolina pulled in an overflow crowd of 15,000 people.

There's no spinning that number. It's a LOT of people, and the Republican base in energized.

And that's not all. Since the VP announcement, Romney's campaign has brought in over 70,000 donations from his Tea Party base.

We've got to step up our game and mobilize our supporters -- starting right now.

Donate $3 or right now to help us rally our base around President Obama's agenda >>

Listen to what one Republican supporter said about Paul Ryan: "I love him...He's going to excite the Tea Party and get them on board…"

We can't let the Republicans claim the momentum. Donate $3 or whatever you can:

http://dccc.org/Stand-With-President-Obama

Thanks,

Brynne

Brynne Craig
DCCC Field Director

Paid for by the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee | 430 South Capitol Street SE, Washington, DC 20003
(202) 863-1500 | www.dccc.org | Not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

This message was sent to: john.podesta@gmail.com | We believe that emails are a crucial way for our campaign to stay in touch with supporters. Click here if you'd like to unsubscribe from these messages. Change or update your email address by clicking here . Thanks for your support of Democrats!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Tara McGuinness" <tara@progressiveaccountability.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 8/7/2008 3:01:01 AM
Subject: [big campaign] McCain Donors Agree, McCain Would be Worse Than Bush

"He's like a worse copy than Bush," Mr. Makhlouf said of Mr. McCain.
(said Abdullah Makhlouf, the owner of a discount stereo store who is one of Mr. Abdullah's closest friends, and his wife contributed $9,200.)

August 7, 2008

NYT: Family's Donations to McCain Raise Questions

By MICHAEL LUO
RIVERSIDE, Calif. — The Jordanian business partner of a prominent Florida businessman, who has raised more than $500,000 for Senator John McCain , appears to be at the center of a cluster of questionable donations to his presidential campaign.

Campaign finance records show Mr. McCain collected a little more than $50,000 in March from members of a single extended family, the Abdullahs, in California and several of their friends.

Amid a sea of contributions to the McCain campaign, the Abdullahs stand out. The checks come not from the usual exclusive coastal addresses, but from relatively hardscrabble inland towns like Downey and Colton. The donations are also startling because of their size: several donors initially wrote checks of $9,200, exceeding the $2,300 limit for an individual gift.

Making matters murkier, some couples in the family who contributed more than $9,000 to Mr. McCain also gave the maximum in December to either Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton or Rudolph W. Giuliani , or both, totaling in the case of at least one family more than $18,000.

On Wednesday, an article in The Washington Post said the donations were collected by Harry Sargeant III, a Florida businessman who has also raised money for Mrs. Clinton and Mr. Giuliani.

It appears, however, that Mr. Sargeant, the finance chairman of the Florida Republican Party and the part-owner of a major oil trading firm, International Oil Trading Company, did not actually solicit the donations from the Abdullahs and their friends.

That task fell to a longtime business partner, Mustafa Abu Naba'a. Mr. Sargeant said in an interview that he has known Mr. Abu Naba'a for more than a decade and has worked with him on commercial ventures, including a contract with the Pentagon to supply fuel to the military in Iraq.

Through Mr. Abu Naba'a's connections, Mr. Sargeant has raised more than $100,000 in contributions from several dozen Arab Americans in California, including the Abdullahs, for four candidates: Mrs. Clinton, Mr. Giuliani, Mr. McCain and Charlie Crist in his successful campaign for Florida governor in 2006. Mr. Crist is a close friend and college fraternity brother of Mr. Sargeant.

Several of the donors were emphatic in interviews that they had made the contributions on their own and had not been reimbursed. Indeed, while the donors do not fit the typical profile of people who often make large political donations, it appears many have made relatively successful livings, toiling away at small businesses they own: an auto repair shop, a discount stereo warehouse, a realty company.

Brian Rogers, a spokesman for Mr. McCain, said the campaign strictly followed campaign finance laws and as a general rule would look into a matter if flags were raised, but he declined to say whether it would look into the contributions tied to Mr. Sargeant.

Mr. Sargeant is a former Marine fighter pilot who has business interests around the world. He hosted a fund-raiser for Mr. McCain at his lavish home in Delray Beach, Fla., this year. Mr. Sargeant estimated he had raised more than $200,000 for Mr. Giuliani and helped a business associate raise a similar amount for Mrs. Clinton.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

But Mr. Sargeant's business dealings have caused controversy. Representative Henry Waxman, Democrat of California, opened an investigation last month into whether his company has been overcharging the military for its contract in Iraq, although Mr. Sargeant said Mr. Waxman's office had an erroneous understanding of what the company was billing.

As for his political fund-raising, Mr. Sargeant said he often turned to his business associates and asked them to solicit their extended families, although Mr. Sargeant said he was unclear exactly how Mr. Abu Naba'a knew the Abdullahs in California.

Mr. Sargeant said Mr. Abu Naba'a, who has a home in Florida, was unavailable for an interview because he was abroad.

Faisal Abdullah, a Palestinian immigrant who works as a director of operations of a window treatment company, identified himself in an interview as the driver behind the McCain donations from his relatives and friends. He sent them to Mr. Abu Naba'a, whom Mr. Abdullah described as an acquaintance.

Mr. Abdullah is an unlikely McCain fund-raiser, admitting he had soured on the Republican Party as a result of President Bush.

Nevertheless, he said that he harbored vague designs on a political career and that a discussion with Mr. Abu Naba'a gave him the idea that fund-raising was a way to get started. He said he initially collected numerous $500 checks for Mr. Crist from relatives and friends, and late last year, set out to raise money for the presidential campaign.

Mr. Abdullah said he cajoled a few relatives into giving the maximum donations to Mrs. Clinton and Mr. Giuliani, the early front-runners last year.

But when Mr. McCain claimed the mantle of presumed Republican nominee in March, Mr. Abdullah decided to support him.

"This is the horse I'm betting on for the future," Mr. Abdullah said.

He told his friends and relatives that the contributions were tax-deductible, something he later seemed surprised to learn from a reporter was not true. Many in his circle appear to have little affection for Mr. McCain but said they gave mostly as a favor to Mr. Abdullah.

Abdullah Makhlouf, the owner of a discount stereo store who is one of Mr. Abdullah's closest friends, and his wife contributed $9,200.

"He's like a worse copy than Bush," Mr. Makhlouf said of Mr. McCain.

When a reporter initially contacted Mr. Makhlouf, he denied giving to the McCain campaign.

After eventually admitting to the donation, Mr. Makhlouf added, "I'm still not going to vote for him."

Michael Luo was in Riverside and added later reporting from New York. Carolyn Wilder contributed research from New York.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

- Style
- Travel
- Jobs
- Real Estate
- Automobiles
- Back to Top

Copyright 2008 The New York Times Company

- Privacy Policy
- Search
- Corrections
- RSS
- First Look
- Help
- Contact Us
- Work for Us
- Site Map

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Eryn Sepp" <esepp@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	5/12/2015 7:44:11 AM
Subject:	Eryn Whereabouts: 4-5:15

With Equitable Growth from 4-5:15 pm. Then back at my desk.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	ggensler@hillaryclinton.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	3/6/2016 5:55:38 PM
Subject:	Accepted: Gensler Budget Update @ Tue Mar 15, 2016 5pm - 5:30pm (john.podesta@gmail.com)
Attachments:	invite.ics

ggensler@hillaryclinton.com has accepted this invitation.

Gensler Budget Update

When: Tue Mar 15, 2016 5pm – 5:30pm Eastern Time

Where: JDP/SL office (map)

Calendar: john.podesta@gmail.com

Who:
- John Podesta - organizer
- ggensler@hillaryclinton.com

Invitation from Google Calendar

You are receiving this email at the account john.podesta@gmail.com because you are subscribed for invitation replies on calendar john.podesta@gmail.com.

To stop receiving these emails, please log in to https://www.google.com/calendar/ and change your notification settings for this calendar.

Forwarding this invitation could allow any recipient to modify your RSVP response. Learn More .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Susan Kleinberg" <s2slk@aol.com>
To:	s2slk@aol.com
Date:	5/26/2011 9:51:48 AM
Subject:	Susan Kleinberg Participating in "TRA: Edge of Becoming," Palazzo Fortuny, Venice - Opening June 4 - Nov. 27

Susan Kleinberg is participating in TRA: Edge of Becoming at the Palazzo Fortuny in Venice, opening June 4, through November 27, 2011.

TRA: Edge of Becoming is an exhibition that explores the inter-connectedness between place, history, creativity and universal wisdom, curated by Daniella Ferretti, Rosa Martinez, Francesco Poli and Axel Vervoordt.

TRA means a passage through an open doorway. A gateway to what lies beyond. The threshold of thought. The expansion of perception. The energy within the void. The power of beginnings. TRA forges new passages of perspective and possibility through the transformative experience of art with the will of enhancing revelation and knowledge.

Artists:
Marina Abramovic, Carla Accardi, Giovanni Anselmo, Janine Antoni, Adolphe Appia, Bae Bien-U, Ida Barbarigo, Miquel Barcelò, Matthew Barney, Massimo Bartolini, Davide Benati, Gerrit Adriaensz Berckheyde, Bertozzi e Casoni, Alberto Biasi, Ali-ghiero Boetti, Otto Boll, Vincenzo Bonomini, Monica Bonvicini, Davide Boriani, Michaël Borremans, Tania Bruguera, Peter Buggenhout, Alberto Burri, Jean-Marie Bytebier, Francesco Candeloro, Fernando Garbellotto, Felice Casorati, Vincenzo Castella, Chen Zhen, Pieter Claeissins, Antoni Clavé, Francesco Clemente, Niccolò Codazzi, Gianni Colombo, Dadamaino, Berlinde De Bruyckere, Pieter De Hooch, Riccardo De Marchi, François de Nomé, Filippo De Pisis, Gabriele De Vecchi, Olivier Dollinger, Désirée Dolron, Maurizio Donzelli, Piero Dorazio, Marcel Duchamp, Pablo Echaurren, Luciano Fabro, Lara Favaretto, León Ferrari, Lucio Fontana, Mariano Fortuny y Madrazo, Mariano Fortuny y Marsal, Franciabigio, Adam Fuss, Cristina Garcia Rodero, Alberto Giacometti, Raimund Girke, Anthony Gormley, Francisco Goya, Gotthard Graubner, Cao Guimarães, Henri-Joseph Harpignies, Gary Hill, Sadaharu Horio, Ilya & Emilia Kabakov, Wassily Kandinsky, Tanyu Kano, Anish Kapoor, Kcho, Paul Klee, Susan Kleinberg, Osamu Kokufu, Jannis Kounellis, Mitsuko Kuebli, Luisa Lambri, Walter Leblanc, Fernand Léger, Osvaldo Licini, Robert Longo, Heinz Mack, Alberto Magnelli, Robert Mallet-Stevens, Man Ray, Piero Manzoni, Enzo Mari, Raffaela Mariniello, Alberto Martini, Gordon Matta-Clark, Sebastián Matta, Fausto Melotti, Ana Mendieta, Marisa Merz, Meekyoung Shin, Sabrina Mezzaqui, Domi Mora, Mattia Moreni, Michel Mouffe, Saburo Murakami, Esther Giles Nampitjinpa, Shirin Neshat, Rivane Neuenschwander, Louise Nevelson, Renato Nicolodi, Mario Nigro, Francesco Nonino, Hans Op de Beeck, Roman Opalka, Giulio Paolini, Lygia Pape, Giuseppe Penone, Otto Piene, Giovanni Battista Piranesi, Hugo Pratt, Kichizaemon Rakú, Araya Rasdjarmrearnsook, Gerhard Richter, Auguste Rodin, Bernardí Roig, Mark Rothko, Doris Salcedo, Remo Salvadori, Alberto Savinio, Jan Schoonhoven, Richard Serra, Conrad Shawcross, Fujiko Shiraga, Kazuo Shiraga, Kimsooja, Jesús Rafael Soto, Ettore Spalletti, Dominique Stroobant, Hiroshi Sugimoto, Antoni Tàpies, Pascale Marthine Tayou, Marco Tirelli, Celestino Turletti, James Turrell, Luc Tuymans, Günther Uecker, Giuseppe Uncini, Camiel Van Breedam, Joos Van Cleef, Alex Van Gelder, Emilio Vedova, Jef Verheyen, Giorgio Vigna, Nanda Vigo, Carl Michael von Hausswolff, Carl Julius von Leypold, Harmen Willemsz Wieringa, Maaria Wirkkala, Gao Xingjian, Jiro Yoshihara.

Palazzo Fortuny
San Marco 3958
Campo San Beneto
30124 Venice
+39 041 520 0995

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Catherine Chieco" <crchieco@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	5/21/2015 2:49:20 AM
Subject:	Re: Have you heard from Tony?

Thanks. I knew he would be off grid but wasn't sure when, and he is usually good on his word to call if he says he will...and i do worry about him. Sorry!

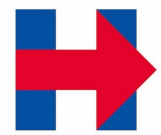
Sent from my iPad

On May 20, 2015, at 6:55 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Got an email from him this am.
>
> On Wednesday, May 20, 2015, Catherine Chieco <crchieco@gmail.com > wrote:
>> Saw him monday night.
>> He left for Miami yesterday..said he would call last night and no word then or today
>> And no response on email or text..
>> I am sure he is fine but would just like to know
>> Sorry to bother you!
>> Hope all is well ...
>> Kate
>>
>> Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Lona Valmoro" <lvalmoro@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	2/6/2016 4:07:23 PM
Subject:	Re: TIME ADJUSTMENT -- Prep Call with HRC, Sunday February 7th
Attachments:	Event Memo - National Television Interviews Sunday Shows (1).docx



Briefing paper attached. We will do a pre-call at 6:45 am. 347-943-6141 [PIN: 99784].

On Sat, Feb 6, 2016 at 9:48 PM, Lona Valmoro <lvalmoro@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> We will plan for 7:10am tomorrow morning for our prep call with HRC.
>
> Sunday, February 7th
> 7:10am ET
>
> 718-406-9705
> Passcode 14417
>
> Please let us know if you have any questions -- thank you.

--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jake Sullivan" <jake.sullivan@gmail.com>
To: "Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com>
Date: 2/12/2015 3:18:49 PM
Subject: Re: Policy call Friday, February 13

Thanks Neera - look forward to discussing.

On Feb 12, 2015, at 8:53 PM, Neera Tanden <ntanden@gmail.com > wrote:

oops emailed too fast

Hi all,

I'd like to offer an additional policy idea on health care. My recommendation would be to not have HRC focus her health care views on the ACA itself, but to offer new ideas assuming the ACA is here to stay; talk past it so to speak so she doesn't get sucked into a debate on its merits.

I'm attaching a CAP paper just put out on our proposal to redress rising out of pocket costs for all employees (not in the ACA).

As part of our middle class squeeze work we found that health care costs for individuals have risen despite national health care expenditures leveling off; so costs have shifted from employers to employees. The paper documents the cost shift and how employers and providers have benefitted from national health expenditures and specifies a few policies, including increased transparency.

Offering up for the mix of ideas.

Neera

On Thu, Feb 12, 2015 at 4:11 PM, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com > wrote:

> All -- looking forward to the call tomorrow. We're hoping to cover the following ground:
>
> 1. The overall policy narrative and areas of emphasis
>
> 2. Whether there are substantial economic policy ideas/proposals that we have not included in this document
> - do we need more boldness/freshness?
> - do we need more/different ideas that cut against the grain or take on Dem sacred cows?
>
> 3. Whether there are ideas/proposals in this document that we should jettison
>
> 4. The pollution fee
>
> 5. Middle class tax cuts
>
> Thanks!
>
> On Wed, Feb 11, 2015 at 7:58 AM, Ethan Gelber <egelber@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
>
> > All,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

As Jake promised, here is the memo in advance of Friday's call. If the new time works for everyone (4 PM), I will resend the calendar invite.

Thanks,

Ethan

From: Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com >
Sent: Wednesday, February 11, 2015 12:32 AM
To: Ethan Gelber
Cc: Chris Jennings; Tom Freedman; Neera Tanden; Gene Sperling; Nides, Thomas R; John Podesta; Cheryl Mills; Ann O'Leary; Dan Schwerin
Subject: Re: Policy call next Thursday, February 12

All - hope you are well. In advance of our call Friday, Ethan will be circulating a document that sets forth a range of policy options on the major economic issues. It is not exhaustive and does not cover every subject, but it seeks to get at who HRC is fighting for and who she is standing up against.

We would like to use the call Friday to get your feedback on our general policy frame and your thoughts on the policy areas contained in (and absent from!) the document.

On logistics, begging your patience and indulgence, could everyone do 4 pm on Friday instead? Some participants have had their travel plans adjusted. I'm really sorry for shifting goalposts!

On Feb 6, 2015, at 11:04 AM, Ethan Gelber <egelber@hrcoffice.com > wrote:

> Great. Here is the call-in info:
>
> Conference: 585-632-4163
>
> PIN: 09584
>
> I will send around calendar invites now as well. Thanks.
>
> ---
>
> From: Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com >
> Sent: Friday, February 6, 2015 11:00 AM
> To: Chris Jennings
> Cc: Tom Freedman; Neera Tanden; Neera Tanden; Gene Sperling; Nides, Thomas R; John Podesta; Cheryl Mills; Ann O'Leary; Dan Schwerin; Ethan Gelber
> Subject: Re: Policy call next Thursday, February 12
>
> Great. We have a quorum. Look forward to talking then. Ethan will send around call-in info.
>
> On Fri, Feb 6, 2015 at 10:59 AM, Chris Jennings <ccj@jenningsps.com > wrote:
>> Ok, I am good for 2:00 on 13th.
>>
>> Sent from my BlackBerry 10 smartphone on the Verizon Wireless 4G LTE network.
>> Original Message
>> From: Tom Freedman
>> Sent: Friday, February 6, 2015 10:27 AM
>> To: Neera Tanden
>> Cc: Jake Sullivan; Neera Tanden; Gene Sperling; Chris Jennings; Nides, Thomas R; John Podesta; Cheryl Mills; Ann O'Leary; Dan Schwerin; Ethan Gelber
>> Subject: Re: Policy call next Thursday, February 12

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Great, I can do 13th as well. Tom

Sent from my iPhone

> On Feb 6, 2015, at 10:10 AM, Neera Tanden <ntanden@americanprogress.org> wrote:
>
> Works for me.
>
> Can we move all email for me to my above gmail account? Thanks!
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
>> On Feb 6, 2015, at 5:01 PM, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com> wrote:
>>
>> How is 2 pm on the 13th for people?
>>
>>
>>
>>> On Feb 6, 2015, at 9:57 AM, Gene Sperling <gbsperling@gmail.com> wrote:
>>>
>>> So sorry -- flying back from Australia on 12th. Any time on 13th would work for me.
>>>
>>> Sent from my iPhone
>>>
>>>> On Feb 6, 2015, at 6:37 AM, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com> wrote:
>>>>
>>>> Hi guys,
>>>>
>>>> Dan, Ann, Ethan, and I are hoping to assemble our favorite people on a conference call to talk about the policy agenda heading into 2016. This would just be us, not HRC. We're hoping to get your assessments of the state of play after the SOTU, the budget, the CAP report, and some of the early Republican offerings -- and your advice on how to move forward from here.
>>>>
>>>> Would 1 pm on the 12th work for people? We'd like to budget an hour. And after this call we'd like to find a time to get the group together with HRC.
>>>>
>>>> Please let me know if that date/time work, and if not, if there are other times on the 12th that would.
>>>>
>>>> Thanks and best,
>>>> Jake

<Affordability-report.pdf>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Burns Strider" <burns.strider@americanbridge.org>
To:	CTRFriendsFamily <CTRFriendsFamily@americanbridge.org>
Date:	11/21/2014 1:52:28 AM
Subject:	Correct The Record Friday November 21, 2014 Morning Roundup

Correct The Record Friday November 21, 2014 Morning Roundup:

Headlines:

Associated Press: "Democrats preparing for Hillary Clinton campaign"

"Correct the Record, a rapid-response media organization that has defended Clinton in her post-State Department period, expects to continue as a part of research arm American Bridge."

Bloomberg: "Hillary Clinton's Campaign-In-Waiting Grows Restless"

"Correct the Record, founded by Clinton backer David Brock, has established itself as the research arm, publicly defending her from Republican attacks."

Business Insider: "Hillary Clinton Praised Obama's Big Immigration Speech"

"Democratic presidential front-runner Hillary Clinton strongly endorsed President Barack Obama's executive action on immigration reform minutes after his speech concluded Thursday night."

MSNBC: "Hillary Clinton: GOP 'abdication' forced Obama's hand on immigration"

"The quick, strong, and proactive response to Obama's speech Thursday is usual, and could signal a new paradigm as she gets closer to a potential campaign."

The Hill: "House Oversight chairman to put spotlight on Clinton, Benghazi"

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"In an interview with The Hill on Thursday in his Capitol Hill office, Rep. Jason Chaffetz (R-Utah) set out a broad agenda that will include hearings on embassy security in light of the September 11, 2012 attack on the U.S. consulate in Benghazi, Libya that left four Americans dead."

The New Republic: "Sherrod Brown Should Challenge Hillary Clinton for President"

"At the risk of seeming ridiculous, I think Sherrod Brown should run for president."

MSNBC: "Jim Webb, Martin O'Malley present first 2016 challenges for Clinton"

"Two potential challengers to Hillary Clinton, former Sen. Jim Webb and Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley, have clearly signaled their intent to enter the 2016 campaign."

MSNBC column: Krystal Ball: "Is Jim Webb 2016's Barack Obama?"

"For those looking for an alternative to Hillary Clinton and hoping she'll face a real challenge in the Democratic primary, Jim Webb's candidacy will certainly be an interesting one to watch."

The Daily Beast: "Hillary Gets a Challenger and He's a Marine"

[Subtitle:] "Jim Webb is officially exploring a 2016 run. Why the former senator—and former Republican—might be able to reach the Democratic voters that Clinton can't."

National Journal: "MoveOn Warns Clinton: Back Keystone, Lose Your Base"

"The progressive group MoveOn.org is pressing Hillary Clinton to come out against the Keystone XL oil-sands pipeline, warning that she could lose Democratic voters if she doesn't take a stand against the project."

Articles:

Associated Press: "Democrats preparing for Hillary Clinton campaign"

By Ken Thomas

November 21, 2014, 3:19 a.m. EST

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

NEW YORK (AP) — A nexus of Democratic groups is preparing for Hillary Rodham Clinton's widely anticipated presidential campaign.

Ready for Hillary, a Democratic super PAC unaffiliated with the former secretary of state, is convening a daylong meeting of Clinton insiders on Friday for strategy sessions aimed at helping elect Clinton if she runs. The closed-door planning session about two weeks after Democrats' dismal midterm election performance comes as Clinton, the party's leading presidential contender, considers whether she will seek the presidency again in 2016.

Ready for Hillary will join leaders of Democratic groups Priorities USA Action, American Bridge 21st Century and Correct the Record to review the 2014 elections and prepare for next year. In some cases, the groups will be wrapping up their efforts while others are beginning to ramp up.

"Everyone has a lane," said former Michigan Gov. Jennifer Granholm, the co-chair of Priorities USA Action and an adviser to Ready for Hillary. "We are going to work together and seamlessly so there's no infighting."

Ready for Hillary, which was founded in 2013, has signed up more than 1.5 million people promising to help Clinton if she runs and has raised more than $10 million to harness a grassroots community of volunteers for Clinton. The group expects to fold if Clinton launches her presidential campaign and then transfer its data and list of supporters to the former first lady's campaign.

Priorities USA Action, a Democratic super PAC that raised $70 million in 2012 to air tough ads targeting Republican Mitt Romney, has maintained a low profile this year but is reconnecting with donors to prepare for next year. Correct the Record, a rapid-response media organization that has defended Clinton in her post-State Department period, expects to continue as a part of research arm American Bridge.

The gathering is not authorized by Clinton, who will be speaking at an event in New York on Friday promoting the use of cook stoves in developing nations. But it will feature plenty of Democrats who have worked with her and her husband, former President Bill Clinton: ex-White House adviser Harold Ickes; Clinton campaign strategists James Carville and Paul Begala; Jonathan Mantz, who served as Hillary Clinton's national finance director; and Karen Finney, a former Hillary Clinton campaign aide.

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack, a former Iowa governor who backed Clinton's presidential campaign, will speak at the meeting as a private citizen, aides said.

Donors will also hear from Democratic strategists who could play senior roles in a future Clinton campaign, including Guy Cecil, the executive director of the Senate Democrats' campaign arm and a former Hillary Clinton campaign aide; Stephanie Schriock, the president of EMILY's List; Ace Smith, a California-based Democratic strategist who directed Hillary Clinton's 2008 primary campaigns in three states; and Mitch Stewart, a former Obama campaign aide who has advised Ready for Hillary.

Bloomberg: "Hillary Clinton's Campaign-In-Waiting Grows Restless"

By Lisa Lerer and Julie Bykowicz

November 21, 2014, 5:48 a.m. EST

[Subtitle:] The latest round of fundraisers highlights the breadth of Clinton's support, and and a possible problem.

Hillary Clinton is close to being ready. Now, she just has to find a way to tame the legions of loyalists who have been ready since their last presidential ride ended.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The complicated political machine known as Clintonland is revving its engine, as outside groups, top donors, and prospective aides begin preparing for an anticipated formal announcement of her presidential candidacy early next year. In the coming week alone there will be a half-dozen fundraisers aimed at greasing the path toward her 2016 debut. Some events are aimed at scooping up checks for existing pro-Clinton groups, while others will pocket financial "commitments" for a future campaign account.

The main event is Friday's all-day donor gathering in New York City, featuring Clinton confidants from Arkansas to the State Department. Next up, would-be campaign financiers are holding 30-person dinners in Newark and New York City. They're like traditional fundraisers–all they lack is a candidate.

While people close to Clinton caution that no final decisions have been made, they say the former secretary of state has shifted her focus from public events and paid speeches to private conversations about the guts of a campaign–messaging, staff, money. Her goal, they say, is to launch with a fully formed political operation.

That would be difficult for any candidate, but that's particularly so for one with the last name Clinton. Unlike President Barack Obama, who's known for his tight circle of friends and advisers, the Clinton universe is a sprawling international club of foreign dignitaries, Hollywood stars and moguls, former administration officials and Wall Street executives. The vastness worries some supporters, who fret that the hordes of people who consider themselves close to the Clintons could complicate strategy. They want to avoid a campaign besieged by unsolicited advice, competing interests, and fierce rivalries. It's not so much a nightmare as a flashback to the 2008 primary.

Within months of Clinton leaving the State Department in 2013, four outside groups declared themselves devoted to her potential candidacy and formed a sort of campaign-in-waiting, each with its own fiefdom. Priorities USA Action, the big-money super-PAC, plans to handle paid media. Emily's List, a group that backs the campaigns of Democratic women who support abortion rights, started Madam President as an early effort to assess voter views on the idea of a female president. Correct the Record, founded by Clinton backer David Brock, has established itself as the research arm, publicly defending her from Republican attacks. And Ready for Hillary, which has a list of 3 million supporters to sell her campaign if she gets in the race, is the base camp for activists.

"I felt like the rationale of grassroots support and building lists is a really important lesson she learned from the last go-round," said Jennifer Selendy, a litigation partner at Kirkland & Ellis in New York, who donated $25,000 to Ready for Hillary. "If she gets into the race, I'm sure I will contribute."

While the groups have tried to define separate missions, there's some overlap, including among major donors whose checks come with a fair number of opinions.

Already, Clinton's circle is engaged in an internal debate over when she should formally announce her candidacy. Some argue that sooner is better, allowing her to maximize the time her campaign and supportive super-PACs have to raise money for what's expected to be at least a $1 billion enterprise. Others–friends, mostly–say Clinton should take her time because the moment she announces she'll be pounded with Republican attacks. Why wear the "Hit Me" sign any sooner than necessary?

In the meantime, Clinton emissaries are quietly reaching out to possible staffers. And while political strategists in Washington have not quite started looking for housing in White Plains, N.Y.–a city not far from the Clinton home in Chappaqua, and therefore a potential headquarters location–they've begun speculating on the merits of living in New York City versus the suburbs.

Several Clintonites are being eyed for senior positions. Robby Mook, who managed the campaign of longtime Clinton fundraiser and Virginia Governor Terry McAuliffe, is being considered as campaign manager. That possibility was underscored by a preliminary strike against him from an opposing camp: the leak of his private messages from a 150-member "Mook Mafia" email list he ran with another Democratic operative.

Guy Cecil, executive director of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, is another name mentioned by people close to Clinton for campaign manager or another top position. White House counselor John Podesta, a former chief of staff during President Bill Clinton's administration, is on any short list. "If she runs, as I hope she will, I will do whatever she asks me to do," he told Bloomberg's Al Hunt in an interview on Charlie Rose. "I talk to her from time to time."

With the midterm elections over, Clinton's path to harness the Democratic Party is clear–so far, no serious 2016 primary challengers are on the horizon. Former Virginia Senator Jim Webb, who lacks the campaign skills and machine of the Clintons, opened an exploratory committee this week. A number of Obama's top aides have joined the organizations that will become part of her campaign apparatus, and at least a few top officials who refused to back her eight years ago have already endorsed her candidacy. “I’m frequently introduced as the highest-ranking woman in U.S.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

office; I'd like to give up that title. And soon," House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi, who resisted endorsing Clinton in 2008, told a cheering crowd in San Francisco last month.

The various components of the campaign-in-waiting now must decide their next steps, including whether to continue to exist.

Priorities USA Action officials are beginning to court big check-writers in one-on-one visits. The super-PAC says it won't formally accept donations until Clinton announces. "We played a critical role in helping elect a Democratic president in 2012 and we look forward to doing the same in 2016," said Peter Kauffmann, a spokesman for the organization.

Ready for Hillary was designed to be different. Instead of hoarding piles of cash to unleash in a barrage of television ads, this group has existed solely to cultivate a vast base of small donors for Clinton. It has spent nearly all of the $10 million it raised since two Clinton lifers set it up in January 2013. Once Clinton announces, Ready for Hillary plans to lease its list of supporters to the campaign and is likely to dissolve. No matter its future, Ready for Hillary served another purpose–locking down operatives and showing off Clinton's dominance to potential rivals. The group also became a clearinghouse for surrogates such as Senators Mark Warner of Virginia, Chuck Schumer of New York, and Claire McCaskill of Missouri.

"For people wondering when we're done, we're done if and when she runs," said Tracy Sefl, an adviser to the group. "Right now, we're going to keep doing the work and we're thrilled with what we're accomplishing."

Business Insider: "Hillary Clinton Praised Obama's Big Immigration Speech"

By Colin Campbell

November 20, 2014, 9:09 p.m. EST

Democratic presidential front-runner Hillary Clinton strongly endorsed President Barack Obama's executive action on immigration reform minutes after his speech concluded Thursday night.

"I support the president's decision to begin fixing our broken immigration system and focus finite resources on deporting felons rather than families," Clinton said in a statement.

Clinton had previously avoided weighing in on the issue as it became apparent the Obama planned to take executive action.

In her reaction to the president's remarks, Clinton agreed with Obama's claim House Republicans forced him to unilaterally address immigration reform. The Senate, which is currently controlled by Democrats, previously passed an immigration bill that stalled in the lower legislative chamber.

"I was hopeful that the bipartisan bill passed by the Senate in 2013 would spur the House of Representatives to act, but they refused even to advance an alternative. Their abdication of responsibility paved the way for this executive action, which follows established precedent from Presidents of both parties going back many decades. But, only Congress can finish the job by passing permanent bipartisan reform that keeps families together," Clinton continued.

Clinton further urged the American public to take an even-keeled approach to the hot-button issue.

"Our disagreements on this important issue may grow heated at times, but I am confident that people of good will and good faith can yet find common ground. We should never forget that we're not discussing abstract statistics we're talking about real families with real experiences. We're talking about parents lying awake at night afraid of a knock on the door that could tear their families apart, people who love this country, work hard, and want nothing more than a chance to contribute to the community and build better lives for themselves and their children," she said.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

MSNBC: "Hillary Clinton: GOP 'abdication' forced Obama's hand on immigration"

By Alex Seitz-Wald

November 20, 2014, 10:07 p.m. EST

In a rare public statement, Hillary Clinton said she supports President Obama's new executive action on immigration, lamenting that Republicans forced his hand.

"I support the president's decision to begin fixing our broken immigration system and focus finite resources on deporting felons rather than families," the former secretary of state and likely presidential candidate said Thursday evening. "I was hopeful that the bipartisan bill passed by the Senate in 2013 would spur the House of Representatives to act, but they refused even to advance an alternative. Their abdication of responsibility paved the way for this executive action."

Republicans have called the action a dangerous usurpation of executive authority. But Clinton, like her husband, said she thinks Obama's move follows "established precedent from Presidents of both parties going back many decades."

Obama's policy is expected to temporarily spare up to 5 million undocumented immigrants from deportation. The president announced the plan in a speech Thursday night, saying many immigrants could finally "come out of the shadows and get right with the law."

Clinton, like Obama, said Congress must "finish the job by passing permanent bipartisan reform." That should both keep families together and protect the border, she added.

"We should never forget that we're not discussing abstract statistics – we're talking about real families with real experiences. We're talking about parents lying awake at night afraid of a knock on the door that could tear their families apart," Clinton said.

Like most Democrats, Clinton has long supported immigration reform, and was in the White House when her husband took his own executive actions enforcing immigration laws. In the Senate, she voted in favor of overhaul supported by President Bush that ultimately failed.

During her 2008 presidential campaign, however, Clinton ran into some trouble when she waffled on her position on giving drivers licenses to undocumented immigrants. This year, she's been confronted and heckled by DREAMers, young undocumented immigrants, at several events.

The fact that Clinton even put out a statement at all is notable. Since stepping down as secretary of state, she has kept a low profile and avoided weighing in on issues of the day unless asked about them – and sometimes even then dodging. She has been criticized, for instance, for not taking a stance on the Keystone XL pipeline and waiting to speak out on the events in Ferguson.

The quick, strong, and proactive response to Obama's speech Thursday is usual, and could signal a new paradigm as she gets closer to a potential campaign.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The Hill: "House Oversight chairman to put spotlight on Clinton, Benghazi"

By Cristina Marcos

November 20, 2014, 4:15 p.m. EST

The incoming chairman of the House Oversight and Government Reform Committee plans to put the spotlight on Hillary Clinton.

In an interview with The Hill on Thursday in his Capitol Hill office, Rep. Jason Chaffetz (R-Utah) set out a broad agenda that will include hearings on embassy security in light of the September 11, 2012 attack on the U.S. consulate in Benghazi, Libya that left four Americans dead.

"Secretary Clinton created a fiasco. And we're going to investigate it," Chaffetz said of the former secretary of State.

Benghazi is now under the jurisdiction of a House select committee, but Chaffetz indicated it is one of several issues spearheaded by outgoing Oversight Chairman Darrell Issa (R-Calif.) that his panel will continue to monitor — even as Clinton is expected to prepare for a 2016 White House bid.

"Four years of her reign at State is something that we're still going to have to clean up and we have to address. We can't just ignore it," Chaffetz said.

Chaffetz said probes of the Secret Service, the Justice Department's "Fast and Furious" gun-tracing program and the Internal Revenue Service that began under Issa will be ongoing.

"There are investigations, obviously, that will continue," Chaffetz said.

Chaffetz suggested his inaugural hearing as chairman could be on the comments from ObamaCare consultant Jonathan Gruber that the healthcare law passed because of voter "stupidity."

But he's also "leaving open the possibility" to a hearing early in his term on President Obama's unilateral action to change immigration laws.

"It is on everybody's radar screen. I don't know if we would necessarily lead out on it, but we might," Chaffetz said. "There are bigger, broader issues with immigration and securing the border that I'm sure we will dive into. No doubt about it."

Chaffetz said he thinks he can work effectively with Democrats and that he wants to avoid overtly personal confrontations that marred Issa's reputation.

"I don't want things to get personal," Chaffetz said. "I want to be fair. I'm not going to let up on my tenacity or my passion on getting to the truth, but I ultimately want to be fair."

Chaffetz wants to hold hearings on the number of federal workers on paid administrative leave, something he thinks can be a bipartisan issue.

He cited an example of an Environmental Protection Agency employee who was placed on paid leave — but not fired — after he was caught viewing porn on his computer for several hours a day.

"I can guarantee you we're going to have a hearing about the fact that there are more than 4,000 people on paid administrative leave. Four thousand. We pay these people. It's like a paid vacation. That's not a partisan issue," Chaffetz said.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Still other potential hearings on Chaffetz's list would be on the use of information technology across the federal government, public lands, renewal of the D.C. Opportunity Scholarship Program and postal reform.

While Democrats remain skeptical that Chaffetz will adhere to pledges to take a different approach than Issa, the new chairman thinks he can improve relations with the other sie of the aisle.

For one, Chaffetz said he'll try to be more judicious with subpoenas. Issa came under criticism for issuing more than 100 subpoenas without the sign-off from the committee's ranking Democrat, Rep. Elijah Cummings (D-Md.). At one hearing earlier this year, IRS Commissioner John Koskinen insisted the subpoena was unnecessary given that he had willingly appeared before the House Ways and Means Committee just days earlier.

So far, Chaffetz hasn't heard from the Obama administration since winning the Oversight gavel apart from a congratulatory email from the White House Office of Legislative Affairs.

But starting in January, they'll likely be at odds over the committee's investigations.

For his part, Chaffetz said he hopes he won't even have to issue a single subpoena during his tenure as chairman.

“I hope to never issue one. It's more dependent on the White House than it is on me,” Chaffetz said. “Subpoenas, in my mind, are a last resort.”

But Chaffetz warned he would subpoena documents or witnesses if it appears there's no other way to access them.

“If they are as open and transparent as they claim, I'll never have to issue one,” Chaffetz said. “But if they're going to play games and hide the documents, then we're going to start issuing subpoenas.”

The New Republic: “Sherrod Brown Should Challenge Hillary Clinton for President”

By Michael Kazin

November 20, 2014

At the risk of seeming ridiculous, I think Sherrod Brown should run for president. I know that, barring a debilitating health problem or a horrible scandal, Hillary Clinton is likely to capture the Democratic nomination. I realize too that Brown, the senior senator from Ohio, has never hinted that he may be tempted to challenge her. “I’m really happy where I am,” he told Chris Matthews last winter, when the MSNBC’s paragon of impatience urged him to run.

Yet, for progressive Democrats, Brown would be a nearly perfect nominee. During his two decades in the House and Senate, he has taken strong and articulate stands on every issue which matters to the party’s broad, if currently dispirited, liberal base. When George W. Bush was in office and riding high, Brown opposed both his invasion of Iraq and the Patriot Act. He has long been a staunch supporter of abortion rights and gay marriage, and is married to Connie Schultz, a feminist author who writes a nationally syndicated column.

Brown’s true mission, however, is economic: He wants to boost the well-being of working Americans by any means necessary. Brown has been talking and legislating about how to accomplish it for years before Elizabeth Warren left Harvard for the Capitol. During Obama’s first term, he advocated a larger stimulus package, called for re-enacting the Glass-Steagall Act to rein in big banks, and stumped for comprehensive immigration reform. He champions the rights of unions and the power of the National Labor Relations Board and criticizes unregulated “free trade” for destroying manufacturing jobs at home. He also led the charge among Senate Democrats that pressured Obama to drop his plan to appoint Larry Summers to head the Federal Reserve and appoint Janet Yellen instead.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On his lapel, Brown wears a canary pin to honor the workers' movement that "gave us all food safety laws, civil rights, rights for the disabled, pensions and the minimum wage." Like the canaries which miners once took with them into the pits to warn them of toxic gas, the pin symbolizes the need to stay on guard against any employers and politicians who threaten those gains.

There are other Democrats—Warren is the best known—who also skillfully combine a politics of economic populism with a commitment to gender equality and civil liberties. But only Brown represents a populous swing state that has voted for the victor in every presidential election since 1960. In both his Senate races, Brown faced well-known and well-financed Republican opponents—and creamed them. In 2006, his unexpected 12-point margin over Mike DeWine was aided, in part, by the anti-Bush wave that gave Democrats control of Congress. Still, DeWine was a two-term incumbent who had been elected previously by landslides. In 2012, Brown faced Josh Mandel, the popular young state Treasurer. After what became that cycle's most expensive Senate race, Brown won by six points. He outpolled Barack Obama in Ohio by over 160,000 votes.

Brown's success, like that of many politicians who are popular in swing states, relies, in part, on charm. He relishes going to hundreds of town meetings around the state, where he answers any question thrown at him. Whether in public or talking to an interviewer in his office, he comes off as relaxed, witty, curious, and rhetoric-free. Two years ago, when I spoke with him in Washington, we spent so much time talking and laughing about his Ohio predecessors—who included the formidable Mark Hanna, the Republican who, in 1896, pioneered the big-money, mass media national campaign—that we barely had enough time to talk about Brown's career and policies. I have never enjoyed myself so much with any politician, particularly one who was, at the time, fighting to keep his seat.

But Brown earns his popularity by refusing to trim his progressive faith or apologize for it. "If you remember who you are," he told me, "you don't have to move to the center, wherever the center happens to be at any moment." He keeps insisting that America will not become a decent society unless the labor movement regains some of its strength and corporations lose a good deal of their power over campaigns and politicians.

Last summer, George Will paid Brown a kind of tribute. "He looks, sounds and acts like a real, as opposed to faculty club, leftist," wrote Will in a rare moment when he put his irony, if not his hauteur, aside. "Although he is a Yale graduate, he has the rumpled look and hoarse voice of someone who spent last night on Paris barricades, exhorting les miserables to chuck cobblestones at the forces defending property." Will did have a point when he contrasted Sherrod Brown's good-natured, steadfast populism with Hillary Clinton's "risk-averse careerism" and "joyless plod" toward the Democratic nomination.

If nothing else, Sherrod Brown could help push the plight of "the struggling middle class"—which is really composed of men and women who work for wages or a mediocre salary—to the forefront of the Democratic primary campaign, where it deserves to be. And no journalist could accuse him of altering his views to do so. According to exit polls from the midterm election, nearly two-thirds of Americans believe their government favors the wealthy. Senator Brown must be less "happy" now when he contemplates spending the next two years objecting again and again to the deeds of the new Republican majority. Why shouldn't he speak liberal truths to power—in his party and the nation—instead?

MSNBC: "Jim Webb, Martin O'Malley present first 2016 challenges for Clinton"

By Alex Seitz-Wald and Jane C. Timm

November 20, 2014, 1:22 p.m. EST

Two potential challengers to Hillary Clinton, former Sen. Jim Webb and Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley, have clearly signaled their intent to enter the 2016 campaign.

Webb launched an exploratory committee late Wednesday to consider a 2016 run. The committee gives him the ability to fundraise, spend, and organize like a presidential campaign, without officially declaring just yet.

The popular ex-senator from Virginia has moderate, anti-war credentials that might ring true with liberals and moderates voters sick of gridlock and overseas military operations.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"Over the past few months, thousands of concerned Americans across the political spectrum have asked me to run for president," Webb said in a video posted to his website. "A constant theme runs through these requests. Americans want positive, visionary leadership that they can trust."

Meanwhile, outgoing Maryland Gov. O'Malley has hired a former adviser to Hillary Clinton to lead policy development at his political action committee. O'Malley has only two more months left in office in Annapolis, but his Washington-based O'Say Can You See PAC is adding staff. One major addition is Sarah Miller, who served on the policy team of Hillary Clinton's 2008 presidential campaign and was a close aide to longtime Clinton confidant John Podesta at the Center for American Progress, a leading liberal think tank.

At the Center for American Progress, Miller served as a speechwriter and policy adviser to Podesta, who founded the think tank before moving to the White House as counselor to President Obama late last year. Podesta served as Bill Clinton's White House chief of staff and will likely hold a very senior role in another Clinton presidential campaign. After CAP, Miller joined the Treasury Department, but has remained close to Podesta.

O'Malley, who says he is seriously considering a presidential bid, has a policy record in Maryland that could excite progressives. And lately, he's been vocal in taking the liberal positions on issues of the day. He came out for net neutrality just before President Obama made his own announcement on the matter, and called on Congress to vote down the Keystone XL pipeline ahead of a much-watched vote this week.

On the other hand, Webb has cast himself as an economic populist. He has touted his varied credentials—eight years of active duty military, including deployment in Vietnam, five years at the Pentagon mostly as Assistant Secretary of Defense and Assistant Secretary of the Navy, four years working behind the scenes in Congress, and six years in Congress. His anti-interventionist views will differentiate him from Clinton, who voted for the war in Iraq while in the Senate and encouraged the Obama administration's intervention in Libya.

But credentials aside, few Americans even know Webb's name and few are talking about his candidacy for president: in a Washington Post/ABC News poll from June, he garnered support from only 2% of Democrats.

At an event in September, Webb acknowledged his likely opponent, Hillary Clinton.

"I'm not here to undermine her," Webb said. "I'm here just to explain where my concerns are as someone whose been involved in military and foreign policy all of my life."

MSNBC column: Krystal Ball: "Is Jim Webb 2016's Barack Obama?"

By Krystal Ball

November 20, 2014, 3:58 p.m. EST

Just when we thought the 2016 Democratic presidential primary would turn into a bloodless coronation of Hillary Clinton, the race gets a whole lot more interesting. Jim Webb, former Virginia Democratic senator and Secretary of the Navy under President Ronald Reagan, just announced he's forming a presidential exploratory committee. Webb writes:

"I'd like to take a few minutes of your time to ask you to consider the most important question facing America today: Is it possible that our next President could actually lay out a vision for the country, and create an environment where leaders from both parties and from all philosophies would feel compelled to work together for the good of the country, despite all of the money and political pressure that now demands they disagree?"

The letter doesn't mention Hillary Clinton, but Webb's background, rhetoric, and persona stands in stark contrast to the presumed Democratic frontrunner. On issues of national security and economic justice, Webb could be the credible challenger to Secretary Clinton that some Democrats have been looking for.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

While Clinton is hawkish and famously supported President George W. Bush's Iraq War, Jim Webb has been a forceful and credible non-interventionist voice. While Clinton has attempted to shift her rhetoric to match the current mood of economic populism, Webb has a long track record of focusing on poverty, inequality, and economic justice. But perhaps more than anything, Webb's very persona stands in direct opposition to that of Hillary Clinton.

In 2006, at a time when Hillary Clinton was serving in the Senate and considering whether or not to renounce her support for the Iraq War, Jim Webb was stumping for a Senate seat in combat boots as an ode to his son who was serving in the military there. Before Webb's opponent, George Allen, made "macaca" a household word, Webb was making a name for himself in Virginia politics based on his combination of decorated military service and opposition to the Iraq War.

Webb's consistent and principled opposition led to a memorably uncomfortable exchange with then-President George W. Bush shortly after Webb's election. At a White House reception for incoming Senate freshmen, Bush tracked Webb down and asked him: "How's your boy?" To which Webb replied: "I'd like to get them out of Iraq, Mr. President." Bush tried again: "That's not what I asked you. How's your boy?" "That's between me and my boy, Mr. President," Webb said ending the conversation.

Webb has since stuck to his guns as a non-interventionist, opposing U.S. involvement in Libya and Syria. If Americans are afraid of being drawn back into Iraq or being goaded by ISIS into another full-scale military conflict, Webb's anti-war stance – combined with his deep knowledge and credibility as a military veteran – could be a potent challenge to Clinton's hawkishness.

Economic populism could provide another area of potential vulnerability for Hillary Clinton. The former secretary of state has attempted to match her rhetoric to the Democratic mood of the day by highlighting inequality and advocating for a minimum wage increase. But it hasn't stopped criticism of her continued coziness with Wall Street, including the generous compensation she has received for speeches to Goldman Sachs. Clinton has yet to stake out a position at odds with the corporate and Wall Street executives who are expected to fund her campaign.

Webb, on the other hand, has already taken positions that would set him against the economic elite. In a recent interview with Ryan Lizza of The New Yorker, Webb pointed out the absurdity of hedge fund managers paying lower tax rates than wage earners saying: "Fairness says if you're a hedge-fund manager or making deals where you're making hundreds of millions of dollars and you're paying capital-gains tax on that, rather than ordinary income tax, something's wrong, and people know something's wrong." Webb has also decried the fact that both Republicans and Democrats are beholden to Wall street financial interests.

Webb's candidacy could also undercut the supposed promise of Hillary's electability. Some have argued that Clinton, given her Arkansas ties and previous success appealing to white working class voters, would be able to expand the electoral map and compete in Southern states that were out of bounds for President Obama. Webb, who is of Scotch-Irish decent and whose ancestors hail from Appalachia, would likely have the same electoral appeal. His exploratory letter highlights his concern for both the inner cities where you "see the stagnation, poverty, crime, and lack of opportunity that still affects so many African Americans" and the "poorest counties in America – who happen to be more than 90 percent White, and who live in the reality that 'if you're poor and White you're out of sight.'"

Most potently, Webb and Hillary Clinton could not be any more different stylistically. While Clinton seemingly can't get enough of hobnobbing with economic elites and cultivating donors, Webb has clear antipathy for the entire political fundraising process. When he was in the Senate, his fundraising approach consisted primarily of an occasional letter, penned by Webb himself explaining his work and asking for donations. If you did see Webb at political fundraisers, you would likely find him off to the side, speaking only to those who approached him, rather than working the wealthiest and most powerful individuals as most other politicians would.

Senator Tim Kaine, who replaced Webb in the Senate, explained to The Washington Post: "He is not a backslapper. There are different models that succeed in politics. There's the hail-fellow-well-met model of backslapping. That's not his style." In all the ways that Hillary is careful, Webb is direct. In the ways that she's polished, he's rough. And in all the ways that Hillary eagerly embraces the political game, Webb distances himself from it. But his authenticity could also be a liability: Webb has no established donor network and no appetite for politics.

Barack Obama showed how a potent combination of outsider status, anti-war credibility and deep grassroots enthusiasm could propel an insurgent candidate into a position to win the nomination against the formidable Clinton political war machine. Despite the lessons of 2008, the nascent Hillary Clinton campaign seems to have corrected little of its tone-deafness or overconfidence. At the same time, Clinton is unlikely to allow her organization to be out-executed the way she was by Obama, who capitalized on his campaign's organizational competence and managerial discipline to win the Democratic nomination.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Though Clinton's tone-deafness and hubris might still befuddle Hillaryland in 2016, you can be sure they would have their caucus states organized and not be asleep at the wheel. And a candidate as fundamentally cautious as Hillary Clinton is unlikely to have the aforementioned "macaca" moment that ignited Webb's unlikely 2006 Senate candidacy against George Allen. 2006 was also a spectacular year for Democrats, when national forces came to Webb's aid and made up for his many organizational sins and fundraising disadvantages.

Webb has never proven he can run the type of campaign organization that could execute the complex, precinct-by-precinct war it would take to dislodge Hillary. Nor is he the type of charismatic figure that electrified the national stage the way Obama did during his 2004 Democratic convention debut. But as the 2016 field comes together, a combination of factors could conspire to unleash a type of grassroots firestorm for Webb: disdain for politics as usual, the unaddressed fury of blue collar white voters, a deep longing for authenticity, and a likely post-Obama backlash against transformational, rhetorically charismatic leaders. An Obama-to-Webb transition isn't the most natural, but given their shared disdain for hawkish adventurism and anti-establishment credibility, Webb's bid for the coalition of the ascendant is not unreasonable.

However, before getting the politically cynical millennials to knock down doors for him, Webb will also have to explain to the Democratic base his positions on gun control, immigration and women's rights. A 1979 article he wrote titled "Women Can't Fight" is tough to square with a Democratic party that champions women's empowerment and equality.

Still, for those looking for an alternative to Hillary Clinton and hoping she'll face a real challenge in the Democratic primary, Jim Webb's candidacy will certainly be an interesting one to watch. In his letter announcing his exploratory committee, Webb writes: "I can assure you that we will be focusing not on petty politics or how to match a position with a poll, but on the future of our country and on solutions that will rebuild and unite us." Lots of politicians could write those words. Webb is one of the very few who could write them and actually be believed.

The Daily Beast: "Hillary Gets a Challenger and He's a Marine"

By David Freedlander

November 20, 2014

[Subtitle:] Jim Webb is officially exploring a 2016 run. Why the former senator—and former Republican—might be able to reach the Democratic voters that Clinton can't.

The typical campaign kickoff video has soft lighting, shots of the candidate with family or, shaking hands with beaming youngsters, grizzled farmers, and grateful factory workers while a voice-over runs down platitudes about saving the nation from the imminent peril that another election gone wrong will bring.

Jim Webb's announcement that he's forming an exploratory committee for a possible 2016 presidential run had all the slick production of the instructional video shown before jury duty.

There was Webb, a one-term senator from Virginia, wearing a charcoal gray suit and a blue button shirt, staring directly into the single camera, speaking for 14 minutes. He laid out his biography—Vietnam vet, secretary of the Navy under Ronald Reagan, antiwar Democrat in the U.S. Senate—his record as a lawmaker, which included criminal-justice reform and a new GI Bill, and the rationale for his campaign: "A strong majority of Americans agree that we are at a serious crossroads. In my view the solutions are not simply political, but those of leadership." (The text, spread out over pages, was helpfully posted directly below the video.)

It has all the trappings of a campaign as vanity project, the type of presidential exploration designed not to excite convention delegates but to boost a candidate's name ID before cable-TV bookers. Webb, after all, would come into a Democratic primary with considerable baggage—never mind that he would likely be squaring off against Hillary Clinton, the most overwhelming favorite in an open Democratic primary in history. There is the fact that Webb used to be a Republican, a point he proudly points to in the video when he mentions his service in the Reagan administration. Or the fact that Webb, who decided not to run again after only one term in elective office, doesn't seem to have the stomach for the degradations of politics. And the fact that Webb's base of support lies among working-class whites, who are a diminishing constituency in a party made up more and more of liberals, minorities, and the professional classes. ("What a naïve and stupid thing to think that Democratic primary voters want," wrote The Daily Kos in response to Webb's kickoff video, calling Webb a hopeless crank and comic relief in the mold of Herman Cain.)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

But veterans of his campaign for Senate and people close to him insist that Webb is taking a serious look. Webb's video announcement last night makes him the first Democrat to officially declare his interest, and as the party waits for the near-inevitable Clinton kickoff, some Webb supporters say that is not as inevitable as many pundits believe. And should Clinton jump in, some in Webb world say they think she is the wrong candidate at a time when the nation is disgusted with politics as usual and when the declining prospects of the middle class is the most important issue facing the nation.

"Jim is not a trial-balloon guy. A lot of people send trial balloons up because they want to see if they have a chance, or if people like them," said Steve Jarding, a strategist on Webb's 2006 run. "That's not Jim. He says 'I have a message and I am going to move that message.' He challenges the Democratic Party to say what it stands for."

Jarding acknowledged that Webb faces long odds—"At this point, you wouldn't bet on him"—but noted that his win in what was thought to be deeply Republican Virginia in 2006, against a popular incumbent, was unlikely as well.

And he conceded that Webb didn't have much of a taste for politics, but suggested that the former senator could be a stand-in for Americans who don't have much of a taste for the process either right now.

"Apparently 90 percent of Americans agree with him. They don't like politics much these days either. Maybe Americans are willing to look at someone who does something different from the calculated. He gives those Americans a voice who say, 'You know what, they are all crooks and bastards up there on Capitol Hill and I don't want to have anything to do with them.' I mean, look at that video! With all due respect, it was like something out of the 1970s. It wasn't what you would see from an insider politician."

On Friday, some of Hillary Clinton's biggest supporters, who have banded together under the Ready for Hillary super PAC to raise millions of dollars and garner millions of email addresses, will gather in Midtown Manhattan to bask in their successes in preparing the groundwork for her run. Webb has kept a low profile since leaving the Senate, and will be running for president "the old-fashioned way," in the words of one aide—waiting to announce before trying to gather support.

And Clinton, his aides insist, is a non-factor.

"It ain't about Hillary," said Mudcat Saunders, a longtime Virginia strategist who worked on Webb's Senate campaign. "It's about bring the American dream to the forefront once again for working people and small business. The working people and small business—they haven't had any representation in years. And they know it.

"Americans want to do something about this coin-operated government."

The early line on Webb had been that he would be challenging Clinton from the right. It is a reasonable assumption, considering his roots in the Republican Party, in the Marines, and his proud Scots-Irish roots. But Webb's aides insist it isn't true. He is to the left of Hillary on foreign intervention, and is more populist on economic matters as well, talking about not just curbing the power of big banks but about an inequality agenda that goes beyond raising taxes and the minimum wage in order to help lower middle-class families gain more of a foothold. They see him bringing working-class whites and Southerners into the fold in a way that no other Democrat could.

"He talks about taking the Democratic Party back to its populist roots," said Jessica Vandenberg, a longtime political operative who just moved back to her native Iowa and is helping lay the groundwork for the Webb campaign in that first-in-the-nation caucus state. "There is a debate about the direction of the Democratic Party, and it is good to have that debate."

National Journal: "MoveOn Warns Clinton: Back Keystone, Lose Your Base"

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

By Ben Geman

November 20, 2014

[Subtitle:] The controversial oil-sands pipeline is cropping up in the nascent 2016 battle for the White House.

The progressive group MoveOn.org is pressing Hillary Clinton to come out against the Keystone XL oil-sands pipeline, warning that she could lose Democratic voters if she doesn't take a stand against the project.

"Hillary Clinton's refusal to take a position raises the possibility that she is worse on climate change than 80 percent of the incoming Senate's Democratic Caucus," said Anna Galland, executive director of MoveOn.org Civic Action.

She warned: "If she's considering a run for president and wants the support of the party's base, Hillary Clinton should clarify that she opposes this dirty and dangerous pipeline."

Clinton, the Democratic front-runner if she decides to enter the White House race, has repeatedly declined to offer an opinion on Keystone.

"I can't really talk about it because I was in the office that has primary responsibility for making the decision. I don't want to inject myself into what is a continuing process or to in any way undermine my successor as he tries to make this decision," she said at an event in Canada last month, referring to John Kerry, who followed Clinton as secretary of State.

But Bill Snape, senior counsel for the Center for Biological Diversity, said there's no formal restriction preventing Clinton from offering an opinion on the pipeline. "She's a private citizen now," said Snape, whose group opposes Keystone. "Nothing in Clinton's secretary of State job would prevent her from taking a policy position at this point."

The State Department is heading the federal review of the project, but the final decision is expected to come from the West Wing.

Polling shows that Democrats are divided over Keystone. A Pew Research Center poll released Nov. 12 showed that 43 percent of Democrats surveyed currently favor construction, compared with 54 percent in March of 2013. Overall, Pew's survey found that 59 percent of the public supports the project.

In contrast to Clinton, outgoing Maryland governor and potential 2016 Democratic White House candidate Martin O'Malley is bashing the pipeline. "It's time to reject the either/or and smallball choices facing us on energy. I hope the Senate rejects #KeystoneXL--it's too much carbon dioxide, and not nearly enough jobs (only about 50 jobs permanent once construction is finished)," he said on Facebook ahead of a Senate vote on the project earlier this week.

Among the other potential 2016 challengers to Clinton, Sen. Bernie Sanders of Vermont strongly opposes Keystone. But former Virginia Democratic Sen. Jim Webb, who has just announced an exploratory committee for a White House run, voted in favor of the pipeline in 2012.

The MoveOn.org statement comes two days after legislation to approve TransCanada's pipeline, which would bring crude oil from Canadian oil-sands projects to Gulf Coast refineries, failed by a single vote in the Senate. Thirty-nine Democrats and two independents aligned with their caucus (Sanders and Sen. Angus King) voted against the bill Tuesday, while 14 Democrats supported it.

Bill McKibben, a prominent climate-change activist and leading Keystone foe, supported MoveOn.org's push to get Clinton to take a stand.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Calendar:

Sec. Clinton's upcoming appearances as reported online. Not an official schedule.

· November 21 – New York, NY: Sec. Clinton presides over meeting of the Global Alliance for Clean Cookstoves (Bloomberg)

· November 21 – New York, NY: Sec. Clinton is honored by the New York Historical Society (Bloomberg)

· December 1 – New York, NY: Sec. Clinton keynotes a League of Conservation Voters dinner (Politico)

· December 4 – Boston, MA: Sec. Clinton speaks at the Massachusetts Conference for Women (MCFW)

· December 16 – New York, NY: Sec. Clinton honored by Robert F. Kennedy Center for Justice and Human Rights (Politico)

· February 24 – Santa Clara, CA: Sec. Clinton to Keynote Address at Inaugural Watermark Conference for Women (PR Newswire)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Georgetown Law Events" <rsvp2@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	"All Faculty and Staff" <AllFacultyandStaff@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	7/8/2015 6:43:47 AM
Subject:	2015 Summer Community Luau

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
To: "Robert Mook" <robbymook@gmail.com>
Date: 12/20/2014 10:31:53 PM
Subject: Re: Update

Dear Robby

On the agenda, my only adds are a quick update/readout on the things in your original email: research project, digital/tech/cto interviews; and comms (you put self-research on agenda).

Best.

cdm

On Dec 19, 2014, at 4:26 PM, Robert Mook <robbymook@gmail.com > wrote:

> Great. And below are my five items for our call--thoughts, additions, deletions, etc welcome.
>
> 1. Vetting protocol/systems short term/long term
>
> 2. Self research structure
> --Structure
> --Location
>
> 3. Urgent political meetings/calls
> --Warren follow up
> --Biden
> --Axelrod
> --Deval Patrick
>
> 4. Legal update and pending questions/issues
>
> 5. Press next steps
>
> On Fri, Dec 19, 2014 at 11:46 AM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:
> > will send my comments in advance of our call Sunday
> >
> > On Thu, Dec 18, 2014 at 8:19 AM, Robert Mook <robbymook@gmail.com > wrote:
> > > Adding a different email for Cheryl on here.
> > >
> > > On Wed, Dec 17, 2014 at 8:09 PM, Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
> > > > Robby, just spoke with Joel Benenson. He's working on a memo with his thoughts that we should have in 24 hours but I told him you would be reaching out to him directly. He's aware of her meetings today and has basic sense of plan but could use a conversation with you. He's in mexico and then montana till beginning of the year fyi.
> > > >
> > > > From: Robert Mook <robbymook@gmail.com >
> > > > Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 8:01:13 PM
> > > > To: Huma Abedin
> > > > Cc: John Podesta; Cheryl Mills n
> > > > Subject: Re: Update
> > > >
> > > > We had a good meeting today to ratify the research plan and discuss staffing structure and talent. Few things to report out:
> > > >
> > > > 1. We seem to have a settled on a team for the research project--we just need to lock in the media people. Attached is the latest draft of the one pager. I'm hoping to get the team discussing and editing the project design over the holiday so we can present a proposal to HRC at the beginning of Jan. Fingers crossed.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

2. Good discussion about digital and tech. I think we have some good digital options...she approved setting up an interview process for CTO candidates, since we want someone outside politics for this role and we need outside advice on candidates.

3. Self research: Cheryl, she wanted to keep Heather and the team going from DC. I flagged that we will likely need to expand the team to 5-10 people, which she seemed fine with. I also flagged that self research is so integral to rapid response, vetting, content, etc that we'd probably want a contingent in HQ to prevent bottlenecks. We agreed I'd loop back with you to discuss options--I think a hybrid model may work. Let's discuss.

4. We had a good discussion about communications. John there are some WH people I'd like to discuss. I'll follow up. Any names welcome!

On Wed, Dec 17, 2014 at 1:41 PM, Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com > wrote:

> Meant to email sooner that she was seeing Pollack and Anzalone today.
> She seemed to like both of them and basically told them both they would be part of this initial plan.
> No promises.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	Julie <nevakitka@aol.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	2/11/2016 12:27:04 PM
Subject:	Good interview on CNN tonight!!

Sincerely,

Julie

Julie Kitka, President
Alaska Federation of Natives

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <milia.fisher@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	5/5/2015 4:33:17 PM
Subject:	Updated Travel Memo
Attachments:	5 5 v 2 MIDWEST SOUTH TRAVEL MEMO.docx

Hi John-

Per our earlier conversation I've updated the travel memo to reflect changes to the roadshow itinerary, including meetings and lodging. Below you'll find the plain text of just tomorrow's travel. Full memo attached.

Earlier tonight I got on the phone with Marcus, Midwest Deputy National Finance Director, who is in charge of organizing the Chicago roadshow and your meeting with Fred Eychaner. I made sure that we're coordinated on all logistics fortomorrow, including your pickup from Wendy's house and your drop-off at ORD after the event. After that call I also made slight adjustments to your briefing for the Eychaner meeting, which I believe you saw.

Tomorrow morning volunteer John West is scheduled to pick you up from Wendy's place at 9:50am to give you time to settle in the car before your 10am call with Ken. I saw your brief traffic with Wendy about the possibility of her attending the event and driving you. If she confirms, please let me and we can tell John not to come. Otherwise, he will be there to pick you up. The rest of the day's logistics are below.

I will hop on the phone with Greg and Jon on the ground in Miami/Ft Lauderdale tomorrow to review logistics there as well. After I speak with them I will make any necessary changes to this memo and get you a new copy.

Marcus will have this printed for you when you arrive at the finance roadshow venue tomorrow (Clayco, construction company, offices in downtown Chicago).

Best,
Milia

----------DAY- DAY-OF CONTACTS: WEDNESDAY, May 6, 2015

Regional Contacts: CHICAGO:

Marcus Switzer
Dep. Nat'l Finance Dir., Midwest
Cell: 202-255-1694
mswitzer@hillaryclinton.com

Jeremy Hallahan
Illinois Finance Director
Cell: 609.501.4687
jhallahan@hillaryclinton.com

John West
HFA Volunteer
Cell: 312-213-3052
gardens@jwlandscapes.com

MIAMI:

Greg Goddard
Florida Finance Director
Cell: 561-212-8892
ggoddard@hillaryclinton.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

WEDNESDAY, May 6, 2015: CHICAGO

Stay: Home of Wendy Abrams:

405 Sheridan Rd, Highland Park, IL

9:50 AM STAFF PICKUP: JOHN WEST TO EYCHANER MEETING

John West

HFA Volunteer

Cell: 312-213-3052

gardens@jwlandscapes.com

Note: John West will pick you up at the Abrams residence in Highland Park and drive you to the venue for the Eychaner Meeting and the Finance Roadshow event in downtown Chicago (Clayco; 35 East Wacker Drive, Suite 1300, Chicago, IL).

Drive time to event: 45 mins - 1 hour / 25.4 Miles

10:00 AM CALL WITH KEN ZIMMERMAN

He will call your cell

10:50 AM ARRIVE: CLAYCO

Please call Marcus Switzer (202) 255-1698 when you near the venue and he will meet you in the Clayco lobby. Jeremy Hallahan is the other staffer that will be on site to meet Fred Eychaner.

Marcus will escort you to Conference Room 3 on the 13th Floor, where you will meet with Eychaner.

Marcus Switzer Jeremy Hallahan

Dep. Nat'l Finance Dir., Midwest Illinois Finance Director

Cell: 202-255-1694 Cell: 609.501.4687

mswitzer@hillaryclinton.com jhallahan@hillaryclinton.com

11:30- 12:30 PM FRED EYCHANER MEETING

Note: Guests will begin to arrive at 12:15 pm on the 13th floor

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

12:30-2 PM CHICAGO ROADSHOW

Location: Clayco, 35 East Upper Wacker Drive, Suite 1300

Staff: You & Marlon Marshall

STAFF PICKUP: JOHN WEST TO CHICAGO (ORD)

John West (312-213-3052)

gardens@jwlandscapes.com

Drive time to Chicago (ORD): 25 - 40 mins / 16.5 Miles

5:35 PM FLY: CHICAGO (ORD) TO MIAMI (MIA)

Information: United Flight 5608

Confirmation: United Conf: ANXYBP

This United ticket was purchased directly by the campaign by Aditi. Your United # AG527888 was added.

Note on CH Tung: he is chairing a meeting at the time we offered and thsu cannot make a call this night. We're working out a different time—possibly Friday morning.

9:38 PM ARRIVE: MIAMI (MIA)

STAFF PICKUP: MIAMI (MIA) TO MOSKOWITZ HOME

Greg Goddard

Miami Finance Director

Cell: 561-212-8892

ggoddard@hillaryclinton.com

2013 gray Volkswagen Passat

Drive time to home of Moskowitz Home 1 hour / 48.1 Miles

Stay: Home of Mike and Marilyn Moskowitz

7100 Cutter Ct Parkland, FL 33067

Note: both you and Amanda will be staying with Mike and Marolyn Moskowitz

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--
Milia Fisher
(858) 395-1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Orszag, Jon" <jorszag@compasslexecon.com>
To:	jpodesta@americanprogress.org john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/9/2009 2:29:03 AM
Subject:	question

Hi John:

How are you?

Our corporate parent (FTI Consulting) throws a huge bankruptcy conference in Beaver Creek, CO every March. They asked me whether you do paid speeches. If so, I guess the questions are: (a) how much do you charge (they would pay full market rates); and (b) who should I put them in contact with?

Thanks – and hope to see you soon.

Jon

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "American Airlines" <americanairlines@checkin.email.aa.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 1/26/2016 2:42:11 AM
Subject: American Airlines check-in reminder

We look forward to seeing you onboard View on the web

American Airlines Reservations Redeem Miles My Account Deals

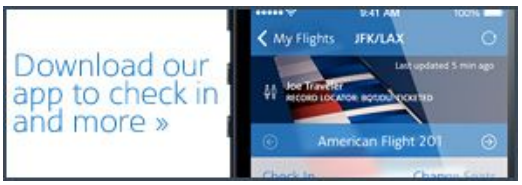
Dear John Podesta,

You may now check in for your upcoming trip. Please check baggage guidelines and gates and times . You can also sign up for flight status notifications .

Check in now »

IMPORTANT INFORMATION:
• Boarding passes printed more than 4 hours before departure won't include terminal and gate information. Check your terminal and gate before leaving. Find your gate »
• Plan to use an airport kiosk? Make sure you have your record locator, AAdvantage number or a credit card to pull up your reservation (you won't be able to search with your last name).

Wednesday, January 27, 2016



American Airlines flight 84

Departing at 7:40 am
New York Kennedy, NY

Arriving at 8:49 am
Boston, MA

Record Locator:
KFPZGD

Traveling on this trip:
JOHN D PODESTA

Flight Notifications on the go
Receive notice via text, email or voicemail »

Update Your Email Preferences Change Your Email Address Unsubscribe View Privacy Policy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

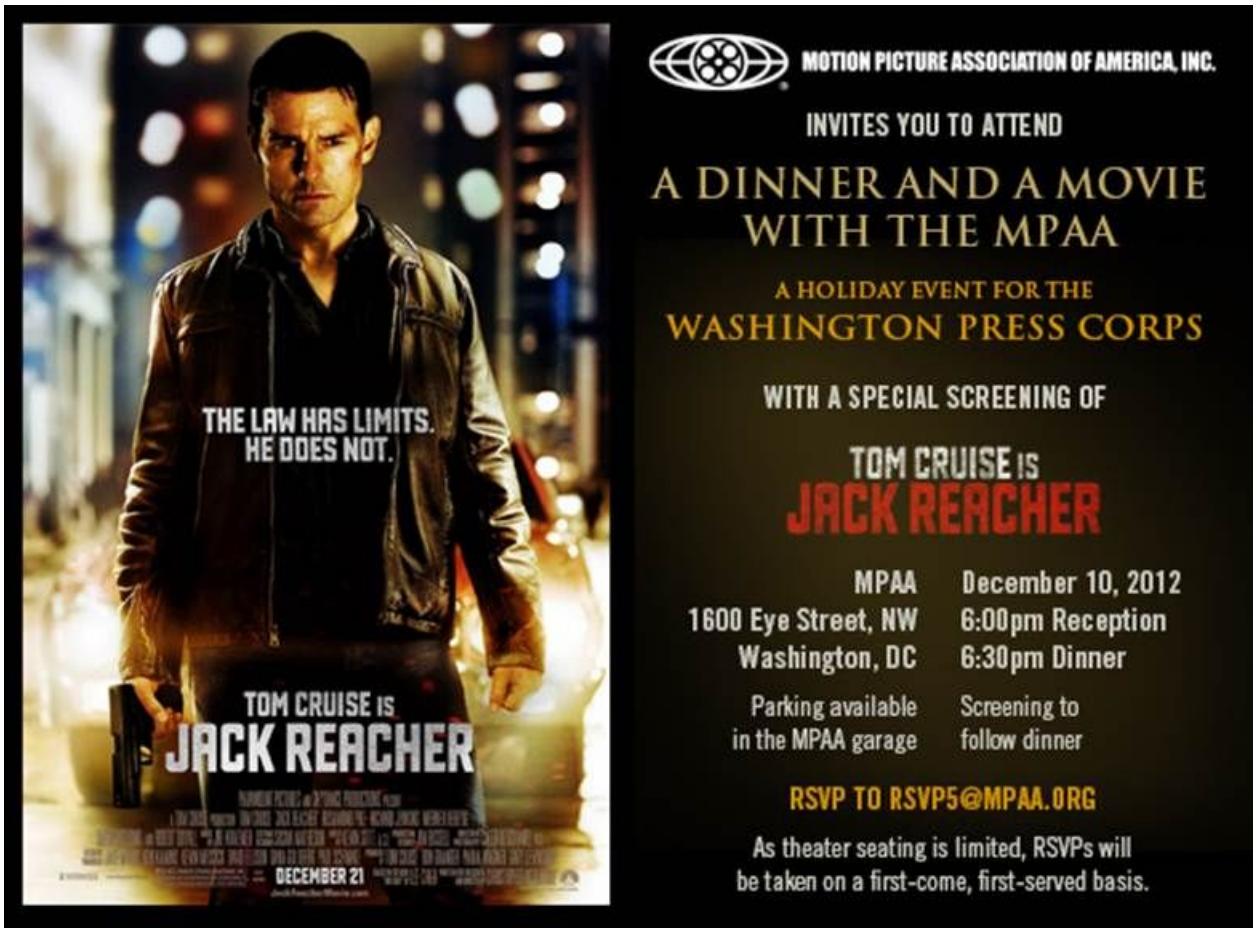
This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com .

This email has been sent on behalf of American Airlines. We are happy to help you with any questions or concerns you may have. For all inquiries about American Airlines or the AAdvantage® program, visit aa.com/contactaa or contact us in writing at American Airlines, 4255 Amon Carter Blvd., MD 2400, Fort Worth, TX 76155-2503.

American Airlines reserves the right to change the AAdvantage® program and its terms and conditions at any time without notice, and to end the AAdvantage program with six months notice. Any such changes may affect your ability to use the awards or mileage credits that you have accumulated. American Airlines is not responsible for products or services offered by other participating companies. For complete details about the AAdvantage program, visit aa.com/AAdvantage .

A portion of all travel booked on American Airlines may be American Eagle® service, operated by Compass Airlines, LLC, Envoy Air Inc., ExpressJet Airlines, Inc., Republic Airline Inc., SkyWest Airlines, Inc. , Air Wisconsin Airlines Corporation, Mesa Airlines, Inc., PSA Airlines, Inc., Piedmont Airlines, Inc., or Trans States Airlines, LLC.

oneworld is a registered trademark of oneworld Alliance, LLC.



© 2016 American Airlines, Inc. All Rights Reserved.

This email and any information or files transmitted with it are solely for the confidential use of the recipient. This message contains confidential and proprietary information of American Airlines (such as American employee, customer and business data) that may not be read, searched, distributed or otherwise used by anyone other than the intended recipient. If you have received this email in error please notify the sender and promptly delete this message and its attachments.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	MPAA_Events@mpaa.org
To:	Undisclosedrecipients:
Date:	12/7/2012 12:32:47 AM
Subject:	REMINDER: MPAA Dinner and a Movie: Jack Reacher

We hope you can join us this Monday for our Dinner and a Movie. RSVP to rsvp5@mpaa.org . Thank you!

MOTION PICTURE ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA

INVITES YOU TO ATTEND A DINNER AND A MOVIE WITH THE MPAA

A HOLIDAY EVENT FOR THE WASHINGTON PRESS CORPS

WITH A SPECIAL SCREENING OF

JACK REACHER

WHERE: Motion Picture Association of America 1600 Eye Street, NW Washington, DC Parking available in the MPAA Garage	WHEN: Monday, December 10, 2012 6:00PM Reception 6:30PM Dinner Screening to follow dinner	RSVP: rsvp5@mpaa.org As theater seating is limited, RSVPs will be taken on a first-come, first-served basis.

THIS INVITATION IS NON-TRANSFERABLE

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Amitabh Desai" <adesai@clintonfoundation.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com "Doug Band - PC" <doug@presidentclinton.com>
Date:	4/30/2012 7:38:26 AM
Subject:	Re: CHAI fund and advisory board

It's a bit vague in the documents Ira provided. I can't tell if he would make equity/debt investments or just grants, but I got the sense during the Board meeting that he would like the flexibility to make both.

----- Original Message -----
From: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: Doug Band - PC
Cc: Amitabh Desai; Bruce Lindsey; Laura Graham; Justin Cooper - PC; Dennis Cheng
Sent: Mon Apr 30 14:35:45 2012
Subject: Re: CHAI fund and advisory board

I'm a little confused--an investment fund or an innovation fund?
Probably both are bad, but they seem different in the pitch and liklihood that people would give $.

On Fri, Apr 27, 2012 at 9:21 PM, Doug Band <doug@presidentclinton.com> wrote:
> Great stuff
>
> It would be hard to imagine a worse idea than ira magaziner running an > investment fund of any kind not to mention one under this scenario
>
> Good luck with this
>
> From: Amitabh Desai [mailto:adesai@clintonfoundation.org]
> Sent: Friday, April 27, 2012 08:03 PM
> To: Bruce Lindsey <blindsey@clintonfoundation.org>; Laura Graham > <lgraham@clintonfoundation.org>; Doug Band; Justin Cooper; Dennis Cheng > <dcheng@clintonfoundation.org>; john.podesta@gmail.com
> <john.podesta@gmail.com>
> Subject: CHAI fund and advisory board
>
>
> You probably already are aware but just to be sure: yesterday in the CHAI > board meeting, Ira discussed the formation of an advisory board for CHAI – > he said he is targeting 10 people to each give $500k per year for 3 years.
> He mentioned the names below. He also said he is looking to do a series of > dinners on the west coast, east coast, and overseas to raise money for a > CHAI Innovation Fund that would “invest” in projects / businesses that CHAI > deems worthy. He said the first dinner is on west coast with 30 people and > hosted by Christian Anthony who he said he found via the Brown University > alumni network. Given the enormous range of things that Ira is proposing the > Fund be empowered to invest in, it occurred to me that IF the organization > is comfortable with the creation of such a Fund bearing WJC’s name (via > CHAI), then why not have CF do it, so that CF can decide whether to invest > in CHAI projects or also in other things like a farm in Africa, etc – and > also to give WJC better control of it? The proposed CHAI Innovation Fund > seems poised to go well beyond what we would consider to be the core > traditional work of CHAI on HIV/AIDS, malaria, etc (at least based on the > investment examples in the documents Ira provided) and I therefore just > wondered why we’d cede this to CHAI to do/control. It’s probably safe to > assume that any Fund that bears WJC's name will attract "investors" or > donors or whatever we call them. Maybe I am over-thinking this, but just > wanted to brainstorm aloud and I'm happy to drop this if it's not worth > discussing further. Thanks, Ami

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>
>
>
> NAMES IRA MENTIONED FOR CHAI ADVISORY BOARD (I probably am misspelling > these):
>
> - Craig Colgate at Pegasus Capital (Ira found via Brown U)
>
> - Bob Selander (former CEO of Mastercard)
>
> - Tood Fisher, Chief Admin Officer at KKR (also via Brown U)
>
> - Bill Shuster at Evercore
>
> - Bob Mancini, CEO of Cogentics (formerly at Goldman)
>
> - Jeff Kushner from Blue Mountain Capital in the UK

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Stephen Burwell" <paperlesspost@paperlesspost.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 6/3/2015 7:08:59 PM
Subject: Sylvia's 50th party

For: John Podesta

VIEW THE CARD

SYLVIA'S 50TH BIRTHDAY PARTY

Time to dress up and help Sylvia celebrate her 50th birthday!

Saturday, July 18th @ 7:00pm

Long View Gallery
1234 9th St. NW
Washington DC 20001

Food. Fun. Fashion from the 70's & 80's*.

*Please come dressed and ready to dance like it's the 70's or 80's

For the best Paperless Post experience, add paperlesspost@paperlesspost.com to your address book to ensure you receive all cards and invitations in your inbox. Block this person from sending you Paperless Post mail. Click here to stop receiving emails from Paperless Post including invitations and cards. Learn more about our privacy policy .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Kim Matthews" <mattheky@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	Announcements <Announcements@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	8/6/2014 5:57:09 AM
Subject:	Misc. supplies

Hello all;

We have miscellaneous supplies and knickknacks up for grab. If you're interested please stop by. McD 212.

Kim

Kim Matthews
Executive Assistant/Office Manager
Georgetown University Law Center
Office of Public Interest & Community Service
600 New Jersey Avenue NW
Washington DC 20001-2075
202-662-9655
202-662-9656 fax

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Robby Mook" <robbymook@gmail.com>
Date:	4/10/2015 2:15:56 PM
Subject:	Fwd: All Staff Orientation
Attachments:	mime-attachment.ics Staff Orientation AgendaFINAL.docx

Want me to jump on on the front end of this ?

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: "Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com >
Date: Apr 10, 2015 9:06 PM
Subject: Fwd: All Staff Orientation
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Cc:

FYI for the all staff call tomorrow morning. You don't have to be on, and you're not on the agenda, but at least wanted you to have it. Milia and I will be on.

Eryn M. Sepp
Cell: 818-456-2881

Begin forwarded message:

> From: Marisa McAuliffe <mmcauliffe@hrcoffice.com >
> Date: April 10, 2015 at 8:41:52 PM EDT
> To: "pskrishnappa@gmail.com " <pskrishnappa@gmail.com >, "wkmille@gmail.com " <wkmille@gmail.com >, "agphillips411@gmail.com " <agphillips411@gmail.com >, "jonadrabi@gmail.com " <jonadrabi@gmail.com >, "lewtml@gmail.com " <lewtml@gmail.com >, "tony.carrk@gmail.com " <tony.carrk@gmail.com >, "erinturmelle@gmail.com " <erinturmelle@gmail.com >, "rendaelizabeth01@gmail.com " <rendaelizabeth01@gmail.com >, "jesse@jesseferguson.com " <jesse@jesseferguson.com >, "StefanieBSass@gmail.com " <StefanieBSass@gmail.com >, "erin.tibe@gmail.com " <erin.tibe@gmail.com >, "pacific.joseph@gmail.com " <pacific.joseph@gmail.com >, "michelle.kleppe@gmail.com " <michelle.kleppe@gmail.com>, "Ruiz.Emmy@gmail.com " <Ruiz.Emmy@gmail.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >, Amanda Litman <amanda.litman@gmail.com >, "Teddy Goff" <teddy.goff@gmail.com >, "matthew.beltrami@gmail.com " <matthew.beltrami@gmail.com >, "Jaclyn.Jo@gmail.com " <Jaclyn.Jo@gmail.com >, "greta.carnes@gmail.com " <greta.carnes@gmail.com >, "William.dubbs@gmail.com " <William.dubbs@gmail.com >, Robert Russo <rrusso@hrcoffice.com >, "asciaino@gmail.com " <asciaino@gmail.com >, "ladams314@gmail.com " <ladams314@gmail.com >, "brynnecraig@gmail.com " <brynnecraig@gmail.com >, "fatema.munis@gmail.com " <fatema.munis@gmail.com >, "rebecca.chalif@gmail.com " <rebecca.chalif@gmail.com >, "marisafaitelson@gmail.com " <marisafaitelson@gmail.com >, "Charlie.baker@deweysquare.com " <Charlie.baker@deweysquare.com >, Meagan Coffman <meagan.coffman@gmail.com >, Stephanie Formas <stephanie.formas@gmail.com >, "JesseLehrich@gmail.com " <JesseLehrich@gmail.com >, "harrellkirstein@gmail.com " <harrellkirstein@gmail.com >, "lizzaretsky@gmail.com " <lizzaretsky@gmail.com >, "lmuel728@gmail.com " <lmuel728@gmail.com >, "davidsonmf@gmail.com " <davidsonmf@gmail.com >, "diana.bonete@gmail.com " <diana.bonete@gmail.com >, "anna.cloeter@gmail.com " <anna.cloeter@gmail.com >, "amandarenteria@gmail.com " <amandarenteria@gmail.com >, "lindsayroitman@hotmail.com " <lindsayroitman@hotmail.com >, "aliciarpardo@yahoo.com " <aliciarpardo@yahoo.com >, "zarahaq@gmail.com " <zarahaq@gmail.com >, "Nandi.robinson@gmail.com " <Nandi.robinson@gmail.com >, "clowry01@gmail.com " <clowry01@gmail.com >, "genepmartin@gmail.com " <genepmartin@gmail.com >, "nickshumaker@gmail.com " <nickshumaker@gmail.com >, "jamesdahmannIII@gmail.com " <jamesdahmannIII@gmail.com >,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"anthonymercurio@gmail.com " <anthonymercurio@gmail.com >, "giancarlo.stefanoni@gmail.com " <giancarlo.stefanoni@gmail.com >, "amctyre@gmail.com " <amctyre@gmail.com >, "richthuma@gmail.com " <richthuma@gmail.com >, "shane.hable@gmail.com " <shane.hable@gmail.com >, "Jake Sullivan" <jake.sullivan@gmail.com >, "BERNARD.COLEMAN@GMAIL.COM " <BERNARD.COLEMAN@GMAIL.COM >, "lisa.hernandez.gioia@gmail.com " <lisa.hernandez.gioia@gmail.com >, "adam.j.parkhomenko@gmail.com " <adam.j.parkhomenko@gmail.com >, "mollyobarker@gmail.com " <mollyobarker@gmail.com >, "Caitlin.e.donohue@gmail.com " <Caitlin.e.donohue@gmail.com >, "nick.s.merrill@gmail.com " <nick.s.merrill@gmail.com >, "robbymook2015@gmail.com " <robbymook2015@gmail.com >, "troy.m.price@gmail.com " <troy.m.price@gmail.com >, "daniel.mccarthycpa@gmail.com " <daniel.mccarthycpa@gmail.com >, "jmajluni@gmail.com " <jmajluni@gmail.com >, "siqbal188@gmail.com " <siqbal188@gmail.com >, "michael.k.smit@gmail.com " <michael.k.smit@gmail.com >, Ann O'Leary <annmoleary@gmail.com >, "emily.aden@gmail.com " <emily.aden@gmail.com >, "MElias@perkinscoie.com " <MElias@perkinscoie.com >, "marissa.astor@icloud.com " <marissa.astor@icloud.com >, "nathaniel.koloc@gmail.com " <nathaniel.koloc@gmail.com >, "marcus.switzer@gmail.com " <marcus.switzer@gmail.com >, "janice.rottenberg@gmail.com " <anice.rottenberg@gmail.com >, "monika.kulma@gmail.com " <monika.kulma@gmail.com >, "jbhutton@gmail.com " <jbhutton@gmail.com >, Charlie Johnson <charlie.r.johnson1@gmail.com >, "lylecanceko@gmail.com " <lylecanceko@gmail.com >, "craigbrowned@gmail.com " <craigbrowned@gmail.com >, "jenna.lowenstein@gmail.com " <jenna.lowenstein@gmail.com >, "Michael.a.schultz7@gmail.com " <Michael.a.schultz7@gmail.com >, "kateemagill@gmail.com " <kateemagill@gmail.com >, "charlesdelavan@gmail.com " <charlesdelavan@gmail.com >, "meredith.thatcher@gmail.com " <meredith.thatcher@gmail.com >, "robert.daniel.scott@gmail.com " <robert.daniel.scott@gmail.com >, "anya.talbot@gmail.com " <anya.talbot@gmail.com >, "jacob.matthew.smith@gmail.com " <jacob.matthew.smith@gmail.com >, "egramling@gmail.com " <egramling@gmail.com >, "austineverettlyle@gmail.com " <austineverettlyle@gmail.com >, "kathy@gasperine.com " <kathy@gasperine.com >, "anatole.jenkins@gmail.com " <anatole.jenkins@gmail.com >, "brenda.kole@gmail.com " <brenda.kole@gmail.com >, Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com >, "JackLofgrenIV@gmail.com " <JackLofgrenIV@gmail.com >, "marlondmarshall@gmail.com " <marlondmarshall@gmail.com >, "angeliquecannon@hotmail.com " <angeliquecannon@hotmail.com >, "monica.huegel@gmail.com " <monica.huegel@gmail.com >, "icsams@gmail.com " <icsams@gmail.com >, "smith.alexgrace@gmail.com " <smith.alexgrace@gmail.com >, "mvlacich@gmail.com " <mvlacich@gmail.com >, "vasishth@gmail.com " <vasishth@gmail.com >, "jroseglass@gmail.com " <jroseglass@gmail.com >, "joshschwerin@gmail.com " <joshschwerin@gmail.com >, "asad.yousof@gmail.com " <asad.yousof@gmail.com >, "pete.mellinger@gmail.com " <pete.mellinger@gmail.com >, "lauragwarbelow@gmail.com " <lauragwarbelow@gmail.com >, "Nerij461@Gmail.com " <Nerij461@Gmail.com >, "jharri12@umd.edu " <jharri12@umd.edu >, "philipzymet@gmail.com " <philipzymet@gmail.com >, "RebeccaKeate@gmail.com " <RebeccaKeate@gmail.com >, "skhannon@gmail.com " <skhannon@gmail.com >, "katherine.rogers18@gmail.com " <katherine.rogers18@gmail.com >, "karithurman4@gmail.com " <karithurman4@gmail.com >, "cjmendoza6@gmail.com " <cjmendoza6@gmail.com >, Sally Greenspan <sgreenspan.hrco@gmail.com >, "amy.elizabeth.kuhn@gmail.com " <amy.elizabeth.kuhn@gmail.com >, "scottkosanovich@gmail.com " <scottkosanovich@gmail.com >, "matthewjamespaul@gmail.com " <matthewjamespaul@gmail.com >, "jessmejia00@yahoo.com " <jessmejia00@yahoo.com >, "Jeremy.s.hallahan@gmail.com " <Jeremy.s.hallahan@gmail.com >, "tysonbrody@gmail.com " <tysonbrody@gmail.com >, "danbeksha@gmail.com " <danbeksha@gmail.com >, "claynmiddleton@gmail.com " <claynmiddleton@gmail.com >, "juliana.amin@gmail.com " <juliana.amin@gmail.com >, "pburgwinkle@gmail.com " <pburgwinkle@gmail.com >, "brianefallon@gmail.com " <brianefallon@gmail.com >, "barb@barbarakinney.com " <barb@barbarakinney.com >, "lillie.grace.catlin@gmail.com " <lillie.grace.catlin@gmail.com >, "elizmwester@gmail.com " <elizmwester@gmail.com >, "carter.d.hutchinson@gmail.com " <carter.d.hutchinson@gmail.com >, Sawsan Bay <sbay@hrcoffice.com >, "elan.kriegel@bluelabs.com " <elan.kriegel@bluelabs.com >, "hanks.lenora@gmail.com " <hanks.lenora@gmail.com >, "bonnie.w.rubin@gmail.com " <bonnie.w.rubin@gmail.com >, "michaelmhalle@gmail.com " <michaelmhalle@gmail.com >, "yael.o@outlook.com " <yael.o@outlook.com >, "enlaurent@gmail.com " <enlaurent@gmail.com >,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"erinstevensnyc@gmail.com " <erinstevensnyc@gmail.com >, "jaredtm@gmail.com " <jaredtm@gmail.com >, "yahelc@gmail.com " <yahelc@gmail.com >, "sashagluck@gmail.com " <sashagluck@gmail.com >, "hansgoff@gmail.com " <hansgoff@gmail.com >, "Charles.olivier3@gmail.com " <Charles.olivier3@gmail.com >, "laurenbrainerd@gmail.com " <laurenbrainerd@gmail.com >, "ginambaldwin6@gmail.com " <ginambaldwin6@gmail.com >, "taryn.vogel@gmail.com " <taryn.vogel@gmail.com >, "edentesfaye2014@gmail.com " <edentesfaye2014@gmail.com >, "gary@gensler.us " <gary@gensler.us >, "lcollinspeterson@gmail.com " <lcollinspeterson@gmail.com >, "nshutman1984@gmail.com " <nshutman1984@gmail.com >, "Kate.f.Cummings1@gmail.com " <Kate.f.Cummings1@gmail.com >, "kristinakschake@gmail.com " <kristinakschake@gmail.com >, "dailysmith@gmail.com " <dailysmith@gmail.com >, "joslyn.massengale@gmail.com " <joslyn.massengale@gmail.com >, "justinklein09@gmail.com " <justinklein09@gmail.com >, "alana.mounce@gmail.com " <alana.mounce@gmail.com >, "bhpollock@gmail.com " <bhpollock@gmail.com >, "levine.davidj@gmail.com " <levine.davidj@gmail.com >, "adrienne.elrod@gmail.com " <adrienne.elrod@gmail.com >, "jonathanyip@post.harvard.edu " <jonathanyip@post.harvard.edu >, "tomgebbie@gmail.com " <tomgebbie@gmail.com >, "OllenMichael@Gmail.com " <OllenMichael@Gmail.com >, "ortega.matt@gmail.com " <ortega.matt@gmail.com >, "jones.a.beth@gmail.com " <jones.a.beth@gmail.com >, "Timjhogan@gmail.com " <Timjhogan@gmail.com >, "carljwalz@gmail.com " <carljwalz@gmail.com >, "goldenbergrachael@gmail.com " <goldenbergrachael@gmail.com >, "alexredel@gmail.com " <alexredel@gmail.com >, "d.cheng@me.com " <d.cheng@me.com >, "panicek@gmail.com " <panicek@gmail.com >, "martharuthnorrick@gmail.com " <martharuthnorrick@gmail.com >, "ry.fleury@gmail.com " <ry.fleury@gmail.com >, "meagan.gardner@gmail.com " <meagan.gardner@gmail.com >, "gregorygoddard@gmail.com " <gregorygoddard@gmail.com >, "rebecca.c.leal@gmail.com " <rebecca.c.leal@gmail.com >, "ahornbrook@gmail.com " <ahornbrook@gmail.com >, "tyronegayle1@gmail.com " <tyronegayle1@gmail.com >, "jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com " <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com >, "courtney.zientek@gmail.com " <courtney.zientek@gmail.com >, "chelsieouellette@gmail.com " <chelsieouellette@gmail.com >, "monica.guard11@gmail.com " <monica.guard11@gmail.com >, "ashleigh.barber@gmail.com " <ashleigh.barber@gmail.com >, "jalisaew@gmail.com " <jalisaew@gmail.com >, "davidhreid@gmail.com " <davidhreid@gmail.com >, "karuna.seshasai@gmail.com " <karuna.seshasai@gmail.com >, Lona Valmoro <lvalmoro@hrcoffice.com >, "sammi.mcclain@gmail.com " <sammi.mcclain@gmail.com >, "aditinangia@gmail.com " <aditinangia@gmail.com >, "smsterner@gmail.com " <smsterner@gmail.com >, "daniel.stein@yale.edu " <daniel.stein@yale.edu >, "katemagsamen@gmail.com " <katemagsamen@gmail.com >, "creynoso2016@gmail.com " <creynoso2016@gmail.com >, "katiewdowd@gmail.com " <katiewdowd@gmail.com >, "nicholas.pancrazio@gmail.com " <nicholas.pancrazio@gmail.com >, "bhynes928@gmail.com " <bhynes928@gmail.com >, "chris.walloch@gmail.com " <chris.walloch@gmail.com >, "eryn.sepp@gmail.com " <eryn.sepp@gmail.com >
Cc: HRC events <62qj15vep8fkdo27bda2o44uh4@group.calendar.google.com >, "Gene Martin" <gene.p.martin@gmail.com >, Katie Dowd <katie.w.dowd@gmail.com >, "Oren Shur" <shur@dga.net >
Subject: All Staff Orientation

Hi all – looking forward to the team meeting tomorrow at 10:00am ET! The agenda is attached and for those dialing in, the conference line is 877-341-2677 . Let me know if you have any questions.

Reminder that this is an internal document and number so not to be shared – thanks!

Best,
Marisa
813-480-9370 (c)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tina Flournoy" <Tina@presidentclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/27/2015 6:47:36 AM
Subject:	Re: Good morning, John

yep. On with him now

On Feb 27, 2015, at 8:46 AM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Fyi
>
> ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> From: "DMCOS" <DMCOS@who.eop.gov >
> Date: Feb 27, 2015 6:40 AM
> Subject: Good morning, John
> To: "John.podesta@gmail.com " <John.podesta@gmail.com >
> Cc:
>
> P said they talked last night. When I get a readout I'll give you a holler. Likely not til end of day.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"David Binder" <David@db-research.com>
To:	"John Anzalone" <john@algpolling.com> "Marissa Astor" <marissa.astor@icloud.com> "Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Jake Sullivan" <jake.sullivan@gmail.com> "Shannon Currie" <scurrie@bsgco.com> "Jim Margolis" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com> "Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com> "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com> "Jeff Liszt" <jeff@algpolling.com> "Jennifer Palmieri" <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com> "Kristina Schake" <kristinakschake@gmail.com> "Ethan Gelber" <egelber@hrcoffice.com> "Mona Thinavongsa" <Mona@algpolling.com> "Teddy Goff" <teddy.goff@gmail.com> "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> "Joanne Laszczych" <jlaszczych@cdmillsGroup.com> "Will Gudelunas" <Will@db-research.com> "Joel Benenson" <jbenenson@bsgco.com>
Date:	2/14/2015 11:40:38 AM
Subject:	RE: First Draft of Policy Poll

As usual and as expected, a great job from the ALG research team, putting together an amazingly comprehensive and detailed questionnaire that will provide a payday of rich data.

My comments are offered not necessarily as suggestions for edits, but more as an offering of what I have been hearing on the multi-year swing and non-swing state tour of independent voters. Some of this is commentary or observation that may or may not be relevant to changing any questions, but offer as food for thought. Please understand that in many cases I call attention to things without necessarily suggesting an action or improvement, but just raise the issue in the hope that it may generate thought among the rest of the team. And some of these comments may be off-base, which is frequently the case, but here goes:

1. One of the biggest wording issues we've struggled with is the word "invest," which I know is a word that we use (not sure if Reps use it) to mean additional spending. And Dems can't say additional spending because that triggers negative reaction and we get hit with tax-and-spend Dems/liberals. But invest is not a word that I hear voters use in the groups we do. And for a few, invest triggers thoughts about the stock market, or other such speculation. In some cases they say, "spend more," but what they really want is adequate funding. Investment is the construct of question 14 and used in 13, 16, 29 and elsewhere. We also use the more traditional definition of investment in 30f. I see "increasing funding" in q24, which I think is what we really mean when saying "investments." There may not be a better word to use as substitute, but I bring this up, only because the word is viewed, at least in the qual we've done, as a political word that Democrats use to mean "spend more".
2. On q6, I see climate change, and I see the need for that. Comment is that I frequently hear voters talk about the environment as a key issue without mentioning climate change specifically. Some are just shy on the term, seeing it as controversial, while still harboring concerns about whether there is something going on out there. Others care more about clean air and clean water and stopping pollution. Others care about energy and clean energy. I understand value and necessity of asking specifically about climate change, but wanted to note the importance of environment to some who may not believe/care in climate change.
3. Also on q6, immigration is the other issue that we regularly hear volunteered as most important facing the country. The other thing, of course, is government itself, the gridlock/partisanship, etc., which I know we all know about, and I know we can't add to the list. But frequently that trumps all other issues when voters are asked what is the most important issue facing the country.
4. Should we do a check on Scott Walker fav/unfav in 8?
5. Q13, we've also found some don't know 'infrastructure' when asked without clarification. We are hearing more concern about streets, roads, highways, bridges, etc., but not everyone uses the word infrastructure. Like that job training is there, which is huge. (I see that infrastructure is defined in 14a. I've rarely heard infrastructure defined as 14b though).
6. On 14h, mostly I hear voters talk about loans, and rarely talk about grants. Are we thinking about a policy that would lead to an increase in grants? Reducing cost of student loans is something I hear constantly as a concern.
7. Another thing I hear in groups often that is not in q14 is public safety, which takes in a few things: more cops on the streets and in the neighborhoods, better firefighting services, reduced response time in the case of emergencies, and disaster planning.
8. On the 15 series, clearly there is a policy behind d that the team is working on, but to me, $51,000 seems an odd almost arbitrary amount, and long hours seems vague. Maybe just "makes 50 thousand or less"?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

9. I'm confused on 15p, do they keep unemployment benefits as long as they can show they are starting their own business, and then unemployment ends once the business launches? I'm not sure I get this one.
10. On 16/17 series, the other thing I hear people discuss regularly in conjunction with job training is apprenticeship programs.
11. I had a recent instance in which I found massive confusion among voters between debt and deficit. Some use interchangeably, some think debt is accumulated while deficit is annual. So just to check, we ask about deficit in 6/7, and debt in 16/17.
12. On 21, not to add any more, but another item I hear regularly in groups is along the lines of, improving our schools so students receive the skills necessary for jobs of the future…
13. Elephant in the education room is standardized testing. I see it 24/25 but not in 23 series?
14. Reducing class size is another thing that constantly comes up when talking about what can improve education. Maintaining arts/music/phys ed/recess, etc. also comes up regularly.
15. Also on education generally, perhaps not for this questionnaire, is the giving teachers more latitude to teach critical thinking. I frequently hear voters saying teachers teach kids how to take tests but not how to think. Many also talk about the need for teachers to teach "the basics".
16. Also I've heard a lot of pushback on "free college tuition," as making it free for everyone gnaws at some as going too far, unless there are some basic restrictions and accountability to make sure that students are trying, getting decent grades, and moving toward matriculation (I was surprised to hear some mention their awareness of – and annoyance at -- perpetual students who are perceived to be living off the government while extending their college years into decades, something that I myself was considering, oh, so long ago.)
17. The first choice on 28 strikes me as two separate ideas – paying workers more, and long-term growth
18. On 30a/b, I remember some thinking that 500k was a good place to draw the line. Perhaps rather than 250k, which more people are saying is too low, at least in groups…
19. In discussions on tax reform in groups, the word that is spoken with most emotion is "simplify."
20. On 32, instead of greenhouse gases, voters say "pollution" although I understand that they are not the same. But many don't understand "greenhouse gases".
21. On 30k/l, we use high earners, rather than upper income or wealthy, or just high incomes. High earners is a term I don't hear much in groups when discussing this sort of stuff.

I fear I've already gone on too long.

I may not be able to get on the Monday AM call, but if anyone has any questions or comments on my questions or comments, please email.

And finally, kudos again to everyone for putting together such a rich questionnaire that will provide clear guidance moving forward.

From: John Anzalone [mailto:john@algpolling.com]
Sent: Friday, February 13, 2015 7:17 PM
To: Marissa Astor; Robby Mook; John Podesta; Jake Sullivan; Shannon Currie; Jim Margolis; Mandy Grunwald; Dan Schwerin; Jeff Liszt; Jennifer Palmieri; Kristina Schake; Ethan Gelber; Mona Thinavongsa; Teddy Goff; Cheryl Mills; Joanne Laszczych; David Binder
Cc: Matt Hogan
Subject: First Draft of Policy Poll

Team HRC

Attached you will find the first draft of the Policy Poll. There is a lot going on in this poll and a lot that we all want to know but naturally there are time limitations on what we can do in one instrument. We will have future policy polls that will build on this one and dive deeper into specific issue areas.

We are attempting to do several things in this poll:

1: Measure the importance voters put on different issues
2: Measure isolated support or opposition of policy proposals
3: Determine the prescriptions that voters have when policy proposals are stacked against each other
4: And on some issues, see if proposal stand up to opposition arguments.

We have also focused on the following issue areas — almost all economic related:

1: General Issue salience (most important issue that leaders should focus on)
2: Importance of new investments in a variety of areas that could help families and the economy
3: The importance of different policy proposals to improve the economy and incomes
4: Dissecting the needs of small businesses and what is needed to help them succeed and grow
5: Proposals that would improve public education (K-12) and college debt
6: Tax reform and tax policy options (OK, tax increases)
7: Climate changed focused mostly on the Pollution Tax (carbon tax), including opposition arguments
8 Paid Family Leave including opposition arguments

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

9: Baseline measure on trade
10: Proposals for retirement security

That is a lot for one poll and it is certainly too long but we wanted people to be able to get the full flavor or issues we have discussed on past policy calls and strategy meetings. This will allow us to put issues side by side and then make decisions on priorities and what we might be able to wait for future polls.

As you review think to yourself what might not be needed in this round of research. If you feel strongly that there are items missing that should be included please be ready to let us know what you would cut to fit it in the poll.

I also want to give a shout out to the Policy Team. Them memos, calls and endless emails we sent to Jake, Dan and Ethan have been invaluable and we could not have put this draft together without your effort. Thank you.

We have a call on Monday which gives everyone the weekend to kick the tires (Happy Valentines). Feel free as you review and ponder to shoot me, Jeff Liszt, and Matt Hogan, an email on your comments and suggestions (and questions) and then we can attempt to put a second draft together before the call. That would make the call more efficient.

Thanks for everyone's time and effort.

— John Anzalone
Anzalone Liszt Grove Research
334-387-3121 Office
@AnzaloneLiszt

From: Marissa Astor <marissa.astor@icloud.com >
Date: Fri, 13 Feb 2015 11:37:00 -0500
To: Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com >, Shannon Currie <scurrie@bsgco.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >, Jim Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >, Mindy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >, Jeff Liszt <jeff@algpolling.com >, Jennifer Palmieri <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com >, Kristina Schake <kristinakschake@gmail.com>, Ethan Gelber <egelber@hrcoffice.com >, Mona Thinavongsa <Mona@algpolling.com >, Teddy Goff <teddy.goff@gmail.com >, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >, Joanne Laszczych <jlaszczych@cdmillsGroup.com >
Subject: Policy Poll Review Call

For this call, please use the number (202) 847-6076 and enter the pin 98260. Thank you!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Melissa Cantrell" <mcantrell@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"HRC Rapid" <HRCRapid@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Julie McClain" <jmcclain@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Meredith Thatcher" <mthatcher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	6/11/2015 11:25:03 AM
Subject:	Daily Media Report 6.11.15

National:

-- Conversation about Jeb Bush and HRC starting their campaigns in the next week; Kimberly Guilfoyle said HRC was relaunching her campaign, called it HRC 2.0; Dana Perino said HRC's campaign start had not been bad, said HRC hadn't answered questions about the Foundation; Perino said HRC has raised money, locked down the base; Perino said HRC planned to announce a new student loan policy taken directly from EAW and dealt with the left-wing problem; Perino said HRC was not weak; Juan Williams said he thought The Clinton Foundation story was going to stick around. Fox News' The Five , 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Dana Perino said HRCs campaign had a good launch.mp4

-- Conversation about WJC's comments about there being a "dry run on the Foundation"; panel with Janell Ross, Phil Mattingly, and Josh Barro; Mattingly noted WJC's high poll numbers; Ross said there were real questions about trust that voters seemed to have; Barro said people already have an opinion about the Clintons and whether they were trustworthy or shady; Wagner said she didn't think the Clintons thought they were doing anything bad; Wagner said The Foundation was fundamentally WJC's thing. MSNBC's Now With Alex Wagner, 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Panel on WJCs stance on Foundation coverage.mp4

-- Interviewed Larry Sabato about the GOP side of 2016; Sabato said Bush, Walker, and Rubio had the best chance of winning the GOP primary; Sabato said it would be a tough race in the electoral college to beat HRC; Sabato said Republicans had an advantage in knowing HRC was their likely opponent. Fox News' Your World With Neil Cavuto, 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Jeb Bush, Scott Walker, Marco Rubio, Clips, National, Sabato on GOP advantages v HRC.mp4

-- Report that WJC said he stood by The Clinton Foundation's decision regarding transparency; interviewed Margaret Talev; Talev said the polls suggest WJC is a help to HRC's campaign; Telev said WJC said he would be willing to leave The Clinton Foundation if HRC was elected and asked him to do something else. MSNBC's Live With Thomas Roberts, 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Margaret Talev talks about WJC.mp4

-- Report that Clinton Foundation donors got political favors while HRC was in the Senate; interviewed Ed Henry; Henry said WJC appeared at a CGI America event, said WJC said he would be willing to give up the Clinton Foundation and paid speeches; Henry said WJC was basically saying him having the Foundation could present a conflict of interest for HRC if she was POTUS; shifted into conversation about Bernie Sanders calling on HRC to answer questions; used footage of Sanders saying HRC should speak out on trade. Fox News' The Real Story With Gretchen Carlson, 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Ed Henry on WJC not giving paid speech.mp4

-- Report on WJC's announcement that he would not give paid speeches if HRC was elected POTUS; interviewed Chris Wallace; Wallace reported that WJC said if HRC asked him to step down from The Clinton Foundation that he would; Wallace said the question with the Clintons wasn't what they did with the money The Clinton Foundation raised but how they raised that money. Fox News' Happening Now , 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Chris Wallace on WJC not giving paid speeche.mp4

-- Report on WJC's announcement that he would not give paid speeches and would be willing to step down from the head of The Clinton Foundation if HRC is elected POTUS; interviewed Susan Page and Chris Cillizza; Page said WJC and HRC would have to sort out a lot if HRC is elected POTUS, said it would be an issue for WJC to give speeches while married to POTUS; Cillizza said we're in uncharted territory but he'd find it hard for WJC to maintain his same role at The Clinton Foundation. MSNBC's Andrea Mitchell Reports , 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, WJCs role at The Clinton Foundation.mp4

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

-- Report on WJC's announcement that he would not give paid speeches if HRC was in the White House; also noted WJC said he did not email while HRC said her server contained her and WJC's emails; discussion with Jonah Goldberg; Goldberg said HRC has huge advantages with WJC, said there are some downsides to WJC; Goldberg said he didn't think HRC would be POTUS; Goldberg said HRC was not a compelling extemporaneous speaker; conversation about how HRC was like a mother-in-law. Fox News' Outnumbered , 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Jonah Goldberg on HRCs WJC advantage and problem.mp4

-- Report on WJC's announcement that he would not give paid speeches if HRC was in the White House; interviewed Mark Murray; Murray said if HRC was in the White House then WJC's role with the Clinton Foundation and penchant for giving paid speeches would have to be revisited.MSNBC's News Nation , 015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Mark Murray on WJC not giving paid speeches.mp4

-- Brief report that HRC launched her Instagram account; discussed HRC's pantsuit photo and HRC's #TBT photo of her on a tricycle. MSNBC's The Rundown With Jose Diaz-Balart , 2015 06 11Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, HRC launched Instagram account.mp4

-- Led with a Washington Times report that HRC gave favors to major donors while she was a senator; reported WJC said he would stop giving paid speeches if HRC was elected POTUS; interviewed Steve Hayes; Hayes wondered what price HRC was paying for not answering questions; Hayes said HFA's strategy was to avoid questions and let stories settle down, said he did not think that would work; Hayes said there were so many apparent quid pro quos that would not go away in time; Martha MacCallum said she thought the strongest voices asking HRC questions on the GOP side were Carly Fiorina and Rand Paul. Fox News' America's Newsroom with Bill Hemmer and Martha MacCallum, 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, HRC wont talk to press and helped donors in senate.mp4

-- Report that WJC said he would stop making paid speeches if HRC becomes POTUS; interviewed Alex Seitz-Wald; Jose Diaz-Balart asked how comfortable HFA was with WJC creating headlines instead of HRC; Seitz-Wald said HFA was aware that WJC could overshadow HRC which is why WJC stayed mostly behind the scenes; Seitz-Wald said HFA was very prepared for attacks on The Clinton Foundation on day one, said the Clintons built a large infrastructure to respond to Foundation attacks aggressively from day one; Seitz-Wald said HFA hoped HRC's rally on Saturday would allow HRC to promote a new storyline going forward and get the Foundation controversy in the rearview mirror; Seitz-Wald said WJC and CVC would be at the rally; Seitz-Wald described the symbolism of HRC's rally taking place on Roosevelt Island; Seitz-Wald said HFA said HRC would be more available to the press after the rally than she has been before the rally.MSNBC's The Rundown With Jose Diaz-Balart, 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, WJC to stop giving speeches and preview of rally.mp4

-- Report that WJC said he would step off the lecture circuit if HRC was elected POTUS; reported that WJC made more than $100 million since leaving office; teaser text said "Bill Clinton's sacrifice".CNN's Early Start With John Berman and Christine Romans, 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, WJC said he would no longer give speeches.mp4

-- Discussion on online betting markets for the 2016 election; interviewed Steve Rattner; Joe Scarborough described the Democratic primary competition as having odds longer than Secretariat at the Belmont Stakes in 1973; Rattner said HRC had a 76 percent chance of winning the primary according to the markets; Rattner said 3/5 of the betting market thinks a Democrat will win the White House in 2016. MSNBC's Morning Joe , 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, HRC's betting odds in the Democratic primary.mp4

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

-- Report on Jonah Goldberg's opinion "Sorry, But The Obama Playbook Isn't Going to Work for Hillary"; panel with Amy Holmes and Steve Rattner; Mika said HRC's campaign needed to define itself; Holmes said the Obama coalition had not shown up for other candidates; Rattner said HRC would run her own campaign, said HRC would not try to run the same campaign as BHO.MSNBC's Morning Joe , 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Asked whether Obama coalition would support HRC.mp4

-- Report on whether HRC was playing the race card; showed footage of HRC's voting rights speech; Doocy said African Americans were in a worse financial state than they were before BHO took office, questioned whether that would affect AfAm support for HRC; interviewed Juan Williams; Williams said the question was whether HRC could engage black voters like BHO; Doocy said HRC was talking about a lot of issues that she'd never talked about before that related to black voters; Williams disputed that, said HRC was endorsed by the CBC and a lot of black leadership; Williams said HRC was going to distract black voters by pointing at how bad Republicans are. Fox News' Fox and Friends , 2015 06 11 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Juan Williams questions HRCs AfAm support.mp4

States:

Nevada:

--Report on Sarah Palin on HRC: Sarah Palin claims that she most definitely believes that HRC will be the Democratic nominee for the 2016 presidential election. KRXI(FOX)'s Extra, Reno (NV). 2015 06 11, Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Sarah Palin on HRC.mp4

--Report on HRC Instagram launch: Reporters claim that HRC launched her Instagram yesterday. Her first picture was picking fun at her wardrobe. It was titled "Hard Choices", the same as her book title. KVVU-LV(FOX)'s FOX5 News This Morning, Las Vegas (NV). 2015 06 11, Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Hillary Clinton Instagram.mp4

Iowa:

--Report on Bill Clinton defending his family and HRC: The Clinton Foundation reported that many funds were not properly reported. Bill Clinton insists that the organization is beyond politics. Clinton claims that he will stop giving paid speeches if HRC is elected president. KCCI-DM(CBS)'S CBS This Morning, Des Moines (IA). 2015 06 11, Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Bill Clinton on HRC.mp4

--Report on HRC's Instagram: Reporters claim that HRC launched her Instagram account yesterday. Her first picture was of her pant suits, picking fun at her wardrobe. KTVO-DT2's CBS This Morning, Ottumwa (IA). 2015 06 11, Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Hillary Clinton's Instagram.mp4

--Report on Bill Clinton's interview: Reporters claim that Bill Clinton does not know what will happen to the Clinton Foundation and his position if HRC is elected president. He claims that he will stop giving paid public speeches once she is elected. Bill claims that HRC may want him around more if she becomes president. KWQC-DAV(NBC)'s Today at 6 A.M. , Davenport (IA). 2015 06 11, Hillary Clinton, National, Bill Clinton on Hillary as President.mp4

South Carolina:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--Report on HRC's Instagram: Reporters claim that HRC launched her Instagram account showing the patriotic colors of red, white, and blue. WFXB(FOX)'s Fox Morning News, Myrtle Beach (SC). 2015 06 11, Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Hillary Clinton Instagram Patriotic.mp4

--Report on Bill Clinton and the Clinton Foundation: The Clinton Foundation claimed that millions of dollars in donations were not properly recorded. Clinton claims that the Clinton foundation is beyond politics, and that he will stop giving paid speeches if HRC becomes president.WBTW(CBS)'s CBS This Morning, Myrtle Beach (SC). 2015 06 11, Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Bill Clinton and Clinton Foundation.mp4

New Hampshire:

--Report on Bill Clinton and the Clinton Foundation: The Clinton Foundation claimed that millions of dollars in donations were not properly recorded. Clinton claims that the Clinton foundation is beyond politics, and that he will stop giving paid speeches if HRC becomes president. WBZ-BOS(CBS)'s CBS This Morning, Boston (MA). 2015 06 11, Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Bill Clinton Clinton Foundation and HRC.mp4

Martin O'Malley:

--Report on MOM's new song: Irish Band writes song for MOM supporting his song. MSNBC's First Look, 2015 06 11, Martin O'Malley, Clips, National, Martin O'Malley Song.mp4

Bernie Sanders:

--Report on threat of Bernie Sanders: Tad Devine, Senior Adviser for Bernie Sanders, claims that HRC is probably not concerned about the threat of Bernie Sanders. Devine claims that he hopes that later on in the primary season, the HRC campaign will start to take the Sanders' campaign more seriously. Bloom's With All Due Respect. 2015 06 11, Bernie Sanders; Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Bernie Sanders' Threat to HRC campaign.mp4

--Report on Bernie Sanders by Tad Devine: Devine claims that Sanders' campaign state is very good. He claims that the campaign is growing, increasing donations, and hiring more staff. Devine claims that HRC is a very tough opponent. Sanders is trying to bring people in through inequality of wealth, dealing with climate change, and the threat to democracy. HRC will try and come after Sanders with things that he has written many years ago. Devine believes that the campaign will attack him, but Sanders' will not counter-attack. Sanders' campaign does not believe in HRC's kind of politics in terms of attacking opponents. Devine claims that Sanders' campaign will not attack her, however they will compare records based upon issues: TPP, Pipeline, etc. Bloom's With All Due Respect. 2015 06 11, Bernie Sanders; Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Sanders' Campaign adviser on not attacking HRC.mp4

--Report on Bernie Sanders' and HRC's Instagram Comparison: Reporters claim that Sanders has ahd an Instagram account for two weeks and only has around 8 thousand followers. HRC has had her Instagram account for only a few hours and has over 40 thousand followers. CNN's Situation Room with Wolf Blitzer. 2015 06 11, Bernie Sanders; Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Sanders' and HRC's Instagram.mp4

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--Report on Bernie Sanders speaking about his success: Sanders comments on how even he is surprised by his fan following. Reporters claim that he has said that he did not expect to attract such crowds. Reporters claim that Sanders wants HRC to start answering questions. Reporters state that Sanders claims that HRC keeps avoiding important policy questions. Fox News' The Real Story with Gretchen Carlson. 2015 06 11, Bernie Sanders; Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Sanders' on Success and HRC.mp4

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Valerie Jarrett" <vjarrett@barackobama.com>
Date:	10/27/2008 3:39:44 AM
Subject:	MO COS

I had a few thoughts mostly to my own detriment. 3 from CAP.
Jennifer Palmieri--CAP communications director, spectacular, deputy White House press secretary at the end of Clinton, Edwards press spokesperson in 04, very close to Elizabeth Edwards, held her hand thru illness and infidelity, not speaking to John these days, very good manager, great communications skills, good human being. Probably should be considered for Press Sec or Deputy press sec or Communications Director in the main show.
Marlene Cooper Vlasic--senior comms person here, manages all our events, came from Kennedy Center, Liberian-American, she's Helene Cooper's sister. Helene is NYT reporter with the autobigraphy House at Sugar Beach on growing up in Liberia. Marlene is an excellent manager, very easy to get along with. Should also be considered for socail secretary as well.
Daniella Leger, CAP deputy communications director, African American, press secretary type. Worked for Kerry in 04. Super good, could probably step up to the COS job. also an excellent candidate for press secretary if that's not done.
Elizabeth Sears-Smith, Rahm's COS, very good, very capable political manager, but I don't know her as well. might check with Rahm.
Tamera Luzzatto, this may be weird, but she's Hillary's COS in the Senate. Not really part of the Hillary political operation. Patti always treated her badly. She was Jay Rockefeller's COS before Hillary. Beloved on the Hill. Strong manager with very good sense of Washington. She has had health problems, benign brain tumor, but is doing great now.
Let me know if any of these grab you and we can discuss.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sepp, Eryn" <Eryn_M_Sepp@who.eop.gov>
To: "Podesta, John" <John_D_Podesta@who.eop.gov>
Date: 3/27/2014 3:23:01 PM
Subject: 215: Q&A on Ending the Section 215 Bulk Telephony Metadata Program

Q&A on Ending the Section 215 Bulk Telephony Metadata Program

What other options did you consider before settling on this one?

I'm not going to get into our internal deliberations. But, as those of you who have studied this issue closely know, there aren't alot of choices in this area. The President mentioned some alternatives in his speech, such as having a third party hold the data, or combining existing authorities, better information sharing, and recent technological advances.

Ultimately though, for the reasons we've discussed, we believe this option best satisfies the President's desire for an approach that that allows the government to the end bulk collection of telephony metadata records under Section 215, while ensuring that the government has access to the information it needs to meet its national security needs.

Isn't this decision an acknowledgement that the program isn't as valuable as the administration has previously claimed?

No. As the President said in his speech, it is important that the capability that the Section 215 telephony metadata program is designed to meet is preserved. At the same time, however, we need a new approach that gives the American people greater confidence that their rights are being protected, even as our intelligence and law enforcement agencies maintain the tools they need to keep us safe. This approach strikes that balance.

Does this announcement vindicate Snowden?

No. Our nation's defense depends in part on the fidelity of those entrusted with our nation's secrets. As the President made clear in his January 17 speech, if any individual who objects to government policy can take it in their own hands to publicly disclose classified information, then we will never be able to keep our people safe, or conduct foreign policy.

Will you be prohibiting all uses of Section 215 for bulk collection?

The changes we have announced today would end bulk collection of telephony metadata records under Section 215, and establish a new regime for us to obtain the relevant records in a manner that balances our intelligence needs and privacy concerns. We've announced a number of specific criteria such new legislation should contain. Beyond that, the specific details will need to be addressed as we work with Congress.

Will you be renewing the program indefinitely until Congress acts?

The current authorization expires Friday. We will be seeking a renewal of that authorization. We look forward to working with Congress over the next 90 days to ensure that legislation can be passed quickly.

But what if there's no legislation in 90 days?

We think it's important that a new approach is adopted quickly that addresses the concerns that have been raised. If that doesn't happen by the time of the next renewal, we'll address that issue then.

Will you be requiring new data retention time periods?

Under the President's proposal, records would remain at the telephone companies for the length of time they currently do today.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

So you're relying on the FCC regulation specifying 18 months?

As you note, there's already an FCC regulation requiring records to be kept for at least 18 months. We are not planning on seeking legislation that would extend that time period.

Doesn't it present a national security concern to go from 5 years of data to only 18 months?

Over the last several months we've taken a hard look at the program, and one of the tasks the President gave us was to match as much of its existing capability as possible to meet our operational needs.

Under the existing program, NSA keeps the records for their intelligence value 5 years. However, there have been concerns raised about mandating a similar retention period for data held by the providers.

We've taken a hard look at the program, and determined that we can get enough of the information we need here to satisfy our operational needs if the telephone companies keep the records for the length of time they do today.

Why do you need this legislation at all, can't you do this under existing authority?

A few points here. First, as the President noted in his January 17 speech, although the telephony metadata bulk collection program was subject to oversight by the FISC and has been reauthorized repeatedly by Congress, it was never before subject to vigorous public debate. Thus, as we look to transition to a new regime, doing so through transparent legislation is consistent with the desire to restore public confidence.

Second, what we're talking about here is a regime to obtain data quickly, up to two hops in response to a query, and to provide that data to the government in a timely, usable format. We think tailored legislation is the best way to accomplish all of these objectives.

Third, Section 215 is scheduled to sunset next year, so legislation will be required in any event.

So will the providers be required to change how they store the records?

The legislation, and the resulting Court orders, would compel the providers to provide technical assistance to ensure the information is searchable, to run the queries, and to give the records back to the government in a usable format and on a timely basis.

I can't speak to the precise way in which particular providers would implement that.

Will the companies be compensated?

We envision that the legislation will provide for the government to compensate the companies for any technical assistance they provide. This is similar to other provisions of FISA that require companies to be compensated for complying with lawful Court orders.

Did you consult with the companies?

We have consulted with the companies on these issues. We believe the President's proposal addresses issues that are of importance to them.

The records would remain at the telephone companies for the length of time they currently do today.

The companies would also receive Court orders, compelling them to provide technical assistance to ensure the information is searchable, to run the queries, and to give the records back to the government in a usable format and on a timely basis. They would be compensated for this assistance.

There have been press allegations about another alleged bulk collection program by CIA. Would these changes cover that?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

While I've seen those reports, I won't be commenting on them.

The President's January 17 speech, and the decisions announced today, describe changes that we are seeking to the NSA Section 215 bulk telephony metadata program.

The HPSCI proposal would apply beyond just CT targets to all FI targets, are you proposing the same expansion of this authority?

I'm not going to comment on specific bills before Congress at this point in the process.

More generally though, the existing program only allows for queries of numbers associated with specified terrorist groups. Our operational focus is to make sure we preserve that authority in any new legislation. Beyond that, we're open to consulting with Congress on these issues.

The HPSCI bill proposes a regime like 702, is that what you want?

Without commenting on specific bills before Congress at this point in the process, we believe there is a bipartisan agreement that the government should no longer collect this data in bulk under Section 215, and that a change is needed. As to the specifics, we believe there should be prior approval by a FISC Judge of individual numbers to be queried, except in emergencies.

Won't FISC approval slow things down?

Court approval is obtained quickly in law enforcement and national security matters all the time, including under FISA. Additionally, we believe there should be an emergency exception.

As you know we had prior experience with FISC pre-approval for a period of several months back in 2009, and again this year since the President announced that change in his speech. Based on that experience we believe we can satisfy our intelligence needs with this approach, especially with an exception for emergency situations.

We believe this solution is not only workable, but is the best solution to address both our intelligence needs and privacy concerns.

Won't getting the records from the companies be slower than already having the records in your possession?

One of the aspects of our proposal would be that the companies would be required to respond to requests in a timely fashion. We believe that requirement would address the timeliness concern animating the question.

We've heard from some sources that the FISC process is too slow, and that only a small number of queries have been approved, is that true?

We believe, based on our extensive consultation with the IC, including the views of the NSA, that prior FISC approval is workable, and that it is in fact the best solution here.

As you know we had prior experience with FISC pre-approval for a period of several months back in 2009, and again this year since the President announced that change in his speech. Based on that experience we believe we can satisfy our intelligence needs with this approach, especially with an exception for emergency situations.

How would the emergency exception work?

The precise details of that are something we will work out with Congress in the legislation but I'd note two things:

First, we have an emergency exception now under the reforms the President announced in January.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

That exception requires approval from a high ranking government official in an emergency circumstance when a Court order can't be obtained first. The documentation is then submitted to the FISC for approval within 7 days. Those procedures are contained in the Government's motion and Court order we declassified in February.

Second, we have longstanding experience emergency provisions in other parts of FISA. We're envisioning a similar regime to that.

Will you be sending up a draft bill to Congress?

We are entering this phase of the consultative process without specific Administration text, and planning to work with Congress to craft legislation that embodies the key attributes of this new approach.

How will the data of foreigners be handled under this new regime?

Under the Section 215 program, even as recently modified at the President's direction, the government is holding bulk telephony metadata records that concern both U.S. persons and non-U.S. persons. Under the President's proposal, we will no longer use Section 215 to collect these telephone records in bulk – whether it is U.S. person records or non-U.S. person records.

So does this mean you're ending all bulk collection of metadata?

The changes the President announced today relate to the NSA's Section 215 bulk telephony metadata program, under which certain telephone companies are compelled to provide their call detail records in bulk to the NSA. That bulk collection should end.

Beyond that, I can't comment on other alleged intelligence activities. But, I would note generally, that as PPD-28 makes clear "locating new or emerging threats and other vital national security information is difficult, as such information is often hidden within the large and complex system of modern global communications. The United States must consequently collect signals intelligence in bulk in certain circumstances in order to identify these threats."

However, when signals intelligence are collected in bulk, they will only be used to meet specific security requirements: combatting (1) espionage and other threats and activities directed by foreign powers; (2) terrorism; (3) weapons of mass destruction; (4) cybersecurity threats; (5) threats to U.S. or allied forces; and (6) transnational criminal threats, including illicit finance and sanctions evasion.

We've heard from some in Congress that they weren't consulted. Is that right?

Considering changes to such complex policy and legislative issues requires extensive consultation between the Administration and Congress – as well as privacy groups, industry, and other stakeholders.

Without listing what we consider to be an extensive effort to date soliciting stakeholder input from outside the Administration, we now have Presidential policy direction from which we will begin the next phase of consultations as Congress develops and considers legislation.

Did you consult with PCLOB?

Yes, and we believe this approach is in line with the recommendations in PCLOB's report regarding Section 215. The bulk collection of this data under the existing Section 215 statute will stop, and the information will be obtained pursuant to individualized legal process.

As both the NYT editorial board and Senator Leahy said, if the President wants to end bulk collection under Section 215, it's in his power to do so, why is he seeking a renewal of the FISC order?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

As the President said, and as his announcement makes clear, he understands the concerns that have been raised with this program, and has determined that the bulk collection of these records under Section 215 should end.

At the same time, he must consider our security needs. The transition we've announced, including the reforms to the current program announced in January, is a responsible path forward to ensure that we appropriately balance our security needs and privacy concerns until new legislation can be enacted.

What are you going to do with the data already collected under the existing program?

For now, the existing program will continue, with the substantial modifications in place.

We hope that new legislation will be enacted soon that allows us to end the existing program; when that happens, we'll address the question of the old data, of course taking into account the fact that a District Court in California has ordered us to preserve the data for now because of the pending civil lawsuits.

How would NSA handle the results it receives from the providers? Would those go into the "corporate store" and be searchable by any analyst?

Under our proposal, the retention and dissemination of any data received would be subject to FISC approved minimization procedures.

The details of where the data would be stored and accessed once it is received would be governed by those minimization procedures, just as minimization procedures govern how we handle the data we currently receive.

Would the FBI still need to be involved with the applications under your proposal?

Not necessarily. Under Section 215, the FBI was required to be involved because of the way the statute, which pre-dates this program, was written. Since our proposal focuses on the NSA being able to analyze these records, that's a question we can expect to address in working through new legislative language with Congress.

Of course, the program is designed to help locate individuals inside the US with possible ties to terrorists, so from an investigative perspective we'd expect the FBI and NSA to work closely together in response to any leads developed.

Under your proposal, would the companies produce the data on a continuous prospective basis?

Our proposal would require the government to go to the FISC and seek a court order for each number that is used to query the data. That order would then compel the companies to produce the historical records up to two hops.

We would envision that the government could also request that the Court direct the continuous prospective production of those records for a limited period of time, provided that there was a documented national security need for such continuous production approved by the judge.

Any continuous production would be for a limited time period, absent re-approval by a judge that the need for the production still exists. We will work with Congress on what that time period should be, but it should be limited and set forth in the statute. Other provisions of FISA provide for similar renewals of Court authority, for instance at 90 day intervals.

The current program allegedly only collects less than 30% of the data. Is this an expansion of the program?

Currently, we are collecting the data in bulk, a process which will be ending.

While I can't get into specifics, obviously there are costs and technical limitations to the amount of data that can be collected and held in bulk. Under our proposal, rather than collecting it in bulk, we would send individual queries to the companies.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Presumably the companies would run those queries against all of the records in their possession, thereby providing comprehensive results back to the government. But, the government would only receive back responsive records, not all records, so we'd be holding less data, not more.

There's a story out in the press that SSCI previously considered this option back in 2011 and rejected it?

I'm not going to comment on specifics of engagements with the Committee, but we've long said, including in congressional hearings and other engagements last fall, that we were open to alternatives where the data would stay with the companies, provided that appropriate legislation is enacted. We believe what we're proposing accomplishes that.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"'Mandy Grunwald' via Speech Drafts" <speechdrafts@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	11/8/2015 12:49:01 PM
Subject:	Re: DRAFT: Remarks following filing candidacy

I might combine things so that we have her key message attached to the filing. Something like this;

A few minutes ago, I officially filed my candidacy for the New Hampshire primary. I want you to know, my name may be on the ballot but this campaign is really about you!

Thx

Mandy Grunwald
Grunwald Communications
202 973-9400

> On Nov 8, 2015, at 6:55 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> Here are some bullets for HRC to use at the rally after filing her candidacy tomorrow. If recent history is any indication, she probably won't use these and will just riff, but hopefully these will give her some material to play with. Please let me know if you have any concerns.
> Thanks
> Dan
> <2015-11-08 NH Filing Rally - 630pm.docx>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Froman, Michael B" <fromanm@citi.com>
To:	"Varney, Christine A." <cvarney@hhlaw.com>
	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/2/2008 6:38:45 AM
Subject:	RE: James Steinberg - Deep Dive Memo

1:00 is not going to work for me, but I think we could do both between 2:00 and 3:00.

From: Varney, Christine A. [mailto:cvarney@hhlaw.com]
Sent: Sunday, November 02, 2008 1:37 PM
To: john.podesta@gmail.com; Froman, Michael B [CAI]
Cc: Juliana Gendelman
Subject: FW: James Steinberg - Deep Dive Memo

Juliana, We are scheduled for Napolitano at 2. This is Steinberg - could we do him at 1 or cut Napolitano short and do her at 2 and Steinberg at 2:30? let me know what John's preference is and we will get Robert Wilkins who did Steinberg on board. Thanks C

From: Wilkins, Robert L. [mailto:RLWilkins@Venable.com]
Sent: Saturday, November 01, 2008 6:48 PM
To: Varney, Christine A.
Subject: James Steinberg - Deep Dive Memo

Christine,

Per our conversation, please see the attached memo and appendices. Please let me know if I can be of further assistance. I will wait to hear from you about the meeting with John Podesta. If the meeting could be after 12:00 tomorrow, that would be best for me.

Thanks, Robert

Robert L. Wilkins, Esq.
Venable LLP
575 7th Street, N.W.
Washington, D.C. 20004-1601
Phone: (202) 344-4058
Fax: (202) 344-8300
Email: rlwilkins@venable.com
Web: www.venable.com

Please be advised that this e-mail and any files transmitted with it are confidential attorney-client communication or may otherwise be privileged or confidential and are intended solely for the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If you are not the intended recipient, please do not read, copy or retransmit this communication but destroy it immediately. Any unauthorized dissemination, distribution or copying of this communication is strictly prohibited.

<<Steinberg Deep Dive Memo v2.pdf>> <<APPENDIX A.PDF>> <<APPENDIX B.PDF>> <<APPENDIX C.PDF>> <<APPENDIX D.PDF>>

****
U.S. Treasury Circular 230 Notice: Any tax advice contained in this communication (including any attachments) was not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of (a) avoiding penalties that may be imposed under the Internal Revenue
Code or by any other applicable tax authority; or (b) promoting, marketing or recommending to another party any tax-related matter addressed herein. We provide this disclosure on all outbound e-mails to assure compliance with new standards of professional practice, pursuant to which certain tax advice must satisfy requirements as to form and substance.
****
****
This electronic mail transmission may contain confidential or privileged information. If you believe you have received this message in error, please notify the sender by reply transmission and delete the message without copying or disclosing it.
****

"EMF <HHLAW.COM>" made the following annotations. ----------
---------- This electronic message transmission contains information from this law f irm which may be confidential or privileged. The information is intended to be for the use of the ind ividual or entity named above. If you are not the intended recipient, be aware that any disclosure, c opying, distribution or use of the contents of this information is prohibited. If you have received t his electronic transmission in error, please notify us by telephone (+1-202-637-5600) or by electroni c mail (PostMaster@HHLAW.COM) immediately. ========== ==========

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	10/15/2015 2:34:22 PM
Subject:	Re: just another day at the ofc...

Doubled Robby's time.

On Oct 15, 2015 8:47 PM, "Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> keg stand competition at HFA - JDP, wins !!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/14/2015 10:07:03 AM
Subject:	Try USA too

352 4645

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Kate Offerdahl" <kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	8/2/2015 1:02:46 PM
Subject:	Re: Post-2015 Agenda

Thanks. That's great.

On Aug 2, 2015 3:36 PM, "Kate Offerdahl" <kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> John,
>
> Hello from UN HQ in New York, where the post-2015 development agenda was just agreed by acclamation! Thought I'd give you an update of how things ended up, and pass along the attached agreement.
>
> Negotiations continued non-stop since Friday night until 6pm on Sunday. USUN, led by Tony Pipa, was negotiating hard on means of implementation, climate, and peace and security, which became the biggest sticking points in the document.
>
> The US was perceived as the bully in the room by developed and developing countries alike, due to the tone of a few of their statements and what was seen as a patronizing presence of Amb. Power on Friday. Not much support from EU colleagues, who wished to close days ago. Wild rumors that the U.S. was trying to "blow up" the process were counteracted by the team here, who instead instructed DC that the momentum in the room meant that they must reach agreement now, rather than punt to September.
>
> A deal on climate was struck late Saturday night, by using language (see below) that has all been previously agreed in prior climate agreements.
>
> The final deal-making revolved around language on foreign occupation and self-determination... i.e. Palestine. The co-facilitators were able to pull together language that everyone could live with, without forcing any new commitments.
>
> In the end, all delegations are left extremely exhausted, but pleased with the work of the last three years. Many harkened to the legacy of the High Level Panel. Next step is September, when the 17 goals and accompanying declaration will be adopted by Heads of State.
>
> Enjoy your vacation!
> Kate
>
> ---
>
> Climate language:
>
> We acknowledge that the UNFCCC is the primary international, intergovernmental forum for negotiating the global response to climate change. We are determined to address decisively the threat posed by climate change and environmental degradation. The global nature of climate change calls for the widest possible international cooperation aimed at accelerating the reduction of global greenhouse gas emissions and addressing adaptation to the adverse impacts of climate change. We note with grave concern the significant gap between the aggregate effect of Parties' mitigation pledges in terms of global annual emissions of greenhouse gases by 2020 and aggregate emission pathways consistent with having a likely chance of holding the increase in global average temperature below 2 °C or 1.5 °C above pre-industrial levels.
>
> Looking ahead to the COP21 conference in Paris in December, we underscore the commitment of all States to work for an ambitious and universal climate agreement. We reaffirm that the protocol, another legal instrument or agreed outcome with legal force under the Convention applicable to all Parties shall address in a balanced manner, inter alia, mitigation, adaptation, finance, technology development and transfer, and capacity-building, and transparency of action and support.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Alejandro García Padilla" <max1971pr@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
"John Podesta" <john_d_podesta@who.eop.gov>
Date: 6/13/2014 8:36:19 AM
Subject: GE-Puerto Rico

Dear John – I hope this email finds you well. I've been reading that the President's climate change agenda is moving forward and see that your impact on the Administration has been felt immediately.

I write to you because GE notified us yesterday that next Friday, June 20, 2014 , it will announce that it's closing two of its plants in Puerto Rico. One of the plants employs 400 people and its operation will be outsourced to a company in the Dominican Republic. The other plant employs 180 people, and 40% of its operation will be transferred to GE-Mexico, the balance of the operation will be terminated because of downsizing. These plants, as most of GE's operations in Puerto Rico, are part of the Company's Industrial Solutions division and manufacture electrical equipment such as circuit breakers. GE contemplates to begin the drawdown fairly soon and complete the closings by the end of 2015.

GE and Puerto Rico have a long history of working together, in fact, GE was one of the first American companies to establish operations in Puerto Rico when the island embarked on the industrialization of its economy. And as recently as September 2013, GE and the Puerto Rico Industrial Development Company ("PRIDCO") executed an agreement whereby PRIDCO extended the term of the lease agreements of all the sites that GE leases from PRIDCO (approximately 411,690 square feet) until 2018. These leases are heavily subsidized. PRIDCO also provided GE with $3,771,500 in job creation/retention incentives. As part of the agreement, GE agreed to preserve the 1,900 jobs it sustains in Puerto Rico and create 25 additional jobs in its factory in the island of Vieques.

We had been hearing rumors that a restructuring of GE's operations might be in the works and tried to engage GE's senior management but have had little success. All we want is an opportunity to meet with GE's senior management to discuss how we can try to save these jobs. We've been successful in competing against Mexico and other countries with low labor costs and trust that we can present a compelling case to GE to keep these jobs on American soil. As you know, Jeffrey Immelt was part of the President's Jobs Council and has been a strong advocate of the Administration's agenda of creating jobs in the United States. I would be terribly grateful if you can ask the Company's senior management to grants us an opportunity to meet before they proceed with this decision to outsource jobs. In the current juncture that Puerto Rico is facing, to have a company like GE announce that it is leaving us to move to other countries, threatens whatever success we've had so far in restoring confidence in our economy.

I've also reached out to Senator Menendez on this matter and hope to be able to connect soon with Ms. Valerie Jarrett.

I know you have many matters on your plate but we just can't afford to lose these jobs. I thank you for any help you may provide.

Kind regards,

Alejandro

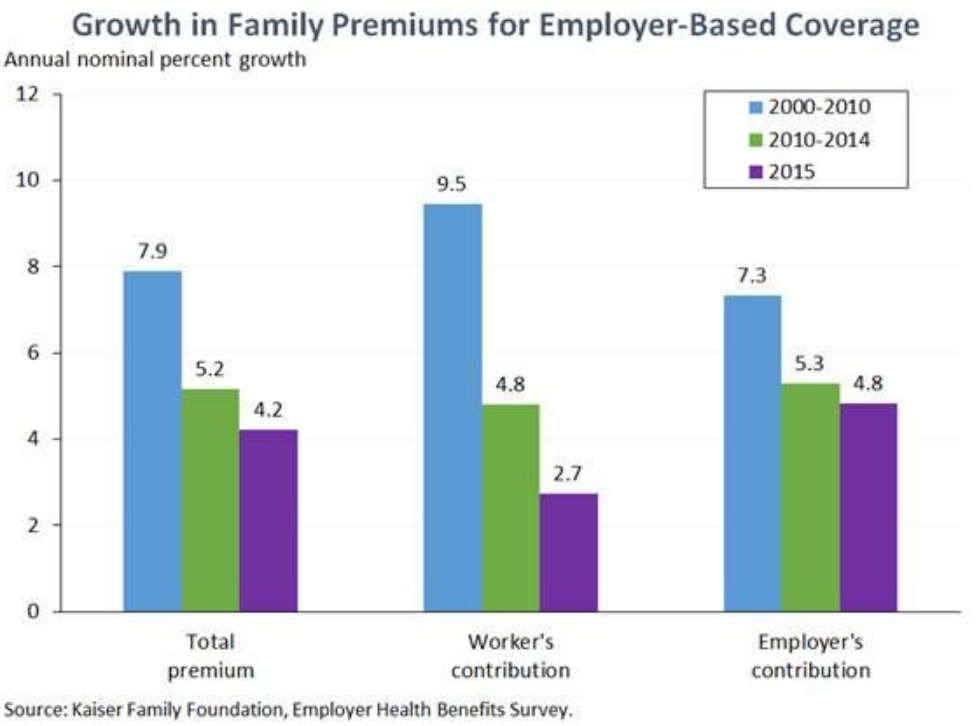
This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Furman, Jason L." <Jason_L_Furman@cea.eop.gov>
To:	"Furman, Jason L." <Jason_L_Furman@cea.eop.gov>
Date:	9/22/2015 12:46:03 PM
Subject:	CEA's analysis of new data on slow growth in health care costs

Please find below CEA's blog post on new data showing slow growth in health care costs continuing in 2015.

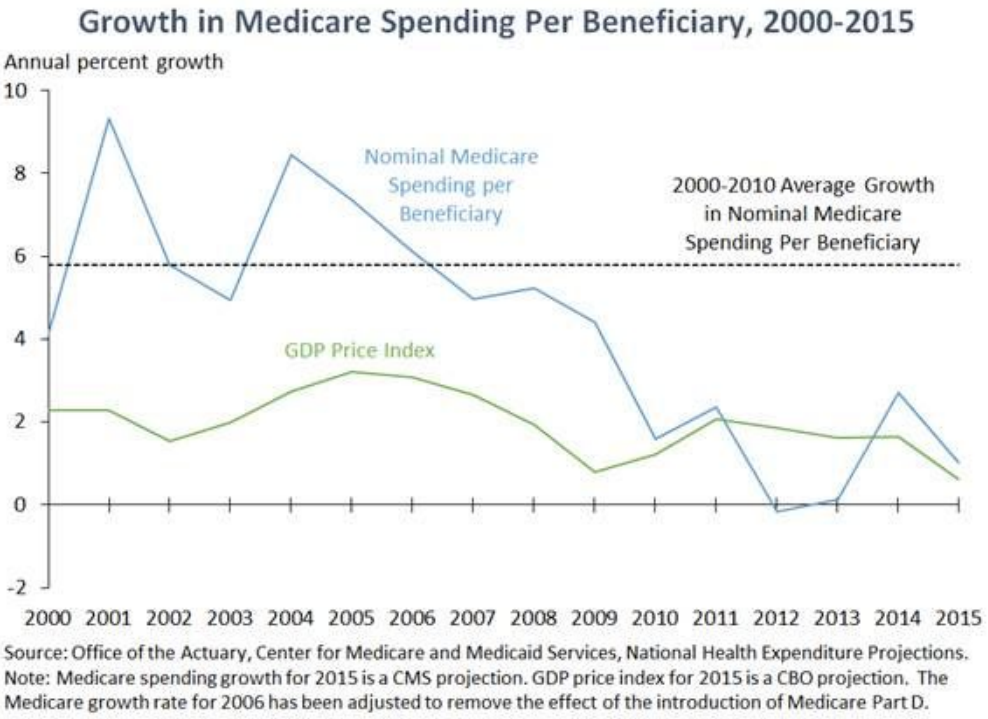
https://www.whitehouse.gov/blog/2015/09/22/new-data-show-slow-health-care-cost-growth-continuing

New Data Show Slow Health Care Cost Growth is Continuing



New data released today by the Kaiser Family Foundation show that premium growth in employer-sponsored coverage remained slow in 2015, extending the recent streak of unusually slow growth. Taken together with estimates of current trends in Medicare spending released this summer, these data suggest that underlying growth in per-enrollee health care costs remains low, even as the dramatic expansion in coverage since early 2014 drives a temporary uptick in the growth of aggregate health care spending. Recent years' slow growth in health care costs—which is thanks in part to the Affordable Care Act—is already generating major benefits for workers and our fiscal outlook. Looking ahead, keeping these positive trends going will require that we continue to make good use of the tools provided by the Affordable Care Act, including: moving our health care system toward payment models that reward efficient, high-quality care; continuing to foster a transparent and competitive Health Insurance Marketplace; and implementing the law's tax provision that encourages high-cost employer plans to become more efficient.

SIX KEY POINTS ON NEW DATA ON EMPLOYER COVERAGE IN 2015

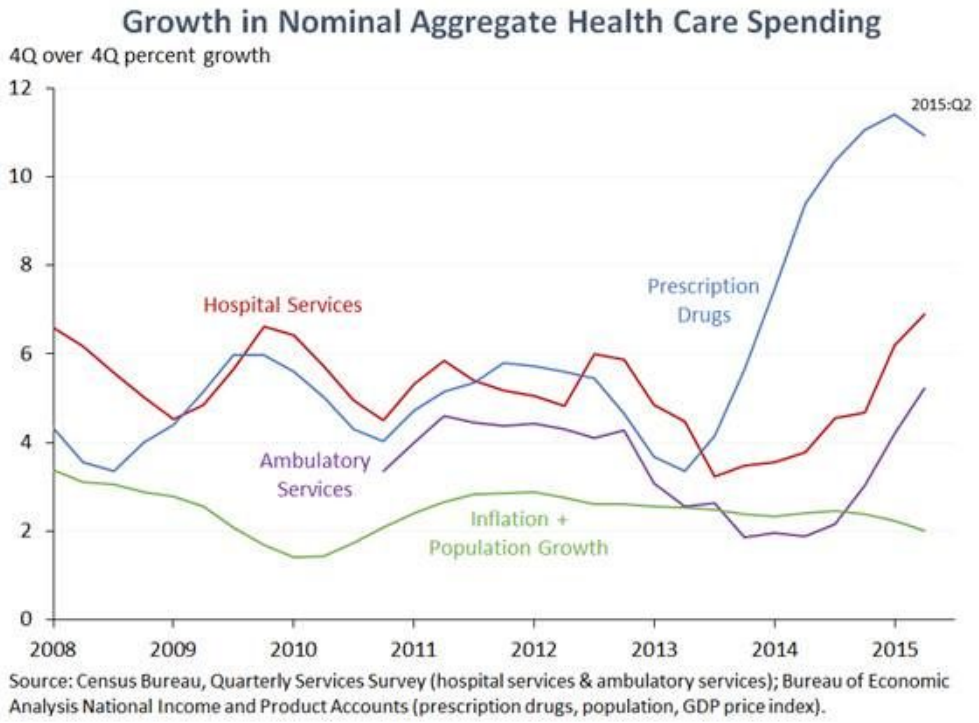


1. Premiums in employer-based coverage continued to grow slowly in 2015. The new Kaiser survey finds that the average premium for employer-based family coverage grew 4.2 percent in 2015. While slightly faster than the record-tying 3 percent rate recorded in 2014, this reading for 2015 continues the recent pattern of unusually slow growth; the last four years account for four of the five lowest growth rates since the survey began in 1999. The Kaiser estimates corroborate earlier estimates from the Bureau of Labor Statistics' Employer Cost Index that showed that slow growth in employers' health benefit costs continued into 2015, as well as results from a national survey released last week by the consulting firm Mercer, which found that employers have seen slow growth persist through 2015 and expect it to continue into 2016.

Sustained slow premium growth is generating major benefits for families and businesses. Had premium growth since 2010 matched the average rate recorded over the preceding decade, the average total premium for employer-based family coverage would have been nearly $2,600 higher in 2015. A large portion of these savings have accrued directly to workers in the form of lower premium contributions. Employers' savings on their portion of premium spending may be reducing total compensation costs in the short run, helping to boost job growth; economic theory and evidence indicate that these savings will be passed on to workers as higher wages in the long run.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

2. Recent estimates suggest that Medicare spending per enrollee is continuing to grow slowly as well. In July, the Office of the Actuary at the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services released updated projections of growth in per-enrollee spending in Medicare for 2014 and 2015. While these estimates are projections, they reflect data on actual Medicare spending for all of 2014 and part of 2015, so they tend to be particularly reliable. Nominal Medicare spending per beneficiary is projected to grow just 1.0 percent in 2015, only slightly faster than recent projections of overall inflation in 2015 and slower than measures of inflation that exclude the recent sharp decline in energy prices. If this projection holds, then 2015 will be the sixth consecutive year in which growth in Medicare spending per beneficiary was roughly in line with overall inflation economy-wide, a stark contrast to trends over the decade preceding 2010.



3. The continued slow growth in per-enrollee spending in employer coverage and Medicare shows that the pickup in aggregate health care spending growth since the start of 2014 largely reflects transient effects of expanding coverage. Data for the last several quarters have shown a turn toward faster (though still moderate in historical terms) growth in aggregate spending on the three largest categories of health care goods and services: hospital services, ambulatory services, and prescription drugs.

However, this faster aggregate growth does not reflect rapid growth in the cost of health care for an individual or a family; the data presented above for the two largest segments of the United States health care system indicate that growth in per-enrollee costs has ticked up only modestly, if at all. Rather, the driving factor is likely the significant expansion in insurance coverage since late 2013 as the main coverage provisions of the Affordable Care Act have taken effect, an expansion of coverage that is by far the largest since the decade following the creation of Medicare and Medicaid. As we have noted on several prior occasions, it is not a surprise, nor a cause for concern, to see a temporary period of faster growth as newly insured individuals begin to access care.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

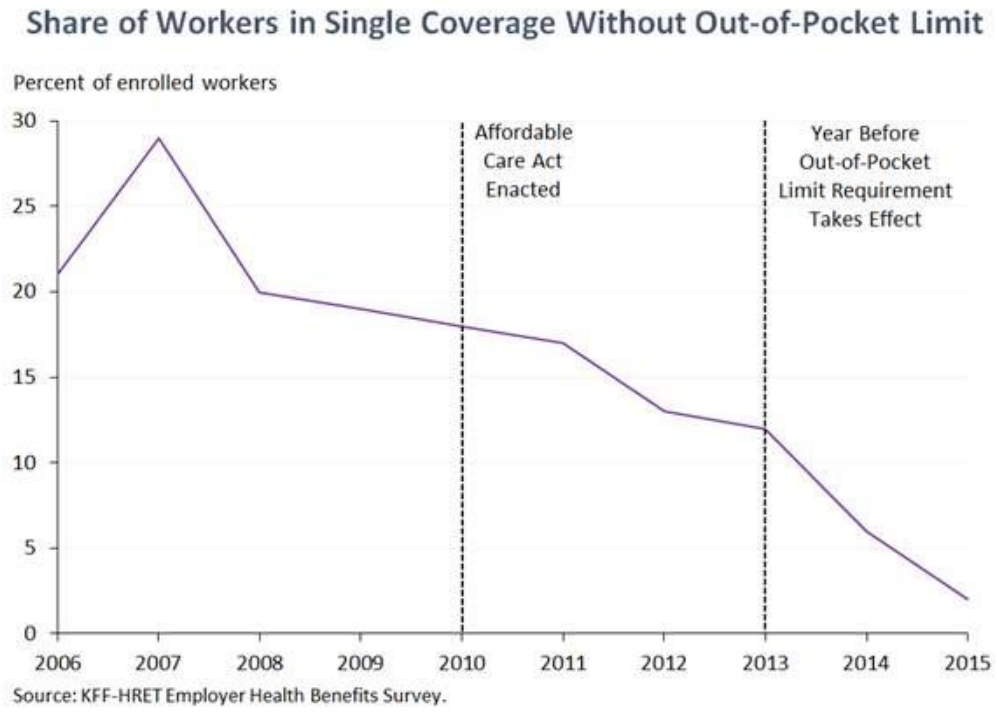
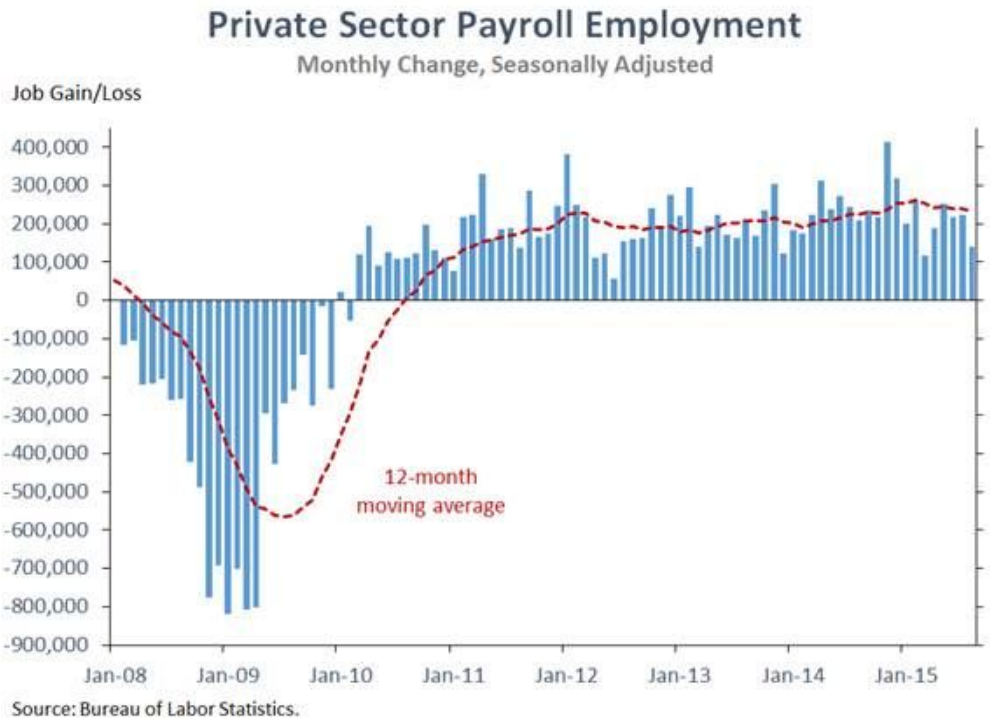
The exception is prescription drug spending, where the uptick in spending growth is much larger than can be accounted for by recent coverage expansions. Available data indicate that the main factor driving faster drug spending has been the arrival of costly, though often effective, new therapies. While the implications of the recent acceleration in drug spending for the overall health care spending outlook should not be overstated since drug spending currently accounts for only about one-tenth of total health care spending and drug spending growth may decline somewhat relative to its recent rapid pace, trends in this area have raised concerns about access and affordability in both the public and private sectors.



Source: Census Bureau, Quarterly Services Survey (hospital services & ambulatory services); Bureau of Economic Analysis National Income and Product Accounts (prescription drugs, population, GDP price index).

4. Average deductibles in employer coverage rose again in 2015, but the increase was in line with trends stretching back more than a decade. Typical deductibles in employer coverage have been rising for more than a decade, and the new Kaiser data indicate that that trend continued in 2015. As demonstrated in the figure above, however, neither the Kaiser data nor the Medical Expenditure Panel Survey (which provides a longer-term view on these trends) indicate that deductibles have risen more quickly in recent years. This means that there is no sense in which continued growth in deductibles is "cancelling out" the benefits to workers stemming from recent years' very slow premium growth and that rising deductibles are unlikely to be an important reason that premium growth has been so much slower recently than in the past.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.



5. Virtually all workers enrolled in employer coverage now have a limit on their annual out-of-pocket spending, a protection that more than one in six enrolled workers lacked when the ACA became law. One core function of health insurance is to provide protection against catastrophic costs in the face of serious illness. Starting in 2014, the ACA required that all non-grandfathered health insurance plans place a limit on total annual out-of-pocket spending, protection which 18 percent of workers enrolled in single coverage lacked as of 2010, according to the Kaiser survey. The share without an out-of-pocket limit drifted lower after 2010 (possibly in part because firms were preparing for 2014), then fell sharply as the ACA requirement took effect; today's data show that just 2 percent of workers in single coverage lacked such a limit in 2015. If the prevalence of out-of-pocket limits had remained at its 2010 level, we estimate that at least 22 million people enrolled in employer coverage would lack this protection today.

6. The persistence of slow health care cost growth raises the likelihood that much of the health care cost slowdown reflects long-lasting structural changes in the health care sector, including changes in public policy, not the aftereffects of the Great Recession or other transitory factors. As we have discussed previously , the Great Recession likely played some role in reducing health care cost growth during the downturn itself and in the early stages of the recovery (at least in the private sector). However, the United States is now more than six years into an economic recovery that has created 13.1 million private sector jobs over 66 months of job growth and driven the unemployment rate back to levels last seen in the spring of 2008, before the worst of the financial crisis hit. It is therefore increasingly likely that whatever role macroeconomic factors may have played in the immediate aftermath of the Great Recession, structural changes in the health care system—including changes in public policy and other factors that would have a persistent effect on health care spending over the long run—are playing the lead role in keeping health care cost growth low today.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sarah Stephens" <sarah@democracyinamericas.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 1/15/2016 10:45:22 AM
Subject: Stop and Smell (the Cuban) Coffee (or what would Goethe say?)

Having trouble viewing this message? Click Here

January 15, 2016

Dear Friends:

As he departed the presidency in 1961, Dwight D. Eisenhower summarized the foreign policy accomplishments of his administration. Ending the Korean War and preserving peace in the Middle East were among them. But, he also noted a few of the world's continuing dangers, starting with what he called the "Communist penetration of Cuba" which he labeled a real and serious threat.

Defining the challenges of his final year in office, President Obama used his last State of the Union address to make his most forceful appeal to Congress to "lift the embargo" on Cuba since he announced the new U.S. policy toward Cuba in December 2014.

"Fifty years of isolating Cuba," he said, "had failed to promote democracy, setting us back in Latin America. That's why we restored diplomatic relations, opened the door to travel and commerce, and positioned ourselves to improve the lives of the Cuban people. You want to consolidate our leadership and credibility in the hemisphere? Recognize that the Cold War is over. Lift the embargo."

Congress had heard the appeal before; during last year's address, after explaining the purpose behind his shift in policy, the President said , "Congress should begin the work of ending the embargo."

Tuesday night he hit it harder - making it two years in a row that he urged Congress to take down what presidents dating back to Eisenhower had built up.

Everything is happening so fast. Our compassion, concerns, and anxieties are pulled in a dozen different directions. But, isn't this a time when we could stop and admire the beauty of this historical moment?

Two years in a row a U.S. president actually said the state of the union would be stronger by ending the embargo against Cuba. "The mere knowledge that such a work could be created makes me twice the person I was," Goethe said.

Tuesday night we felt that way, too; even more, after dozens of Members of Congress heard what the president said and rose from their seats to applaud. Stop for a minute and smell that coffee!

As we previously reported , there is majority, bipartisan support nationally for ending the embargo, including among Floridians and Cuban Americans. With Congress hesitant to act, the upcoming election, and the impending close of President Obama's second term, there is a greater sense of urgency in Washington and Havana to push Cuba policy forward in 2016.

In just a few weeks, Representatives Tom Emmer (MN-6) and Kathy Castor (FL-14), lead sponsors of legislation to repeal the trade embargo , are bringing a partisan delegation from the U.S. Congress to visit Cuba to build support for opening travel and trade relations with Cuba among the new or uncommitted colleagues who will accompany them.

Aside from the difficult task of adopting such sweeping legislation in an election year, diplomacy has brought changes to the U.S.-Cuba relationship, such as the restoration of commercial airline service, direct mail service, and direct phone service, and U.S. ports and U.S. businesses are seeking ways to use the new authorities granted by administration policies to create commercial relationships with Cuban counterparts. All of this builds on the policy opening in anticipation of a new president taking office in January 2017.

Josefina Vidal, who leads the Cuban side of the normalization talks, told the official

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Cuban News Agency that she's "beginning to feel a certain bit of realism as the electoral process in the United States approaches; we don't know what's going to happen." Neither do we. But, just like Governor McAuliffe hit the accelerator of the 1957 Chevy he drove through the streets of Havana during his trade mission to Cuba last week, we're part of a larger effort to encourage policymakers, business leaders, advocates and experts to wrench as much change as possible out of U.S. policy before the next president is sworn in. We have a year and hope to put it to good use.

Sincerely,

Your Cuba Central Team

This week in Cuba News...

U.S.-CUBA RELATIONS
- Cuba will participate in U.S. co-sponsored regional security conference
- Port of Miami eyes new ferry terminal to Cuba, showing evolution in Miami politics
- Update: First group of Cuban migrants in Costa Rica flown to El Salvador, headed for the U.S.
- Musicabana Foundation announces Major Lazer concert in Cuba

IN CUBA
- Cuba's 2016 Economic Outlook
- Unilever invests $35 million in joint venture at Mariel Special Development Zone

CUBA'S FOREIGN RELATIONS
- Update: FARC peace talks continue in Cuba

Recommended Reading
- Cuba prevails in Havana Club rum dispute with Bacardi , Mimi Whitefield, Miami Herald
- Cubans, Fearing Loss of Favored Status in U.S., Rush to Make an Arduous Journey, Frances Robles, New York Times
- Virginia businesses begin wary courtship with Cuba , Laura Vozzella, Washington Post
- In Cuba, there is nothing permanent except change , Richard Feinberg, Brookings Institute

U.S.-CUBA RELATIONS

Cuba will participate in U.S. co-sponsored regional security conference

Cuba will participate in an annual Caribbean regional security conference in Jamaica later this month co-sponsored by the U.S. military's Southern Command later this month, according to Marine Corps Gen. John F. Kelly. "We've normalized now and, regardless of how we think of each other in terms of politics, we have very, very common challenges," Gen. Kelly said at a briefing at the Pentagon, AP reports .

Senior military officials from 16 Caribbean countries, the U.S., UK and others will participate in the three-day conference, which will focus on cooperation to combat the drug trade, human trafficking, and weapons smuggling. Cuba may use the conference as an opportunity to raise its objection to the U.S. Navy base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, AP reports. Gen. Kelly thinks the U.S. Navy base could be run jointly with the Cubans, but recognizes that "It wouldn't be appropriate" at this stage in relations.

Port of Miami eyes new ferry terminal to Cuba, showing evolution in Miami politics

Last week, Juan Kuryla, Miami-Dade port chief, discussed the possibility of a new ferry terminal in Miami after receiving several requests from major worldwide ferry operators for a location to launch ferry service from Miami to Havana, the Miami Herald reports .

The day after Kuryla made the public announcement, Miami-Dade Mayor Carlos Gimenez clarified that, "We don't do business with countries. We just do business with carriers... Where the ferry services decided to go in order to make money, etc., well, that's up to the ferry service as long as it's legal." Xavier Suarez, Miami-Dade County Commissioner, added that "We don't want to get left behind if ferry service is in fact started," according to NPR .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Mayor Gimenez and County Commissioner Suarez are both Cuban-Americans. Their statements reveal a growing interest in economic possibilities that, in turn, are reshaping politics in Miami around Cuba. "There was criticism from some in the Cuban-American community, but compared to the firestorm anything involving Cuba has often sparked in the past, it's a sign that in Miami, times have changed," NPR noted .

Several U.S. operators have already been granted ferry licenses from the U.S. Treasury, but approval in Havana has taken longer than expected and executives estimate that Florida-Cuba ferry service isn't likely to start until late 2016. "Cuba needs to develop terminal facilities for proposed ferries from Florida, complete with customs and immigration processing and room to handle passengers and freight. That requires millions of dollars in investment," the Sun Sentinel reports .

Meanwhile, three U.S.-based cruise lines are awaiting permission from Cuban authorities to begin sailing to Havana from Miami this winter and spring, according to the Miami Herald. Reuters reported in December that Switzerland-based MSC Cruises was the first of the four global cruise lines in the world to start operations in Cuba.

Update: First group of Cuban migrants in Costa Rica flown to El Salvador, headed for the U.S.

On January 12, 180 Cubans were flown from Costa Rica to El Salvador and taken on a bus to Mexico and on to the U.S., according to the Economist . On January 13, Granma, the Cuban state-run newspaper, reported that the group of Cuban migrants arrived in Mexico, where the National Institute of Migration (INAMI) provided permission documents to allow them to continue their journey to the U.S. "This disjointed itinerary is the result of an agreement among several Central American countries and Mexico to allow the migrants through while discouraging new arrivals,"the Economist explains.

In November, Nicaragua closed its borders to Cuban migrants, leaving 8,000 stranded in Costa Rica and 2,000 in Panamá, according to Univision . The International Organization of Migrations said the first group was selected based on their ability to afford the trip, which costs about $550, Univision reports . Katia Rodríguez, Director of Costa Rica Migration, said that the countries involved will meet next week to decide the next stages for those who remain.

In 2015, more than 43,000 Cubans arrived in the U.S. between January and September, an 80% increase over the same period in 2014.This significant uptick in migration is often attributed to a fear that as relations with the United States improve, Cubans will lose the special immigration status they receive under the Cuban Adjustment Act (CAA) of 1966, as we have reported . The editorial boards of several major newspapers, including the New York Times, have called for ending the CAA, and one bill has been proposed in the U.S. House of Representatives which would do just that. Others, like CubaNow executive director Ric Herrero, argue that the CAA should be dealt with at the same time as the embargo itself.

Sommerhoff, Miami-Dade's director of Emergency Management, says the county is ready to "absorb" the 8,000 Cuban migrants who are currently stranded in Central America, reported the Miami Herald in December 2015 . "Not everyone has family in the United States - and although the mayor of Miami is concerned that the city's not prepared, at the county, there's confidence.Que vengan. Let them come," the Miami Herald advocated.

Musicabana Foundation announces Major Lazer concert in Cuba

Major Lazer - whose records include Peace Is the Mission and Free the Universe - will be one of the first major American musical acts to perform in Havana since U.S. and Cuba restored diplomatic relations, announced the Musicabana Foundation , a new nonprofit organization developing year-round U.S.-Cuba cultural events. Major Lazer will perform in Havana on Sunday, March 6, 2016 as part of the four-day Musicabana festival.

Fabien Pisani, founder and festival director of Musicabana, expressed his excitement about partnering with Major Lazer, as well as his hope to highlight "Cuba's music scene[, which] is bursting with the same raw talent and energy of decades past."

Musicabana will host concerts in three venues, Plaza San Francisco de Asis, Salon Rosado of la Tropical, and La Piragua. The festival will be free to the Cuban public; international visitors will be able to purchase special travel packages and VIP tickets.

Musicabana will feature performances by Cuban and international artists including Pablo

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Milanés, Carlos Varela, Los Van Van, Sean Paul, Habana d'Primera, Carlinhos Brown, Ibeyi, Yoruba Andabo, Juana Bacallao & Tembla Tierra, Interactivo, and Kelvis Ochoa. Cubadebate quotes Diplo, one of the members of Major Lazer, who explained that "Cuba has played an influential role in my love for music."

IN CUBA

Cuba's 2016 Economic Outlook

The self-employed sector in Cuba continues to capture U.S. attention and investment . The majority of "cuentapropistas," self-employed Cubans, work in food services, followed by transportation, and house and event space rentals, according to data from the Ministry of Work and Social Security cited by EFE . The Ministry of Work details that of the total number of cuentapropistas, 17% are Cubans who maintain state sector jobs, 30% are youth, 30% are women, and 12% are retired Cubans.

On Monday, EFE published an article on the status of Cuba's self-employed sector, citing a slight decrease in the number of Cubans working in outside the state sector since June 2015. On the same day, OnCuba published an article by Cuban economist Dr. C. Juan Triana Cordovi, who reports that the self-employment sector employs 27% of the country's work force. While Dr. Triana is optimistic about the growth of the self-employment sector, he is advocating further changes in his country's economic model. Specifically, he hopes 2016 will bring access to wholesale markets and an increase in Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) to mitigate the negative factors of the decline in economic growth, which President Raul Castro announced will be 2% in 2016. According to Reuters , President Castro attributed the decline to "financial limitations associated with the fall in earnings from traditional exports," including nickel and sugar.

Unilever invests $35 million in joint venture at Mariel Special Development Zone

On Monday, Unilever announced its plans to return to Cuba with a $35 million investment in a joint venture, Unilever-Suchel S.A., to create a toothpaste and soap factory in the Mariel Special Development Zone. The Dutch-British company is the ninth firm to get approval from Cuba's government to operate in Mariel. Cleber LLC, a tractor assembly company based in Alabama, was the first U.S. firm to receive approval in November 2015.

Last week, the Dutch Minister for Foreign Trade and Development Cooperation Lilianne Ploumen announced that she hopes that the Netherlands will "acquire a pole position" in Cuba,according to Forbes . Representatives from major Dutch companies, including Philips and Heineken, joined Minister Ploumen on her trip to Cuba, Telegraph reports.

In 2012, Unilever left Cuba after a dispute over the stipulation that the state hold the majority stake in joint ventures with foreign companies. "Now Unilever NV will have a majority 60 percent stake compared to 40 percent for the Cuban state company Intersuchel S.A.," Reuters explains .

The factory, planned to open by 2018, will produce shampoo, detergent, soap, and toothpaste, items that are in high-demand on the island and especially in the growing tourism sector.

CUBA'S FOREIGN RELATIONS

Update: FARC peace talks continue in Cuba

On Wednesday, the FARC-EP delegation and the Colombian government resumed discussions to end the armed conflict that has persisted in their country for more than a half century, according to Cuba's Ministry of Foreign Relations , MINREX. They have sustained peaceful negotiations in Havana since November 2012.

In September 2015, President Juan Manuel Santos and FARC-EP leader, Timoleón Jiménez, announced that they would sign a peace accord on March 23, 2016. However, the FARC-EP negotiator, Joaquín Gómez, said that there are factors that could make it difficult to sign an accord by that date.

Recommended Reading

Cuba prevails in Havana Club rum dispute with Bacardi , Mimi Whitefield, Havana Club

The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office renewed Cubaexport's trademark registration for Havana Club this week. Cubaexport, a government company, has been battling Bacardi over the trademark for more than 20 years.

Cubans, Fearing Loss of Favored Status in U.S., Rush to Make an Arduous Journey, Frances Robles, New York Times

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Thousands of Cuban migrants have been stranded in Costa Rica on their way to the United States since Nicaragua closed its border to Cubans in November 2015. This article highlights the experiences of some of these individuals, as well as the plan to get the Cubans to the United States.

Virginia businesses begin wary courtship with Cuba , Laura Vozzella, Washington Post

While no contracts were signed, business leaders on Governor Terry McAuliffe's Virginia trade delegation explored possibilities for investment and manufacturing. "The important thing for this trip was to establish a vision," a VA business president said. "What's left is to determine what's feasible."

In Cuba, there is nothing permanent except change , Richard Feinberg, Brookings Institute

Richard Feinberg describes the emerging private sector in Cuba and the increasing brain drain as government officials abandon the public sector and many Cubans emigrate to the United States, Spain, Mexico, and Canada.

Until next time,

The Cuba Central Team

DONATE NOW THROUGH Network for Good

Like our work? Consider a monthly donation!

The Cuba Central Newsblast is produced by the Center for Democracy in the Americas (CDA). CDA is devoted to changing U.S. policy toward Cuba and the other countries of the Americas by basing our relations on mutual respect, fostering dialogue with those governments and movements with which U.S. policy is at odds, and recognizing positive trends in democracy and governance. For more information, check out the CDA website . You can also like us on Facebook or follow us on Twitter .

© 2015 Center for Democracy in the Americas. All rights reserved.

CUBACENTRAL Center for Democracy IN THE AMERICAS

Center for Democracy in the Americas, PO Box 53106 NW, Washington, DC 20009

SafeUnsubscribe™ john.podesta@gmail.com

Forward email | Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by sarah@democracyinamericas.org in collaboration with

Constant Contact

Try it free today

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	H <hdr29@hrcoffice.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/11/2015 2:37:30 AM
Subject:	Analytics Communications Nightly Report 2015 06 10.pdf
Attachments:	Analytics Communications Nightly Report 2015 06 10.pdf

Nightly report attached.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nichols, Laura" <Laura_Nichols@mpaa.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/11/2016 9:32:14 PM
Subject:	Nice job on CNN

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sandler, Herbert" <hms@sandlerfoundation.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/24/2014 4:00:33 PM
Subject:	FW: Right-Left Memo
Attachments:	Right-Left Memo.doc

A damn good memo, I must say. It was written early 2003. The date on the memo is weird.

From: Hudson, Letitia, EXEC
Sent: Monday, March 10, 2003 4:57 PM
To: Sandler, Herb EXEC
Subject: Right-Left Memo

Letitia Hudson
Office of the Chairman
World Savings Bank
1901 Harrison Street
Oakland, California 94612
(510) 446-4144 (o)
E-mail: lhudson986@worldsavings.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nina Hachigian" <nhachigian@gmail.com>
To:	"Nina Hachigian" <nhachigian@gmail.com>
Date:	12/23/2014 2:18:58 PM
Subject:	Holiday Best Wishes

Dear family and friends,

Happy holidays, Merry Christmas and a fun, healthy 2015 to all of you. We've enjoyed our first weeks in Indonesia!

Warmest wishes,
The Day-Hachigians

P.S. Joe's correct email is joeday.ddd@gmail.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Bogor Botanical Garden

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Marcy Krinsk" <mkrinsk@krinsk.com>
To:	John.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	2/11/2016 2:05:29 PM
Subject:	Material for John Podesta
Attachments:	Making Sense.docx
	Resume Mark II.docx

Dear John: I know you are extremely busy, but I am taking the liberty of forwarding this "Making Sense" document from a dear friend's husband (Judith Kafka Maxwell, fellow UC Press Board Member). Dr. Kim Maxwell is successful and brilliant and wants to help Hillary in any way that he can! They have homes on both coasts and are easily accessible, below he has offered to come to you. Please feel free to communicate with Kim directly….. he is a lovely man and I think you two would enjoy each other and I believe he may be of help with this bizarre political climate we find ourselves deeply involved in! Always, Marcy

Marcy Campbell Krinsk
NOTE NEW EMAIL ADDRESS
mkrinsk@krinsk.com
567 Gage Lane
San Diego, CA 92106
Phone: 619-222-8842
Fax: 619-223-4488
Mobile: 619-851-9476

From: Kim Maxwell [mailto:kim-maxwell@sbcglobal.net]
Sent: Thursday, February 11, 2016 12:12 PM
To: Marcy Krinsk <mkrinsk@krinsk.com>
Subject: material for John Podesta

Marcy

It was nice talking with you the other night. I share your frustrations with the present Clinton campaign. As promised, I attach a proposal for how I would repair it. I also attach a resume so these words are not quite a voice from the wilderness. I have been working on these ideas for a long time.

Let me say that I am willing to help this campaign in any way they would wish should they decide to pursue something like what I propose, either to help or to lead. I have few calendar obstacles and I would willingly give them up, even go to New York, if the campaign decided I could be of benefit.

I am not concerned about the distribution of these documents. If you think others might warm to their thoughts, feel free to distribute.

I would also appreciate your own thoughts on the thoughts therein.

Regards

Kim Maxwell

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Robby Mook 2015" <robbymook2015@gmail.com>
Date:	2/17/2015 5:35:51 PM
Subject:	Re: What time are you here tomorrow?

2:30. Should have time around 4:30.

On Feb 17, 2015 10:24 PM, "Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com > wrote:

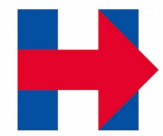
> Do you have a few seconds to talk research?

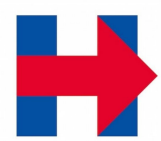
This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Doug Band" <doug.band@teneoholdings.com>
To:	"JOHN Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/28/2014 5:33:24 PM
Subject:

In your town
Lake tahoe
Magical place

Hope you are well





This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Marlon Marshall" <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 6/13/2015 9:57:06 AM
Subject: Re: Trade

Podesta is available at 6:15 pm. Does that work? I will send around a number.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jun 13, 2015, at 4:46 PM, Marlon Marshall <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> We should. When is good?
>
> On Saturday, June 13, 2015, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > Copying in Jen too. Do we want to do a call today?
> >
> > On Sat, Jun 13, 2015 at 4:07 PM, Matt Paul <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > Any update on this ?
> > >
> > > On Friday, June 12, 2015, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > Connecting us regarding trade - Matt I passed on that you are concerned for the Iowa trip. We may not be able to connect tonight. If not, can we connect tomorrow afternoon after the launch?
> > > >
> > > > --
> > > >
> > > > Kristina Schake | Communications
> > > > Hillary for America
> > > >
> > > >
> > >
> > > --
> > >
> > > Kristina Schake | Communications
> > > Hillary for America
> > >
> > >

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Simone Duval" <simone@democracyinamericas.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 6/30/2015 11:59:45 AM
Subject: PRESS RELEASE: CDA Applauds Announcement That U.S. and Cuba Will Reopen Embassies

Having trouble viewing this message? Click Here

Center for Democracy IN THE AMERICAS

June 30, 2015

PRESS RELEASE

CDA Applauds Announcement That U.S. and Cuba Will Reopen Embassies

WASHINGTON -- The Center for Democracy in the Americas (CDA) released the following statement in reaction to reports that the agreement between Cuba and the U.S. to restore diplomatic relations and open embassies in their respective capitals will be announced tomorrow.

"This is a moment we have been working toward for many years," said Sarah Stephens, executive director of CDA. "The restoration of diplomatic relations between our countries is a major achievement that will help to heal decades of mistrust and will open opportunities for the U.S. and Cuba to collaborate on issues of mutual interest like immigration, environmental conservation, and regional trade. We applaud the tireless work of Cuban and U.S. diplomats, policymakers, academics, and activists who have helped make this possible. We are ready to work with all our allies to defend these positive steps initiated by President Obama and to move forward with removing the embargo once and for all."

Sarah can be contacted through Simone Duval (202-234-5506) at the CDA office in Washington, DC. You can learn more about CDA at our website .

###

Forward email

SafeUnsubscribe

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com by simone@democracyinamericas.org | Update Profile/Email Address | Rapid removal with SafeUnsubscribe ™ | Privacy Policy.

Trusted Email from Constant Contact Try it FREE today.

Center for Democracy in the Americas | PO Box 53106 NW | Washington | DC | 20009

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Tony Carrk" <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Christina Reynolds" <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 2/4/2016 5:26:57 PM
Subject: Re: HRC and DMR

Research is good with one edit: change to one week on Microsoft instead of two

On Feb 5, 2016, at 12:24 AM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> One thought for the group: given that, as Lily pointed out earlier, he said people were making too big a deal out of this, but they are really just HIS people--should we add that in here?
>
> On Feb 5, 2016, at 12:13 AM, Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Actually adding Tony this time.
> >
> > Reynolds/JP should give their ok.
> >
> > ---
> > Lily Adams
> > cell: (202) 368-4013
> >
> > On Feb 4, 2016, at 11:12 PM, Rob Flaherty <rflaherty@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Here it is unlisted: https://medium.com/@Matt_Paul/6e563f2f7ab4
> > >
> > > On Thu, Feb 4, 2016 at 11:23 PM, Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > + Tony whose team should check my facts as well aside from the delegate math
> > >
> > > ---
> > > Lily Adams
> > > cell: (202) 368-4013
> > >
> > > On Feb 4, 2016, at 10:03 PM, Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > + JFerg if we wanna move this to tipsheets
> > > >
> > > > On Thu, Feb 4, 2016 at 11:01 PM, Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > Great - JP/CR, once one of you all are good then Teddy's team can post.
> > > >
> > > > On Thu, Feb 4, 2016 at 10:00 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > Ditto
> > > >
> > > > On Feb 4, 2016, at 10:58 PM, Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > >
> > > > > + Rob to proof and post once this is locked. I think it's great.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Thu, Feb 4, 2016 at 10:56 PM, Troy Price <tprice@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Love it. Let me know when it's out and I will send around to our endorsers/ influencers.
>
> Troy
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Feb 4, 2016, at 9:23 PM, Elias, Marc (Perkins Coie) <MElias@perkinscoie.com> wrote:
>
>> Excellent.
>>
>> --
>> Marc E. Elias
>> Perkins Coie LLP
>> 700 13th St, NW
>> Washington, DC 20005
>> 202-434-1609
>> melias@perkinscoie.com
>> @marceelias
>>
>> Sent from my iPhone
>>
>> On Feb 4, 2016, at 10:15 PM, Matt Paul <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>
>> + Troy
>>
>> This is really strong.
>>
>> On Thursday, February 4, 2016, Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>
>>> This has some suggestions from Reynolds but wanted to get it to the full group since she's in debate mode. we still havent heard from the IDP on what the specific 11 precincts are. the math is what they gave us so we havent been able to double check.
>>>
>>> Draft Medium Post on Iowa
>>>
>>> There's been even more bluster than usual from the Sanders campaign, this time in an effort to disqualify Hillary Clinton's historic victory in Monday night's Iowa caucus.
>>>
>>> Disparaging good news for Hillary Clinton has become a pattern for the Sanders camp. It you support someone else? You're dismissed as part of the "establishment ," unless of course they want to claim your support in ads anyways. If a process doesn't go their way? It's invalid or flawed or they blame the Iowans who ran it.
>>>
>>> In Iowa, the Sanders camp started floating conspiracy theories leading up to the caucus. First, it was two weeks ago when they posited that Microsoft might steal the caucus from them. Now that the caucus is over, they are calling into question the results that were reported by everyday Iowans.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Hillary Clinton won the Iowa caucus with incredibly high turnout - a level of turnout the Sanders camp claimed would earn them a win. It was a close contest and a hard fought campaign. But Hillary won. And once it became apparent that they had lost, the Bernie Sanders campaign began to peddle frivolous claims that have been disproven in an effort to poison an otherwise historic night for Hillary Clinton, our supporters, and volunteers.

Remember coin flip-gate where people claimed Hillary won all the coin tosses? Turns out that wasn't true . In fact, according to the official count, Sen. Sanders won more coin tosses than Hillary Clinton.

Or how about the "90 precincts" with no chairs? Also untrue. Certainly there were precincts that took a while to report but once they all did, it was clear Hillary had won.

Now the Sanders campaign is disputing the reported results that were sent in by everyday Iowans - volunteers, no less! - to the Democratic Party. All three campaigns have checked the results of certain precincts against their own data reported to them from volunteers. That's normal. For the Sanders campaign's challenges, there are 7 total precincts they are questioning (out of a whopping total 1,681 precincts!) and the Iowa Democratic Party is checking the results on a few more. And they will follow the same standard procedure for these questions as they did for precincts we asked them to look at - they'll look at the numbers reported that night, check the math and figure out if there are any discrepancies or misallocation of delegates.

Here's the kicker. Even if the Sanders campaign were to win all of their challenges - the marginal bump they receive in support would not be enough to overcome Hillary Clinton's win margin. Those are just the facts.

Here's the math.

Total Precincts in Contest: 11 (7 from Sanders and 4 from the Iowa Democratic Party)
Total State Delegates being Contested: 1.7947 (not enough to change outcome)

If every contest were to go in the favor of Sanders:
HRC = -.775
Sanders = +.758
MOM = +.0166

It may be inconvenient for the Sanders campaign that Hillary Clinton won the Iowa caucus, but it's the truth. Eight years ago Hillary came in third here in Iowa and when she did, she congratulated the winner. We suggest Senator Sanders do the same.

On Thu, Feb 4, 2016 at 5:07 PM, John Podesta <jp66@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> +Teddy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 4, 2016, at 5:47 PM, Michael Halle <mhalle@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> On Thu, Feb 4, 2016 at 4:05 PM, Michael Halle <mhalle@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> Just talked to the IDP and have some good data here. First, Kathy Obradabadf;ljaksd from the DMR is writing a column on this to run either tomorrow or Sunday (we should have IDP push to have it run tomorrow) but that will give good ammo. We also need to push the IDP to release the below
>
> Total Precincts in Contest: 11 (7 from Sanders and 7 from Chairs)
> Total State Delegates being Contested: 1.7947 (not enough to change outcome
>
> If every contest were to go in the favor of Sanders:
> HRC = -.775
> Sanders = +.758
> MOM = +.0166
>
> On Thu, Feb 4, 2016 at 3:56 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> Sure
>
> From: Michael Halle [mailto:mhalle@hillaryclinton.com]
> Sent: Thursday, February 4, 2016 4:50 PM
> To: Kate Offerdahl <kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com >
> Cc: Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com>; Marc Elias <melias@perkinscoie.com >; Matt Paul <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >
>
> Subject: Re: HRC and DMR
>
> Are people fine to have Troy Price join this call too?
>
> I think we need to get our endorsers behind this and hard.
>
> On Thu, Feb 4, 2016 at 3:22 PM, Kate Offerdahl

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

<kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Let's do 5:30pm. Sending around a number now.

On Thu, Feb 4, 2016 at 4:07 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Adding Elias and adding Kate to see if she can set up a time for a call for us to discuss.

From: Lily Adams [mailto:ladams@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Thursday, February 4, 2016 4:05 PM
To: Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Matt Paul <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com >; Michael Halle <mhalle@hillaryclinton.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: Re: HRC and DMR

Same

Lily Adams

cell: (202) 368-4013

On Feb 4, 2016, at 2:58 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Free between now and 5 EST, then after 5:30 or so.

From: Jennifer Palmieri [mailto:jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Thursday, February 4, 2016 3:57 PM
To: Matt Paul <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com >; Michael Halle <mhalle@hillaryclinton.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >; Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: HRC and DMR

I just told her about them calling for an audit and Sanders campaign saying that they are looking at some inconsistencies.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

She is very upset about it – convinced they will try to take the victory away from her and wear the party down. She wants a big effort to fight here.

Suggest a call….

--

Michael Halle

(217)649-4726

--
Michael Halle
(217)649-4726

--
Michael Halle
(217)649-4726

--
Lily Adams
Iowa Communications Director
Hillary for America
c: 202-368-4013

NOTICE: This communication may contain privileged or other confidential information. If you have received it in error, please advise the sender by reply email and immediately delete the message and any attachments without copying or disclosing the contents. Thank you.

--
Lily Adams
Iowa Communications Director
Hillary for America
c: 202-368-4013

--
Rob Flaherty
Digital Communications
Hillary for America
Twitter: @Rob_Flaherty

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: john.podesta@gmail.com
To: hw6152@gmail.com
Date: 1/8/2016 1:08:10 PM
Subject: Fwd: Draft medium post on guns

Begin forwarded message:

> Hey everyone --
>
> Ron Klain wrote a riff for HRC and sent it to Teddy on guns. We thought it could make a strong Medium post from someone who could really speak to this issue (not HRC and not someone on our campaign).
>
> Here's the draft, which I edited and can personalize depending on who we want to use as an author. A survivor of gun violence? An advocate or family member?
>
> If we can find someone, and if folks want, we could get this posted today to Medium in someone's name (not us). Here it is, let me know your thoughts!
>
> https://docs.google.com/document/d/1wKuc610oUqEWuEZgYVBGk95wjlVjr39Q0yuaK3ytbv8/edit
>
> Hed:
>
> Byline:
>
> <<I'm an xyz and here's why this issue is really important to me>>
>
> This week, President Obama did something no president has ever done. He announced that he'll take new steps to take on the epidemic of gun violence in America—and not a moment too soon. Gunshots have now surpassed car crashes as a leading cause of death in our country. African Americans are four times more likely to die from a gunshot than any other cause. There were 330 mass shootings in 2015. And 147 people in the U.S. were killed by guns in just the first four days of 2016. We can't go on like this.
>
> Like most Americans, I'm grateful to President Obama for taking action, and calling on all of us—including responsible gun owners—to do the same. I'd expect nothing less from someone I voted for twice. And I expect nothing less from our next president.
> I like Senator Sanders, and there are a lot of issues where I agree with him. But when it comes to gun violence, he's not on my side—in fact, he's taken the side of the gun lobby.
>
> Senator Sanders talks about supporting gun violence measures. Today, his campaign even said that there is "zero daylight between the President and Senator Bernie Sanders on guns." But when you look at his voting record, his actions don't match his words.
>
> Senator Sanders voted against the Brady Bill five times. That's legislation that instituted federal background checks for gun sales, and has kept 2 million guns out of the hands of people who shouldn't have them. Senator Sanders voted against it. And against it. And against it. And against it. And against it.
>
> As it turns out, that's not even his worst vote on guns. He voted to make it more difficult to crack down on gun dealers who break the law. And he voted twice for a bill the head of the NRA called the most significant piece of pro-gun legislation in 20 years—legislation that gave gun manufacturers sweeping immunity for their actions.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The second time the bill came before Congress, President Obama—then a Senator from Illinois—and Hillary Clinton both voted against it.
Senator Sanders voted with the NRA. He said it was “complicated.”

In America, auto companies, food producers, toy companies, chemical companies—all of these industries have to take steps to make sure their product is being used correctly and safely. Not gun manufacturers. They’re able to make billions in profits, without being subject to the most basic safety standards. And when they make lethal products, they’re able to avoid facing any consequences whatsoever, or being held accountable to the people they hurt.

That’s not complicated. It’s wrong.
Senator Sanders has been pressed on this vote in every Democratic debate. And the truth is, even Hillary Clinton has cast votes she later said she regretted. So I’d understand if Senator Sanders would just stand up and say, “I got this one wrong. I made a mistake. I’m sorry.”
But he hasn’t. He’s defended the vote time and again. Three months ago, he said he would “consider” some changes to the law—but he hasn’t come forward with anything since. That means more than 8,000 Americans have died from gun violence since Senator Sanders told us he might change his position.
This week, President Obama wrote in the New York Times:

“Even as I continue to take every action possible as president, I will also take every action I can as a citizen. I will not campaign for, vote for or support any candidate, even in my own party, who does not support common-sense gun reform.”

The President is right. This should be an issue we vote on. And no American should be able to vote in good conscience for any candidate who is wrong on gun safety. And until he changes his position on immunity for gun sellers and gun makers, Senator Sanders is wrong on gun safety. And he’s the wrong candidate for President.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Strategy Memo \(via EndCitizensUnited.org\)" <admin@endcitizensunited.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	12/28/2015 5:47:54 PM
Subject:	It's a long email. But please read the whole thing.

ENDCITIZENSUNITED.ORG

John -- we realize your inbox is probably getting flooded right now with political email, but we really hope you'll take a minute to read this:

How strong is our grassroots campaign to end Citizens United?

End Citizens United PAC launched in March 2015 -- a brand new organization funded by grassroots donors. Over the course of the year, the outpouring of support has been stunning:

- 812,317 people have signed on as Citizen Co-Sponsors for the Constitutional Amendment to overturn Citizens United.
- 135,893 Founding Members have chipped in much needed support for our grassroots cause.
- $13.75: That's the average donation from our supporters across the country. Half as much as any of the presidential candidates.

John, that's an incredible response...but it's not enough. We have a hard internal goal of 20,000 Early 2016 Members before the Election Year begins -- and barely 72 hours to get there.

Chip in $5 or more to become one of our 20,000 Early 2016 Members and we'll send you an exclusive membership card in the mail >>

$5 >> $35 >>
$50 >> $100 >>
$250 >> Other >>

How is End Citizens United going to make change happen?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

End Citizens United is a Political Action Committee dedicated to overturning Citizens United. Our goal is to elect as many pro-reform Democrats to the House and Senate as we can.

We're also going to make campaign finance reform THE issue in next year's elections. To do that, we're building the staff and infrastructure we'll need to shine an enormous light on the dark money that is corrupting our electoral system.

This year, we endorsed nearly 7O Senate and House members. Here's what some of them have to say about End Citizens United PAC:

- Sen. Michael Bennet, U.S. Senator in Colorado: "End Citizens United PAC's work is critical to building a broad coalition pressuring lawmakers to pass the Constitutional Amendment to reverse Citizens United -- and to finally take action on campaign finance reform."
- Rep. Tammy Duckworth, Running for Senate in Illinois: "Proud to have the support of End Citizens United. All Americans should have an equal say in who represents them."
- Rep. Patrick Murphy, Running for Senate in Florida: "I was recently honored to receive the endorsement of End Citizens United, the grassroots movement to overturn the court's decision."

We're financially supporting Democrats who have pledged to fight for reform in Congress. By the end of the month, we'll have contributed more than $35O,OOO directly to our endorsed candidates -- and we've helped raise an additional $63,OOO for these candidates from small dollar donors (giving less than $10 on average).

Next year, we'll invest strategically in races where the Koch Brothers and related dark money groups are attacking our endorsed candidates. But we can only do it with your support.

Donate right now to help us elect pro-campaign finance reform champions in 2016 >>

Our work is getting noticed:

Media outlets including MSNBC, National Journal, and Roll Call recently profiled End Citizens United PAC to discuss the work we're doing to reform our broken system. Here's what they've had to say:

- MSNBC: "A new political action committee dedicated to campaign finance reform wants to be a big player in 2016, and it's planning to funnel tens of millions of dollars to Democratic candidates running in competitive House and Senate races across the country."
- Roll Call: "The group — which seeks to elect legislators who will fight for a repeal of the Citizens United court decision — found in their polling that candidates who want to repeal the 2010 court decision would fare better with voters in 2016."
- Mother Jones: "Two shadowy outifts are helping to bankroll Bush's candidacy" ... "These odd donations were first spotted by End Citizens United."

Why is our fight so critical?

The public backlash against the Citizens United ruling has continued to grow over the years -- despite efforts by some Republicans to glorify the case as a free-speech triumph (because they of course argue that corporations are people).

But the 2016 Election could be the watershed moment that finally leads to reform. Every Democrat running for President has drawn a hard line in the sand when it comes to Citizens

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

United.

And when we conducted scientific polls in two MAJOR Senate Battleground states, this is what voters had to say:

As we head into the Election Year, we need to do everything we can to spark a loud, national debate on curbing the influence of money in our elections

John, help us keep fighting for reform. Donate now to become a 2016 Member >>

Can we really take on the Koch Brothers' millions?

Yes. (otherwise we wouldn't send these emails!) But it certainly won't be easy.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

It'll take a powerful grassroots organization to reform our campaign finance system. And while we're off to a great start, we still have a long way to go.

We want to show the press, the public, the politicians, and the Kochs themselves that we're for real, and we're demanding real change. To do that, we need your help:

Chip in $5 or more today help us reach 20,000 Early 2016 Members and we'll send you our special edition card in the mail >>

$5 >> | $35 >>
$50 >> | $100 >>
$250 >> | Other >>

http://act.endcitizensunited.org/Pre-Order

We hope you're with us.

Thank you,

-the entire End Citizens United team

End Citizens United PAC
P.O. Box 66005
Washington, D.C. 20035

PAID FOR BY END CITIZENS UNITED PAC (ENDCITIZENSUNITED.ORG) AND NOT AUTHORIZED BY ANY CANDIDATE OR CANDIDATE'S COMMITTEE.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This message was sent to: podesta@law.georgetown.edu | Change or update your email address by clicking here.

Thank you for supporting End Citizens United PAC. We're proud to be funded exclusively by grassroots donors. Your support is critical to helping us counter the disastrous effects of Citizens United and reform our campaign finance system.

Emails are a crucial way to stay in touch with our top supporters. If we're going to pass a Constitutional Amendment to overturn this decision, we need you with us every step of the way.

If you'd still like to unsubscribe from our emails, click here . If you'd like to receive fewer emails, you can click here . If you'd like to donate to help fund our efforts to fix America's broken campaign finance system, please click here .

From the entire End Citizens United team, thanks for your support!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/11/2015 4:32:04 AM
Subject:	Fwd: Draft Media Prep Plan
Attachments:	Media Prep.docx

Sent from my iPad

Begin forwarded message:

> From: Kristina Schake <kristinakschake@gmail.com >
> Date: February 10, 2015 at 1:06:05 PM EST
> To: "Margolis, Jim" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, Jen Palmieri <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com >, Robert Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >
> Subject: Draft Media Prep Plan
>
> Attached is a draft media prep plan for your review. We have a 3:30 pm call today to discuss. We accelerated the first prep sessions to have two completed before her Feb 24 speech and Q & A with Kara Swisher. The schedule is:
>
> Feb 18 - Jen and I will meet with her and Huma to talk through past experiences and her needs going forward.
>
> Feb 19 - First group session. I will draft a diagnostic memo and circulate early next week that will be the basis for the first part of the session. We are preparing clips of her best interviews to show her. Also compiling her worst and analyzing for triggers and her reactions. Will circulate those early next week for your feedback and additions. Joel, your preliminary message architecture would be the second part of the session as now structured.
>
> The next sessions are not scheduled yet. Looking forward to your thoughts and suggestions. Thanks, Kristina

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Michael Bennet" <info@bennetforcolorado.com>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	2/27/2015 11:09:23 AM
Subject:	Turn the volume way up

BENNET
FOR COLORADO

Friends,

In 2014, you couldn't watch a Broncos game without being bombarded with nasty attacks.

That's because special interests shattered outside spending records in Colorado – and $23 million worth of negative attack ads against Mark Udall dominated Colorado's airwaves and helped hand the Senate to extremists.

"Dark money" groups will only air more false attacks to defeat us and protect their interests in the Senate. The Kochs' network alone is scheming to spend nearly $1 billion.

This isn't only about defeating ideologues; it's about protecting our values, and we have to be ready. Please, we need your help to raise $15,000 in the next 48 hours to build a campaign that can overcome every attack. Will you give $5 or more now and become one of our first 2015 grassroots supporters?

If you've saved payment info with ActBlue Express, your donation will go through immediately:

Click to donate $5.

Click to donate $25.

Click to donate $50.

Or click here to donate another amount.

Mark my words, friends: Big-money outside interests are going to turn the volume way up this cycle.

If we're going to retake the Senate, we have to be ready. Voters share our commitment to protecting our natural resources, innovating toward a 21st-century economy, and making it easier for all kids to earn a college education.

But we have to push our message out over all the lies and false attacks. Join us. Give now to help us raise $15,000 and launch a grassroots-powered campaign to win in Colorado and take back the Senate.

Thank you,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Michael

Contribute

This email was sent to podesta@law.georgetown.edu.
To unsubscribe from the Bennet for Colorado email list, please click here.

Paid for by Bennet for Colorado

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Kim Matthews" <mattheky@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	Announcements <Announcements@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	8/6/2014 6:30:56 AM
Subject:	Misc supplies

Are gone!

Thanks.

Kim

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Stephanie Hannon" <hannon@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Teddy Goff" <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	5/9/2015 11:31:36 AM
Subject:	Computer science education — follow up from LinkedIn finance event

Teddy:

The founders of code.org are eager to see Hillary make statements in support of computer science education and to have us participate in the hour of code. They put together some info below, include stats on jobs in our first four states.

Can you advise me on if / how it would be appropriate to discuss / debate inside the campaign?

I cc'ed John on this email since this was a hot topic at the Reid Hoffman / LinkedIn finance event and there was incredible support for Ali's request by the entrepreneurs / Silicon Valley leaders in the room. It seems worthwhile to have a response to these guys.

Thanks,
Steph

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Hadi Partovi <hadipartovi@code.org >
Date: Fri, May 8, 2015 at 6:23 PM
Subject: Re: Computer Science: meet Hadi Partovi (Code.org)
To: eyekutiel@hillaryclinton.com , Stephanie Hannon <Hannon@hillaryclinton.com >, lroitman@hillaryclinton.com

Stephanie, we were separately introduced by jocelyn goldfein. Manny, I didn't expect our paths to cross so quickly :)

Just to expand on what Ali wrote. There are currently 600,000 open jobs in this field, across every state. There are more jobs than graduates in almost every congressional district.

One easy way for Hillary to engage is to work with us around the Hour of Code campaign. Last year President Obama hosted an Hour of Code at the White House. This year we have some really big plans involved, with a special focus on women in computer science, which would be a perfect fit for Hillary's involvement.

That said, I believe this is a broadly bi-partisan, popular issue that could call for MUCH more than just a marketing stunt. There's opportunity for a bipartisan sputnik-moment call to action that the whole country can get behind.

One thing to consider, Any time Hillary says "STEM", if she instead said "Computer science" she'd have more voters understand and support her.

Of course, STEM is critically important to our country. However, STEM is not where the job growth is or where the gender disparity is. STEM is also not where the H1B skilled immigration problem is .

And finally, for winning an election, "STEM" is not what voters react to. Below are some simple poll results we got from a 18+ US audience:

> Do you know what STEM education means?
> 77% NO
> 23% YES

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Do you know what "computer science" means?
69% YES
31% NO

Is STEM education important?
44% I'm not sure what that is
34% YES
22% NO

Is computer science education important?
69% YES
18% NO
13% I'm not sure what that is

This is a very bi-partisan topic. Republicans strongly support computer science, and with the growing threat of cybercrime it's increasingly \ an issue of national security.

Aside from the story of the Arkansas governor who won a campaign on computer science, we've had 16 states pass legislation or policy changes for computer science, almost always with near-unanimous votes of support. In Washington state, 91% of the population answered "Yes" on a poll asking if it's important to expand access to computer science. Many other states have similar levels of support.

I'd love to work with the Clinton campaign to help sharpen a focus on this issue. Even if it's just participation in a marketing gimmick around the Hour of Code.

hadi partovi

On Fri, May 8, 2015 at 9:48 AM, Ali Partovi <ali@partovi.org > wrote:

> Manny, Lindsey, & Stephanie,
> (cc: Hadi Partovi, Reid Hoffman)
>
> Thanks for the "town hall" at LinkedIn. I'm the guy who spoke up about Computer Science education.
>
> I've been giving Stephanie an earful, with powerful stats to back it up. I'm copying the rest of you to intro Hadi Partovi of Code.org and to emphasize that this is not about "technology" or "Silicon Valley."
>
> Computer Science is about jobs and equity in every state in America, and it wins elections.
>
> There are 5,000 open computing jobs in Iowa; 2,000 in New Hampshire; 4,000 in South Carolina; 3,000 in Nevada. Like every state in the union, their economies desperately need more Computer Science. This is an historic opportunity to lift up an entire generation of young Americans, a chance to level the playing field and rebuild the American Dream.
>
> Computer Science is real and resonates with voters (far more than "STEM"). Computer Science helped win the recent election in Arkansas for Gov. Asa Hutchinson (R). Whichever candidate embraces it first will be seen as a visionary leader when it comes to about jobs, economic growth, and America's future.
>
> The world's best champion for this topic is Hadi Partovi, my twin brother and co-founder of Code.org. Under his leadership, Code.org has helped reform education standards in 18 states, has partnered with America's largest school districts to train 25,000 teachers, and has built an enormous movement around the "Hour of Code," touching 100 million students worldwide.
>
> Ali

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Iowa

5,186 open computing jobs
(growing at 3.3x the state average)

600 computer science graduates

33 schools teach computer science

- CS doesn't count as math or science credit
- No clear CS teacher certification pathways
- No CS curriculum standards

Download Iowa fact-sheet

Iowa is one of 25 states where students can't count computer science for credit towards high school graduation.

New Hampshire

2,285 open computing jobs
(growing at 3.0x the state average)

331 computer science graduates

24 schools teach computer science

- CS doesn't count as math or science credit
- No clear CS teacher certification pathways
- No CS curriculum standards

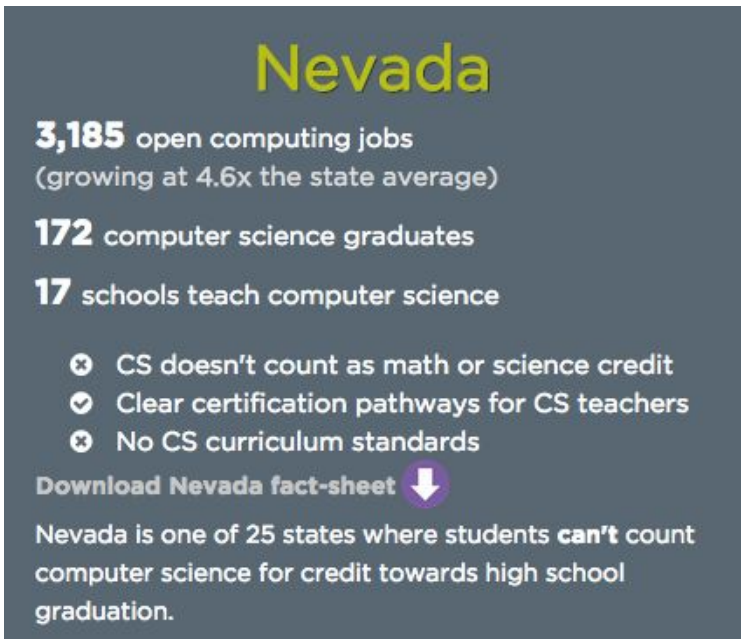
Download New Hampshire fact-sheet

New Hampshire is one of 25 states where students can't count computer science for credit towards high school graduation.

South Carolina

4,445 open computing jobs
(growing at 3.8x the state average)

487 computer science graduates



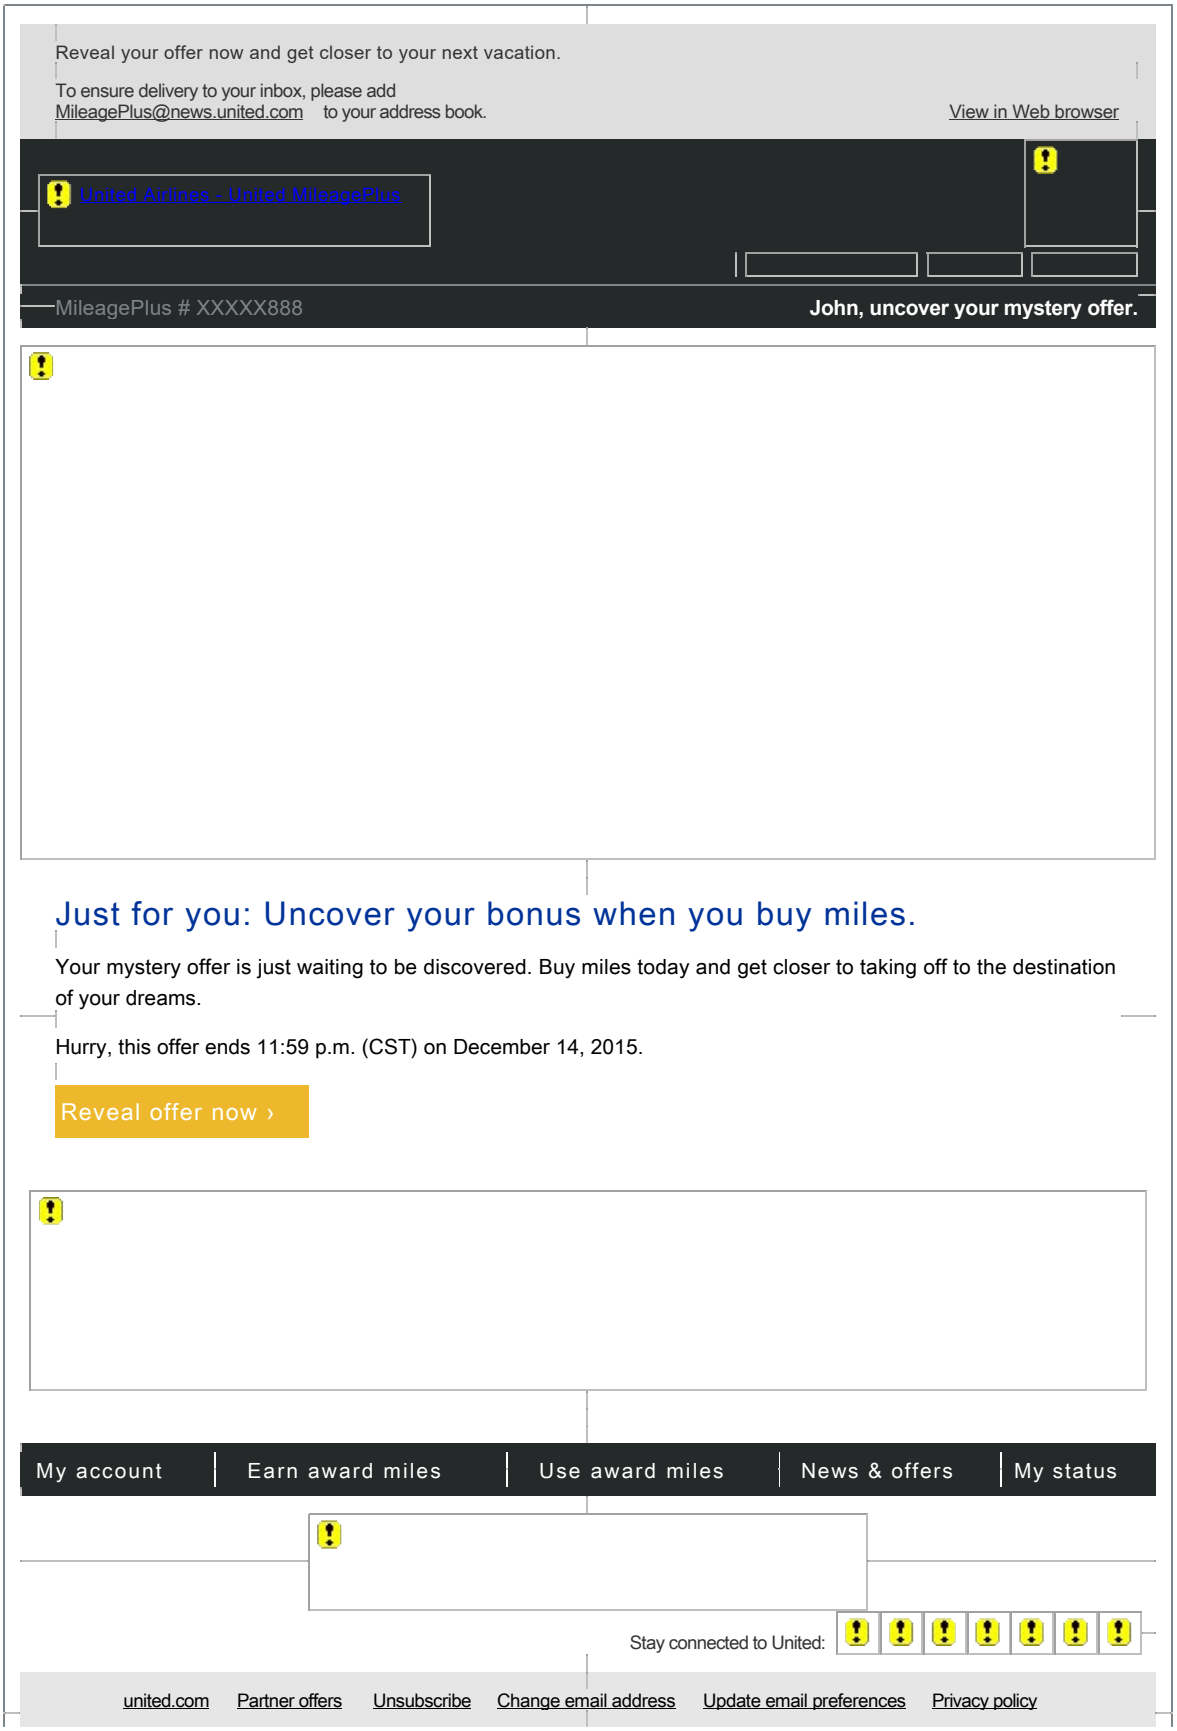
51 schools teach computer science

- CS doesn't count as math or science credit
- No clear CS teacher certification pathways
- No CS curriculum standards

Download South Carolina fact-sheet

South Carolina is one of 25 states where students can't count computer science for credit towards high school graduation.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.



This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	podesta.mary@gmail.com
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/1/2016 11:52:27 AM
Subject:	Lots of luck

Hope it all looks good. We are at Ken Cen for ballet that starts at 7pm.

Love
Mary

From: "MileagePlus Program" <MileagePlus@news.united.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 12/10/2015 11:29:42 AM
Subject: Final days left: Get up to 60%, 70%, 75% or 80% bonus miles

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Terms and conditions

- Promotional offer valid until 11:59 p.m. CST (Central Standard Time) on December 14, 2015.
- Miles are available in increments of 1,000 up to a maximum of 80,000 miles.
- Bonus Miles will be credited to the recipient's account when the transaction is complete.
- Bonus miles count towards the 150,000 mile annual limit per account.
- Purchase up to 150,000 miles per account per calendar year.
- Credit card will be billed immediately upon purchase.
- Mileage rates and other fees and offer terms are subject to change.
- Allow 48 hours for miles to process and post to your MileagePlus account.
- Miles are nonrefundable.
- Purchased miles do not count toward MileagePlus Premier® status.
- All MileagePlus Program Rules and terms and conditions apply.
- GST/HST is charged to Canadian residents.
- Powered by Points to purchase United MileagePlus miles. Transaction will appear as 'Points United Miles'.

See frequently asked questions about buying miles.

Award pricing is subject to change without notice. Passenger is responsible for all taxes, fees, baggage fees and surcharges applicable to award travel, including, with respect to government imposed taxes and fees, passenger facility charges (PFCs) of up to $18.00 per round trip; September 11th Security Fee of $5.60 per one-way trip that does not include a government defined stopover, for awards for air transportation originating at an airport in the US; U.S. segment tax of $4.00 for each domestic segment (take-off and landing); U.S. excise tax of $17.70 for each international arrival and departure in the U.S.; U.S. inspection fees of up to $17.50 for each arrival in the U.S.; and non-U.S. government ticket taxes, fees and airport charges may add up to $275 per ticket as of January 1, 2015 . Such taxes, fees and surcharges must be paid at the time of ticketing and are subject to change. Any valid unused award ticket may be returned to the MileagePlus Service Center, for a service charge, up to one year from the date of issue. Award seats are subject to availability and capacity-control restrictions apply. For more information on MileagePlus award travel visit united.com/awards .

Miles accrued, awards, and benefits issued are subject to change and are subject to the rules of the United MileagePlus® program, including without limitation the Premier® program (the "MileagePlus Program"), which are expressly incorporated herein. Please allow 6-8 weeks after completed qualifying activity for miles to post to your account. United® may change the MileagePlus Program including, but not limited to, rules, regulations, travel awards and special offers or terminate the MileagePlus Program at any time and without notice. United and its subsidiaries, affiliates and agents are not responsible for any products or services of other participating companies and partners. Taxes and fees related to award travel are the responsibility of the member. Bonus award miles, award miles and any other miles earned through non-flight activity do not count toward qualification for Premier status unless expressly stated otherwise. The accumulation of mileage or Premier status or any other status does not entitle members to any vested rights with respect to the MileagePlus Program. All calculations made in connection with the MileagePlus Program, including without limitation with respect to the accumulation of mileage and the satisfaction of the qualification requirements for Premier status, will be made by United Airlines® and MileagePlus in their discretion and such calculations will be considered final. Information in this communication that relates to the MileagePlus Program does not purport to be complete or comprehensive and may not include all of the information that a member may believe is important, and is qualified in its entirety by reference to all of the information on the united.com website and the MileagePlus Program rules. United and MileagePlus are registered service marks. For complete details about the MileagePlus Program, go to united.com .

See additional MileagePlus terms and conditions .

C000011786 12761 ET02

Don't miss the latest emails; add MileagePlus@news.united.com .
This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com by United Airlines.
Please do not reply to this email. We cannot accept electronic replies to this email address.
Email mileageplus@united.com with any questions about your MileagePlus account or the MileagePlus program.

To contact the sender, write to:
United MileagePlus
900 Grand Plaza Dr.
Houston, TX 77067

© 2015 United Airlines, Inc. All rights reserved.

A STAR ALLIANCE MEMBER

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Christina Reynolds" <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Adrienne Elrod" <aelrod@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	11/14/2015 8:54:10 AM
Subject:	Re: Talkers tp's

Adding Adrienne and Paola. We sent some out before Paris. Can you get John the ct talking points?

> On Nov 14, 2015, at 3:52 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> have we sent anything out? Can you make sure I'm on the list.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Tommy Christopher" <tommyxtopher@gmail.com>
To: "John Graham" <jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com>
Date: 9/23/2015 4:28:56 AM
Subject: Re: FW: Baseball Legend Yogi Berra Dies

Couldn't agree more. There should be a picture of Yogi next to the word "baseball" in the dictionary.

On Wed, Sep 23, 2015 at 11:03 AM, John Graham <jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com > wrote:

> With all due respect , Yogi was perhaps the great Yankee of them all. YOGI BERRA forever young.
>
> John F.X. Graham, CEO
> FAIRVIEW INSURANCE AGENCY ASSOCIATES
> 25 Fairview Ave
> Verona, NJ 07044
> Tel: 973-857-0870
> Fax: 973-857-9645
> www.fairviewinsurance.com
> jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com
>
> Please access our website at www.fairviewinsurance.com to see a complete list of our services.
>
> Internet e-mail confidentiality: Privileged/confidential information may be contained in this message. If you are not the addressee indicated in this message, or responsible for delivery of this message to such person, you may not copy or deliver this message to anyone. In such case you should destroy this message and kindly notify the sender by e-mail. Thank you.
>
> From: Shivaun Gaines [mailto:gainess@mail.montclair.edu]
> Sent: Wednesday, September 23, 2015 8:24 AM
> To: John Graham <jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com >
> Subject: Re: Baseball Legend Yogi Berra Dies
>
> John;
> Your words are always welcomed and appreciated!
> Stay Lifted,
>
> On 9/23/2015 8:03 AM, John Graham wrote:
>
> > When you come to a fork in the road , take it!...coached his grandson Larry [yogi`s real name] in Livingston t-ball. Michael had number 8 as his team number and gave it to Larry. Yogi`s grand-daughter Lindsay was a friend and graduated with Ryan from Livingston H.S.. Yogi Berra , one of the greats . Gene Korf , Chair of the Irving- Lorie Foundation, and his son Scott ,a board member, are major contributors in a multitude of ways to the Yogi Berra museum at Montclair State University. Dr. Susan Cole , President of the prestigious Montclair State University , was the initiator of the Yogi Berra Museum . Great history for a ballplayer who transcended the game!
> >
> > John F.X. Graham, CEO
> > FAIRVIEW INSURANCE AGENCY ASSOCIATES
> > 25 Fairview Ave

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Verona, NJ 07044

Tel: 973-857-0870

Fax: 973-857-9645

www.fairviewinsurance.com

jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com

Please access our website at www.fairviewinsurance.com to see a complete list of our services.

Internet e-mail confidentiality: Privileged/confidential information may be contained in this message. If you are not the addressee indicated in this message, or responsible for delivery of this message to such person, you may not copy or deliver this message to anyone. In such case you should destroy this message and kindly notify the sender by e-mail. Thank you.

From: Cheryl Graham
Sent: Wednesday, September 23, 2015 7:41 AM
To: John Graham <jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com>
Subject: Fwd: Baseball Legend Yogi Berra Dies

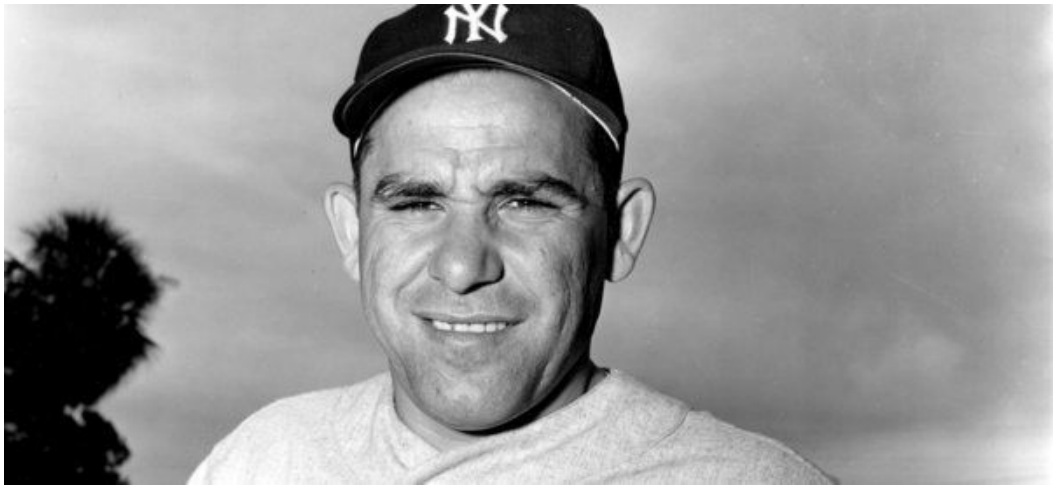
:(

Cheryl Graham

Fairview Insurance Agency

Begin forwarded message:

> From: Huffington Post <dailybrief@huffingtonpost.com >
> Date: September 23, 2015 at 2:58:39 AM EDT
> To: <cgraham@fairviewinsurance.com >
> Subject: Baseball Legend Yogi Berra Dies



This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

View in Browser

BREAKING NEWS

Wednesday September 23, 2015

Baseball Legend Yogi Berra Dies

Yogi Berra, catcher of the New York Yankees, poses during spring training at St. Petersburg, Fla., on Feb. 27, 1954. (AP Photo)

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baseball Hall-of-Famer Yogi Berra, a three-time MVP and member of 10 World Series championship teams as a player, has died at the age of 90.

READ MORE

THE HUFFINGTON POST

Follow HuffPost on Facebook and Twitter:

Get Huffington Post on the Go

Know something we don't? E-mail us at dailybrief@huffingtonpost.com

Unsubscribe | Forward | MANAGE MY ALERTS

Huffington Post, 770 Broadway, New York, NY 10003

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--

Shivaun Gaines, Director
Office of Government Relations
Office of the President
973-655-7648
gainess@mail.montclair.edu

Montclair State University
IT'S ALL HERE.

1 NORMAL AVE | MONTCLAIR, NEW JERSEY | 07043

--

Tommy Christopher
The Daily Banter
732-865-4817

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "GARCETTI FOR MAYOR" <info@ericgarcetti.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 8/9/2012 3:01:48 PM
Subject: Sign the Petition to Prevent Gun Violence

Eric Garcetti FOR MAYOR 2013

Dear Friend:

As we mourn the victims of Sunday's shooting spree at a Sikh house of worship, we are also reminded that it is too easy for guns to fall into the wrong hands.

While nothing may have stopped this event or the recent theater shooting in Colorado, it is clear that the status quo must change.

The Brady Campaign to Prevent Gun Violence has called on each member of Congress to agree that convicted felons, convicted domestic abusers, terrorists and people found to be dangerously mentally ill have no business carrying a gun. Please click here to tell Congress you want them to enact common sense legislation to stop gun violence.

Please click here to send Congress a clear message -- and please share this email with your friends, family and co-workers so they can join us, too.

Thank you.

-Eric

Paid for by Garcetti for Mayor 2013
FPPC ID# 1341339
22647 Ventura Blvd. #301 Los Angeles, CA 91364

GARCETTI FOR MAYOR
http://www.ericgarcetti.com/

Eric Garcetti- Los Angeles Mayor 2013
United States

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com . Unsubcribe . | Created with NationBuilder .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ana Maria Coronel" <acoronel@clintonfoundation.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	11/8/2011 5:02:12 AM
Subject:	RE: FW: Question for John

Thanks. Adding Jean-Marc to this email.

-----Original Message-----
From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, November 08, 2011 12:02 PM
To: Ana Maria Coronel
Subject: Re: FW: Question for John

Ana,
Can you let Jean-Marc know that I will talk to Bruce and get him an answer on this tomorrow. His direct email didn't come thru to me on the forward.
John

On Tue, Nov 8, 2011 at 10:25 AM, Ana Maria Coronel <acoronel@clintonfoundation.org> wrote:
>
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Jean-Marc Villain
> Sent: Tuesday, November 08, 2011 7:45 AM
> To: Ana Maria Coronel
> Subject: Question for John
>
> Hi Ana,
>
> As you may know, as Manager of the Haiti Development Fund, LLC, I report directly to Bruce. Although I was on the call yesterday at 2, connection was spotty from Haiti and I never had the opportunity to ask questions. My question for John is that will he be taking over Bruce's position as member of the Investment Committee? I planned to send notice to the Committee to schedule a meeting to consider taking action on a pending transaction and the presentation of 8 investment opportunities (teasers) totaling $12.3 million with a potential of 2,775 prospective new jobs. I held off sending the notice because I wanted to brief John first on these pending matters. I am available to do so at his convenience. Please let me know.
>
> Best,
>
> Jean-Marc
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: Ana Maria Coronel
> Sent: Monday, November 07, 2011 3:55 PM
> To: Ana Maria Coronel; Laura Graham; 55 and 77 Staff; LittleRock - Staff; CGI NY Staff; CHAI and WJCF Boston Office All; Ginny Ehrlich
> Subject: RE:
>
> For all of you who had questions during the all-staff call, please send them to me and I will get them to Mr. Podesta. I'm sorry we had the conference phone on mute.
>
> Thanks,
> Ana
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Guy Cecil" <ghcecil@gmail.com>
Date:	4/26/2015 2:38:54 AM
Subject:	Re:

Call you then.

On Apr 26, 2015 9:38 AM, "Guy Cecil" <ghcecil@gmail.com > wrote:

> Sure. Cell is 202-246-4632 . 3:00-6:00 is best. I could do earlier but headed to church and then have a church board meeting. I figured now is not the time to shortchange the prayer department.
>
> On Apr 26, 2015, at 9:33 AM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > Yes. Can I call you? Best number and window?
> >
> > On Sunday, April 26, 2015, Guy Cecil <ghcecil@gmail.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Have time to connect this afternoon, after 2:30?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Brent Budowsky" <brentbbi@webtv.net>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/28/2015 4:16:53 PM
Subject:	NYT Bill Clinton story

Granted that Amy Chozick will not go down in the history of great political reporters, it get tiring enduring stories about the brilliant opinions of "The Clinton Team.". Amy insults Bill Clinton by making him look like a geriatric case who needs to be controlled by consultants, and the consultants insult Hillary Clinton by making her look like a candidate whose heart, brain and husband are managed by consultants. "The Clinton Team" is diminishing both Bill and Hillary Clinton and it is not good. Bill Clinton is the Babe Ruth of politics and it is idiocy--and wrong---for him to be insulted by "The Clinton Team" in the New York Times. Brent

Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	6/19/2015 6:15:16 PM
Subject:	Re: HRC @ U.S. Conference of Mayors

Looks great! I'm ok with the Obama guns line.

> On Jun 20, 2015, at 12:42 AM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> Team, sorry to send this around so late. Would welcome your thoughts on this speech for the mayors on Saturday in California.
> (There are a few graphs in brackets that we could keep or lose.)
> Thanks
> Dan
> <2015-06-20 Mayors 1230am.docx>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/16/2016 1:35:29 PM
Subject:	Missed Call: Zoe Lofgren Call

Left a VM- is concerned that the Republicans are building a new attack on HRC based on something from 2012 or 2013. There's a hearing scheduled.

Call her at HOME in CA tonight: 408-275-1648
Cell: 408-271-8700

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Gene Karpinski" <Josh_Hicks@lcv.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/18/2012 2:37:27 AM
Subject:	Last Chance: EMC Call with Senators-elect Elizabeth Warren and Tim Kaine

LEAGUE OF CONSERVATION VOTERS

John,

I would like to invite you to join the League of Conservation Voters for a special Environmental Majority Council conference call with Senators-elect Elizabeth Warren and Tim Kaine on Tuesday, December 18th from 1:30pm to 2:30pm ET.

This is a great opportunity to hear directly from two of the new environmental champions that you helped send to the U.S. Senate. You will also have a chance to pose questions to them during the call.

I hope you are able to join us on Tuesday, December 18th from 1:30pm to 2:30pm ET. If you haven't already, please RSVP to receive the call-in number by contacting Josh Hicks at (202) 454-4565 or Josh_Hicks@lcv.org .

Sincerely,

Gene Karpinski
President, League of Conservation Voters

This invitation is not transferable.

Update Your Profile
To Unsubscribe Click Here

1920 L Street, NW Suite 800
Washington, DC 20036
202-785-8683

POWERED BY blackbaud nonprofit software

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Gabe Podesta" <gpodesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Megan Rouse" <meganrouse@gmail.com>
	"Mary Podesta" <podesta.mary@gmail.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	11/7/2014 5:21:57 AM
Subject:	Seattle

Surprisingly beautiful weather today.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ross Offinger" <ross@kirstengillibrand.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/23/2010 2:19:24 AM
Subject:	front page of the NY Times

John --

I want to make sure you don't miss this morning's must-read article in The New York Times. It sums up so much of what we have known all along. Kirsten is something special...and she is just getting started!

Click here to read this great front page article.

Thanks,
Ross Offinger

Contribute

This message was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com. To unsubscribe from the Gillibrand for Senate email list, please click here.

PAID FOR BY GILLIBRAND FOR SENATE

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jim Ainsworth" <jainsworth1@comcast.net>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 5/24/2015 4:45:02 PM
Subject: Nomi Prins: The Clintons and Their Banker Friends

Nomi Prins: The Clintons and Their Banker Friends

by Nomi Prins

The past, especially the political past, doesnt just provide clues to the present. In the realm of the presidency and Wall Street, it provides an ongoing pathway for political-financial relationships and policies that remain a threat to the American economy going forward.

When Hillary Clinton video-announced her bid for the Oval Office, she claimed she wanted to be a champion for the American people. Since then, she has attempted to recast herself as a populist and distance herself from some of the policies of her husband. But Bill Clinton did not become president without sharing the friendships, associations, and ideologies of the elite banking sect, nor will Hillary Clinton. Such relationships run too deep and are too longstanding.

To grasp the dangers that the Big Six Banks (JPMorgan Chase, Citigroup, Bank of America, Wells Fargo, Goldman Sachs, and Morgan Stanley) presently pose to the financial stability of our nation and the world, you need to understand their history in Washington, starting with the Clinton years of the 1990s. Alliances established then (not exclusively with Democrats, since bankers are bipartisan by nature) enabled these firms to become as politically powerful as they are today and to exert that power over an unprecedented amount of capital. Rest assured of one thing: their past and present CEOs will prove as critical in backing a Hillary Clinton presidency as they were in enabling her husbands years in office.

In return, todays titans of finance and their hordes of lobbyists, more than half of whom held prior positions in the government, exact certain requirements from Washington. They need to know that a safety net or bailout will always be available in times of emergency and that the regulatory road will be open to whatever practices they deem most profitable.

Whatever her populist pitch may be in the 2016 campaign and she will have one note that, in all these years, Hillary Clinton has not publicly condemned Wall Street or any individual Wall Street leader. Though she may, in the heat of that campaign, raise the bad-apples or bad-situation explanation for Wall Streets role in the financial crisis of 2007-2008, rest assured that she will not point fingers at her friends. She will not chastise the people that pay her hundreds of thousands of dollars a pop to speak or the ones that have long shared the social circles in which she and her husband move. She is an undeniable component of the Clinton political-financial legacy that came to national fruition more than 23 years ago, which is why looking back at the history of the first Clinton presidency is likely to tell you so much about the shape and character of the possible second one.

The 1992 Election and the Rise of Bill Clinton

Challenging President George H.W. Bush, who was seeking a second term, Arkansas

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Governor Bill Clinton announced he would seek the 1992 Democratic nomination for the presidency on October 2, 1991. The upcoming presidential election would not, however, turn out to alter the path of mergers or White House support for deregulation that was already in play one iota.

First, though, Clinton needed money. A consummate fundraiser in his home state, he cleverly amassed backing and established early alliances with Wall Street. One of his key supporters would later change American banking forever. As Clinton put it, he received invaluable early support from Ken Brody, a Goldman Sachs executive seeking to delve into Democratic politics. Brody took Clinton to a dinner with high-powered New York businesspeople, including Bob Rubin, whose tightly reasoned arguments for a new economic policy, Clinton later wrote, made a lasting impression on me.

The battle for the White House kicked into high gear the following fall. William Schreyer, chairman and CEO of Merrill Lynch, showed his support for Bush by giving the maximum personal contribution to his campaign committee permitted by law: $1,000. But he wanted to do more. So when one of Bushs fundraisers solicited him to contribute to the Republican National Committees nonfederal, or soft money, account, Schreyer made a $100,000 donation.

The bankers alliances remained divided among the candidates at first, as they considered which man would be best for their own power trajectories, but their donations were plentiful: mortgage and broker company contributions were $1.2 million; 46% to the GOP and 54% to the Democrats. Commercial banks poured in $14.8 million to the 1992 campaigns at a near 50-50 split.

Clinton, like every good Democrat, campaigned publicly against the bankers: Its time to end the greed that consumed Wall Street and ruined our S&Ls [Savings and Loans] in the last decade, he said. But equally, he had no qualms about taking money from the financial sector. In the early months of his campaign, BusinessWeek estimated that he received $2 million of his initial $8.5 million in contributions from New York, under the care of Ken Brody.

If I had a Ken Brody working for me in every state, Id be like the Maytag man with nothing to do, said Rahm Emanuel, who ran Clintons nationwide fundraising committee and later became Barack Obamas chief of staff. Wealthy donors and prospective fundraisers were invited to a select series of intimate meetings with Clinton at the plush Manhattan office of the prestigious private equity firm Blackstone.

Robert Rubin Comes to Washington

Clinton knew that embracing the bankers would help him get things done in Washington, and what he wanted to get done dovetailed nicely with their desires anyway. To facilitate his policies and maintain ties to Wall Street, he selected a man who had been instrumental to his campaign, Robert Rubin, as his economic adviser.

In 1980, Rubin had landed on Goldman Sachs management committee alongside fellow Democrat Jon Corzine. A decade later, Rubin and Stephen Friedman were appointed cochairmen of Goldman Sachs. Rubins political aspirations met an appropriate opportunity when Clinton captured the White House.

On January 25, 1993, Clinton appointed him as assistant to the president for economic policy. Shortly thereafter, the president created a unique role for his comrade, head of the newly created National Economic Council. I asked Bob Rubin to take on a new job, Clinton later wrote, coordinating economic policy in the White House as Chairman of the National Economic Council, which would operate in much the same way the National Security

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Council did, bringing all the relevant agencies together to formulate and implement policy [I]f he could balance all of [Goldman Sachs] egos and interests, he had a good chance to succeed with the job. (Ten years later, President George W. Bush gave the same position to Rubins old partner, Friedman.)

Back at Goldman, Jon Corzine, co-head of fixed income, and Henry Paulson, co-head of investment banking, were ascending through the ranks. They became co-CEOs when Friedman retired at the end of 1994.

Those two men were the perfect bipartisan duo. Corzine was a staunch Democrat serving on the International Capital Markets Advisory Committee of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York (from 1989 to 1999). He would co-chair a presidential commission for Clinton on capital budgeting between 1997 and 1999, while serving in a key role on the Borrowing Advisory Committee of the Treasury Department. Paulson was a well connected Republican and Harvard graduate who had served on the White House Domestic Council as staff assistant to the president in the Nixon administration.

Bankers Forge Ahead

By May 1995, Rubin was impatiently warning Congress that the Glass-Steagall Act could conceivably impede safety and soundness by limiting revenue diversification. Banking deregulation was then inching through Congress. As they had during the previous Bush administration, both the House and Senate Banking Committees had approved separate versions of legislation to repeal Glass-Steagall, the 1933 Act passed by the administration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt that had separated deposit-taking and lending or commercial bank activities from speculative or investment bank activities, such as securities creation and trading. Conference negotiations had fallen apart, though, and the effort was stalled.

By 1996, however, other industries, representing core clients of the banking sector, were already being deregulated. On February 8, 1996, Clinton signed the Telecom Act, which killed many independent and smaller broadcasting companies by opening a national market for cross-ownership. The result was mass mergers in that sector advised by banks.

Deregulation of companies that could transport energy across state lines came next. Before such deregulation, state commissions had regulated companies that owned power plants and transmission lines, which worked together to distribute power. Afterward, these could be divided and effectively traded without uniform regulation or responsibility to regional customers. This would lead to blackouts in California and a slew of energy derivatives, as well as trades at firms such as Enron that used the energy business as a front for fraudulent deals.

The number of mergers and stock and debt issuances ballooned on the back of all the deregulation that eliminated barriers that had kept companies separated. As industries consolidated, they also ramped up their complex transactions and special purpose vehicles (off-balance-sheet, offshore constructions tailored by the banking community to hide the true nature of their debts and shield their profits from taxes). Bankers kicked into overdrive to generate fees and create related deals. Many of these blew up in the early 2000s in a spate of scandals and bankruptcies, causing an earlier millennium recession.

Meanwhile, though, bankers plowed ahead with their advisory services, speculative enterprises, and deregulation pursuits. President Clinton and his team would soon provide them an epic gift, all in the name of U.S. global power and competitiveness. Robert Rubin would steer the White House ship to that goal.

On February 12, 1999, Rubin found a fresh angle to argue on behalf of banking deregulation. He addressed the House Committee on Banking and Financial Services, claiming that, the problem U.S. financial services firms face abroad is more one of access than lack of competitiveness.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He was referring to the European banks increasing control of distribution channels into the European institutional and retail client base. Unlike U.S. commercial banks, European banks had no restrictions keeping them from buying and teaming up with U.S. or other securities firms and investment banks to create or distribute their products. He did not appear concerned about the destruction caused by sizeable financial bets throughout Europe. The international competitiveness argument allowed him to focus the committee on what needed to be done domestically in the banking sector to remain competitive.

Rubin stressed the necessity of HR 665, the Financial Services Modernization Act of 1999, or the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act, that was officially introduced on February 10, 1999. He saic it took fundamental actions to modernize our financial system by repealing the Glass-Steagall Act prohibitions on banks affiliating with securities firms and repealing the Bank Holding Company Act prohibitions on insurance underwriting.

The Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act Marches Forward

On February 24, 1999, in more testimony before the Senate Banking Committee, Rubin pushed for fewer prohibitions on bank affiliates that wanted to perform the same functions as their larger bank holding company, once the different types of financial firms could legally merge. That minor distinction would enable subsidiaries to place all sorts of bets and house all sorts of junk under the false premise that they had the same capital beneath them as their parent. The idea that a subsidiarys problems cant taint or destroy the host, or bank holding company, or create catastrophic risk, is a myth perpetuated by bankers and political enablers that continues to this day.

Rubin had no qualms with mega-consolidations across multiple service lines. His real problems were those of his banker friends, which lay with the financial modernization bills prohibition on the use of subsidiaries by larger banks. The bankers wanted the right to establish off-book subsidiaries where they could hide risks, and profits, as needed.

Again, Rubin decided to use the notion of remaining competitive with foreign banks to make his point. This technicality was unacceptable to the administration, he said, not least because foreign banks underwrite and deal in securities through subsidiaries in the United States, and U.S. banks [already] conduct securities and merchant banking activities abroac through so-called Edge subsidiaries. Rubin got his way. These off-book, risky, and barely regulated subsidiaries would be at the forefront of the 2008 financial crisis.

On March 1, 1999, Senator Phil Gramm released a final draft of the Financial Services Modernization Act of 1999 and scheduled committee consideration for March 4th. A bevy of excited financial titans who were close to Clinton, including Travelers CEO Sandy Weill, Bank of America CEO, Hugh McColl, and American Express CEO Harvey Golub, called for swift congressional action.

The Quintessential Revolving-Door Man

The stock market continued its meteoric rise in anticipation of a banker-friendly conclusion to the legislation that would deregulate their industry. Rising consumer confidence reflected the nations fondness for the markets and lack of empathy with the rest of the worlds economic plight. On March 29, 1999, the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed above 10,000 for the first time. Six weeks later, on May 6th, the Financial Services Modernization Act passed the Senate. It legalized, after the fact, the merger that created the nations biggest bank. Citigroup, the marriage of Citibank and Travelers, had been finalized the previous October.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

It was not until that point that one of Glass-Steagalls main assassins decided to leave Washington. Six days after the bill passed the Senate, on May 12, 1999, Robert Rubin abruptly announced his resignation. As Clinton wrote, I believed he had been the best and most important treasury secretary since Alexander Hamilton He had played a decisive role in our efforts to restore economic growth and spread its benefits to more Americans.

Clinton named Larry Summers to succeed Rubin. Two weeks later, BusinessWeek reporte signs of trouble in merger paradise in the form of a growing rift between John Reed, the former Chairman of Citibank, and Sandy Weill at the new Citigroup. As Reed said, Co-CEOs are hard. Perhaps to patch their rift, or simply to take advantage of a political opportunity, the two men enlisted a third person to join their relationship none other than Robert Rubin.

Rubins resignation from Treasury became effective on July 2nd. At that time, he announced, This almost six and a half years has been all-consuming, and I think it is time for me to go home to New York and to do whatever Im going to do next. Rubin became chairman of Citigroups executive committee and a member of the newly created office of the chairman. His initial annual compensation package was worth around $40 million. It was more than worth the hit he took when he left Goldman for the Treasury post.

Three days after the conference committee endorsed the Gramm-Leach-Bliley bill, Rubin assumed his Citigroup position, joining the institution destined to dominate the financial industry. That very same day, Reed and Weill issued a joint statement praising Washingtor for liberating our financial companies from an antiquated regulatory structure, stating that this legislation will unleash the creativity of our industry and ensure our global competitiveness.

On November 4th, the Senate approved the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act by a vote of 90 to 8. (The House voted 36257 in favor.) Critics famously referred to it as the Citigroup Authorization Act.

Mirth abounded in Clintons White House. Today Congress voted to update the rules that have governed financial services since the Great Depression and replace them with a system for the twenty-first century, Summers said. This historic legislation will better enable American companies to compete in the new economy.

But the happiness was misguided. Deregulating the banking industry might have helped th titans of Wall Street but not people on Main Street. The Clinton era epitomized the vast difference between appearance and reality, spin and actuality. As the decade drew to a close, Clinton basked in the glow of a lofty stock market, a budget surplus, and the passage of this key banking modernization. It would be revealed in the 2000s that many corporate profits of the 1990s were based on inflated evaluations, manipulation, and fraud. When Clinton left office, the gap between rich and poor was greater than it had been in 1992, and yet the Democrats heralded him as some sort of prosperity hero.

When he resigned in 1997, Robert Reich, Clintons labor secretary, said, America is prospering, but the prosperity is not being widely shared, certainly not as widely shared as it once was We have made progress in growing the economy. But growing together again must be our central goal in the future. Instead, the growth of wealth inequality in the United States accelerated, as the men yielding the most financial power wielded it with increasingly less culpability or restriction. By 2015, that wealth or prosperity gap would stand near historic highs.

The power of the bankers increased dramatically in the wake of the repeal of Glass-Steagall. The Clinton administration had rendered twenty-first-century banking practices similar to those of the pre-1929 crash. But worse. Modernizing meant utilizing government-backed depositors funds as collateral for the creation and distribution of all types of complex securities and derivatives whose proliferation would be increasingly quick and dangerous.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Eviscerating Glass-Steagall allowed big banks to compete against Europe and also enabled them to go on a rampage: more acquisitions, greater speculation, and more risky products. The big banks used their bloated balance sheets to engage in more complex activity, while counting on customer deposits and loans as capital chips on the global betting table. Bankers used hefty trading profits and wealth to increase lobbying funds and campaign donations, creating an endless circle of influence and mutual reinforcement of boundary-less speculation, endorsed by the White House.

Deposits could be used to garner larger windfalls, just as cheap labor and commodities in developing countries were used to formulate more expensive goods for profit in the upper echelons of the global financial hierarchy. Energy and telecoms proved especially fertile ground for the investment banking fee business (and later for fraud, extensive lawsuits, and bankruptcies). Deregulation greased the wheels of complex financial instruments such as collateralized debt obligations, junk bonds, toxic assets, and unregulated derivatives.

The Glass-Steagall repeal led to unfettered derivatives growth and unstable balance sheets at commercial banks that merged with investment banks and at investment banks that preferred to remain solo but engaged in dodgier practices to remain competitive. In conjunction with the tight political-financial alignment and associated collaboration that began with Bush and increased under Clinton, bankers channeled the 1920s, only with more power over an immense and growing pile of global financial assets and increasingly open markets. In the process, accountability would evaporate.

Every bank accelerated its hunt for acquisitions and deposits to amass global influence while creating, trading, and distributing increasingly convoluted securities and derivatives. These practices would foster the kind of shaky, interconnected, and opaque financial environment that provided the backdrop and conditions leading up to the financial meltdown of 2008.

The Realities of 2016

Hillary Clinton is, of course, not her husband. But her access to his past banker alliances, amplified by the ones that she has formed herself, makes her more of a friend than an adversary to the banking industry. In her brief 2008 candidacy, all four of the New York-based Big Six banks ranked among her top 10 corporate donors https://www.opensecrets.org/pres08/contrib.php?cycle=2008&cid=N00000019 . They have also contributed to the Clinton Foundation. She needs them to win, just as both Barack Obama and Bill Clinton did.

No matter what spin is used for campaigning purposes, the idea that a critical distance can be maintained between the White House and Wall Street is naïve given the multiple channels of money and favors that flow between the two. It is even more improbable, given the history of connections that Hillary Clinton has established through her associations with key bank leaders in the early 1990s, during her time as a senator from New York, and given their contributions to the Clinton foundation while she was secretary of state. At some level, the situation couldnt be less complicated: her path aligns with that of the countrys most powerful bankers. If she becomes president, that will remain the case.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	podesta.mary@gmail.com
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	9/26/2015 11:29:12 AM
Subject:	Made it home

Drive was fine. Hope your travels were also good.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "The Patriotic Millionaires" <info@patrioticmillionaires.org>
To: "John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date: 10/29/2015 1:17:09 PM
Subject: Patriotic Millionaires on PBS NewsHour TONIGHT

PATRIOTIC MILLIONAIRES

Friend,

If you ever need proof that money corrupts our political system, look no further than the carried interest tax loophole.

What 'carried interest' does which allows hedge fund managers to pay capital gains rates on income that logically should be characterized as ordinary income. Meaning that a hedge fund manager on Wall Street who makes $15,000,000 a year will pay a lower effective tax rate that a kindergarten teacher at your neighborhood elementary school.

It's tax breaks and loopholes like these that cause Americans to lose faith in their government. And we're not going to be quite about it.

Tune in tonight to PBS NewsHour, where Chair of the Patriotic Millionaires Morris Pearl will be featured discussing this egregious loophole and the need to close it. You can go to the NewsHour website here to check your local listings and tune in.

Here is what some of the Patriotic Millionaires have to say about carried interest:

"I used to be in the money management business and the only reason why people who manage money have a lower tax rate than people who actually work for a living is that hedge fund managers are more active at making political donations," said Patriotic Millionaires Chair Morris Pearl, former Managing Director of BlackRock Inc.

"I am in the hedge fund and private equity business and the carried interest loophole is welfare for the wealthy," said Patriotic Millionaires Terence Meehan, Chairman of Azimuth Investment Management

"The real mystery is how this tax break for billionaires has managed to survive all these years when everyone knows that it makes no sense for people who have no capital at risk to receive this kind of favorable tax treatment," said Patriotic Millionaire Jeffery Gural, Chairman of Newmark Grubb Knight Frank

"If it quacks like a duck it should be taxed like a duck!" said Patriotic Millionaire Frank Pattitucci, CEO & Owner of NuCompass Mobility

So please tune in tonight to PBS NewsHour (click here to check your local listings) and then reply to this email letting us know what you think about the carried interest tax loophole.

You can read more about the loophole in the op-ed in The Hill that was written by Morris below.

Thank you for all your support,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

What the carried interest tax loophole reveals about our corrupt political system

Running a government that works for 300 million Americans is expensive. Running a corrupt American government is unsustainable.

There is no more striking example of the cost of corruption than tax loopholes that benefit the 1 percent of the 1 percent.

In 2014, the top 25 hedge fund mangers made more money than every single kindergarten teacher in America. Yet, because of the “carried interest” tax loophole those 25 people actually paid a lower tax rate. To put it more starkly, individuals making more than $450 million a year on average are taxed at a lower rate than teachers making around $50,000 on average.

Carried interest allows money managers to treat much of their fees on their clients’ investments as capital gains, which are taxed at a maximum rate of 23.8 percent instead of the 39.6 percent rate applied to ordinary income. At a time when wages for working people have stagnated at 1990 levels, it is an outrage for a small group of hedge fund operators to have their income taxed at a lower rate.

Closing the carried interest loophole would be an important step toward a more economically equitable America.

Taxing carried interest at ordinary income rates would raise $18 billion over 10 years, according to a Treasury Department estimate. Other tax experts say it would actually generate closer to $180 billion in revenue.

That’s just enough to cover the shortfall in the Highway Trust Fund. That’s half the cost of guaranteeing every worker paid family and medical leave. With that money we could ensure every child – rich or poor – has the opportunity to attend a pre-K program.

But when Wall Street has unlimited access to politicians because of campaign contributions, Main Street America travels on crumbling roads and bridges, working mothers give birth one day and are back in the office the next, and children in lower and middle class families miss out on critical education in their formative years.

President Obama last week renewed his call on Congress to do away with this indefensible tax break ahead of the next budget showdown at the end of the month. Leading presidential candidates in both parties – Hillary Clinton, Donald Trump, and Jeb Bush – advocate closing the loophole and taxing capital gains as regular income.

But bi-partisan opposition also runs deeps. Last year then-Rep. Dave Camp (R-Mich.) proposed a sweeping tax reform plan that included treating carried interest as regular income. The plan was dead on arrival. In 2010, the House passed a bill closing the loophole, but it was scuttled in the Senate by members of both parties with strong ties to Wall Street.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

In 2012 and 2014, financial interests spent more than $1.1 billion to help elect politicians from both parties to Congress. Managers of Paulson & Co., one of the largest hedge funds, dropped nearly $2.5 million in the last two federal election cycles. Executives of Elliot Management, another large fund, spent $23 million over that time. Savvy investors don't throw around this kind of money if they aren't getting something back in return.

Whether it's a contracting process that awards the companies with the best lobbyists instead of the best services, taxpayer funded subsidies to the same multi-billion dollar companies spending millions of dollars to elect politicians to office, or the carried interest loophole, everyday Americans pay a heavy price for a government of, by, and for wealthy special interests.
It's great to see a growing consensus among some White House hopefuls to end preferential tax treatment for hedge fund managers, but the fact remains that Congress is still beholden to the wealthy donors funding their reelections.

Severing the ties between Wall Street and Congress with, for example, a small donor matching system that incentivizes candidates to raise campaign funds from everyday Americans would not only help us realize the promise of democracy envisioned by the Founders, it would also turn the political tide against the carried interest loophole and other welfare for the wealthy.

If we don't rebalance our democracy so it responds to the needs of the many instead of the few, the middle class will continue to bear the costs of corruption.

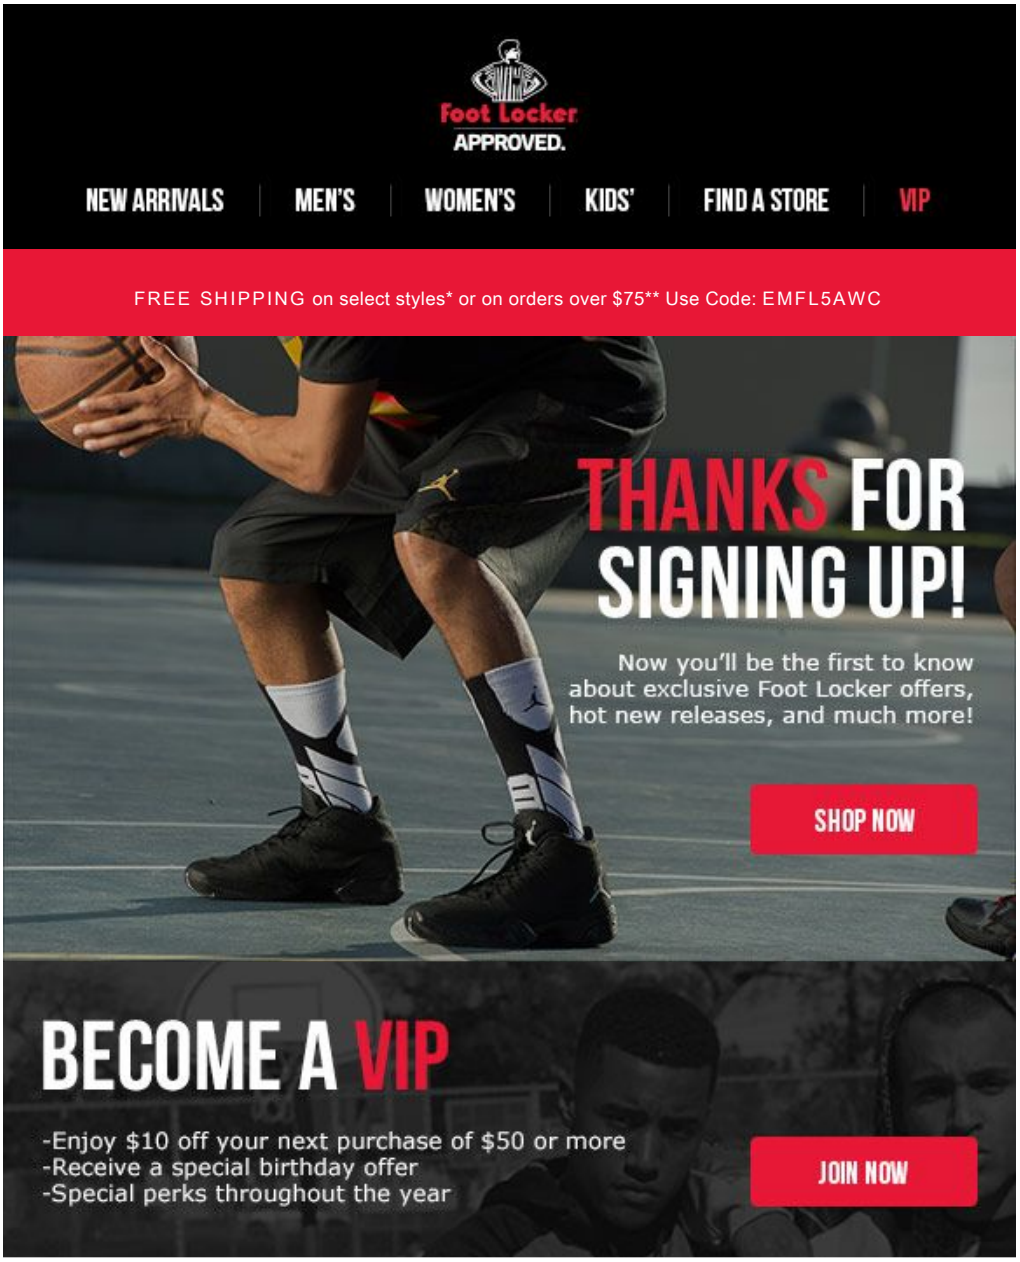
-Morris Pearl,
Chair of The Patriotic Millionaires
in The Hill, 10/16/2015

Forward

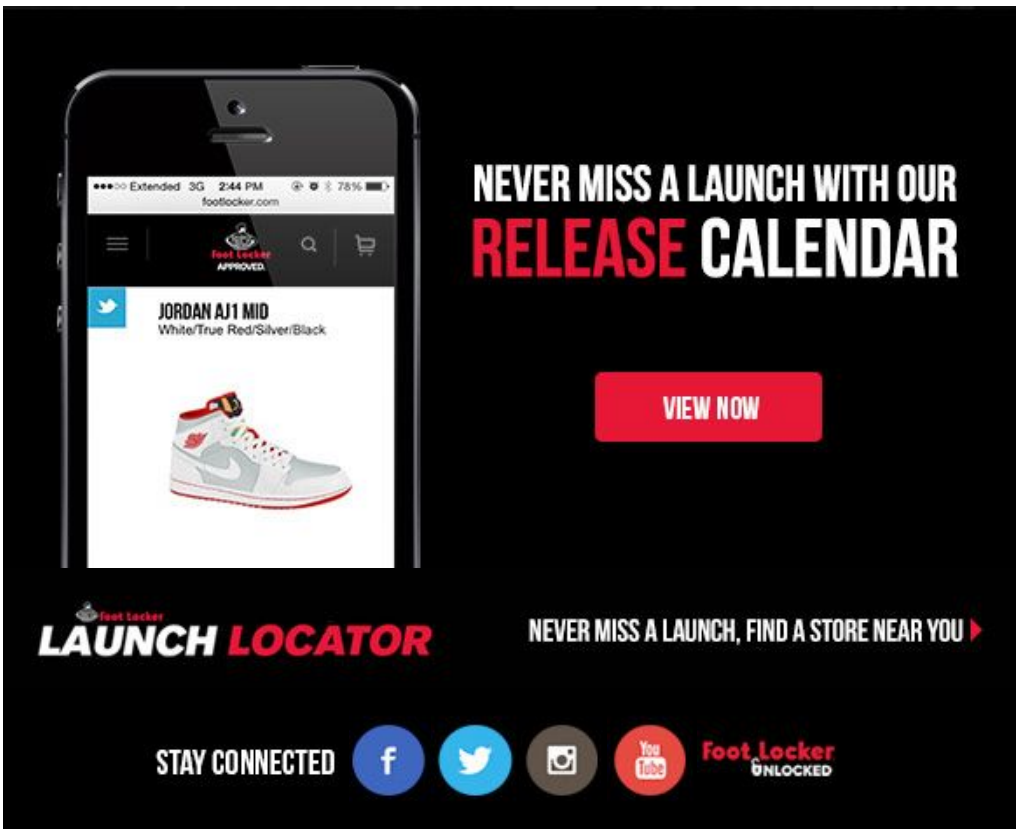
This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Our mailing address is:
Patriotic Millionaires
1010 Wisconsin Ave NW Suite 705B
Washington, Dc 20007

Add us to your address book



Need to change how you receive emails from the Patriotic Millionaires?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list



This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Foot Locker" <Footlocker@e.footlocker.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	8/31/2015 11:17:55 AM
Subject:	Welcome to Foot Locker!

Shop top styles from your favorite brands

View Online Customer Service - 1.800.991.6815

*Offer valid only on eligible items. Eligible items will indicate "this item ships FREE" in blue type on the product's description page. Items in your cart that are not eligible are subject to shipping charges. Shipping will be automatically deducted at checkout. Valid only at footlocker.com. Offer is limited to standard delivery within the 48 contiguous United States and APO/FPO addresses. Excludes bulk orders and drop ships. Entire order must ship to a single address. Does not apply to prior purchases or open orders and cannot be combined with any other offer. Customer is responsible for shipping costs on returned merchandise. May not be used toward purchase of gift cards or team orders. Promotion may be modified or terminated at any time. Certain restrictions and exclusions may apply.

Use promotion code EMFL5AWC at checkout. Promotion/source code box is located in step 4 of checkout. Order value must total $75 or more before services, taxes, shipping and handling. Valid online at footlocker.com, by phone or mail. Offer is limited to standard ground delivery within the 48 contiguous United States and APO/FPO addresses. Excludes bulk orders and drop ships. Entire order must be shipped to a single address. Does not apply to prior purchases or open orders and cannot be combined with any other offer. Customer is responsible for shipping costs on returned merchandise. May not be used toward purchase of gift cards or team orders. Promotion may be modified or terminated at any time. Certain restrictions and exclusions may apply. Offer expires 9/30/15 ((11:59 pm CT).

Foot Locker - 111 S. 1st Avenue - Wausau, WI 54401

To keep getting Foot Locker newsletters, add "footlocker@e.footlocker.com" to your email address book.

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com
If you would like to unsubscribe, please click here .

To contact customer service, email us at customercare@footlocker.com .

View our Privacy Policy .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Mae Podesta" <mpodesta@gmail.com>
Date:	12/24/2015 10:28:57 AM
Subject:	Where u

I'm arriving soon at Penn station

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Safeway <Safeway@subscribers.safeway.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 10/13/2010 5:17:57 AM
Subject: MARY, Your Weekly Specials Are Here!

This Week's Specials | 10 for $10 View with Images | View Mobile Version

SAFEWAY Ingredients for life..

MARY, See What's
On Sale This Week

Find your local store | Forward to a Friend

Together for a Cure

Help fund breast cancer research and awareness — just by shopping! Purchase $30 or more in participating products and $5 will be donated to local and national breast cancer charities.

See Weekly Specials

Get Coupons

10 for $10

Don't miss this mix & match sale!

Start Shopping

Your Special Deals This Week

Lucerne Cottage Cheese
32-oz. Selected varieties.

$3.49

Red Roma Tomatoes

$0.99 lb

Lucerne Yogurt
6-oz. Selected varieties. Club Price: 50¢ ea.

10 for $5

Lucerne Chunk or Shredded Cheese
16-oz. Selected varieties.

$2.99

Jennie-O Turkey Store Lean Ground Turkey
20-oz. Regular or Italian Style. Selected varieties. Club Price: $3.50 ea.

2 for $7

Lucerne Large Eggs
18-ct. Grade AA.

BUY ONE GET ONE FREE

Renew with eScrip Today

We're helping kids stay healthy by asking schools to allocate 20% of eScrip funds to fitness & nutrition.

Renew Now

eScrip

Stay Well & Save

Get a flu shot at Safeway — no appointment necessary! Plus, save 10% on your next grocery purchase.

View Savings

Introducing In-Kind™

Discover our brand-new line of natural, sulfate-free skin, hair and face products.

See Details

IN-KIND

Our Promise
We've got great Club Card specials and Thousands of Everyday Low Prices. That's our Promise! Find a Store

SAFEWAY Ingredients for life..

Our Store | Recipes & Meals | Healthy Living | Be Our Friend | Follow Us | Read Our Blog

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Items and prices for Your Favorites listed above are available 7 A.M. Wednesday, October 6 thru Tuesday, October 12, 2010 Midnight, at your Northern California Safeway stores only. No sales to dealers, restaurants or institutions. Sales in retail quantities only. Some items, prices or varieties may not be available in every store. Quantities of some items may be limited and sub ject to ava ilability. †On Buy One, Get One FREE ("BOGO") offers, both items must be purchased. Lowest priced items are then Free. BOGO offers are not 1/2 price sales. If only a single item is purchased, the regular price applies. Manufacturers' coupons may be used on purchased items only - not on free items. Limit one coupon per purchased item. Customer will be responsible for tax on the purchased and free items. Sales of products containing ephedrine, pseudoephedrine or phenylpropanolamine limited by law. Not responsible for typographical or pictorial errors. We reserve the right to correct all printed errors. No liquor sales in excess of 52 gallons. No liquor sales for resale. Liquor sales at licensed Safeway stores only. Under $1 Deals not available in Alaska or Hawaii. © 2010 Safeway Inc.

You've received this e-mail because our records indicate you supplied an e-mail address when you submitted your Club Card application, contacted us via our website or signed-up via our website to receive mail. To unsubscribe to this email Click Here . Customer Service Center, Safeway Inc, 20227 N. 27th Ave, Phoenix, AZ 85027

Copyright © 2010 Safeway.com, 5918 Stoneridge Mall Road, Pleasanton, CA 94588.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Dave Wilkins" <david.b.wilkins@gmail.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	3/22/2014 3:49:44 AM
Subject:	Congressional Investigations - Paper Question

Hi Professor Podesta:

I had a question about the due date of the final paper for the Congressional Investigations course. I'm a graduating senior, and understand that papers for graduating seniors are generally due on April 28. However, the syllabus for the class lists a due date on May 9 for graduating seniors. I was wondering if that due date was still accurate.

Thanks very much! Hope you're having a good weekend.

Best wishes,
Dave Wilkins

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	john.podesta@gmail.com
To:	"Daniel Tarullo" <tarullos4@yahoo.com>
Date:	11/9/2008 5:42:17 PM
Subject:	Delivered: Re: Sheila barr
Attachments:	Attach 1

Your message was delivered to the recipient.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Lisa Jackson" <lpj08@icloud.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	5/19/2015 3:28:41 AM
Subject:	Fwd: Encryption letter

Hey John,

I know you've seen the article below. Huge issue out here as I am sure you know. If you ever want our tech experts to brief your folks, we'd be happy to do it.

Hope you are well

Lisa Jackson

Tech giants don't want Obama to give police access to encrypted phone data

Tech behemoths including Apple and Google and leading cryptologists are urging President Obama to reject any government proposal that alters the security of smartphones and other communications devices so that law enforcement can view decrypted data.

In a letter to be sent Tuesday and obtained by The Washington Post, a coalition of tech firms, security experts and others appeal to the White House to protect privacy rights as it considers how to address law enforcement's need to access data that is increasingly encrypted.

"Strong encryption is the cornerstone of the modern information economy's security," said the letter, signed by more than 140 tech companies, prominent technologists and civil society groups.

The letter comes as senior law enforcement officials warn about the threat to public safety from a loss of access to data and communications. Apple and Google last year announced they were offering forms of smartphone encryption so secure that even law enforcement agencies could not gain access — even with a warrant.

"There's no doubt that all of us should care passionately about privacy, but we should also care passionately about protecting innocent people," FBI Director James B. Comey said at a recent roundtable with reporters.

Last fall, after the announcements by Apple and Google, Comey said he could not understand why companies would "market something expressly to allow people to place themselves beyond the law."

FBI and Justice Department officials say they support the use of encryption but want a way for officials to get the lawful access they need.

Many technologists say there is no way to do so without building a separate key to unlock the data — often called a "backdoor," which they say amounts to a vulnerability that can be exploited by hackers and foreign governments.

The letter is signed by three of the five members of a presidential review group appointed by Obama in 2013 to assess technology policies in the wake of leaks by former intelligence contractor Edward Snowden. The signatories urge Obama to follow the group's unanimous recommendation that the government should "fully support and not undermine efforts to create encryption standards" and not "in any way subvert, undermine, weaken or make vulnerable" commercial software.

Richard A. Clarke, former cybersecurity adviser to President George W. Bush and one of three review group members to sign the letter, noted that a similar effort by the government in the 1990s to require phone companies to build a backdoor for encrypted voice calls was rebuffed. "If they couldn't pull it off at the end of the Cold War, they sure as hell aren't going to pull it off now," he said.

Comey, he said, "is the best FBI director I've ever seen," but "he's wrong on this [issue]."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Congress, too, is unlikely to pass legislation that would require technology companies to develop keys or other modes of access to their products and services in the post-Snowden area.

Lawmakers on both sides of the aisle have expressed skepticism toward the pleas of law enforcement agencies. Rep. Ted Lieu, a California Democrat with a computer science degree, called backdoors in software "technologically stupid."

Ronald L. Rivest, an inventor of the RSA encryption algorithm (his name is the "R" in "RSA"), said standards can be weakened to allow law enforcement officials access to encrypted data. "But," he said, "you've done great damage to our security infrastructure if you do that."

The issue is not simply national, said Rivest, a computer science professor at MIT who signed the letter. "Once you make exceptions for U.S. law enforcement, you're also making exceptions for the British, the French, the Israelis and the Chinese, and eventually it'll be the North Koreans."

The signatories include policy experts who normally side with national-security hawks. Paul Rosenzweig, a former Bush administration senior policy official at the Department of Homeland Security, said: "If I actually thought there was a way to build a U.S.-government-only backdoor, then I might be persuaded. But that's just not reality."

Rosenzweig said that "there are other capabilities" that law enforcement can deploy. They will be "less satisfying," he said, but "they will make do."

Privacy activist Kevin Bankston organized the letter to maintain pressure on the White House. "Since last fall, the president has been letting his top law enforcement officials criticize companies for making their devices more secure and letting them suggest that Congress should pass pro-backdoor legislation," said Bankston, policy director of the New America Foundation's Open Technology Institute.

"It's time for Obama to put an end to these dangerous suggestions that we should deliberately weaken the cybersecurity of Americans' products and services," he said. "It's time for America to lead the world toward a more secure future rather than a digital ecosystem riddled with vulnerabilities of our own making."

Sent from my iPhone

On May 19, 2015, at 8:25 AM, Lisa P Jackson <lisa_jackson@apple.com > wrote:

> Nice!
>
> On May 19, 2015, at 8:07 AM, Nick Ammann <nammann@apple.com > wrote:
>
> We got a lot of peeps to step up.
>
> FROM MORNING CYBERSECURITY: HUGE COALITION PRESSURES WHITE HOUSE ON ENCRYPTION — Nearly 150 civil society groups, trade groups and cybersecurity experts this morning are sending a letter to President Barack Obama trying to force the administration to reject encryption workarounds for law enforcement, Pro Cybersecurity's Tal Kopan reports. The letter quotes from the President's Review Group on Intelligence and Communications Technologies' recommendation that the administration support strong encryption and not seek to undermine it. "The administration faces a critical choice: Will it adopt policies that foster a global digital ecosystem that is more secure, or less? That choice may well define the future of the Internet in the 21st century," the letter says.
>
> The letter is largely timed to influence an internal review of options that is being prepped for Obama, reported first by The Washington Post (http://wapo.st/1FvUPcP). The group, organized by New

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

America's Open Technology Institute, reads like a who's who of the cyber world. Signers include Access, ACLU, Center for Democracy & Technology, Electronic Frontier Foundation, The Tor Project, Apple, Cisco, CloudFlare, Facebook, Google, Hewlett-Packard, Microsoft, Mozilla, Twitter and Yahoo. "We thought it was time for the community to draw a line in the sand," OTI's Kevin Bankston told Tal. "It's time for the White House to come out strong in support of strong encryption." The letter: http://politico.pro/1PRC5tR

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Gabe Podesta" <gpodesta@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 5/18/2014 5:30:28 AM
Subject: Re: 10K

Good luck today!

On Fri, May 16, 2014 at 12:21 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Bravo. I'll try not to drag the average Podesta time up too much.
>
> JP
> --Sent from my iPad--
> john.podesta@gmail.com
> For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com
>
> > On May 16, 2014, at 2:58 AM, Gabe Podesta <gpodesta@gmail.com > wrote:
> >
> > Ran it this morning at Bagram in 49:48. Between the heat and the air quality I would describe it as a very painful 49:48.
> >
> > --
> > Gabe Podesta

--
Gabe Podesta

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jeremy Funk" <funk@americansunitedforchange.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 11/30/2009 4:27:33 AM
Subject: [big campaign] Interesting New Polls

New Survey Shows Overwhelming Support among Latinos for Health Care Reform That Includes Public Option

http://www.pr-inside.com/new-survey-shows-overwhelming-support-among-r1607266.htm
A new poll released today by Latino Decisions, the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation Center for Health Policy at the University of New Mexico (UNM-RWJF Center), and impreMedia, shows a widespread consensus among the Latino/ Hispanic electoral about the importance of health care reform and indicates significant support for expansion of coverage. For the first time health care tops the list of national issues identified by respondents, as the most important issue Congress and the President need to address. This is particularly impressive, given that in April 2009 a similar Latino Decisions poll found that only 6% of the Latino electorate had identified health care as the most important issue.

The national survey of 1,000 Latino registered voters shows that there is broad-based and overwhelming support not just for health care reform, but 74% support a plan that includes a public option to compete with private insurance programs

---

Fewer than half of the Republicans and Republican-leaners see the party's leadership as taking the GOP in the "right direction"

http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2009/11/29/AR2009112902935_pf.html

Fewer than half of the Republicans and Republican-leaners surveyed by The Washington Post see the party's leadership as taking the GOP in the "right direction," down sharply from this time four years ago. About four in 10 are dissatisfied with the policy proposals being offered by congressional Republicans, and similar numbers see the current crop of GOP legislators as out of touch with their problems and personal values. Nearly a third say the Republicans in Congress are not standing up for the party's core values.

[…]

Just 1 percent pick George W. Bush as the best reflection of the party's principles, and only a single person in the poll cites former vice president Richard B. Cheney. About seven in 10 say Bush bears at least "some" of the blame for the party's problems.

Limbaugh, still, the undisputed leader of the Republican Party …

http://www.google.com/hostednews/ap/article/ALeqM5jpAE5xW2-_v2cl6Mz3RKj-Osq8eAD9C9GUOG0

Poll: Limbaugh is most influential conservative

NEW YORK — By a wide margin, Americans consider Rush Limbaugh the nation's most influential conservative voice.

Those are the results of a poll conducted by "60 Minutes" and Vanity Fair magazine and issued Sunday. The radio host was picked by 26 percent of those who responded, followed by Fox News Channel's Glenn Beck at 11 percent. Actual politicians — former Vice President Dick Cheney and former vice presidential candidate Sarah Palin — were the choice of 10 percent each.

Jeremy J. Funk

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Communications Director, Americans United for Change
Office: 202.470.5878
Cell: 605.366.3654
funk@americansunitedforchange.org
www.AmericansUnitedforChange.org

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Ashwin Madia" <info@votevets.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 6/28/2011 4:09:28 AM
Subject: Help General Sanchez Get to the US Senate

votevets.org

Dear John,

Today I'm writing with some exciting news. We have a chance to send a veteran to the Senate, from Texas. Not only that, but this veteran also happens to be a retired Lieutenant General who commanded forces in Iraq. Today, we're endorsing Lt. Gen. Ricardo Sanchez (USA, Ret.) for Senate. He needs your help.

CLICK HERE TO DONATE TO SANCHEZ FOR SENATE

General Sanchez has a compelling story and honorably served our country in uniform. He'll make an outstanding Senator for the people of Texas. We're always happy to see veterans entering politics as a way to continue their public service, but it's especially encouraging to see one of our military's finest minds, General Sanchez, look to continue that service as a public servant. General Sanchez knows what this generation of warriors has gone through, and how Washington can best serve them. For the people of the state of Texas, they will have a Senator who is committed to America's security, and just as committed to the state he loves

General Sanchez graduated from Texas A&I University in Kingsville, Texas, and was commissioned as a second lieutenant in 1973. After decades of service, following nomination to Lieutenant General, he assumed command in Baghdad, Iraq, of the Army's Fifth Corps and became the commander of one of the largest combat forces deployed in US military history. Upon the reorganization of command-and-control structures in Iraq, he commanded Headquarters, Multi-National Forces (Iraq) from 14 May 2004 to 1 July 2004. After 33 years of service, he retired in 2006.

CLICK HERE TO SEND RICARDO SANCHEZ TO THE SENATE

Texas is a huge state, and running for office there isn't cheap. But any donation you can afford will go a long way towards sending Ric Sanchez to the Senate. This is an open seat, because Senator Kay Bailey Hutchinson is stepping down, so it is an excellent opportunity for a candidate with strong credentials – like General Sanchez – to win. Please click the link above, and help get him to the finish line!

Sincerely,

Ashwin Madia
Iraq War Veteran
Interim Chairman, VoteVets.org

Paid for by VoteVets Political Action Committee
Not Authorized by Any Candidate or Candidate's Committee

VoteVets.org

You are subscribed to this list as john.podesta@gmail.com. You can Unsubscribe here .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Amitabh Desai" <adesai@clintonfoundation.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com "Bari Lurie" <blurie@clintonfoundation.org>
Date:	1/27/2012 11:45:07 AM
Subject:	FW: for WJC: CCI biweekly
Attachments:	2012.1.27.WJC.CCI.Update.doc

Meant to copy you

From: Amitabh Desai
Sent: Friday, January 27, 2012 6:45 PM
To: 'Hannah Richert'
Cc: Bruce Lindsey; Laura Graham; Doug Band - PC; 'Justin Cooper'
Subject: for WJC: CCI biweekly

Dear Hannah, attached for the President is the latest biweekly update from CCI. Please note the mention of new CCI requests for $30 million in funding for forestry programs, as excerpted below. We'd welcome his feedback. Thanks, Ami

"CCI has recently submitted several funding proposals for the extension of our forestry work, with more than $30 million outstanding. These include a proposal to Australia's Department of Climate Change and Energy Efficiency (DCCEE) as well as four proposals to Germany's Climate Change Initiative (ICI) for landscape restoration in Ethiopia, Kenya and Tanzania; integrating project level MRV into the Tanzania national MRV system; climate change adaptation in the Lake Turkana basin; and village scale renewable and wood energy in Malawi. We have also submitted a pre-qualification proposal for several DFID grants."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Betsy Jones" <betsy@yodatip.com>
Date:	8/29/2015 11:07:49 AM
Subject:	Re: Meeting request with Hillary Clinton

Thanks for reaching out and thanks for the support. I'll get back to you on Monday when I'm back in Brooklyn.

On Saturday, August 29, 2015, Betsy Jones <betsy@yodatip.com > wrote:

> Hello Mr. Podesta,
>
> I hope you are well. I am writing you to arrange a meeting between Hip Hop icon and visionary Q-Tip and Democratic presidential frontrunner Hillary Clinton. He would like to meet with her to discuss ways he can be used as bridge to the Hip Hop generation during the 2016 presidential campaign.
>
> Q-Tip who is an ambassador member of Harry Belafonte's Sankofa.org has long been highly committed to issues of social justice. Q-Tip is devoted to amplifying the voices of the disenfranchised in an effort to promote justice, peace and equal rights for all. He is a big supporter of the work Mrs. Clinton has done throughout her career and has also worked alongside former president Bill Clinton at a 2003 DNC fundraiser. He even served as DJ for Chelsea Clinton's 25th birthday party in 2005. He's had a lasting track record with the Clinton's throughout the years. In fact, he had hoped to see Mrs. Clinton at his close friend Tory Burch's fundraiser tomorrow in The Hamptons. However, due to a prior commitment in Los Angeles, he will be not be able to make it.
>
> Q-Tip would love to have short one-on-one with Mrs. Clinton as soon as her schedule permits. He will return to New York City on Monday.
>
> Please let me know what can be arranged at your earliest convenience. Q-Tip is passionate about helping Mrs. Clinton secure a victory in this presidential race. Thank you in advance for your time.
>
> All the best,
>
> Betsy Jones
>
> BETSY!
> Assistant to Q-tip
> 1(914)482-1074
> betsy@yodatip.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Jake Siewert" <jakesiewert@gmail.com>
Date:	12/21/2011 1:42:26 PM
Subject:	Re: Tahoe

We come up on monday. Love to get together

On Tue, Dec 20, 2011 at 1:01 PM, Jake Siewert <jakesiewert@gmail.com> wrote:
> You out there for Xmas? We head out tomorrow and are in Truckee for a week. Let me know if you want to go for a run since skiing seems obsolete in the Al Gore era.
>
> Sent by Jake Siewert

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
To: "Jake Sullivan" <jake.sullivan@gmail.com>
Date: 11/20/2014 10:07:13 AM
Subject: Re: Draft statement on immigration executive

My vote would be we tweet and do this in person for the reasons I outlined below.

Going to share a couple of these tweets with her now.

On Nov 20, 2014, at 11:00 AM, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com > wrote:

Me too.

Nick, where are you on statement versus answer?

On Thursday, November 20, 2014, Robert Mook <robbymook@gmail.com > wrote:
> That works for me.
> On Thu, Nov 20, 2014 at 11:45 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
>>
>> We just landed so I'm catching up, but I'd make two quick points. First, I agree with Robby that what the press is looking for is an up or down, but to Ethan's point, delivery makes a difference, particularly when there is such a strong and human element. The reception from the Ferguson comments worked because she reminded people of something larger, and what's at stake. Since she's neither a candidate not a legislator, it makes sense and is very natural for her to lean into that a bit, which is an argument for doing this in person.
>> On the tweet to hold us over, I'd suggest something more generic, and frankly I don't love the tweet focusing on families versus felons. Maybe something more like this:
>> "I commend President Obama for taking action on immigration in the face of inaction. Now let's turn to permanent bipartisan reform."
>>
>>
>>
>> On Nov 20, 2014, at 9:34 AM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
>>
>> Here are some tweet options and a revised statement:
>>
>> Tweet possibilities:
>> 1) System is broken & House refuses to act, so POTUS right to do what he can under law- deport felons not families. Congress has to finish job.
>> 2) I support POTUS focus on deporting felons, not families, and urge Congress to step up and pass permanent bipartisan reform.
>> 3) Blessed to live in a nation of immigrants. Proud of POTUS and hoping that Congress will see the light and pass permanent bipartisan reform
>>
>> Draft statement:
>>
>> I support the President's decision to focus finite resources on deporting felons rather than families. I was hopeful that the bipartisan bill passed by the Senate in 2013 would spur the House of Representatives to act, but they refused even to advance an alternative. Their abdication of responsibility paved the way for this executive action, which follows established precedent from Presidents of both parties going back 70 years. But, only Congress can finish the job by passing permanent bipartisan reform that keeps families together, treats everyone with dignity and compassion, upholds the rule of law, protects our border and national security, and brings millions of hard-working people out of the shadows and into the formal economy so they can pay taxes and contribute to our nation's prosperity. Our disagreements on this important issue may grow heated at times, but I am confident that people of good will and good faith can yet find common ground. We should never forget that we're not discussing abstract statistics – we're talking about real families with real experiences. We're talking about parents lying awake at night afraid of a knock on the door that could tear their families apart, people who love this country, work hard, and want nothing more than a chance to contribute to the community and build better lives for themselves and their children.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>>
>> ###
>>
>> From: Dan <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >
>> Date: Thursday, November 20, 2014 at 9:49 AM
>> To: Ethan Gelber <egelber@hrcoffice.com >, Robby Mook <robbymook@gmail.com >
>> Cc: Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Jake Sullivan <Jake.Sullivan@gmail.com >, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >, Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com>, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
>> Subject: Re: Draft statement on immigration executive
>>
>> Nick is talking this through with her on the plane as we speak, but they don't have any internet. She's more open than she was last night to doing tweet followed by in person comment rather than paper statement, so would be helpful to have a unified recommendation on process. On substance, she agrees we should keep shortening and try to stay pretty close to WH line. I'm getting some specific edits, will keep revising and recirculate.
>> From: Ethan Gelber <egelber@hrcoffice.com >
>> Date: Thursday, November 20, 2014 at 9:32 AM
>> To: Robby Mook <robbymook@gmail.com >, Dan <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >
>> Cc: Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Jake Sullivan <Jake.Sullivan@gmail.com >, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >, Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
>> Subject: Re: Draft statement on immigration executive
>>
>> Her Ferguson comments were so well received, despite criticism for their tardiness, because she said something new and unique. It made her look like a leader. I echo Dan's concern that something too generic will look like she's merely checking the box, particularly as a paper statement. If the goal is only to tell the press immediately that she supports the President, I think Dan's suggestion of a tweet tonight followed by something more thoughtful at the event tomorrow, makes sense to me. The press might only care about her backing the President, but I imagine there are some vocal constituencies that will look very carefully at the entire statement and whether it shows personal concern and thought.
>>
>> _____
>> From:robbymook@gmail.com <robbymook@gmail.com >
>> Sent: Thursday, November 20, 2014 9:21 AM
>> To: Dan Schwerin
>> Cc: Cheryl Mills; Philippe Reines; Jake Sullivan; Nick Merrill; Huma Abedin; John Podesta; Ethan Gelber
>> Subject: Re: Draft statement on immigration executive
>>
>> My assumption is that all the press cares about is if she's backing Obama or not. I could be wrong but that's what's driving my thinking. In which case short feels more decisive and genuine to me.
>> On Nov 20, 2014, at 9:03 AM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
>>
>> My only concern is that brief and decisive not equal generic, which to me is the way to sound inauthentic here. In my view, some version of the second paragraph, both in terms of putting a human face on the issue and in terms of recognizing that this is more complicated than our politics on both sides likes to admit, is the part where HRC can be HRC. But I'm very open to the idea that perhaps the answer here is to tweet 140 characters of straightforward support on Thursday night, not put out a paper statement, and then give a more full and thoughtful answer on camera on Friday during her Q&A with Walter Isaacson.
>> From: Robby Mook <robbymook@gmail.com >
>> Date: Thursday, November 20, 2014 at 8:53 AM
>> To: Dan <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >
>> Cc: Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Jake Sullivan <

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Jake.Sullivan@gmail.com>, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >, Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Ethan Gelber <egelber@hrcoffice.com >
>> Subject: Re: Draft statement on immigration executive
>>
>> I believe this has to fit into 5 sentences at most since our audience is the press and they will only print 1 to 3 of them so we might as well control which ones they use.
>> I assume we have a zillion constituencies chiming in about aspects of this but my view is our audience should be the press and real people in which case she needs to briefly state her support and hit congress for inaction.
>> Brief and decisive is better in my view.
>> On Nov 20, 2014, at 8:41 AM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
>>
>> Revised, shorter version below:
>> I support the President's decision to focus finite resources on defending our border and deporting felons rather than families. No one thinks that these new steps will solve all of the fundamental problems in our broken immigration system, but the status quo is untenable. With the House of Representatives not only refusing to act on the bipartisan Senate legislation but also failing to advance any viable alternatives, President Obama and the country have no better option. This executive action is in keeping with well-established legal precedent, following in the footsteps of Presidents from both parties, but only Congress can finish the job. We look to our elected representatives to take up that responsibility and pass a long-term bipartisan solution that keeps families together, treats everyone with dignity and compassion, upholds the rule of law, protects our national security, and respects our history and values. Bringing millions of hard-working people out of the shadows and into the formal economy, so they can hold their heads high, pay taxes, and contribute to our shared prosperity, is one of the most effective steps we could take to accelerate our economic recovery and raise wages across the board for hard-working Americans.
>>
>> I hope the President’s announcement will mark the beginning of a serious and substantive national debate about the way forward. Our arguments may grow heated at times, but if we proceed in a spirit of respect and shared purpose, remembering that people of good will and good faith will continue to view this issue differently, I am confident that we can yet find our way toward common ground. Through it all, let's never lose sight of the fact that we’re not talking about abstract statistics – we’re talking about real families with real experiences. We’re talking about parents lying awake at night afraid of a knock on the door that could tear their families apart, people who love this country, work hard, and want nothing more than a chance to contribute to the community and build a better life for themselves and their children. That’s what this debate is about and why inaction is not an option.
>>
>> ###
>>
>> From: Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >
>> Date: Thursday, November 20, 2014 at 5:49 AM
>> To: Dan <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >
>> Cc: Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Jake Sullivan <Jake.Sullivan@gmail.com >, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >, Robby Mook <robbymook@gmail.com >, Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Ethan Gelber <egelber@hrcoffice.com >
>> Subject: Re: Draft statement on immigration executive
>>
>> Dan
>> I like the simplicity of points john says to hit and the new beginning in what you sent - can we shorten the new version you sent further with these as tent poles?
>>
>> cdm
>> On Nov 20, 2014, at 5:28 AM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>>
>> This is better. Key points in our research are paying taxes, deport felons not families, protecting the border and Presidents of both parties for 70 years have used executive authority to deal with immigration, including Reagan and Clinton.

>>
>> JP
>> --Sent from my iPad--
>> john.podesta@gmail.com
>> For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com
>> On Nov 20, 2014, at 4:24 AM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
>>
>> Cheryl, I don't know if this does enough to make it feel less wishy washy or not, but revised below with a more direct statement of support up front and a few other tweaks. And happy to keep revising as well…
>>
>> I support the President's executive action, in keeping with his responsibilities and well-established legal precedent, to focus finite resources on deporting felons rather than families. No one thinks that these new steps are the ideal solution, or that they will solve all of the fundamental problems in our immigration system. But there is also broad consensus that the status quo is untenable. For years the House of Representatives has abdicated its responsibility to take on this challenge, not only refusing to act on the bipartisan Senate legislation but also failing to advance any viable alternatives. Some will say he went too far, others, not far enough, but given this vacuum of leadership, President Obama had no better option. Only Congress can finish this job, and in the days ahead we should look to our elected representatives to take up that responsibility and pass a long-term bipartisan solution.
>>
>> I hope the President's announcement will mark the beginning of a serious and substantive national debate about the way forward. Because there's so much more to do if we're going to really fix our broken immigration system – if we're going to keep families together, treat everyone with dignity and compassion, uphold the rule of law, protect our national security, and respect our heritage and history. Bringing millions of hard-working people out of the shadows and into the formal economy, so they can hold their heads high, pay taxes, and contribute to our shared prosperity, is one of the most effective steps we could take to accelerate our economic recovery and raise wages across the board for hard-working Americans. It would also reflect the best values of an open and inclusive nation.
>>
>> As we move forward, let's remember that people of good will and good faith will continue to view this issue differently. Our arguments may grow heated at times, but if we proceed in a spirit of respect and shared purpose, I am confident that we can yet find our way toward common ground. Through it all, I hope we never lose sight of the fact that we're not talking about abstract statistics – we're talking about real families with real experiences. We're talking about children coming home from school to an empty house, their moms and dads whisked away without notice or explanation. We're talking about parents lying awake at night afraid of the knock on the door that could upend their lives and tear their families apart. We're talking about the fate of people who love this country, work hard, and want nothing more than a chance to contribute to the community and build a better life for themselves and their families. That's what this debate is about and why inaction is not an option.
>>
>> ###
>>
>> From: Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >
>> Date: Thursday, November 20, 2014 at 3:12 AM
>> To: Dan <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >
>> Cc: Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Jake Sullivan <Jake.Sullivan@gmail.com >, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >, Robby Mook <robbymook@gmail.com >, "john.podesta@gmail.com " <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com >, Ethan Gelber <egelber@hrcoffice.com >
>> Subject: Re: Draft statement on immigration executive action
>>
>> Dan
>> Sorry. I will try to be constructive in the am but this reads and feels like what folks would expect from her who are not a fan or who believe she is running - a calculated effort to have it all in a statement with something for everyone.
>> I would opt for a shorter, simpler formulation - which I know is near impossible or that is what we would be reading from you. I worry though that this in form and in substance will remind folks what they don't like about politicians and her.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>> The heart of it is:
>> 1) does she support the action the President is taking and would she have taken it?
>> 2) And given the action, what is the path forward she sees for the country?
>> cdm
>> On Nov 20, 2014, at 1:40 AM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
>>
>> Below is what I think she should say about the President's executive action, either in statement form or on camera. It's long, but this is not a simple issue and we have a lot of interests and constituencies to consider. I've tried here to express support for POTUS without getting bogged down in the details of what is sure to be an unpopular measure, seen as both too much and too little, and then pivot to the need for broader Congressional action (defined by a set of principles rather than by slavish attachment to the DOA Senate bill). I also went back to our 2013 statement on gay marriage and reprised the theme of urging respectful, substantive debate and recognizing that a lot of people aren't going to agree with us on this. Finally, I tried to root the issue in the lived experiences of actual families, to make this a debate about human beings rather than legal precedents.
>>
>> I know she's eager to take a look, so it would be great to hear quick reactions.
>> Thanks
>> Dan
>>
>> President Obama is making the best of a bad situation. No one thinks that these new steps are the ideal solution, or that they will solve the fundamental problems in our immigration system. But there is also broad consensus that the status quo is untenable. For years the House of Representatives has abdicated its responsibility to take on this challenge, not only refusing to act on the bipartisan Senate legislation but also failing to advance any viable alternatives. Given this vacuum of leadership, President Obama had no choice but to follow well-established precedent and use his executive authority to begin making common-sense improvements and focus finite enforcement resources on deporting felons rather than families.
>>
>>
>>
>> I hope the President's announcement will mark the beginning of a serious and substantive national debate about the way forward. Because there's so much more to do if we're going to really fix our broken immigration system – if we're going to keep families together, treat everyone with dignity and compassion, uphold the rule of law, protect our national security, and respect our heritage and history. Bringing millions of hard-working people out of the shadows and into the formal economy, so they can hold their heads high, pay taxes, and contribute to our shared prosperity, is one of the most effective steps we could take to accelerate our economic recovery and raise wages across the board for hard-working Americans. It would also reflect the best values of an open and inclusive nation.
>>
>>
>>
>> Only Congress can finish this job, and in the days ahead we should look to our elected representatives to take up that responsibility. But all Americans should be part of this debate. And as we move forward, let's remember that people of good will and good faith will continue to view this issue differently. Our arguments may grow heated at times, but if we proceed in a spirit of respect and shared purpose, I am confident that we can yet find our way toward common ground. Through it all, I hope we never lose sight of the fact that we're not talking about abstract statistics – we're talking about real families with real experiences. We're talking about children coming home from school to an empty house, their moms and dads whisked away without notice or explanation. We're talking about parents lying awake at night afraid of the knock on the door that could upend their lives and tear their families apart. We're talking about the fate of people who love this country, work hard, and want nothing more than a chance to contribute to the community and build a better life for themselves and their families. That's what this debate is about and why inaction is not an option.
>>
>> ###
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/26/2015 8:06:48 AM
Subject:	Voicemails: 2

Robby
So sorry about the phone tag. Call me back I have updates.
Today at 2:49pm
Cell: (802) 272-8878

Joel ??
Give me a call back when you can. On the west coast for a few days. In and out of meetings, but will be available. Saved in voicemail.
Today at 9:41 am
Notes: Saved in voicemail. No callback number available, but it was sent from a number linked to the name "deprado" if that's helpful.

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
o: 646.854.1198 c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Stop The Tea Party" <democrats@thehousemajoritypac.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	10/14/2014 5:58:14 PM
Subject:	FW: they're critical

Did you see Senator Gillibrand's note??

------ Original Message -----

John: Right now, Democratic women are in tight races around the country. But Karl Rove and the Koch brothers are on the air with millions in attacks that threaten to drown out their message. We can't afford to sit on the sidelines. If we want more women leaders in Congress - now is our chance.

We need these proud Democrats fighting for us in Congress. That's why House Majority PAC was formed -- to have Democrats' backs in some of the tightest races around the country. With just 21 days left until their pre-general filing deadline, we need you to act fast.

Can you to click here and donate to help them expand their ad buys for Democrats in tight races around the country?

If you've saved your payment information with ActBlue Express, your donation will go through immediately:

Donate $3 instantly.

Donate $15 instantly.

Donate $25 instantly.

Or donate another amount instantly.

Thanks,

Kirsten

Senator Gillibrand is only asking for a donation of up to $5,000 from individuals. Senator Gillibrand is not asking for donations in excess of these amounts or for donations from corporations, labor organizations, foreign nationals, federal contractors, or national banks.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Contributions or gifts to House Majority PAC are not tax deductible.

This email was sent to: podesta@law.georgetown.edu. Make sure you continue to get updates from House Majority PAC add democrats@thehousemajoritypac.com to your address book or approved sender list.

If that is not your preferred email address, you can update your information here.

If you'd like to still get updates from House Majority PAC but less frequently, click here to sign up for 1-2 emails per month.

Click here to unsubscribe.

Paid for by House Majority PAC. www.thehousemajoritypac.com. Not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Andrew Kessel" <akessel@clintonfoundation.org>
To:	"Amitabh Desai" <adesai@clintonfoundation.org>
	"Bruce Lindsey" <blindsey@clintonfoundation.org>
	"Laura Graham" <lgraham@clintonfoundation.org>
	"Doug Band - PC" <doug@presidentclinton.com>
	"Justin Cooper - PC" <justin@presidentclinton.com>
	"John Podesta?? \(john.podesta@gmail.com\)" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	12/9/2011 1:45:44 AM
Subject:	RE: Letter to WJC and the WJC Foundation

In principle, we need at the least to be sure that charitable purpose is aligned and that payments are going to allowed recipients. We would need to know more about specifics of what they want us to do to determine if its allowable or not.

Andrew Kessel
501-748-0473 (o)
501-951-4461 (c)

From: Amitabh Desai
Sent: Thursday, December 08, 2011 6:30 PM
To: Bruce Lindsey; Laura Graham; Doug Band - PC; Justin Cooper - PC; John Podesta (john.podesta@gmail.com)
Cc: Andrew Kessel; Hannah Richert - PC
Subject: FW: Letter to WJC and the WJC Foundation

Dear Bruce, WJC called earlier today to say we should explore this and be helpful to the extent we think it makes sense within the structures of CF and CGI. In short, Eva Gonda (introduced to us by Mark Weiner) would like to undertake a research project to develop a workplan for philanthropic organizations interested in improving education (beginning in the US). The Gonda family (history below) is willing to fund it. It feels like the best way forward would be for Eva to join CGI (probably beginning with CGI America), make this research project her "Commitment to Action," and then we can have a discussion with her next year after she's developed "the workplan," to determine together if there is any parts of the workplan that we would want CF to operationalize (with funding from the Gonda family). Importantly, Eva is asking if CF can serve right now as a pass-through for her to carry out this research, since she doesn't have a 501c3. We can have her join CGI either way, but I got the impression it's important for her that we be the pass-through, and I'm only raising this because of the enormous potential WJC and Mark have said this family has to be supportive of CF. I'd welcome your guidance. We're probably talking about $80k that would be passed through. Thanks, Ami

---

From: Mark Weiner [mailto:mweiner@fiiri.com]
Sent: Monday, December 05, 2011 4:30 PM
To: Amitabh Desai
Subject: Letter to WJC and the WJC Foundation

Ami:

Thank you for taking the time to speak with me regarding Eva's project. Attached is per proposal.

Here's a little background on the Gonda Family.

The Gonda story very interesting. Leslie Gonda is a Holocaust survivor; his wife, Susie, who passed away 2 years ago was a Concentration Camp survivor. They moved to the United States in the early 1960's. Leslie is a businessman and entrepreneur. He and his son, Lou (Eva's father) started International Lease Finance in 1973. They have been named among Forbes list of riches American billionaires.
Leslie Gonda has been a major benefactor of many medial institutions, museums, and charities. The Leslie and Susan Gonda Foundation has created centers, laboratories, and endowments to meet the needs of vascular, diabetes, genetic and neuroscientific research at major medical institutions and universities around the globe. Examples of the Gonda's philanthropy include the Gonda Vascular Centers at UCLA and the Mayo Clinic, The Gonda Center for Diabetes and Genetic Research at the City of Hope and Georgetown.
They believe through education and advances in medicine, generations in the future will be able to meet the challenges of an increasingly competitive world and lead productive and meaningful lives. They believe in this country that has been so great to them and want to give back. They are willing to fund the cost of this project.

Looking forward to our meeting Thursday.

Best,
Mark

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Joe Sestak" <info@joesestak.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 12/18/2009 4:16:39 AM
Subject: Update – Happy Holidays [VIDEO]

Joe Sestak for Senate

Dear John,

Every year, Christmas brings the Sestak family together - my wife Susan and our daughter Alex join my mom, my brother and seven sisters and their kids. There really isn't a dinner table big enough! However we celebrate the holidays -- Christmas, Hanukkah, Kwanzaa, and others -- this season always seems to bring loved ones together. So from my family to yours, we wish you joy and happiness heading into the new year.

Click Here To Play Video

This year, we have a lot to celebrate, but we also have to remain committed to helping one another in these difficult times. Throughout the state, I meet Pennsylvanians who have been hit hardest by the recession. One in eleven of us are still looking for work. For those who have jobs, wages remain flat while our utility bills and grocery bills continue to go up. That's why I've been working in Congress to help working families who have borne the brunt of this recession through no fault of their own.

My recent op-ed in the Harrisburg Patriot-News describes what I'm doing to make sure the end of this recession becomes a real recovery for Pennsylvania - Click Here

Please also read the feature article in this month's edition of Philadelphia Magazine- Click Here

Helping Laid Off Workers About to Lose Their Health Care

I am grateful that the House of Representatives included my legislation to extend COBRA health benefits in the jobs bill that passed this week. Since I introduced the bill in October to assist workers who are still looking for jobs by continuing the government's 65 percent subsidy of COBRA's premium costs for the unemployed, my office has been getting emails and calls from coast to coast. The assistance, which I helped pass as part of the Economic Stimulus Bill, began to expire starting at the beginning of this month. When I recently met with over a dozen people who have lost or are about to lose their health care coverage if Congress fails to act, one could so readily see the damage unaccountable leadership in Washington has brought about, and why we need to help those who are being laid off and losing health care through no fault of their own.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Here are some of the clips from our meeting at the Philadelphia Unemployment Project office:

CBS 3 News Report - Click Here
Fox 29 News Report - Click Here

Losing one's job is difficult enough. Losing health coverage for ourselves or our families, while fearing bankruptcy in the event of injury or illness, is something none of us should have to face heading into the holiday season. I now urge the Senate to move swiftly and follow our lead in passing this COBRA extension by year's end.

Here are just a few stories from the people I met with.

Keeping Families in Their Homes

My Congressional office has already worked to help hundreds of Pennsylvania families facing foreclosure stay in their homes. A survey of five central Pennsylvania offices shows that families living in that region could be at the greatest risk -- foreclosures are on pace to increase by 30 percent.

We've taken a number of critical steps to stem the tide of foreclosures, but it is clear that more comprehensive action is needed. That's why I introduced a bill to provide $100 million in competitive federal matching grants to states and localities that initiate foreclosure diversion programs. Philadelphia's program, which brings mortgage holders and lenders together for a "conciliation conference," has already helped boost the number of mortgage modifications to keep families in their home. Click Here

We Have to Learn to Work Together

Many school districts throughout Pennsylvania are suffering from high costs for transportation for special education students because of a failure to effectively coordinate these services between school districts. So I introduced legislation to encourage broader cooperation between school districts. This way, we can reduce costs and more efficiently provide educational services to students. Schools in the Lehigh Valley are already leading by example. Bethlehem's school district partners with Northampton Area School District to cover the costs of sending special education students to an out-of-district school. If the two districts did not split the costs, it would cost Bethlehem Area double. Click Here

New Wall Street Safeguards Mark Clear Break with Old Policies

Just months after passing an Economic Stimulus Bill to rescue America from the worst economic downturn since the Great Depression, I helped pass new legislation that will restore oversight to the financial markets, provide mechanisms for limiting executive pay, and prevent predatory lending practices. Click Here

These difficult times require leaders who will challenge Wall Street on behalf of working families. Still, there are some who will neither stand up and correct the abuses that occurred in the gambling with earnings of working families, nor admit responsibility for removing the referee from Wall Street and for their role in backing the Bush Administration's failed economic policies. Instead, we need principled, accountable leadership in government to restore the people's trust in their elected officials.

I disagree with the record of voting by our present Senator, Arlen Specter, when he supported policies that failed to protect the interests of the working family:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

- De-regulating Wall Street, forbidding any requirement for reporting derivative transactions, tearing down the walls between investment companies and consumer banks, and removing requirements that banks keep sufficient cash reserves on hand. (S. 900, Vote #105, 5/6/99) (H.R. 4577, 12/15/2000)
- Repeatedly backing Bush's deficit-funded tax breaks for multi-millionaires, doubling our national debt from $4.5 trillion to over $9 trillion.
- Eliminating "pay-as-you-go" (PAYGO) rules, which had created 3 budget surpluses under President Clinton by requiring Congress to offset the cost of any new spending programs. (H.R. 5708, Vote #482, 11/14/2002)
- Voting to strip a key provision to save homes from foreclosure by empowering bankruptcy judges to reduce principal and interest rates for homeowners in bankruptcy [S AMDT 1014, 4/30/09].

Pennsylvanians are still feeling the effects of these misguided policies, which let Wall Street greed go unchecked. At its worst point, 7,000 Americans lost their jobs every month, and 5.4 million have been looking for work for at least 27 weeks. Families have lost homes to foreclosure, bringing down property values across the state. Many seniors who have worked their entire lives have seen their retirement savings and pensions wiped out. As your next Senator, I'll work to rebuild Pennsylvania for everyone.

As we head into the cool winter months, our campaign to rebuild Pennsylvania continues to heat up. We've traveled to all 67 counties, we're taking on the establishment, and we continue to grow our support. As we approach the New Year, I'm resolved to keep working side-by-side with you so that we can bring a new generation of leadership to the U.S. Senate and rebuild Pennsylvania's middle class.

Here are six ways you can help.

1. Sign-up to volunteer and represent Joe Sestak at an event in your neighborhood.
2. Contact us to do remote phone-banking to tell people in your community about Joe Sestak.
3. Give $5, $10, $25, or $50 to help us expand our campaign locally to your area.
4. Tell your friends on Twitter and Facebook that you support Joe Sestak.
5. Submit a letter to the editor of your local newspaper in support of Joe Sestak for Senate
6. Forward this email to at least 5 of your friends and neighbors.

Thank you for taking part in this campaign! Please forward this email to your friends.

Warmly, and Happy Holidays,

Joe Sestak

Contribute | Volunteer

Facebook

Twitter

Paid for by Sestak For Senate

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sestak For Senate
PO Box 1936
Media, PA 19063
Unsubscribe | http://JoeSestak.com | (610) 891-8956

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Karen Pierce" <piercekl@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	"All Faculty and Staff" <AllFacultyandStaff@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	8/19/2015 5:27:28 AM
Subject:	Softball Results

Our Hoya Lawyas were scheduled to play WilmerHale last night, but they forfeited, so the win goes to us.
Our team has a bye next week, and will be back on the field on September 1st.

Karen

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Herbert Sandler" <hms@sandlerfoundation.org>
	"Susan Sandler" <ses@sandlerfoundation.org>
Date:	1/4/2015 7:06:22 AM
Subject:	Fwd: Mollye Fryday Resume
Attachments:	MollyeFryday.Resume.pdf

Ed policy person I mentioned, Josh's wife.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: "Josh Fryday" <jfryday@nextgenclimate.org >
Date: Jan 4, 2015 11:48 AM
Subject: Mollye Fryday Resume
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Cc:

Sir,

As requested, please find Mollye's resume attached. She is very grateful for your help in passing this along to the organization we discussed.

Josh

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 3/2/2016 11:25:20 AM
Subject: Re: HRC

yep between 11:30am-1pm

should we try 12pm ?

On Wed, Mar 2, 2016 at 5:58 PM, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Another HRC call tomorrow at 4:00 PM. This is the time I moved the Hill strategy call to.
>
> Want me to move Hill strategy earlier in the day? In John's one remaining late- morning block?
>
> Milia Fisher
> (858) 395-1741
>
> Begin forwarded message:
>
> From: Lona Valmoro <lvalmoro@hillaryclinton.com >
> Date: March 2, 2016 at 5:54:18 PM EST
> To: Sawsan Bay <sbay@hillaryclinton.com >, Sara Latham <slatham@hillaryclinton.com >, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com >, Kate Offerdahl <kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com >
> Subject: HRC
>
> For your principal's schedules -- Call with HRC, Huma, Robby and John tomorrow at 4pm per her request. Will track down a dial in number.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Marshall, Jr., Thurgood" <TMarshall.Jr@morganlewis.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	8/3/2015 1:50:12 PM
Subject:	FW: Assisting Hillary?

John – Attached is from a former longtime Dem staffer on the Joint Economic Committee. He later took a positon at HUD.

If you have someone in HRC policy-world who would be interested in getting Paul's reaction, I can vouch that he's a loyal Dem and very discreet and that he has strong experience and credentials in the field.

Thurgood Marshall, Jr.
Morgan, Lewis & Bockius LLP
2020 K Street, NW | Washington, DC 20004-2541
Direct: +1.202.373.6598 | Main: +1.202.373.6000 | Fax: +1.202.373.6001
tmarshall.jr@morganlewis.com | www.morganlewis.com
Assistant: Denise Ann Soo Hoo | +1.202.373.6616 | denise.soohoo@morganlewis.com

---

From: Paul Manchester [mailto:paulbmanchester@hotmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, July 30, 2015 11:00 AM
To: Marshall, Jr., Thurgood
Subject: Assisting Hillary?

I see that Rick Perry is saying that the financial crisis was caused by the affordable housing goals for Fannie and Freddie established under Bill. Are you involved in Hillary's campaign? If so, and if she wants anyone to advise her on this topic, it is an area I have worked on for many years. I don't think the housing goals had much to do with the crisis, but to the extent that they might have, it was the goals established under George W. Bush.

I'm still working, as I guess you are if this email doesn't bounce back to me.

DISCLAIMER
This e-mail message is intended only for the personal use of the recipient(s) named above. This message may be an attorney-client communication and as such privileged and confidential and/or it may include attorney work product. If you are not an intended recipient, you may not review, copy or distribute this message. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by e-mail and delete the original message.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	podesta.mary@gmail.com
To:	"Mae Podesta" <mpodesta@gmail.com> "Megan Rouse" <meganrouse@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Gabe Podesta" <gpodesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/23/2016 10:25:51 PM
Subject:	This morning

Looking out from living room window as I came downstairs just now.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Dornsife pere" <d-pere@dornsife.usc.edu>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	11/3/2015 12:07:00 PM
Subject:	LAST CALL | Manuel Pastor invites your feedback (again) on framework for state-level progressive governance

Dear John,

As our team returns from site visits in the states of Washington, Texas, North Carolina, Ohio, and Nevada, it is clearer than ever that states have become key testing grounds for progressive policy ideas, framing, and new organizing strategies. What is required to build towards and sustain effective, state-level, progressive governance? What are the characteristics that indicate or nourish progressive governance, and what factors explain and move a state towards achieving it?

We invite you to join us this Thursday, November 5th from 1-3p EST/10a-12p PST for a web-conference by phone with a small set of funders, organizers, and academics who have advised us on this States of Change project. States of Change is not just a reference to the geography but more so to the "state" of change – or the conditions, arenas, and capacities for achieving progressive governance. This will be a follow up to the call we hosted on January 23 and will be the last in our research process before we finalize and publicly release our results.

Since January, we have interviewed over 60 stakeholders in our case study states, refined our preliminary framework based on the field interviews, and updated our quantitative assessment of the states with the most recent data available. At this web-convening, we will report on our findings, discuss ways in which this framework can be useful in the current political moment, and identify potential audiences and users in order to shape plans for the public release.

We hope that you can join us. We value your guidance for the next phase of our work and for what we hope will be the ultimate outcome of this research: a shared platform to facilitate thinking and discussion about long-term investments that can allow for social-justice goals to be achieved at scale.

This is the last call to RSVP at https://usccollege.qualtrics.com/SE/?SID=SV_0OCrDwiE9G8EeZn . If you have any questions, please contact Lauren Portillo at lportill@usc.edu or (213) 740-3643. While this will be a conference call—the main purpose is to provoke a lively conversation—there will also be a webinar component. Background materials, agenda, and call-in and webinar log-in information will be sent in advance.

Our best,

Manuel Pastor, Jennifer Ito, and the team at USC Program for Environmental and Regional Equity (PERE)

USC Program for Environmental and Regional Equity (PERE)
950 W. Jefferson Blvd., Suite 102
Los Angeles, CA 90089-1291
P: (213) 821-1325 | F: (213) 740-5680

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Dan Pfeiffer" <danpfeiffer2008@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/14/2015 2:59:26 PM
Subject:	Good job on MTP

You were taking no shit from chuck

And very good announcement on Saturday

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <jp66@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	6/23/2015 8:41:19 AM
Subject:	Confederate stuff

Just called you to discuss. Pls call when you have a minute. Thanks

Sent from my iPhone

From: "MileagePlus Partner" <MileagePlus_Partner@news.united.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 1/25/2016 10:05:21 PM
Subject: Earn up to 35,000 award miles with Prosper

Earn enough award miles for a Saver Award ticket.

To ensure delivery to your inbox, please add MileagePlus_Partner@news.united.com to your address book. View in Web browser

United Airlines - United MileagePlus

MileagePlus # XXXXX888 John, earn thousands of miles.

Earn up to 35,000 award miles with a personal loan

Check your rate ›

Earn enough miles for a Saver Award ticket.

Get an unsecured fixed-rate personal loan through Prosper and get ready for your spring break. You'll earn one MileagePlus® award mile for every $1 borrowed, up to 35,000 miles — that's enough for a Saver Award ticket.*

Check your rate online in minutes with no impact to your credit. Get a no-collateral fixed-rate loan in as few as 3 days. It's just that simple and easy.

Check your rate ›

PROSPER

Getting a loan is easy:

1 Log in using your MileagePlus® number and apply
The process is fast and easy, and will not impact your credit.

2 Accept the loan offer through Prosper
Prosper offers low fixed rates and no prepayment penalties.

3 Receive your loan and earn miles
Earn up to 35,000 MileagePlus award miles.

My account | Earn award miles | Use award miles | News & offers | My status

MileagePlus. The world's most rewarding loyalty program.℠

Stay connected to United:

united.com Partner offers Unsubscribe Change email address Update email preferences Privacy policy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Terms and conditions

United MileagePlus® is not a lender or a loan broker. Prosper and/or WebBank are responsible for all loan terms and loan offers.

*United Economy® roundtrip Saver Awards valid within the 48 contiguous United States and Canada are currently redeemable at 25,000 miles. Award pricing is subject to change without notice. Passenger is responsible for all taxes, fees, baggage fees and surcharges applicable to award travel, including, with respect to government imposed taxes and fees, September 11th Security Fee of $5.60 per one-way trip that does not include a government defined stopover, US Customs, Immigration and APHIS User Fees of $17.50 for each international arrival in the U.S.; and non-U.S. government ticket taxes, fees and airport charges may add up to $275 per ticket as of January 1, 2016. Such taxes, fees and surcharges must be paid at the time of ticketing and are subject to change. Any valid unused award ticket may be returned to the MileagePlus Service Center, for a service charge, up to one year from the date of issue. Award seats are subject to availability and capacity-control restrictions apply. For more information on MileagePlus award travel visit united.com/awards.

Eligibility for a loan is not assured and requires that a sufficient number of investors commit to invest in your loan. Refer to the Borrower Registration Agreement for all terms and conditions. All loans made by WebBank, a Utah-chartered Industrial Bank, member FDIC.

Miles accrued, awards, and benefits issued are subject to change and are subject to the rules of the United MileagePlus® program, including without limitation the Premier® program (the "MileagePlus Program"), which are expressly incorporated herein. Please allow 6-8 weeks after completed qualifying activity for miles to post to your account. United® may change the MileagePlus Program including, but not limited to, rules, regulations, travel awards and special offers or terminate the MileagePlus Program at any time and without notice. United and its subsidiaries, affiliates and agents are not responsible for any products or services of other participating companies and partners. Taxes and fees related to award travel are the responsibility of the member. Bonus award miles, award miles and any other miles earned through non-flight activity do not count toward qualification for Premier status unless expressly stated otherwise. The accumulation of mileage or Premier status or any other status does not entitle members to any vested rights with respect to the MileagePlus Program. All calculations made in connection with the MileagePlus Program, including without limitation with respect to the accumulation of mileage and the satisfaction of the qualification requirements for Premier status, will be made by United Airlines® and MileagePlus in their discretion and such calculations will be considered final. Information in this communication that relates to the MileagePlus Program does not purport to be complete or comprehensive and may not include all of the information that a member may believe is important, and is qualified in its entirety by reference to all of the information on the united.com website and the MileagePlus Program rules. United and MileagePlus are registered service marks. For complete details about the MileagePlus Program, go to united.com .

See additional MileagePlus terms and conditions .

13367 ET01

Don't miss the latest emails; add MileagePlus_Partner@news.united.com .
This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com by United Airlines.
Please do not reply to this email. We cannot accept electronic replies to this email address.
Email mileageplus@united.com with any questions about your MileagePlus account or the MileagePlus program.

To contact the sender, write to:
United MileagePlus
900 Grand Plaza Dr.
Houston, TX 77067

© 2016 United Airlines, Inc. All rights reserved.

A STAR ALLIANCE MEMBER

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	9/16/2015 4:23:39 PM
Subject:	Re: One more on climate change?

Maybe do tomorrow

On Wednesday, September 16, 2015, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> No surprises tonight. Republican candidates continue to deny the science of climate change. https://www.hillaryclinton.com/p/briefing/factsheets/2015/07/27/mad-not-a-scientists/
>
> --
> Milia Fisher
> Special Assistant to the Chair
> Hillary for America
> mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
> c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Heathcote Wales" <wales@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	"Law Faculty and Visitors" <LawFacultyandVisitors@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	3/13/2016 9:22:05 AM
Subject:	atty. rec.

Seeking D.C. divorce lawyer for woman client – financial & prenup issues; no children.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Mark McCullough" <Mark.McCullough@seiu.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 10/6/2008 8:23:04 AM
Subject: [big campaign] SEIU Members Make Health Care Deciding Issue For Uncommitted Voters

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:
October 6, 2008

CONTACT:
Mark McCullough, 202-730-7283

As Presidential Election enters its final weeks…

SEIU Members Make Health Care Deciding Issue For Uncommitted Voters

New Ad, Field Blitz Targets Undecided Voters With Information On Candidates' Health Care Plans

WASHINGTON, DC — Today, SEIU announced a new, multi-state television and field campaign aimed at targeting undecided voters in the final weeks of the presidential election with information on the difference between the Obama and McCain health care plans.

On Friday, the Associated Press reported that while voters prefer Barack Obama's health care plan to John McCain's, many voters – particularly independents and seniors – do not have a clear understanding of the differences between the two proposals. SEIU's new effort – which incorporates advertising, mail, phone calls, and door-to-door canvassing – aims at providing undecided voters with detailed information about the candidates' health care plans.

Beginning Monday, SEIU will begin airing a new television ad, titled "Worried Sick," in two battleground states. The ad underscores the deep concerns working families have about health care – and how John McCain's health care plan would make a bad problem worse by taxing health benefits and denying coverage for pre-existing conditions. In addition to the ad, SEIU is engaging voters directly in battleground states across the country:

- SEIU members are knocking on doors and sharing a new, side-by-side comparison of the Obama and McCain health care proposals with voters;
- SEIU's Americans for Health Care campaign is distributing a side-by-side comparison to voters; and
- Nurses, home care aides, and other SEIU healthcare workers are using mail, phone calls, and internet technology to reach one million union and non-union healthcare workers with information about the candidates' plans.

"With the economy continuing to sour, more and more voters are taking a good, hard look at what how the policy proposals offered by Barack Obama and John McCain are going to affect their families' bottom line," said SEIU Secretary-Treasurer Anna Burger. "Health care is a critical part of that equation, and SEIU members are focusing all of their energy to make sure that in these final weeks of the election, voters have the facts about where the candidates stand on health care."

Over the past year and a half, SEIU members have made health care a central issue in the presidential election:

- In March, 2007, SEIU and the Center for American Progress Action Fund hosted the first presidential forum focused on health care;
- In August, 2007, Barack Obama spent the day working alongside home care worker Pauline Beck as part of SEIU's "walk a day in my shoes " program;
- In April, 2008, SEIU launched its first ad of the general election , featuring nurses and other healthcare workers expressing their concerns about John McCain's health care proposals;
- For four months, SEIU's Road to American Health Care bus tour traveled 8500 miles, holding events in 17 states that featured real people struggling to keep up with rising health care costs;
- SEIU's report, "Making a Bad Problem Worse ," details how John McCain's health care proposal would make it harder for average families to get quality, affordable health coverage;
- SEIU has targeted key Senate and House races with mail, phone calls, and earned and paid media – including television ads - in order to help elect a pro-health care majority in Congress ;
- SEIU has helped host dozens of press conferences highlighting how McCain's health care plan would impact key groups, such as women and veterans, and helped release a Center for American Progress state-by-state analysis of McCain's proposal.

"Worried Sick" can be viewed at http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=o4_M2bvQrY8 . The transcript follows:

Worried Sick (:30 TV)

Woman 1: How did Sam's surgery go?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Woman 2: Good, thank God, but I don't know how we're going to pay the bills. We've got insurance, but it doesn't seem to cover much. And he was out of work for two weeks.

VO: Worried sick about healthcare costs? John McCain's plan won't help. McCain's healthcare plan would raise taxes for many families and would deny coverage for pre-existing conditions like cancer.

Woman 2: And get this--McCain wants to start taxing our benefits.

Woman 1: Maybe you should send him your bills!

Graphic: Worried Sick? Get the facts at www.seiu.org

End Card: Obama for President

Written Disclaimer: Paid for by SEIU COPE, www.SEIU.org , which is responsible for the content of this advertising. Not authorized by any candidate or candidate committee.

VO: SEIU COPE is responsible for the content of this advertising

Sources:
Center for American Progress Action Fund, "John McCain's Radical Prescription for Health Care," 7/2/08 (http://thinkprogress.org/wonkroom/wp-content/uploads/2008/07/health_taxes21.pdf and http://wonkroom.thinkprogress.org/wp-content/uploads/2008/09/wr_us.pdf)
Health Affairs Journal, "Cost And Coverage Implications Of The McCain Plan To Restructure Health Insurance," 9/16/08

# #

With 2 million members, SEIU is the fastest-growing union in North America. Focused on uniting workers in three sectors to improve their lives and the services they provide, SEIU is the largest health care union, including hospitals, nursing homes, and home care; the largest property services union, including building cleaning and security; and the second largest public employee union.

Paid for by SEIU COPE. SEIUCOPE.ORG.
Not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

If you would rather not receive future email messages from Service Employees International Union (SEIU), let us know by clicking here.
Service Employees International Union (SEIU), 1800 Massachusetts Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20036 United States

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "GARCETTI FOR MAYOR" <info@ericgarcetti.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 10/13/2012 9:37:06 AM
Subject: Filipino-Americans for Garcetti

Eric Garcetti FOR MAYOR 2013

Dear Friend --

We in the Filipino-American community have a true friend in this race. He is someone who is ready from day-one to help move our community and all of Los Angeles forward. Today, as the City of Los Angeles celebrates Filipino-American History Month, we are proud to join with more than 60 Filipino-American community leaders in endorsing Eric Garcetti for Mayor, including:

- Bernardo Bernardo - Artist & Activist
- Rob Bonta - Vice Mayor, Alameda
- Jilly Canizares - Executive Director, Fil-Am Arts
- Vicente Ching - Past President, HIFI Rotary Club
- Johneric Concordia - Owner, Park's Finest Restaurant
- Melany De La Cruz-Viesca - Human Relations Commissioner, LA City
- Pilar Diaz - Organizing Committee Member, Asian American Pacific Islanders in Philanthropy-LA
- Arturo Garcia - National Coordinator, Justice for Filipino-American Veterans
- Guila Miramba - Project Coordinator, Ayala Foundation-USA
- Olympia Resol - Board Member, Philippine Nurses Association of Southern California
- Carmen Salindong - Owner, LA Maison du Pain
- Aquilina Soriano - Executive Director, Pilipino Workers Center
- Casimiro Tolentino - Vice President, Board of Fire Commissioners

To see the complete list, click here .

Eric designated the Historic Filipinotown neighborhood and has invested in the quality of life with new sidewalks, parks, and programs to clean graffiti. He played a key role in building the nation's first memorial to Filipino veterans who fought under General MacArthur in World War II -- veterans who served alongside Eric's grandfather when he was in the Pacific Theater. Eric also led the City Council in taking a stand to push for Sen. Daniel Inouye's Filipino Veterans Equity Act.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

But the Filipino-American community isn't just supporting Eric because of our friendship. We know Eric will create jobs and bring new ideas to City Hall so that Los Angeles realizes its full potential.

Our families came to Los Angeles -- like Eric's -- because they knew this was a place of opportunity and greatness. We want Los Angeles to capture that spirit again, and we know Eric has the creative solutions and commitment to make that possible.

Mabuhay.

Prosy De la Cruz
Former Commissioner, L.A. City Civil Service Commission

Joel Jacinto
Executive Director, SIPA

*All titles for identification purposes only.

GARCETTI FOR MAYOR
http://www.ericgarcetti.com/

Eric Garcetti- Los Angeles Mayor 2013
United States

Paid for by Garcetti for Mayor 2013
FPPC ID# 1341339
22647 Ventura Blvd. #301 Los Angeles, CA 91364
This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com . Unsubcribe . | Created with NationBuilder .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Adam Blickstein" <ablickstein@nsnetwork.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 9/17/2008 5:02:24 AM
Subject: [big campaign] NSN Daily Update: A Bad Day for U.S. Counterterrorism Policy

NSN Daily Update: A Bad Day for U.S. Counterterrorism Policy

After toppling the Taliban in Afghanistan, the Bush administration shifted its focus to Iraq – a country that had nothing to do with 9/11 – instead of finishing the job. Today, we are still paying for this terrible strategic mistake. In Afghanistan, the situation continues to deteriorate as the American commander asks for 15,000 additional troops on top of the increases already planned for later this year. In Pakistan's FATA region, al Qaeda has established a new safe haven. Today, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs Admiral Mullen is in Pakistan trying to salvage an understanding on how we work with the Pakistani government to go after al Qaeda terrorists. And in Yemen we had another reminder of the continued threat as the U.S. embassy came under attack. Clearly, the Bush administration's focus on Iraq – a focus John McCain promises to continue – has not helped the U.S. deal with terrorism.

Six years after the Bush Administration turned from Afghanistan to Iraq, the mission there is under tremendous strain, and the American Commander is calling for 15,000 additional troops. Starting in 2002, the Bush Administration let its fixation with Iraq draw resources and attention away from this front where the 9-11 attacks originated. As a result, matters are more dire. In Afghanistan, "about 194 foreign soldiers have been killed this year, the highest number since the U.S.-led invasion in October 2001…On his fourth visit to Afghanistan as defense secretary, Mr. Gates endorsed calls by the senior American commander, Gen. David McKiernan, for three more combat brigades (15,000 troops), in addition to the extra battalion and extra brigade that President Bush has ordered deployed by early next year." Moreover, Afghan security forces remain incapable of standing on their own, sometimes even imperiling U.S. efforts to hunt Al Qaeda and the Taliban. [NY Times, 9/17/08 . Washington Independent, 9/16/08 .]

Lacking a plan to combat the extremist safe-havens in northwest Pakistan, the U.S. struggles to contain instability and deal with increasing frustration from Pakistan's government. Tensions in Pakistan have jeopardized the U.S.' most important counter-terrorism effort. "The United States' top military officer flew unexpectedly into Pakistan on Tuesday night to meet with senior officials amid a tense confrontation between the two allies over recent U.S. military incursions into Pakistan in pursuit of al-Qaeda and Taliban extremists." Events have brought into relief the consequences of the Bush Administration's failure to meet "its national security goals to destroy the terrorist threat and close the safe haven in Pakistan's FATA region." [Washington Post, 9/16/08 . NSN, 4/24/08 . GAO, 4/17/08]

Attacks on the U.S. embassy in Yemen serve as chilling reminder of how our counter-terrorism strategy has fallen short. "Heavily armed militants opened fire on the United States Embassy in Sana, Yemen, on Wednesday and detonated a car bomb at its gates, in an attack that left at least 16 people dead including six of the attackers, Yemeni officials said." "Yemen has long been viewed as a haven for jihadists. It became a special concern for the United States in 2000, after Al Qaeda operatives rammed the U.S.S. Cole in Aden harbor, on Yemen's southern coast, killing 17 American sailors." President Bush has expressed his firm belief that Iraq is the "central front" on the war on terror, since al Qaeda will fight "wherever we are." "But, over the past two years, jihadists claiming allegiance to Al Qaeda appear to have reorganized, releasing more propaganda material on the Internet and carrying out attacks." [NY Times, 9/17/08 . President Bush, 6/28/05. President Bush, 5/24/07]

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "'Mandy Grunwald' via HRCRapid" <hrcrapid@googlegroups.com>
To: Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com jferguson@hillaryclinton.com
Date: 4/20/2015 10:00:56 AM
Subject: Re: Washington Blade Op-Ed: O ¹Malley¹s amnesia on marriage

So satisfying!

Mandy Grunwald
Grunwald Communications
202 973-9400

-----Original Message-----
From: Margolis, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com>
To: Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>; Jesse Ferguson <jferguson@hillaryclinton.com>
Cc: Jesse Lehrich <jlehrich@hillaryclinton.com>; hrcrapid <hrcrapid@googlegroups.com>; Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
Sent: Mon, Apr 20, 2015 4:32 pm
Subject: Re: Washington Blade Op-Ed: O¹Malley¹s amnesia on marriage

Well done team

From: Jennifer Palmieri < jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >
Date: Monday, April 20, 2015 at 4:11 PM
To: Jesse Ferguson < jferguson@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Jesse Lehrich < jlehrich@hillaryclinton.com >, hrcrapid < hrcrapid@googlegroups.com >, Kristina Schake < kschake@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: Re: Washington Blade Op-Ed: O'Malley's amnesia on marriage

It's great

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 20, 2015, at 4:08 PM, Jesse Ferguson < jferguson@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> This makes me happy.
>
> From:hrcrapid@googlegroups.com [mailto:hrcrapid@googlegroups.com] On Behalf Of Jesse Lehrich
> Sent: Monday, April 20, 2015 3:58 PM
> To: hrcrapid
> Subject: Washington Blade Op-Ed: O'Malley's amnesia on marriage
>
> http://www.washingtonblade.com/2015/04/20/omalleys-amnesia-on-marriage/
>
> # O'Malley's amnesia on marriage
>
> There he goes again. Former Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley, who once extolled the virtues of centrism, now wants us to believe — in an unintentionally hilarious rewriting of history — that he's more liberal than Hillary Clinton and a "profile in courage" when it comes to fighting for marriage equality.
>
> In a not-so-subtle jab at Clinton, O'Malley in a February speech said, "History celebrates profiles in courage, not profiles in convenience. The dignity of every person tells us that the right to marry is not a state right, it is a human right."
>
> A Clinton aide last week, responding to a Blade inquiry, affirmed that the 2016 hopeful views same-sex marriage as a constitutional right. That statement marked a change from her earlier position, articulated in an infamous NPR interview last year, that she viewed marriage as a state issue.
>
> Clinton, like President Obama and Martin O'Malley and many others evolved on the issue.
>
> The problem with O'Malley is that he's had more positions on marriage than all the 2016 hopefuls combined. And after pushing for civil unions right up until 2011, he now wants voters to believe that he's a pioneer on the issue. What nerve!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Let's revisit O'Malley's actual record rather than listen to his calculated amnesia.

In 2004, O'Malley told a Baltimore TV station, "I'm not opposed to civil marriages." Also that year, he emailed a plaintiff in the state marriage lawsuit that read, "I'm just supporting something I strongly believe in," referring to marriage equality. But by 2006, O'Malley's position was shifting and he said, "I was raised to believe that marriage is between a man and a woman. This is a fundamental issue of the state's public policy, and a decision that ultimately should not be made by a single trial court judge." When confronted by gay activists after issuing that statement, O'Malley disavowed any previous support of marriage equality.

After a 2007 Maryland court ruling limiting marriage to opposite-sex couples, O'Malley issued the following statement as heartbroken gay residents were busy cancelling their weddings and mourning the court's misguided decision: "I look forward to reading the court's full opinion, but as we move forward, those of us with the responsibility of passing and enforcing laws have an obligation to protect the rights of all individuals equally, without telling any faith how to define its sacraments. I respect the court's decision."

Privately, O'Malley had assured gay rights activists and plaintiffs in the case that he supported marriage equality, only to reverse course and ultimately invoke his Catholic religious beliefs to justify his support of discrimination.

From 2008-2010, O'Malley publicly backed civil unions as bills to legalize marriage equality were defeated in committee. He was even booed off the stage at a private LGBT donor gathering after advocating for civil unions over full marriage rights.

In 2011, O'Malley finally said he would sign a marriage bill if passed. "I have concluded that discriminating against individuals based on their sexual orientation in the context of civil marital rights is unjust." That bill ultimately failed.

It wasn't until New York Gov. Andrew Cuomo embraced the cause of marriage equality as a civil rights issue — and well after Maryland Attorney General Doug Gansler did the same — that O'Malley evolved yet again. Whereas Cuomo made it clear even before he was elected that he supported full marriage rights and then lobbied for the needed votes to pass it, O'Malley was — until 2012 —the reluctant advocate, offering meek, private assurances of support but refusing to publicly embrace the cause, even after winning a second term in a landslide.

Though he eventually came around to full support and was instrumental in preserving the law after it went to referendum, O'Malley was late to the marriage party and certainly doesn't deserve credit for its success.

O'Malley has, for years, embodied the poll-driven milquetoast politician who checks the wind before staking out a position. Now he wants us to believe otherwise.

"We have the ability as a party to lead by our principles or are we going to conduct polls every time we try to determine where the middle is on any given day," he told NPR this week.

We should welcome O'Malley's more progressive positions without forgetting his disappointing record of saying one thing in private and the opposite when the cameras are rolling.

Kevin Naff is editor of the Washington Blade. Reach him at knaff@washblade.com .
- See more at: http://www.washingtonblade.com/2015/04/20/omalleys-amnesia-on-marriage/#sthash.mrtqrOA3.dpuf

--
Jesse Lehrich
Rapid Response
Hillary For America
781-307-2254
@JesseLehrich
--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com.
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

This email is intended only for the named addressee. It may contain information that is confidential/private, legally privileged, or copyright-protected, and you should handle it accordingly. If you are not the intended recipient, you do not have legal rights to retain, copy, or distribute this email or its contents, and should promptly delete the email and all electronic copies in your system; do not retain copies in any media. If you have received this email in error, please notify the sender promptly. Thank you.
--

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Tyson Brody" <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 5/22/2015 9:22:19 AM
Subject: Re: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE

Reuters. Should note some of these, particularly about Sunday Shows, was leaked previously to the Times http://www.reuters.com/article/2015/05/22/us-usa-clinton-emails-idUSKBN0O71WW20150522?utm_source=twitter

Clinton emails show concern about image after Benghazi

WASHINGTON | BY MARK HOSENBALL AND ALISTAIR BELL

Top aides to former U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton fretted over how she would be portrayed after the 2012 Benghazi attacks that killed the U.S. ambassador to Libya and three other Americans, emails released on Friday showed.

The emails from Clinton's personal email account made public by the State Department do not appear to contain any revelations that could badly damage her bid for the presidency in 2016 or provide fodder for Republicans who accuse her of being negligent before the Benghazi attacks.

But they offer a glimpse into how Clinton's team was concerned about her image immediately afterward.

A senior adviser to Clinton forwarded a fawning email from a State Department official about positive media coverage of a statement she gave on Sept. 12, 2012, the day after the killings.

"Really nice work guys," State Department official Matthew Walsh said in the email to other staffers, which linked to a story on the Slate news site praising Clinton's comments about Benghazi as "eloquent." He forwarded the email to Clinton with the letters "FYI."

In another email from September 2012, Sullivan assured the secretary of state that she had used the correct language to describe the lead-up to the Benghazi attack by Islamist militants on a U.S. diplomatic compound and CIA base.

U.S. officials' exact wording of the attacker's motivation had become important because the Obama administration initially said the assaults were a spontaneous protest against an anti-Islamic film posted on the Internet.

The U.S. ambassador to the United Nations at the time, Susan Rice, drew heavy criticism from Republicans for defending this view on Sunday TV shows, even though intelligence indicated within hours that the attacks were the carefully planned work of Islamist militia members.

Sullivan assured Clinton that her language when discussing the attacks in public had been correct.

"You never said spontaneous or characterized the motives, in fact you were careful in your first statement to say we were assessing motive and method," he wrote in an email.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Long a focus of Republican investigators in Congress, accusations that Clinton was negligent on Benghazi are putting her under more intense scrutiny now that she is running for the Democratic Party nomination in the 2016 presidential election.

Republicans say the Obama administration was lax about the security of U.S. personnel in Libya and then misled the public about the nature of the attacks, but various congressional probes have produced little damaging evidence.

The 296 pages of Clinton emails from her time as secretary of state between 2009 and 2013 that were released on Friday were the first installment of a rolling release of 55,000 pages of emails ordered by a federal judge on Tuesday.

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 4:20 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

http://www.thedailybeast.com/articles/2015/05/22/sorry-gop-there-s-no-smoking-gun-in-hillary-clinton-s-benghazi-emails.html

Sorry, GOP. There's No Smoking Gun In Hillary Clinton's Benghazi Emails.

Conspiracy-minded conservatives, be warned: The trove of Clinton emails don't prove much about her culpability for the infamous 9/11 anniversary attacks.

If Republicans were looking for a silver bullet to use against Democratic presidential candidate Hillary Clinton, the State Department's Friday document dump about Benghazi wasn't it.

There's no illicit weapons Libyan program to be found in the emails, as some have speculated. No 'stand-down' order. Just a hectic flow of information to and from Hillary Clinton—about danger, about death, and ultimately, about condolences.

The State Department released Friday 296 emails involving Hillary Clinton during her tenure as Secretary of State, from 2009 to 2013. The documents include some 300 emails related to Benghazi, which were turned over to the Congressional committee investigating the 2012 attacks. The attacks left four Americans dead, including the U.S. ambassador to Libya.

The hundreds of emails released by the agency show a Secretary of State who was deeply engaged on Libyan issues—but usually just in a crisis. While Clinton was a key proponent of intervening in Libya to protect civilians under threat from then-Libyan leader Moammar Qadhafi, her emails show that she took a largely hands off approach towards the country.

Of course, this document trove is an incomplete view, at best. It excludes any phone calls, briefings or memos. It doesn't include the emails that were deleted by Clinton—and we know there were many. (Republicans noted "inexplicable gaps" in Secretary Clinton's emails over several time periods, such as from Oct. 2011 to Jan. 2012, and from April 2012 to July 2012.) And it was released by a State Department that was formerly helmed by Clinton and is still part of a Democratic administration.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

But according to her Benghazi-related email traffic, Clinton appears to be only been involved at times of crisis and even then deferred to those on the ground, including Stevens and friends outside government.

Clinton's emails show that the late Amb. Christopher Stevens had multiple brushes with danger in Benghazi in 2011—more than a year before the September 2012 attacks that would ultimately take his life.

Then-Secretary of State Hillary Clinton received an update about Stevens' 2011 security situation: that there had been intelligence indicating a credible threat to his safety, and that officials were moving swiftly out of the hotel he was staying at in Benghazi.

"There is credible threat info against the hotel that our team is using—and the rest of the Intl community is using, for that matter… DS [Diplomatic Security] going to evacuate our people to alt locations. Info suggested attack in next 24-48 hours," wrote top Clinton aide Jacob Sullivan in an email to Clinton on June 10, 2011, with the subject line, 'Hotel in Benghazi.'

At the time Stevens was a special envoy to Libya, and the U.S. had joined a U.N. campaign to set up a no-fly zone to assist rebels in the overthrow of Muammar Qadhafi.

In a separate incident, in April 2011, a State Department official wrote:

"The situation in Ajdabiyah has worsened to the point Stevens is considering departure from Benghazi. The envoy's delegation is currently doing a phased checkout (paying the hotel bills, moving some comms to the boat, etc). He will monitor the situation to see if it deteriorates further, but no decision has been made on departure."

The communications received by the Secretary of State illustrate the fast pace of security decisions made on the ground—but don't show Clinton with a direct role in these decisions. For example, there's no indication that Clinton intervened in the decision-making process when told about Stevens' 2011 security scares.

Clinton was heavily criticized when it emerged in March that she had used a private email server to conduct business while she was Secretary of State. Her private email accounts prevented the normal process of archiving official government records. Clinton's staff had turned over some 55,000 pages of email correspondence to the State Department in December 2014.

Democrats on the Select Benghazi Committee had urged the release of Benghazi-related emails for months. Clinton herself had urged the State Department to swiftly publish the emails, telling reporters earlier this week that she wanted them in the public domain as soon as possible.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

“I am pleased that the State Department released the complete set of Secretary Clinton’s emails about Benghazi—as Democrats requested months ago,” said Rep. Elijah Cummings, the top Democrat on the committee.

The American people can now read all of these emails and see for themselves that they contain no evidence to back up claims that Secretary Clinton ordered a stand-down, approved an illicit weapons program, or any other wild allegation Republicans have made for years.

In the time between the June 2011 security scare and the September 2012 terrorist attacks, the mood in Libya ebbed and flowed—Stevens left Libya in November 2011 before returning as U.S. ambassador in May 2012.

In July, Libya held national elections which went off well, leading to people heralding the country worldwide. Meanwhile, Islamist flags had emerged on buildings throughout Benghazi.

The correspondence in summer 2012 shows a somewhat positive situation in Libya: the last email from Stevens that Clinton receives paints a rosy picture: in July 2012 Sen. John McCain is in Tripoli, Libya, being lauded for his support of the rebels.

“The atmosphere in Tripoli is very festive,” Stevens wrote in one email on July 7, 2012. “The gov’t declared today a holiday and people are driving around honking and waving flags and making peace sign gestures… McCain was applauded and thanked for his support wherever we went.”

The world’s focus doesn’t dwell on Libya, and Clinton doesn’t receive additional emails about Benghazi again until the 2012 attacks on U.S. facilities.

By September 2012, the situation in Libya had deteriorated. In a diary entry on Sept. 6, Stevens wrote about a “security vacuum” and “dicey conditions,” even suggesting that he was on an “Islamist ‘hit list’ in Benghazi.”

On the fateful day of Sept. 11, 2012, at approximately 4 p.m. in Washington, D.C., the first attack on the U.S. diplomatic compound occurred. Clinton had previously testified (PDF) that she was at the State Department that day, which could explain why she did not send or receive a large volume of emails about Benghazi.

She becomes more active on emails that evening, and at 11:37 p.m., she receives word through her Chief of Staff Cheryl Mills that the Libyan government had confirmed Amb. Steven’s death.

“Cheryl told me the Libyans confirmed his death. Should we announce tonight or wait until morning?” Clinton wrote in an email to top aides.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"The situation has worsened to the point Stevens is considering departure from Benghazi. The envoy's delegation is currently doing a phased checkout."

Throughout the morning after the initial attacks she has a lot of activity: in particular she received a large number of messages expressing condolences to her and the State Department over the death of the ambassador.

"The Ambassador was a perfect role model of the kind of person we need representing us around the world, and the others had so much to give—and already had given so much," said former Secretary of Defense Bob Gates.

"What a wonderful, strong and moving statement by your boss. please tell her how much Sen. McCain appreciated it. Me too," wrote a top national security aide for Sen. John McCain.

That weekend, Clinton continued to exchange emails on the Benghazi issue. On Saturday Sept. 15, the day before Susan Rice appeared on cable shows to make the since-rescinded claim that the Benghazi attacks were the result of protests-turned-violent, Clinton was involved arranging calls from her home and the collection of an action memo via classified courier.

The emails give insight into how Clinton operated at the time: using classified couriers to move memos and getting on the phone with other world leaders, rather than using email.

None of the released emails show Clinton being involved with Rice's appearance on the Sunday shows, or the discussion of what Rice should say. She does, however, receive a transcript of what Rice would eventually say.

Findings of the Republican-led Select committee on Benghazi may not be released until sometime in 2016, in the thick of campaign season.

If the Select Committee continues to operate through the end of the 2015, its estimated cost will rise to $6 million dollars. The House Select Committee on Benghazi was established in May 2014. If it continues through to the end of 2015, it will have been investigating for 19 months—longer than other major, comparable investigations.

(To compare, the joint inquiry into the intelligence community's actions with regard to the Sept. 11, 2001 attacks took less than a year. The Senate Watergate committee operated for about 17 months before presenting its findings. And the Warren Commission on the assassination of President Kennedy operated for under a year.)

The release of Friday's Benghazi-related emails has itself been months in the waiting: the State Department had been going through an excruciating process of assessing the emails for any information that would show sensitive or personally identifiable information, and then removing it. The State Department will now turn its attention to performing the same task on thousands of Clinton emails that are not related to Benghazi.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

In fact, Hillary Clinton's email correspondence has the potential to generate headlines at least through the end of the year, acting as a disruptive force that distracts from her presidential campaign.

For Republican committee chairman Trey Gowdy, the release of these emails are just the first step in a long slog to "collect and evaluate all of the relevant and material information necessary." Gowdy said that the emails released Friday had all been exclusively reviewed and released only after review by her own lawyers.

Earlier this week, a federal judge had dismissed a State Department plan to release her email archives, comprised of some 55,000 pages of emails, by January 2016. Instead, the judge asked the State Department to come up with a plan to gradually release the emails in stages.

In the nearer term, Hillary Clinton is expected to appear before the Select Committee on Benghazi, Gowdy said last week that he will not schedule the former Secretary of State's testimony until the State Department turns over more documents.

"The Select Committee should schedule Secretary Clinton's public testimony now and stop wasting taxpayer money dragging out this political charade to harm Secretary Clinton's bid for president," Cummings, a Democrat, said Friday.

The New York Times obtained and published about a third of the Clinton Benghazi emails earlier this week, revealing that longtime Clinton friend Sidney Blumenthal had frequently written to her about Libya, serving as a source of information about the country before and after the 2012 attacks.

While Blumenthal had originally blamed demonstrators in the American diplomatic facility in Benghazi, a subsequent memo fingered a Libyan terrorist group for the attacks, arguing that they had used the demonstrations as cover for the violence. This week, the Select Committee on Benghazi subpoenaed Blumenthal to appear before the panel.

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 4:16 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> http://www.bloomberg.com/politics/articles/2015-05-22/how-bad-spin-works-a-handy-lesson-from-the-clinton-blumenthal-e-mails
>
> How Bad Spin Works: A Handy Lesson from the Clinton/Blumenthal E-Mails
>
> May 22, 2015 3:46 PM EDT
>
> The sort of intra-Washington chicanery that is not scandalous, but not often revealed.
>
> The just-released batch of emails from Hillary Clinton's tenure as Secretary of State is full of sausage-making. It's the sort of intra-Washington chicanery that is not scandalous, but not often revealed, because human beings are capable of embarrassment. One of the more excruciating exchanges comes when Sidney Blumenthal, the journalist turned Clinton confidant, offered up pro bono spin work during the weeks before the 2012 election when Republicans started to ask why the attack on America's consulate in Benghazi had not been stopped.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On the morning of October 1, journalist Craig Unger—best known for the 2004 cui bono bestseller House of Bush, House of Saud—published a column in Salon that revealed a "Jimmy Carter strategy" being formulated by Mitt Romney's presidential campaign.

"According to a highly reliable source," wrote Unger, "as Mitt Romney and President Barack Obama prepare for the first presidential debate Wednesday night, top Republican operatives are primed to unleash a new two-pronged offensive that will attack Obama as weak on national security, and will be based, in part, on new intelligence information regarding the attacks in Libya that killed U.S. Ambassador Chris Stevens on Sept. 11."

More than that, the "scoop" made no sense.

This source of this scoop, wrote Unger, had "firsthand knowledge of private, high-level conversations in the Romney camp that took place in Washington, D.C., last week." According to the source, "over and over again they talked about how it would be just like Jimmy Carter's failed raid [on Iran in 1980]," and "they feel it is going to give them a last-minute landslide in the election." Curiously, the source predicted that the strategy would fail.

The story went up at 9:30 a.m. Eastern time. Forty-three minutes later, Blumenthal sent Hillary Clinton an email with the text of the story and the subject "Romney's last gambit. Got done and published." In other words, Blumenthal, formerly a Salon columnist, was taking credit for the Romney story being placed in Salon.

In a now-deleted tweet, Romney strategist Stu Stevens snarked that it was "a mistake" to invite Blumenthal into a secret strategy session. "This was just a joke," Stevens added in an e-mail, "highlighting he knew nothing."

More than that, the "scoop" made no sense. The Romney campaign was based in Boston, not Washington. The idea of hitting the White House over the Benghazi attacks was hardly being dreamed up in secret—Romney had done it weeks earlier, and been chastened by a media blowback. Surrogates, however, continued to talk plenty about Benghazi. The only point to the story was that it made Romney's team look callow, which was how allies of the Obama administration wanted them to look.

The running theme of Blumenthal's missives to his "old friend," the Democratic frontrunner, is that Blumenthal is a gusher of terrible advice. The revelation of these emails is that even terrible advice could pay off, if the media was willing to accept a narrative that made the Clintons' enemies look malicious. Republicans did not quite need a FOIA to discover that, but it certainly didn't hur

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robert Mook" <robbymook@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/27/2014 7:26:12 AM
Subject:	Binder for Monday

John,
Would you like me to drop off a binder for Monday's meeting tomorrow?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Humble Lady" <hit-reply@linkedin.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/18/2015 6:28:22 AM
Subject:	hi

Hell am new in this site but i cant put pictures here so will you mind if you reply me back.i want to be friends with you

Reply | Not interested

View Humble's LinkedIn profile

This email was intended for John Podesta (Chair of Hillary for America). Learn why we included this.

You are receiving InMail notification emails. Unsubscribe
If you need assistance or have questions, please contact LinkedIn Customer Service .

© 2015, LinkedIn Corporation. 2029 Stierlin Ct. Mountain View, CA 94043, USA

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robert Mook" <robbymook@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Marlon Marshall" <marlondmarshall@gmail.com>
Date:	2/16/2015 10:08:18 AM
Subject:	Re: Michael Ramdatt - Penn for Hillary

Sure thing. Marlon, can you or someone else on your team take this?

On Mon, Feb 16, 2015 at 4:32 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Do we have anyone who can meet with go-getters. Probably shouldn't be on my dance card, but nice to encourage this.
>
> ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> From: "Michael Ramdatt" <ramdatt@seas.upenn.edu >
> Date: Feb 16, 2015 12:55 PM
> Subject: Michael Ramdatt - Penn for Hillary
> To: <John.podesta@gmail.com >
> Cc:
>
> Hello Mr. Podesta,
> Thank you again for taking my call especially considering its unorthodox nature. As I said on the phone, I currently serve as Political director for Penn for Hillary: a student-led organization building a Philadelphia base for Hillary Clinton's next political endeavor. Our group started out as a campus franchise of Ready for Hillary but after surpassing the goals set by the national organization, we broadened our vision to include the greater Philadelphia area. We've formed partnerships with most of the major schools in the trip-state region and we have established a network of students approaching 500 members. These partnerships include strong ties to the Pennsylvania College Democrats.
>
> As I mentioned, we'll be traveling to DC this week to attend the Winter Meeting. Our hope is for us to form more connections within the party and to establish ourselves as a resource in Philadelphia. We'd love to meet with you informally if your schedule allows. If we're unable to meet in DC, you always have an open invitation to visit us here at Penn (we'd love to have you speak to our student body).
>
> Travel Details:
> Arriving in DC Thursday evening and leaving Saturday night.
>
> Delegation Members:
> Mitchell McVeigh, Co-Founder and Co-President
> Emily Irani, Co-Founder and Co-President
> Michael Ramdatt, Political Director
> Robert Klein, Outreach Director
>
> Thanks again for being so kind. I look forward to hearing from you soon.
>
> -Mike
>
> Michael C. Ramdatt
> University of Pennsylvania, 2018
> ramdatt@wharton.upenn.edu > ramdatt@seas.upenn.edu
> 407.864.8884

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 7/15/2015 9:31:31 AM
Subject: Re: IDP Dinner

Flagging that she didn't serve same time as Bernie in senate.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jul 15, 2015, at 3:11 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Here's a first cut at HRC's remarks for the IDP dinner. Would love your thoughts. She is reviewing as well. A few notes:
>
> -- This opens by recalling previous collaborations with the other Dem candidates. To me, this is a chance to seem big and inclusive when they are likely to be trying to drive wedges. Easy to cut, but might be a nice grace note.
> -- This draft throws out some red meat early on with Donald Trump to get the crowd jazzed at the top. Then she can do your affirmative agenda and circle back to the fuller contrast later on. Plenty of other ways to organize this, but a good hit at the top seemed important.
> -- Given the growing controversy over the leaked Planned Parenthood video, with Boehner calling for hearings and other GOPers piling on, we should think about whether this is a good time to join the battle and come to Planned Parenthood's defense, or whether it's wiser to stay away. For now, its in here.
> -- Finally, you'll see a hit on Governor Branstad for his veto of mental health funding. Matt thinks this is a good fight to pick and I agree. Gives you a chance to make an emotional appeal on an issue you care about so much. The Governor is also riling folks up with his education cuts, so that's in here as well.
>
> Am going to keep working this and punching up the language, but wanted to share early draft in case folks have initial reactions.
>
> Thanks
> Dan
>
> <2015-07-15 IDP dinner - 230pm.docx>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tara McGuinness" <tara.mcguinness@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	9/24/2015 8:24:26 AM
Subject:	Having the Chinese in town and the pope really makes me miss you

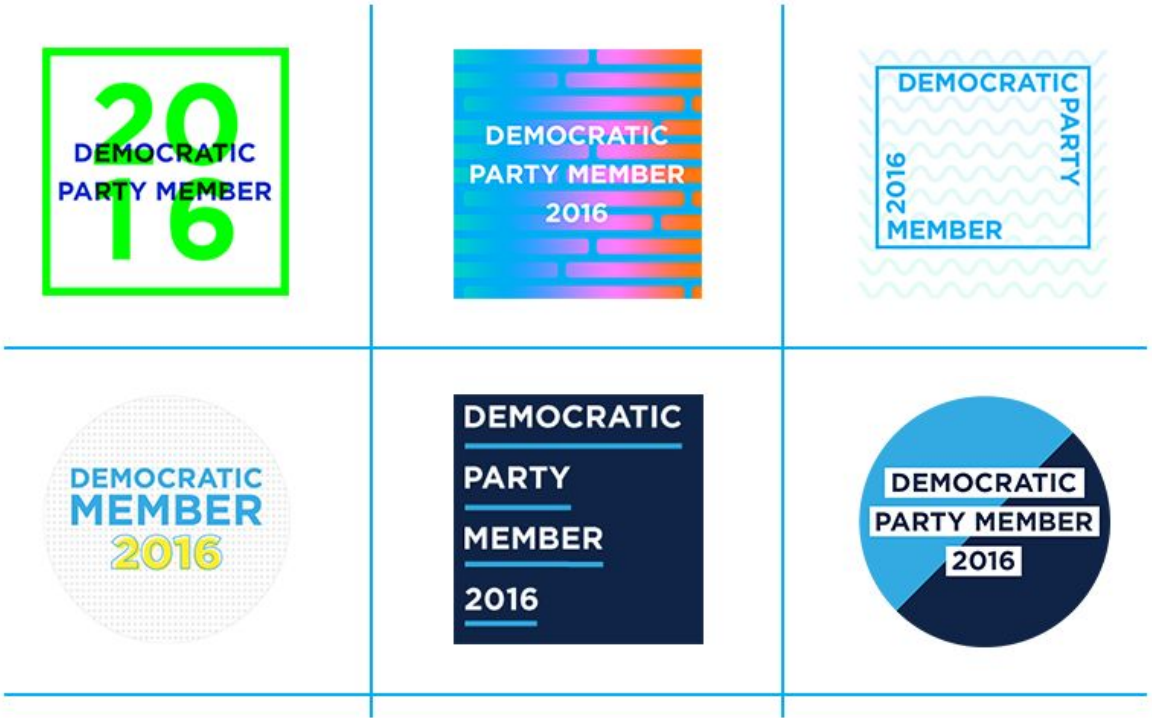
What a speech.

Tara

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Democrats.org <democraticparty@democrats.org>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 3/6/2016 4:47:53 PM
Subject: Vote for your favorite (we'll print the top 3!)



We're printing a set of limited-edition stickers you can put on your laptop or phone to show you're proud to be a Democrat in 2016. Vote for your favorite design now.

VOTE NOW

TONIGHT'S DEBATE MAKING YOU PROUD TO BE A DEMOCRAT?

Then get ready to show everyone who you're standing with in this ELECTION

VOTE FOR YOUR FAVORITE DESIGN

VOTE

Then pre-order a set of the most popular stickers (perfect for your laptop or phone!)

http://my.democrats.org/Choose-Your-Favorite

Paid for by the Democratic National Committee, 430 South Capitol Street SE, Washington DC 20003 and not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com. If this isn't the best email address at which to reach you, update your contact information . Our email list is the best way we have of staying in regular contact with supporters like you across the country and letting you know about the work President Obama and other Democrats are doing. If you like staying in touch, but want to receive only the most important messages, click here . Click here to unsubscribe from our supporter list, but if you leave, it will be harder for you to stay involved in the organization that you've been such a critical part of. This organization is powered by you, and we'd love to hear your ideas. Send us any comments, criticisms, or feedback here , or just reply to this email! Thanks for supporting President Obama and other Democrats.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sara Latham" <sara@lathamgroup.co.uk>
To: "Juliana Gendelman" <jgendelman@americanprogress.org>
"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 1/15/2009 8:49:34 AM
Subject: Fwd: need any Inaugural tix ?

---

another party at my house (ok, Joe's house) - friday night!

Begin forwarded message:

> From: Sara Latham <sara@lathamgroup.co.uk >
> Date: 14 January 2009 17:16:10 GMT
> To: Andrew Mayock <amayock@gmail.com >, Kevin Moran <kevinsmoran@gmail.com >, Sarah Feinberg <sarahelizabethfeinberg@gmail.com >, Julie Eddy <julie.eddy@mail.house.gov >, Katy Button <Kmbutton72@aol.com >, Rebecca Walldorff <rebecca_walldorff@yahoo.com >, Debbie Berger <debbie.berger@gmail.com >, Melissa Green <green_m68@hotmail.com >, Kris Engskov <kengskov@starbucks.com >, Kara Westhusing <karaw@microsoft.com >, Virginia Rustique-Petteni <vrustique@vrpstrategies.com >, Filippo Petteni <fpetteni@bevans.co.uk >, Steven Moffett <steven@smlevents.com >, Matt Schneider <Matthew.SCHNEIDER@rbs.com >, Narric Rome <narric@gmail.com >, Andy Blacker <andyblacker1@aol.com >, liz sarachek <lsarachek@yahoo.com >, Sam Williamson <sam.g.williamson@gmail.com >, Jane Marcus <janemarcus@earthlink.net >, Kathy McKiernan <kathy.mckiernan@one.org >, Lee Satterfield <leesatterfield@mac.com >, Patrick Steel <psteel@fbr.com >, Mary Morrison <mary.morrison@clintonglobalinitiative.org >, mstreett@mayerbrown.com , Jono Smith <jes@jono.us >, Linda Moore Forbes <lmoore_forbes@hotmail.com >, Jeff Gay <jfg2003@columbia.edu >, Hannah Richert <hannah@presidentclinton.com >, Jon Orszag <jorszag@compasslexecon.com >, Jonathan Prince <jmprince@prodigy.net >, Jenny Murphy <jmurphy@gloverparkgroup.com >, Jake Siewert <Jake.Siewert@alcoa.com >, Josh Gottheimer <josh.gottheimer@bm.com >, Lauren Kellam <lkellam@hotmail.com >, Laura Marcus <lmarcus6@gmail.com >, Michele Ballantyne <MBallantyne@riaa.com >, Suzy George <sgeorge@thealbrightgroupllc.com >, Nate Tibbits <Nate.Tibbits@ptt.gov >, Dan Rosenthal <DRosenthal@corp.untd.com >, Aviva Rosenthal <aviva@actiii.com >, Chris Wayne <cwayne@cwassocs.com >, Chris M Gray <Christine.Gray@fcps.edu >, Christian Cook <pulax98@hotmail.com >, capricia marshall <capricia@hillaryclinton.com >, Huma Abedin <huma_abedin@clinton.senate.gov >, margaret.buford@ptt.gov , Doug Band <doug@presidentclinton.com >, jeremy.bash@ptt.gov , Philippe Reines <Philippe_Reines@clinton.senate.gov >
> Cc: Joe Lockhart <jlockhart@gloverparkgroup.com >, Joel Johnson <jjohnson@gloverparkgroup.com >, missy.owens@ptt.gov , Michael Feldman <mfeldman@gloverparkgroup.com >, Susan Brophy <sbrophy@gloverparkgroup.com >
> Subject: need any Inaugural tix ?
>
> I thought that might get your attention, (believe me, I don't have any juice at PIC)
>
> but please kick off your Inaugural weekend with some ticket-horse trading and drinking at another Latham/ Lockhart extravaganza!
>
> this Friday night - January 16th
> Joe's house
> 9pm onwards
> 2122 Bancroft Place, NW
>
> xo,
> Sara

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Amanda Renteria" <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	4/18/2015 4:44:17 AM
Subject:	Re: Senate Caucus

And it's the actual senators?

> On Apr 18, 2015, at 11:31 AM, Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> Marlon and I just talked about this. We were going to take some of the > slides from the finance presentation and use those.
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
>> On Apr 18, 2015, at 11:28 AM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>>
>> Are we presenting there on Tues?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "The Broad Foundation" <press@broadfoundation.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 1/24/2011 7:40:51 AM
Subject: U.S. News and NCTQ Launch Comprehensive Review of Nation's Teacher Preparation Programs

Having trouble viewing this email? Click here the broad foundation education

announcement

U.S. News & World Report and National Council on Teacher Quality Launch Comprehensive Review of Nation's Teacher Preparation Programs

U.S. News & World Report and the National Council on Teacher Quality (NCTQ) announced last week the launch of a landmark survey. The survey will consist of more than 1,000 schools of education across the country. Unprecedented in its scope and comprehensiveness, the project will rate the quality of teacher preparation programs from which more than 200,000 new teachers graduate each year.

The new rating survey, to be published in the second half of 2012, will be useful for both consumers and policymakers. Teacher education is a critical national issue, and preliminary data indicates that there are wide variances in the quality of programs. Aspiring teachers will be able to identify which programs will best prepare them for the classroom, and school districts will know where they should target their recruitment efforts for new hires. Education leaders, including university presidents, state superintendents of education and state legislators, will be able to evaluate best-and worst - practices across all 50 states.

"We now know beyond any shadow of a doubt that teacher effectiveness is the single biggest school-based contributor to learning," said Kate Walsh, President of NCTQ. "Just like in every other profession, the quality of their training has a tremendous impact on how well teachers perform. The only way we will meet the challenge of ensuring that all our country's students get the excellent teachers they deserve is to transform teacher preparation."

U.S. News has long ranked the graduate schools of education as part of its college and university ranking guides. The new teacher education review is a separate survey, which will be a more detailed examination of a wide variety of graduate and undergraduate programs.

"We want to know what teachers are being taught," said Brian Kelly, editor of U.S. News. "We're partnering with NCTQ because they've developed a great methodology to look deeply into these important institutions and compare them across the country."

U.S. News and NCTQ will award grades to each of the programs under review. They will identify the top schools of education in the country as well as the institutions whose program designs fall so far below standard that they leave their graduates ill equipped to teach.

Programs will be rated by their performance on 17 different standards, which were developed by evaluating the highest caliber research on education, best practices from both the U.S. and foreign countries with excellent educational systems, and the advice of national experts across many subject areas. The standards are calibrated for undergraduate and graduate levels, and can be applied to programs that prepare elementary, secondary and special education teachers.

Program ratings will be derived from a digest of course materials (including course syllabi and textbooks) supplied by education schools themselves, as well as surveys and other publicly available information.

NCTQ honed its methodology for the national review by conducting a number of similar, smaller studies across the past decade, most recently of the teacher preparation programs of Texas and Illinois. Those reports revealed the wide variability of the design quality of teacher training programs -- even within a single institution -- and have provoked calls for reform.

Funding for the project is provided by dozens of foundations across the country with principal funding provided by Carnegie Corporation of New York, The Eli and Edythe Broad Foundation, Gleason Family Foundation, The Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation, Searle Freedom Trust, and The Teaching Commission.

###

About the U.S. News Media Group

The U.S. News Media Group is a multi-platform publisher of news analysis, research and rankings which includes the U.S.News & World Report magazines and guidebooks, the digital-only U.S. News Weekly magazine, and the company's websites, www.usnews.com and www.rankingsandreviews.com . Focusing on Health, Money, Education, Politics & Policy, Autos, and Travel, the U.S. News Media Group has earned a reputation as the leading provider of service news and information that improves the quality of life of its readers.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

About the National Council on Teacher Quality
Founded in 2000, NCTQ advocates for reforms in a broad range of teacher policies at the federal, state, and local levels in order to increase the number of effective teachers. NCTQ is a non-partisan research and policy organization dedicated to increasing public awareness about the current structure of the teaching profession and informing a comprehensive policy reform agenda.

Forward email

SafeUnsubscribe
This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com by press@broadfoundation.org |
Update Profile/Email Address | Instant removal with SafeUnsubscribe ™ | Privacy Policy .

The Broad Foundation | 10900 Wilshire Boulevard | 12th Floor | Los Angeles | CA | 90024

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tina Flournoy" <Tina@presidentclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	12/7/2015 10:50:00 AM
Subject:	FW:
Attachments:	20151207111143248.pdf

These and other documents being released tomorrow by Archives (they are being declassified). Please look at 2nd page first full paragraph

-----Original Message-----
From: 1271scan@clintonfoundation.org [mailto:1271scan@clintonfoundation.org]
Sent: Monday, December 07, 2015 11:12 AM
To: Tina Flournoy
Subject:

This E-mail was sent from "RNPE38E0D" (Aficio MP C5000).

Scan Date: 12.07.2015 11:11:43 (-0500)
Queries to: 1271scan@clintonfoundation.org

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Nikki Budzinski" <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 6/10/2015 7:46:36 AM
Subject: Re: Afscme/Bernie

Gotcha. I'm connecting with Brian at 4pm. Keep you posted.

On Wed, Jun 10, 2015 at 2:33 PM, Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> Sorry no I thought you said you were getting more Intel on sanders!
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Jun 10, 2015, at 1:35 PM, Nikki Budzinski <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
>> Ok, thanks Huma. Just want to make sure this is correct, you'd like me to touchbase with Brian Weeks on the labor reception at John's home? Happy to do it. Just making sure I'm following up on the right stuff.
>>
>> Sent from my iPhone
>>
>> On Jun 10, 2015, at 1:18 PM, Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>
>>> Nikki - can you send Brian download when you talk to him. On reception at johns, spoke to her about it and she is ok leaving it as one reception and she likes johns idea of incorporating people along the way when we are in town.
>>> On Harold, she said she downloaded to Robby so he should have passed on
>>>
>>> On Jun 10, 2015, at 12:44 PM, Nikki Budzinski <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>>
>>>> Brian texted me. Sanders did very well. He got a standing ovation.
>>>>
>>>> On Wed, Jun 10, 2015 at 11:54 AM, Nikki Budzinski <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>>>> I'm talking to Brian later this afternoon for the debrief. I can definitely keep you posted.
>>>>>
>>>>> On Wed, Jun 10, 2015 at 11:51 AM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>>>>> HRC was asking if we've gotten a read out of how Bernie did at afscme.
>>>>>> Any Intel?
>>>>>
>>>>> --
>>>>> Nikki Budzinski
>>>>> Labor Outreach Director
>>>>> Hillary for America
>>>>> 646-854-1442 (direct)
>>>>
>>>> --
>>>> Nikki Budzinski
>>>> Labor Outreach Director
>>>> Hillary for America
>>>> 646-854-1442 (direct)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--
Nikki Budzinski
Labor Outreach Director
Hillary for America
646-854-1442 (direct)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Bob Boorstin" <rboorstin@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 6/15/2015 6:10:48 AM
Subject: Re: Nats vs. Pirates Friday night?

Enjoy.

Harmonic convergence with grown kids rare.

Best to Mary. And good luck with, well, everything on your plate.

Yrs.

Bob

On Mon, Jun 15, 2015 at 1:08 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Sounds nice but the kids are all in town so have to pass
>
> On Monday, June 15, 2015, Bob Boorstin <rboorstin@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > Hi John,
> >
> > Ricki and I are going and was wondering whether you and Mary are interested, in town, available?
> >
> > Yrs.
> >
> > Bob
> >
> > --
> > Robert O. Boorstin
> >
> > rboorstin@gmail.com
> >
> > If you received this message in error, please discard. Thank you.

--
Robert O. Boorstin

rboorstin@gmail.com

If you received this message in error, please discard. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: robbymook@gmail.com
To: "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
Date: 10/22/2014 12:22:15 PM
Subject: Re: CONFIRMED Follow - up Call, Sunday, October 26, 9:30am EDT - PRE-CALL

Sure thing. Is this on digital specifically or overall stuff?

On Oct 22, 2014, at 11:47 AM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:

Robby/John

Are you free to follow-up on the call with HRC for 30 minutes on Sunday at 9am. I committ to get us done by 10am so it still will be only an hour of your time.

best.

cdm
---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Joanne Laszczych <jlaszczych@cdmillsgroup.com >
Date: Wed, Oct 22, 2014 at 11:19 AM
Subject: CONFIRMED Follow - up Call, Sunday, October 26, 9:30am EDT
To: Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com >
Cc: Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Nicholas S Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Robby Mook <robbymook@gmail.com >

Call is confirmed for 9:30am EDT on Sunday, 10/26.

Please use:

Dial i: 1-530-881-1000
Code: 742374#

-----Original Message-----
From: Cheryl Mills [mailto:cheryl.mills@gmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, October 22, 2014 3:24 AM
To: Jake Sullivan
Cc: Philippe Reines; Nicholas S Merrill; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Joanne Laszczych
Subject: Re: Follow - up Call

Does 930am work better for folks then?

cdm

> On Oct 21, 2014, at 11:45 PM, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> I'll be on a flight and could do 930 (Robby and I were skedded to speak then)
>
>> On Oct 21, 2014, at 8:17 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:
>>
>> Dear all
>>
>> Can you advise Joanne if a call at 9am Sunday will work for a follow up call?
>>
>> Best.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

```
>>
>> cdm
```

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sandler, Herbert" <hms@sandlerfoundation.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/12/2015 6:53:06 PM
Subject:	Friday call

The Friday appointment I mentioned is scheduled for 10:00am. Steve and I would be available at 9:30 and again between noon and about 1:00pm, pst. Or next week.

Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
To:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Philippe Reines" <pir@hrcoffice.com> "Huma Abedin" <huma@hrcoffice.com> "Jake Sullivan" <jake.sullivan@gmail.com> DKendall@wc.com "Jennifer Palmieri" <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com> "Kristina Schake" <kristinakschake@gmail.com> "Heather Samuelson" <Heather.samuelson@gmail.com>
Date:	3/26/2015 4:28:46 PM
Subject:	Tomorrow | Gowdy

Can everyone take a look at this and provide thoughts on what our on the record response will be tomorrow? Note that our language has changed notably from what I sent around last week in 2 places. One is at the end of the first sentence in an effort to make clear that these emails have all been turned over and put the onus for whatever the expansion of the request is on State, and secondly a mention of her being ready and willing to come testify.

"Secretary Clinton has already turned all of her work emails over to the State Department, and the Department has been responsive to the committee, and will continue to be. Representatives of Secretary Clinton's office have been in touch with the committee to make clear that we want to make everything public, that she's ready and willing to come and appear herself, and we call on the committee to do so as soon as possible."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Brenda Moore" <moorebp@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	Announcements <Announcements@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	1/20/2015 9:09:48 AM
Subject:	Susan Weld: Lost Wire Framed Glasses

Good Morning,

Susan Weld has misplaced her wire framed prescription glasses. She thinks that the last place that she had them was in the Market Café.

If you happen to have seen them, please let her know, at: srw37@law.georgetown.edu .

Thanks.

Brenda

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jesse Ferguson" <jferguson@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	Clips <clips@hillaryclinton.com> hrcrapid <hrcrapid@googlegroups.com>
Date:	5/26/2015 3:49:20 PM
Subject:	The Power Players Behind Bernie Sanders Campaign (POLITICO)

http://www.politico.com/story/2015/05/bernie-sanders-2016-campaign-staff-power-players-118282.html

(sorry to note paste, but my cut/paste isn't working right)

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Tina Flournoy" <tflournoy11@gmail.com>
Date:	2/13/2016 3:07:07 PM
Subject:	Re: South Carolina

Marlon has completed the contract with Daryl Jackson and he is going to be subbing with local ministers. We are also hiring people offered by local legislators. So we have more folks coming on board.
That said, we aren't ever going to match the number of people Bernie has and people will continue to complain...but as a proponent of field myself, I can say with certainty that field can't overcome a 20-30 point margin. If our margin shrinks by more than 2-3 points, it will be because of bigger forces than field!

> On Feb 13, 2016, at 9:55 PM, Tina Flournoy <tflournoy11@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> WJC leaving here worried about what we do - or don’t - have on the ground. He wants to know what he can do to get more resources here.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"David Donnelly" <david.a.donnelly@gmail.com>
To:	dmiller@campaignmoney.org
Date:	10/29/2008 6:46:06 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] Re: Campaign Money Watch Expands Kentucky Ad Buy

One slight correction on the link (which picked up a comma along the way):

http://www.bigmoneymitch.com

On Wed, Oct 29, 2008 at 1:12 PM, David Miller <dmiller@campaignmoney.org > wrote:

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Wednesday, October 29, 2008

CONTACT
David Donnelly, Director
(617) 899-1084

David Miller, Communications Manager
(202) 448-6154

Campaign Money Watch Announces Expanded Television Buy In Kentucky

Group's spending nears $1.2 million to challenge McConnell on his "clout"

Washington, D.C. – Campaign Money Watch, a national nonpartisan campaign finance watchdog group, announced today that it has increased by $800,000 its television ad campaign in Kentucky aimed at holding Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell (R-KY) accountable for using his "clout" to help donors and special interests, not his constituents.

The group's ad, available online at http://www.bigmoneymitch.com, will now air in virtually every media market in the Commonwealth.

"Mitch McConnell has made a long career out of blocking and obstructing legislation in Washington, but he is known principally for his radical opposition to all campaign finance reform and his love of special interest fundraising," said David Donnelly, Campaign Money Watch's director. "Now he's telling Kentuckians that he has clout and power. It's fair to ask, as our ad does, who does he use the clout for?"

Last week, Campaign Money Watch announced a $385,000 purchase of airtime in three markets – Lexington, Louisville and northern Kentucky. This week's additional buy brings the group's spending to $1,185,000 across broadcast and cable in seven media markets.

"McConnell wanted a debate on his own clout and now he's got one," Donnelly said. "I think Mitch McConnell, in talking about his power in the Senate, is the only politician in America who is running with Washington, not against it."

Republican Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell's opposition to campaign finance reform and public financing of elections is well documented. He led filibusters against campaign finance reform throughout the late 1990s. McConnell threatened business leaders who supported reform with implied legislative retribution. He sued the federal government – and lost – over the McCain-Feingold law. In June 2007, McConnell testified before his own Senate Rules Committee in opposition to the bipartisan Fair Elections Now Act, a bill to make public money available to candidates who agree to spending limits.

Campaign Money Watch has a successful history of holding politicians accountable who oppose reform. The group led the effort to drive indicted former Majority Leader Tom DeLay from office, as well as conducted a voter education effort in Ralph Reed's primary race for lieutenant governor in Georgia. Campaign Money Watch is a project of Public Campaign Action Fund.

###

--
David Miller
Communications/Web Manager
Public Campaign Action Fund/Campaign Money Watch
1828 L St. NW #250
Washington, DC 20036
(202) 448-6154

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail lori@progressiveaccountability.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Matt Paul" <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 1/8/2016 1:47:03 PM
Subject: Re: Brady Campaign endorsement

Yes

On Friday, January 8, 2016, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote: > + Huma, Matt & Corey. If Brady folks wanted to come to Iowa on Tuesday to do in person, would we want that?
>
> On Jan 8, 2016, at 8:46 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Great
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Jan 8, 2016, at 8:23 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Per our calendar, tues seems ideal
> > >
> > > On Fri, Jan 8, 2016 at 7:29 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > One more element to throw into the mix for next week: Corey is pretty confident we can get the Brady Campaign to endorse. Maybe as early as Tuesday. Should we tell him to press forward with that?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	mtabankin@aol.com
Date:	4/15/2014 3:07:36 PM
Subject:	Re: Personal envy

You have Catholic envy.

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

> On Apr 15, 2014, at 7:07 PM, mtabankin@aol.com wrote:
>
>
> Okay,
> So I have always admired you and loved you > but now I am really jealous of you.
> You get to meet Pope Frank!!!!
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"horie masahiko" <mashorie@meiji.ac.jp>
To:	podesta@podesta.com
Date:	5/19/2015 8:12:06 PM
Subject:	Hellow!
Attachments:	History of COP s .pptx Star Disaster Management.docx

Dear Tony,
How are you? it has been a long time since we we left Nose 49 years ago!
Tonight I was invited to the dinner offered by UN Foundadtion in honor of John.
I met John for the first time and explained to him we enjoyed our camping in Nose, Osaka.
I wish you all the best and hope to see you in the near future.
I attach hereto some of my recent articles.
Mac

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	10/8/2015 8:40:51 AM
Subject:	TWEET: HRC Wall Street Reform Oped

Wall Street needs more accountability, tougher rules & stronger enforcement. @HillaryClinton's plan on @BV: http://bv.ms/1VHBEua

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Joel Benenson" <jbenenson@bsgco.com> "Jim Margolis" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com> "Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com> "Jennifer Palmieri \(jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com\)" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com> "John Podesta \(john.podesta@gmail.com\)" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Robby Mook - HRC" <re47@hillaryclinton.com> "Kristina Schake \(kschake@hillaryclinton.com\)" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com> "Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com> "John Anzalone" <john@algpolling.com> "David Binder" <David@db-research.com> "Lissa Muscatine" <lmuscatine@gmail.com>
Date:	6/9/2015 10:29:44 AM
Subject:	Draft from today's meeting
Attachments:	2015-06-09 Launch speech - 12pm.docx

Here's the draft from today's meeting, so everyone has it electronically as well. Please feel free to send me additional thoughts.
Thanks
Dan

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jairam Ramesh" <jairam54@gmail.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/23/2014 4:13:29 PM
Subject:	Fwd: Mint 24/11

May be of interest. Thanks.

http://www.livemint.com/Opinion/Vn7GdIKn5yctpzlLNrJ1FL/Indias-coal-concerns.html

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Brent Budowsky" <brentbbi@webtv.net>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 6/22/2015 7:44:03 AM
Subject: Re: Hillary Clinton Favorable Rating - Polls - HuffPost Pollster

John, the one point I would emphasize that is time sensitive is that on the trade bill vote in the Senate, my advice would be she say she would vote no now and vote no until there is a significant jobs bill tied to it, similar to the big infrastructure bill I suggested in my last column be tied to the trade bill....not merely fast-track tied to a trade adjustment bill that itself is insufficient.....

What I predict is most likely is that Obama wins fast track with his deal with Republicans and conservative Dems, tied to a lame TAA, with the net result is that liberals and labor are engaged and that HRC supports this package would be a big mistake IMO.....

Obama could easily sink her, on this and other matters.....and sink down ballot Democrats....if we must do fast track, which I am not a big fan of in principle, there is no reason it cannot be tied to a big infrastructure jobs bill which many Republicans and business leaders support.....

What Obama did was inflame the GOP base in large numbers.....through no fault of his own....but depress enough Democrats to not vote...which was totally his fault and many on his staff....HRC will have the same inflammatory affect on the Republican base to vote...through no fault of her own.....but what she can control to a large degree is whether she motivates our base or whether she calls herself a fighter but many in our base conclude she is not.....

My fear is she has a low standard of what will satisfy her on trade....which will make her look, and be, Obama 2.0 on trade in the end at the very moment when a lot of liberals....myself included.....were appalled by his insults of liberals on trade.....

Fast track plus weak TAA is a loser for her, but I suspect that is where she ends up, add a significant infrastructure jobs plan, that is the winner, and IMO that should be her price for supporting it, or something similar.....and if it were my call she would tell Obama that personally and if he doesn't get a better deal, just say no having made the fight.....Brent

Sent from my iPad

On Jun 22, 2015, at 2:15 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Brent,
> We are of course aware of the numbers and the trend lines. And we are not complacent. And I put our consultants in that we. The question remains what do you do about that given the certainty that the Republicans (and to some extent the media) will continue to hammer away at "trust". My own view is that her history, values, vision and agenda can blunt the attacks and convince people from the center to the left that the one thing you can trust is that she will be a tenacious fighter for everyday Americans and the middle class. And you can trust the Republicans to fix the system for the people at the top. Moreover, she has the strength to not only wage those fights, but to win them. So I think we need to stay strategically focused on proving that.
> Two things I disagree with you about:
> 1) unlike perhaps the current occupant, she very much sees down ballot and broad geographic success for

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Democrats as critical.
2) Her trade position has nothing to do with donors and Wall Street. She's stated her criteria for TPP, but hasn't ruled out the possibility that that criteria can be met in a final deal. Her position in that regard is not that dissimilar to Pelosi's. That might not be that satisfying, but it's what she thinks.
John

On Jun 22, 2015 7:11 AM, "Brent Budowsky" <brentbbi@webtv.net > wrote:
>
> John, here's what I mean, and please follow my logic. I am linking below the > Huffington poll chart for HRC's favorable ratings. Suggest you click "show me > more" and look at polls from June 2014 until today. I began by looking for > calendar inflection points for WHEN her poll numbers declined, then when I > found the times, I google Hillary Clinton and those dates. I emphasize we > would do the same things about match-ups with Republicans or with her > trust ratings and the result would be the same.
>
> After she left as Secretary of State she had stratospheric match-up and favorable > numbers and was competitive in 45-48 states. During the last year she has lost > that and her polling patterns are very close to her polling patterns in from late 2007 > until mid-2008 and---this is important patterns are almost identical to Obama's > patterns starting in 2009----an incremental stepladder downward, fall a notch, > stabilize, fall another notch. Her favorables polling today is almost identical to > Obama's favorable rating today.
>
> I found two distinct time frames for her first two stepladders down. The first > was June 2014, and when I googled Hillary Clinton June 2014 (a date can be > googled) what popped up immediately her book launch overwhelmed by > her statement that the reason she made highly paid speeches to big banks etc.
> was that she was "dirt poor." That was a clear inflection point and the reason > for her decline was equally clear.
>
> The second downward inflection point was March 2015 and when I googled
> Hillary Clinton March 2015 what immediately popped up was the NY Times > story breaking the news about her private emails and the saturation coverage > around that. Again---the timing and reasons were crystal clear.
>
> It is possible we are now in the process of a third inflection point but we need more > time and data. The latest stepladder which may or may not continue puts her > favorable ratings approximately 45 positive, 49 negative---almost the exactly > the numbers for Obama.
>
> Everything above is a fact. People can debate the reasons, but not the fact. It is > also a fact that a similar pattern existed for her in 2007-2008 and it is also fact > that a similar pattern occurred for Obama----I pointed this out repeatedly as it happened to a number of people such as Tom Daschle and John Kerry among others.
>
> It is also a fact that the result of Obama's pattern of public support and opposition > destroyed the Democratic House, destroyed the Democratic Senate, destroyed > the Democratic majority of governors and destroyed a large number of Democratic state legislators----and by destroying all of these together destroyed the Democratic > position on reapportionment after the 2010 census create a decade of damage.
>
> My great fear, based on the data and my observation and experience, is that the > above destruction of Democrats at almost every level under Obama could well be > paralleled under Hillary Clinton and was caused by the phenomenon of many > voters who would have voted for Democrats being disillusioned and staying > home, while similar voters who would have voted for Republicans being highly

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

> incentivized and turning out to vote.
>
> It should be a warning sign to the Clintons that the big surge in the Democratic > campaign so far is for a septuagenarian socialist and it should be a warning sign > that her trust numbers have fallen significantly....both trust and distrust are earned > and there are reasons for this happening.....
>
> I follow trade closely and I follow Hillary Clinton closely and I cannot tell you her > position on the trade bill. It is obvious she is trying to appease the Democratic > base and trying to maintain the goodwill of her corporate and Wall Street donors > but the result is.....that she talks repeatedly saying "I am a fighter, I am a fighter,
> I am fighting for working people and income equality" but her actions on trade > are an exercise in equivocation, hedging and maneuvering and the many voters > who care about trade will not view her as more trustworthy because of this.
>
> If you consider the totality of media coverage about Hillary Clinton...including her > talk of being a fighter and her progressive sounding words....it is all about her > tactics, her maneuvers, her positioning, her repositioning, her calculations, her > caution and her consultants----not her courage, leadership or convictions....
>
> John, this is a trust erosion machine.....and I do not believe that Hillary Clinton > intuitively, intellectually or psychologically understands this.....candidly, and I > almost never say this kind of thing, the best thing you could do show this memo > to her, because she needs to think about this. I don't expect you to, and I do not > believe she is hearing this from others, which is another similarity with Obama,
> I don't think he ever heard this kind of warning, and if he did, he ignored it..... > his string of insults against liberals on trade were monumentally stupid and > self-destructive and the fact that he ultimately makes his deal with Boehner > and passed fast-track in the House is infuriating to liberals in ways that I do not believe Obama, Clinton or the consultants who have served them both remotely understand....
>
> Take a look at the data that I link here, the data is shouting the same warnings I > am trying to shout here.....Brent
>
>
>
>
>
> It is also a fact
>
>
> http://elections.huffingtonpost.com/pollster/hillary-clinton-favorable-rating
>
>
> Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Mary Podesta" <podesta.mary@gmail.com>
To:	"Mae Podesta" <mpodesta@gmail.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	7/3/2015 1:05:52 AM
Subject:	Train

Let me know when you are on the train.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jim Steyer" <jim@commonsense.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/1/2014 7:32:17 AM
Subject:	Catching up

Hey John,

Hope you, Mary and the entire Podesta gang had a great Thanksgiving holiday!

I'm headed to the WH next Wednesday for an early childhood summit, and I wanted to see if we can find a brief time beforehand to catch up. I arrive Monday eve.

Dwight and Carina will coordinate with your office. All best and see ya soon,

Jim

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
To:	"Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
Date:	3/10/2015 1:21:23 PM
Subject:	HRC | Emails
Attachments:	Transcript.pdf Q&A.pdf

Hi Everyone,

As some of you may have seen, Secretary Clinton did a press conference today where she talked why she was there today, commented on recent developments regarding Iran, and about all the recent issues surrounding her email at the State Department, so we wanted to follow up with a transcript of her statement along with a Q&A document that lays out many of the questions that have been raised in the last week along with the answers to them.

Please be in touch with any questions or comments.

Nick

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 2/20/2015 12:01:44 AM
Subject: Fwd: For jdp review - cap announce

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

From: Daniella Leger <dleger@americanprogress.org >
Date: February 19, 2015 at 22:28:41 EST
To: "Eryn.Sepp@gmail.com " <Eryn.Sepp@gmail.com >
Cc: Lindsay Hamilton <lhamilton@americanprogress.org >, Chelsea Kiene <ckiene@americanprogress.org >
Subject: For jdp review - cap announce

Hey Eryn! Assuming the board OKs everything, below is the release we'd like to put out tomorrow. Can you run by John and see if he'd like to add a quote? Thanks!! (Sorry for the weird formatting on my phone)

D

Ps. Hi!!!!

RELEASE: John Podesta Rejoins Center for American Progress Board of Directors

Washington, D.C. — The Center for American Progress announced that John Podesta, former counselor to President Obama, will be will rejoin CAP as a member of the Board of Directors and as a member of the Washington Center on Equitable Growth Steering Committee.

"We are thrilled to welcome John back to the CAP family," said CAP President Neera Tanden. "I look forward to working with John as he renews his role as Board Member for the Center for American Progress again to continue our fight to improve the lives of all Americans through ideas, and action."

JDP Quote (If he wants one)

Podesta is the founder and former Chair of CAP. Prior to founding the Center in 2003, Podesta served as White House chief of staff to President William J. Clinton. In 2008, he served as co-chair of President Obama's transition team, where he coordinated the priorities of the incoming administration's agenda, oversaw the development of its policies, and spearheaded its appointments of major cabinet secretaries and political appointees. He also recently served on the President's Global Development Council and the UN Secretary General's High-Level Panel of Eminent Persons on the Post-2015 Development Agenda.

Sent from my Verizon Wireless 4G LTE smartphone

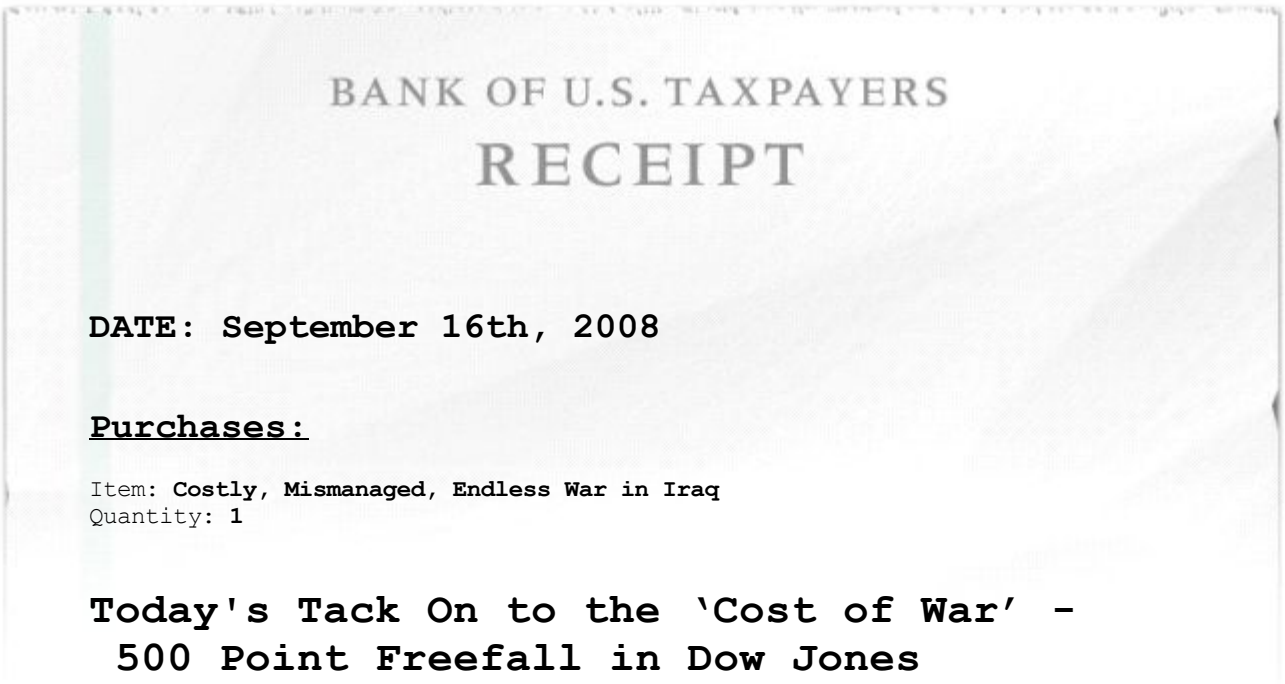
This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Ann O'Leary" <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Megan Rooney" <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 10/22/2015 11:18:03 AM
Subject: Re: DRAFT: Women's Leadership Forum remarks

Perfect. Thanks!

On Thu, Oct 22, 2015 at 6:16 PM, Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> Thanks Ann. I'm just going to do this, if you/Research are ok with it:
>
> Families are stretched in a million directions. So are their budgets. Costs keep rising but most people's paychecks haven't moved in years – but corporate profits and CEO pay keep rising. Quality childcare costs more than college tuition in many states. The minimum wage is a poverty wage. Millions of Americans are held back by student debt. And at a time when more women than ever are their family's main bread winner, too often, they still don't get equal pay. Women of color earn least of all. And just yesterday, the Department of Labor released new data showing that, as our economy gets stronger, men's pay is going up more than twice as fast than women's pay.
>
> On Thu, Oct 22, 2015 at 7:54 PM, Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > Two things:
> >
> > (1) Apparently, DOL did release interesting pay disparity numbers today. See this WSJ piece . I think it would be good to add a line that says, "Yesterday, the US Department of Labor released new data showing that our economy is getting stronger, but that increases in pay for men and women are not growing at the same rate. Men who work full-time saw their pay increase at more than double the rate of women. With more than 2/3rds of our families relying on the income of women to keep their families afloat, this unequal pay growth hurts women, our families and our economy. Equal pay must be a priority if we are going to have a strong economy and strong families."
> >
> > (2) For the Paul Ryan paragraph, instead of "flexibility," I'd focus that he was asking for a fair and predictable schedule - something that our low-wage workers are desperate to get. So change to:
> > Paid family leave; schedules that are fair and predictable; higher wages so you don't have to work two jobs to make ends meet, so you can be home at night with your kids – these aren't just challenges for women, they're challenges for America.
> >
> > On Thu, Oct 22, 2015 at 5:45 PM, Mini Timmaraju <mtimmaraju@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > Just checked in with Megan. Looks great.
> > >
> > > On Thu, Oct 22, 2015 at 7:32 PM, Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > +Mini
> > > >
> > > > On Thu, Oct 22, 2015 at 7:29 PM, Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > > Hi all -- this is for tomorrow morning. It really can't be longer than this (there are a million speakers) so please keep that in mind as you read.
> > > > >
> > > > > If you could send me edits asap, I can get them into the book. Otherwise, send edits anytime tonight and I'll get them into the final.
> > > > >
> > > > > Thanks!
> > > >
> > > > --
> > > > Amanda Renteria
> > > > National Political Director
> > > > Hillary for America #Hillary2016
> > > > 650-868-1188 (c)
> > > > Facebook or Twitter

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.



--
Mini Timmaraju
Women's Outreach Director | Hillary for America
mtimmaraju@hillaryclinton.com
832.452.7038
Twitter: @mintimm

--
Ann O'Leary
Senior Policy Advisor
Hillary for America
Cell: 510-717-5518

--
Ann O'Leary
Senior Policy Advisor
Hillary for America
Cell: 510-717-5518

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Lauren Weiner" <Weiner@americansunitedforchange.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 9/16/2008 5:11:04 AM
Subject: [big campaign] Today's 'Cost of War Receipt' to the American People: Freefall on Wall Street

DATE: September 16th, 2008

Purchases:

Item: Costly, Mismanaged, Endless War in Iraq
Quantity: 1

Today's Tack On to the 'Cost of War' - 500 Point Freefall in Dow Jones

To offset the depressive effect of massive spending on Iraq, the Fed flooded the economy with liquidity and regulators, turned a blind eye to extremely risky lending, according to Nobel Prize winning economist Joseph Stiglitz. The result is the credit crunch, the collapse of major financial institutions and a 500 point drop in the Dow Jones Industrial Average - the biggest one-day decline since trading resumed after the 9/11 attacks.

From Joseph Stiglitz's March 9, 2008 column, "The Iraq War Will Cost Us $3 Trillion, and Much More:"

Until recently, many marveled at the way the United States could spend hundreds of billions of dollars on oil and blow through hundreds of billions more in Iraq with what seemed to be strikingly little short-run impact on the economy. But there's no great mystery here. The economy's weaknesses were concealed by the Federal Reserve, which pumped in liquidity, and by regulators that looked away as loans were handed out well beyond borrowers' ability to repay them. Meanwhile, banks and credit-rating agencies pretended that financial alchemy could convert bad mortgages into AAA assets, and the Fed looked the other way as the U.S. household-savings rate plummeted to zero.

Original Iraq War Purchase Price:

"The administration's top budget official [Mitch Daniels] estimated today that the cost of a war with Iraq could be in the range of $50 billion to $60 billion." -- New York Times, 2/2/03

"The oil revenues of Iraq could bring between $50 and $100 billion over the course of the next two or three years. We're dealing with a country that can really finance its own reconstruction, and relatively soon." - Former U.S. Deputy Secretary of Defense Paul Wolfowitz [Congressional Testimony, 3/27/03]

"[F]rom the standpoint of the Iraqi people, my belief is we will, in fact, be greeted as liberators." - Vice-President Dick Cheney [Meet the Press, 3/16/2003]

Current Iraq War Price Tag:

4,158 Fallen U.S. Soldiers [Source: icasualties.org]

$554 Billion [Source: National Priorities Project]

"The Iraq adventure has seriously weakened the U.S. economy, whose woes

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

now go far beyond loose mortgage lending. You can't spend $3 trillion -- yes, $3 trillion -- on a failed war abroad and not feel the pain at home." -- Joseph E. Stiglitz, Nobel Prize Winning Economist and professor at Columbia University

Additional Costs:

• Over 4,100 American lives lost and rising as U.S. troops remain in the crossfire of daily Iraqi civil, religious, sectarian violence with no end in sight

• Eye off the ball of the real 'central front' against terrorism in Afghanistan

• Less safe with U.S. military stretched dangerously thin

• Shortchanged priorities here at home, from education to healthcare for children and veterans, while trillions of dollars spent in Iraq

• Economy in shambles as massive financial drain of war exacerbates the credit crisis

• Skyrocketing gas prices due to instability in the Middle East

• Less prepared to respond to emergencies and disasters at home with National Guard resources bogged down in Iraq

• Underfunded veterans healthcare system overwhelmed with incoming injured, maimed, and veterans suffering from PTSD

• Military families torn apart

Total Cost of War: Unimaginable

The daily 'Cost of War Receipt' is a project of Americans United for Change , which will continue to provide on a daily basis recent news articles, reports, studies or statistics that underscore the incredible sacrifices our nation is making every day by staying the course with the failed Bush-McCain '100 years or more' war policy in Iraq.

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"David Dreyer" <ddreyer@tsd.biz>
Date:	6/20/2014 6:01:09 AM
Subject:	Re: I hope you are feeling better

Sorry to have missed. Brutal cold.

On Jun 20, 2014 8:12 AM, "David Dreyer" <ddreyer@tsd.biz > wrote:

> Best d2

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: GIDEON <mond1967@zahav.net.il>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 10/12/2014 9:32:34 AM
Subject: Drugs and Terror Monster Conjugated Aggravation in the Middle East

SALVATION OF MANKIND BY NARCOTIC VEGETATION ERADICATION FROM THE AIR BY UNMANNED AIRCRAFT VEHICLES

Mr. President,

Unmanned Aircraft Vehicles

Development proved being capable of hitting even point targets. It is well known that Afghanistan has World record of Poppy Opium Production of about 200 tons annually yielded from a cultivated 157,000 hectares area. That enormous dope amount (90% of world opium production) is in my opinion the main financial source for Terror Organizations' Weaponry Acquisition. According to my assessment, UAV could have been Redemption for Entire Mankind if being utilized as follows: 2,4 D Defoliant is splashed on the Narcotic Vegetation causing its Desertification within several days inevitably. The following favorable consequences might have been anticipated:

1) Severing of Terror Organizations from their Financial Source that dry up with Narcotic Vegetation Desertification
2) Salvation of millions of Potential Drug Addicts from Awful Agony and Death
3) Rehabilitation of US Deterrence that has weakened considerably after Nine Eleven Horrendousness
4) Precipitation of NATO Troops Evacuation from Afghanistan as a result of UAV Bombardment Intensification resulting in Terror Suppression Reinforcement
5) Deterrence of El-Qaida Reactivation by leaving a Souvenir of dry Poppy-Opium Bushes from pulling out NATO Troops
6) I suggest having a Debate in the Senate that might hopefully lead to successful termination of the Afghan War after being stuck in its Marsh for 12 long years
7) Waiting for your Response as US friend since 1948
8) There could not have been any doubt about terminating the Armed Conflict in Afghanistan Honorably averting an Ignominious ending up as currently impending.
9) Similarly, Central American Dope Smuggling could have been drastically diminished by UAV Utilization for Narcotic Vegetation Eradication Grown on Mountainous Gradients. Very large amounts of Dope are smuggled annually into the US having found hitherto no efficacious way of overcoming that calamity
10) Please contact me by scheduling a meeting at US Embassy in Tel -Aviv for Clarifications with your experts' participation specializing in Explosives, Electronics and Aviation
11) I have got all the required specifications for getting mankind be extricated from the two conjugated calamities, Drugs inundation and Terror attacks of Innocent Population thanks to UAV activities.
12) To my great astonishment, my correspondence versus US Senate Committee on Armed Services has been irresponsive despite the extraordinary importance for entire Civilization Meanwhile as many as one billion of Muslims are threatening America encouraged by their Nine Eleven Precedent Success
13) In reminiscence, as many as 50,000 Aircraft were ordered according to Presidents' Roosevelt Ordinance after the Japanese Attack of Pearl Harbor while 7000 UAV by comparison are being idled in Storage letting the Afghan Armed Conflict be continued indefinitely.
14) Please let me explicate for US Air-Force an efficacious way emerging victorious from Afghan Entanglement in favor of Entire Mankind instead of suffering an ignominious defeat.
15) To my great surprise, US Does not exercise its Self Defense Right according to UN Charter Chapter 51 (1946), enabling Criminal Organizations of Third World Countries attacking it with impunity. Nine Eleven Catastrophe could have been averted if the US had utilized its complete Arsenal particularly UAV in high numbers instead of being kept idle in Magazines.
16) I propose meeting your Experts for UAV, Explosives and Electronics at US Embassy in Tel Aviv for thorough debate about Dual Headed Monster Decapitation in favor of beleaguered Mankind believing in great success of my Innovative Unprecedented Method as an only feasible efficacious expedient against it.
17) Is White House Correspondence Team busy to such an extent being unable responding even most important letters?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

18) To my great Astonishment Dereliction of US Air Force results in smuggling of Tremendous Dope Amount from Central America via Mexico into the US with its Awful damage for many millions American's Health
19) I don't see any reason for hesitancy! The President may issue tomorrow an ordinance in order to open emergency Magazines, getting ten thousands of UAV
Aloft in order to achieve Narcotic Vegetation Desertification with achievement for Posterity
20) Emerge preferably with an Upper hand honorably instead of being ignominiously defeated!
21) Despite being Non US Citizen I think to have done my best in assisting ending up
Afghan War victoriously thanks to my Innovative Narcotic Vegetation Eradication Method, however not a single word of Acknowledgement has hitherto Reached my mailbox! In my opinion, Disparagement and Ungratefulness are conjugated at least according to my feeling!
22) There could not have been any justification keeping as many as 7000 UAV unused in magazines instead of operating them against Nine Eleven Cruel enemy. Moreover, US taxpayers have already paid for that arsenal!
23) I believe Mr. Attorney General that Narcotic Vegetation Desertification Utilizing UAV is the only Feasible way of getting Mankind been extricated from the Doubling Stricken Menace Grabbing, Drug and Terror Simultaneously.
24) November election is going to be beginning of President Obama last Congress Tenure working with but if the President is being able Indicating Monumental achievements. He might have been eligible into the Parlor of great Leaders having annihilated Drugs and Terror calamities for Posterity affluence
25) Wiping out Narcotic Vegetation and launching consequently an Overwhelming
Strike on Terror Organizations by UAV Utilization might have been an Unprecedented Achievement of Entire Mankind and President Obama personally.
26) Incredibly, no reaction has come from the White House in latest four years despite
My pure intention for assistance for the US as well as Entire Civilization!
27) In my opinion Nobel Institute might have contributed to a very great extent to Drug and Terror Monster Decapitation in favor of Entire Civilization.
28) Prime Minister of Israel might have contributed a great role in exerting an influence on US and Western Governments in General in a Universal Effort of Dual Headed Monster, Drugs and Terror simultaneous eradication

Be successful

Gideon Rodeh

There is no justification losing an Election Campaign Ignominiously instead of emerging Victorious honorably! The Democrats should have mobilized the entire US Media attacking the Republican for an Exploitation of US Contingency to vote against their own Interests in favor of big Oil Corporations! Such incessant Transmissions would have been a very efficacious Deterrence for most Democratic families to abstain from voting against their own Interests!

Be successful

Gideon Rodeh

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Melissa Cantrell" <mcantrell@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	hrcrapid@googlegroups.com
Date:	5/27/2015 12:37:22 PM
Subject:	May 27 Evening News Roundup
Attachments:	5.27.15 Evening News Roundup.docx

Document attached, 2016 highlights below:

ABC's World News Tonight: Rick Santorum has announced his candidacy. In an interview with George Stephanopoulos he said that national security was key and he could debate HRC will a proven track record and has already taken her on. The full interview will air tomorrow. Also a brief segment of HRC joking that she has colored her hair for years.

CBS' Evening News: Brief report on Santorum's entry into the 2016 race; noted that Santorum won 11 states in 2012; said Santorum portrayed himself as a champion of the middle class on Wednesday.

NBC's Nightly News: One-and-a-half minute report on Santorum entering the GOP race, bringing the number up to seven GOP candidates; pivoted to have a discussion with Chuck Todd about Carly Fiorina; Holt noted that Fiorina showed up across the street from an HRC event; Todd said with so many candidates running that it was likely candidates would end up in the same place; Todd said Fiorina's strategy of attacking HRC had proven effective for her; Todd said Fiorina had been the most aggressive Republican against HRC.

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	4/10/2014 2:59:57 PM
Subject:	Re: Last night at 1000pm heather served kimberley and kaia with subpoenas by banging on their door

Yes
Normal to call opposing counsel and arrange delivery
She's trying to punish kaia and kimberley

Tony Podesta
Office: 202-879-9300
Cell: 202-352-4645
Podesta@podesta.com
1001 G St. NW, Suite 1000 West
Washington, DC 20001

----- Original Message -----
From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, April 10, 2014 09:24 PM
To: Tony Podesta
Cc: podesta.mary@gmail.com <podesta.mary@gmail.com>
Subject: Re: Last night at 1000pm heather served kimberley and kaia with subpoenas by banging on their door

Process servers?

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

> On Apr 10, 2014, at 2:37 PM, Tony Podesta <podesta@podesta.com> wrote:
>
> Could have called lawyers to serve but now harassment has begun
> Sorry you could be next
> Tony
>
> Tony Podesta
> Office: 202-879-9300
> Cell: 202-352-4645
> Podesta@podesta.com
> 1001 G St. NW, Suite 1000 West
> Washington, DC 20001

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"URGENT ALERT \(via HMPAC.com\)" <democrats@hmpac.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	1/13/2016 1:22:06 PM
Subject:	Obamacare GONE

DEVELOPING: PAUL RYAN PLANS A VETO OVERRIDE VOTE TO TRY AND DESTROY OBAMACARE AND DEFUND PLANNED PARENTHOOD.

48 HOURS LEFT TO FIGHT BACK – CLICK HERE TO HELP STAND WITH THE PRESIDENT.

FIRST: The GOP passed legislation that would GUT funding for Planned Parenthood and DESTROY Obamacare.

THEN: President Obama vetoed the legislation.

And now: The GOP is planning a vote to attempt to override the president's veto.

If we want to stop the GOP from repealing Obamacare AND defunding Planned Parenthood, we've got to hurry. There are less than 48 hours before the vote is planned to happen. If we want to stop Paul Ryan and the GOP, we need to raise $20,000 to help Democrats support President Obama.

Can you click here to donate to our Veto Protection Fund so that we can defend Planned Parenthood and Obamacare from the latest GOP attacks?

If you've saved your payment information with ActBlue Express, your donation will go through immediately:

Donate $10 now >>

Donate $25 now >>

Donate $50 now >>

Donate $100 now >>

Or, donate another amount

This email was sent to: podesta@law.georgetown.edu. Make sure you continue to get updates from House Majority PAC by adding democrats@thehousemajoritypac.com to your address book or approved sender list.

If that is not your preferred email address, you can update your information here.

Contributions or gifts to House Majority PAC are not tax deductible.

If you'd like to still get updates from House Majority PAC but less frequently, click here to sign up for 1-2 emails per month. Click here to unsubscribe.

Paid for by House Majority PAC. www.thehousemajoritypac.com. Not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	10/27/2015 11:11:39 AM
Subject:	Fwd: Details for Nov. 2nd Discussion with Cardinal Rodriguez
Attachments:	Speaker_Release.doc

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: John Carr <John.Carr@georgetown.edu >
Date: Tue, Oct 27, 2015 at 5:44 PM
Subject: Details for Nov. 2nd Discussion with Cardinal Rodriguez
To: podesta@georgetown.edu
Cc: Caitlin Devine <cmd65@georgetown.edu >, Angela Miller McGraw <angela.miller.mcgraw@georgetown.edu >

Dear John,

I wish to thank you for your participation in the discussion with Cardinal Rodríguez on Monday, November 2 at Georgetown Law Center Hart Auditorium. We are delighted and honored that you will be a part of this timely and important discussion. I am following up on your communication with Peter Byrne. This email includes information on the program, logistics and related matter. Here is how we have been describing the discussion:

Pope Francis' Environmental Encyclical: Protecting the Planet and the Poor

A Conversation with Cardinal Óscar Rodríguez

Monday, November 2, 4:00 to 5:30 pm

Hart Auditorium

Georgetown Law Center

Purpose and Focus:

Pope Francis' environmental encyclical Laudato Si makes a powerful moral case for the dual obligation to care for creation and care for the poor. Cardinal Óscar Rodríguez is a key advisor to Pope Francis, chair of his Council of Cardinals. As the first cardinal from Honduras, he knows firsthand the damaging human impact from environmental degradation and leads the church's efforts to defend the life and dignity of the poor.

Discussants:
Following the conversation with Cardinal Rodríguez, which will be moderated by John Carr, director of Initiative on Catholic Social Thought and Public Life, members of Georgetown Law Center will respond.

- Edith Brown Weiss, Francis Cabell Brown Professor of International Law, member of United Nations Environment Programme's International Advisory Council on Environmental Justice.
- John Podesta, Distinguished Visitor from Practice, former Counselor to President Barack Obama on climate change and energy policy.

Background Information:

Cardinal Rodríguez will not be giving a formal presentation, but will be responding to series of questions from me as moderator. I will send you some preliminary questions I plan to raise with him on the topic. I included a link to a video that was shot at Georgetown University featuring Cardinal Rodríguez discussing Pope Francis' views on climate change and environmental issues. This indicates some of the tone and content of his likely responses and may be useful for you as you prepare your remarks. https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=QLVdvLPeSKA

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Since it may be difficult to anticipate how best to respond to Cardinal Rodríguez, I suggest you might focus your 10-12 minute reflection on your response to the Encyclical . What are its most important messages? Given your experience, what are its potential impacts?

Request:
I will be introducing you and Edith Weiss. Please send me information on what you'd like to be emphasized in a brief, relatively informal introduction. What parts of your work, affiliations, education, family do you wish me to lift up as I introduce you?

Timeline:
Here is an outline of the session:

3:45 pm – Arrive at green room adjacent to stage of Hart Auditorium to get mic'd and go over last minute details

4:00 pm – Discussion begins in Hart Auditorium

4:05 pm – Peter Byrne, Faculty Director, Georgetown Environmental Law and Policy Institute calls the session to order, welcomes people and introduces topic and John Carr

4:10 pm – John Carr introduces Cardinal Rodríguez and begins a structured conversation, asking a series of questions

4:40 pm – John Carr invites Edith Brown Weiss and John Podesta to join Cardinal Rodríguez and him on the stage and introduces them

4:45 pm – Edith Brown Weiss gives remarks

4:57 pm – John Podesta gives remarks

5:10 pm – Questions from the audience

5:30 pm – Closing

5:35 - 6:30 – A reception begins immediately in the Hart Auditorium lobby

We encourage you to invite family, friends, colleagues, and others who would be interested to the reception and discussion. They may RSVP here .

I have attached a speaker release form for photographic purposes. Please sign and return to caitlin.devine@georgetown.edu .

Thank you for your leadership and for your participation in this important discussion. If you have any questions or concerns please contact me by email or on my cell 240-988-6276 or Caitlin Devine, copied here, or on her cell 610-202-4501 .

We look forward to a great discussion.

John

John Carr
Director, Initiative on Catholic Social Thought and Public Life
Georgetown University
202-687-1599

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Ken Salazar" <kennethlsalazar@gmail.com>
Date: 4/3/2015 1:59:34 AM
Subject: Re: Fwd: Here's my address so please use it whenever you want!

Thanks Ken. Hope to see you soon.
John

On Apr 1, 2015 3:50 PM, "Ken Salazar" <kennethlsalazar@gmail.com > wrote:

Hi John,

I hope all is well with you. I am forwarding to you my recent communications with Secretary Clinton and her potential candidacy. Let me know how I can help and please keep me in the loop as appropriate.

All the best,
Ken

Sent from my iPad

Begin forwarded message:

From: Ken Salazar <kennethlsalazar@gmail.com >
Date: March 30, 2015 at 7:58:28 PM EDT
To: H <hdr29@hrcoffice.com >
Subject: Re: Here's my address so please use it whenever you want!

Hello Hillary,

As you put your team together, in my view the two best Colorado political consultants are Mike Melansen and Alan Salazar. They both were architects of Governor Hickenlooper's recent win, and have huge experience in U.S. Senate and Governor's races, as well as supporting roles in Presidential ones.

Also, you should meet Al Yates-African American, PhD in theoretical physics, former President of Colorado State University, founder of the Democracy Alliance, and ....the list goes on. He singlehandedly has in his head the data analytics of the last ten years in Colorado (funded with huge resources) including the explanation of why Mark Udall lost and John Hickenlooper won. I always won Colorado because of him. I would like to arrange a time with him and you/ and your team as we get started.

I know there are many good people in Colorado who would want to help, will help, and are seeking roles or have had roles with you or the President in the past. The three I mention above have no agenda, are smart, humble and effective. In my view, the team you put together in Colorado will be the keystone of your victory here. So please be cautious and on target. I am available to you or your team whenever you want.

All the best,

Ken Salazar

Sent from my iPad

On Feb 5, 2015, at 4:40 PM, H <hdr29@hrcoffice.com > wrote:

Dear Ken,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

I so enjoyed seeing you yesterday and appreciate greatly your support and friendship over the years. Stay tuned---I'll get back to you in a few weeks.

All the best, H

From: Ken Salazar <kennethlsalazar@gmail.com >
Sent: Wednesday, February 04, 2015 10:47:22 PM
To: H
Subject: Re: Here's my address so please use it whenever you want!

My dear friend and colleague Hilary,

I so enjoyed our meeting today. I am all in because I know you, believe in you, and share your values.

I will help you as much as I can. Specifically, I would offer to (1) host your first fundraiser in Colorado at Hope's and my home (my Mom might even make it if she can); (2) help identify the key elected leaders in Colorado like Representative Crisanta Duran and Mayor Hancock of Denver and host a meeting with you and them; (3) help identify the right political talent in Colorado; and (4) help as needed across the nation.

You are the best. Cesar Chavez prayed "give me the courage to serve others because in service there is true life." You have done so in your words and deeds and I look forward to your next chapter of service.

All the best,

Ken Salazar

Sent from my iPad

On Feb 4, 2015, at 11:55 AM, H <hdr29@hrcoffice.com > wrote:

This message has no content.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Mary Podesta" <podesta.mary@gmail.com>
Date:	12/5/2014 9:39:50 PM
Subject:	What time sunday?

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Brad Herring" <brad@progressiveaccountability.org>
To:	bigcampaign@googlegroups.com blog-cabal@googlegroups.com
Date:	7/21/2008 11:17:55 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] New McCain drilling video

Good afternoon,

We here at Progressive Accountability are pleased to announce our latest video, this one called "29 Guesses," and it's an attempt to hammer John McCain on a topic that has great potential to kill us in the fall, his position on drilling off-shore to supposedly lower gas prices. We're fighting back hard on this, and this is our first video attempt to nail him on being in the pocket of Big Oil.

You can find it here (http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=SkUj9EIINIs) and through our YouTube channel here (http://www.youtube.com/user/ProgAccountability).

Let me know if you have any questions.

Thanks and look forward to talk with you again soon,

Bradley Herring

(202) 609-7684 (o)
(202) 361-4274 (c)

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Karen Dunn" <karen.l.dunn@gmail.com>
To: "Ron Klain" <rklain@aol.com>
Date: 12/5/2015 2:21:38 PM
Subject: Re: Debate Book Update

Is the Obama stuff contained somewhere in there?

I really believe this was heavily in her head during the last debate and was very unhelpful to her delivering strong answers - it's like she felt boxed in. Presumably the answers Jake articulated well tonight are in her Q and A for tomorrow and this is evolving - so maybe we can hold off. But I would heavily mock the "you and Obama created an enormous mess" line of questions that includes aren't his plans weak/passive/defeatist/tone deaf to american worries.

On Sat, Dec 5, 2015 at 9:17 PM, Ron Klain <rklain@aol.com > wrote:

> This is what I think we should do based on tonight's sessions:
>
> 1. How to pay for it – replace p. 26 ONLY -- w removal of carbon tax, and edits agreed to tonight
> 2. Wall Street – DO NOT change pages, edits minor and she took notes
> 3. Health Care – replace p. 56 ONLY w update on Colorado answer
> 4. Gun Violence – replace entire section pp 106-111 – add new attacks from strategy memo; add answer on gun registry
> 5. ISIS: pull existing pages 130-137 and replace with new pages, updated with "new" HRC plan to fight ISIS abroad and at home, and with post-SanB frame. This is the most important update.
> 6. Islamic Terrorism: replace page 141 with update
> 7. Terrorism – Safer today?: replace p. 142 w update
> 8. Refugees – replace page 143 w pivot to action on visa waiver program
>
> Let me know if I am missing something or if others took away a different understanding.
>
> Ron

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "ABA Section of Science & Technology Law" <stserve@americanbar.org>
To: "John D Podesta" <podesta@LAW.GEORGETOWN.EDU>
Date: 11/17/2015 7:33:29 AM
Subject: Claim your cyber CLE webinars & books with exclusive discounts

SAVE NOW!

SAVE 25%-off any of these cyber products with code STCYBER25. To order more than one, "go to cart" and select the "continue shopping" tab. Access discounted products from this email.

Section members receive more than a $300 savings on the total bundled option. It's under $50 to join.

December 1, 2015
Understanding Drone Privacy Law Regarding Unmanned Aerial Vehicles (UAVs)

December 17, 2015
Government Contracting on the Cybersecurity Frontier: Cyber Landmines, Compliance Risks, and Emerging Rules

January 12, 2016
Flying on the Legal Edge with Drones: Emerging Acquisition, Security, and Regulatory Issues for Unmanned Aerial Vehicles

Purchase all three CLE webinars listed above and the following book to automatically SAVE 40% on your purchase.

Unmanned Aircraft in the National Airspace: Critical Issues, Technology, and the Law

Bonus: Build your SciTech library with these additional cyber books and save 30% with Code SCITECH30.

This message was sent to podesta@law.georgetown.edu. Your e-mail address will only be used within the ABA and its entities.
We do not sell or rent e-mail addresses.

Update your profile Manage your email preferences Unsubscribe Privacy Policy Contact Us

American Bar Association | 321 N Clark, Chicago, IL 60654-7598 | 800-285-2221 | 312-988-5522

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Craig Minassian" <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org>
Date: 2/25/2015 3:02:18 PM
Subject: Re: Haiti Donation Statement Draft

One small check. I would say distributed as aid in Haiti

On Feb 25, 2015 9:33 PM, "Craig Minassian" <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org > wrote:

I agree

This is a modified version of what we sent the post - is everyone okay with this?

Sent from my iPhone

> On Feb 25, 2015, at 9:23 PM, Bruce Lindsey <blindsey@clintonfoundation.org > wrote:
>
> Why wouldn't we tell others what we told the Washington Post. At least that way they won't have to cite the Post as their source.
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
>> On Feb 25, 2015, at 9:19 PM, Craig Minassian <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org > wrote:
>>
>> All - not surprisingly, we've received a number of follow up questions asking for confirmation of the Algeria donation. We could let it sit or confirm for other outlets with the following draft statement:
>>
>> "Immediately following the devastating earthquake in Haiti January 12, 2010, the Embassy of Algeria made an unsolicited donation of $500K to Clinton Foundation Haiti Relief fund. As the Clinton Foundation did with all donations it received for Haiti, the entire amount of Algeria's contribution was distributed as aid. This donation was disclosed publicly on the Clinton Foundation website, however, the State Department should have also been formally informed. This was a one-time, specific donation for Haiti relief and Algeria had not donated to the Clinton Foundation before and has not since."
>>
>>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: kellysmaer@gmail.com
To: "John Graham" <jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com>
Date: 10/22/2015 2:15:04 PM
Subject: Re: Hillary was brilliant! Job well done!

Grace under pressure. Presidential poise in the face of many partisan attacks. #ImWithHer #FreeHillary

On Oct 22, 2015, at 9:05 PM, John Graham <jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com > wrote:

> Jersey is proud...best
>
> Sent from my Samsung Galaxy Tab®|PRO

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Adam Parkhomenko" <aparkhomenko@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 1/20/2016 9:22:39 AM
Subject: Re: Chair Podesta- Hillary Lead Organizer in Houston Needs Your Help!

Circling back on this - Sounds like he talked to HRC yesterday in TX at the fundraiser. He has reached out to a number of people today (again on the job hunt) I have told him he can work directly with Carlos in TX (our new organizer) as any opportunities in the state come up.

On Mon, Jan 18, 2016 at 11:05 PM, Adam Parkhomenko <aparkhomenko@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Art is someone we talk to all the time. He will send a similar email to any address he can find for anyone on the campaign however I will follow up specifically on this one. He has great intentions but can be very difficult
>
> Adam J. Parkhomenko
> Director of Grassroots Engagement
> Hillary for America
> @AdamParkhomenko
>
> On Jan 18, 2016, at 9:39 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > Do you guys want to reach out/take care of this guy?
> >
> > ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> > From: Arthur Pronin <a.pronin@meydems.org >
> > Date: Monday, January 18, 2016
> > Subject: Chair Podesta- Hillary Lead Organizer in Houston Needs Your Help!
> > To: "john.podesta@gmail.com " <john.podesta@gmail.com >
> >
> > Chair Podesta
> > I dont know if you get these! Im a friend of John West in Houston Tx-he met you in Chicago-a super volunteer!
> >
> > In 08 I was hillary's lead organizer for Houston Tx. And she personally before the party here embraced me and honored me for all I did!
> >
> > I 2 x this round submitted resumes to no avail-I have a large following here-large. Burns Strider and others have fought for me to have a role here. So far no avail. Surely a great mna like you can help make sure my name isnt forgotten?!
> >
> > Hillary is in houston tmrw-it breaks my heart I cant be there-Im broke from all the hard work I do right now. She means so much to my career etc.. Hope you can help me somehow friend in these issues-Art Pronin, Pres Meyerland Area Democrats-largest in tx

--

Adam J. Parkhomenko
Director of Grassroots Engagement

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Hillary for America
Twitter: @AdamParkhomenko

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sonal Shah" <sonalshah68@gmail.com>
To: egreen@americanprogress.org
Date: 11/5/2014 6:38:26 AM
Subject: Re: [Amprog Alumni] Brooke Lierman

Congrats Brooke!

On Wed, Nov 5, 2014 at 12:33 PM, Erin Green <egreen@americanprogress.org > wrote:

> Congratulations to former CAP staffer Brooke Lierman on her election to the Maryland House of Delegates! Brooke will represent Maryland's 46th district. Very exciting news!
>
> --
> --
> You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "American Progress Alumni Network" group.
> To post to this group, send email to american-progress-alumni-network@googlegroups.com
> To unsubscribe from this group, send email to american-progress-alumni-network+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com
> For more options, visit this group at http://groups.google.com/group/american-progress-alumni-network?hl=en?hl=en
>
> _____
>
> The Alumni Network is part of the Center for American Progress and the Center for American Progress Action Fund. As current and/or former employees, you know that all CAP and CAPAF activities must conform to the rules governing 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) nonprofit corporations. If you use this group in violation of these guidelines, we may remove your post or remove you from the group.
>
> ---
> You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "American Progress Alumni Network" group.
> To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to american-progress-alumni-network+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com.
> For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "American Progress Alumni Network" group.
To post to this group, send email to american-progress-alumni-network@googlegroups.com
To unsubscribe from this group, send email to american-progress-alumni-network+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com
For more options, visit this group at http://groups.google.com/group/american-progress-alumni-network?hl=en?hl=en

_____

The Alumni Network is part of the Center for American Progress and the Center for American Progress Action Fund. As current and/or former employees, you know that all CAP and CAPAF activities must conform to the rules governing 501(c)(3) and 501(c)(4) nonprofit corporations. If you use this group in violation of these guidelines, we may remove your post or remove you from the group.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "American Progress Alumni Network" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to american-progress-alumni-network+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com.
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	mae_podesta@mckinsey.com
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/12/2014 11:52:09 PM
Subject:	Hope everything goes well today

I'll be thinking of you

+===+
This email is confidential and may be privileged. If you have received it in error, please notify us immediately and then delete it. Please do not copy it, disclose its contents or use it for any purpose.
+===+

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	12/19/2015 10:26:37 AM
Subject:	FOR APPROVAL: Debate Tweets
Attachments:	JDP 3rd Debate Tweets LR.docx

John- Debate pre-drafted Tweets attached for approval. Laura Rosenberger reviewed the FP tweets to make sure they looked good. Around at any point to take your edits.

Thanks!

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Brent Budowsky" <brentbbi@webtv.net>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	3/17/2016 4:47:47 PM
Subject:	Quick Point about Trump....

When you mentioned the mayor, when I was 20 years old I worked for John Lindsay first in the 1972 Florida primary and then in NY. The short version is that the Lindsay people had me run a city council campaign in Woodside, Queens. While I was just a kid, suffice it to say that both the Italian and Irish mafia guys had an interest in the campaign on different sides. If we ever have a beer I will have you on the floor laughing about when they made my acquaintance because they didn't like what I was doing....

Key point here....I guarantee there is no way that the Trumps were doing real estate deals in Queens and Brooklyn in the 1970's without doing serious business with some very unsavory characters. No way. I am surprised it has not (yet) been reported about.....

Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jorge A. Vilches" <jorgevilches@fibertel.com.ar>
To: podesta@georgetown.edu
Date: 8/24/2014 11:23:20 AM
Subject: Argentina-US re "Trial of the Century"

http://www.buenosairesherald.com/article/163975/the-federal-reserve%E2%80%99s-readiness-is-at-stake

Buenos Aires Herald

Monday, July 7, 2014

The Federal Reserves readiness is at stake

The United States Supreme Court glistens in the Washington, D.C. sun.

By Jorge Vilches
Guest Columnist

Judge Griesas impact upon CDS, derivatives, and sovereign bond markets

In order to avoid a new default in less than three weeks, Argentina and all of the holdouts must reach an agreement that is acceptable to every restructured bondholder of Argentine debt and Judge Thomas Griesa.

Otherwise, some of the possible outcomes include:

(1) An international cascade of competing legal claims involving many other sovereign defaults besides Argentinas

And/or...

(2) A pseudo-Lehman Brothers CDS and derivatives scenario, possibly with new 2008-type bail-outs

And/or...

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

(3) Deepening of the current de-dollarization of international finances, with markets, governments and the Federal Reserve befuddled and dysfunctional as in the 2008 limbo.

The setting

The glaring absence of internationally acknowledged legislation on sovereign bankruptcy to abide by forced common sense to prevail without the need for judicial intervention. Thus, the largest nation state default in history was successfully left behind, and by 2015, Argentina was expected to return to international credit markets after 13 years of ostracism.

Nobel Prize laureate Paul Krugman, in a front-page high-impact 2012 New York Times piece, praised Argentinas remarkable success story. Many other world-renowned authorities agreed that the decades-long conundrum of debt traps had finally been solved, with implications of genuine growth.

Enter the US Judiciary and Vulture Funds

The US judiciary decided to treat a sovereign debt default as if it were a run-of-the-mill New York business bankruptcy. The minuscule (1.6 percent) albeit horribly powerful holdout vulture funds had taken advantage of the occasion to implement their cunning and fully vetted business model based on the purchase of defaulted Argentine debt that was handed over at dirt cheap prices.

This utterly suspicious class of plaintiffs had simultaneously engaged in swift and handsomely expensive lobbying.

Finally, they gained heavy-weight legal support, manifest namely in very curious US judiciary rulings in disdain of the very nature of a sovereign debt default.

Judiciary overreach

Now, circumstances are pushing financial momentum for a brand new Argentine default with as of yet unfathomable un-intended consequences, including multi-multi-billion arithmetically unpayable new claims worldwide as the decisions of the US judiciary decisions would be taken as precedent.

The problem is that such sanctions were imposed on a nation state without internationally-acknowledged sovereign bankruptcy rules to back them up. As per sovereign immunity (something to which nation states cannot waiver) and also by definition, sovereign debt is unenforceable. The patient has died, and no miracle drug can revive the corpse. Debtors may have rights, but not remedies. US law, judges, and a special master do not apply to nation states. Judge Griesas pari passu interpretation has been hotly and widely contested worldwide, even in the US.

As a matter of fact, Judge Griesas own moaning for months along these lines is on record. The US Judiciary has overstepped the mark of common sense and violated several important clauses of the delicate, unwritten code that rules amicable foreign relations. The US judiciary should not establish US foreign policy, nor is it a world court. As per Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburgs dissent, the Supreme Court should not exorbitantly approve vulture funds direct access to US listings of Argentinas seizable assets worldwide.

Eyes wide shut

Obviously, in view of the default that is being actively pursued, financial terrorists worldwide may now surely join the party by filing additional multi-billion claims through CDS Credit Default Swaps.

As the IMF is painfully aware, all of the above is bound to fuel a worldwide cascade of competing legal claims from vulture funds, plus restructured sovereign bond creditors and CDS holders, all of which would severely affect counterparties and possibly trigger systemic events that were absolutely unimaginable only a week ago.

Its worth mentioning that CDS counterparty risk is concentrated in only ten ultra-highly leveraged too-big-to-fail banks, which may have to be bailed out yet again depending upon how events unfold.

Thus, the international financial system could needlessly find itself running around in circles, clueless and deeply submerged in a J.K. Galbraith type of Age of Uncertainty.

The question is whether the Fed is ready for any of this.

 Columnist specialized in trade and finances.*

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Fran Shapiro" <fran@mercedesberk.com>
To:	"Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/11/2016 7:01:16 AM
Subject:	Showing: Monday, 1/18 - 3:30 p.m.

Hello

May we confirm?

Thanks
Fran

Fran Shapiro
Licensed Real Estate Salesperson

Engel & Völkers
Mercedes/Berk
783 Madison Avenue, 3rd Floor
New York, NY 10065
Tel: +1 646-661-2079
Cell: +1 347-556-4409
mercedesberk.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robert Creamer" <creamer2@aol.com>
To:	"Robert Creamer" <creamer2@aol.com>
Date:	7/10/2011 4:09:15 PM
Subject:	[big campaign] New Huff Post from Creamer - Growing Economic Inequality Root Cause of Economic Stagnation
Attachments:	PastedGraphic-5.pdf

Growing Economic Inequality the Root Cause of Economic Stagnation

Last Friday's jobs numbers showed a net growth of only 18,000 new jobs nationwide – while the economy must produce 150,000 jobs each month just to absorb population growth. Clearly the economic recovery has stalled and Republicans are pointing to the slowdown as evidence that American economic policy must once again turn sharply to the right.

Trouble is, rather than being a solution to our country's economic woes, the growing economic inequality their policies have caused was the root cause of the 2008 economic collapse and the economic stagnation that America has experienced since. That burgeoning economic inequality must end if we are to restore the American middle class – and give our children an opportunity for a prosperous future.

The chief characteristic of private sector economic activity is that it is incredibly responsive to consumer demand. At its best, that's what makes it such an innovative, efficient and powerful engine of economic growth. If private sector entrepreneurs and businesses can identify even a glimmer of consumer demand for some new product or service, someone will figure out how to provide it. But there's a hitch. The consumers who want the product or service need to have the money to pay for it.

So the private sector's greatest strength is also potentially its greatest weakness – its Achilles Heel. If, for whatever reason, consumers as a group don't have the money to buy a growing number of products and services, the private sector economy will stagnate.

Right now there are plenty of people out there who desperately need all sorts of products and services that they don't have the money to buy. The problem isn't that businesses don't have the capital to meet the demand. Corporations are sitting on almost two trillion dollars in cash. They are looking for somewhere to deploy that money where it can earn them a return – where consumers have the money to buy some new product or service.

The problem is that there aren't enough consumers with money in their pockets.

But that is not simply a problem that has resulted from the financial crash and subsequent loss of eight million jobs. This problem has been developing for many years.

The bottom line is that most of the considerable economic growth of the last several decades has gone into the pockets of a tiny percent of the population. As a result, wages and consumer buying power have stagnated, and consumers don't have the money to buy the new products and services upon which economic growth depends.

This generates a vicious cycle – laid-off workers, lower wages, less consumer demand, less economic growth and so on.

You can't fundamentally break this cycle without addressing the root cause – the increased concentration of wealth that is strangling economic growth and destroying the American middle class upon which long-term economic growth completely depends.

Let's look at this process in a little more detail.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The incomes of the middle class Americans, and those who aspire to be middle class – 90% of Americans -- have been stagnant for almost three decades. This trend, which was briefly interrupted during the Clinton Administration, is the chief defining characteristic of our recent economic history.

The stagnation of middle class incomes has not happened because our economy has failed to grow over this period. In fact, real (adjusted for inflation) per capita gross domestic product (GDP) increased more than 80% over the period between 1975 and 2005. In the last ten years, before the Great Recession, it increased at an average rate of 1.8% per year. That means that if the benefits of economic growth were equally spread throughout our society, everyone should have been almost 20% better off (with compounding) in 2008 than they were in 1998.

But they weren't better off. In fact, median family income actually dropped in the years before the recession. It went from $52,301 (in 2009 dollars) in 2000 to $50,112 in 2008. And, of course it continued to drop as the recession set in.

How is that possible?

Was it – as the Right likes to believe – because of the growth of the Federal Government? Nope. In fact, the percentage of GDP going to federal spending actually dropped during the last four years of the Clinton Administration. When Bush took office it began to increase again as the Republicans increased spending on wars. Over the last 28 years, federal spending has averaged about 20.9% of the GDP and varied within a range of only about 5%, with the high being in 1983 (in the middle of the Reagan years) and the low in 2000 before Bush took office. It has never even come close to the 43.6% of GDP that it consumed during World War II in 1943 and 1944, or the 41.9% it consumed in 1945. The percent of GDP that goes to Federal spending went up in 2009 and 2010 – but that was mainly because the economy shrunk on the one hand, and a major, temporary stimulus bill was need on the other to prevent another Great Depression.

Was it because taxes have skyrocketed? No again. In fact, according to the Census Bureau, the median household tax burden actually dropped from 24.9% in 2000 to 22.4% in 2009.

Was it that labor became less productive? No. In fact, there has been a major gap between the increase in the productivity of our workforce and the increase in their wages. Even when wages were improving at the end of the Clinton years, productivity went up 2.5% per year and median hourly wages went up only 1.5%.

From 2000 to 2004, worker productivity exploded by an annual rate of 3.8% but hourly wages went up only 1% and median family income actually dropped .9%.

The bottom line is that people who work for a living (most of us) are getting a smaller and smaller slice of the nation's economic pie.

In August of 2006, the New York Times reported that a Federal Reserve study showed that "(w)ages and salaries now make up the lowest share of the nation's gross national product since the government began recording data in 1947; while corporate profits have climbed to their highest shares since the 1960's."

So the answer to the question is simple. Virtually all of the increase in our gross domestic product over the ten years before the Great Recession went to the wealthiest 2% of the population.

These changes in income distribution are not the result of "natural laws." They are the result of systems set up by human beings that differentially benefit different groups in the society.

Economist Paul Krugman has summarized the history of income distribution in America.

At the beginning of the Great Depression, income inequality, and inequality in the control of wealth, was very high. Then came the great compression between 1929 and 1947. Real wages for workers in manufacturing rose 67% while real income for the richest 1% of Americans fell 17%. This period marked the birth of the American middle class. Two major forces drove these trends – unionization of major manufacturing sectors, and the public policies of the New Deal.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Then came the postwar boom, 1947 to 1973. Real wages rose 81% and the income of the richest 1% rose 38%. Growth was widely shared, but income inequality continued to drop.

From 1973 to 1980, everyone lost ground. Real wages fell 3% and income for the richest one percent fell 4%. The oil shocks, and the dramatic slowdown in economic growth in developing nations, took their toll on America and the world economy.

Then came what Krugman calls "the New Gilded Age." Beginning in 1980, there were big gains at the very top. The tax policies of the Reagan administration magnified income redistribution. Between 1980 and 2004, real wages in manufacturing fell 1%, while real income of the richest one percent rose 135%.

The single largest contributor to this stagnation of middle class incomes has been the corporate attack on organized labor. The percentage of private sector workers in unions has shrunk from 35 % to 7%. The exception has been the public sector, where 35% of teachers, firemen and public service workers now have access to collective bargaining.

What is the economic effect of this growing inequity?

Economies are in balance if productivity gains result in commensurately higher salaries for employees that allow them to buy the larger number of products and services that those productivity increases allow corporations to manufacture and sell. If they don't have increased buying power – if all of the income growth goes to the top 2% -- then a demand deficit will inevitably develop that will lead to stagnation, recession – or depression. That gap in buying power can be filled for a while – as it was in the early 2000's – with greater consumer debt. But after a while the bubble bursts and the house of cards comes tumbling down.

And of course this isn't all about cold economic theory. Growing economic inequality directly impacts million of lives and destroys millions of dreams. It's not just about economic policy. It's about right and wrong.

The growing inequality can be seen in the explosion of the ratio of average worker salaries and the compensation paid to corporate CEO's. In 1980 the average CEO made 42 times more than the average worker. Today he (or sometimes she) makes 262 times as much as the average worker.

New numbers just came out showing that CEO pay last year skyrocketed by a whopping 23%. The new top earning CEO is Gregory Maffei of Liberty Media Corporation who was compensated $87,493,565 for his services. That's about $42,064 per hour.

Of course that's nothing compared to hedge fund manager John Paulson. According the Wall Street Journal he made $5 billion last year. That's $2.4 million dollars an hour – or $40,064 per minute. So Mr. Paulson made as much as a minimum wage worker every 23 seconds. Note also that Mr. Paulson and all hedge fund managers paid Federal taxes at only 15% instead of the 35% due to a special tax break.

What do people like Mr. Paulson and Mr. Maffei do with their massive incomes? Like many executives they might choose to purchase a Rolex Oyster Perpetual Submariner Date Watch for about $8,000.

You might remember that many of the CEO class have spent a good deal of time lately telling America that we have to trim back Social Security benefits. The average Social Security benefit for retirees is the princely sum of $14,160 per year -- $38.79 per day (for all 365 days per year).

It would take the average beneficiary 206 days of benefits to pay for that Rolex watch. It would take Mr. Maffei 11.4 minutes of his compensation.

In order to generate new jobs and get the economy moving over the long haul, America needs to assure that everyday Americans receive the fruits of productivity growth. Otherwise our economy will continue to stagnate. That means more unionization, trade and tax policies that encourage higher wages, and right now it requires a massive jobs program to put America back to work.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The Republican notion that we can't burden the "job creators" like Maffei or Paulson with new taxes is mortally dangerous for our economy and our future. Just the opposite is true. The "job creators" are the everyday consumers that have to have money in their pockets to create the demand to make our economy grow.

But this is not just bad economics. It's morally wrong.

The idea of asking Social Security recipients or people on Medicare or Medicaid to sacrifice a part of their meager income to assure that people like Gregory Maffei can afford to buy a new Rolex watch every 11 minutes – or get a taxpayer subsidy to ride in a corporate jet – is simply obscene.

The outcome of the current budget debate can be judged by only one central criteria. What will a budget deal do to create new jobs and get the economy moving again? That is not mainly about giving "confidence" to the markets or cutting the ratio of long-term debt to GDP. To truly address the root problems of our economy, a budget deal must help increase the incomes of the middle class and reduce the swelling economic inequality that is a cancer growing on our society and our economy.

You don't do that by cutting Social Security or Medicare benefits -- or by slashing Medicaid as the Republicans proposed. You do it, as President Obama has proposed, by asking the new economic aristocracy to dip into their vast stores of wealth and help pay their fair share for the society from which they have so richly benefited.

Robert Creamer is a long-time political organizer and strategist, and author of the book: Stand Up Straight: How Progressives Can Win, available on Amazon.com . He is a partner in the firm Democracy Partners. Follow him on Twitter @rbcreamer.

Robert Creamer
Democracy Partners
creamer2@aol.com
DC Office 202-470-6955
Cell 847-910-0363

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	tara.mcguinness@gmail.com
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "stan greenberg" <sgreenberg@gqrr.com> "jennifer palmeri" <JPalmieri@americanprogress.org>
Date:	5/16/2010 6:55:24 AM
Subject:	Fw: [filibuster] The GOP's grass-roots obstructionists

Sent from my Verizon Wireless BlackBerry

-----Original Message-----
From: Tony Carrk <tcarrk@americanprogress.org>
Date: Sun, 16 May 2010 01:50:39
To: filibuster@googlegroups.com<filibuster@googlegroups.com>
Subject: [filibuster] The GOP's grass-roots obstructionists

The GOP's grass-roots obstructionists

http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2010/05/14/AR2010051404234.html?nav=rss_opinion/columns

By William A. Galston and Thomas E. Mann
Sunday, May 16, 2010

We commend The Post for initiating a forum on polarization, which is indeed the dominant political phenomenon of our time. Consider that for the first time in modern history, in both the House and the Senate, the most conservative Democrat is slightly more liberal than the most liberal Republican. This is more than an interesting scholarly finding; it has consequences for the legislative process. The most conservative Senate Democrat (Ben Nelson) ended up supporting health reform; the most liberal Republican (Olympia Snowe) ended up opposing it. For decades, the operational core of bipartisanship in Congress was the overlap between the parties. Through a long process triggered by the politics of the 1960s, that core has disappeared.

Polarization is not confined to elected officials and political elites. While the American people are not as divided as the parties are, they are more divided than they were a generation ago. As Emory University's Alan Abramowitz notes in his new book, "The Disappearing Center," the percentage of the electorate that places itself at or near the ideological midpoint of American politics has shrunk from 41 to 28 percent since the mid-1980s, while the left and right extremes have expanded.

In addition, because people increasingly prefer to live near others who share their cultural and political preferences, they are voting with their feet and sorting themselves geographically. Many more states and counties are dominated by one-party supermajorities than in the past. Contrary to widespread belief, reducing the gerrymandering of congressional districts would make only a small dent in the problem. And unfortunately, homogeneous groups tend to reinforce and purify the views that bring them together: Sorting not only reflects polarization but also intensifies it.

What The Post's editorial missed, however, is that these developments have not produced two mirror-image political parties. We have, instead, asymmetrical polarization. Put simply: More than 70 percent of Republicans in the electorate identify themselves as conservative or very conservative, while only 40 percent of rank-and-file Democrats call themselves liberal or very liberal. It is far easier for congressional Republicans to forge and maintain a united front than it is for Democrats. George W. Bush pushed through his signature tax cuts and Iraq war authorization with substantial Democratic support, while unwavering Republican opposition nearly torpedoed Barack Obama's health-reform legislation. When Democrats are in the majority, their greater ideological diversity combined with the unified opposition of Republicans induces the party to negotiate within its ranks, producing policies that not long ago would have attracted the support of a dozen Senate Republicans.
ad_icon

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Consider the episode that The Post cited as Exhibit A for polarization: Sen. Robert Bennett's commendable work with Democratic Sen. Ron Wyden to develop a bipartisan health bill, which was used against him by conservative Utah activists to deny him renomination. The Post failed to note, however, that Senate Republican leader Mitch McConnell pulled the plug on the Wyden-Bennett initiative well before health reform was taken up last year.

Bennett and other Republican co-sponsors of this bipartisan bill were told in no uncertain terms that the party strategy was to block every major domestic policy initiative of the new administration and not to engage in substantive negotiations that could produce bipartisan majorities on the floor. During the lengthy health debate, not one Senate Republican spoke in support of the Wyden-Bennett bill. Tea Party activists outraged at Republican incumbents for cavorting with the enemy (i.e., Obama and the Democrats) took their cue from Republican Party leaders.

Under these conditions of asymmetrical polarization, Congress can become a haven for obstruction and gridlock rather than deliberation and compromise. David Price, an 11-term North Carolina Democrat and distinguished political scientist, has just published a frank account of the reasons that led Democrats leaders to abandon their hopes of reinstating more open, less restrictive rules of procedure in the House. His essay is required reading for those who want to understand the ground-level dynamics of polarization in action.

This is not to say that Congress is prevented from acting in a less purely partisan manner. When a supermajority of people, of any partisan stripe, wants something to happen -- financial regulatory reform, for example -- chances are good that it will. But when the people are divided, the most strident voices tend to dominate, and Congress reverts to the all-too-familiar pattern of behavior that has driven its public esteem to a record low. And a Republican Party dominated at the grass roots by angry rejection of all bipartisanship -- and of all but the most limited government -- may win support in the short term, but it will be hard put to cooperate productively in the serious tasks of governance.

The writers are senior fellows at the Brookings Institution.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Manatos and Manatos" <manatos@manatos.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 3/8/2016 6:38:38 AM
Subject: Celebrating International Women's Day

The WASHINGTON OXI DAY FOUNDATION

Celebrating Battle of Crete Award Recipients on International Women's Day

WASHINGTON, DC, March 8, 2016 -- Today, on the occasion of International Women's Day, the Washington Oxi Day Foundation celebrates our distinguished Battle of Crete Award recipients and other spirited women around the globe who fight so tirelessly for freedom and democracy.

2015 Battle of Crete Award Recipient:
Prominent human rights advocate and Director of Azerbaijan's Institute of Peace and Democracy, Leyla Yunus

- To see pictures and video from this presentation, please click here .

Dinara Yunus receives the Battle of Crete Award on behalf of her mother from House Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi and Foundation Founder and President Andy Manatos

Oxi Day Sponsors

This important activity in Washington, D.C. is being made possible by the generous support of the following individuals and organizations:

Gold Sponsors
Anonymous
Nicholas J. and Anna K. Bouras Foundation
James Chanos and Kynikos Associates
Manatos & Manatos
George & Judy Marcus
James & Zoe Moshovitis

Silver Sponsors
Libra Group
Dean & Marianne Metropoulos
Michael & Robin Psaros

Bronze Sponsors
Maria Allwin
Calamos Investments
Earth Friendly Products (ECOS)
Gus Kalaris and Axios Wines
Amb. Eleni Tsakopoulos Kounalakis & Markos Kounalakis
Dennis & Karen Mehiel
National Hellenic Society
James & Wanda Pedas and Ted & Lea Pedas
Erika Spyropoulos
Pavlos & Konstantina N. Vardinoyannis
Stephen G. & Thelma S. Yeonas

To become a sponsor, contact Mike@OxiDayFoundation.org

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

- To see Bono's introductory remarks, please click here .

Bono introduces Leyla Yunus via video

2014 Battle of Crete Award Recipient:

One of Forbes' 10 most influential in the world and "the soul of Ukraine's resistance," Ruslana Lyzhychko

To see video and pictures from this presentation, please click here .

Ruslana Lyzhychko

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Ruslana Lyzhychko receives the Battle of Crete Award from Foundation Advisory Board Member Jim Chanos

2013 Battle of Crete Award Recipient:
Head of Cuba's Ladies in White, who bravely protest Castro's repressive policies, Berta Soler

To see pictures and video from this presentation, please click here .

Berta Soler and House Democratic Leader Nancy Pelosi

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Berta Soler and John Githongo

2012 Battle of Crete Award Recipient:
One of Pakistan's most prominent advocates for women's rights, Dr. Fouzia Saeed

To see pictures and video from this presentation, please click here .

The first US Ambassador-at-Large for Global Women's Issues Melanne Verveer with Dr. Fouzia Saeed

2011 Battle of Crete Award Recipient:
Burmese opposition leader and Nobel Laureate, Aung San Suu Kyi

To see video from this presentation, please click here .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Aung San Suu Kyi

Follow us on these social networks:

The Washington Oxi Day Foundation is a nonprofit, 501c3 organization dedicated to informing American policymakers and the public about the profound role Greece played in bringing about the outcome of World War II and celebrating modern day heroes who exhibit the same courage as the Greeks did in continuing to fight to preserve and promote freedom and democracy around the world.

www.OxiDayFoundation.org
1100 New Hampshire Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20037
202.393.3180 • info@OxiDayFoundation.org

Support the efforts of The Washington Oxi Day Foundation. Visit OxiDayFoundation.org/donate

Manatos and Manatos, 1100 New Hampshire Ave., NW, Washington, DC 20037

Unsubscribe | Privacy policy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"William Daley" <wmd0848@gmail.com>
Date:	3/18/2015 3:17:21 AM
Subject:	Re:

Breezing along with the breeze. You?

On Mar 18, 2015 9:48 AM, "William Daley" <wmd0848@gmail.com > wrote:

> How u doing ?
>
> Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Megan Rouse" <meganrouse@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/10/2016 8:13:17 AM
Subject:	Millennials

Maybe you are tired of my emails about swalwell, sorry. But every time I hear him, I think he can be a bridge for her to connect.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

●●○○○ Verizon 3:09 PM 49%

Rep. Eric Swalwell
5,575 Tweets

Tweets | Media | Likes

Rep. Eric Swalwell @RepSwalwell 4m
Money in politics drowns out your voice. We want to hear you. #FutureForum

2 2

Rep. Eric Swalwell @RepSwalwell 7m
Millennials think the system is rigged - we need to restore the trust in our democracy. #FutureForum

1 2

Rep. Eric Swalwell @RepSwalwell 11m
Starting now: #FutureForum discusses campaign finance & voting rights on @HouseFloor with @RepSarbanes, @RepDerekKilmer, & @StaceyPlaskett

Home Notifications Moments Messages Me

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jeremy Funk" <funk@americansunitedforchange.org>
To:	bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date:	10/20/2009 9:19:05 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] Congress getting "completely crushed" with 4-out-of-5 calls demanding the public option

Huffington Post, 10/20: "Congress "Getting Completely Crushed" With Over 100,000 Calls For Obama's Healthcare Reform" :

> It's not even noon on the West Coast and already Capitol Hill staffers say they're getting nonstop calls from constituents in support of President Barack Obama's health insurance reform. At about 2:15 EST, Organizing for America (OFA) surpassed it's goal of 100,000 phone calls to Congress, each one imploring representatives to vote for reform. The nationwide "Time to Deliver on Health Reform" event is the most massive outpouring of support from Obama supporters since Election Day 2008.
>
> Senate Democratic aides told HuffPost that their phones have been ringing off the hook. "We're getting completely crushed with calls, jamming our phone lines from the moment we opened," said one aide.
>
> Another said they'd gotten "pretty much non-stop health care calls from OFA." A third also said their office was getting bombed and that four out of every five calls specifically mentioned the public option.

Not surprising…

Washington Post, 10/20: 'Public option gains support; CLEAR MAJORITY NOW BACKS PLAN' :

> A new Washington Post-ABC News poll shows that support for a government-run health-care plan to compete with private insurers has rebounded from its summertime lows and wins clear majority support from the public.
>
> [...]
>
> On the issue that has been perhaps the most pronounced flash point in the national debate, 57 percent of all Americans now favor a public insurance option, while 40 percent oppose it. Support has risen since mid-August, when a bare majority, 52 percent, said they favored it. (In a June Post-ABC poll, support was 62 percent.)

Jeremy J. Funk
Communications Director, Americans United for Change
Office: 202.470.5878
Cell: 605.366.3654
funk@americansunitedforchange.org
www.AmericansUnitedforChange.org

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~---~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Michael Stennis" <mstennis@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 3/12/2016 9:24:42 AM
Subject: Re: MO, OH | 3.12.2016

All clear with vetting!

Michael J. Stennis
MStennis@hillaryclinton.com | 206.226.3177

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 3:18 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

I'm pasting Adrienne's event summary to the larger group below.
The crowd was nuts for her, and this was a particularly good effort by advance, it looked great.
Before the rally she did a tour of the training facility and learned about how carpentry is changing to be more energy efficient in the equipment they use and the methods used to build frames for houses. There will be some great images on the wire.

We're landing in Ohio now.

Executive summary: Hillary began by repeating some her remarks on Trump from this morning, which were well received. Reporters noticed Hillary take strong swipes at Sanders' misrepresentation of her record and his own. She contrasted well with Sanders on her ability to get things done, highlighting that she "voted for the auto bailout when it counted, and he didn't" and speaking at length about her support of export-import, which benefits Missouri. She got a lot of cheers when she closed by saying "let's go build the future that our country deserves, together."

Tweets:
Monica Alba @AlbaMonica
HRC notably went after Sanders today too, saying "he has decided to close this election by attacking me and misrepresenting my record"

Dan Merica @danmericaCN
Clinton on Trump's 'divisive' rhetoric: 'That's political arson' - My story from St. Louis: cnn.it/1U8ucGQ

Dan Merica @danmericaCNN
Wow. Clinton on Sanders standing up to powerful interests: "I don't know where he was when I was trying to get healthcare in 93 an 94."

Hannah Chanpong @hannahfc
Clinton on Sanders: "I don't know where he was when I was trying to get healthcare in '93 and '94."
Dan Merica @danmericaCNN
Clinton: "When Democrats are in the White House, the economy does better. Organized labor does better. Young people do better."

Jennifer Epstein @jeneps
Sanders "has decided to close this election by attacking me and misrepresenting my record and his own," Clinton says, escalating critique

Hannah Chanpong @hannahfc
Clinton, speaking at a carpenter training facility, says Sanders has been "attacking" her and "misrepresenting" her record and his.

Jennifer Epstein @jeneps
"I voted for the auto bailout WHEN IT COUNTED and he didn't," Clinton says in St. Louis

Dan Merica @danmericaCNN

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Stepped up rhetoric from HRC, who says Sanders "has decided to close this election by attacking me & misrepresenting my record and his own."

Jennifer Epstein @jeneps
Clinton: "The ugly, divisive rhetoric we are hearing from Donald Trump and the encouragement of violence and aggression ... is dangerous"

Hannah Chanpong @hannahfc
Clinton: "If you see bigotry, you should oppose it. If you see violence, you should condemn it."

Hannah Chanpong @hannahfc
Clinton in St. Louis says Donald Trump has encouraged “violence and aggression” with his rhetoric.

Monica Alba @AlbaMonica
In St. Louis, HRC slams Trump for encouraging rally attendees to incite violence: "It's not only wrong, it's dangerous, my friends."

Ruby Cramer @rubycramer
Clinton starts off her St. Louis labor rally addressing Trump. She is repeating much of what she said earlier:

Dan Merica @danmericaCNN
Clinton again commenting on violence at Trump events, says he is encouraging the violence.

Jennifer Epstein @jeneps
"I think I may have found my running mate," Clinton joked of the carpenter who introduced her here pic.twitter.com/cHFUv5l4qG

Hannah Chanpong @hannahfc
Clinton fan in St. Louis on Trump rally chaos: "I’m happy to hear it...Somebody has to get the word out that he should not be the nominee.”

On Mar 12, 2016, at 11:16 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Thanks Olivia.
>
> On Mar 12, 2016, at 11:04 AM, Olivia Raisner <oraisner@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> Copy/pasted text for those of you on your phones:
>
> HILLARY CLINTON: Thank you all so much! I love it. I am so happy to be here with you. Obviously I want to thank everybody here, particularly Louis Reid and Antonio French and Sean Patrick Thomas and Erika Alexander and [inaudible]. Thank you all for being here and being with me. Before I send you off on this important day to canvass and convince people to turn out, please sit down, thank you so much.
>
> I want to say a few words about what happened last night in Chicago. You know, we will always have our differences, won't we? That's what happens in a democracy like ours. But the ugly, divisive rhetoric we are hearing from Donald Trump and the encouragement of violence and aggression is wrong and it's dangerous.
>
> If you play with matches, you're going to start a fire you can't control. That's not leadership. That's political arson. The test of leadership and citizenship is the opposite. If you see bigotry, oppose it. If you see violence, condemn it. And if you see a bully, stand up to him.
>
> Now look, I know it's no secret there are people angry on the left, on the right and for some very good reasons. Many people have gotten a raw deal for too long. Our economy and our politics have failed to deliver results the way they should. But I believe with all my heart, the only way to fix what's broken is to stand together against the forces of division and discrimination that are trying to divide America between us and them.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

And that means finding common ground where we can and holding our ground whenever we must. That means working for real solutions to our problems. Not making promises we can't keep or proposals that don't add up. You don't give the chance to make America great by getting rid of everything that made America great.

Our values, our diversity, our openness. These are strengths, not weaknesses. So we're not here to build walls. We're here to break down all the barriers holding people back. And to build those ladders of opportunity for everybody no matter where you live. No matter who you are. That has been my goal my entire adult life. To give every person in this country, particularly our children, the chance to live up to their God-given potential. Because then and only then, can America live up to its potential, too. So I can't thank you enough for being here this morning. Because what I saw last night in Chicago was deeply disturbing to me.

We have work to do. We've got to break down the economic barriers that hold folks back. We don't have enough good-paying jobs. I'm the only one with a plan to actually create good-paying jobs and raise incomes for all Americans.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 12:00 PM, Olivia Raisner <oraisner@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Trump comments attached:
>
> On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 11:53 AM, Tina Flournoy <Tina@presidentclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > like it
> >
> > On Mar 12, 2016, at 11:48 AM, Josh Schwerin <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > HRC transcript from the pool report
> >
> > "I want to say a few words about what happened last night in Chicago. You know, we will always have our differences, won't we? That's what happens in a democracy like ours. But the ugly, divisive rhetoric we are hearing from Donald Trump and the encouragement of violence and aggression is wrong, and it's dangerous. If you play with matches, you're going to start a fire you can't control. That's not leadership. That's political arson. The test of leadership and citizenship is the opposite. If you see bigotry, oppose it. If you see violence, condemn it. And if you see a bully, stand up to him.
> >
> > "Now, look, I know it's no secret there are people angry on the left, on the right and for some very good reasons. Many people have gotten a raw deal for too long. Our economy and our politics have failed to deliver results the way they should. But I believe with all my heart the only way to fix what's broken is to stand together against the forces of division and discrimination that are trying to divide America between us and them, and that means, that means, finding common ground where we can and holding our ground whenever we must. That means, working for real solutions to our problems, not making promises we can't keep or proposals that don't add up. you don't get the chance to make America great by getting rid of everything that made America great.
> >
> > "No, our values, our diversity, our openness — these are strengths not weaknesses. So we're not here to build walls, we're here to break down all the barriers holding people back and to build those ladders of opportunity for everybody no matter where you live, no matter who you are. that has been my goal my entire adult life, to give every person in this country, particularly our children the chance to live up to their god given potential. Because then and only then can America live up to its potential too. So I can't thank you enough for being here this morning because what I saw last night in Chicago was deeply disturbing to me. We have work to do. we've got to break down the economic barriers that hold people back… We don't have enough good paying jobs. I'm the only one with a plan to actually create good paying jobs and raise incomes for all Americans.
> >
> > "…I want us to roll up our sleeves and get to work and to stand against this tide of bullying and bigotry and blustering that is going on in our political system. The best way to do that is to turn everybody we can out to vote on Tuesday. Send a clear message — you know what — you have every right to be angry, but anger is not a plan. You have every right to vent your feelings about the way the economy and our political system is failing. But venting is not a strategy. I am all about producing results."
> >
> > On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 11:42 AM, Tina Flournoy <Tina@presidentclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > that is great!
> > > if you haven't seen what Obama said yesterday re:Trump/this whole crazy deal - it's worth pulling up

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Mar 12, 2016, at 11:40 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

It was an all AfAm canvass kickoff.
It was well received.
The "you can't make America great by tearing down all the things that dos make America great" was the biggest applause at the top.
Let's see her try again at the Carpenters Hall.

On Mar 12, 2016, at 10:28 AM, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com > wrote:

How was it received?

From: Nick Merrill [mailto:nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Saturday, March 12, 2016 11:17 AM
To: Nick Merrill
Cc: Lorella Praeli; eventsummaries@hillaryclinton.com ; John Podesta; Jake Sullivan; Jennifer Palmieri; Synergy; Tina@presidentclinton.com ; Huma Abedin; Robby Mook; Connolly Keigher; Charlie Baker; hkirstein@hillaryclinton.com ; Mandy Grunwald; Jim Margolis; Joel Benenson; Robert Russo; dstein@hillaryclinton.com ; ldrane@hillaryclinton.com
Subject: MO, OH | 3.12.2016

Here at the canvass kickoff in St Louis.

She did the Trump hit in full.

Talked about breaking down barriers, said she was the only one with a plan to create jobs.

Came back to Trump, talked about divisiveness.

Anger is not a plan, etc

Transcript coming.

On Mar 8, 2016, at 2:19 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

6 radio interviews and 2 coffee shops this morning. Interviews were all live or taped Detroit stations with the exception of one we did into Flint. Quick hits, mostly centered around getting out to vote. Flint came up in every one, and then education, and ACA. No flags. Every single interviewer was for her. Highlight of the morning was one of the hosts, whose stage name is "Foolish" asked a question, to which HRC replied "Well, Foolish, that is far from a foolish question." Awkward chuckles all around.

We did 2 OTRs, both at very hip coffee shops a couple of miles outside of downtown

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Detroit.

The first was Avalon, not too far from the Shinola Store. HRC walked in and chatted with the baristas a little, then went to one of two small sitting areas and shook a lot of hands. She had several interesting conversations, one with a woman who has cystic fibrosis, and her friend who also has it had met and chatted with HRC in NH. We'll get the audio and have the exchanges transcribed.

Second OTR was at Astro coffee, near the old Detroit train station, which was pretty striking. HRC shook a lot of hands and ordered yet more coffee. Lots of people seemed to have voted, and lots said they'd voted for her.

Back at the hotel now, likely until we leave for Cleveland this evening.

On Mar 6, 2016, at 2:27 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> ICYMI, HRC did a 7 minute pre-taped hit on Face the Nation this morning. Dickerson began by asking if Senator Sanders should stay in the race until the end. She said that's for him to decide, she's proud to have more delegates and to have built a broad coalition that can win in November. He asked about enthusiasm on the Republican side. She said that she was proud to have gotten more votes than anyone in this race, and mentioned that she has more white support than anyone if you exclude Vermont. She got asked about Trump bring people into his coalition, she said she wanted everyone in hers. Asked about emails and played a little offense on the WaPo report this morning that made clear how many state officials, including career, we're sending what's now considered classified. Name-checked Powell and mentioned that he called this all absurd. Final question was about Libya, stemming from the NYT 2-parter last week. Handled it well.
>
> Then we went to church. 3 to be exact.
>
> We began at the Holy Ghost Cathedral, with about 400 congregants I'd guess. The Bishop gave a rousing introduction about how much she loves Hillary Clinton, because HRC is a woman who's been through difficult times and come out on the other side with the Glory of God.
>
> HRC's remarks were powerful, she talked about the need for us to unite. That we need citizenship and stewardship in addition to leadership. Real togetherness message. She told the story of the prodigal son, and used it to talk to the congregation about the discipline of gratitude. She then did Flint, schools in Detroit, and then a litany on breaking down barriers. Ended by talking about the need to never grow weary doing good.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Next up was Russell Street Missionary Baptist Church

Pastor gave a nice intro, started by praising President Clinton, said "today she comes before us standing in her own shoes, with her own record, and her own vision." Mentioned Debra and other strong women from the bible.

HRC opened with love and kindness. Talked about Flint, ended by saying that we need to stand up for each other and our future.

Final church was Triumph Church. The sanctuary was a beautiful wooden dome with stained glass windows. She opened with barriers here, then praised Obama and the ACA. Talked about togetherness, and did Flint at the end.

Very good morning.

On a personal note, I just had two Coney Island hot dogs at the famous Lafayette Coney Island next to the hotel. I highly recommend. Bring your defibrillator, or ask to borrow one from USSS.

On Mar 5, 2016, at 1:20 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Jobs speech was great. She stuck to the script mostly, cut out a few things (didn't mention the /ideas webpage and cut out the story at the end). Only real add was a line at the end about "bad mouthing America" that some tried to seize on as a shot at Bernie, but it was (mostly) about the GOP.
>
> The Harwood interview was a little less substantive than promised, but she did fine. Got clawbacks in there, and a lot of questions about her approach to the economy, but all in the context of Bernie, Trump, what's politically viable. She got emails as well, handled well.
>
> Did an OTR at Kuzzo's Chicken and Waffles with the Mayor and Congresswoman Brenda Lawrence. Lots of enthusiasm, lots of selfies.
>
> We did 4 radio interviews, into Jackson, MS, New Orleans x2, and Detroit. All very positive interviews, disproportionately about college affordability and education writ large.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

More tomorrow.

On Mar 1, 2016, at 2:50 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Two OTRs with Governor Mark Dayton complete.

Walked into Mapps Cafe in a trendy neighborhood near U of M, greeted by about 50 patrons and 25 press.

We are now officially no longer 88 days from a press avail, but 0. Merica, Karni, Abby Philipps, and some locals asked her questions. Merica asked her about expectations today, she said were working hard, hope people turn out. Asked about Sanders' path, she declined to comment, said she's going to keep going.

Local asked about message for Minnesota voters today. Talked about breaking down barriers.

Abby Philipps asked her about Trump being the eventual nominee. She dodged. Said they all have deeply troubling views.

of the WaPo asked about Trump, she said things like this need to be repudiated. She would continue speak out against bigotry.

Annie Karni asked her another expectations question (I think), she again have a pretty stock answer. She tried to ask about asking for Bernie to get out of the race, she said that everyone has to make their own decisions.

Local asked her about Trump, she talked about speaking out against insults.

She met a Somali woman who wanted to tel her she was going caucus for her through her daughter who was translation. HRC told her she would be the president for everyone.

She met another Somali American on the city council who she was impressed by.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

HRC, Dayton, and the Lieutenant Governor made it to the counter ordered coffee (HRC got something called the Big Bang).

A guy came over to her at the counter and told her that he had just received a letter back from her yesterday. He had written HRC about a health problem (I think with his dad). They had a really nice exchange about how useful it was for her to hear stories like his so she can figure out how to help.

Her final real interaction before leaving was with a Somali-American girl, probably 26 or 27, who said that Somali-American youth are being marginalized and experiencing prejudice, and given her comments about the African American community, how do we know she'd be any different now? She mentioned super predator specifically. HRC said she'd used the word one time, and to look at her record. The young woman said she knew what her record was and that it was supportive of the African American community, which is why so many have supported her campaign. She mentioned the Somali-American councilman that she'd just seen, and that she'd met with members of the community last time she was in Minneapolis. The girl responded by saying something to the effect of the councilman doesn't count. HRC told her that if she believes that than maybe she should run for office. At this point the Governor intervened and the conversation ended.

Left the coffee shop for Global Market, and indoor market with food and other stands that sell various things. We got mobbed in the lobby so barely made it to the proper market everywhere. Took some selfies and then out.

Taxiing now to head to Miami.

On Mar 1, 2016, at 11:19 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

8 interviews in the can here in Minneapolis this morning. We did early morning radio into Atlanta, Dallas, Houston, and did the Tom Joyner show with special guests. All very positive, with a few questions about trust.

Ryan Cameron, Host, The Ryan Cameron Morning Show, V 103, Atlanta, GA

Asked her how she was feeling, why they should vote for her, being a woman, 90s, crime bill, Superpredator (did her points), how will you continue a dialogue with the community.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Tom Joyner, Tom Joyner Morning Show

Roland Martin started off with a question about job growth for small businesses. Sharpton asked her about who she'd appoint as AG to protect voting rights, same with SCOTUS justices. Don Lemon, said she stopped talking about Sanders on the trail. She basically refuted that citing her rallies yesterday and proceeded to draw contrasts. Jacque Reid asked her about what can be done in communities. She talked a lot about breaking down barriers. Finally, Sybil Wilkes asked her about how her presidency would be different than her husbands.

DeDe, Host, Dede in the Morning (KKDA), Dallas, TX

Why is it important to get out and vote, Trump, asked about WJC in the WH. Last question was about Morgan Freeman voice HRC's ads.

Madd Hatta, Host, The Madd Hatta Morning Show (97.9), Houston, TX

"Mista Madd" opened by calling her Madam President, pretending it was a slip of the tongue. Questions were college loans, talked about making America whole again. Final Q was about wages. And then the final final Q was about what she'd do about health care.

We just wrapped up some satellite TV hits into Atlanta, Oklahoma City, Denver, and Little Rock. She got or emails in all but Denver. She didn't go full-bore on her most recent trust answer, but talked about not being a natural politician, had a warm tone, all in all did well. Not really a flag unless Healy and Chozick are trolling for nonsense this morning, but should mention that she told the OK City anchor that WJC was her chief advisor. It was playful, but nonetheless.

Lori Geary WSB (Atlanta)

Trump/David Duke

Trust/FBI

Lied on BG?

College affordability

Ever thought we'd be where we are today with the name calling on the Republican side?

Christie Lewis KWTV (Oklahoma City)

What do you want to say to voters?

Trust

Energy sector

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

WJC (called him her chief advisor)

Emails

Marshall Zelinger- KMGH (Denver)

Why not Colorado today?

Caucuses

Federal banking system for marijuana/Hickenlooper

Mental health and guns

Mallory Brooks- KARK (Little Rock)

Arkansas Travelers

What was so special about AR, what are you most proud of?

- Wants to win in the fall

VP candidates?

Emails

Bernie's message

On Feb 29, 2016, at 12:37 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> 600 at the Museum of Springfield history this morning, where I've learned that Springfield used to be a place where they manufactured Rolls Royces. They have some here from the 20s on display that are just beautiful, if you like that millionaires/billionaires stuff.
>
> Remarks were met with enthusiasm, but she was largely back to her longer/policy-laden stump, with trickle down again and a return to some other old hits on Republicans. In other words, November, with some of the new message stuff as bookends.
>
> Got to Boston and were met by hundreds of people in the streets that couldn't fit into the Old South Meeting House (one of the places where the Tea Party was established--the 18th century Tea Party).

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

She's doing much the same thing here in Boston. She did do a nice riff (thanks to Dan being quick on his feet right before she hit the stage) on what our founders would think about Johnson Controls and Valleant Pharmaceuticals using American resources and not paying their fair share. "Now we may not go dumping prescription drugs into Boston Harbor, but I promise you they are going to pay a real price...

Working a ropeline now, then off to GMU.

On Feb 28, 2016, at 10:28 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Below its the readout that Adrienne sent around to many of you. This was a good rally. She loves her some Arkansas and Arkansas loves her. She opened with a little togetherness but quickly reverted to her stump, beginning with rising incomes. She ended by doing breaking barriers. There were a few hundred people in the room and then a few hundred more in a gymnasium next door where she spoke very briefly and worked another long rope line.

In the air headed to Springfield, MA now.

###

Executive summary: This was one of Hillary's best recent rallies. She looked incredibly comfortable on stage as she spoke about the differences between her and the Republican nominees, our country's economic success under her husband, voting rights, Supreme Court and more.

Reporters noticed Hillary speaking more freely about her husband, referring to him by his first name and to his time as president. Mentions of her time in Arkansas, investment in jobs and infrastructure and debt-free college got the most applause. She got a lot of nods when she said, "its not enough to create opportunities for my granddaughter, I want to create opportunities for everybody."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Jennifer Epstein @jeneps

Small but enthusiastic crowd (partial crowd in photo) for Clinton in Pine Bluff, 45 miles south of Little Rock pic.twitter.com/hPsGXofVdC

Ruby Cramer @rubycramer

.@HillaryClinton revives the word awesome, describes commander-in-chief job as "an awesome responsibility."

Monica Alba @AlbaMonica

HRC in Pine Bluff: "Arkansas runs deep in me. I had 18 wonderful years living in this state."

Jennifer Epstein @jeneps 3m3 minutes ago

Clinton's only explicit mention of Donald Trump on the stump lately has been about not wanting to pay for his son to go to college

Jennifer Epstein @jeneps 1m1 minute ago

"People are being put through hoops" to be able to vote, Clinton says in Pine Bluff, Arkansas

Dan Merica @danmericaCNN

Clinton describes the GOP field as "one billionaire, two senators" in AR and knocks them for having healthcare but calling for ACA repeal.

Hannah Chanpong

A thing HRC is doing Arkansas: "during Bill's terms…two programs that Bill started...after Bill left office…"

Jennifer Epstein @jeneps

Jennifer Epstein Retweeted Hannah Chanpong

usually says "my husband"

Yuna Lee @4029Yuna

As for GOP candidates, she says "they are selling the same snake oil" @HillaryClinton #4029News

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

A Clinton line that does well in Arkansas: "We need to get back to what worked when my husband was president."

On Feb 28, 2016, at 4:48 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> 2 churches and a coffee shop this morning. I was (and still am) feeling blessed and caffeinated this Sunday afternoon.
>
> Churches were Greater Imani Church and Mississippi Boulevard Christian Church. Imani had about 2000 congregants there, 800 or so at Mississippi Blvd.
>
> She gave a similar speech at each, sort of an abbreviated new stump, did togetherness, mothers of the movement, health care, love and kindness. First one was probably a little better organized, but crowd at each was fired up. Lots of applause and lots of individual cheers.
>
> Left there and flew to Nashville, where we joined Tony Goldwyn and the Mayor Megan Barry for a coffee stop at Fido, near Vanderbilt. The place was packed, she ordered some coffee and took lots of photos, spoke to the owner and his son for awhile. On small thing to note: on the way in Tony asked her what she thought of Trump's David Duke comments this morning. She replied that it was "pathetic" under her breath, which has made a little news (in a good way).
>
> The rally at Meharry Medical college was high-energy. Tony Goldwyn did LONG but solid intro. HRC visited an overflow room with about 400. 800 in the main room. She told the story again about the young, affluent white guy that emailed her after her Harlem speech and said he'd been arrested but through connections his parents made the charges go away. All people must be equal under the law.
>
> Long ropeline and out.
>
> On the plane headed to Arkansas (!!)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Feb 26, 2016, at 3:07 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Good trip to Georgia.

City hall was packed, with several hundred more in overflow than in the event itself. HRC spoke at both, with Mayor Reed getting everyone fired up. Speech was shorter but pretty standard stump otherwise.

We left and went to the Statehouse which was electric. Who knew there were that many Democrats in Georgia. She addressed the Democratic Caucus and did a short version of her stump that was pretty crisp. She used a line about spending 10 months crafting policies, and while the press may have thought that was boring, she's very proud of it. People loved it. There were no press in the room.

We took many a selfie while wading through throngs of people, with more pouring over the balconies, and headed to Octane coffee shop for an OTR. Usher was going to join us but got stuck in traffic...

Dan Merica asked her if she was jealous that she didn't get Christie's endorsement, to which she responded with a prolonged smile (you could see the gears turning), and then said "Dan, I really like you. I really really like you." They are basically courting each other at this point.

She got one question from local CBS, general about why she's in Georgia. She gave a stock answer about being a good partner if she's lucky enough to win.

In the air headed to Orangeburg now.

On Feb 25, 2016, at 4:16 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Two events and two NBC interviews down, seem to be surviving the day. I even venture to say it's going well.

The town hall in Kingstree was very engaging.

Stuck largely to remarks:

Senator Sanders wants to take us back on HC.

Hit the GOP, saying they have health care through their jobs so what do they have to worry about.

Schools/Education

Did the SCOTUS piece, including Sandoval:

"Now there's been some talk that the President might nominate the R Gov of NV. I love NV. But I sure hope the President chooses a true progressive that stands up to the values and interests of the people of this country, name-checked voting rights."

*Q&A was strong, covered v*ets, someone asked about Haley, accusing her of being so focused on being GOP VP that she doesn't care about South Carolinians. Got asked about HIPPY. Forgiveness of debt for enterprise in AfAm communities. Guns, Ukraine, child asked what she would do to stop terrorist attacks in the US, she gave a great answer that ended with he telling the little girl to worry about school and her friends, and HRC would worry about making sure she's safe. Puerto Rico question from a young autistic man- she advocated for them voting and if they choose to become a state allowing them to do so.

Morning Joe:

Are we seeing a new HRC?

Trust? In it for HRC or people?

Relatability/Jeb/WJC

Transcripts

Can you guarantee that you didn't say anything problematic?

"Absolutely"

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Big banks

Orderly unwinding under Dodd Frank, there's a roadmap if one starts to fail.

You won't bail out?

If they pose a systemic risk, we'll bail them out.

Elizabeth Warren for VP?

I don't want to get ahead of myself.

Super predator, in the expected formulation where Joe basically baited her on the notion that it was silly

Did some smiley head knodding in agreement with Joe's SP assessment. Was probably fine but let's keep an eye on.

Electability

I've been vetted

Hasn't even begun on the others

Talked about voter turnout, NV caucus being better for Dem turnout than GOP

Emails, you say it's partisan, but is it?

Conflation of court fight which are partisan and what DOJ is doing.

Youth/Young women

She stayed closer than usual to the Teddy formulation:

It's Messed up

Feel like the system failed them

Excited by someone who says well change it all

I remember being that age

Want to meet people where they are

Want to have a real dialogue

Gridlock

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Chuck Todd/MTP Daily

1) Nomination

Not someone who gets ahead of myself.

Got to keep proving it over and over again.

2) Clyburn says you've been more conversational.

- So proud
- Fair observation
- We laid out a lot of policy in the beginning
- I wanted people to know my plans, etc
- Now we have some opportunities to talk about values at stake, breaking down barriers.
- Sense of convergence
- We've laid out the work we want to do.
- Now we can build on that about how we unite the country and have conversations about the future again.

3) Ohio/Bernie NAFTA hit

- Americans are asking who can stop other countries from hurting their workers and do a Manufacturing Renaissance...rest of answer we provided- got in both Ex-Im investments in Ohio and name checked the tire factory that benefitted from the New Markets Tax credit in Sumter.

4) Protestor last night

- Poor choice of words
- Wouldnt' use them today's
- Life's work
- Lifting up children and young people
- Never got the chance they deserved
- School to prison pipeline
- Going to keep being a champion
- Break down the barriers, economic and racism

5) Trump/Supporters are former Trump supporters.

- Too soon to make judgements about this.
- NV Caucuses stat on turnout

6) People say their second choice is Bernie, seems to be an appetite for radical change.

- People are disappointed and feel like they've been let down.

Here at the church in Florence right now and people are FIRED UP. She's using "imagine" to frame the whole speech. Working well.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Feb 24, 2016, at 6:15 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Started the day with an interview with Joe Madison, she called him on our way to SC Strong in North Charleston.

Opened with a PBS story on the wealth gap growing. She talked about her plans and inequality in general. Follow up was about Obama's hesitancy to have targeted efforts, instead focusing on the all boats rise with the tide notion, so she skipped the Obama piece and talked about Clyburn's 10-20-30, her own plans.

Then he played Gwen Carr's comments lasts night, quoted some of her lines including the one about HRC seeking them out, and compared it to Kennedy going to see MLK when he was arrested in Alabama. HRC gave a strong answer about being humbled, being a mother and a grandmother.

Gitmo Q at the end, answer tracked with her statement yesterday.

SC Strong went well. She did some very brief opening remarks, had a couple of the round table participants share their stories, and then we shuffled the press out.

Dropped by the Longshoremen's, she thanked everyone and asked for their vote. Great reception, they were very grateful that she came to the hall.

On the way to the airport we called Rhonda Rawlings for her show.

Rhonda started with minimum wage. HRC stuck to her standard lines, mentioned equal pay, got a follow up on why $12 and defended it well.

College affordability. She said she think debt free public education is achieveable. Covered student debt as well.

Breaking Down Barriers forum with the mothers in Greenville...talked about how amazing it was, then asked about policing. HRC talked about their ability to turn grief into action.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Ended with Obama's legacy.

Alpha Kappa Alpha event went well. She did some of her remarks, some ad libbing. She reprised her town hall Q from last night where she was asked about trust and forgiveness, repeated what she said about the importance of forgiveness and cited Mandela as our greatest example. Worked a rope line at the end for a fair amount of time.

Did two local affiliates before headed off to Sumter. CBS and NBC locals. Talked about the state of the race, why she's in SC, Gitmo, and a quick Q about emails and Benghazi in CBS. NBC asked her about SC, Trust, Trump, Bernie supporters and how to bring them around if she wins, and one interesting question about her unique ability to energize rooms with minorities in them.

We're in Sumter now at Moore College. She's been talking for 45 minutes. Covered it all! Possible impending Q&A...

On Feb 23, 2016, at 9:40 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Mothers of the Movement Event
>
> Here's a summary, but for those of you that didn't watch...it was quite something.
>
> She opened by acknowledging Herb Buhl, who she worked with when she was down here working for CDF in the 1960s. Told a funny story about not knowing how to drive a stick shift and him lending her a manual car.
>
> She briefly told the stories of the mothers and the children they lost.
>
> Guns are the leading cause of death among black men, more than the other leading 9 causes of death combined. There was an audible sigh in the audience.
>
> Talked about Gabby Giffords, and the 9 year old girl shot along with the others that day.
>
> No fly list.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Politics are hard, I know that. But sometimes the hard things are sometimes the things that are most important to do. President Obama wants to make guns a voting issue and I agree completely.

Please welcome these remarkable people who are taking this journey on behalf of all of us.

HRC turned it over to the guests.

Sabrina Fulton: "She walked in as a Presiodental candidate, walked out as a compassionate mother."

No one took notes fort her, she took notes for herself.

Maria Hamilton, mother of Dontre Hamilton, told her story.

Lucia McBath, mother of Jordan Davis.- told her story. I have watched her bring people and countries back into the fold back into the fray, and she has done a good thing.

Gwen Carr- Talked about all the outreach, how HRC came to them. Wondering what the catch was. "There was no catch, she was just genuinely concerned." I endorse her, because she endorsed us first.

Geneva Reed-Veal, Sandra Bland's mom. Did a wonderful rant on the media and how tired she was of them. Go out and vote. We have 9 months to put her in, she's the new baby."There are no secret emails."

Mark Kelly: X percent of children that die from gun violence in the developing world die in the US.

Gabby- Here to talk about Hillary Clinton, who is tough, she is courageous, she will fight to make our families safer. In the WH she will stand up to the gun lobby. Thanks why IU'm voting for Hillary. Speaking is difficult for me but come January I want to say these two words...Madame President.

Standing ovation from the room, someone stood up and yelled "Madame President!" Everyone went nuts.

HRC said thanks to everyone, talked about their courage. I hope this is a movement that lasts, and ended to work a rope line.

At the very end, she briefly spoke to Alex Wagner on the rope line who was there with The Circus. I'm not sure it checked the box for us, but they talked briefly about how amazing the mothers were, what a moving event it was

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Feb 22, 2016, at 2:34 AM, Lorella Praeli <lpraeli@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

HRC met with the United Farm Workers (UFW) and earned their endorsement by the end of the meeting. Julie captured this unexpected moment on video--it was special! We'll be working with UFW to discuss the roll out plan. They've asked their members to hold the news.

- She reiterated her commitment to fight for CIR with a pathway to citizenship; protect and implement DACA and DAPA; and explore other ways to protect undocumented people via executive action ("create new categories").
- She stated support for UFW's legislative proposal to expand overtime pay for farm workers in CA, so overtime is av. after 40 hours/week or 8 hours/day.
- She was asked to help in the dispute between the UFW and CA-based Gerawan Farming. She said she's do everything possible. After the meeting, she had a private conversation with Arturo and expressed caution b/c of campaign.
- She was asked about healthcare for the undocumented community. Stated her support for all undocumented people to be able to buy in the exchange, but acknowledged that most people don't have the resources to afford it. She also said she would work to make the exchanges available to all, including subsidies, but immediately linked it to CIR. Also wants to work with states like CA and the UFW to explore other ways to provide HC
- Re Central American kids, she said government funded legal counsel for UCs and working with El Salvador, Guatemala, and Honduras to take down drug cartels and build the region.
- She was asked if she would appoint Obama to the SCOTUS. She said he would be a very good candidate, but she wouldn't have that power...and he probably wants a normal life. It was a fun exchange bet. her and the farm workers.

On Sun, Feb 21, 2016 at 7:08 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Just met with the farm workers for an hour here in Palo Alto. Very positive experience. I'll let Lorella expand, but from outside the room there was a lot of clapping and cheering, and chanting of Sí Se Peude.

Two SC radio interviews today:

1) We did a repeat with Cynthia Hardy that ended up being a very brief conversation HRC joined in progress about health disparities in communities of color.

2) She did a slightly tougher but ultimately very strong interview with Judi Gatson of 103.1 KISS FM. She asked HRC about her recent comments on not being in this for herself, and said that some doubt that. The answer was very strong, and invoked a little reflection on sexism. She asked about youth, but the framing was interesting, which was that BdB and Eric Garner's mom endorse, but children of BdB and Eric Garner's sister do not. The other question most of note was Judi observing that she hears people in the community say that HRC embraces Obama only to pander to the AfAm population. Interesting that that broke through, (Stephanie if you talked to her I'd be curious to hear more about how often she's hearing that), HRC's answer was good, she said that Senator Sanders claiming that was offensive, that she nominated him at the convention, campaigned for him, worked for him for 4 years, and that it "affects" her "personally" to hear Sanders and his supporters say that stuff.

Finance event in Atherton was largely uneventful. She did take questions. She dinged Uber when talking about the Kalamazoo shooter, which thrilled many in the audience here in Silicon Valley, I'm sure. No encryption questions.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

One more finance event and then we're off to LA to spend the night.

On Feb 20, 2016, at 11:43 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Good live interview with Univision local this morning. Bernie was supposed to be on right after us but bailed late last night. She did her pitch, talked about immigration, no fireworks.

Left there and dos two back of house visits, Caesars and Harrah's. Bernie was at Harrah's immediately before us, stayed 5 minutes and left. We spent about 25 shaking hands and telling people where to caucus.

Left there and went to 2 caucus sites, the second of which she's working the (long) line at as we speak.

The Bernie folks are definitely here, but our organizers tell us these are very strong locations for us.

On Feb 19, 2016, at 3:42 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

We visited the home of Vicki Early, a retired California utility company employee who moved to Nevada to buy her first home, and installed solar panels on the roof, which she could afford with the Public Utility Commission offsets on her fixed income until they got rolled back. She and her boyfriend Tyrone showed HRC the panels in the back yard and told her story. HRC had the press come in closer to listen and then dos brief remarks of her own on the importance of this issue for people like Vicki. Pretty great stuff.

Next we went to Youthbuild, an organization with a Nevada chapter that builds houses for Habitat for Humanity. We walked through a big warehouse where HRC individually met about 15 workers. She was intrigued by how most of them found the place, which was through Craigslist, and probed them on what they were learning and what they wanted to do next. Most wanted to continue in the building trades. She spoke briefly, and invited the Youthbuild and Habitat folks to speak as well.

We've also squeezed in two SC radio interviews. Both went well, talked about the Clyburn's endorsement, support for President Obama, her plans on college affordability.

Headed to the town hall with high school students now.

On Feb 19, 2016, at 1:54 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Women and Families Roundtable:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Very engaging discussion, topics ranged from early childhood education to food deserts to Flint. HRC brought up Flint proactively, and a woman stood up and said that she had family there, appreciated HRC saying that, her work there, and that her assessment was exactly right. Audience was diverse across the board, lots of millennials and lots of young people who work for various NGOs and advocacy groups with a lot of very good questions and passionate comments. At the end HRC commented on her life's work, figuring out how to make difference in people's lives as opposed to promising them the moon, and making sure lives are better when you're done than when you started. Wasn't too hot but poignant and noticeable following 45 minutes of discussing the importance of reading to your children every day.

We're now going to divert course and make a pit stop at a woman's house who has been affected by the Nevada Public Utility Commissions retroactive rate changes on people selling solar back to the grid. Pool is with us.

On Feb 12, 2016, at 4:24 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Woke up in Milwaukee this morning and did a fundraiser at Harbor House. Very pretty setting just outside of downtown on a partially frozen bright blue Lake Michigan. She gave a pretty standard stump, no Qs, and we headed out.

South Carolina was quite something. Good crowd of about 450/500 at Denmark-Olar Elementary School (home of the Vikings). HRC stuck largely to her remarks and outlined her $125 billion plan to improve underserved communities, and took questions on just about everything: social security, health care multiple times, body cameras, Flint, homeless vets, Trump, student loans, who she's pick for VP, and a little girl who gave her a drawing that said on it: "I'm not bossy I have leadership skills." It was a very engaged, high-energy affair.

Following the town hall and a long ropeline, we did 2 TV stand ups and a print interview. Discussion in both revolved around race relations, the state of the race, and education, which HRC discussed at length in a dilapidated older locker room with paint people off the walls in the background.

Our print interviewer, Princess Williams, was really impressive. She won an award last year for best student journalist in a college under 5000 students from the South Carolina Press Association. She was nervous but did a great job, asked HRC about education, what we can't do beyond government programs to help level the playing field, attracting young voters, and what life is like off the campaign trail.

We're in the air now headed back north to St. Paul for the Humphrey-Mondale Dinner.

On Tue, Feb 9, 2016 at 12:32 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Two more things to add:

We did a radio interview with Greg and the morning buzz. Like the first local NH hit this morning, it was all about

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

NH and allowed her to talk about how grateful she is to the people here.

Also just did a 10 minute satellite hit with Al Sharpton. They talked about heading to Nevada and her strategy there, he asked her how she would distinguish he civil rights record, then Flint, millennial women, voting rights, and a question about Cruz's comments on Flint and Katrina both being cities with crisis and two very liberal mayors. She didn't engage most of the answer and at the end said "that's not the world I live in, and not the world I'd govern as President."

Strong interview in substance and tone.

Transcripts to follow.

On Tue, Feb 9, 2016 at 9:50 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

We made an impromptu stop at Dunkin Donuts. Press came in briefly, took some photos of HRC taking some photos, and departed. We stayed and ordered some food, most of which was stolen from us and consumed in the limo as I understand it. We did manage some coffees in the staff van, which was game changing.

Then off to Dover. Another great showing by the organizing team, as well as by Carly Fiorina's husband, who greeted the Secretary enthusiastically. You'd never know his wife calls for HRC's imprisonment on a daily basis.

Just got back to Manchester.

On Feb 9, 2016, at 7:35 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Happy Election Day!

We just went to the Ward 10 polling location at Parker Varney School in Manchester.

HRC arrived to volunteers chanting "I believe that she will win!" and worked the crowd. She shook about 75 hands and took lots of photos, and then did an impromptu stand up with the morning show anchors. They asked her about how she's feeling and expectations, she just talked about how excited she was to be out talking to people and her love for New Hampshire.

We took a few more photos and talked to WMUR for a few minutes, which will air at noon.

Now we're in Nashua now headed to another location and on the phone live with Mike Pomp of WTSN radio. Good conversation, she's talking about her experiences up here, basically a perfect Election Day drive time interview.

More to come.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Feb 8, 2016, at 5:33 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

HRC and WJC stopped by Chez Vachon for breakfast. Nice greasy spoon with a French Canadian twist. HRC and WJC worked the tables, ran into some longtime supporters, took a lot of selfies. President Clinton was excited to see his photo still on the wall from when he visited last.

Dan O'Neil, former Dodd and O'Malley supporter but '92 Clinton supporter joined them for omelettes. Following breakfast, some more selfie-taking ensued as did a conversation with a couple of vets. Restaurant felt overwhelmingly supportive.

We went back to the hotel and taped 6 TV interviews with local and Boston affiliates. Lots about the state of the race here and the weather. Most asked about Warren which she handled well, a couple of transcripts questions and a good exchange with FOX on sexism in politics.

From there we went to Manchester Community College. Crowd of about 1100, she did a few things differently, including calling Bernie out for accepting DSCC money that came in part from Wall Street.

We taped Rachel Maddow after the event. It opened with the staffing question and then covered the waterfront...Flint, trust, attacks, transcripts. We let it go so Rachel would spend more time on the positive which she did.

After Maddow we went to the Velcro factory. She went table to table in their cafeteria which looked like a Johnny Rockets, shaking hands, sometimes sitting down for brief conversations. Press pool got some good stuff.

We're now back at the Radisson waiting to depart for WMUR where we'll do a quick live hit on WMUR, she'll simply make a one minute pitch to voters direct to camera.

On Feb 7, 2016, at 5:29 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Flint was quite moving. When we walked in the church and the water fountains were covered and marked "out of order," all we've read and seen in the news suddenly became much more real.

HRC met with mayor and an usher briefly, and she said that she fight to keep the lights from dimming on this.

The crowd was extraordinarily supportive. Her remarks were brief (12/15) but strong, with powerful response.

Afterwards she took photos, she did a very quick local standup in the sanctuary (all about Flint), met with a group of local pastors and went into the stakeholders/electeds meeting with the mayor.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On the way to the airport we called the editor of the National Newspaper Association, quick 5 minute interview on the importance of Flint and their being many other Flints. Transcript to follow.

Descending back into NH now, going to do an OTR at the Puritan Backroom (!!).

--

Lorella Praeli

National Director of Latino Outreach || Hillary for America

203.417.1436

@lorellapraeli

--

Josh Schwerin
Spokesman, Deputy Director of Rapid Response
Hillary for America
@JoshSchwerin

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Neera Tanden" <ntanden@americanprogress.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/23/2014 8:14:08 PM
Subject:	Peter Baker

Called me on Sotu, then seemed to go into your role. I was sycophantically glowing but I couldn't really get a read of what he was doing.

do you have time for a call this weekend?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/10/2015 2:45:53 PM
Subject:	Re: Seemed to go well today

I mean, they will go after the deleting of the private emails...but at some point, this just will have to run out of steam, especially as they see minimal electoral consequence.

On another note, I told Mary Pat we were severing today, she may try to get a hold of you (if she hasn't already).

On Tue, Mar 10, 2015 at 9:42 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> They will go after the server but that takes us back to Benghazi which is good for us.
>
> On Mar 10, 2015 5:31 PM, "Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > I don't know how the story advances. So that's good.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jeff Harris" <jeff@progressiveaccountability.org>
To:	"big campaign" <bigcampaign@googlegroups.com>
Date:	9/3/2008 5:22:20 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] MCCAIN CAMPAIGN GRUMBLES ABOUT MEDIA FACT-CHECKING
Attachments:	Wasilla earmarks.doc Bridge to Nowhere Flip-Flop.doc

MCCAIN CAMPAIGN GRUMBLES ABOUT MEDIA FACT-CHECKING

Realizing that the facts were not on their side, the McCain campaign has taken to attacking the media for reporting facts.

See Attached Documents on Media Fact-Checking McCain Campaign*

McCain Campaign Attacks Media for Reporting

McCain Campaign Pulls Interview From CNN After Spokesman Can't Answer Honest Question "According to CNN , Republican presidential nominee Sen. John McCain (Ariz.) pulled out of a scheduled interview with the network after a segment with Campbell Brown and a top McCain spokesman Monday night in which Brown asked for examples of a foreign-policy decision made by Republican vice president pick Sarah Palin." [Broadcasting Cable 9/2/08]

McCain Campaign Attacks New York Times "While the press scrambles to report on the process by which Governor Palin was offered the second spot on the Republican ticket, New York Times reporter Elisabeth Bumiller has opted instead to make up her own version of events." [Michael Goldfarb 9/02/08]

McCain Spokesman Claims ABC Reporter is a Liar "Apparently Tapper would not comment on how he managed to print a story that had absolutely no basis in fact." [Tucker Bounds 9/02/08]

Bridge to Nowhere and Pork Fighting a Myth - Palin and McCain Have Procured Earmarks.

Palin Claims to be a Maverick Against Pork, But Received $27 Million in Earmarks "Alaska Gov. Sarah Palin employed a lobbying firm to secure almost $27 million in federal earmarks for a town of 6,700 residents while she was its mayor, according to an analysis by an independent government watchdog group." [Washington Post 9/02/08]

Palin Falsely Claims She Always Opposed 'Bridge to Nowhere' "While running for governor in 2006, though, Palin backed federal funding for the infamous bridge, which McCain helped make a symbol of pork barrel excess." [Ken Dilanian 9/02/08]

Palin Sported Shirt in Support of 'Bridge to Nowhere'

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Megan Rouse" <meganrouse@gmail.com>
Date:	3/16/2014 12:35:27 PM
Subject:	Re: race results

Super.

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

> On Mar 16, 2014, at 4:31 PM, Megan Rouse <meganrouse@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> I ran my first timed 5k today. 36:03. My goal was under 40 so I am happy.
>
> That puts me 91st in my age group (out of 255)
> 417th of all females (out of 1,0130) > and 864th overall (out of 1,771)
>
>
>
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Gene Karpinski, League of Conservation Voters" <kyla_lawrence@lcv.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	4/30/2010 9:21:00 AM
Subject:	LCV 40th Anniversary Dinner on June 9th

Please join
Gene Karpinski, LCV President,
Winsome McIntosh, and The Honorable Timothy E. Wirth and Wren W. Wirth, Dinner Chairs
for

League of Conservation Voters
40th Anniversary Dinner

Celebrating 40 years of turning environmental values into national priorities

Wednesday, June 9, 2010
East Hall
Union Station
Washington, D.C.

Featured Speakers
United States Senator John Kerry
United States Representative Michael N. Castle

LCV Environmental Leadership Award Recipients
John 'Jay' Harris, IV in memoriam
John R. Hunting
Alida R. Messinger
Laura Turner Seydel
Ted Turner

5:45p.m. – Registration
6:00p.m. – Reception
7:00p.m. – Dinner and Program

For more information or seating requests, contact Kyla Lawrence at (202) 454-4603 or kyla_lawrence@lcv.org www.lcv.org/40thanniversarydinner

League of Conservation Voters
Extends Our Special Thanks to Our Benefit Committee Members

40th Anniversay Sponsors - Tom and Sonya Campion, Jeremy and Hannelore Grantham, John Hunting, Alida Messinger, Reuben Munger, Scott A. Nathan and Laura DeBonis, Larry and Wendy Rockefeller, Lynde B. Uihlein - Platinum Sponsors - Paul Brainerd, Patricia Bauman, Lawrence H. Linden, Vicki and Roger Sant, Joan Tweedy, William B. Wiener, Jr. Foundation* - Gold Sponsors - Samuel Bleicher, Wade Greene, Rampa R. Hormel, Cindy Horn, Fred Krupp, Environmental Defense Fund*, Peter Mandelstam, Thomas and Cynthia Secunda, Dan Tishman, Peter Wege - Bronze Sponsors - Dave Alberswerth and Cary Ridder, The Alliance for Climate Protection*, American Association for Justice PAC, Analyst Institute, Thomas Barron, Anne Bartley, Frances Beinecke, Natural Resources Defense Council*, Sandy Buffett, Conservation Voters New Mexico, Catalist, Harriett Crosby, The Curtis and Edith Munson Foundation*, David Doniger and Lisa Jorgenson, Dow Lohnes Government Strategies, Steve Elmendorf, The Federation of State Conservation Voter Leagues, George Frampton, Jane Smith Turner Foundation*, Eric and Sharapat Kessler, George Martin, Cynthia and David McGrath, Winsome McIntosh*, Bill and Sally Meadows, The Mellman Group, Michigan League of Conservation Voters, Todd and Elisabeth Miranowski, Nevada Conservation League, Dianne and David Stern, Maryanne Tagney Jones, Marty and Lee Talbott, The Honorable and Mrs. Russell E. Train, United Nations Foundation*, Trip Van Noppen, Earthjustice*, Doug Walker, Marshall Weinberg, John H. T. Wilson - Environmental Majority Council - America Votes,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Marcia Aronoff, Joel Bradshaw, Conservation Voters of South Carolina, M + R Strategic Services, Montana Conservation Voters, Moxie Media, Jorge Mursuli, New Partners, Rafe Pomerance, Jr., William Roberts, Andrew Sharpless

*Contributor to LCV Education Fund

To unsubscribe, click here.

To Unsubscribe Click Here

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Ben Kobren" <benkobren@gmail.com>
Date:	8/11/2015 11:07:58 AM
Subject:	RE: post-KXL option memo

I'm good with this. Milia, can you give to John P to review?

From: Ben Kobren [mailto:benkobren@gmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, August 6, 2015 6:08 PM
To: Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Pete Ogden <progden@gmail.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com >; Corey Ciorciari <cciorciari@hillaryclinton.com >; Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: Re: post-KXL option memo

We now have an updated ITC/PTC response reflecting a recent conversation Pete had with LCV. Please use this version when reviewing. Thank you.

On Thu, Aug 6, 2015 at 5:26 PM, Ben Kobren <benkobren@gmail.com > wrote:

> John and Jake,
>
> Attached is the updated LCV questionnaire with modified Arctic language (Q.8).
>
> On Thu, Aug 6, 2015 at 3:51 PM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Thanks guys. It sounds like we are in a holding pattern again on KXL. That said, I agree with the approach in the memo and think we should deploy it at the right time.
> >
> > Three things:
> >
> > 1. I believe we should establish our Arctic position soon. I agree with the approach in the memo and would just add at the front "Based on what I know now…." This would give her some flexibility later.
> >
> > 2. I'd like John to take a close look at our revised LCV questionnaire. Can one of you send it to him, with the modified Arctic language?
> >
> > 3. How are we looking on updating the CEC factsheet?
> >
> > Thanks,
> > Jake
> >
> > From: Pete Ogden [mailto:progden@gmail.com]
> > Sent: Thursday, August 6, 2015 1:32 PM
> > To: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >
> > Cc: Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com >; Ben Kobren <benkobren@gmail.com >; Corey Ciorciari <cciorciari@hillaryclinton.com >; Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com >
> > Subject: post-KXL option memo
> >
> > At Jake's request, we have refreshed here the post-KXL decision options memo and added an additional option calling for an end to offshore drilling in the Arctic (attached). Thanks.
> >
> > --Pete

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jeremy Funk" <funk@americansunitedforchange.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 7/21/2009 9:31:12 AM
Subject: [big campaign] The Party of NO's Sick View on Health Care Reform

AMERICANS UNITED FOR CHANGE

www.americansunitedforchange.org

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE CONTACT: Jeremy Funk, 202-470-5878
DATE: July 21, 2009 Lauren Weiner, 202-470-5870

The GOP Party of NO's Sick View on Health Care Reform: Forget the Tens of Thousands of Americans Losing Their Health Coverage Every Month, There's Political Points to Be Scored Here

"If we're able to stop Obama on this it will be his Waterloo. It will break him." – U.S. Senator Jim DeMint (R-SC)

"Engage In Every Activity" To Slow Down Health Care Reform -- Internal RNC Memo

"This is no time to pull punches. Go for the kill." -- Bill Kristol, The Weekly Standard

[SOURCE: Washington Post, 7/21/09]

Tom McMahon, Acting Executive Director, Americans United for Change: "Let's take the GOP's disingenuous advice for a moment, 'slow things down' and look what's happening here. Literally tens of thousands of Americans each and every month are joining the already 47 million who have absolutely no health insurance. Unwilling to let another year go by as 2.3 million Americans lose their coverage and exploding health care costs keep our economy pinned down, the President has reached out to both parties in Congress and asked for reform that guarantees all Americans access to quality and affordable health care. And all the Party of NO can do in response is lick their chops at the thought of scoring political points and derailing his Presidency. That's sick. Have they offered any alternative health care plan of their own? Of course not. They're perfectly happy to 'slow down' reform another 15 years as long as those big insurance checks keep coming in."

Jeremy J. Funk
Communications Director, Americans United for Change
Office: 202.470.5878

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Cell: 605.366.3654
funk@americansunitedforchange.org
www.AmericansUnitedforChange.org

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jesse Ferguson" <jferguson@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Christina Reynolds" <creynolds@gpg.com>
Date: 4/12/2015 3:24:29 PM
Subject: Re: CNN | Metrics

any chance of getting an updated version of this?

On Sun, Apr 12, 2015 at 7:08 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@gpg.com> wrote:

> Per Teddy, he recommends using public figures—here's a few that should be kosher.
>
> Hillary's announcement tweet was viewed over 3 million times in one hour, per Twitter.
> At peak this afternoon, 7,000 tweets per minute mentioned Clinton
> As of 7:05, the original tweet has been retweeted 79,000 times.
> On Facebook (as of 7:05), 976,486 views of the video with 25,803 shares
>
> ---
>
> From: Ian Sams <isams@hillaryclinton.com>
> Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 at 5:12 PM
> To: Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
> Cc: Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com>, "hrcrapid@googlegroups.com" <hrcrapid@googlegroups.com>, Katie Dowd <katie.w.dowd@gmail.com>
> Subject: Re: CNN | Metrics
>
> Alex Seitz-Wald @aseitzwald
> Hillary Clinton's announcement tweet was viewed over 3 million times in one hour, per @ twitter .
>
> Alex Seitz-Wald @aseitzwald
> There were 7,000 Tweets per minute mentioning Clinton at peak this afternoon, per @ twitter .
>
> On Sun, Apr 12, 2015 at 4:43 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com> wrote:
>
> > I agree, good rule.
> >
> > Can someone from digital just compile what's known and any color that might go well with it?
> >
> > ---
> >
> > From: Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com>
> > Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 at 4:39 PM
> > To: NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
> > Cc: "hrcrapid@googlegroups.com" <hrcrapid@googlegroups.com>, Katie Dowd <katie.w.dowd@gmail.com>
> > Subject: Re: CNN | Metrics
> > Resent-From: NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
> >
> > this is a press decision, but i would be against giving out anything that is not otherwise public, like money or signups. if we want to address that stuff at all, would just say something generic about how donations and volunteer signups are flying in, and not give numbers.
> >
> > stats like RTs, Facebook likes, video views on Facebook, etc., which are public anyway, can of course be shared. we can compile if helpful.
> >
> > On Sun, Apr 12, 2015 at 4:23 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com> wrote:
> >
> > > What do we have other than Twitter likes?
> > >
> > > ---
> > >
> > > From: Brian Stelter <bstelter@gmail.com>
> > > Date: Sunday, April 12, 2015 at 3:59 PM
> > > To: NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
> > > Subject: Any metrics for launch yet? Anything I can share on CNN?
> > >
> > > --Brian
> > >
> > > --
> > > You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
> > > To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
> > > To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To view this discussion on the web visit https://groups.google.com/d/msgid/hrcrapid/D1504C40.119C54%25nmerrill%40hrcoffice.com.
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .

To view this discussion on the web visit https://groups.google.com/d/msgid/hrcrapid/D15050A8.119CE6%25nmerrill%40hrcoffice.com.

For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
Ian Sams | (423) 915-6592

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
To view this discussion on the web visit https://groups.google.com/d/msgid/hrcrapid/CABd81JKAJNJMPCb5XmESrqwuCg1eCF77f%2BO8kMP3cKS6JN%2Bbig%40mail.gmail.com.
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .

To view this discussion on the web visit https://groups.google.com/d/msgid/hrcrapid/D1505D5C.511E8%25creynolds%40gpg.com.

For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

--

Jesse F. Ferguson
Deputy National Press Secretary and Senior Spokesman
Hillary for America
@JesseFFerguson
Gchat: Jfferg

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRapid" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrapid+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrapid@googlegroups.com .
To view this discussion on the web visit https://groups.google.com/d/msgid/hrcrapid/CAJkCx1_7-5ZfyCrqpreXEev8kOpc9OKFYC_P%3D%2BrC52TjOApeiQ%40mail.gmail.com.
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/d/optout .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Joel Benenson" <jbenenson@bsgco.com>
Date: 3/24/2015 2:58:43 AM
Subject: Re: Toner Prize update

You think I should wait to have my second cup of coffee before I sound like Phillipe?

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

On Mar 24, 2015, at 9:11 AM, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com > wrote:

Before we bitch too much let's look and see if they have covered the award event.

From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, March 24, 2015 7:38 AM
To: Jim Margolis
Cc: Kristina Schake; John Anzalone; Jen Palmieri; Jake Sullivan; Joel Benenson; Robby; Dan Schwerin; Mandy Grunwald; Huma Abedin; Cheryl Mills n; Nick Merrill
Subject: Re: Toner Prize update

To add to NYT bitch file: not 1/2 column inch in paper on this award speech in honor of their reporter or her CAP appearance. I guess they didn't have it from "four senior government sources" so there was no news value.

On Mar 23, 2015 10:45 PM, "Margolis, Jim" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com > wrote:
Excellent
Well done everyone

Jim Margolis
Sent from my iPhone.
Please excuse typos.

On Mar 23, 2015, at 3:43 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com > wrote:

Speech was good. She throttled off the funny a little too early I think, they were hungry for more, but in the end it didn't matter. Good on humor, good on a light nudge for accountability, and good on substance.

She had no plans to sit but wanted to see the Toner kids present. She sat again after remarks and connected with most of the beat folks as Huma noted below along with Jonathan Martin, Betsy Fischer, Laura Meckler, and a few others. The Carolyn Ryan conversation was awkward but appreciated by Carolyn. She asked her a few questions about health care and the courts. Was fine.

The best part is that HRC was squarely in the mindset of very glad she did it, and glad she stayed and mingled. It was a good setting for it.

A little griping about her not taking questions (Biden spoke last year and also did not take Qs), including Dan Balz jokingly offering to yield his time for her to take some questions during his remarks. But I think it was fine, especially because it was truly what the family wanted.

All in a all and very good evening.

Nick

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Mar 23, 2015, at 9:29 PM, Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com > wrote:

Will let Nick and Dan give more color but it appears as though her speech was well-received by both guests and reporters in the room. They appreciated that she was funny and several people said they were impressed she addressed the elephant in the room and was self-deprecating. Andrea mitchell, laura meckler, jon allen, anne gearan, phil rucker, karen tumulty in unison agreed that she did the right thing and appreciated that she "acknowledged" that she has a problematic relationship with the press. Nick, hrc and I all had uncomfortable exchanges with Carolyn Ryan. Carl Hulse said some NYT staff was betting that she would cancel her appearance tonight.
Also, we noted at least one young tracker. And she was audio taped the entire mix and mingle by amy chozick who may as well have been sitting in her lap....

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Anna James" <aj66@nyu.edu>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> "Bjorklund, Victoria B" <vbjorklund@stblaw.com> "Reynoso, Jennifer" <jreynoso@stblaw.com>
Date:	11/4/2011 10:08:40 AM
Subject:

Hello John, Cheryl, Victoria and Jennifer - Although I continue to respond to people's sharing of their concerns about the Foundation and/or my father's world by telling them that 1) I hope they will share their experiences/ concerns/hopes/fears with Victoria and her team candidly and 2) that it is critical that as we move to professionalize the Foundation for the future that professionalism starts with this process - people continue to share things with me. Although I continue to not respond or engage beyond what I outlined above, I do think - and my mother strongly agreed as a lawyer - that I should pass along to you Victoria and your team and to you John and Cheryl the below as more information (factual or suspected or imagined). Particularly in advance of what I understand will be an intermediate conversation with Doug tomorrow. I continue to want - and to try - to disintermediate myself from this muddle, edify the corporate audit and existential process we are in - while also being a responsible board member, daughter and person.
In that vein, I was told or experienced the following since we had our meeting last week Victoria:

- today that Doug reached out to someone at Harry Walker (who represents my father on all speaking arrangements), to ask for a full list of all his speeches, how much he was paid for each speech, and told the contact person at Harry Walker that all speeches should now go through him, not Terry Krinivic (the scheduler)
- that Ilya physically saw/caught Justin a couple of days ago reading his bberry and loading the same spyware onto his computer that he loaded onto Bari's computer
- a secret service agent told Marc (my husband) that Justin had asked another secret service agent to lie about the parking pass absurdity [we can talk about this really ridiculous anecdote offline]
- multiple people shared with me how upset they were at hearing how Justin referred to my father in the last week - in very derogatory ways widely sadly
- Oscar told my father he knows Justin reads his emails
- my father was told today of explicit examples at CGI of Doug/ Teneo pushing for - and receiving - free memberships - and of multiple examples of Teneo 'hustling' business at CGI - and of people now having quit at CGI
- that Doug told Jon Davidson he was never going to forgive him for not reporting that Dad met with John (ie you John) on Sunday and that how could Jon forget who he really worked for
- Doug told Terry Krinivic she would never work again in this town if she didn't back him up on everything
- Ilya believes Hannah and Justin have taken significant sums of money from my parents personally - some in expenses - cars, etc. - and others directly

As ever, on some of the above I am sure there are three sides as my grandmother would say - his, hers and the truth. On others, it seems more clear. All of it makes me very sad. Thank you all for your help. The only people I am sharing the above with are you, my mother and my father. Please let me know as ever if you have any questions or advice.
Thank you,
Chelsea

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Josh Steiner \(BLOOMBERG/ 731 LEX -\)" <jlsteiner@bloomberg.net>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com sterntd@state.gov
Date:	11/13/2014 4:38:04 PM
Subject:	US/China

Seems like a truly significant and impressive agreement that must have taken incredible effort and skill to complete. Really good news for the world. Literally.

And, at a time when people are constantly looking for reasons to feel cynical about government, this is a terrific antidote.

Many thanks and hope you're both well.

Joshua L. Steiner
jlsteiner@bloomberg.net

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	robbymook@gmail.com
To:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "David Plouffe" <daplouffe@icloud.com>
Date:	10/26/2014 8:15:42 AM
Subject:	Status memo.pdf
Attachments:	Status memo.pdf

Teddy's memo is attached.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Brian Deese" <Brian_C_Deese@who.eop.gov>
Date:	12/12/2015 5:46:34 AM
Subject:	Bring it home

Sounds like it will close. Your kids will live in a crazy world but a little less crazy because of your efforts. Congrats.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Gene Karpinski, League of Conservation Voters" <feedback@lcv.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 8/2/2010 4:31:30 AM
Subject: DEADLINE: 12 hours left to double your impact

LEAGUE OF CONSERVATION VOTERS

Dear John,

The Senate is facing another critical environmental decision right now.

The Senate is debating legislation that responds to the oil spill catastrophe in the Gulf of Mexico. While this bill is no substitute for action on a comprehensive clean energy and climate bill, it would help ensure companies like BP are held fully accountable, prevent future oil spill catastrophes, protect our nation's natural heritage, and curb the free reign the oil and gas industries have enjoyed for far too long

Big Oil's army of lobbyists is fighting this bill hard – they and their cronies in Congress want taxpayers to foot the bill for the disaster in the Gulf.

There are only 12 hours left before the matching gift offer expires and we haven't heard from you yet.

Don't let Big Oil off the hook.

Give by midnight TONIGHT and every dollar will be doubled >>

The Senate plans to vote this week – this is the moment when our calls, Hill visits, online and TV advertising, and grassroots outreach are the most effective. And for the next 12 hours, your support will go twice as far to get the message through:

Hurry – the matching gift offer expires at midnight tonight! Give now and your gift will be automatically doubled by a generous donor as furious as you.

But as Big Oil ramps up its efforts, we can only be as aggressive in our response as our resources allow.

John, I know you're furious with the spineless Senators who caved to Big Oil's money and influence.

This is your chance to stand up against Big Oil. This is the most effective way you can fight back and help put an end to our dangerous addiction to oil. This is just the start – with Election Day a little more than 90 days away, we need every resource at our disposal to beat back Big Oil and Dirty Coal's millions.

Won't you stand up against Big Oil and Dirty Coal? Every dollar you give before MIDNIGHT TONIGHT will go twice as far to support our tireless efforts to defeat those responsible for last month's setback and ensure pro-environment leaders win in November.

If you still believe in a clean energy future, join with us to keep the pressure on Congress to stay strong in the face of Big Oil's assault on our environment.

Thank you for your support. We can't do this without you.

Sincerely,

Gene Karpinski
League of Conservation Voters

To Unsubscribe Click Here

POWERED BY blackbaud nonprofit software

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: robbymook@gmail.com
To: "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
Date: 1/7/2015 1:00:37 AM
Subject: Re: Additional Names -- Policy

Wally is outstanding. I believe he got a senate confirmed job in treasury though.
Jason also great. Jake I can have someon feel him out if you need. I agree w her I think he's trying to focus on MD. Others might be better to go to first but he's great to have on the table.

On Jan 7, 2015, at 7:49 AM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:

Jake

Take a look.

(John - one of these people is at CAP)

cdm
---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Danielle C. Gray <danielle.gray@gmail.com >
Date: Wed, Jan 7, 2015 at 7:45 AM
Subject: Additional Names -- Policy
To: Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >

Here are a few thoughts on great policy talent, to go along with Comms/Press names I gave you. All could be day to day policy director or dep policy director material.

David Zikusoka -- he's about 32, Harvard grad, worked on '07-'08 policy staff of Obama campaign doing domestic policy, foreign policy staffer for Biden, and now at DoD. Ugandan parents. Ziggy is incredibly smart, hard working and a delight to be around. Jake Sullivan should know him well (he worked for Jake when he was with Biden).

Wally Adeyamo -- he's about Ziggy's age, maybe a few years older. Yale law. Worked for Geithner and Neil Wolin at Treasury, CFPB, and I'm not sure where in Admin he is now but could track him down. Whip smart, serious, has management expertise so could run policy process. I believe he has worked on campaigns (maybe Edwards?) in past.

I would guess that both Ziggy and Wally would be very interested if role was senior enough. Three other people who might be good, though perhaps harder to pull from what they are doing now:

Jason Green -- Yale Law, about 34, former Obama campaign staff, White House counsel's office, now running a startup. Very interested in long term career in politics in Maryland.

Michelle Jawando -- former Gillibrand legislative director. Now VP for Legal Policy at CAP.

Deirdre Henry Spires -- superstar former senate finance committee staffer when Baucus was chair, she was point on everything from tax policy to unemployment to health care. Jason Furman and I tried to get her high ranking assistant secretary post at DOL when she left senate. I think she maybe took something at HHS with Sylvia. Very talented. She's about 40, with family, so may be tougher. But she is great.

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Don Gips" <Don.Gips@Level3.com>
	"Melody Barnes" <mbarnes@barackobama.com>
	"Lisa Brown" <lisabrown3660@gmail.com>
	"Carol Browner" <cbrowner@thealbrightgroupllc.com>
	"Todd Stern" <Todd.Stern@wilmerhale.com>
Date:	10/20/2008 6:06:33 AM
Subject:	Fwd: FW: Energy Policy - Would You Like Some Help?
Attachments:	David Fleischaker Resume.doc

He's really good and a little out of the box for us. Worth using in one capacity or another.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: John Podesta <jpodesta@americanprogress.org>
Date: Mon, Oct 20, 2008 at 1:03 PM
Subject: FW: Energy Policy - Would You Like Some Help?
To: john.podesta@gmail.com

John Podesta
Center for American Progress
202-682-1611
Join the virtual march

_____
From: David S. Fleischaker [mailto:david@jolen.com]
Sent: Sunday, October 19, 2008 11:53 PM
To: John Podesta
Subject: Energy Policy - Would You Like Some Help?

John,

If you would like help on the transition team for energy matters I would be happy to help out. I have attached my resume.

Washington generally regards Oklahoma as a black hole when it comes to alternative energy. We're seen as part of the old guard, an oil and gas state, enemies of alternative energy initiatives and hostile to concerns about global warming. Our Congressional delegation leaves that impression, no doubt.

The truth is more layered. True, we are the 3rd largest domestic producer of natural gas and the 5th largest producer of domestic oil. I know both industries well. I also know the dangers to national security, the economy and the environment of an energy policy of more of the same. Consequently, the focus of my efforts as the Secretary of Energy for the last 5 years has been to introduce alternative, sustainable energy solutions in Oklahoma, to build public acceptance and legislative support for a new course.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

We have been remarkably successful. Some of the highlights, we have Authored and passed legislation to establish a $40 million Oklahoma Bioenergy Center to develop both feedstock (cellulosic) and conversion technologies for biofuels. The OBC currently has collaborations with Oakridge, Idaho National Lab, Abengoa, Ceres Inc and has established a 1000 acre switchgrass farm;

Established cost sharing formulas across the Southwest Power Pool (FERC approved) to facilitate the build out of electric transmission to 40,000 +/-megawatts of wind power in western Oklahoma, western Kansas and the Texas Panhandle;
Initiated a Demand Side Management rule making so that the electric utilities understand that their duty to promote efficiency, as well as to provide electricity safely and reliably;
Established task forces on CO2 sequestration management, promulgation of new statewide efficiency standards, conversion of government fleets to alternative fuels;
Established a state agency to manage trading in carbon credits.

At the regional and national level, I served as the Governor's representative to the Western Governor's Association (WGA) where I co-chaired the Alternative Transportation Fuels Task Force (report issued in January 2008) and co-chair the WGA Transportation Fuels Council. I am Governor's representative on the Governors' Ethanol Coalition, the Governors' Wind Coalition as well as other groups (see resume).

As for policy, the common argument is that we need to do everything. We can't. I would identify those areas where we get the most leverage, where federal government initiatives can make a difference, including some likely to yield near term results. A sample of four areas on which the US should concentrate are vehicle fuel efficiency (lowest hanging fruit and the only way to really dent oil imports in the short term); build out of a smart, fully integrated national electricity transmission infrastructure (enabling the more efficient use of generation capacity); development of advanced battery technology (the key to deep market penetration of PEHV and ultimately the full use of our wind power); development of advanced, affordable solar technology and deployment to the residential and commercial sectors (moving that load off the grid).

I am leaving office in mid-December to return to the private sector. I am joining others in a new venture to invest primarily in the alternative energy sector, However, if I can be of help, let me know.

All the best,

David

David S. Fleischaker
Secretary of Energy
State of Oklahoma

100 N. Broadway

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Suite 2460
Oklahoma City, Oklahoma 73102

405-235-8444 (w)
405-812-4556 (c)
405-235-8448 (f)
Email: david@jolen.com

Sarah Ferguson
Administrative Assistant

405-235-8444 ext. 11
Email: sarah@jolen.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Denise Bailey" <dbailey@knox.edu>
To:	"Trustees at Knox" <trustees@knox.edu>
Date:	1/23/2015 6:51:33 AM
Subject:	TKS Online

Dear Trustees,

Here is a link to this week's issue of The Knox Student: http://www.theknoxstudent.com/

Have a good weekend.
Denise

DENISE BAILEY
Executive Assistant to the President

Knox College
Office of the President | Old Main, Room 109
309-341-7211 | Fax: 309-341-7856
www.knox.edu

To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to trustees-user+unsubscribe@knox.edu.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Congressman John Garamendi" <info@garamendi.org>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 9/7/2015 6:07:01 AM
Subject: Happy Labor Day - Honoring Working Families

Dear Friends,

From my family to yours, Happy Labor Day!

Today we celebrate and honor the many men and women who fought the long struggle for better working conditions and fairer wages and benefits in our country. We must never forget the countless Americans who risked their livelihoods, and sometimes even their lives, to make the American Dream accessible to the many and not a privilege of the few. We stand on the shoulders of giants.

The American middle class was strongest when American manufacturing was strongest. The American economy grew fastest when workers stood together and demanded a living wage for their hard work.

That's why in Congress, I've stood against bad trade deals like the Trans Pacific Partnership, and I've fought for Make It In America policies that make sure that when we invest our taxpayer dollars into infrastructure, that money is used to buy goods and equipment made in America. I've fought against the dismantling of basic social safety net services like food support for lower income families, and I've urged my colleagues to support equal pay for equal work and guaranteed paid sick leave. There's no one in Congress doing more to bring back American shipbuilding.

Your support helps me continue this work to expand America's middle class.

In the past several decades, through bad public policy choices and increased and often unfair competition, the economic engine that created the middle class has been breaking down. In 1965, the average CEO of a large corporation in America made 24 times the earnings of their workers. Today, the average CEO makes more than 300 times the average worker's salary. Adjusted for inflation, the federal minimum wage today is 30% smaller than it was in 1968. Massive American wealth is still being generated, but almost all of it is being funneled to the top. We can do better.

We need leaders in Washington who'll stand up to the plutocrats who think income inequality and poverty wages are a good thing. Hardworking Americans deserve a voice, and with your support, I will continue to be that voice in 2016 and beyond.

Thank you once again, and I hope you have a wonderful Labor Day surrounded by the love and support of family and friends.

Sincerely,

Congressman John Garamendi

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Contribute Today!

www.Garamendi.org

Paid for by Garamendi for Congress

(916) 863-6881
P.O. Box 440
Walnut Grove, CA 95690

send to a friend

TO UNSUBSCRIBE FROM THIS MAILING LIST, CLICK Þ$HERE
POWERED BY Þ%NGP VAN, INC.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Craig Minassian" <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org>
Date: 2/25/2015 10:46:02 AM
Subject: Re: WaPo - Draft Quote

Just fact checking that Malawi Tanzania Rwanda and gag funding existed in 08 under this formulation.

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

On Feb 25, 2015, at 5:29 PM, Craig Minassian <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org > wrote:

Thanks John. Revised. Sending shortly

"As with other global charities, we rely on the support of individuals, organizations, corporations and governments who have the shared goal of addressing critical global challenges in a meaningful way. When anyone contributes to the Clinton Foundation, it goes towards Foundation programs that save lives. The majority of the support from governments was for specific, multi-year programs that are still improving the lives of millions of people around the world and were underway well before Secretary Clinton took office. Both the Clinton Foundation and President Obama's transition team believed that funding should continue to provide live-saving HIV/AIDS medicine to more than 8 million people in more than 70 countries, training for nearly 40,000 farmers in Malawi, Tanzania, and Rwanda trying to earn a better living and to help reduce of 33,500 tons of greenhouse gas emissions annually among other programs."

From: Tina Flournoy [mailto:Tina@presidentclinton.com]
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 5:03 PM
To: John Podesta
Cc: Craig Minassian; Bruce Lindsey; Cheryl Mills Contact; Maura Pally; Bari Lurie contact; Matt Mckenna - gmail; Angel Urena - PC; Nick Merrill (nmerrill@hrcoffice.com); Kamyl Bazbaz contact; Ami Desai - PC
Subject: Re: WaPo - Draft Quote

like that approach

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:59 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

I'm not sure when CHAI officially separated but the main reason we protected those flows in 2008 was to protect CHAI! Rather than using the It's hard to imagine...language, why don't we put this clearly in the past and say both the Clinton and the President elect's teams thought that funding should continue for established programs to provide 8 million people with life saving drugs, the farmers, etc and posed no conflicts but CF agreed to unprecedented disclosure.
JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:37 PM, Tina Flournoy <Tina@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

I get what you're doing but we could very well be in a situation in which someone connected to CHAI will push back on this

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:31 PM, Craig Minassian <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org > wrote:
+ Ami too

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:23 PM, Tina Flournoy <Tina@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

at this moment CHAI complaining about this issue

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:14 PM, Craig Minassian <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org > wrote:

I'm sensitive to that (which is why I'm asking) but those CHAI Stats are on nearly every public listing of CF accomplishment. I'm want to make people think twice about calls for dropping grants to CF or return the money and the HIV/AIDS work hits home in a way that other stats don't. Plus it's international work. I'm concerned about saying we used money to fund healthy schools (because we didn't use the funding for that).

From: Tina Flournoy [mailto:Tina@presidentclinton.com]
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:09 PM
To: Craig Minassian
Cc: Bruce Lindsey; Cheryl Mills Contact; john.podesta@gmail.com ; Maura Pally; Bari Lurie contact; Matt Mckenna - gmail; Angel Urena - PC; Nick Merrill (nmerrill@hrcoffice.com); Kamyl Bazbaz contact
Subject: Re: WaPo - Draft Quote

I am worried - particularly given the meeting i'm sitting in - that we're using CHAI stats and haven't told them

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:03 PM, Craig Minassian <cminassian@ .org> wrote:

All,

For the WaPo story we have been discussing, they asked for an on the record response to the following question. Draft response is below with includes feedback from Jen, Nick, Philippe, Matt etc.

Including everyone on this email because I need a quick response about including the CHAI stats. The fact is, at the time, CHAI was more compelling metric, most understandable accomplishment to the public and, importantly, what a majority of the foreign government funding supported.

Please let me know if you have any concerns in the next 30 minutes.

Thanks,

Craig

Q. Why was it important for the foundation that some foreign government donations be allowed to continue after Hillary Clinton became secretary of state (i.e. those from governments that had been giving and then continued to do so at a steady pace, as well as new or increased donation that cleared a state department review)? Why do foundation officials believe such donations did not pose any conflicts of interest given Secretary Clinton's role, as some have alleged?

"As with other global charities, we rely on the support of individuals, organizations, corporations and governments who have the shared goal of addressing critical global challenges in a meaningful way. When anyone contributes to the Clinton Foundation, it goes towards Foundation programs that save lives. The majority of this support from governments is for specific, multi-year programs that are improving the lives of millions of people around the world and were underway well before Secretary Clinton took office. It's hard to imagine someone arguing that funding should be cut off for the more than 8 million people getting access to live-saving HIV/AIDS medicine in more than 70 countries, the nearly 40,000 farmers in Malawi, Tanzania, and Rwanda trying to earn a better living or the reduction of 33,500 tons of greenhouse gas emissions annually."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Brian Fallon" <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 5/22/2015 6:45:09 AM
Subject: Re: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE

They concede the pt and will fix

On Friday, May 22, 2015, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
Brian - I think we should push back. It is not "document" not "documents."

Sent from my iPhone

On May 22, 2015, at 1:31 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Should someone push back on politico with regards to "now classified documents?" It's 23 words out of one single email.

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:30 PM, Josh Schwerin <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
First batch of Hillary's State Department emails released

By LAUREN FRENCH, JOSH GERSTEIN and BRYAN BENDER

5/22/15 12:13 PM EDT
http://www.politico.com/story/2015/05/hillary-clinton-emails-release-118214.html

The first batch of emails from Hillary Clinton's four years running the State Department was released Friday.
Even before the emails were made public, the State Department argued that the nearly 900 pages of documents do not fundamentally alter the findings of the State Department's Accountability Review Board that probed the Benghazi terrorist attacks.

"The emails we release today do not change the essential facts or our understanding of the events before, during, or after the attacks, which have been known since the independent Accountability Review Board report on the Benghazi attacks was released almost two and a half years ago," wrote the department's deputy spokeswoman Marie Harf.
These highly anticipated emails, some of which have already leaked out, give insight into Clinton's tenure as the top U.S. diplomat. They're also serving as fodder for critics of the Democratic presidential front-runner, who is still dogged by questions about a 2012 terrorist attack in Benghazi that killed Ambassador Chris Stevens.

And they are sure to raise more questions about the administration's and Clinton's response to what quickly became a political scandal. There is an email dated Sept. 15 with Clinton providing "talking points" for an upcoming closed-door hearing before the House Select Committee on Intelligence, but with the exception of Jake Sullivan the recipients are blacked out, along with the entire document.

It states only: "Per the discussion at Deputies, here are the revised TPs for HPSCI."
The emails also show that Clinton received now-classified documents on her personal email address. One of the documents State recently deemed classified was a November 2012 email reporting possible arrests in Libya related to the Benghazi attack. The memo was sent through unclassified State Department channels and forwarded to Clinton's private account by Sullivan, State's Director of Policy Planning. A notation on the document released says it was classified as –"SECRET"—the middle tier of national security classification—on Friday, the same day the records were released.

Clinton has been under intense pressure for weeks since it was revealed that she used a non-official email address while at the State Department and stored those emails on a personal server in her New

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

York home. Republicans jumped on those revelations to accuse Clinton of attempting to runaround federal records laws and keep key documents about Libya and Benghazi from the public.

Republican Rep. Trey Gowdy, chairman of the House Select Committee on Benghazi, has subpoenaed the State Department for all documents on Libya from Clinton's time at the State Department and is refusing to schedule the former secretary to testify until the Obama administration turns the emails over to congressional investigators.

ALSO ON POLITICO

Insiders: Benghazi testimony works to Hillary's advantage

KATIE GLUECK

Gowdy said in a statement Friday that the committee will continue to seek all documents from Clinton's tenure at the State Department on Libya and Benghazi and not the "self-selected" emails the former secretary made available.

"To assume a self-selected public record is complete, when no one with a duty or responsibility to the public had the ability to take part in the selection, requires a leap in logic no impartial reviewer should be required to make and strains credibility," Gowdy said.

The Benghazi Committee has had access to this first batch of email, which represents less than 2 percent of the 55,000 emails Clinton returned to State, for months. Leaked portions of the emails contain extensive communications between Clinton and Sidney Blumenthal — a longtime family ally. Blumenthal would often send Clinton memos on the security in Libya before the 2012 attacks that left four Americans dead.

Blumenthal's analyses of Libya was often met with skepticism from senior State Department officials, including Clinton. Gowdy asked the U.S. Marshals Service to serve Blumenthal with a subpoena on Tuesday.

The emails also give a personal look at Clinton's habits and relationships.

A Oct. 7, 2012 email from Blumenthal invited Clinton and her husband, former President Bill Clinton, to a dinner.

"Postelection, we'd like to have you over for dinner. Bill can come, too, if he's in town. Whatever works," Blumenthal wrote.

The rest of the 55,000 emails will be released to the public in stages. State proposed releasing those records next January, but a judge rejected that plan and ordered the agency to come up with a rolling schedule, which has yet to be finalized.

The documents released Friday are from January 2011 to Dec. 31, 2012, "and relate to the security of, and attacks on, the State Department facility in Benghazi and to the United States' diplomatic presence in Libya, including in Benghazi," Harf said.

Maryland Rep. Elijah Cummings, the top Democrat on the Benghazi panel, said in a statement that the committee should now schedule Clinton to testify.

"Instead of the selective leaking that has happened so far, the American people can now read all of these emails and see for themselves that they contain no evidence to back up claims that Secretary Clinton ordered a stand-down, approved an illicit weapons program, or any other wild allegation Republicans have made for years," Cummings said.

Read more: http://www.politico.com/story/2015/05/hillary-clinton-emails-release-118214.html#ixzz3atDON74L

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:29 PM, Ian Sams <isams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> This strikes me as a selective placement from someone with access to the emails, maybe Benghazi committee staff since Alex has strong House GOP relationships. Hard to imagine Alex found this tidbit in an email and wrote this piece exclusively after the emails published 45 minutes ago.
>
> He also gets the email address wrong.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

http://dailycaller.com/2015/05/22/hillary-discussed-speculation-about-her-health-with-aides-in-emails/

Hillary Discussed Speculation About Her Health With Aides In Emails

ALEX PAPPAS

Political Reporter

1:15 PM 05/22/2015

Then-Secretary of State Hillary Clinton discussed with aides the chatter on cable news about whether she actually suffered a concussion in 2012, according to emails released by the State Department on Friday.

A week before she was to testify before Congress in December 2012 about the attacks in Benghazi, Clinton postponed her appearance with aides explaining she had fainted and suffered a concussion. On Dec. 20, chief of staff Cheryl Mills forwarded Clinton by email a transcript of Fox News host Greta Van Susteren discussing Clinton's health with Arizona Republican Sen. John McCain.

"Senator," Van Susteren said during that segment, "there is a report from the State Department that Secretary of State Hillary Clinton will testify on Benghazi before the middle of January. There has been some criticism of whether or not she has a concussion. I believe she has a concussion. What do you think?"

McCain replied: "I have never seen her back down. And I believe that she is now not physically well enough to testify and she will testify the middle of January."
Mills sent a transcript of that interview to Clinton's personal email — hrod@clintonemail.com — and to close aide Huma Abdein.
Speaking of McCain, Clinton replied: "Huma called him and [South Carolina Sen. Lindsey] Graham."
"Also," Clinton added, "someone should call Greta VS to thank her for 'knowing the truth.'"
The emails released Friday, ahead of the Memorial Day weekend, are a few of the thousands the Democratic presidential candidate has turned over to the State Department from her personal email account. Clinton acknowledges she used that email account for both personal and official business.

<image001.png>

From: Tyson Brody [mailto:tbrody@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Friday, May 22, 2015 1:21 PM
To: Ian Sams
Cc: Josh Schwerin; Brian Fallon; Christina Reynolds; HRCRR; Jennifer Palmieri; Kristina Schake; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Huma Abedin; Cheryl Mills; Jake Sullivan

Subject: Re: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE

Attached are the redacted and unredacted versions of the email as a side by a side.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Inline image 1

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:16 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Want to flag that if you look at the email in this link, HRC's email is redacted. But in yesrterday's new york times dump, the same email is unredacted. Could it be because Committee leaked?
>
> https://twitter.com/gabrielmalor/status/601796614060167169
>
> See it unredacted from the times below:
>
> <image003.png>
>
> On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:16 PM, Ian Sams <isams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Lachlan Markay @lachlan
> >
> > Email with Hillary's revised Benghazi talking points is completely redacted pic.twitter.com/A3uGN0erHW
> >
> > ---
> >
> > From: Ian Sams [mailto:isams@hillaryclinton.com]
> > Sent: Friday, May 22, 2015 1:05 PM
> > To: Josh Schwerin; Brian Fallon
> > Cc: Tyson Brody; Christina Reynolds; HRCRR; Jennifer Palmieri; Kristina Schake; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Huma Abedin; Cheryl Mills; Jake Sullivan
> > Subject: RE: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE
> >
> > FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:
> >
> > Date: May 22, 2015
> >
> > Contact:
> >
> > Jamal D. Ware

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

202-226-7100

Amanda Duvall

202-225-6030

Statement on the Release of Secretary Clinton's Benghazi Emails

Washington, DC— Select Committee on Benghazi Chairman Trey Gowdy, R-S.C., today issued the following statement after the State Department released 300 self-selected emails from former Secretary Hillary Clinton, over which the department had no control and no custody for nearly two years. These emails were turned over to the State by former Secretary Clinton in the fall of 2014 in reaction to a request from the Select Committee:

"More than six months after the Select Committee first discovered Secretary Clinton's unusual email arrangement with herself, and after the media discovered Secretary Clinton relied exclusively on a personal server housing a personal email account eschewing any official email address, State Department transferred 300 messages exclusively reviewed and released by her own lawyers," Gowdy said. "These lawyers, it must be noted, owed and continue to owe a fiduciary responsibility to Secretary Clinton to protect her interests. To assume a self-selected public record is complete, when no one with a duty or responsibility to the public had the ability to take part in the selection, requires a leap in logic no impartial reviewer should be required to make and strains credibility."

"It is also important to remember these email messages are just one piece of information that cannot be completely evaluated or fully understood without the total record. The Committee is working to collect and evaluate all of the relevant and material information necessary to evaluate the full range of issues in context. We will not reach any investigative conclusions until our work is complete, but these emails continue to reinforce the fact that unresolved questions and issues remain as it relates to Benghazi."

"The Select Committee continues to believe the American people have a right to the full and complete record of her official emails and, therefore, asked Secretary Clinton to turn her server and the full body of emails over to a neutral, detached, independent third party for review. This is also why the State Department must comply with a months-old subpoena for emails of the former Secretary's top aides, whose emails have never been received or reviewed by any congressional committee."

"The Committee's interest is in building a complete record from which the final, definitive accounting regarding the terrorist attacks in Benghazi can be provided. The best way to answer all questions related to the attacks in Benghazi continues to be having access to the full public record, not a "record" controlled, possessed and screened exclusively by Secretary Clinton's personal lawyers."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

###

Background Information on Released Emails:

Among the emails the Select Committee finds highlight the existence of significant investigative questions:

September 24, 2012—"Compiled protest and Benghazi Statements." A document that reinforces issues relating to characterization of the motives for the attacks. For example, Jake Sullivan noted, "You never said spontaneous or characterized the motives. In fact you were careful in your first statement to say we were assessing motive and method. The way you treated the video in the Libya context was to say that some sought to justify the attack on that basis."

August 24, 2012 — "H: Intel on new Libya president. Sid." In this document two and a half weeks before the attacks, Jake Sullivan writes to the Secretary, "Some warning signs," in response to the deteriorating security situation in Benghazi, which forced the Red Cross to suspend activities, and reinforces questions about what was done in response to these warnings.

April 4, 2012—"Secretary Clinton's Leadership on Libya." This document characterizes Secretary Clinton's ownership of U.S. policy in Libya.

April 8, 2011—"UK game playing; new rebel strategists; Egypt moves in. Sid" In this document, Secretary Clinton responded to a Blumenthal memo with, "Fyi. The idea of using private security experts to arm the opposition should be considered."

There are several instances of State personnel notifying the Secretary about security concerns and issues:

April 10, 2011 – Forwarded email about deteriorating security

April 22, 2011 – Request for continuous coverage in Benghazi, "security permitting"

April 24, 2011 – Forwarded email about hotels being targeted

June 10, 2011 – Email including information about credible threat info against hotel and that personnel are evacuating to alternate locations

August 21, 2011 – Email regarding concerns about Islamist militias

January 9, 2012 – Email stating that disarming and reintegrating of militias isn't going as well as they had hoped

February 24, 2012 – Email stating that militia rivalries are dangerous

August 24, 2012 – Email stating that there are "some warning signs"

The Committee also has an interest in understanding the inexplicable gaps in the Secretary's emails during key times of her involvement in Libyan policy, including:

June 10-August 8, 2011—Time period where Secretary Clinton was heavily involved in Libya policy

September 14-October 21 2011—Dates of Secretary Clinton's trip to Libya, when the now-famous picture of Clinton on her blackberry was taken

October 21, 2011-January 5, 2012—Time period when the State Department was extending the Benghazi mission for another year

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

April 27- July 4 2012—Time period of increased security during which an IED was thrown at the compound blasting a hole through the wall and during which the British ambassador was attacked

From: hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com [mailto:hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com] On Behalf Of Josh Schwerin
Sent: Friday, May 22, 2015 1:03 PM
To: Brian Fallon
Cc: Tyson Brody; Christina Reynolds; HRCRR; Jennifer Palmieri; Kristina Schake; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Huma Abedin; Cheryl Mills; Jake Sullivan
Subject: Re: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE

First Batch of Hillary Clinton's Emails on Libya Made Public

BY CARRIE DANN

http://www.nbcnews.com/politics/hillary-clinton/first-batch-hillary-clintons-emails-libya-made-public-n362506

A batch of Hillary Clinton's personal emails made public on Thursday morning offers a glimpse into her team's initial exchange of information in the wake of the Benghazi attacks as well as her relationship with longtime confidante Sidney Blumenthal, who sent her at least two dozen memos regarding Libya during her tenure as Secretary of State.

The State Department plans to release about 850 pages of the emails, which had been handed over to the congressional panel investigating the Benghazi attacks. But on Thursday, the New York Times released about a third of that batch of correspondence, which Clinton exchanged using a private server rather than a government email account.

The documents show that, while Clinton used her personal email account to receive information the government calls "sensitive," she did not appear to use her private server to exchange classified information.

The "sensitive" information included details like the location of State Department officials in Libya during a time of instability in the country in 2011.

The documents released by the New York Times also show that Clinton received numerous briefing memos about Libya from Blumenthal, a longtime friend of the Clintons who was not employed by the State Department. The New York Times reported earlier this week that Blumenthal was also involved with a possible business venture in the country at the time.

Two of those memos from Blumenthal came in the days immediately following the September 11, 2012 Benghazi attacks.

In one, sent on September 12, Blumenthal suggested that top security officers in the country believed that the attacks "were inspired by what many devout Libyan viewed as a sacrilegious internet video on the prophet Mohammed originating in America." Clinton forwarded that information to top adviser Jake Sullivan with the message "more info."

But another memo sent the following day indicated that the attacks may have actually been carried out by a militia group. Blumenthal wrote that officials in the country "believe that the attackers having prepared to launch their assault took advantage of the cover provided by the demonstrations in Benghazi protesting an internet production seen as disrespectful to the prophet Mohammed."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The release of the emails comes after a prolonged political fight for Clinton over her use of a private email server while serving as Secretary of State.

On Tuesday, Clinton urged the State Department to expedite the vetting of the emails after initial reports suggested that the data trove would not be ready for public release until January of next year

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:00 PM, Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> State did a nice job with this, despite the initial, sensationalized tweet by AP
>
> On Friday, May 22, 2015, Josh Schwerin <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > State Dept. releases Hillary Clinton e-mails in Benghazi probe
> >
> > AP MAY 22, 2015
> >
> > http://www.bostonglobe.com/news/nation/2015/05/22/state-dept-set-release-hillary-clinton-mails-benghazi-probe/E48MdmnEHKruEi5sTKzOwM/story.html
> >
> > WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton received information on her private email server about the deadly attack on U.S. diplomatic facilities in Benghazi that was classified Friday at the FBI's request.
> >
> > The email in question, forwarded to Clinton by her deputy chief of staff, relates to reports of arrests in Libya of possible suspects in the attack.
> >
> > The information was not classified at the time the email was sent and was upgraded from unclassified to ''secret'' on Friday, according to State Department officials. The officials said 23 words of the November 2012 message were redacted from the release of 896 emails totaling 296 pages, to protect information that may damage foreign relations.
> >
> > They said no other redactions were made for classification reasons.
> >
> > Spokeswoman Marie Harf says publication includes 296 e-mails given to a House committee investigating the 2012 attack on the US diplomatic post in Benghazi, Libya.
> >
> > She says redactions were made according to Freedom of Information Act standards. The emails will be released via the State Department's FOIA website, foia.state.gov .
> >
> > The documents cover e-mails between 2011 and 2012 related to the Benghazi facility and its security, and to the broader issue of a US diplomatic presence in Libya.
> >
> > Harf says the e-mails don't provide new facts about how four Americans were killed on Sept. 11, 2012. The State Department also said on Twitter that the emails don't provide a change in its understanding of the events.
> >
> > The State Department is still reviewing 55,000 further pages of e-mails from Clinton's private email account. They'll be published on a rolling basis.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 12:42 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> User Actions
> Following
> Matt Lee@APDiploWriter
>
> Matt Lee retweeted Brian Fallon
>
> Classified this morning - as the story makes clear.
>
> Matt Lee added,
>
> Brian Fallon @brianefallon
> Classified only in recent days MT @KThomasDC: Clinton received now-classified Benghazi info on private email server, documents show.
>
> On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 12:35 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>
>> WASHINGTON (AP) — Clinton received now-classified #Benghazi info on private email server, documents show.
>>
>> On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 12:35 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>>
>>> Please use this email chain to send around clips that are breaking on the email release. Thanks!
>>>
>>> --
>>> You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
>>> To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
>>> To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .
>>
>>
>
> --
> You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
> To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
> To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

--
Josh Schwerin
Spokesperson
Hillary for America
@JoshSchwerin

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

--

Josh Schwerin

Spokesperson

Hillary for America

@JoshSchwerin

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

--
Josh Schwerin
Spokesperson
Hillary for America
@JoshSchwerin

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	9/3/2015 12:48:03 PM
Subject:	Tweet your Bitmoji for #Beijing20
Attachments:	.txt

Hi John- campaign staff are tweeting out personalized "women's rights are human rights" Bitmoji avatars for #Beijing20. The digital team partnered with Bitmoji to create a special HRC pantsuit avatar, which they're promoting via the app. Maya, Marlon, Anne, and HRC tweeted their avatars. I made you one. Want to tweet it?

Something like:

Truer words have never been spoken. #Beijing20

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Amanda Renteria" <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Nikki Budzinski" <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com> "Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com> "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com> "Brian Fallon" <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	7/2/2015 5:16:15 PM
Subject:	Re: Nightly Labor Update

+schake and jen

Let's wait til Ost is ready then. I say Tuesday.

This will be the first big labor endorsement.

Comms, who should be on the call?

Sent from my iPhone

On Jul 3, 2015, at 12:06 AM, Nikki Budzinski <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Ost was talking about Monday or Tuesday. What does your availability look like on those dates? And I defer to you, Ost was asking about Comms too. Anyone to loop in?
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Jul 2, 2015, at 11:55 PM, Brynne Craig <bcraig@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
>> That timing works for me. Nikki, let us know what works best for you since you will be in FL with 10.000 teachers :-)
>>
>> On Jul 2, 2015, at 11:54 PM, Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>
>>> Yes!! Right on RM!!!!
>>> I can do a call tomorrow before 3pm.
>>>
>>> Sent from my iPhone
>>>
>>> On Jul 2, 2015, at 11:17 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>>>
>>>> Happy to do a call over the weekend or on Monday.
>>>>
>>>> On Jul 2, 2015 10:19 PM, "Brynne Craig" <bcraig@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>>>> I'm sure it was wonderful.
>>>>>
>>>>> Nikki, I like the idea of pulling together a call re: AFT endorsement. John, can we do this before your dinner or should we wait?
>>>>>
>>>>> On Jul 2, 2015, at 9:58 PM, Nikki Budzinski <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

I thought so!

On Thu, Jul 2, 2015 at 9:56 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> It wasn't THAT good...
>
> On Thu, Jul 2, 2015 at 9:53 PM, Marlon Marshall <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Good shit Mook!
> >
> > On Thu, Jul 2, 2015 at 9:51 PM, Nikki Budzinski <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
> >
> > > Good evening-
> > >
> > > Two items to highlight tonight:
> > >
> > > 1. Great news! AFT would like to set up a call next week to start discussing a endorsement roll out. They are moving forward with a target date of July 11th but nothing is confirmed. Everything looks on track for that to be the timeline. AFT would like to have political, comms, whomever you think is appropriate to discuss the strategy behind the roll out. I'm happy to pull the call together if you can let me know who and how you'd like to proceed.
> > >
> > > 2. Robby presented at the AFL-CIO Political Director's meeting today and did a excellent job! I've gotten feedback from several unions that they felt Robby's presentation was very good. Robby was asked about energy, apprenticeship tax credit, fundraising, field staffing and of course trade (CWA). Sanders' campaign presented afterward and I understand it was "respectable but didn't change any minds". Sanders emphasized his $15 million fundraising and his low dollar fundraising (under $37). If anyone would like additional details, I'm happy to provide. Those were the big take aways.
> > >
> > > No new RSVPs today to John's HRC reception.
> > >
> > > --
> > > Nikki Budzinski
> > > Labor Outreach Director
> > > Hillary for America
> > > 646-854-1442 (direct)

--
Nikki Budzinski
Labor Outreach Director
Hillary for America
646-854-1442 (direct)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Heather Samuelson" <hsamuelson@cdmillsgroup.com>
Date: 8/8/2015 4:09:21 AM
Subject: Press plan

Friends - I have an update and a new idea to share.

First, I spoke with David and the earliest we could put out a statement about the thumb drive and server is later this afternoon. He has a 2 pm call to resolve remaining issues.

I think our best course now is to hold our staff statement till Sunday afternoon (past Sunday shows), have Brian and I do a lot of tv on Monday to air some of the issues out and then not have HRC do an interview until Tuesday. She would, however, have to do a media avail on Monday. Two benefits of this revised plan - we have a better sense of press reactions before having her sit down and it is more time for her to be in right head space. Given where she is now, I don't think it is realistic to expect that an interview on Monday would go well. Do also think there is a value in having staff take first round of questions on this.

Thoughts?

Sent from my iPhone

On Aug 8, 2015, at 10:58 AM, Heather Samuelson <hsamuelson@cdmillsgroup.com > wrote:

> Thanks Dan -- I'll review factsheet now -- it needs some updating.
>
> From: Dan Schwerin
> Sent: Saturday, August 8, 2015 10:48 AM
> To: Nick Merrill , Kendall, David , Jennifer Palmieri , Cheryl Mills , Robby Mook , Heather Samuelson , Brian Fallon, Kristina Schake , Jake Sullivan , Huma Abedin , Katherine Turner , John Podesta
>
> Here is a revised open letter attached to the current version of the fact sheet from the website. This is shorter, more direct, and more even-handed. Not defiant but not particularly contrite either. See what you think. (Will leave it to Nick, Heather, Brian, etc to review fact sheet and make any updates as needed.)
> Dan

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Kate Offerdahl" <kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com ha16@hillaryclinton.com kdowd@hillaryclinton.com lbull@perkinscoie.com bfallon@hillaryclinton.com cbaker@hillaryclinton.com bjones@hillaryclinton.com melias@hillaryclinton.com tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com oshur@hillaryclinton.com jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com kschake@hillaryclinton.com lvalmoro@hillaryclinton.com shannon@hillaryclinton.com hstone@hillaryclinton.com aoleary@hillaryclinton.com ahornbrook@hillaryclinton.com arenteria@hillaryclinton.com ekriegel@hillaryclinton.com jake.sullivan@gmail.com tlewis@hillaryclinton.com charlie.baker@deweysquare.com dcheng@hillaryclinton.com sbay@hillaryclinton.com john.podesta@gmail.com mharris@hillaryclinton.com kfinney@hillaryclinton.com tgoff@hillaryclinton.com creynolds@hillaryclinton.com
Date:	8/24/2015 1:22:23 PM
Subject:	CANCELED: Tuesday Daily Senior Staff Meeting

Dear all,

Tuesday morning's 9am Senior Staff Meeting is canceled.

Thanks!
Kate

Sent via iPhone.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Olivia Raisner" <oraisner@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com> "Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com> "Christina Reynolds" <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com> "Brian Fallon" <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com> "Brynne Craig" <bcraig@hillaryclinton.com> "Lily Adams" <ladams@hillaryclinton.com> "Michael Halle" <mhalle@hillaryclinton.com> "Ashley Woolheater" <awoolheater@hillaryclinton.com> "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com> "Nikki Budzinski" <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com> "Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com> "Tony Carrk" <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com> "Zachary Petkanas" <zpetkanas@hillaryclinton.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> jp66@hillaryclinton.com "Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com> "Kate Offerdahl" <kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	2/23/2016 6:56:07 AM
Subject:	3:00pm Trade Meeting

Hi all,

We're holding a meeting at 3:00pm in South Carolina. Purpose: to discuss dealing with incoming trade attacks. Thanks to everyone for your flexibility!

Dial in: 347-943-6141 [PIN: 99784]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Seher Syed" <ssyed@americanprogress.org>
Date:	1/9/2012 6:47:27 AM
Subject:	Fwd: Priv & Conf: Sample COO Job Descriptions
Attachments:	[Untitled].pdf

Forwarded conversation
Subject: Priv & Conf: Sample COO Job Descriptions

From: Bjorklund, Victoria B <vbjorklund@stblaw.com >
Date: Tue, Dec 6, 2011 at 6:41 PM
To: "Bruce R. Lindsey (brucerlindsey@aol.com)" <brucerlindsey@aol.com >,
"(john.podesta@gmail.com)" <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Cc: "(aj66@nyu.edu)" <aj66@nyu.edu >, "Reynoso, Jennifer" <jreynoso@stblaw.com >

Dear Bruce and John--We are forwarding for your information three sample COO job descriptions, attached.

Please let us know how else we can be of assistance.

Sincerely yours,

Victoria and Jennifer

IRS Circular 230 disclosure: To ensure compliance with requirements imposed by the IRS, we inform you that any tax advice contained in this communication (including any attachments) was not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of (i) avoiding tax-related penalties under federal, state or local tax law or (ii) promoting, marketing or recommending to another party any transaction or matter addressed herein.

Victoria B. Bjorklund
Partner
Head, Exempt Organizations Group
Co-Chair, Diversity Committee
Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP
425 Lexington Avenue
New York, New York 10017

Tel: (212) 455-2875
Cell: (646) 258-9444
Fax: (212) 455-2502
vbjorklund@stblaw.com

From: Anna James <aj66@nyu.edu >
Date: Tue, Dec 6, 2011 at 10:20 PM
To: "Bjorklund, Victoria B" <vbjorklund@stblaw.com >
Cc: "Bruce R. Lindsey (brucerlindsey@aol.com)" <brucerlindsey@aol.com >, "(john.podesta@gmail.com)"
<john.podesta@gmail.com >, "Reynoso, Jennifer" <jreynoso@stblaw.com >

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Thank you Victoria. I shared these with my father. He has a few thoughts I know he wants to share with John and Bruce on the CCO descriptions.
My father also just finished reading, in our apartment with me, the anonymous interview quotes organized by theme he had requested that you had shared with me last week. He is going to follow up with John directly.

From: Bjorklund, Victoria B <vbjorklund@stblaw.com >
Date: Wed, Dec 7, 2011 at 6:31 AM
To: "aj66@nyu.edu " <aj66@nyu.edu >
Cc: "brucerlindsey@aol.com " <brucerlindsey@aol.com >, "john.podesta@gmail.com " <john.podesta@gmail.com >, "Reynoso, Jennifer" <jreynoso@stblaw.com >

Dear Chelsea--Thank you for this update. We have sent a hard copy of the "Themes" to Bruce at his home so you, John and Bruce have the only copies.

We also delivered to Bruce and John on Saturday evening a draft of our Governance Review memorandum, which I believe that Bruce has read and John is reviewing.

Please let us know how we can be of further assistance.

Best regards,

Victoria

IRS Circular 230 Disclosure: To ensure compliance with requirements imposed by the IRS, we inform you that any tax advice contained in this communication (including any attachments) was not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of (i) avoiding tax-related penalties under federal, state or local tax law or (ii) promoting, marketing or recommending to another party any transaction or matter addressed herein.

_____

Victoria B. Bjorklund

From: Anna James <aj66@nyu.edu >
To: Bjorklund, Victoria B
Cc: Bruce R. Lindsey (brucerlindsey@aol.com) <brucerlindsey@aol.com >; (john.podesta@gmail.com) <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Reynoso, Jennifer Sent: Tue Dec 06 22:20:56 2011
Subject: Re: Priv & Conf: Sample COO Job Descriptions

From: <aj66@nyu.edu >
Date: Wed, Dec 7, 2011 at 7:34 AM
To: Victoria B Bjorklund <vbjorklund@stblaw.com >
Cc: Bruce Lindsey <BruceRLindsey@aol.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Jennifer Reynoso <jreynoso@stblaw.com >

Thank you Victoria. Would it be appropriate for you to send me the governance which I could then share with my Dad or would it make sense to do that once you've received comments from Bruce and John?
Thank you,
Chelsea

From: "Bjorklund, Victoria B" <vbjorklund@stblaw.com >

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Date: Wed, 7 Dec 2011 06:31:08 -0500
To: 'aj66@nyu.edu '<aj66@nyu.edu >
Cc: 'brucerlindsey@aol.com '<brucerlindsey@aol.com >;
'john.podesta@gmail.com '<john.podesta@gmail.com >; Reynoso, Jennifer<jreynoso@stblaw.com >

From: Bjorklund, Victoria B <vbjorklund@stblaw.com >
Date: Wed, Dec 7, 2011 at 7:43 AM
To: "aj66@nyu.edu " <aj66@nyu.edu >
Cc: "brucerlindsey@aol.com " <brucerlindsey@aol.com >, "john.podesta@gmail.com "
<john.podesta@gmail.com >, "Reynoso, Jennifer" <jreynoso@stblaw.com >

Dear Chelsea--Bruce informally indicated that he had no comments at this time. Because of his family obligations, I don't know if John has yet been able to review it. Why don't we wait til noon today. If we hear from John that he has comments or feedback, we will wait to receive and incorporate that. If we don't hear by noon today, we will be happy to forward the current draft.

From: aj66@nyu.edu <aj66@nyu.edu >
To: Bjorklund, Victoria B
Cc: Bruce Lindsey <BruceRLindsey@aol.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Reynoso, Jennifer Sent: Wed Dec 07 07:34:24 2011

From: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Date: Mon, Jan 9, 2012 at 1:38 PM
To: Seher Syed <ssyed@americanprogress.org >

can you print these for me.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Bjorklund, Victoria B <vbjorklund@stblaw.com >
Date: Wed, Dec 7, 2011 at 7:43 AM
Subject: Re: Priv & Conf: Sample COO Job Descriptions

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	11/4/2015 8:31:27 AM
Subject:	WJC is attending the Iowa debate

Huma had previously told Alex/Lona it was a big secret but it was just shared by schedulers on our coordination call

Matt Paul does NOT know.

unclear how/when it will be officially revealed.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Kimble DellaFave-Snyder - OPE" <subscriptions@subscriptions.dol.gov>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 12/16/2015 7:51:49 AM
Subject: Secretary Perez on PBS Newshour

United States Department of Labor

Good afternoon,

Secretary Perez recently had the opportunity to discuss our Conflicts of Interest proposed rule on PBS NewsHour. This aired shortly before the text of the omnibus spending bill was released. The bill does not include a rider that could have prevented the department from moving forward. We hope you enjoy!

http://www.pbs.org/newshour/bb/can-you-trust-your-financial-adviser-labor-department-wants-new-rules/

Secretary Perez has also shared this interview on Twitter — take a peek .

Sincerely,
The Department of Labor's Office of Public Engagement

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com using GovDelivery, on behalf of: United States Department of Labor · 200 Constitution Ave., NW · Washington, DC 20210 · 1-866-4-USA-DOL (1-866-487-2365) powered by govDELIVERY get the word out.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Pete Ogden" <progden@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/19/2014 1:43:04 AM
Subject:	Re: Sec 115

I thought it went well and was well-timed -- there was a strong sense that the upcoming Indian elections provided an opening to elevate cooperation in this space, which gave the discussion a little more focus and urgency. The fact that we had such high-level administration interest and participation at the meeting and dinner from you, Moniz, etc. really impressed on the Indian side that this is something that the Obama administration cares about.

We got to the stage where we were able to agree on joint recommendations for each session, with some more concrete than others. Once we get final language ironed out in the next week or so, we will be sending a joint letter to Sec Moniz and his counterpart (Montek) with some ideas for their upcoming Energy Dialogue, and then will be sending a full set of Track II recommendations to both gov'ts right after the April/May Indian elections.

Of course, still plenty of vehement disagreement on many things and we didn't even try to get into the int'l negotiations, but I think the work that you all put into this over the past few years is paying off. I'll be sure that you see all of the joint recs, plus any other promising ones that we couldn't agree on but are still worth pushing. --Pete

> On Feb 19, 2014, at 2:53 AM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> How did you think India dialogue went?
>
> JP
> --Sent from my iPad--
> john.podesta@gmail.com
> For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com
>
>> On Feb 18, 2014, at 10:24 PM, Pete Ogden <progden@gmail.com> wrote:
>>
>> Great seeing you last Wednesday -- I'm off to India next week so hope to keep the ball rolling. As I mentioned, Heather Zichal and I spoke to Phil Barnett and other Waxman staff about Sec 115, and, after asking a few questions about timing and what they were hoping to achieve, they seemed to think that it would make sense for them to do a little more research and then have some additional consultations with State and EPA before making a big public push. Phil said he was going to talk Waxman and so you may be hearing again from him about this possible new course, so I just wanted to give you a heads up. --Pete
>>
>>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Burns Strider" <burns.strider@americanbridge.org>
To: CTRFriendsFamily <CTRFriendsFamily@americanbridge.org>
Date: 8/3/2014 7:26:49 AM
Subject: Correct The Record Sunday August 3, 2014 Roundup

Correct The Record Sunday August 3, 2014 Roundup:

Headlines:

SFGate: "House panel: No administration wrongdoing in Benghazi attack"

"The House Intelligence Committee, led by Republicans, has concluded that there was no deliberate wrongdoing by the Obama administration in the 2012 attack on the U.S. Consulate in Benghazi, Libya, that killed Ambassador Chris Stevens and three other Americans, said Rep. Mike Thompson of St. Helena, the second-ranking Democrat on the committee."

Pittsburgh Tribune: "Clinton praises Trib publisher's fight 'for what he believed'" [w/ VIDEO]

"An unlikely friendship drew former President Bill Clinton to a sunny hilltop in the Laurel Highlands on Saturday, where he paid tribute to the late Tribune-Review owner Richard Mellon Scaife."

Politico: "Bill Clinton eulogizes Richard Mellon Scaife: Nemesis, then friend"

"Bill Clinton on Saturday fondly memorialized one of the key financiers of what Hillary Clinton years ago deemed the 'vast right-wing conspiracy.'"

Wall Street Journal blog: Washington Wire: "Rubio Clarifies Hillary Clinton Comments: Not About Her Age"

"'You can be 40 years old and be a 20th-century candidate,' said the 43-year-old Florida Republican, a possible member of the 2016 GOP presidential field, on Fox News on Sunday."

CBS News: "Sen. Rand Paul: Hillary Clinton not 'fit to lead the country'"

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

“Sen. Rand Paul, R-Ky., said Hillary Clinton is not ‘fit to lead the country’ Friday, mocking the former secretary of state's comments about her wealth and condemning her response to the September 2012 attack on a U.S. facility in Benghazi.”

Salon: “Is Hillary Clinton the true heir of Ronald Reagan?”

[Subtitle:] “Not since 1980 has a candidate seemed so unstoppable -- and Hillary resembles the Gipper in other ways too”

The Daily Beast: “For 2016, Take Martin O’Malley Seriously”

“But the most interesting thing about O’Malley is his exploration of an intriguing, heart-centered strategy that could potentially shake up our national political paradigm: using the language of faith and universal moral values to ground public policy.”

Washington Examiner: “Why some donors are giving to dark horse Martin O'Malley”

“Though former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, the presumed Democratic frontrunner, leads by as much as 50 percent in some polls, there is some evidence that some former supporters are looking with interest at Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley.”

Articles:

SFGate: “House panel: No administration wrongdoing in Benghazi attack”

By Carolyn Lochhead

August 1, 2014, 3:53 p.m. PDT

The House Intelligence Committee, led by Republicans, has concluded that there was no deliberate wrongdoing by the Obama administration in the 2012 attack on the U.S. Consulate in Benghazi, Libya, that killed Ambassador Chris Stevens and three other Americans, said Rep. Mike Thompson of St. Helena, the second-ranking Democrat on the committee.

The panel voted Thursday to declassify the report, the result of two years of investigation by the committee. U.S. intelligence agencies will have to approve making the report public.

Thompson said the report "confirms that no one was deliberately misled, no military assets were withheld and no stand-down order (to U.S. forces) was given."

That conflicts with accusations of administration wrongdoing voiced by Rep. Darrell Issa, R-Vista (San Diego County), whose House Government Oversight and Reform Committee has held hearings on the Benghazi attack.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Stevens, who grew up in Piedmont, and the other Americans died when Libyans attacked the consulate on Sept. 11, 2012. Among the Intelligence Committee's findings, according to Thompson:

-- Intelligence agencies were "warned about an increased threat environment, but did not have specific tactical warning of an attack before it happened."

-- "A mixed group of individuals, including those associated with al Qaeda, (Moammar) Khadafy loyalists and other Libyan militias, participated in the attack."

-- "There was no 'stand-down order' given to American personnel attempting to offer assistance that evening, no illegal activity or illegal arms transfers occurring by U.S. personnel in Benghazi, and no American was left behind."

-- The administration's process for developing "talking points" was "flawed, but the talking points reflected the conflicting intelligence assessments in the days immediately following the crisis."

Those talking points included assertions that those who attacked the compound were angered by an obscure anti-Muhammad video posted to YouTube in the U.S. There is disagreement to this day about whether that was the case.

Pittsburgh Tribune: "Clinton praises Trib publisher's fight 'for what he believed'"

By Salena Zito and Mike Wereschagin

August 2, 2014, 6:57 p.m. EDT

An unlikely friendship drew former President Bill Clinton to a sunny hilltop in the Laurel Highlands on Saturday, where he paid tribute to the late Tribune-Review owner Richard Mellon Scaife.

"If someone had asked me the day I left the White House what's the single most unlikely thing I would ever do, this would rank high on the list," Clinton told about 150 Trib Total Media employees, who gathered around the pool at Scaife's boyhood home in Penguin Court for the memorial. Scaife died July 4, a day after his 82nd birthday.

A founder and funder of conservative think tanks and advocacy groups, Scaife's opposition to Clinton marked much of the latter's two terms as president. But the acrimony softened after Clinton left office in 2001, and the two became friends, with Scaife supporting Clinton's foundation and his wife's 2008 presidential campaign.

Clinton said he's "grateful" to former New York Mayor Ed Koch, a mutual friend, for convincing Clinton that he and Scaife had more in common than he thought. The two met on July 31, 2007, in the Harlem offices of the Clinton Foundation. Scaife later donated more than $100,000 to the foundation.

"Our differences are important. Our political differences, our philosophical differences, our religious differences, our racial and ethnic differences, they're important. They help us to define who we are," Clinton said. "But they don't have to keep us at arm's length from others."

Clinton used his reconciliation with Scaife and the friendship the two forged as an example of what's missing in conflicts from Capitol Hill to Gaza.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

“I think the counterintuitive friendship we formed is a good symbol of Richard Mellon Scaife's legacy. He fought as hard as he could for what he believed, but he never thought he had to be blind or deaf” to re-evaluating his positions, no matter how closely held, Clinton said.

The description “counterintuitive” was borrowed from his wife, former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, who used the word to describe her meeting with Tribune-Review reporters and editors in 2008, during the hotly contested Democratic presidential primary in Pennsylvania.

The paper's editorial board endorsed Hillary Clinton in the April primary election, and Scaife penned an opinion piece praising the New York Democrat.

“You need to know that she treasures that column and that experience,” Clinton said.

The sprawling hilltop estate in Ligonier, with sweeping views of the Laurel Highlands, was named for the 10 penguins that once roamed the grounds after Scaife's mother, Sarah, bought them following a famed Antarctic expedition by Richard Byrd.

H. Yale Gutnick, Scaife's longtime friend and attorney, introduced the 42nd president, saying Scaife asked him before his death to invite Clinton to the memorial to make it a special day. Gutnick is chairman of the Trib Total Media board of directors.

A 50-room mansion built by Scaife's parents once stood on the estate. After they died, Scaife built his own estate, Vallamont, on a nearby mountain in 1961. He tore down the stone mansion at Penguin Court, but preserved a portion of the broad stone foundation that extends from the hillside and supports a wide, flat lawn, as well as the property's cobblestone driveway, ornate stone benches and 120-foot-long greenhouse. A passionate horticulturalist who kept fresh flowers throughout his homes, he built a conservatory near where the house once stood.

Scaife willed the property and $15 million for its maintenance to the Philadelphia-area Brandywine Conservancy, on whose board of trustees he served.

Clinton said he was “moved” by a series of columns Scaife wrote in the Trib, first announcing his terminal cancer and then explaining the passions of his life, newspapers chief among them.

“I wish he'd have been able to write more,” Clinton said. “I was really moved by what he said about all of you and journalism as a profession and making sure that his papers were in a position to be there for our children and our grandchildren.”

Politico: “Bill Clinton eulogizes Richard Mellon Scaife: Nemesis, then friend”

By Kenneth P. Vogel

August 2, 2014, 10:09 p.m. EDT

Bill Clinton on Saturday fondly memorialized one of the key financiers of what Hillary Clinton years ago deemed the “vast right-wing conspiracy.”

Speaking at a private memorial service in southwestern Pennsylvania for Richard Mellon Scaife, who died last month, Clinton recalled how, after his presidency, he built a “counterintuitive friendship” with the conservative billionaire, according to an account of the speech in one of the newspapers Scaife owned.

“He fought as hard as he could for what he believed, but he never thought he had to be blind or deaf” to other views, the Pittsburgh Tribune-Review quotes Clinton saying of its former publisher. A spokesman for Clinton declined to comment.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Scaife, who inherited a fortune from the Mellon banking and oil empire, steered millions of dollars to groups that savagely attacked the Clintons throughout the 1990s. Scaife backed media outlets and nonprofits that pushed scandal after scandal that buffeted the Clinton administration — from the Whitewater real estate controversy to the Paula Jones and Monica Lewinsky sex scandals to raising doubts about the deaths of Clinton aides Vince Foster and Ron Brown.

Scaife confidant Christopher Ruddy, who rose to prominence on the Clinton scandal beat at the Tribune-Review, arranged Clinton's appearance at Saturday's memorial. Afterward, he acknowledged his former boss "was the bete noire of the Clinton administration during those years, sort of like what the Kochs are to the Obama administration today."

But Scaife became enamored with Clinton's post-presidential philanthropic work on AIDS in Africa and other issues, and a thaw began, said Ruddy, now CEO of the conservative Scaife-backed media outlet Newsmax.

Ruddy and the late former New York City Mayor Ed Koch helped broker a July 2007 meeting with Scaife and the former president in the Clinton Foundation's Harlem office, and Scaife donated more than $100,000 to the foundation. Still, Scaife raised eyebrows by praising Hillary Clinton during her 2008 campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination, and his Tribune-Review later endorsed her over Barack Obama ahead of the Pennsylvania primary.

In introducing Clinton on Saturday, the chairman of Scaife's media company, H. Yale Gutnick, a longtime Scaife friend, said the former president and Scaife "shared a mutual love of America," according to Ruddy, who said Clinton talked about how Thomas Jefferson and John Adams initially clashed before finding common cause and becoming allies and friends.

And the Tribune-Review quoted Clinton saying, "Our differences are important. Our political differences, our philosophical differences, our religious differences, our racial and ethnic differences, they're important. They help us to define who we are. … But they don't have to keep us at arm's length from others."

The ex-president's ability to find common cause with former adversaries is a model that other political figures in an increasingly polarized Washington would be wise to emulate, Ruddy said.

"Think about the outrageous things that were said about him, including by me, and he was able to overcome that and reach out to his critics and his adversaries and make them his friends and work together on the things we agree with," Ruddy said. "It's on the level of Nelson Mandela — that type of higher thinking and ability to forgive and forget, and it's an example of how people who have partisan and ideological differences can work together for the common good."

At Saturday's memorial, which was held at the Ligonier, Pennsylvania, estate where Scaife grew up and which was attended by more than 100 employees of his media outlets, Clinton was presented with a photo of Hillary Clinton meeting with Scaife before the 2008 Pennsylvania primary.

And Ruddy predicted that her husband's willingness to reach across the aisle will cause some major Republican donors who fought the Clinton administration alongside Scaife to be less hostile if Hillary Clinton runs for president in 2016.

"There is a realization among high-level donors and sophisticated politicos on the Republican side that Hillary Clinton is a centrist Democrat who is pro-American business and is very strong on national security," he said. "There is a sense that she and her husband share a similar worldview."

Wall Street Journal blog: Washington Wire: "Rubio Clarifies Hillary Clinton Comments: Not About Her Age"

By Brent Kendall

August 3, 2014, 1:20 p.m. EDT

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sen. Marco Rubio said on Sunday that his recent criticisms of Hillary Clinton as a “20th-century candidate” weren’t a veiled reference to the 23 year age difference between the two potential White House contenders.

“You can be 40 years old and be a 20th-century candidate,” said the 43-year-old Florida Republican, a possible member of the 2016 GOP presidential field, on Fox News on Sunday.

Sen. Rubio said Ms. Clinton, 66, was incapable of addressing the modern and rapidly changing challenges facing America.

“We are going through the equivalent of an industrial revolution every five years and I don’t think she or her party, and quite frankly, even some people in my party, have answers to that,” he said.

Sen. Rubio made the 20th-century remarks in a recent interview with National Public Radio.

CBS News: “Sen. Rand Paul: Hillary Clinton not ‘fit to lead the country’”

By Jake Miller

August 2, 2014, 2:25 p.m. EDT

Sen. Rand Paul, R-Ky., said Hillary Clinton is not "fit to lead the country" Friday, mocking the former secretary of state's comments about her wealth and condemning her response to the September 2012 attack on a U.S. facility in Benghazi.

Paul's scathing words could provide an early look at the arguments he will deploy against Clinton if they both decide to run for president. They came during a speech in Kentucky before a crowd of several hundred GOP activists.

Paul opened his speech by joking that he was losing sleep over Clinton's money problems, according to National Journal.

During her recent book tour, Clinton drew flack for claiming at one point that she and former President Bill Clinton were "dead broke" when they left the White House in 2001. Although they were deeply in debt when Mr. Clinton's presidency ended, they would go on to earn millions on the speaking circuit.

Paul asked his audience to observe a "moment of silence" for Clinton's finances.

"Somebody must have been praying for her," he said, "because she's now worth 100, 200 million. I tell you, it was really tough giving those speeches."

But at least she didn't suffer alone, Paul joked: "She had her limo driver with her for the last 17 years to commiserate."

"I certainly wish she becomes preoccupied with something else," he added, "because I don't think she's fit to lead the country."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Paul also ripped Clinton's response to the attack in Benghazi, which killed four Americans, including U.S. Ambassador to Libya Chris Stevens. Paul faulted Clinton for neglecting to read the memos requesting additional security for the Benghazi facility during her time as secretary of state.

She treated Benghazi "as if it were Paris," Paul said. "Benghazi's not Paris. Benghazi is a lot like Baghdad ... if you don't read the cables from one of the most dangerous spots on earth, frankly, you preclude yourself from ever being our commander in chief."

The speech fired up GOP troops in Kentucky, but it was only a prelude to Paul's swing through Iowa next week. Starting Monday, Paul will visit at least eight different communities representing each of the state's major media markets, according to the Des Moines Register.

Iowa, which holds the leadoff caucuses in the presidential nominating process, is a must-visit state for anyone mulling a presidential bid. The state has already seen a flurry of visits from potential 2016 contenders this year.

In addition to Paul, Sen. Ted Cruz, R-Texas, is in Iowa this weekend, and he's scheduled to attend an event sponsored by notable Iowa Republican Bruce Rastetter, the Register reports.

Cruz, whose high-profile fights with Democrats and his own GOP leaders have endeared him to grassroots conservatives, has emerged as a favorite among the activists who traditionally power Iowa's Republican caucuses.

"Whenever we need a voice in Washington, he seems to be the most eager to stand up for we out here in the grassroots," Steve Deace, a conservative radio host based out of Iowa, told The Hill newspaper. "The more people disdain him in D.C., the more they're going to improve his chances in 2016."

Paul and Cruz are also scheduled to attend the Family Leadership Summit in Ames, Iowa, later this month, where they'll be joined by several other potential presidential contenders, including Sen. Marco Rubio, R-Fla., former Sen. Rick Santorum, R-Pa., and Govs. Rick Perry, R-Texas, and Bobby Jindal, R-La.

Salon: "Is Hillary Clinton the true heir of Ronald Reagan?"

By Andrew O'Hehir

August 2, 2014, 1:00 p.m. EDT

[Subtitle:] Not since 1980 has a candidate seemed so unstoppable -- and Hillary resembles the Gipper in other ways too

No doubt it's the height of folly to forecast the results of a presidential election that's still more than two years away. But most observers of any political orientation, regarding the landscape right now, would conclude that it's more likely than not that America's first black president will be directly followed by our first female president. Are you celebrating yet?

Of course we don't know for sure whether Hillary Clinton is running in 2016, but at this point she's just toying with us, like a cat with a badly injured mouse. She stands in a virtually unprecedented position of dominance, relative to her own party and the electorate as a whole. While the Democratic left harbors impotent fantasies of defeating her (Bernie Sanders LOL!) and the Republican right prepares for a predictable series of apoplectic seizures about how she's a lesbian murderess who personally shot up the Benghazi consulate, the public seems generally OK with Clinton's impending coronation. As numerous commentators have observed, her principal opponent is probably not Jeb Bush or Rand Paul but herself, or at least the possibility that we'll all feel sick of her before she gets elected. It's a strange situation, and not a healthy one.

Let's take a second to recognize that I'm a white dude delivering a dismissive take on events of undoubted historical and symbolic significance that were, or will be, immensely meaningful for many people. But after the disheartening first three-quarters of the Obama era, it's difficult to avoid the conclusion that symbolic meaning is the last layer of meaning left in our quadrennial electoral circus. Maybe it's not Hillary Clinton's fault that her likely ascension feels like the event that will mark the final Dracula-suckage of lifeblood from American electoral politics, just as it's not entirely Barack Obama's fault that his "transformational presidency" blundered into a stagnant swamp infested with whining Republican mosquitoes and never got out again. They are just two people, after all! Two imperfect people with the best intentions, supposedly trying to do their best in a screwed-up situation.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Except that I don't really buy that argument. Obama and Clinton and everybody else in the partisan duopoly are simultaneously the casualties, beneficiaries and perpetrators of a broken system, in which Democrats and Republicans draw their voters from opposing social castes (not classes) but actually represent the interests of rival cliques within a tiny moneyed elite. The onetime Seven Sisters student radical "had to" evolve into a mouthpiece for Wall Street and the entrenched foreign-policy establishment, just as the onetime Chicago community activist "had to" leave the financial sector in the hands of exactly the same criminals who wrecked it and renege on a whole range of hopey-changey campaign promises. I'm well aware of the spin their defenders will put on that stuff – politics is a dirty business and we all need to grow up and anyway SCOTUS! – and we're not going to settle that debate today, or at any other time.

As you will no doubt recall, people got immensely excited on both sides of the heated Obama-Clinton primary battle in 2008, hurling all kinds of invective about racism and sexism at each other, predicting catastrophic defeat for the other candidate and promising to rip the fragile Democratic coalition apart. (Remember the PUMA demographic, angry Clinton supporters who threatened to bolt for the McCain-Palin ticket out of spite? Ah, memory!) Whatever that was really about – and my former Salon colleague Rebecca Traister has explored it in depth – it had very little to do with those two candidates, except in their roles as symbols or signifiers.

All that fevered discussion about who rigged the Nevada caucus and who made the most obnoxious comments on TV feels like a lifetime ago, the product of an innocent age when politics seemed charged with possibility and hope. But the thing is, it wasn't all that long ago and we weren't innocent. We should have known better and basically did. It's just that presidential elections exert a seductive allure that keeps suckering us back into the tent, like a bunch of Ohio farm boys at a 19th-century carnival, hoping against hope that this time the magic will turn out to be real. It's a lot easier to write snarky, dispassionate analysis now than it will be in a year or so, when progressives are trying to gin up excitement for a nonexistent Elizabeth Warren campaign or we all have to have a hysterical meltdown about Ted Cruz's "surprising" poll numbers from a fondue dinner held in an Iowa cornfield.

There's no precise historical parallel, at least in the contemporary party-politics era, for the commanding position Hillary Clinton appears to hold roughly 16 months out from the first caucuses and primaries. It's not that there haven't been heavy favorites or heirs apparent in previous elections – that's a feature of the system. But it seems not just possible but probable that Clinton will face no serious or significant opposition within her own party, which as far as I can tell is a brand new situation for a non-incumbent candidate. Warren is nowhere near foolish enough to torch her political future on a futile campaign of resistance. While Joe Biden will almost certainly run if Clinton doesn't, he's not enough of a masochist to take her on directly and endure yet another public humiliation. If Sanders runs (and he'd have to change his political registration, for one thing) he'll make the Dennis Kucinich campaigns of 2004 and 2008 look like devastating political whirlwinds.

If there's a historical precedent to Hillary-zilla it is to be found in the Republican Party, where big-money donors and a Washington-based establishment have long done their best to control the presidential nomination process and quell populist uprisings. Specifically, it's Ronald Reagan in 1980. Most Republicans assumed going into that campaign that Reagan – who had been waiting around as the conservative savior since nearly wresting the nomination from Gerald Ford in 1976 – would sweep to victory in the primaries and then drive cardigan-clad malaise-monger Jimmy Carter from the White House and restore America to its true greatness. They were ultimately correct about all that (except for the "true greatness"), but Reagan actually faced brief but spirited opposition from George H.W. Bush, who played the role of responsible centrist in that campaign and memorably denounced Reagan's "voodoo economics." Bush emulated the Carter-McGovern strategy of slogging through all the meaningless straw polls and small-town dinners in the fall of 1979 while Reagan stayed home in California, and after winning the Iowa caucus Bush momentarily looked like the front-runner. Reagan ultimately swamped him in the South, of course, but Bush won six primaries and more than 3 million votes, essentially forcing himself onto the ticket as the vice-presidential nominee. Who's going to put up that level of resistance to Hillary Clinton?

I guess the 1988 Republican campaign also looks similar, but only at first glance and only in the rear-view mirror: After two terms as Reagan's vice president, Bush coasted to the nomination just as everybody expected. (And then to victory over Michael Dukakis, one of the more bathetic also-rans of recent political history.) But those who remember that era in Republican politics can testify that the intra-party divisions were highly acrimonious. Sen. Bob Dole won the Iowa caucus and several Midwestern primaries, and deserves a special footnote in American history for decrying the lies and dirty tricks of Lee Atwater, Bush's infamous campaign strategist. Televangelist Pat Robertson terrified the world that year by packing a few caucuses with his followers (he got 82 percent of the vote in Hawaii!), thereby compelling all future Republican candidates to pay ritual obeisance to the Christian right.

There is certainly a cadre of disgruntled liberal Democrats who aren't thrilled about the incoming tsunami of the Clinton campaign, and in the age of social media they'll get to vent their spleen repeatedly in the months ahead by promising to draft Warren or vote Green or get so stoned that Rand Paul appears palatable. But it's not at all clear that they represent a significant voting bloc, or that any plausible candidate wants to be their standard-bearer. This tells us a number of things about the contemporary Democratic Party and about politics in general, none of them terribly encouraging.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Among the obvious notes here is the fact that electoral politics has increasingly become an oligarchic or dynastic enterprise, open only to the immensely wealthy and/or the immensely well connected. If we get a Clinton facing a Bush in the 2016 general election – which is not just plausible but reasonably likely – that would mean that 50 percent of the major-party presidential nominees over the last 28 years and eight electoral cycles have had one or the other of those surnames. If politics is a blood sport for the new aristocracy — an American cognate to fox hunting, with you and me as the fox – that does more than symbolize our widening social inequality. It embodies it, and enacts it. You can't separate the fact that only rich people can run for president from the fact that both parties are fueled by rich people's money, or from the fact that beneath all their partisan bickering Democrats and Republicans have vigorously collaborated for more than 20 years on a set of deregulatory, low-tax and cheap-credit economic policies that have made rich people a whole lot richer. It's not like those are unrelated coincidences.

I'm not saying there are no differences between the two parties, or that given the binary choice with a gun to my head, I might not prefer Hillary Clinton as president to whomever the Republicans nominate. (This is a topic for another time, but Democrats clearly have the most to fear from Rand Paul, who represents a potentially significant reboot of the Republican brand.) Generally speaking, the Democratic Party stands for what might be termed the metropolitan caste in American life, a diverse group of people who live in or near major cities and tend to support a range of rights-based issues around race, gender, sexuality and related factors. You can't say the party represents that caste with much force or courage, and it does so more by following than by leading. Democrats took years to commit fully to a pro-choice position, were late to the party on marriage equality, and are still way behind their metropolitan base on marijuana. Nonetheless that's a big contrast to the Republicans, who at least for marketing purposes view the metropolitan caste as a bunch of socialistic tree-huggers who will take away your guns and your F-150 and compel you to drive a Prius to your gay marriage.

But what Hillary Clinton and Obama and most other prominent Democrats of the 21st century definitely don't represent is any form of progressive or class-based economic philosophy. Elizabeth Warren's election to the Senate caused such a stir because she appears to be a mild exception to this rule. As former Bill Clinton aide Bill Curry wrote recently in Salon, the deregulation of the telecommunications and financial services industries under his onetime boss in the '90s was a more far-reaching and corporate-friendly policy shift than anything in Ronald Reagan's wildest trickle-down dreams. That marked the moment, Curry says, when "issues of economic and political power [grew] invisible to Democrats." When Ralph Nader ran for president in 2000 on precisely those issues, he was viewed as a traitor who cost Al Gore the White House. But if the Democrats had nominated a pro-lifer and Gloria Steinem had run as an independent, it might well have split the party in half.

All of which brings me back to the final point of similarity between Hillary Clinton and Reagan, the man who dominated one election cycle from end to end and the woman who hopes to repeat that feat. They could hardly be more different as political personalities and (one imagines) as human beings, and their electoral appeal is directed at totally divergent audiences. But both function in the political marketplace first and foremost as powerful symbols: Reagan was a symbol of American manhood and the mythical American past, while Clinton stands (I guess) for the upward progress of American women and a more egalitarian future. (It's not entirely accidental that both have provoked exaggerated hatred among their opponents.)

I write about the movies, and would be the last person on Earth to tell you that symbols don't matter. But they often do not mean what they seem to mean, and neither Clinton nor Reagan actually represents what they seem to represent. Reagan did little or nothing for the working-class white Americans who elected him, and if Clinton reaches the White House she will not be there to serve metropolitan women. Beneath the scrim of symbolic meanings, which are meant to reassure and distract and most importantly to win elections, the same force works through both of them: the force of money and those who wield it.

The Daily Beast: "For 2016, Take Martin O'Malley Seriously"

By Jonathan Miller

August 3, 2014

[Subtitle:] The Maryland governor is a problem-solver and a social-justice Catholic who can transcend the left-right divide. Keep an eye on him.

As Martin O'Malley dips his ankles into the deep end of national politics – most recently with his full-throated plea earlier this month against the deportation of immigrant children — I recalled the first time I saw him on a national stage.

I had a pretty good view: I was standing right next to him.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The two of us were being paraded as rising stars by the Democratic Leadership Council at the 2000 Democratic National Convention -- and even featured together on the cover of The New Democrat magazine.

Alas … may the DLC rest in peace. (So too with my own political career.) But give the late Third Way vanguard some crystal ball credit: O'Malley could be the next President of the United States.

In his potential White House run, however, O'Malley won't be pursuing the DLC's lurch-to-the-center path. Nor will he be following the liberal orthodoxy. Indeed, it's the Maryland Governor's uniquely post-Clinton, post-Obama positioning that makes him this handicapper's pick to emerge as the dark horse with the most potent stretch kick in the 2016 presidential derby.

The most compelling reason? As O'Malley demonstrated in the immigration debate, he's the rare progressive to frame his strongly felt policy positions in the language of faith. It's the passionate application of universal moral values by this devout Catholic that has the potential to upend the usual partisan and ideological categories that are choking today's body politic.

I sat down with O'Malley on July 11, a few hours after he stole the platform at the National Governors' Association annual conference in Nashville and broke with the President by forcefully and emotionally calling for a more compassionate policy on the treatment of Central American children who've recently come to the United States illegally: "It is contrary to everything we stand for to try to summarily send children back to death."

With the potential primary still flooded with fluid contingencies, O'Malley demurs about the prospects of challenging Hillary Clinton. "I haven't even decided if I'm running yet, so I'm not thinking about other potential candidates," he told me. "I'm focused on governing Maryland, helping Democrats win in 2014, and preparing responsibly so that I can make a decision when the time is right."

O'Malley's record as governor of Maryland, and before that mayor of Baltimore, provides plenty of manna to nourish starving progressives. Long before his immigration comments, the Governor punched through a succession of liberal hot-buttons: Marriage equality? Check. Gun control? Check. Death penalty repeal? Check. Decriminalizing pot and legalizing medical marijuana? Check and check. Some might argue that he's even been too liberal for solid blue Maryland. In fact, some do, and vociferously: Discontented residents of four western counties have been pushing an initiative for months to secede from the rest of the state.

O'Malley has ticked off plenty of liberals as well. Inheriting a $1.7 billion structural deficit and then plunging into the headwinds of the Great Recession, the Governor pushed through more than $9.5 billion in budget cuts, requiring sizable state employee layoffs, and the downsizing of critical health and transportation programs. And the state's largest public employee unions expressed considerable displeasure with O'Malley's signature pension reform efforts

Overall, however, O'Malley can point to a fiscal track record that most progressives would embrace: investing record sums in education to produce the nation's top ranked public schools five years in a row and lowest college tuition hikes since 2007; expanding the earned income tax credit and increasing the minimum wage to $10.10 an hour; and recovering all of the jobs lost in the national recession.

Of course, you can't win enough electoral votes in our purple nation by tacking completely left — especially in 2016, when Obama fatigue likely will be weighing on the nation.

But O'Malley understands that the left/right/center paradigm isn't important to the Americans who actually determine our national elections in today's deeply polarized polity. Swing voters and independents aren't clamoring for moderation or centrism: They are looking for leaders who will put aside party and ideology on occasion and actually get stuff done.

Over the past few years, the national bi-partisan grassroots organization No Labels (I'm a co-founder) has been polling and focus-grouping these voters. Our surveys have consistently shown that a majority of Americans are looking not at party or ideology; but rather for problem-solving. And O'Malley can make a plausible case that he's been a problem-solver above all.

Time's best mayor of 2005 and Governing's public official of 2009 has defined his brand as a stickler for non-partisan, data-driven management and administrative competence. In his coming out speech in Iowa – keynoting this June's state Democratic convention — O'Malley devoted several minutes to discussing the technocratic approach he used to fight crime: "When I was elected mayor in 1999 … Baltimore had become the most violent, most addicted, most abandoned city in America … So we set out to make our city work again. We saw trash in our streets and alleys, so we picked it up every day. We saw open air drug markets, and we began to relentlessly close them down … Over the next 10 years, Baltimore went on to achieve the biggest reduction in part 1 crime of any major city in America."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He has used the same non-ideological approach on issues ranging from biotechnology and aerospace to roads, bridges, transit projects, new schools, and rural broadband connectivity.

But the most interesting thing about O'Malley is his exploration of an intriguing, heart-centered strategy that could potentially shake up our national political paradigm: using the language of faith and universal moral values to ground public policy. Republicans have owned the faith space since the Reagan era. Presidential candidate Barack Obama tried valiantly to take it back in 2008, but after the embarrassment of Reverend Jeremiah Wright and the right wing's maniacal campaign to brand him a Muslim, Obama's rhetorical strategy was mostly abandoned.

O'Malley appears to be reaching to pick up the scepter. The regular weekday Mass attendee — who brings to mind the beer-drinking, Irish Catholic everyman rather than the pious moral scold — described his religious beliefs to me as the underpinning of his public vocation. He referred me to a speech he delivered to his high school alma mater way back in 2002 in which he connected his Catholic education with his passion for problem solving:

"I learned … to search for Christ in the faces of others including, and especially, the faces of the poor, the faces of the homeless men who lined up for a meal every morning alongside the foundations of this church … I learned … to recognize and confront the enemy within – the original sin of our own culture and environment that would have us think less of people who – because of race, or class, or place – are not like us … And I learned that it is not enough to have faith, you must also have the courage to risk action on that faith, to risk failure upon that faith: the faith that one person can make a difference and that each of us must try."

It's no wonder, then, that he grounded his angry denunciation of Obama's immigration policy in the faith tradition: "Through all of the great world religions, we are told that hospitality to strangers is an essential human dignity. … It is a belief that unites all of us."

Note that he didn't mention his Christianity, nor even the slightly more politically correct construct of "Judeo-Christian values." Instead, he reached to a broader audience, with the understanding that all religious and spiritual traditions in world history share at their core the same universal moral values, of welcoming the stranger and loving one's neighbor — of compassion and community. This appeal to unity — to a common higher ground — can potentially disrupt the GOP's monopoly on faith, without frightening religious minorities, or even agnostics, from the Democratic fold.

Most significantly, by embracing shared moral values, O'Malley might even find the path to counter today's dominant politics of self-interest that underlies both Tea Party libertarianism and the more cynical, transactional-based politics that serves as Washington's greatest bi-partisan consensus.

Perhaps that's enough dreaming. Back here in the real world of politics, O'Malley has quite an arduous journey ahead of him, especially if Clinton decides to run. He can expect bruising personal and professional scrutiny from a cruel and punishing new media, which may constrain his ability to define himself and articulate the vision. Most pertinently, recent critical focus on a Baltimore jail scandal and Obamacare's rocky roll out in Maryland could directly undermine both his problem-solver and moral paladin narratives.

But at least from my vantage point, Martin O'Malley could be the right messenger with the right message. And the rising star still standing just might be in the best position to offer some elixir to our deeply ailing political system.

Washington Examiner: "Why some donors are giving to dark horse Martin O'Malley"

By Rebecca Berg

August 3, 2014, 5:00 a.m. EDT

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

As it turns out, not everyone is ready for Hillary.

Though former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, the presumed Democratic frontrunner, leads by as much as 50 percent in some polls, there is some evidence that some former supporters are looking with interest at Maryland Gov. Martin O'Malley.

As many Democrats might have expected, O'Malley has attracted respectable support from within Maryland, as well as from some prominent former Obama supporters, such as the bundler Stewart Bainum.

But, more surprisingly, O'Malley's early base of support also overlaps somewhat with Clinton's network, even as she appears as poised as ever to run for president and swamp him in the race, at least at the outset.

There are several reasons why potential donors or aides might eschew supporting Clinton for O'Malley, at least for now.

On the staffing side, there is a sense among some young, up-and-coming Democratic operatives that the waiting list for a potential Clinton presidential campaign is already closed — but not so with a fresh candidate like O'Malley, whose campaign could be a prime launching pad for new political talent.

One senior position on O'Malley's political team has already been scooped up by a Clinton alum. Adam Goers, who served as Clinton's midwest finance director during her bid for president, is the executive director at O'Malley's federal political action committee, O' Say Can You See PAC, known colloquially as "O'PAC."

A similar story is being told in donations to the PAC, which brought in nearly $800,000 during the most recent fundraising quarter. Already, two former Clinton bundlers — so-called "Hillraisers" from the 2008 campaign — have stepped up to contribute thousands of dollars to O'Malley: Lainy Lebow-Sachs of Maryland and C. Thomas McMillen of Washington.

The donations don't necessarily reflect dissatisfaction with Clinton.

Paul DiNino served as the Democratic National Committee's national finance director under President Clinton, and he supported Hillary Clinton in 2008 — but he's steering potential donors to O'Malley, making the case that it is a wise investment. Because O'Malley does not possess a vast donor network on par with Clinton's, each big-money donor could wield that much more influence within O'Malley's campaign, should it take flight.

DiNino, who lives in Maryland but has deep ties to Iowa politics, has also stressed O'Malley's role as a party surrogate during the 2014 midterm elections. The Maryland governor has, unlike Clinton, been crisscrossing the country to campaign for Democrats — in early presidential primary states, of course, but in others as well.

"Right now, it's Martin O'Malley, and it's only Martin O'Malley," DiNino said. "He's filling a giant void for Democrats."

A spokesperson for the pro-Clinton group Ready For Hillary told the Washington Examiner earlier this year that the group would "look to amplify the efforts that Hillary engages in for the midterms." But those efforts, if they develop, likely won't come to fruition until late in the fall.

In the meantime, O'Malley is one of the few Democrats making all the overtures characteristic of a would-be presidential candidate, including frequent, publicized trips to early primary states.

He has traveled on multiple occasions to Iowa, including last week, when O'Malley, the former chair of the Democratic Governors Association, campaigned with the state's Democratic nominee for governor, Jack Hatch.

O'Malley has also traveled twice to New Hampshire to raise money for Gov. Maggie Hassan and Sen. Jeanne Shaheen, campaigned in South Carolina in May for Democratic gubernatorial candidate Vincent Sheheen, and even made a trip in May to Nevada, another early primary state.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

O'Malley has not yet decided, officially and publicly, to run for president, although he has been candid about seriously considering that avenue. There is also a sense, however, fortified by hints from O'Malley's allies, that he might not follow through with a campaign should Clinton run for president.

O'Malley, after all, does not have an adversarial history personally or on policy with the Clintons. In fact, he was a bundler for Clinton during her 2008 campaign. O'Malley, 51, is also young enough to wait to run for president later should he decide the opportunity is not ripe this time.

"He's not going anywhere," DiNino said. "He has a long political career ahead of him."

And at least as long as Clinton publicly hems and haws about whether she will run for president, O'Malley will welcome some of her allies into his fold in support of that career, wherever it might lead.

Calendar:

Sec. Clinton's upcoming appearances as reported online. Not an official schedule.

· August 6 – Huntington, NY: Sec. Clinton signs books at Book Revue (HillaryClintonMemoir.com)

· August 9 – Water Mill, NY: Sec. Clinton fundraises for the Clinton Foundation at the home of George and Joan Hornig (WSJ)

· August 13 – Martha's Vinyard, MA: Sec. Clinton signs books at Bunch of Grapes (HillaryClintonMemoir.com)

· August 16 – East Hampton, New York: Sec. Clinton signs books at Bookhampton East Hampton (HillaryClintonMemoir.com)

· August 28 – San Francisco, CA: Sec. Clinton keynotes Nexenta's OpenSDx Summit (BusinessWire)

· September 4 – Las Vegas, NV: Sec. Clinton speaks at the National Clean Energy Summit (Solar Novis Today)

· October 2 – Miami Beach, FL: Sec. Clinton keynotes the CREW Network Convention & Marketplace (CREW Network)

· October 13 – Las Vegas, NV: Sec. Clinton keynotes the UNLV Foundation Annual Dinner (UNLV)

· ~ October 13-16 – San Francisco, CA: Sec. Clinton keynotes salesforce.com Dreamforce conference (salesforce.com)

· December 4 – Boston, MA: Sec. Clinton speaks at the Massachusetts Conference for Women (MCFW)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Froman, Michael B" <fromanm@citi.com>
To:	"Pete Rouse" <prouse@barackobama.com>
Date:	9/24/2008 5:11:46 AM
Subject:	RE: T-meeting

I'll make it work. John?

From: Pete Rouse [mailto:prouse@barackobama.com]
Sent: Wednesday, September 24, 2008 11:17 AM
To: Froman, Michael B [CAI]
Subject: FW: T-meeting

Can you make this work?

From: Alyssa Mastromonaco
Sent: Wednesday, September 24, 2008 9:42 AM
To: Pete Rouse
Subject: T-meeting

Monday, 29th
Reno, NV

We don't have a hotel yet. My guess would be that everyone should land in Reno no later than 300PM so they are in the hotel before the press arrives.

_____
Alyssa Mastromonaco
Director of Scheduling and Advance
Obama for America
312-819-2008

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Amanda Shelton" <samandashelton@gmail.com>
Date:	5/9/2014 6:10:33 AM
Subject:	Re: Second Quick Question

Your call.

On May 8, 2014 1:41 PM, "Amanda Shelton" <samandashelton@gmail.com > wrote:

> Judge Leon and Prof. Podesta,
>
> My apologies, but I had one other very quick question for the paper before I turn it in. Do you have a preference for footnotes or endnotes? The instructions got me a bit off, as they say "Every student is required to write a paper of at least 20 double-spaced pages, excluding footnotes." I ask because if the paper has footnotes as opposed to endnotes, it will be more difficult to tell if the text itself is at least 20 pages.
>
> Many thanks,
> Amanda
>
> --
> S. Amanda Shelton
> J.D. Candidate, 2014
> Georgetown University Law Center
> samandashelton@gmail.com
> (417) 396-3622

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Randi Weingarten, Office of the President" <rweingar@aft.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/27/2016 6:21:17 PM
Subject:

Congrats John. Also Mass felt very good today. Randi

Sent from my iPhone

This e-mail and any attachments are confidential and are intended solely for the named addressee(s). If you are not a named addressee, you should not copy, alter, post, forward, distribute or disseminate the contents of the e-mail or attachments. When responding, please refrain from including information such as social security numbers, passwords, and other sensitive types of data in non-encrypted emails and non-password protected email attachments. Any views or opinions expressed are solely those of the individual and do not necessarily represent those of the American Federation of Teachers (AFT).

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sandler, Herbert" <hms@sandlerfoundation.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/3/2015 9:08:23 AM
Subject:	The Political Logic Behind Hillary's Horrible 'Pants uit T-Shirt' - Bloomberg Politics

http://www.bloomberg.com/politics/articles/2015-06-03/the-political-logic-behind-hillary-s-horrible-pantsuit-t-shirt-

Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: creamer2@aol.com
To: can@americansunitedforchange.org
bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 1/5/2010 8:17:55 AM
Subject: [big campaign] New Huff Post from Creamer -- Obama's Secret Weapon: OFA

Obama's Secret Weapon: OFA

In a season when the political punditry stampeded its way into prognostications of Democratic political disaster this fall, it is well to remember that Democrats – and the Obama political operation – have a weapon, the importance of which Washington types don't fully understand: Organizing for America (OFA).

There is no question that the mid-term elections are fraught with political danger. For Democrats to hold our own this fall will require that we do six things:

Demonstrate to voters that we are fighting tooth and nail for the fundamental change that they supported in 2008 – and still support today;

Deliver real economic recovery for average Americans that average people can begin to see for themselves by next fall;

Pass a legislative agenda that lays the foundation for long-term, widely-shared economic growth – health care reform, re-regulation of Wall Street, creation of clean energy jobs, and comprehensive immigration reform;

Frame the battle in personal, populist terms that puts the blame for our economic crisis where it belongs – on the Wall Street bankers whose reckless greed cost millions of Americans their well-being;

Continue to take the offensive at framing the entire debate in terms of our progressive values;

Engage everyday Americans directly in the many battles – including the November elections – that will come at us rapid-fire for the next ten months.

OFA provides a vehicle to help accomplish each of these goals that has never existed before.

Organizing for America (OFA) – formerly Obama for America – was reorganized after the 2008 election with the object of creating a permanent army of ordinary Americans that could create the grassroots fire necessary to pass Obama's change agenda. Over the first months of 2009, the organization hired staff, set up local operations, began to transform itself from a purely electoral operation into one that could simultaneously line up Congressional votes for Obama's initiatives – and demonstrate to Members of Congress that it would have their backs next November.

It was built upon the premise that fundamental change is impossible without massive grassroots activity. After all, the insurance companies, big Wall Street banks, energy industry and the Chamber of Commerce had no plans to roll over and play dead just because Obama had been elected with a mandate for change.

The correctness of that assumption became starkly clear in August when the right wing organized – and big business financed – the Tea Party movement to try to put a stake in the heart of health insurance reform.

In 2005, I served as the National Field Director of the campaign to stop the Bush proposal to privatize Social Security. That year we ran a massive, successful effort to kill privatization during the August recess. When Republicans returned to Washington in September of that year, they marched into the Republican Leadership's office and demanded that they throw in the towel on Social Security privatization.

Exactly the same thing would have happened with health care reform in September of 2009 had OFA had not stepped up to coordinate a counter-offensive. For those of us working to pass health insurance reform it was like the cavalry arriving over the hill. OFA chaired a task force of progressive organizations – and mobilized thousands of health care reform supporters to attend town meetings across the country. That effort turned the tide in the last weeks of August and saved health insurance reform.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

AFSCME, SEIU, the AFL-CIO, MoveOn, Americans United for Change, Families USA, AARP, NEA and especially Health Care for America Now (HCAN) – that spearheaded the fight -- have all played critical roles in this battle. None of them would dispute the decisive role played by OFA.

Together these organizations generated millions of contacts with Congress supporting health insurance reform. But no one has produced more than OFA, which by itself has generated over a million calls to Congress.

Last year, OFA organized their members to take over 2.5 million individual actions – calls, door knocks, emails, faxes, and letters to the editor. They have held over 25,000 events across the country on health care reform just since last June.

In one day in August, 65,000 OFA members descended upon the offices of Members of Congress in support of health care reform.

You can say without question, that if OFA did not exist, that the House and Senate would not be negotiating the final terms of health insurance reform – that there would have been no health care reform at all.

There are many Progressives – like me – who believe strongly that to fulfill the promise of health insurance reform, we must soon have a strong public option. I believe that before many of the provisions of the current bill go into effect, that we will have a public option. But that will happen because we are organized to defeat the insurance industry on the ground. To do it, we can't just complain that it's not as easy to get it done as we had hoped. We have to continue the kind of organizing that OFA has been doing for the last three years – involving millions of everyday people. In other words we have to live by the slogan: "don't whine, organize."

Let's be clear. If some of the dire pundit prognostications come true, Progressives won't have any hope at all of passing our agenda beginning in 2011. If we lose vast numbers of seats in Congress, this extraordinary opportunity for serious progressive change will be brought to a screeching halt.

To avoid that fate, we have to deliver economic and legislative success this year. We have to pass a health care bill that provides affordable health insurance to most Americans, eliminates pre-existing conditions, reins in the power of the insurance industry and doesn't tax average workers' benefits. We have to re-regulate the Big Wall Street Banks. We have to pass comprehensive immigration reform and take major steps on the road toward creating clean energy jobs.

Most importantly, we have to deliver jobs for everyday Americans – beginning this year.

And in the process we have to keep the base of our party energized. In 1994, the Republicans took over Congress mostly because Democrats did not go to the polls. That cannot be allowed to happen again.

To all of these tasks, the organized energy of OFA's 13 million members is indispensable – just as it was to the campaign that elected Barack Obama president in the first place. It is indispensable online, in the precincts, in town meetings and going door to door.

In the fall of 2007 there was deep pundit skepticism that the Obama campaign's enormous investment in intensive, no stone unturned, grassroots organizing had any chance at all of vaulting the underdog Obama to victory in the Iowa caucuses. The campaign provided the infrastructure and culture that mobilized the activity of thousands of Labor and party activists, and thousands more average individual voters. Of course by Election Day in 2008, no one any longer doubted the power of grassroots political organizing. But in Washington, it's easy to forget.

The thing that made the Obama field operation unique was its culture. Two aspects were particularly critical:

* It taught everyone in the organization how to think like an organizer – how to engage people based on their own self-interests and engage those interests to further the goals of the campaign. It believed in fully engaging volunteers – not simply using them to accomplish a task. It was committed to empowering everyone in the organization. OFA understood the central secret of good organizing: that meaning is the greatest motivator – that you get self-motivation through inspiration. OFA understood that for someone to feel meaningful – to feel inspired – two things were required. First they had to feel that they were part of something that was very important and larger than themselves. But second, they had to believe that they could personally play a significant role in achieving the goal. That understanding of what motivates people has permeated the organization to this day.

* To its core, the Obama field operation was committed to excellence in execution – to the proposition that no stone could ever be left unturned – that no task was ever too small to be done right. That's why it won caucuses in tiny states. That's why it never left votes on the table.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

In my 40 years of work doing grassroots organizing for issue and electoral campaigns I have never seen a better field operation that the one created by OFA. It was, without doubt, the best field program in American political history.

Many of the same organizers who build OFA during the campaign have created the new OFA. They have crafted a growing infrastructure that will allow millions of everyday people to team up with MoveOn members, rank and file union activists, and leaders from the faith, minority and women's communities to take on the vested interests in every corner of America. Just as it did in the Iowa caucuses, that infrastructure could well provide the foundation for surprising victories – both in Congress and the November elections -- that the Washington pundits think are impossible. After all, surprising the pundits is what OFA does best.

Robert Creamer is a long-time political organizer and strategist, and author of the recent book: "Stand Up Straight: How Progressives Can Win," available on Amazon.com.

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
	"marlon marshall" <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Amanda Renteria" <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Christina Reynolds" <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Laura Rosenberger" <lrosenberger@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	11/10/2015 5:36:34 AM
Subject:	Fwd: VetVoice Poll Memo and Military Times Story
Attachments:	VETS POLL MEMO.pdf

Amanda, Can you forward to Jonathan. Didn't have his email.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: "Jon Soltz" <jon.soltz@gmail.com >
Date: Nov 10, 2015 11:47 AM
Subject: VetVoice Poll Memo and Military Times Story
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Cc:

Sir-

The first story on our new poll is out, from Military Times. I'm pasting it below. As you'll see, it strongly backs up what Secretary Clinton will propose, and say, today. I'm also attaching a polling memo that delves into the findings a bit more.

We have gotten intel that Neil Cavuto plans to ask a veterans question of the GOP candidates tonight. As you can guess, the candidates are very likely to attack the Secretary in their answers.

Your press team, therefore, may find it useful to get this to reporters, as independent, scientific evidence that veterans are closer to the Secretary, than Republicans, on these issues.

Now that the poll is public I have attached the polling memo below.

Thanks,

Jon

http://www.militarytimes.com/story/military/benefits/veterans/2015/11/10/vetvoice-poll-privatization-va-services/75506102/

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Poll: Veterans oppose plans to 'privatize' VA

Veterans like choice.

But they don't like privatization.

That's the bottom line from a new poll out Tuesday from the Vet Voice Foundation, designed to counter recent proposals that left-leaning advocates say would move Department of Veterans Affairs hospitals to an outsourced, privatization model.

The poll of 800 veterans, conducted jointly by a Republican-backed firm and a Democratic-backed one, found that almost two-thirds of survey respondents oppose plans to replace VA health care with a voucher system, an idea backed by some Republican lawmakers and presidential candidates.

"Veterans overwhelmingly feel that health care was a promise made for their service and oppose vouchers that may not cover all costs," group officials said in their report. "Veterans worry that private insurance companies care too much about profit and would make decisions for the care of veterans based on money."

The results push back poll numbers released by Concerned Veterans for America last month that found nearly 90 percent of veterans surveyed believe officials need to increase health care choices for VA patients, including expanded access to private care physicians.

They also point to a larger fight between Republicans and Democrats over VA reform efforts, and how each side is labeling moves to expand health care offerings for veterans in the private sector, but still at government expense.

"This poll confirms what nearly every veterans service organization has always said — privatization and voucherization of the VA is a nonstarter for veterans," said retired Army Maj. Gen. Paul Eaton, managing director of the Vet Voice Foundation.

"There is a lot of debate about 'choice' in veterans care, but when presented with the details of what 'choice' means, veterans reject it," Eaton said. "They overwhelmingly believe that the private system will not give them the quality of care they and veterans like them deserve."

The new Vet Voice poll also hints that the issue could be a factor in the 2016 elections, with 57 percent of those surveyed stating they would be less likely to vote for candidates who support "privatizing the VA health care system."

Only one in four said that stance would strengthen their support for a candidate.

Major veterans advocates have long opposed proposals for privatization, but have been more cautious in their use of the term in recent years, as lawmakers have backed initiatives to increase private care access, like the Choice Card program.

Full details of the poll are available on the foundation's website .

This email has been checked for viruses by Avast antivirus software.
www.avast.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Alan S. Blinder" <blinder@Princeton.EDU>
To:	"Elisabeth Jacobs" <ejacobs@equitablegrowth.org> melody@melodybarnes.net chetty@fas.harvard.edu john.podesta@gmail.com saez@econ.berkeley.edu tyson@haas.berkeley.edu barbmlewis@hotmail.com "Janet M. Currie" <jcurrie@Princeton.EDU> "Heather Boushey" <HBoushey@equitablegrowth.org> "Ed Paisley" <epaisley@equitablegrowth.org>
Date:	4/23/2015 11:06:22 AM
Subject:	RE: Equitable Growth Steering Committee 4/23 Call: Background Materials

Has anyone gotten onto this call? I've tried multiple times--all failures.

My new book is: After the Music Stopped (The Penguin Press, 2013).
Penguin: http://tinyurl.com/after-the-music-stopped-blurbs
Amazon: http://tinyurl.com/afterthemusicstopped-amazon
Facebook: http://facebook.com/afterthemusicstopped

Professor Alan S. Blinder
Department of Economics
105 Fisher Hall
Princeton University
Princeton, NJ 08544
Phone: 609-258-3358
Email: blinder (at) Princeton (dot) edu
Website: http://www.princeton.edu/blinder

From: Elisabeth Jacobs [mailto:ejacobs@equitablegrowth.org]
Sent: Wednesday, April 15, 2015 4:58 PM
To: melody@melodybarnes.net; Alan S. Blinder; chetty@fas.harvard.edu; john.podesta@gmail.com; saez@econ.berkeley.edu; tyson@haas.berkeley.edu; barbmlewis@hotmail.com; Janet M. Currie; Heather Boushey; Ed Paisley
Cc: euman@melodybarnes.net; dingwell@fas.harvard.edu; Eryn Sepp; mfisher@hillaryclinton.com; cynthia.okita@equitablegrowth.org; Justine N. Conoline
Subject: Equitable Growth Steering Committee 4/23 Call: Background Materials

Hello,

In anticipation of the Washington Center for Equitable Growth's Steering Committee call next week, I am sharing three documents that will help guide our conversation:

1. A meeting agenda
2. A slide deck overviewing of Equitable Growth's strategic vision and institutional strategy
3. A memo detailing our 2015 competitive grants program, including a list of invited full proposals and suggested reviewers.

We are looking forward to speaking with you next week.

The details and call-in information are below:

Thursday, April 23 2PM-3PM EST
Dial-in: 1-888-8686, passcode 3269404

Please email or call Eryn Sepp if you experience any technical difficulties before or during the call:
esepp@equitablegrowth.org
direct 202-545-6003 | cell 202-492-2967

All the best,
Elisabeth

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--
Elisabeth Jacobs
Senior Director, Policy + Academic Programs
Washington Center for Equitable Growth
ejacobs@equitablegrowth.org
202-545-3347 | @jacobselisabeth

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/23/2016 6:42:37 AM
Subject:	Talk to Stabenow?

She wants to talk to Amanda now. Did you have any notes for her?

Milia Fisher
(858) 395-1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Susan McCue" <Susan.McCue@one.org>
To:	tom@zzranch.com
	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/30/2007 10:20:17 AM
Subject:	RE: Next steps

Tom/John -- in addition to the magadonor mtg, can we set weekly day/time for standing update call beginning week after next?

-----Original Message-----
From: Tom Matzzie [mailto:tom@zzranch.com]
Sent: Friday, December 28, 2007 7:16 PM
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Cc: Susan McCue
Subject: Next steps

Hey John, I hope you're not checking email but in case you are Steve wanted to check in on figuring out next steps with his megadonor peers. He wants to do some peer-to-peer fundraising as he starts to move his money. Can we find time to talk?

Susan and I had a good meeting with Amy and got our first $1 million today.

-Tom

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	Nancybk@aol.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	5/20/2013 11:51:59 AM
Subject:	Re: Petitions & Write Your Congressperson to Give Your Views re DOL Proposed ...

The Obama administration is developing labor rules that will require seniors and people with disabilities to bring strangers into their homes, force others into institutions, and reduce the take home pay of attendants. In California, in anticipation of these Department of Labor Rules passing is causing the state to gear up to cut back IHSS worker's hours to no more than 40 hours a week, because of the state's fiscal limitations.

> Here is a sample letter from one consumer that can help you write yours. There's a link at the bottom of this that tells you how to find your federal legislator and two petition links right below it. If you want to express yourself, feel free to copy from these letters included with the petitions and in the statement below.
>
> From Michael Condon — STOP THE UNINTENDED CONSEQUENCES OF THE DOL PROPOSED RULES
>
> My name is Michael Condon. I'm a disabled Veteran, paralyzed from the neck down for the last 40 years. I live in San Diego, CA, in a home I rent,and I am assisted by a caregiver paid for by In-Home Supported Services (IHSS). IHSS employs nearly 400,000 caregivers across the State. Almost 50% of these caregivers currently work more than 40 hrs/week. In addition, 70% of the IHSS caregivers in this program care for family members, many of whom require protective supervision (24 /7 care).
>
> The State has neither the funds nor the inclination to pay overtime. This will put me, and hundreds of thousands like me, at risk of institutionalization. Because our caregivers will be limited to a 40 work week, I will be forced to have multiple caregivers while there are already not enough to meet the current need. Please do not institute the DOL regs. requiring overtime. The disabled, elderly and blind on …this program would love to have their caregivers receive time and a half, but that will not happen. What will happen (unintended consequences) instead, the caregivers hours will be cut driving many deeper into poverty. The caregiver loses, the senior/disabled loses and the Unions almost double their membership dues.
>
> Sincerely.
>
> Michael Condon
>
> This is why a 40 hour work week mandate is bad. It will be financially devastating to 46% of IHSS IP's (190,000 workers)in CA alone.
>
> Here are the two petitions:
>
> Click here: Petition | United States Department of Labor: Don't remove the "companion exemption" to the FLSA until money is th
>
> http://www.doloffmybody.org/p/because-us-department-of-labor-dol.html
>
> And here is how to look up your legislator to write your letter:
>
> http://usgovinfo.about.com/od/uscongress/a/letterscongress.htm

DOL Proposes Changes to Companionship Exemption HURT people with disabilities!

The Department of Labor (DOL) has proposed changes in federal labor rules that, although well-intentioned, will have a negative impact on people with disabilities and most seriously impact people who have the most significant disabilities who rely on Medicaid home and community based services to be independent.

Labor advocates have urged people to support these rules which are intended to assure that attendants get paid minimum wage and are paid time-and-a-half for overtime work. The disability community recognizes the invaluable role that attendants play in supporting the independence of people with disabilities and has advocated for increased funding for attendant services to improve wages, however the way DOL is implementing this rule change will have a serious negative impact on people with disabilities and promote unwanted institutionalization.

Detailed Policy Implications

Most notably, people with disabilities could face unwanted institutionalization as a result of implementing these proposed rules.

- Increasing the cost of home and community based services by requiring overtime pay, without increasing the Medicaid rates or raising the Medicaid caps for available funding, will result in a reduction in hours of personal assistance, forcing some people with disabilities into unwanted institutionalization.
- Requiring minimum wage payments for overnight assistance may raise the cost of serving individuals above established Medicaid caps, resulting in people with significant disabilities either going without needed assistance or being forced into unwanted institutionalization.
- The proposed DOL change will limit the availability of family and friends as paid attendants in consumer directed personal assistance programs. Reducing the availability of this vital component of the attendant workforce threatens the independence of Americans with disabilities.

The DOL also significantly mischaracterizes consumer directed services. DOL describes consumer directed services "as a 'grey market;' that contains an element of 'over-the-back-fence network of women [who are] usually untrained, unscreened, and unsupervised, but more affordable without an agency's fee, less constrained by regulations and hired through personal recommendation.' The term 'grey market' is sometimes used to suggest that at least some of these private arrangements are designed to avoid applicable labor laws…"

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

DOL notes that "There is no consolidated source of data on state consumer-directed programs" even though there are several resources within the disability community, and DOL fails to assess the impact that the proposed changes will have on that system for providing services and supports to people with disabilities.

It is also likely that the proposed changes will not significantly improve the lives of attendants. Because Medicaid and Medicare rates are not being increased to cover the additional cost associated with these changes, home care agencies will limit the hours attendants can work, forcing attendants who currently to work for multiple agencies in order to match their current standard of living.

The necessity to balance efforts to enhance workers' wages and benefits with the needs of people with disabilities was identified and addressed in Guiding Principles which were developed between SEIU and disability advocates. According to those Guiding Principles, signed on November 16, 2011, "As a general principle, enhancements to workers' wages and benefits shall be paid for through increased funding." The DOL proposal does not do this.

ADAPT, NCIL and the Disability have proposed a compromise solution!

At this point, we have proposed a solution that allows the White House to keep its promise AND work with the disability community on the sections of the rules that affect consumer directed services.

DOL can finalize the change in the companionship exemption that would eliminate the exemption from third-party employers. After clarifying that this change would not affect consumer-directed fiscal intermediaries, the proposed change would cover 70 percent of attendants – including those who are taken advantage of by the home care industry. By leaving the rest of the rules intact, DOL could start formal discussions with the disability community about how to handle the companionship exemption in consumer directed services.

This compromise position is consistent with the Guiding Principles signed between SEIU and the disability community last Fall. Under it, the administration covers 70% of all attendants and we get an opportunity to sit at the table! If the Obama Administration doesn't even do this, it's clear how little the Administration regards our community.

If you wish to write a letter to your congressman to give him your views concerning the Department of Labor proposed regulations, here is how:

Click here: How to Write Letters to Congress

http://usgovinfo.about.com/od/uscongress/a/letterscongress.htm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Spencer Valentine" <info@baronhillforindiana.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	2/28/2016 12:05:44 PM
Subject:	Deadlines matter

Baron HILL for INDIANA

John,

When I was running Baron Hill's petition drive to get his name on the ballot, I always reminded people that the two most important things were our goal and our deadline date. And while Todd Young may have needed party insiders to save him, our campaign always stood on solid ground.

We have another deadline now. My goal is to raise $4,980 before midnight tomorrow to help keep Baron Hill on the path to victory. Can you chip in $4.98, $49.80, or $498 before this critical deadline?

Baron Hill is the kind of leader that works his tail off to make sure the job is done right. He is the kind of leader that takes responsibility for his actions, and he's just the type of leader Indiana needs to move forward.

Please consider giving $4.98, $49.80, or $498 by our deadline at midnight on February 29th -- I assure you deadlines matter.

Sincerely,

Spencer Valentine

DONATE

Paid for by Baron Hill for Indiana

This message was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com.
If you'd no longer wish to receive updates from our campaign, please click here .

PO Box 30675
Indianapolis, IN 46230

empowered by salsa

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ross Wallen" <rwallen@usaction.org>
To:	"Ross Wallen" <rwallen@usaction.org>
Date:	12/13/2012 9:02:56 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] New USAction Report: Peace of Mind: Americans Share Their Medicare and Medicaid Stories

Hey all, (With apologies again for cross-posting!)

We are excited to share our new report out today featuring USAction members from across the country sharing their Medicaid and Medicare stories.

Peace of Mind: Americans Share Their Medicare and Medicaid Stories PDF: http://j.mp/PeaceofMindreport . Blog post with intro pasted below.

Best,

Ross Wallen
Campaigns Associate
USAction / USAction Education Fund

202-263-4573 rwallen@usaction.org @RossWallen

USAction blog , Twitter and Facebook .

REPORT: Peace of Mind – Americans Share their Medicare and Medicaid Stories.

Peace of Mind.
That's what Medicare and Medicaid mean for nearly one in every three Americans.

Almost 50 million Americans have paid into, and are beneficiaries of Medicare, our national health insurance program for seniors and people with disabilities. And almost 50 million Americans – elderly, low-income adults and their children, and people with certain disabilities – have access to Medicaid.

Six million Americans depend on both.

But now these programs are under siege. Some want to replace guaranteed Medicare benefits with a voucher. Others would "block grant" Medicaid, allowing states to sharply raise premiums and drastically slash services.

We asked our members what Medicare and Medicaid mean to them, to their families.

Their responses revealed how deeply and keenly Americans cherish and rely on the promise our nation made when we established these lifelines in 1965. It is a promise that we have kept to this day. It is a promise that Americans demand we keep in the future.

After sorting through hundreds of stories, certain themes emerged.

Many people told us they are alive only because of Medicare or Medicaid. Many others discussed how these services have enhanced the quality of their lives. Others still talked about how it brings them retirement security and peace of mind.

We heard from young people who do not directly receive benefits, but say they are able to save money they would otherwise spend on aging parents. Debra in Wheeling, Illinois wrote that without Medicare, she would have to quit her job to care for her 92-year-old mom – Social Security pays for her assisted community living, but Medicare covers her health care costs.

Many wrote that without Medicare, they would face financial ruin. A woman noted that the entirety of her monthly Social Security check would have to go to her health care costs – nothing left for anything else. A number of people wrote that Medicare and Medicaid mean neighbor helping neighbor – we're all in this together.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

These are the Medicare and Medicaid stories of ordinary Americans.

Finally, a large number of respondents expressed extreme outrage – outrage so extreme that some comments had to be edited – that a system they paid into all of their adult lives could be cut. These people clearly felt robbed and violated. “I paid into Medicare for 40 years,” writes Jim in Rochester, Michigan. “This is my money I am getting back. It is not charity. No one has the right to steal my money.”

These are the Medicare and Medicaid stories of ordinary Americans. They are on the front lines of the Medicare and Medicaid debates. Whatever policies are adopted, they are the canaries in the coal mine – they will feel the impact first.

We made them a promise.

Will we keep it?

Download the full PDF report here: http://j.mp/PeaceofMindreport

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to dubois.sara@gmail.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"John Halpin" <jlrhalpin@gmail.com>
Date:	9/21/2007 10:00:21 AM
Subject:	Re: Memo

When do you expect the labor piece?

On 9/21/07, John Halpin <jlrhalpin@gmail.com > wrote:

> With revised Iraq language; (no labor section yet). There were only a few spots I could find. Primarily upfront.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	12/30/2015 7:00:23 AM
Subject:	Re: Weather Tweet!

Instead of across the country should we say across the East Coast? Has it been record warm across the country?

On Wednesday, December 30, 2015, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Very slow on campaign-fueled social media today, but here's a weather tweet--
>
> This week in weather: a blizzard, tornado, record flooding, and a record hot Christmas across the country. @tedcruz: care to comment?
>
> --
> Milia Fisher
> Special Assistant to the Chair
> Hillary for America
> mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
> c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ron Klain" <rklain@aol.com>
To:	"Ron Klain" <ron.klain@revolution.com>
	"Ron Klain" <rklain@aol.com>
Date:	12/15/2015 4:05:51 PM
Subject:	Mock for Thursday, Dec. 17
Attachments:	HRC16-Debates-3rdDebate-Mock1217.docx

We will do a mix of drills and mock debating on Thursday – so I doubt we will get through all of the attached. But this is the set of questions I intend to draw from as we mock. So please review and suggest additions, deletions, or changes.

Ron

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Igor Volsky" <igorvolsky@gmail.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	10/3/2014 2:37:58 AM
Subject:	Panetta

Hey John -- hope all is well with you!

Just wanted to send over the piece I put up on the Panetta book this morning:

http://thinkprogress.org/world/2014/10/03/3575482/former-secretary-of-defense-changes-his-tune-on-iraq/

Judd is out today, but I'm around if there is more to do. 202-741-6387

Igor

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "David Miller" <dmiller@campaignmoney.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 11/20/2008 5:22:09 AM
Subject: [big campaign] Public Campaign Praises Choice Of Gov. Napolitano For Homeland Security Post

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Thursday, November 20, 2008

CONTACT
David Miller, Communications Manager
(202) 293-0222

Public Campaign Praises Choice Of Gov. Napolitano For Homeland Security Post

Washington, D.C. – Public Campaign, a leading national nonpartisan organization dedicated to passing sweeping campaign reform laws, praised the pending nomination of Gov. Janet Napolitano (D-AZ) to be the Secretary of Homeland Security in President-Elect Barack Obama's administration.

Nick Nyhart, president and CEO of Public Campaign, said Napolitano's ascendance to a Cabinet post is a deserved achievement for the Arizona governor. Gov. Napolitano twice ran and won gubernatorial elections while participating in Arizona's ground-breaking Clean Elections system of full public financing.

"We congratulate Gov. Napolitano and wish her every success as she moves to the Department of Homeland Security," Nyhart said. "In Gov. Napolitano, President-Elect Obama has chosen an executive with a record of independent, strong judgment and leadership for a position that is vital to our nation's well-being. Having run and won public office without relying on private donations from wealthy special interests, Gov. Napolitano, should she be nominated and confirmed, would enter this critical position without any appearance that she's depended on wealthy donors to finance her political career. That would be a positive development after years of crony contracts and special interest favoritism throughout the federal government."

Napolitano first ran under Arizona's Clean Elections program in 2002. Her leadership on the program has helped make it a mainstay of Arizona politics – Clean Elections candidates will hold 54 percent of the seats in the incoming legislature, up from 42 percent today. Additionally, candidates that ran under the Clean Elections program will hold eight of Arizona's 11 statewide offices in 2009.

Napolitano has spoken out in praise of the effect Clean Elections had on her own campaigns, saying "I got to spend time with voters as opposed to dialing for dollars, or trying to sell tickets to $250-a-plate fundraisers. This was much better." The program provides a limited amount of public financing for candidates who raise a large number of small donations and who agree to swear off big money. Similar laws have worked well in Connecticut, Maine, North Carolina and elsewhere.

Nyhart said the Homeland Security Department would be well-served being led by an official free of entanglements with big-money donors and powerful lobbyists.

"With the great challenges facing this nation, Americans should believe that our elected officials are working for all of us, not just those who can afford to write a big check or hire a lobbyist," Nyhart said. "We appreciate Gov. Napolitano's and President-Elect Obama's long, steadfast support for comprehensive public financing of elections."

###

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail lori@progressiveaccountability.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Clinton, Press Office \(Clinton\)" <Press_Office@clinton.senate.gov>
To:
Date: 11/26/2007 9:36:54 AM
Subject: RELEASE: Senator Clinton Calls for Investigation of Homeland Security Contractor Bonuses

NEW YORK
Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton
PRESS RELEASE
Home | News | Contact | About | Services | Issues | New York

For Immediate Release
November 26, 2007

Contact:
Clinton Press Office 202-224-2243 or
press_office@clinton.senate.gov

SENATOR CLINTON CALLS FOR INVESTIGATION OF HOMELAND SECURITY CONTRACTOR BONUSES

Washington, DC – Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton today called on the Inspector General of the United States Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to expand an investigation of federal contracting practices to investigate the practice of award fees by DHS, especially when it comes to no-bid contracts. Senator Clinton's call comes in light of a recent report by DHS Inspector General Richard Skinner that DHS improperly awarded a $475 million no-bid contract to Chenega Technology Services Corporation, which according to the report "likely did not provide the government the best value" and that DHS "did not comply with federal regulations". According to the IG's office, the agency also provided award fees to the company as part of its contract. In calling for the investigation, Senator Clinton underscored that despite federal law requiring DHS to link award fees with successful acquisition outcomes, there have been a number of reports of DHS providing award fees regardless of performance.

"This disconnect between performance and award fees appears to be part of a troubling pattern," said Senator Clinton. "In too many cases, DHS appears to be awarding bonuses without evaluating work or, even worse, despite poor performance. Failing contractors should be rooted out not rewarded."

The following is Senator Clinton's letter to DHS Inspector General Richard L. Skinner requesting an investigation:

November 26, 2007

Mr. Richard L. Skinner
Inspector General
United States Department of Homeland Security
Washington, D.C. 20528

Dear Mr. Skinner:

I write regarding a disturbing report you issued last month that raises serious questions about contracting practices at the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). The report – Customs and Border Protection Award and Oversight of Alaska Native Corporation Contract for Enforcement Equipment Maintenance and Field Operations Support (OIG-08-10) – details how DHS improperly awarded a $475 million, no-bid contract to Chenega Technology Services Corporation to maintain X-ray, radiation and other screening machines at U.S. border checkpoints. Your report concludes the contract "award likely did not provide the government the best value" and that DHS "did not comply with federal regulations."

Additionally, your staff informs me that award fees were given to Chenega as a part of its contract with DHS. Given that your report did not focus on award fees to Chenega, the details of these fees are unclear. However, taken together with your conclusion that the Department improperly awarded the underlying contract to Chenega, it is disturbing to hear that DHS has provided an award fee to this corporation.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This disconnect between performance and award fees appears to be part of a troubling pattern. The Federal Acquisition Regulations (FAR) state clearly that cost-based award fee contracts are intended to motivate excellent contractor performance in areas such as quality, timeliness, technical ingenuity, and cost-effective management. Despite this guidance, during the course of the past several years there have been a number of reports documenting how award fees are being doled out by DHS to contractors regardless of performance:

- Evaluation of TSA's contract for the installation and maintenance of explosive detection equipment at United States Airports (DHS Inspector General, September 2004) – TSA awarded a contract to Boeing for the installation and maintenance of explosive detection equipment at airports. TSA paid more than $44 million to Boeing without any evaluation of Boeing's performance.

- Transportation Security Administration Review of the TSA Passenger and Baggage Screening Pilot Program (DHS Inspector General, September 2004) – TSA awarded four pilot program contracts to determine whether private companies could provide and maintain passenger screening performance at levels equal to or greater than the TSA screener force. The Inspector General found the award fee determinations lacked performance criteria, were highly subjective and based primarily on contractor self-assessments and input from TSA officials.

- Observations on the Department of Homeland Security's Acquisition Organization and on the Coast Guard's Deepwater Program (GAO-07-453T) (February 8, 2007) – GAO found that despite documented problems in schedule, performance, cost control, and contract administration throughout the first year of the Deepwater contract, the contractor had received a rating of 87 percent, which fell in the "very good" range and resulted in an award fee of $4 million.

In too many cases, DHS appears to be awarding bonuses despite poor performance, or worse, without even evaluating work. Failing contractors should be rooted out, not rewarded. Given your report of what appears to be noncompliant federal contracting practices on the part of the DHS and a pattern of providing award fees to contractors without justification, I request that you expand your investigation into the practice of award fees by the Department, especially when it comes to no-bid contacts. Specifically, I would ask that your investigation review the following questions:

- Section 3501 of the U.S. Troop Readiness, Veterans' Care, Katrina Recovery, and Iraq Accountability Appropriations Act, 2007 (P.L. 110-28) states, "The Secretary of Homeland Security shall require that all contracts of the Department of Homeland Security that provide award fees link such fees to successful acquisition outcomes (which outcomes shall be specified in terms of cost, schedule, and performance)." DHS has engaged in a number of contracts in Fiscal Year 2007. How many of these contracts included award fees and were these award fees based on successful acquisition outcomes? What was the total amount of these award fees?

- Did the Department of Homeland Security violate P.L. 110-28 in providing award fees to contractors Fiscal Year 2007?

- Were award fees given to Chenega Technology Services Corporation justified and based on successful acquisition outcomes?

- What mechanisms are currently in place at DHS to ensure that award fees are awarded in a proper manner? Are these mechanisms enforced in providing award fees for DHS contracts? What can the Department of Homeland Security do to ensure that award fees are justified and based on successful acquisition outcomes?

Thank you for attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

Hillary Rodham Clinton

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

###

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jacob Scheiner" <jscheiner@me.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/14/2015 1:31:14 PM
Subject:	Hillary Launch!-Follow-Up

Dear Mr. John Podesta,

It was a pleasure meeting you yesterday at the Hillary after-party.

To recap: I am the young man from Philadelphia that will be attending law school next year and pursuing a career in public service, with the eventual goal of successfully running for political office at the national level.

As you can imagine, this is a crucial time in my young life. As I am embarking on my own political career, it is extremely valuable to surround myself with mentors like you to steer me in the right direction. To me, there is nothing more valuable than the advise from an accomplished political veteran like yourself.

It was a humbling experience meeting you and I look forward to corresponding with you throughout the future. Best of luck on the campaign!

Sincerely,

Jacob Scheiner

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "wendy abrams" <wabrams1@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 9/17/2015 4:10:37 PM
Subject: Fwd: Run like there's "Know Tomorrow"

As a runner who cares about climate change .. here's what your students are hosting at Georgetown on Oct 2 for KNOW TOMORROW! Maybe you can give them a twitter shout out of encouragement!

Begin forwarded message:

> From: Megan Scarsella <megan.coolglobes@gmail.com >
> Subject: Run like there's Know Tomorrow
> Date: September 17, 2015 at 10:59:08 PM CDT
> To: Wendy Abrams <wabrams1@gmail.com >
>
> www.knowtomorrowdc.splashthat.com
> --
>
> Megan Scarsella
> KNOW TOMORROW
> Cool Globes
> 773.209.5099

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"James B. Steinberg" <djsberg@gmail.com>
To:	"Mark Lippert" <mlippert@barackobama.com>
Date:	8/20/2008 11:54:11 PM
Subject:	Re: Hey Jim - Transition Issue

I think we need to check with John P on how he wants this handled. I'm cc:ing him on this.

Jim

On 8/20/08, Mark Lippert <mlippert@barackobama.com > wrote:

> Jim ---
>
> I got a call from BGen Frank McKenzie. He's the head of transition issues for Adm Mullen. I know him from a dinner w/ Mullen and Mullen's Special Assistant gave him my name. I was going to call him back tomorrow find out what he is after and then refer him to you - provided you're OK w/ this approach.
>
> Is this OK?
>
> Best
> Mark

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	Nancybk@aol.com
To:	ca30hima.pub@mail.house.gov
Date:	6/17/2009 12:52:30 PM
Subject:	Community Choice and Health Care Reform Re. your recent message

Dear Honorable Congressman Waxman,
I can't thank you enough for the speedy reply pasted below, and for taking the time to meet with Jim, Chris, and I, members of the long-time leadership of the Los Angeles County Personal Assistance Services Council that oversees the in-home care needs of almost 180,000 seniors and people disabilities, about this most critical issue whose time has most definitely come. The institutional bias is costing the taxpayers far more than it and is exacting an enormous human toll on those were inappropriately placed in nursing homes.
Thank you for your cosponsorship of the Community Choice Act and for your commitment to see that people have an option to stay in their own home when they need help. In this way have the opportunity to carry out a productive life as I have been fortunate to do or simply to live in dignity among their own belongings and near their families and friends. We owe all people the choice of freedom to live in the community and where they would like to receive their long-term care.
If there are hearings or other meetings in health care reform regarding the savings that can be garnered and the advantages attained from having an in-home care option rather than the institutional bias, I would be honored to participate in any way I can.
Thank you again Congressman. Your ever compassionate stewardship of the well-being of our people's health care is something for which we can never thank you enough.

Most sincerely,
Nancy Becker Kennedy

PS, I am in the process of researching some very difficult issues people with disabilities and seniors are currently having in terms of acquiring durable medical equipment and the vendors difficulty of staying in business in the current climate. When I have all my homework done I will call Lisa again to reach you about this pressing problem.

In a message dated 6/6/2009 9:14:51 P.M. Pacific Daylight Time, Nancybk writes:

> Dear Nancy:
>
> Thanks so much for taking the time to meet with me and share your thoughts on the upcoming health care reform debate. It is helpful for me to have the benefit of your perspective as a well-regarded disability advocate.
>
> I also wanted to let you know that as a cosponsor of the Community Choice Act in the 110th Congress, I support the goals of this legislation and can assure you that I will keep our shared priorities foremost in mind as the Energy and Commerce Committee moves forward with a reform package.
>
> Again, thank you for contacting me and I hope you will continue to keep in touch on matters of concern.
>
> With kind regards, I am
>
> Sincerely,
>
> HENRY A. WAXMAN
>
> Member of Congress

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

HAW:MC

Nancy Becker Kennedy

"Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world. Indeed, it is the only thing that ever has." - Margaret Mead

---

Dell Days of Deals! June 15-24 - A New Deal Everyday!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 1/15/2016 4:30:13 PM
Subject: Re: Opening Statement Concept

If room and inclination - the fact that she started her career in SC working for CDF on impact of juveniles in adult prisons and went to AL to combat segregation is very meaningful to AA and SC audiences. Be good to get in there.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 15, 2016, at 8:25 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> I can work that up.
>
> On Fri, Jan 15, 2016 at 8:00 PM, Ron Klain <ron.klain@revolution.com > wrote:
>> We huddled here, and our concept is basically:
>>
>> 1. We are here on MLK weekend.
>>
>> 2. I met Dr. King.
>>
>> 3. The #1 goal of the next President is to raise incomes. But not just average incomes – but incomes for all people, including those usually left behind.
>>
>> 45 seconds.
>>
>> Ron

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Catherine Chieco" <crchieco@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	12/21/2014 5:16:35 AM
Subject:	Left hand little finger

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Haim Saban" <kussa@saban.com>
To:	"Huma Abedin" <huma@hrcoffice.com> "Robby \(HRC\) Mook?? \(re47@hillaryclinton.com\)" <re47@hillaryclinton.com> john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/18/2015 6:29:54 PM
Subject:	FW: Exclusive: Hollywood Mogul Haim Saban Calls for 'More Scrutiny' of Muslims

Hey Guys
Read and get a kick from my statements about Bernie sanders,Rubio and Trum w/o even mentioning their name.
Hope all is well.

From: Michael Kives [mailto:mkives@caa.com]
Sent: Wednesday, November 18, 2015 4:31 PM
To: Haim Saban <kussa@saban.com>
Cc: Cheryl Saban <csaban@saban.com>
Subject: FW: Exclusive: Hollywood Mogul Haim Saban Calls for 'More Scrutiny' of Muslims

I love what you're saying, but I think Itay Hod is such an amateur of a reporter.
I won't speak to him anymore.
I don't like the way he writes, and I don't think he's intelligent.

(Just between us)

From: TheWrap [mailto:newsletter@email.thewrap.com]
Sent: Wednesday, November 18, 2015 4:00 PM
To: Michael Kives
Subject: Exclusive: Hollywood Mogul Haim Saban Calls for 'More Scrutiny' of Muslims

THE WRAP Covering Hollywood
BREAKING NEWS

Nov 18, 2015
03:59 PM

"You want to be free and dead? I'd rather be not free and alive," billionaire and Hillary Clinton supporter tells TheWrap

Full story at TheWrap

follow us

like us

follow us

Unsubscribe mkives@caa.com | View our privacy policy | Update your profile

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sent from TheWrap | 2260 S. Centinela Ave. Suite 150 | Los Angeles, CA 90064 | attn: Email Coordinator
@ TheWrap 2015

This e-mail and any files transmitted with it are intended solely for the use of the individual or entity to whom they are addressed. If the reader of this e-mail is not the intended recipient or the employee or agent responsible for delivering the message to the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any use dissemination, forwarding, printing or copying of this e-mail is strictly prohibited.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Burns Strider" <burns.strider@americanbridge.org>
To: CTRFriendsFamily <CTRFriendsFamily@americanbridge.org>
Date: 1/30/2015 7:28:26 AM
Subject: Correct The Record Friday January 30, 2015 Afternoon Roundup

Correct The Record Friday January 30, 2015 Afternoon Roundup:

Tweets:

Correct The Record @CorrectRecord: .@RepHastingsFL in @SunSentinel : @HillaryClinton has the "strong vision [and] strong record" to be president. sun-sentinel.com/opinion/commen… [1/30/15, 8:57 a.m. EST]

Correct The Record @CorrectRecord: .@HillaryClinton 's "devotion to improving the lives of others" is "admirable and inspiring," says @RepHastingsFL sun-sentinel.com/opinion/commen… [1/30/15, 9:51 a.m. EST]

Correct The Record @CorrectRecord: "Run, Hillary, Run" - @RepHastingsFL writes in @SunSentinel why he'll back@HillaryClinton if she runs in 2016 sun-sentinel.com/opinion/commen… [1/30/15, 10:56 a.m. EST]

Headlines:

BuzzFeed: Ready For Hillary Ramps Up Its Outreach To Faith Leaders

“Ready for Hillary, the political action committee that raised $12 million in 2014 in anticipation of Hillary Clinton’s announcement to run for president in 2016, has been reaching out to faith groups this month.”

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

...

"In addition to Burns Strider, senior adviser to Clinton in her 2008 campaign for faith and values outreach and the Rev. Leah Daughtry, Joshua DuBois, former head of the White House Office of Faith Based and Neighborhood Partnerships, joined to discuss what the Obama campaign built in 2008."

CNN: Jim Webb: Democrats need to focus more on 'white, working people'

“Like other Democrats toiling about a presidential run, Webb declined to directly attack Clinton.”

Washington Post: Rand Paul tweets fake phone call between Jeb Bush and Hillary Clinton. Internet yawns.

“He tweeted out a fake phone call between Jeb Bush and Hillary Clinton that hits them on their dynastic roots. Yes, the son of a three-time presidential candidate/Texas Congressman is hitting someone else for coming from a political family.”

Bloomberg View: Hillary Clinton's Late Start Won't Stop the Punches

“So Hillary Clinton is thinking about delaying the start of her presidential campaign until the summer, according to Politico's Mike Allen. As a strategic move, this makes sense to me: Why spend money and time getting a head start in a race where she has no credible opponent?”

Washington Examiner: American Crossroads takes aim at Hillary Clinton, stays out of GOP primary

“American Crossroads is coming for Hillary Clinton, and soon. The premiere Republican-aligned super PAC plans to spend many months targeting the likely Democratic presidential nominee before the Republicans have chosen a candidate.”

Bloomberg: How Bored Are Reporters by the Clinton Restoration?

“Very, very bored… The most in-your-face evidence this week came in the Washington Post and the New York Times, both of which published big, fun take-outs by two of their best writers on presidential campaigns that are not happening—but, you know, if they did, would really roil the Hillary Clinton juggernaut.”

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Articles:

BuzzFeed: Ready For Hillary Ramps Up Its Outreach To Faith Leaders

By Darren Sands

January 30, 2015 12:12 p.m. EST

[Subtitle:] It went much better than another recent meeting between Democratic leadership and black clergy, sources say.

WASHINGTON — Ready for Hillary, the political action committee that raised $12 million in 2014 in anticipation of Hillary Clinton's announcement to run for president in 2016, has been reaching out to faith groups this month.

Just hours before the State of the Union address on Jan. 20, Ready for Hillary held an introductory call to rally clergy — many who supported Obama in the 2008 primary election — on what role they might play in 2016.

In addition to Burns Strider, senior adviser to Clinton in her 2008 campaign for faith and values outreach and the Rev. Leah Daughtry, Joshua DuBois, former head of the White House Office of Faith Based and Neighborhood Partnerships, joined to discuss what the Obama campaign built in 2008. The faith community was instrumental "in moving the needle, and taking the temperature of the American people" in 2008, DuBois said, according to a source.

Outreach to the black faith community has played a significant role in the Obama administration, though not all Democratic outreach has gone smoothly recently. Months before the Ready for Hillary call, a similar kind of meeting — this one in Washington, D.C. — between national Democrats didn't go as planned.

Three sources confirmed a meeting between black clergy members and DNC leadership, including DNC chair Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz, took place at the Democratic National Committee last month.

The group, one source said, felt slighted that DNC leaders seemed to differ on the level of importance placed on the meeting; another source said DNC leaders showed up to the meeting late and left early.

A DNC official confirmed the meeting in a email statement BuzzFeed News, but said the departure was related to Wasserman Schultz's other role.

"We value these relationships highly but the congresswoman was pulled out of the meeting on congressional business," the official said. "She followed up with the attendees immediately and maintains a dialogue with those in attendance."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Barbara Williams-Skinner, president of Skinner Leadership Institute, a leadership conference for black ministers, confirmed her own attendance at the meeting but did not want to rehash the particulars.

“It’s just not helpful,” she said. “We’re trying to do something positive and we’ve got a big agenda of advancing African-American interests. You’re bringing up old stuff that was just a misunderstanding.”

The call with clergy leaders with Ready for Hillary “didn’t feel like it was reactive to anything,” said a source with direct knowledge of the Jan. 20 call. “It would was more pulling back and refocusing on who Secretary Clinton is and how she is setting an independent agenda.”

“African-American pastors did a lot of getting out the vote, not just for candidates but for progressive issues as well,” said a Democratic political operative with strong ties to faith-based organizations across the nation. “I think, beyond that, they want to think about what the party’s relationship is with them. Party officials want to know what concerns they’re hearing from people in the pews. They want to know how they can be more responsive to concerns.”

Quentin James, black Americans director for Ready for Hillary, who confirmed the political action committee’s outreach to ministers, said building a coalition of faith leaders around issues early is key for Hillary Clinton’s momentum should she decide to run this spring.

“The purpose of our call was to start our outreach to the faith community because we realize they’re going to play a very important role in determining the next president of the United States,” he said. “Secretary Clinton has a long history for working closely with that community, so as we’re organizing, we know we must engage them in this movement.”

CNN: Jim Webb: Democrats need to focus more on 'white, working people'

By Dan Merica

January 30, 2015

Washington (CNN) If Jim Webb had his way, the Democratic Party would return to its "Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, Andrew Jackson roots" and put a greater focus on "white, working people."

Webb, the former Democratic senator from Virginia who is entertaining a run 2016 presidential nomination, told NPR Friday morning that his party has not focused enough on white, working class voters in the past elections. In order to be successful in the future, Webb said, that will need to change.

"I think they could do better with white, working people and I think this last election showed that," Webb said, referencing the 2014 midterms where Republicans took control of the Senate and added more power in the

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

House. "The Democratic Party could do very well to return to its Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, Andrew Jackson roots where the focus of the party was making sure that all people who lack a voice in the corridors of power could have one through the elected represented."

Pressed on his statement by NPR's Steve Inskeep, Webb said that he doesn't think Democrats' distancing from white, working people was a byproduct of President Barack Obama's election.

"This was happening before President Obama," Webb said.

Looking ahead to a 2016 race that he may run in, Webb added: "You are not going to have a situation again where you have 96% of the African American vote turning out for one presidential candidate. ... We need to get back to the principles of the Democratic Party that we are going to give everyone who needs access to the corridors of power that access regardless of any of your antecedents. I think that is a fair concept."

In 2012, the last presidential election, Republican Mitt Romney won nearly 60% of all white voters, compared to Obama's 40%. That difference is an increased split from 2008, when Obama won 43% of the white vote and Republican John McCain won 55%.

If Webb were to enter the 2016 presidential race, he would do so as a longshot candidate. Not only would he likely be challenging Hillary Clinton for the 2016 nomination, but he told Inskeep that raising money would be a big challenge.

Like other Democrats toiling about a presidential run, Webb declined to directly attack Clinton.

"I really don't have an answer for you on that," he said when asked how he would differentiate himself with the former secretary of state. "She has not announced that she is running, I haven't announced that I am running. If I were to run, it would not be as a counterpoint to her. I have issues that I care about, I want to put them on the table and we'll see."

Washington Post: Rand Paul tweets fake phone call between Jeb Bush and Hillary Clinton. Internet yawns.

By Nia-Malika Henderson

January 30, 2016 9:16 a.m. EST

Sen. Rand Paul (R-KY) seems not so much to be running for President, but King of the Internet or King of Silly Snark instead.

The latest?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He tweeted out a fake phone call between Jeb Bush and Hillary Clinton that hits them on their dynastic roots. Yes, the son of a three-time presidential candidate/Texas Congressman is hitting someone else for coming from a political family.

You see, Paul really doesn't like that the same candidates run again and again and thinks the American public shouldn't either. (Sidenote: Ron Paul ran for president in 1988, 2008 and 2012.)

As for the phone call here's the "transcript" (or listen here):

BUSH: “Hey, Hill. It’s Jeb.”

CLINTON: “Hey, Jeb. To what do I owe this pleasure?”

BUSH: “Well, it’s true. I’m thinking about running for president.”

CLINTON: “Well, Jeb, so am I.”

BUSH: “I just wanted to call and give you a heads-up in hopes we could work something out.”

CLINTON: “What do you mean, Jeb? It’s clearly my turn: Bush, Clinton, Bush. Now, Clinton.”

BUSH: “Well, Hillary, there hasn’t been a Republican White House without a Bush since 1977, and we’re ready to be back.”

CLINTON: “Let me shoot straight with you, Jeb, OK? Bill and I are dead broke and need a place to stay. 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue is calling me home. I’ve still got the back door key. Being president offers a lot more job security than writing another memoir.”

BUSH: “Well, the Bushes have weathered attacks before. And read my lips, Hillary: We’re not backing down this time.”

CLINTON: “Well, you’re right. Maybe we can work something out. We both agree on so many issues: bigger government, Common Core, and amnesty for illegal immigrants.”

BUSH: “Well, we’ve both got problems. You’ve got problems with the grass roots, and I’ve got all those damn conservatives. What say, we make a deal?”

(Call beeps in.)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

BUSH: “Sorry, Hillary, but I have to go. Mitt keeps calling.”

CLINTON: “Oh, for crying out loud.”

First off, kudos to the woman voicing Clinton, she really nails it.

But really, the question for Paul, is why? Why bother? Why the snark? Especially over having a name that's famous in presidential politics? Someone at Paul's political action committee thought this was a good idea. Perhaps it would go viral. Perhaps the youngsters on the Twitter would love it. Maybe it would make Paul seem hip. But the pursuit of cool never ends well.

Some Twitter reviews that should worry the Paul camp:

(That last one comes from someone who has sent 51,000 tweets.)

We've written before about how Paul is like a boxer in the ring taking swings at everyone in sight. He is expending a lot of time and energy and the race hasn't even really started yet. Paul wants to maintain his image as "the most interesting man in politics," yet the fights and Internet gimmicks make him look undisciplined and less than serious. There's a fine line between being clever and childish and Paul seems to be teetering on the edge.

Bloomberg View: Hillary Clinton's Late Start Won't Stop the Punches

By Megan McArdle

January 30, 2015 1:18 p.m. EST

So Hillary Clinton is thinking about delaying the start of her presidential campaign until the summer, according to Politico's Mike Allen. As a strategic move, this makes sense to me: Why spend money and time getting a head start in a race where she has no credible opponent? All this could possibly do is give her time to make gaffes and give her opponents insights they could use to get a jump on their campaigns against her.

Of course, they'll be doing that anyway. All across the land, there are nameless moles digging through Clinton's every utterance ... every Gawker post, every speech video and high school term paper. And at every campaign office, people are even now mapping out the strategies that our presidential hopefuls will use to run against her.

The advantage of being the front-runner is that she has all the money locked up, and she won't need to run to her left in the primaries in order to placate the base. The disadvantage is that she has no idea who she is running against, while everyone else knows exactly what they will be fighting. They'll have over a year to lock in their message -- no, better than that, they'll be able to start their campaigns against her during the primaries, while she can't mount an effective response until she knows who her opponent will be. Any rejoinder she makes before then will only serve to raise the profile of the people making the most effective criticisms.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Meanwhile, she'll need to spread her opposition research across multiple candidates, while all of theirs is laser-focused on her. To be sure, she'll also benefit from the research they do on each other. But of course, the winning candidate will also have the benefit of everyone else's anti-Hillary research operations -- and they're more likely to pool their research for the general campaign, while they probably won't be sharing any unused tidbits with the Democrats.

Overall, I wonder if this early lead won't ultimately turn out to be a disadvantage, not just because the candidates will be focused on her, but because the public will be, too. By the time she actually gets around to running against an opponent, she will already largely be defined in the public mind, and not by her side. People will have been listening to Republican campaigns talking about Hillary Clinton more than they'll have been listening to her talk about herself.

Her best hope is a bruising primary season from which the Republican victor staggers forward, bloody and battered and ready for Clinton to deliver the killing blow. That wouldn't exactly be surprising, given the last race. But I suspect that by then, Clinton will be nursing a few wounds herself.

Washington Examiner: American Crossroads takes aim at Hillary Clinton, stays out of GOP primary

By David M. Drucker

January 30, 2015 5:00 a.m. EST

American Crossroads is coming for Hillary Clinton, and soon.

The premiere Republican-aligned super PAC plans to spend many months targeting the likely Democratic presidential nominee before the Republicans have chosen a candidate.

According to the PAC's president and CEO, Steven Law, American Crossroads will start off with opposition research and polling. Paid advertising to undermine Clinton's candidacy will come later.

Law detailed the approach of American Crossroads, which was formed in 2010 by former White House strategist Karl Rove, during an interview with the Washington Examiner. Rather than indiscriminate attacks, Law's 2016 goal is to digest and analyze all of the information American Crossroads compiles on President Obama’s former secretary of state, and chart a disciplined, competent battle plan that doesn’t backfire on Republicans.

“My concern about Hillary is that [there] are new micro groups starting up on almost a weekly basis, all which have as their mission to destroy Hillary, and I worry that there’s potentially a thin line that could be crossed from somebody being a pariah and somebody being a victim,” Law said. “A surgical approach is a lot more effective than just carpet-bombing, and so we’re going to try to develop a sense of doctrine ourselves about what the most effective way would be to challenge her and the right timing for that and the right messages and the right audience."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

American Crossroads, which is still advised on an unpaid basis by Rove, picked sides in a few Senate primaries in 2014, supporting so-called Establishment candidates. But Law confirmed that the super PAC would not play in the 2016 presidential primary, instead husbanding its resources for the fight against Clinton. The launch this month of Senate Leadership Fund, a dedicated super PAC to support Republican Senate candidates in 2016, also run by Law, frees up American Crossroads to attend more exclusively to the presidential contest.

The Republican field of potential White House candidates is crowded with sitting senators, sitting governors, former governors and private sector entrants. The primary could be a super slugfest for the next 15 months, with a presumed nominee possibly not emerging until April of 2016, just three months before the GOP's national convention kicks off in Cleveland on July 18.

Federal law prohibits presumed nominees from accessing funds raised for the general election prior to being officially crowned as the party standard bearer at the nominating convention. American Crossroads is focused on filling the void between then and now, an 18-month period. Law wants American Crossroads to help prevent a repeat of 2012, when GOP nominee Mitt Romney had trouble defending against Obama's attacks over the summer because he couldn't use money he'd raised for November.

Law said American Crossroads has a projected budget for the presidential race but would only describe it as "plenty." The group has a mixed record on effectiveness. American Crossroads and its nonprofit sister organization, Crossroads GPS, spent $50 million on direct advocacy in House and Senate races in the 2014 cycle, which ended with decisive GOP gains in both chambers; but it also spent more than $85 million against Obama in 2012, which came to nothing as the president handily defeated Romney and his party picked up seats.

Law is still considering the best way for American Crossroads to make an impact in 2016.

"It'll be important for groups like ours," Law said, "to fill the interregnum period between when the nominee is selected by our party and when they're actually able to step into the ring."

Law said American Crossroads and other entities were active on this front in 2012, but he believes they missed a critical strategic element that might have helped Romney: positive ads to build up the Republican, not just attack ads seeking to tear down the Democrat.

"The part that was not present [in 2012] that I think everyone would have to take a hard look at is defending the nominee as opposed to defining the opponent. That's something that I think everybody's going to have to sort through," Law said.

Bloomberg: How Bored Are Reporters by the Clinton Restoration?

By David Weigel

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

January 30, 2015 10:52 a.m. EST

[Subtitle:] Fantasy campaigns break out across America.

Very, very bored. On a boredom scale of "Michael Bay action scene" to "Ingmar Bergman dinner scene," we are somewhere near that part of Shame in which Liv Ullman and Max Von Sydow eat potatoes. The most in-your-face evidence this week came in the Washington Post and the New York Times, both of which published big, fun take-outs by two of their best writers on presidential campaigns that are not happening—but, you know, if they did, would really roil the Hillary Clinton juggernaut.

On Wednesday, the Post's Ben Terris asked why Ohio Senator Sherrod Brown was not being promoted by progressives for a 2016 bid. The answer, midway through the piece, was the same as it had been for years: "He’s an older white guy." A Democratic Party that has made up for losses with white male voters by stronger identity politics and turnout with everyone else was not inclined to block the first serious female presidential candidate with a white guy. (At 62, Brown is just five years younger than Hillary Clinton.) Brown really didn't sound bothered by it.

"I don’t say, ‘I’m not running now,’" he told Terris. "I don’t know what it is. I know you don’t believe this, but I don’t really think about it all that much."

The big question in Terris's piece was why progressive groups were boosting Elizabeth Warren (who is 65) instead of Brown. The cynical reason, that Warren is better for building lists of names and raising money, was elided. The progressive movement-building is a larger part of Amy Chozick's "Hillary Clinton vs. Elizabeth Warren Could Delight Republicans," the news hook of which is the much-hyped wave of "Run Warren Run" happening this weekend.

Chozick focuses on a few undeniable facts. One: Clinton has struggled to adapt to the populism embodied by Warren and Brown, and Republicans are still mocking her for muffing a line about how "corporations don't create jobs" when campaigning at the same event as Warren. (She meant "tax breaks for corporations," which still doesn't sound like her.) Republicans and progressives have tried to brand the woman who lapped Barack Obama with working-class white Democrats as a rich banister, and the branding has sort of worked.

Two: Republicans, facing a cacophonous primary currently led by 1) the loser of the 2012 presidential race, 2) the brother of the unpopular last Republican president, 3) a neurosurgeon, and 4) the senator son of the GOP's iconic gold bug and isolationist, would really like the Democrats to join them in disarray. Chozick quotes Mike Huckabee, Michele Bachmann, Rush Limbaugh, the editor of the Arkansas Project's own American Spectator, and the executive director of America Rising, the conservative PAC that tracks Democrats and has been trolling Warren to enter the race against Clinton. (A sample: "Warren Takes Shots at Clinton in Key AFL-CIO Speech.")

The assumption is not that Warren would beat Clinton. That's smart: There's little evidence that she could. A Fox News poll released this week has been covered as worrying for Clinton, as her total support from Democrats (the 390 polled by Fox, anyway) had fallen from a high of 69 percent to a post-State Department low of ... 55 percent. Her nearest rival was not Warren, but Vice President Joe Biden; they polled at 12 percent and 17 percent respectively. If Clinton decided against a run, the frontrunner would be Biden, not Warren, with a 37-21 lead.

For comparison, at this point in the 2008 cycle, the week Clinton actually entered that race and John Kerry abandoned it, Fox emerged with a poll showing Clinton's strongest numbers—43 percent against the field. Barack Obama, who was not as well known with Democrats then as Biden is now, polled at 15 percent.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

But 2008, exciting as it was, was not a policy contest that dragged any Democrat to an extreme. That's the conservative theory of goading a progressive to challenge Hillary—and it's based on a calcified idea of what the "extremes" are. In this theory, a law professor who was once registered Republican is more "left-wing" than Saul Alinsky scholar Hillary Clinton or socialist conference attendee Barack Obama. Hillary Clinton's fumbling attempt to say the tax code shouldn't include corporate giveaways was like a lost verse from L'Internationale. As we all know, attacking corporations and saying they benefit from the tax code is left-wing.

Hang on. What was it Sarah Palin said in Iowa a few years ago?

Casting herself as the ultimate outsider, the former Alaska governor used a Tea Party rally to chastise the President and a “permanent political class” that she said has protected their powers and enriched them, their friends, and their contributors at the expense of ordinary Americans and the country’s well-being.

“There is a name for this,” Palin said. “It’s called corporate crony capitalism. It’s not the capitalism of free men and free markets, of innovation and hard work and ethics, of sacrifice and of risk. No, this is the capitalism of connections and government bailouts and handouts . . . and influence peddling and corporate welfare.”

When Sarah Palin says the political system is rigged for corporations, it's Tea Party populism. When Elizabeth Warren says it, it's red-flag socialism. Isn't it more likely that both are explicating a popular political concept, and that both parties are going to try to perfect that in 2016? If so, the idea that Hillary Clinton would hurt herself by unconvincingly appealing to the left is sound. Right now, Democratic voters mostly want her to be president, and the left is not trying to make her as much as it's trying to make the Democrats understand how popular this rhetoric is.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Laura Graham" <lgraham@clintonfoundation.org>
Date: 12/17/2011 3:03:01 AM
Subject: Re:

Justification is essential. Have you talked to CVC?

On Fri, Dec 16, 2011 at 4:13 PM, Laura Graham
<lgraham@clintonfoundation.org> wrote:
> Did either of you have a chance to consider this? We need to send a revised > contract by early next week. Thnx. LG
>
>
> Laura Graham
>
> Chief Operating Officer
>
> & Chief of Staff to President Clinton
>
> The Clinton Foundation
>
> 77 Water St, NY, NY 10005
>
> 212-348-1779 phone
>
> 866-693-0715 fax
>
> Lgraham@clintonfoundation.org
>
> Laura@presidentclinton.com
>
>
>
> Please consider the environment before printing this e-mail
>
>
> _____
> From: Laura Graham
> Sent: Wednesday, December 07, 2011 7:48 PM
> To: Bruce Lindsey; john.podesta@gmail.com
> Subject:
>
> Matt McKenna has requested via Bari and HR an increase of 1500 monthly in > his foundation consultant work to cover what he claims and Bari claims is > work he is doing on behalf of CVC as it relates to her role with CF. The > new breakdown of his total compensation would be as follows if we approve > this:
>
>
>
> 4000 Foundation (2500 Non CVC + 1500 CVC)
>
> 2500 CESC
>
> 1500 CVC Office (For profit work)
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>
>
> I have no idea how they achieved what is a 50/50 split on his CVC work > between her for profit and CF activities. I think it's more heavily > weighted toward her for profit and would think it would be closer to a 75/25 > split. I have pushed back on Matt via HR several times asking for written > justification and job responsibilities. He has given me nothing but generic > statements so he's being less than cooperative. He bitched to Bari who > relayed to HR that he hasn't had an increase in his CF fee in 2 years. I > don't know if that is true. I am checking. Regardless, his concern for not > getting an increase for CF (if that's the case) in 2 years, as I have > pointed out, is not a reason to arbitrarily just add costs to CF in the name > of CVC. CVC has apparently approved this but I will double check with her > directly. If we are going to increase him for CVC CF related work (and I > agree that makes sense) it shouldn't be arbitrary. It should be based on > the estimated time she expects for the duration of his 6 month contract > incorporating her actual time to date, as we do with CESC employees, to > arrive at a figure that has some basis. I have also insisted that any > increase be accompanied by a time sheet outlining the hours he is spending > on CF – CVC and non CVC to ensure that he is tracking and we are approving > them.
>
>
>
> Please advise on what you want me to do. Thnx. LG
>
>
>
> Laura Graham
> Chief Operating Officer
> & Chief of Staff to President Clinton
> The Clinton Foundation
> 55 W 125th St, NY, NY 10027
> 212-348-1779 phone
> 212-348-9855 fax
> Lgraham@clintonfoundation.org
> Laura@presidentclinton.com
>
> Please consider the environment before printing this e-mail
>
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	robbymook@gmail.com
To:	"Huma Abedin" <Huma@clintonemail.com>
Date:	12/5/2014 10:43:09 AM
Subject:	Re: Meetings readout

I'm unfortunately out of pocket from about 6am to 3pm tomorrow. Sorry, I know that's a pain.

> On Dec 5, 2014, at 5:16 PM, Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com> wrote:
>
> Can you all talk at 8:30am tomorrow?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	9/10/2015 5:56:10 AM
Subject:	WJC wants to talk to you

he's free until 1:30pm
then has CF Board meeting from 2-5pm

Hannah/JD know you're on way in from airport

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Anthony Brown" <info@anthonybrown.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	10/1/2015 4:52:21 PM
Subject:	We couldn't have done it without you John

ANTHONY BROWN
DEMOCRAT FOR CONGRESS

Dear John,

I wanted to take a moment to thank you for all the time, dedication, and hard work you put into our campaign this month.

I've always known that here in Maryland we have the best supporters in the country -- and this month, you were nothing less than astounding.

The fight for Maryland's 4th District is just heating up, and I'm so glad you're by my side.

We still have a long journey ahead of us, but if we continue to work together, there's no stopping us.

Thank you again,

Anthony G. Brown

Paid for by Anthony Brown for Congress

This message was sent to: podesta@law.georgetown.edu | Change or update your email address by clicking here .

We believe that emails are a crucial way for our campaign to stay in touch with supporters like you. Your grassroots support is critical to helping Anthony's campaign for Maryland's 4th District.

If you'd like to unsubscribe from our emails, click here . If you'd like to donate to our campaign, please click here .

Thanks for standing with Anthony!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
To:	"Kristina Schake" <kristinakschake@gmail.com> "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> "Joel Benenson" <jbenenson@bsgco.com> "Jennifer?? Palmieri" <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Heather Samuelson" <hsamuelson@cdmillsgroup.com> "Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com> "Jim Margolis" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com> "Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com> "Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com> "Huma?? Abedin" <huma@hrcoffice.com> "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>
Date:	3/11/2015 8:17:11 AM
Subject:	Transcript
Attachments:	03102015 Clinton Press Conference at UN.doc

Transcript from yesterday attached.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Progressive Policy Institute" <info@ppionline.org>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	3/30/2015 8:50:09 AM
Subject:	PRESS RELEASE: New PPI Report Argues For Bottom Up Approach To Reducing U.S. Carbon Emissions

For Immediate Release
March 30, 2015

Contact: Steven Chlapecka at schlapecka@ppionline.org, 202-525-3931; or Cody Tucker at ctucker@ppionline.org, 202-525-3926

NEW PPI REPORT ARGUES FOR BOTTOM UP APPROACH TO REDUCING U.S. CARBON EMISSIONS

WASHINGTON—The Progressive Policy Institute (PPI) today released a policy report authored by Derrick Freeman, A "Bottom Up" Approach to Reducing U.S. Carbon Emissions. The report argues that the EPA's Clean Power Plan can accomplish what Congress failed to do and give states the ability to reduce greenhouse gas emissions through cap-and-trade or a carbon tax systems.

"Although a resort to command-and-control regulation would not be our first option, in this case it could be a catalyst for a bottom-up approach to cap and trade or a simple carbon tax," writes Freeman. "[The] EPA now has a chance to craft a rule that is workable, conducive to innovation, and respectful of states' ability to choose their own path toward carbon reduction."

"Rather than try to resolve the long-running argument between cap and trade and carbon taxes, progressives should be open to whichever has the best chance of advancing in today's political climate. We urge the EPA to explicitly allow states to meet their carbon reduction commitments under CPP by adopting carbon taxes as well as cap and trade systems."

Download A "Bottom Up" Approach to Reducing U.S. Carbon Emissions .

For more information or to speak to Mr. Freeman contact, Steven Chlapecka at schlapecka@ppionline.org, 202-525-3931; or Cody Tucker at ctucker@ppionline.org, 202-525-3926.

###

The Progressive Policy Institute is an independent, innovative and high-impact DC-based think tank founded in 1989. Through research, policy analysis and dialogue, PPI develops break-the-mold ideas aimed at economic growth, national security and modern, performance-based government. Today, PPI's unique mix of political realism and policy innovation continues to make it a leading source of pragmatic and creative ideas. PPI is a non-profit, nonpartisan, 501(c)(3) educational organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Progressive Policy Institute · 1200 New Hampshire Ave. NW, Suite 575 · Washington, DC 20036

You're receiving this email because of your interest in the Progressive Policy Institute. Not interested anymore?
Unsubscribe Instantly.

empowered by salsa

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	8/17/2015 3:15:29 PM
Subject:	Canceled Event: Q4 Fundraising Priorities @ Mon Aug 17, 2015 7:30pm - 8pm (john.podesta@gmail.com)
Attachments:	invite.ics

This event has been canceled and removed from your calendar.

Q4 Fundraising Priorities

When: Mon Aug 17, 2015 7:30pm – 8pm Eastern Time

Where: Robby's Office / 718-441-3763, no pin (map)

Video call: https://plus.google.com/hangouts/_/hillaryclinton.com/q4-fundraising

Calendar: john.podesta@gmail.com

Who:
- re47@hillaryclinton.com - organizer
- kofferdahl@hillaryclinton.com - creator
- John Podesta
- sbay@hillaryclinton.com
- ha16@hillaryclinton.com
- dcheng@hillaryclinton.com

Invitation from Google Calendar

You are receiving this email at the account john.podesta@gmail.com because you are subscribed for cancellations on calendar john.podesta@gmail.com.

To stop receiving these emails, please log in to https://www.google.com/calendar/ and change your notification settings for this calendar.

Forwarding this invitation could allow any recipient to modify your RSVP response. Learn More .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nikki Budzinski" <nbudzinski@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com> "Brynne Craig" <bcraig@hillaryclinton.com> "Marlon Marshall" <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com> "Amanda Renteria" <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com> "Bonnie Rubin" <brubin@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	6/18/2015 12:14:47 PM
Subject:	Nightly Labor Update
Attachments:	6.18.15.xlsx

Good evening everyone
Attached is tonight's updated spreadsheet. Here are a few points to draw your attention to:

1. July 1st, we have scheduled our labor policy discussions in Washington DC with our policy team. Notice has gone out.

2. Need to discuss/confirm NEA requests post-RA decision. Also, NEA has reached out twice frustrated by HRC attending NALEO and not the RA (given our conference position). It would be helpful to have a response to NALEO question and feedback back on their other requests.
-RA Video
-Teletown Hall with members and HRC (July)
-Walk a Day event (August-September)
-2016 RA attendance

From our email last night, I have connected with Kari in NH regarding the RA and any Sanders activity. She is reaching out to Scott McGilvray to help. I'm meeting with Troy and ISEA next week in Iowa.

3. Alliance for Retired Americans Convention has requested a Senator surrogate to their conference. HRC is unable to attend. A video is not a option. Are we interested in asking a friendly Senator to surrogate? Sanders and Pelosi are confirmed to attend.

4. The UAW has started to engage in a endorsement process and invited HRC to their Executive Board meeting in Detroit August 11-13th. UAW has big 3 bargaining this year, FYI.

5. AFT teletown hall with members regarding 2016 endorsement last night went "very well".

6. Current confirmed attendees to John's home: Trumka, Saunders, J. David Cox (AFGE), Perrone (UFCW), McGarvey (BCTD).

Trade Update:
TPA passed House and the labor campaign has moved to the 14 Democratic Senators that voted for TPA/TAA. Almost all of the 14 said that they would only vote for TPA with TAA. This is the leverage point labor is trying to work. The 14 Democratic Senators met with the White House today and reports back were not positive for the WH. A cloture vote could happen in the Senate as early as tonight with a final TPA vote potentially happening on Tuesday next week. In the House CBC Chairman Butterfield along with four other CBC members signed a letter to the Senate saying that if they attach TAA to African Growth Opportunity Act they can't count on their votes for it in the House.

--
Nikki Budzinski
Labor Outreach Director
Hillary for America

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

646-854-1442 (direct)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	4/13/2015 3:34:18 PM
Subject:	Fwd: Jessica Schumer

Daughter of. She is good.
Got a place for her?

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: "Jason Furman" <jasonfurman@gmail.com >
Date: Apr 13, 2015 4:48 PM
Subject: Jessica Schumer
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Cc:

Congrats on the great launch. I am writing because Jessica Schumer, currently my COS, is moving to New York for personal reasons. If there was the right position on the campaign she would love to do it. She heard you might have a COS position or something like that. Policy is the other natural place for her but with her boyfriend (Mike Shapiro) headed that direction I think she is more reluctant.

As you know Jess is smart, hard working, motivated, strategic, and effective at getting things done. Let me know if she should be in touch with you or anyone else there.

Best,
Jason

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Gene Karpinski" <feedback@lcv.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	4/23/2013 3:56:02 AM
Subject:	One Week:

LCV ACTION FUND

Contribute to Ed Markey's campaign for U.S Senate: There's just one week left until Tuesday's primary and there's still a lot of voters to contact. Please join me to make sure Ed Markey wins the primary next Tuesday >>

John,

There is just one week left until the Massachusetts Special Election primary. The League of Conservation Voters Action Fund is "all in" for Rep. Ed Markey -- a long-time climate ally -- as we help him become the next U.S. Senator from Massachusetts.

The stakes are high. Polls conducted last week show a tightening race with Ed Markey receiving less than 50 percent of the vote and 20 percent of the Massachusetts electorate still undecided on the race.

Ed's campaign still has tens of thousands of voters to call, doors to knock, and people to get to the polls on Tuesday. That's why your help today -- right now -- is so critically important.

Here's the bottom line: Fighting climate change has been the cause of Ed Markey's life -- that's why I'm standing with Ed, but I can't do it alone. I don't think it's an exaggeration to say that -- if he gets elected -- Ed will be one of the greenest Senators in Washington and a true champion on climate change. That is why LCV Action Fund is 100 percent committed to his race.

In the Senate, Ed will provide visionary leadership that not only attempts to strengthen environmental policy, but also help to grow our economy based on the clean-energy jobs of the future.

Contribute to Ed Markey's campaign via LCV Action Fund's GiveGreen . If we can help Ed raise $25,000 more, we can help him win the Special Election primary and put him closer to becoming the next U.S. Senator from Massachusetts.

Let's make Ed Markey the next U.S. Senator from Massachusetts.

Help LCV Action Fund raise $25,000 in the next seven days to help Ed Markey win next Tuesday's primary for the Massachusetts Senate seat.

Donate today >>

Ed Markey is one of the strongest champions we have in Washington fighting the climate crisis. He co-authored and introduced the American Clean Energy and Security Act (ACES) in 2009, during which time he chaired the powerful Energy and Environment Subcommittee of the House Energy & Commerce Committee. In addition to leading the fight against climate change, Ed has been a leading voice for holding BP accountable for the Gulf oil spill and for reforming offshore drilling practices.

This race is tightening! Public polls show Ed's lead narrowing as we get close to next Tuesday's primary.

If we hope to protect our planet for our children and grandchildren, we need Ed Markey to win the primary. I hope you'll join me in making sure Ed Markey has the resources his campaign needs to win. Will you chip in with a contribution today?

Best --

Steve

Paid for by the League of Conservation Voters Action Fund, www.lcvactionfund.org, and not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

Update Your Profile
To Unsubscribe Click Here

1920 L Street, NW Suite 800
Washington, DC 20036
202-785-8683

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

POWERED BY
blackbaud
nonprofit software

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"James B. Steinberg" <djsberg@gmail.com>
To:	John.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	8/23/2008 10:46:48 AM
Subject:	Fwd: Don

John

I talked with wendy yesterday who was very positive but wanted to talk a bit with Don about his side. I emailed don yesterday cc:ing wendy but as you can see no response yet. Is there a better contact for him than the email Julia was using to set up our call?

Jim

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Wendy Sherman <wsherman@thealbrightgroupllc.com>
Date: Sat, 23 Aug 2008 18:27:54 -0400
Subject: Don
To: djsberg@gmail.com

Jim,
Just wanted to let you know that I have not heard from Don. Hopefully will before the weekend is over and I head to Denver. In addition, let me know when and what you need me to do something for your end of the equation. Thanks.
Wendy
Wendy R. Sherman
Principal
The Albright Group LLC
p. +202-842-7222
f. +202-370-3599
wsherman@thealbrightgroupllc.com

sent from Blackberry

--
Sent from Gmail for mobile | mobile.google.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	H <hdr29@hrcoffice.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	7/21/2015 2:48:05 PM
Subject:	Analytics Communications Nightly Report 2015 07 21.pdf
Attachments:	.txt Analytics Communications Nightly Report 2015 07 21.pdf

Nightly report attached.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Ryan Anderson" <ryaneanderson@gmail.com>
To: bigcampaign <bigcampaign@googlegroups.com>
Date: 6/17/2010 9:56:37 AM
Subject: [big campaign] VIDEO: Courage Makes Appearance in Congress

Courage Makes Appearance in Congress

Tom Andrews

Posted: June 17, 2010 04:40 PM

Video available at: http://www.huffingtonpost.com/tom-andrews/courage-makes-appearance_b_616388.html

You probably missed it, but General David Petraeus' easy ride through Congress yesterday was interrupted by three members of the House Armed Services Committee: Chellie Pingree of Maine, Carol Shea-Porter of New Hampshire and Niki Tsongas of Massachusetts. Fortunately for Petraeus, mainstream media had already fled the committee room before it was their turn to question the General.

> "I disagree with you, basically, on the premise that our continued military presence in Afghanistan actually strengthens our national security," Congresswoman Pingree told Petraeus. "Since the surge of troops in southern and eastern Afghanistan started, we have seen only increased levels of violence, coupled with an incompetent and corrupt Afghan government. I am of the belief that continuing with this surge and increasing the level of American forces will have the same result -- more American lives lost, and we will be no closer to success."

Isn't it great when a member of the House of Representatives is willing to represent the truth - even a politically inconvenient one?

At issue for these courageous Members, and now a majority of the American public, are two key questions: When do you accept that your military strategy is not working? At what point do you recognize the evidence before you and change course? When it comes to the US strategy in Afghanistan, these questions are a matter of life and death for our soldiers in harm's way and countless innocent Afghans. It's also the matter of hundreds of billions of US dollars. Here are some of the inconvenient truths that the Pentagon is trying desperately to avoid about its war in Afghanistan:

- Just over half way through June and already it is the 12th straight month of record-setting casualties in Afghanistan. US casualties in the first six months of this year are more than twice their total in the first six months of 2009, and the peak fighting season has yet to begin.
- What our top commander in Afghanistan, Gen. Stanley McChrystal, was once describing as a "model" operation in Marja he now calls a "bleeding ulcer".
- The Pentagon's most recent quarterly report to Congress on Afghanistan confirmed that efforts to strengthen the Afghan National Army have been stymied by "high attrition and low retention" of recruits. Meanwhile, the insurgency continues to grow: "A ready supply of recruits is drawn from a frustrated population where insurgents exploit poverty, tribal friction and a lack of governance to grow their ranks."
- The Karzai government remains mired in corruption and incompetence under its mercurial and less than stable leader. After threatening to join the Taliban this spring, this week we learned that President Karzai "has lost his confidence in the capability of either the coalition or his own government to protect this country" and "that he can't trust the Americans to fix the situation" in Afghanistan.
- Our NATO allies refuse to provide the military trainers they once promised as opposition to the war among their citizenry climbs ever higher. Canada and the Netherlands begin to pull their troops out of Afghanistan in a few months.
- Here at home, polls now show that a majority of Americans do not believe the US military campaign in Afghanistan is worth it.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Still, as was the case in Vietnam, Pentagon officials trooped up to Capitol Hill yesterday to ask for more time, money and patience. And despite growing public opposition to the failed escalation strategy, pro-war hawks like Sen. John McCain (R-AZ) were joined by none other than Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman, Carl Levin (D-MI), in challenging not the failures of our current strategy, but the Administration's increasingly thin promise to begin withdrawing troops in July 2011. According to Gen. Petraeus and Undersecretary of Defense for Policy and Planning Michelle Flournoy, who also testified, those who favor our unending commitment to Afghanistan have little to fear from that date. It is simply "an inflection point" at which time "a process begins."

Bottom line: How many more soldiers need to die during that "process" and how many more billions of taxpayer dollars wasted before reality trumps the hope-based US strategy in Afghanistan?

Thank you, Congresswomen Pingree, Shea-Porter and Tsongas. Now it's time for your colleagues to join you. For our soldiers in harm's way, it is literally a matter of life and death.

Watch Pingree's questioning of Gen. Petraeus here: [Video at http://www.huffingtonpost.com/tom-andrews/courage-makes-appearance_b_616388.html]

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	H <hdr29@hrcoffice.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/27/2015 4:10:06 AM
Subject:	Analytics Communications Nightly Report 2015 06 26.pdf
Attachments:	Analytics Communications Nightly Report 2015 06 26.pdf

Report attached.
Big uptick in emails yesterday. Online giving was good but not off the charts. Monday and Tuesday are going to be important.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	john.podesta@gmail.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	10/31/2008 6:12:06 PM
Subject:	Delivered: Re: Jason Grumet -- Important
Attachments:	Attach 1

Your message was delivered to the recipient.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ted Strickland" <info@tedstrickland.com>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	12/3/2015 8:42:24 AM
Subject:	Be among the first

Ted Strickland for SENATE

Friend,

As a critical supporter, I wanted to make sure you're among the first to take our 2016 Supporter Survey. We're getting ready for 2016 and need your input.

Please use this personalized link to get started:

tedstrickland.com/2016-survey

It will only take a minute to complete, but will be invaluable to our campaign. I can't wait to see the results and look forward to sharing them with you.

-Ted

This email was sent to podesta@law.georgetown.edu. Click here to unsubscribe .

Contributions or gifts to Strickland for Senate are not tax deductible.

Paid for by Strickland for Senate

All content © 2015 Strickland for Senate, All Rights Reserved

Strickland for Senate
PO Box 2196
Columbus, OH 43216-2196

Privacy Policy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
"Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 2/13/2016 9:27:02 AM
Subject: Josh Ritter concert?

I think that Kate and I might try to go (although it is the night of the NV caucus). Do either of you want a ticket?!

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Joseph Finneran <joseph@podiumarts.com >
Date: Sat, Feb 13, 2016 at 4:00 PM
Subject: Josh at Beacon NYC - 2/20
To: Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com >

Hi Milia,

I know everyone is working long hours and taking a night off may not be in the cards, but Josh Ritter's show at the Beacon Theater on Saturday (Feb 20) is almost sold out. They are holding a few tickets and asked if anyone on your team (incl. JDP of course) would like to attend?

Please let me know!

Best,
Joseph Finneran
Creative Director | Founder
Podium Arts Communications, Inc.

joseph@podiumarts.com
podiumarts.com
202.667.0158 Office
202.657.5886 Skype

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	7/30/2015 11:11:28 AM
Subject:	Aspen title

CAP Founder/Board Member?

Chair HFACC?

Something else?

They're insisting.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sandler, Herbert" <hms@sandlerfoundation.org>
To:	tlaqueur@berkeley.edu "Carla Hesse?? \(chesse@berkeley.edu\)" <chesse@berkeley.edu> "Harley Shaiken?? \(hshaiken@berkeley.edu\)" <hshaiken@berkeley.edu> "Beatriz Manz?? \(bmanz@berkeley.edu\)" <bmanz@berkeley.edu> "Michael Wald?? \(mwald@law.stanford.edu\)" <mwald@law.stanford.edu> "johanna wald" <wald94117@yahoo.com> "Arnold Milstein \(toammd@icloud.com\)" <toammd@icloud.com> "Nancy Adler \(nancy.adler@ucsf.edu\)" <nancy.adler@ucsf.edu> "I C E Stephen Kosslyn" <skosslyn@gmail.com> "Rosenberg Robin" <robin@drrobinrosenberg.com>
Date:	9/3/2015 9:49:15 AM
Subject:	New institute in Palo Alto aims to help shape state, national K-12 policy | EdSource

http://edsource.org/2015/new-institute-in-palo-alto-aims-to-help-shape-state-national-k-12-policy/86100

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Heather Boushey" <HBoushey@equitablegrowth.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/12/2014 4:44:52 PM
Subject:	i need to talk to you -- do you have any time this evening?

Mobile: 202.549.3452

^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^^

Heather Boushey
Executive Director and Chief Economist
Washington Center for Equitable Growth
1333 H Street, NW, 2nd Floor
Washington, DC 20005

hboushey@equitablegrowth.org www.Equitablegrowth.org
Desk: (202) 741-6247
Twitter: @hboushey

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Gabe Podesta" <gpodesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/19/2014 4:17:00 PM
Subject:	Re: Made It

Things will get crazy between now and election. Stay safe.

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

> On Mar 19, 2014, at 12:28 PM, Gabe Podesta <gpodesta@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> In country. Travel to my base tomorrow. I have very limited email right now so I'll write more tomorrow.
>
> Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Maya Harris" <mharris@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 1/8/2016 9:24:07 AM
Subject: Re: Revised gun riff

small suggested edits:

- I was very proud of the President this week making a powerful statement about the urgent need to end the epidemic of gun violence in America. I couldn't agree more. His new executive actions include steps that I've been advocating for throughout this campaign. We are losing 90 people a day to gun violence, so the President is right: this is a national crisis. And, as he said, voters should not support any candidate who does not support common-sense gun reform. The stakes are too high.

On Fri, Jan 8, 2016 at 3:47 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Adding Maya again

On Jan 8, 2016, at 3:43 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Tightened up a bit below, just because it felt long for TV

- I was very proud of the President this week making a powerful statement about the urgent need to end the epidemic of gun violence in America. His new executive actions include steps that I've advocated for throughout this campaign. We are losing 90 people a day to gun violence, so the President is right: this is a national crisis. And, as he said, voters should not support any candidate who does not support common-sense gun reform.

- Democrats have a real choice here, because standing up to the gun lobby is a big difference between Senator Sanders and myself.
- Ten years ago, gun safety advocates wanted to take gun makers and sellers to court for their reckless disregard for human life. If an auto company sells an unsafe car, you can sue them. Unsafe food, unsafe tools, unsafe toys – the makers can all be sued. So the NRA wrote a bill that said, "No one can sue a gun maker or a gun seller," calling it "the most significant piece of pro-gun legislation in twenty years." And when it really mattered, Senator Sanders voted with the gun lobby and I voted against the gun lobby.
- I would certainly understand if Senator Sanders would just stand up and say, "I got this one wrong. I'm sorry." But he hasn't. He's defended his vote time and again. He's said he would "consider" some changes to the law – but that was almost 90 days ago – and where are the changes?
- And so, go back to what President Obama said – guns should be a voting issue. And Senator Sanders has been wrong on gun safety and wrong on the leading cause of death for young people in our country. So that's a clear choice for Democrats in this primary.

As for Q&A:

Why make this attack now?

As the President noted, and as I've said often on the trial, this is a critical issue for our country and the safety of our families. We see too many gun deaths in this country—we cannot afford to wait another day before acting. I have raised this issue before and Senator Sanders has refused to give a straight answer. It's time to hold gun manufacturers accountable, so I hope he'll join me in supporting this effort.

Senator Sanders and in fact, President Obama, have criticized your record on guns. What's your response?

My record on gun violence prevention is clear, and my conviction to this issue is strong. I have been calling for strong efforts to fight gun violence throughout this campaign, and I will not stop fighting on this issue until we have done everything we can to keep our families safe.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Jennifer Palmieri [mailto:jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Friday, January 8, 2016 3:13 PM
To: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >; Betsaida Alcantara <balcantara@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Ronald Klain <rklain@aol.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Subject: RE: Revised gun riff

Plus Christina and Betsaida.

This is for CNN interview. But CR should edit.

From: Dan Schwerin [mailto:dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Friday, January 8, 2016 2:27 PM
To: Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Ronald Klain <rklain@aol.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Subject: Re: Revised gun riff

John & Jen?

On Fri, Jan 8, 2016 at 1:55 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Clean:
>
> - I was very proud of the President this week making a powerful statement about the urgent need to end the epidemic of gun violence in America. His new executive actions include steps that I've advocated for throughout this campaign. We are losing 90 people a day to gun violence, so the President is right: this is a national crisis. And, as he said, voters should not support any candidate who does not support common-sense gun reform.

- Democrats have a real choice here, because standing up to the gun lobby is a big difference between Senator Sanders and myself. The Brady Bill has kept 2 million guns out of the hands of people who shouldn't have them -- Senator Sanders voted against it five times. But that may not be his worst vote on gun safety.
- Ten years ago, gun safety advocates wanted to take gun makers and sellers to court for their reckless disregard for human life. If an auto company sells an unsafe car, you can sue them. Unsafe food, unsafe tools, unsafe toys – the makers can all be sued. So the NRA wrote a bill that said, "No one can sue a gun maker or a gun seller."
- The bill came before Congress. The pressure was intense. The head of the NRA called the vote "the most significant piece of pro-gun legislation in twenty years." And when it really mattered, Senator Sanders voted with the gun lobby and I voted against the gun lobby.
- I would certainly understand if Senator Sanders would just stand up and say, "I got this one wrong. I made a mistake. I'm sorry." But he hasn't. He's defended his vote time and again. He's said he would "consider" some changes to the law – but that was almost 90 days ago – and where are the changes?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

- And so, go back to what President Obama said – guns should be a voting issue. And Senator Sanders has been wrong on gun safety and wrong on the leading cause of death for young people in our country. So that's a clear choice for Democrats in this primary.

On Fri, Jan 8, 2016 at 1:52 PM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

And if he is teeing this up to get right on immunity, I might change the last bullet.

- And so, go back to what President Obama said – GUNS SHOULD BE A VOTING ISSUE. AND Senator Sanders HAS BEEN wrong on gun safety AND wrong on the leading cause of death for young people in our country. AND VOTERS NEED TO WEIGH THAT.

From: Dan Schwerin [mailto:dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Friday, January 8, 2016 1:47 PM
To: Ronald Klain <rklain@aol.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Subject: Revised gun riff

I took Ron's riff and condensed to 375 words. What do you think?

- I was very proud of the President this week making a powerful statement about the urgent need to end the epidemic of gun violence in America. His new executive actions include steps that I've advocated for throughout this campaign. We are losing 90 people a day to gun violence, so the President is right: this is a national crisis. And, as he said, voters should not support any candidate who does not support common-sense gun reform.

- Democrats have a real choice here, because standing up to the gun lobby is a big difference between Senator Sanders and myself. The Brady Bill has kept 2 million guns out of the hands of people who shouldn't have them -- Senator Sanders voted against it five times. But that may not be his worst vote on gun safety.
- Ten years ago, gun safety advocates wanted to take gun makers and sellers to court for their reckless disregard for human life. If an auto company sells an unsafe car, you can sue them. Unsafe food, unsafe tools, unsafe toys – the makers can all be sued. So the NRA wrote a bill that said, "No one can sue a gun maker or a gun seller."
- The bill came before Congress. The pressure was intense. The head of the NRA called the vote "the most significant piece of pro-gun legislation in twenty years." And when it really mattered, Senator Sanders voted with the NRA and I voted against the NRA.
- I would certainly understand if Senator Sanders would just stand up and say, "I got this one wrong. I made a mistake. I'm sorry." But he hasn't. He's defended his vote time and again. He's said he would "consider" some changes to the law – but that was almost 90 days ago – and where are the changes?
- And so, go back to what President Obama said -- this immunity issue is one of his most important concerns. The President of the United States will not support any candidate who is wrong on gun safety. Unless Senator Sanders changes his position on immunity for gun sellers and gun makers, he's wrong on gun safety, wrong on the leading cause of death for young people in our country, and the wrong candidate for President.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	5/15/2015 3:58:53 AM
Subject:	Left you long Vox.

cdm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	JStocks@nea.org
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com anna.burger@seiu.org rmckay@mckayfund.org amy.dacey@seiu.org
Date:	1/19/2008 9:59:31 AM
Subject:	FW: Working America lists

Per our conversation at the FFA Board meeting and my commitment to follow-up.

John Stocks
Deputy Executive Director
National Education Association
202-822-7523

Sent from my GoodLink Wireless Handheld (www.good.com)

-----Original Message-----
From: Karen Nussbaum [mailto:knussbau@aflcio.org]
Sent: Saturday, January 19, 2008 04:56 PM Eastern Standard Time
To: Stocks, John [NEA]
Subject: Working America lists

John,
To confirm our discussion yesterday, in 2006, Working America members were on the America Votes VAN in Minnesota, Pennsylvania, and Ohio. This has not been a problem.

Thanks for your efforts.

Best,
Karen

****
Only the individual sender is responsible for the content of the message, and the message does not necessarily reflect the position or policy of the National Education Association or its affiliates.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Oren Shur" <oshur@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com>
	"Jim Margolis" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com>
	"Joel Benenson" <jbenenson@bsgco.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
	"John Anzalone" <john@algpolling.com>
Date:	2/11/2016 12:39:31 PM
Subject:	gun ad robby is talking about

It's the second video down on this link:
Link: http://bit.ly/1SIudRI
Password: Hillary

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Robby Mook 2015" <robbymook2015@gmail.com>
Date:	3/24/2015 10:24:57 AM
Subject:	Re: Morocco

Hers or bis

On Mar 24, 2015 3:14 PM, "Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com > wrote:

> Sounds like that is still on the calendar.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Kristina Costa" <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Speech Drafts" <speechdrafts@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	3/11/2016 7:03:20 AM
Subject:	DRAFT: Insert for St Louis rally
Attachments:	2016-03-11 jobs and apprenticeships insert for St Louis - 2pm.docx

Stump insert for tomorrow's rally following a tour of the St. Louis carpenters' apprentice shop attached. Per Nikki, shout-out to the BUD program included, and per Matt, added a reference to the state Senate filibuster. Please send any comments this afternoon. Thanks!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Press, Info, Culture Wing, Embassy of India, Washington DC" <info2@indiagov.org>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	9/2/2014 3:30:46 PM
Subject:	Attend "Yakshagana" - Traditional Operatic Theater from India, presenting an episode from the Indian Epic Ramayana

Having trouble viewing this email? Read online: Click here!

Performing India Series

सत्यमेव जयते

Embassy of India
Washington, DC

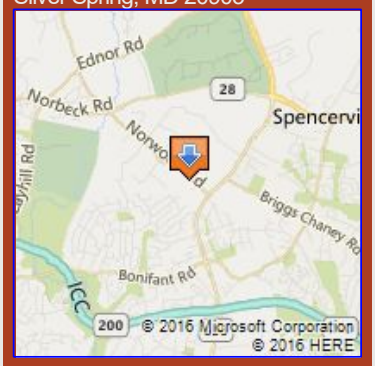
in association with Chinmaya Mission Washington Regional Center

presents

YAKSHAGANA



- Traditional Operatic Theater from India, presenting an episode from the Indian Epic Ramayana

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

When
Saturday September 6, 2014 from 6:00 PM to 8:00 PM EDT
Add to Calendar

Where Chinmaya Mission
46 Norwood Road
Silver Spring, MD 20905

Driving Directions

Dear Friend,

You are invited to this cultural event organized by the Embassy of India, Washington, DC, in association with Chinmaya Mission Washington Regional Center. Please note that the event is free and open to public but registration is necessary for admission. Click on the "Register Now!" button at the bottom of the email.

- Watch the colorful performance with elaborate make-up, costume, music, song, dance and narration
- Enjoy an episode from the Indian Epic Ramayana where vamp Shoorpanaka tries to woo brothers Rama and Lakshmana
- Understand more through Hindi narrations with English Subtitles

The Art Form: Yakshagana

Yakshagana is an enchanting rich traditional operatic theater of coastal Karnataka, South India. Yakshagana combines dance, music, dialogue, costume, make-up and stage techniques with a unique style and form. The stories called as 'prasangas' (episodes) are chosen from classical and mythological sources like Ramayana, Mahabharatha and Bhagavatha. They are sung with an orchestra of drums and gongs.

The Performers : Yaksha Manjusha

Yaksha Manjusha, is a registered Organisation from Mangalore, headed by Ms Vidya Kolyur. With hundreds of performances all over India (including for prestigious institutions like Sangeet Natak Academy, Bharatiya Vidya Bhawan,National School of Drama and Indian Television), Yaksha Manjusha has also performed in many places in the U.S. including New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles and Atlanta.

Ms Vidya Kolyur is an awardee of Ustad Bismillah Khan Yuva Puraskar. Her guru is her father Kolyur Ramachandra Rao, an awardee of Sangeet Natak Academy. Vidya Kolyur is a recognised TV and Radio Artiste. Her creative approach, forceful performance and innovative choreography have won her widespread acclaim from artistes, experts, critics, connoisseurs and luminaries in the field. Apart from stage shows, she has also given lecture- demonstrations.

The Performance Episode : Panchavati

The story of Panchavati begins with Lord Rama, his consort Sita and his brother Lakshmana, in the forest of Dandakaranya in exile, in their humble abode of Panchavati. There enters the vamp, Shoorpanakha, the sister of the demon king Ravana. Attracted by the smell of humans, she spots Rama. Shoorpanakha falls in love with Lord Rama's majestic figure. Desirous of marrying Rama, she transforms herself into a beautiful maiden. Rama tells

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Shoorpanakha to approach his brother Lakshmana instead. Lakshmana asks Shoorpanakha to bring a sign to manifest her claim. She comes back to Rama. He writes a secret message on Shoorpanakha's back. Unaware of the message she is carrying on her back, she then approaches Lakshmana and seeks his hand in marriage. The bemused Lakshmana follows the instructions from his brother and defaces Shoorpanakha by cutting off her nose. The angry Shoorpanakha vows to take revenge.

Register Now!

I can't make it

Want to bring somebody along? Just forward this email to your friends and contacts and ask them to register directly!

Sincerely,

Press, Info, Cultural Wing
Embassy of India, Washington DC
info2@indiagov.org
202-939-7065

Forward email to a Friend!

SafeUnsubscribe

Trusted Email from Constant Contact
Try it FREE today.

This email was sent to podesta@law.georgetown.edu by info2@indiagov.org |
Update Profile/Email Address | Rapid removal with SafeUnsubscribe ™ | Privacy Policy .

Embassy of India, Washington DC | 2107 Massachusetts Ave NW | Washington | DC | 20008

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Brent Budowsky" <brentbbi@webtv.net>
Date: 3/17/2016 12:03:55 PM
Subject: Re: John and Roy

Let me know if Bernie's people reacted to the people's PAC. Bill dB liked it.

On Thursday, March 17, 2016, Brent Budowsky <brentbbi@webtv.net > wrote:
> Absolutely, share with anyone you believe makes sense! Brent
>
> Sent from my iPad
>
> On Mar 17, 2016, at 10:31 AM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
>> Can I share with Bill Db?
>>
>> On Thursday, March 17, 2016, Brent Budowsky <brentbbi@webtv.net > wrote:
>>> Please think about this and feel free to share it. My column in The Hill today was about how Bernie and Hillary need to unite to defeat Trump was highlighted in bold at the center of the front page of the paper today.
>>>
>>> It is no secret that I support Hillary without profound enthusiasm and have spent months praising Bernie with huge enthusiasm. I have a ton of credibility with Bernie, his senior staff and above all his grassroots and small donor base, who consider me the mainstream columnist who has given Bernie the most fair shake in the media.
>>>
>>> Now, I am beginning to cash in the chips by setting the stage carefully and tactfully for Bernie's people to gravitate to Hillary by convention time. Most but not all of them will support Hillary, some will stay home, I worry about the younger people especially who do not view politics as we do.
>>>
>>> The next thing I am doing to suggest is an idea I slipped into the column today to get Bernie people thinking---for him to create a People's PAC to amass small donors to support liberal Democrats for the House and Senate in November.
>>>
>>> Bernie's small donor base has revolutionary potential. $42 million in February alone. Their natural tendency after the primaries will be to largely disperse. Some, but not a huge number, will give to Hillary.
>>>
>>> The next thing I intend to propose is that Bernie, Elizabeth Warren and Bill de Blasio announce before the convention the People's PAC, raise a huge amount of money from small donors using the convention as a launching pad, to support liberal Dems in the House and Senate (and Hillary).
>>>
>>> The convention itself would be an ideal launching pad combining old and new media, television and social media, for fundraising and organizing. A reasonable goal would be to raise from small donors $100 million to $200 million which could help elect some very key liberals to the House and Senate. That's a lot of dough to influence 8 key Senate races and 35 swing House races and would make a material difference in who controls Congress. The project would help fuse together the Clinton and Sanders people, and Democrats in the presidential and Congressional campaigns using the convention as an organizing and motivating vehicle.
>>>
>>> One of the reasons I made it a point to praise Podesta in my column today as a genuine progressive is not only that I believe it is true, but that I wanted to put my credibility as a progressive behind John's credibility. The Sanders insiders know this already, and I assume some of these conversations are privately going on now, but the Sanders grassroots know me well by now, since I was writing about Bernie long before others in the media would give Bernie the time of day.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

What I want to do is keep the Sanders grassroots and small donor movements in place and behind liberals running for Congress, rather than fading away. Simply being the party that is not Trump alone is not nearly enough--we need to create a sense as conservatives have done that this is a movement for change which the People's PAC would help motivate and quantify with real money that can help us win Congress, without which a Democratic presidency will be a formula for frustration.

If Republicans nominate Trump, we have a strong chance of regaining the Senate and winning enough House seats to be within reach of a working majority and long shot chance of control.

http://thehill.com/opinion/brent-budowsky/273308-budowsky-hillary-bernie-must-unite-to-beat-trump

Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com>
To:	kristinakschake@gmail.com jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com robbymook2015@gmail.com jbenenson@bsgco.com Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com orencshur@gmail.com dschwerin@hrcoffice.com brianefallon@gmail.com jake.sullivan@gmail.com john.podesta@gmail.com teddy.goff@gmail.com
Date:	4/5/2015 11:22:20 AM
Subject:	Sampler of populist language from 2008 -- if we need pushback to attacks of HRC as faux populist in video

NEW HAMPSHIRE ELECTION NIGHT. 1/8/08
I've met families in this state and all over our country who've lost their homes to foreclosures, men and women who work day and night but can't pay the bills and hope they don't get sick because they can't afford health insurance, young people who can't afford to go to college to pursue their dreams. Too many have been invisible for too long. Well, you are not invisible to me.
The oil companies, the drug companies, the health insurance companies, the predatory student loan companies have had seven years of a presider who stands up for them. It's time we had a president who stands up for all of you.

I intend to be that president, to be a president who puts you first, your lives, your families, your children, your futures. I believe deeply in America, in our can-do spirit, in our ability to meet any challenge and solve any problem. I believe in what we can do together.

YOUNGSTOWN OHIO SPEECH
After the past seven years that choice couldn't be more important because for seven long years we've had a government of, by and for the corpora special interests. They have been heard first, they have been heard loudest and they have drowned out everyone else. And while you pinch pennie to stay within your budget, the president blew the bank on tax breaks for his friend and no-bid contracts for his cronies, borrowing hundreds of billio of dollars from China to pay for it all.

ZANESVILLE OHIO ECONOMIC FORUM
We're going to rein in the corporate special interests; we can take back $55 billion in tax giveaways that the Republicans and George Bush have handed out to the oil companies, to the drug companies, to the health insurance companies. We're going to say "wait a minute Wall Street; you've had your president. Now we need a president for Main Street." And we're going to make that happen.

OHIO PRIMARY NIGHT
For everyone here in Ohio and across America who's ever been counted out but refused to be knocked out, and for everyone who has stumbled but stood right back up, and for everyone who works hard and never gives up, this one is for you.

PENNSYLVANIA PRIMARY NIGHT 4/22/08
For me, the victory we share tonight is deeply personal. It was here in Pennsylvania where my grandfather started work as a boy in the lace mills and ended up as a supervisor five decades later. It was here where my father attended college and played football for Penn State. And I am back here tonight because of their hard work and sacrifice. And I only wish they could have lived to see this moment, because in this election I carry with me not just their dreams, but the dreams of people like them and like you all across our country - people who embrace hard work and opportunity, who never waver in the face of adversity, who stand for what you believe and never stop believing in the promise of America.

I'm in this race to fight for you, to fight for everyone who has ever been counted out, for everyone fighting to pay the grocery bills or the medical bills, the credit card and mortgage payments, and the outrageous price of gas at the pump today… You know you can count on me to stand up strong for you every single day in the White House.

Mandy Grunwald
Grunwald Communications
202 973-9400

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Robert Creamer" <creamer2@aol.com>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
can@americansunitedforchange.org
Date: 5/2/2011 6:36:17 AM
Subject: [big campaign] New Huff Post from Creamer-Political Significance of Brining Bin Laden to Justice

The Political Significance of Bringing Bin Laden to Justice

It is hard to overestimate the political importance of the fact that President Obama has brought Osama Bin Laden to justice. In fact, his success in planning and executing the action against Bin Laden capped a week that – taken as a whole – shifted the political momentum in the United States.

Voters – and especially swing voters – choose Presidents based on the way they evaluate their leadership qualities.

Elections are about the candidates on the ballot. They are not about "issues" – though issues can become symbols for whether a candidate is "on my side" or a "strong effective leader." They are not even "about" the voter's objective experience with, for example, the economy – though that experience can have a huge impact on the way we size up the qualities of a leader.

People think about political questions, candidates and leaders through symbols – symbolic issues, symbolic events, symbolic stories.

Yesterday, President Obama created an overpowering political symbol. He succeeded at accomplishing a mission that seemed nearly impossible. It had eluded the tough-talking President Bush. It had taken many years.

Obama was directly – personally -- involved in the planning of that mission. He demonstrated the kind of patient, cool-headed, laser-focused, iron-willed leadership that everyday people are confident to follow.

His statement announcing the mission's success demonstrated dignity and pride – not boastful swagger. Barack Obama did not stride across a carrier deck in a flight suit and conjure up "mission accomplished." He confidently announced that he – and the forces under his command -- had actually accomplished the mission.

In one searingly memorable event, Obama swept away any Republican posturing that he – or Democrats – are not tough enough – or advocate a "weak-kneed" foreign policy. His success – and his style – made all of the gun-toting Palin and Bachmann rhetoric sound childish and irrelevant.

But the moment did not just communicate a feeling that Obama is a strong, effective leader. It also made Americans feel empowered and inspired.

Obama's ability to use rhetoric to inspire has always been one of his greatest political assets. Inspiration is the feeling a charismatic leader communicates that gives a feeling of empowerment to the listener. It is one of those rare leadership qualities that simultaneously persuades swing voters and mobilizes base voters.

This time Obama inspired by his actions. By succeeding at bringing Bin Laden to justice, Obama inspired Americans.

One of the lingering effects of 9/11 was to make Americans feel powerless. They felt their country was unable to bring the perpetrators to justice. And they quite correctly believed that the misguided wars that were justified by the need to "fight terrorism" had become quagmires.

Obama's success made them feel empowered. The spontaneous gatherings at the White House and Ground Zero after the President's announcement were not celebrations of Obama's success. They were a celebration of the feeling that all of us – that America – had succeeded at bringing justice to the victims of 9/11. You didn't hear people saying "Obama got Osama" – you heard people saying "we got Osama."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The ability of a President to make people feel good about themselves is a critical measure of leadership. President Obama made people feel good about themselves when they voted to elect him in 2008. The long slog back from the 2008 economic collapse has made it difficult since. Across America people feel good about themselves today.

The success of the Bin Laden mission ended a week that has already begun to turn the political tide.

The President's speech on his budget two weeks ago closed the political trap door on Republicans who had been lured by their own ideological blindness and hubris to propose a budget that eliminates Medicare and replaces it with a privatized program of federal support for insurance company premiums.

Throughout the Easter recess, Republican Members of Congress ran into a buzz-saw of opposition at home.

Obama's success with Bin Laden strengthens his position in dealing with the Republicans who are threatening to allow America to go into default without draconian cuts in Medicare and other critical and popular programs. But more than that, it accelerates the velocity of the already-shifting political winds. If you're a Republican candidate or donor you're going to start feeling it in your face.

His success makes the silly controversy over his birth certificate -- that had been revived by Donald Trump and until recently had been parroted by many other "serious" candidates -- look even more marginal. Appropriately, in many part of the country, the announcement of the successful mission interrupted Donald Trump's so-called reality show "Celebrity Apprentice," with its cast of B-list personalities, many of whom are famous for "doing nothing." As Roger Catlin wrote on courant.com ,"And while Obama endeavored to provide some hope in his announcement, Trump eliminated Hope. Hope Dworacyzk, that is, the Playboy model eliminated on Celebrity Apprentice." The contrast was tangible, and striking.

While the President was planning the action that brought Osama Bin Laden to justice, Trump and the Birthers were trying to convince America – against all evidence – that he was born in Kenya.

Of course what they were really trying to do was imply to swing voters that "Obama is really not one of us – not really an American." Yesterday's success did more than any long form birth certificate to convince many ordinary voters that Barack Obama is precisely the kind of leader that makes them proud to be an American.

Robert Creamer is a long-time political organizer and strategist, and author of the book: Stand Up Straight: How Progressives Can Win, available on Amazon.com . Follow him on Twitter @rbcreamer.

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Jake Sullivan" <jake.sullivan@gmail.com>
Date: 4/16/2015 4:53:23 PM
Subject: Re: Trade Statement

Right

Sent from my iPhone

On Apr 16, 2015, at 11:10 PM, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com > wrote:

> This works. Tomorrow am at this point, right?
>
> On Apr 16, 2015, at 10:45 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Are we shipping out tonight or tomorrow am?
> >
> > On Apr 16, 2015, at 10:42 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
> >
> > > I'm good.
> > >
> > > On Apr 16, 2015 10:23 PM, "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > Here's a shorter version:
> > > >
> > > > Hillary believes that any new trade measure has to pass two tests: First, does it put us in a position to protect American workers, raise wages and create more good jobs at home? Second, does it also strengthen our national security? We should be willing to walk away from any outcome that falls short of these tests. The goal is greater prosperity and security for American families, not trade for trade's sake. Hillary will be watching closely to see what is being done to crack down on currency manipulation, improve labor rights, protect the environment, and open new opportunities for our small businesses to export overseas. As she warned in her book, Hard Choices, we shouldn't be giving special rights to corporations at the expense of workers and consumers.
> > > >
> > > > On Thu, Apr 16, 2015 at 9:43 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > Two thoughts:
> > > > 1) I wouldn't mention prior support. I only see downside to that.
> > > > 2) I would just do the first paragraph--or just add a sentence onto it about the enviro, labor stuff. I think it's a bit longer than it needs to be right now.
> > > >
> > > > On Thu, Apr 16, 2015 at 6:09 PM, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com > wrote:
> > > > > One thought: do we need a sentence acknowledging her prior support for TPP?
> > > > >
> > > > > Hillary has been on record in favor of an outcome that meets both these tests. But we should be willing to walk away from an outcome that falls short.
> > > > >
> > > > > Or Robby is that a problem?
> > > > >
> > > > > On Apr 16, 2015, at 9:01 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

How does this look to everyone?

Hillary believes that any new trade measure has to pass two tests: First, does it put us in a position to protect American workers, raise wages and create more good jobs at home? Second, does it also strengthen our national security? We should be willing to walk away from any outcome that falls short of these tests. The goal is greater prosperity and security for American families, not trade for trade's sake.

Hillary will be watching closely to see the result of a number of pivotal questions yet to be decided, including what is being done to crack down on currency manipulation and unfair competition by state-owned enterprises; to improve labor rights and protect the environment, public health, and access to life-saving medicines; and to open new opportunities for our family farms and small businesses to export their products and services overseas. And, as Hillary warned in her book, Hard Choices, we shouldn't be giving special rights to corporations at the expense of workers and consumers. Getting these things right will go a long way toward ensuring that trade will be a net plus for everyday Americans.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Melissa Cantrell" <mcantrell@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"HRC Rapid" <HRCRapid@hillaryclinton.com> "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com> "Julie McClain" <jmcclain@hillaryclinton.com> "Meredith Thatcher" <mthatcher@hillaryclinton.com> "Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	6/4/2015 4:05:44 AM
Subject:	June 3 Evening Cable News Coverage

National:

-- Discussion about the polls out this week; interviewed Frank Luntz; discussion about how HRC isn't "cuddly"; used America Rising footage of HRC telling a fan to go to the end of the line; Luntz said Americans want integrity, said he'd never seen a candidate go through so many scandals; Luntz said HRC was still beating every Republican; Hannity said Republicans were trying to figure out how to go after HRC; showed RNC attack ad on HRC; Luntz said there would be so many ads that he didn't know how many people would see the RNC ad; shifted into discussion about Chris Christie. Fox News' Hannity , 6.3.15

-- Reported on The Washington Times story that The Clinton Foundation set up a slush fund to secretly raise money from foreign donors in Sweden; interviewed John Solomon and Kelly Riddell; Hannity said HRC and WJC never disclosed this to the State Department. Fox News' Hannity, 6.3.15

-- Report that HRC was expected to eviscerate the Supreme Court's decision to remove part of the Voting Rights Act on Thursday; said that HRC was expected to call on Congress to call for a new Voting Rights Act and call out Texas specifically; noted Marc Elias had filed lawsuits against North Carolina, Ohio, and Wisconsin; said to expect more lawsuits from Elias in Georgia, Nevada, Virginia, and maybe more; said logistically HRC would be raining on Rick Perry's presidential announcement; said substantively HRC would be showing how she intends to fight to let people vote. MSNBC's The Rachel Maddow Show , 6.3.15

-- Report that HRC was in Texas primarily to fundraise; noted HRC would receive an award from TSU on Thursday; profiled Barbara Jordan; showed Barbara Jordan's keynote speech at the 1976 Democratic National Convention; reported the subject of HRC's speech would be voting rights; extensive monologue about voting rights in Texas. MSNBC's The Rachel Maddow Show , 6.3.15

-- Report on the ABC News/Washington Post poll that showed 41 percent of Americans think HRC is honest and trustworthy; interviewed John Sununu; Sununu said the press has serious stories about HRC coming out and HRC is not responding; Van Susteren said she did not think HRC had to talk to the press to win; Sununu said HRC's decision to avoid the press was wrong; Van Susteren pointed to a Fox News poll that showed HRC's preference rating among primary voters going down over the past two months; Sununu said Joe Biden may jump in the race if the leadership gets nervous about HRC's declining numbers. Fox News' On the Record With Greta Van Susteren , 6.3.15

-- Report on a Fox News poll of 2016 Democratic nominee preference; noted HRC's lead was shrinking; panel with Charles Krauthammer, Steve Hayes, and Charles Lane; Hayes said people are not locked into their support of HRC, said the CNN/ORC poll showed HRC was losing ground on the Benghazi question; showed footage of Joel Benenson on CNN's Wolf; went back to Fox News polls; Lane said the Fox News' poll showed Democratic primary voters were not too concerned; Baier said every day there seemed to be a new story about the Clintons; Krauthammer said HRC had the Democratic nomination locked up; shifted into conversation about Lincoln Chafee running for POTUS, talked about Chafee endorsing the metric system; Krauthammer said unless EAW runs then the Democratic nomination process is over. Fox News' Special Report With Bret Baier, 6.3.15

-- Report on Marc Elias filing a lawsuit challenging restrictive voting laws signed by Scott Walker; mentioned Elias' lawsuits in Ohio; shifted into report on HRC's Texas speech about voting rights; used footage of HRC speaking on August 12, 2013, talking about racial disparity in voting rights; Sharpton said HRC's voting rights stance was good politics and good policy; panel with Jonathan Capehart and Barbara Arnwine; Capehart said voting rights would be a battleground in 2016 because young people and people of color often vote Democratic; showed footage of HRC talking about restoring voting rights to felons; Arnwine said this should be a part of every candidate's platform; discussed how HRC sponsored the Count Every Vote Act of 2005; Capehart said the Count Every Vote Act was a model for voter registration reform; Arnwine said she was so glad HRC was pushing to allow early voting across the country. MSNBC's PoliticsNation With Al Sharpton , 6.3.15

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	Laura_Nichols@mpaa.org
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	2/3/2015 12:33:10 PM
Subject:	time to chat?

John,
If I've hear right, you are on your way out the door. Got anytime in the next week or two for me or are you sunning yourself somewhere?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Huma Abedin" <Huma@clintonemail.com>
To: cheryl.mills@gmail.com
Date: 5/1/2014 11:22:10 AM
Subject: Re: FW: NYT/Nader Letter

We are going to draft a response letter and send around for comment.
John, can you help us with Walmart? Maybe Leslie Dach can help? Will want to give them a heads up on her letter.

From: Cheryl Mills [mailto:cheryl.mills@gmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, May 01, 2014 02:14 PM Eastern Standard Time
To: Huma Abedin
Cc: John Podesta (john.podesta@gmail.com) <john.podesta@gmail.com>; Philippe Reines (preines.hrco@gmail.com) <preines.hrco@gmail.com>
Subject: Re: FW: NYT/Nader Letter

good copy

On Thu, May 1, 2014 at 9:26 AM, Huma Abedin <Huma@clintonemail.com > wrote:

john and cheryl - see story below

From: Philippe Reines [preines.hrco@gmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, April 30, 2014 11:52 PM
To: Huma Abedin; Rob Russo; NSM
Cc: H
Subject: NYT/Nader Letter

Here is the story the Secretary is referring to, and this is the specific reference: "Last week, dozens of labor scholars and activists, including Ralph Nader, sent Mrs. Clinton a letter asking her to use her influence with Walmart to urge the retailer to raise wages for its predominantly female work force. From 1986 to 1992, Mrs. Clinton served on the board of Walmart."

Bill Clinton Defends His Economic Legacy
By AMY CHOZICK
The New York Times
April 30, 2014

Former President Bill Clinton, who has grown increasingly frustrated that his economic policies are viewed as out-of-step with the current focus on income inequality, on Wednesday delivered his most muscular defense of his economic legacy.

The speech reflected a strategic effort by Mr. Clinton and his advisers to reclaim the populist ground now occupied by Senator Elizabeth Warren of Massachusetts and other ascendant left-leaning Democrats, and, potentially, to lay out an economic message that could propel his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, to the White House in 2016.

“My commitment was to restore broad-based prosperity to the economy and to give Americans a chance,” Mr. Clinton told students at Georgetown University, his alma mater, as Mrs. Clinton looked on from the front row. For nearly two hours, the former president defended the impact of policies like welfare overhaul and the earned-income tax credit, and displayed a series of charts detailing the number of people his policies lifted out of poverty.

“You know the rest,” he said of the 1990s. “It worked out pretty well.”

As president, Mr. Clinton presided over one of the healthiest economies in recent memory, but he also forged a new model of a pro-business, pragmatic Democrat who championed public-private partnerships and open markets. His language as president was more focused on lifting the middle class than castigating the wealthy. That should not be confused with a lack of concern for the poor, Mr. Clinton says now.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

That nuance has grown harder to communicate in recent weeks, especially as Ms. Warren has promoted her best-selling book, “A Fighting Chance,” which argues that the deck is stacked in favor of big banks and against ordinary people. A cadre of economic advisers has been helping Mr. Clinton crunch data and think about how to better frame his economic legacy — one that included a balanced budget and the creation of 22.7 million jobs — in the context of the current climate of economic populism.

The effort began early this year, when the Clintons were accused of using the swearing-in of Mayor Bill de Blasio of New York as a way to shore up their progressive credentials ahead of Mrs. Clinton’s potential 2016 campaign.

“Today, when someone talks about inequality they’re supposed to be a real left winger,” Mr. Clinton said at a book party in January. Mr. Clinton told the small crowd, which included Martin O’Malley, the governor of Maryland and a potential rival to Mrs. Clinton, that he had been fighting income inequality since his earliest years in Arkansas politics.

He slyly mocked critics who suggest that he had discovered the inequality issue recently, saying: “ ‘Oh, look at Bill Clinton, he went to the swearing-in of Bill de Blasio. He really is slick still.’ ”

Framing his policies effectively has implications beyond Mr. Clinton’s legacy. As she decides whether to run for president in 2016, Mrs. Clinton has come under criticism from some left-leaning Democrats who view her as too cozy with Wall Street. During her 2008 bid, Mrs. Clinton had to balance promoting the economic success of her husband’s administration with distancing herself from policies less popular with Democratic primary voters, like the North American Free Trade Agreement and the deregulation of the financial industry.

Last week, dozens of labor scholars and activists, including Ralph Nader, sent Mrs. Clinton a letter asking her to use her influence with Walmart to urge the retailer to raise wages for its predominantly female work force. From 1986 to 1992, Mrs. Clinton served on the board of Walmart.

“She has been going around the country getting awards and making $200,000 per speech giving soft, cushy addresses on mother and apple pie issues,” Mr. Nadar said in an interview. “It just surprises me as to why she wouldn’t come out for something so obvious.”

Mrs. Clinton did advocate raising the minimum wage at a speech in Boston last week. Burns Strider, executive director of Correct the Record, an outside group that defends Mrs. Clinton said, “Prior to it being in style to hold court on the issue of income inequality or lack-of-opportunity, Hillary Clinton was there, not just looking at the issue but taking action.”

Voters generally have a rosy view of the 1990s: Median family income increased to $48,950 in 1999 from $36,959 in 1993. And, from 1992 to 2000, unemployment fell to 7.6 percent from 14.2 percent for African-Americans and to 5.7 percent from 11.6 percent for Hispanics, according to Department of Commerce data.

“People can make their criticisms, but if you look back on the economy, people thought it was pretty darn good, especially for working-class people,” John Podesta, a former chief of staff to Mr. Clinton, and a senior adviser to President Obama, said in an interview last fall.

In his speech on Wednesday, Mr. Clinton called inequality “a severe constraint on growth” and said it had not been as much of an issue in the 1990s, when incomes grew more slowly for the richest 20 percent of families than for the poorest 20 percent.

And, he said, he faced a contentious Republican-led Senate and House that would have rejected overheated talk that castigated the wealthy or focused solely on wealth redistribution. Mr. Clinton aimed to appease the other side by also devoting energy to deficit reduction and reforming the welfare system.

Al From, an adviser to Mr. Clinton who worked on his 1992 campaign, said, “We argued starting in 1991 that the progressive position ought to be that nobody who works full time in America to support a family ought to be poor.”

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He added, “I’m sure he feels that he doesn’t get the credit he deserves for the economic gains that happened during his administration.”

Critics have accused Mr. Clinton of trying to be all things to all people and said that some of his policies, namely the trade agreements and legislation that allowed the commingling of commercial and investment banks, might have exacerbated the current inequality. Others point out that the Internet boom coincided with his presidency.

“You can say, ‘Oh, Clinton was lucky, he caught the tech boom.’ ‘Clinton was lucky, he came out of a recession,’ ” Mr. Clinton said on Wednesday. He pointed to a chart that showed that 7.7 million people were lifted out of poverty during his administration, compared with 77,000 during the Reagan years.

If she runs in 2016, Mrs. Clinton would confront the inequality issue from a very different place than her husband did in 1992, when he made $35,000 a year as governor of Arkansas. Back then, Mr. Clinton seemed to have a natural connection to people of modest means while his opponent, the elder President George Bush, struggled to say how much a gallon of milk cost.

On Wednesday, Mr. Clinton said he thanked God every day that “Hillary and I and some of our friends in this audience who live in New York probably pay the highest aggregate tax rates in America.”

The challenge is not about personal wealth, but policies, said Robert B. Reich, a secretary of labor under Mr. Clinton. And some policy experts argue that the era of centrist Clinton economics may have expired.

When asked by CNN last fall whether it was “the end of the Clinton Democrats,” Mr. Clinton replied: “There’s probably something to that. America is growing more liberal culturally and more diverse.”

“But, again, let’s not get carried away here,” he added. “I ran on income inequality in 1992.”

###
------Original Message------
From: Evergreen
To: Huma Abedin
To: Rob Russo
To: PIR
To: NSM
Subject: Question
Sent: Apr 30, 2014 11:46 PM

Does anybody know about this letter Chosick article in 5/1 Times says was sent to me?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Louis Seidman" <seidman@law.georgetown.edu>
To: "Abdulaziz Altuwaijri" <aaa244@law.georgetown.edu>
"Abdulwahab Sadeq" <aas78@law.georgetown.edu>
"Ada Siqueira" <as3591@law.georgetown.edu>
"Agustin Ignacio Barroilhet\(fwd\)" <ab2897@georgetown.edu>
"Alexandra Phelan" <alexandra.phelan@gmail.com>
"amanda Shandor" <amanda.shanor@gmail.com>
"Amy?? Uelmen" <aju2@law.georgetown.edu>
"Anna Offit \(fwd\)" <annaoffit@gmail.com>
"Daniel A Hougendobler" <dah93@law.georgetown.edu> derek.webb@law.stanford.edu
"Dina B. Mishra" <dina.b.mishra@gmail.com>
"Edit Frenyo" <ef246@law.georgetown.edu>
"Faculty?? Support" <facultysupport@law.georgetown.edu>
"Han-hsi Liu\(fwd\)" <hl580@georgetown.edu>
"Hisham Alsabt\(fwd\)" <ha374@georgetown.edu>
"Ian M?? Kysel\(fwd\)" <imk6@georgetown.edu>
IBhatty@ussc.gov
"Ido Kilovaty\(fwd\)" <ik292@georgetown.edu>
"Itamar J. Mann-Kanowitz \(fwd\)" <itamar.mann@gmail.com>
"Jamillah Williams" <jamillah.williams@law.georgetown.edu> jofarin@hotmail.com
"John M Bentil" <jmb386@law.georgetown.edu>
"Jonathan?? Keim \(fwd\)" <jonathan.keim@gmail.com>
"Julia Cadaval Martins" <jc2403@law.georgetown.edu>
"Julia Tomassetti" <julia.tomassetti@gmail.com>
"Justin S Murray \(fwd\)" <jumurray@gmail.com>
"L Caplan" <lcaplan3@gmail.com>
"Laura Alexander" <Alexander.Laura@gmail.com>
"Law Center Staff" <LawCenterStaff@law.georgetown.edu>
"Law Faculty and Visitors" <LawFacultyandVisitors@law.georgetown.edu>
"Law Library All" <LawLibraryAll@law.georgetown.edu>
"Lorenzo G Di Silvio\(fwd\)" <disilvio@gmail.com> mahony.christopher@gmail.com
Maxtell@Princeton.edu
milton@toledojunior.com.br
molly.beth.wilder@gmail.com
Munshis <munshisherally@gmail.com>
"Nancy?? Cantalupo" <cantalun@law.georgetown.edu> nasredeen.abdulbari@post.harvard.edu
oso@georgetown.edu
Patrick.Glen@usdoj.gov
"Rabia S. Belt" <rsb81@law.georgetown.edu>
"Ramzan Alnoaimi" <ra357@law.georgetown.edu> richizquierdo <richizquierdo@gmail.com>
"Ruthanne M Deutsch" <rmd8@law.georgetown.edu>
"Samantha Godwin" <sgodwin3@googlemail.com>
"Shana Tabak" <shanatabak@gmail.com>
"Sooz Shin" <soozshin@gmail.com>
ss735@georgetown.edu
Sshmuely <sshmuely@MIT.EDU>
tpschmidt@gmail.com
Zachary.kaufman@aya.yale.edu
Date: 6/26/2015 5:50:15 AM

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Subject: Next Week's Summer Workshops
Attachments: Encoded Law (1.1) .docx

On Tuesday, June 30, we feature a panel discussion on "Library Services in Support of Teaching and Scholarship" led by head research librarian Christine Ciambella. Christine writes:

A panel of librarians and faculty will discuss projects that illustrate the variety of services provided by the library to support teaching and scholarship. Speakers include Sara Gras and Angela Campbell on creating a customized research guide for student use; Thanh Nguyen and Carlos Vazquez on collecting and parsing large data sets; and Marylin Raisch and David Stewart on creating multi-jurisdiction surveys. The librarians will be available to answer questions about library services.

On Thursday, July 2, Tanina Rostain will discuss her paper entitled "Encoded Law (Or Why I Build Aps)." The paper is attached to this email. It will also be available on the Georgetown Law Website and, in hard copy, at faculty support.

Both workshops meet in McDonough 492 at 12:00 pm. Cookies and drinks will be served.

Mike SeidmAN

Louis Michael Seidman
Carmack Waterhouse Professor of Constitutional Law
Georgetown University Law Center
600 New Jersey Ave. NW
Washington, DC 20001
202-662-9102

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	Ricesusane@aol.com
To:	dmcdonough@barackobama.com john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/1/2008 8:45:06 AM
Subject:	Re: After Sam Nunn?

Even though Hamre has been pretty critical of BO policies approaches?

I love Reed idea, if he could/would do.

Plan your next getaway with AOL Travel. Check out Today's Hot 5 Travel Deals!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: politicalUnit@abcnews.go.com <politicalUnit@abcnewsnow.com>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 11/2/2015 11:17:52 PM
Subject: The Note - Can Jeb Fix It?

abc NEWS

The Note: Can Jeb Fix It?

November, 03, 2015 9:10 AM
By MICHAEL FALCONE

NOTABLES

--BUSH INVOKES LINCOLN: Jeb Bush launched his "Jeb Can Fix It" tour, invoking a U.S. president who he said would have faced the same challenges he faces today. "If Lincoln were alive today, imagine the foolishness he would have to suffer. Advisers telling him to shave his beard. Cable pundits telling him to lose the top hat," Bush told an enthusiastic crowd gathered yesterday at the Tampa Garden Club in Florida. He added that he has gotten advice, too: to ditch his glasses, change ties, prompting laughter and applause from the crowd. The tour and the release of his e-book, "Reply All today," are all in an effort to jumpstart a campaign that many say has been flailing, after tumbling poll numbers and a widely panned debate performance, ABC's CANDACE SMITH notes. http://abcn.ws/1KTlX05

--ANALYSIS -- ABC's RICK KLEIN : Jeb Bush's campaign theme is and has always been about that "it," that it takes a Bush -- more specifically, Jeb! -- to fix the mess voters believe the country has found itself in. But the fix-it list has grown for Bush since the long-ago time of his campaign announcement. He'll have to fix his debate performances, his campaign structure, and calculations about his path to the nomination before he can hope to recapture enthusiasm about his candidacy. There's something bigger Bush hopes to fix that is inherently problematic for him. He needs to fix what the 2016 campaign has become, and make it into what he has always hoped it would be. "This election is not about a set of personalities," Bush said, somewhat hopefully. "It's about a set of principles." This campaign has been about Donald Trump and Ben Carson and what the massive television events called the presidential debates should look like. It has also been about, in part, the master-apprentice relationship between Bush and Marco Rubio, whom his campaign team sees as his biggest ultimate obstacle to the GOP nomination. When it has been about Bush, it's been about his last name far more than his first. The campaign to date has not been about the principles of leadership that Bush wants it to be about, at least not yet. http://abcn.ws/1GIk82v

--WHY DONALD TRUMP THINKS BEN CARSON 'JUST DOESN'T HAVE THE EXPERIENCE' TO BE PRESIDENT: Republican presidential candidate Donald Trump ripped into his Republican rivals today, saying Ben Carson doesn't have the experience or the temperament to be president. "It's not his thing. He doesn't have the temperament for it," the New York real estate mogul told ABC News' George Stephanopoulos on "Good Morning America." "I think Ben just doesn't have the experience." Trump also blasted Marco Rubio, emerging from the pack as an establishment alternative to Jeb Bush. "I'm not a fan. I think he's overrated," he said. as "overrated," adding that "Putin would eat him alive." He then went on to criticize Jeb Bush, saying that he should "absolutely" drop out of the 2016 race. "He doesn't have a chance," he said. http://abcn.ws/1k7uwqw

THE BUZZ

with ABC's VERONICA STRACQUALURSI and PAOLA CHAVEZ

PRESIDENT OBAMA MAKES FUN OF GOP CANDIDATES' DEBATE COMPLAINTS. President Obama poked fun at the Republican presidential candidates tonight for their complaints about the moderators at the CNBC debate last week. "They can't handle a bunch of CNBC moderators," the president said at a DNC fundraiser held after a showing of Hamilton on Broadway. "I mean, let me tell ya, if you can't handle, if you can't handle those guys, you know then I don't think the Chinese and the Russians are going to be too worried about you." The Republican presidential campaigns met Sunday to devise a new plan for their party's debates, according to ABC's ARLETTE SAENZ. Their meeting arose in the wake of last week's CNBC Republican presidential debate, which was widely panned by the candidates and Republican officials. http://abcn.ws/1HoZsCF

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

ANALYSIS -- ABC's RICK KLEIN: Is it a genuine shock that the Republican presidential candidates couldn't agree on this on? Just hours after emerging with something resembling consensus out of a Sunday night meeting on debate format, the idea of a joint letter to networks to shape future debates started falling apart. Donald Trump let it be known that he's a better negotiator by himself. Chris Christie and John Kasich said, in essence, stop whining and start debating. Carly Fiorina's campaign had the most fun of it, informing meeting organizers that campaign aides had dinner at an Applebee's in Iowa rather than attend a "closed door meeting" outside of Washington. In short, individual campaigns are doing what individual campaigns do: advocate for the interests of their individual candidates. If anything, the events of the last week have validated what the RNC sought to do at the beginning of the process of scheduling and organizing debates.

DONALD TRUMP SAYS HE'S BETTER LOOKING THAN MARCO RUBIO. He pulled out the Trump card -- in the looks department. Donald Trump said that he not only had higher poll numbers than fellow GOP presidential contender Marco Rubio -- he was also better looking than his rival, ABC's ALI DUKAKIS notes. Trump made the comments on Bloomberg Television's "With All Due Respect," referencing the media fawning over Rubio, who had a successful performance at last week's Republican debate. "I watched someone on [MSNBC's 'Morning Joe'] this morning...He's fawning over him. He says how handsome he is," Trump said. "I don't know, I think I'm better looking than he is." Trump also called the Florida senator overrated. "I think he's highly overrated, I think he's an overrated person, I've called him a light weight. I think he's a light weight -- I hope I'm wrong about that." http://abcn.ws/1WvkCdU

BERNIE SANDERS STARTS TO NAME NAMES TO SET HIMSELF APART FROM HILLARY CLINTON. The first event of Bernie Sanders's swing through New Hampshire this weekend was uncharacteristically small. No large, chanting crowds commonplace to his campaign. Instead the Vermont senator visited a senior center in Manchester and spoke to a thoughtful group of about 20 people before taking their questions. But it was not just the setting that was unusual for Sanders, something had changed in his remarks too. Just minutes into his speech, he said her name. "Let me tell you a word about Social Security. I understand Secretary Clinton was here the other day. I think she and I have a strong disagreement on this," he began, going on to talk about his proposal for maintaining and expanding Social Security by "scrapping the cap" on taxable income. By comparison, Clinton has only said she would consider such an idea. ABC's MARYALICE PARKS has more. http://abcn.ws/1Q28YIK

JEB BUSH'S BOOK REVEALS DEATH PENALTY DOUBTS, THOUGHTS ON RACISM. Monday, Republican presidential candidate, Jeb Bush, released a compilation of hundreds of emails from his two terms as governor of Florida. The e-book, "Reply All," spans the years of 1999-2007 and encompasses the many issues Bush dealt with; fighting to cut state budgets, dealing with the Florida recount of 2000, the eight hurricanes that hit during his tenure. It also offers insight into his thoughts on controversial issues that continue to reverberate into this current campaign, ABC's CANDACE SMITH notes. http://abcn.ws/1Ws71JI

ON THE HILL

HOUSE SPEAKER PAUL RYAN GETS NEW OFFICE, OLD SMELL. John Boehner left something for new House Speaker Paul Ryan to remember him by: the smell of his cigarette smoke. When the Wisconsin Republican inherited the speaker's office Friday, it still smelled of Boehner's cigarettes, which he was known to smoke frequently. "It's like when you get a rental car or a hotel room that's been smoked in; you know someone has smoked in it," Ryan, a fitness buff, joked to ABC News' Martha Raddatz Friday. According to ABC's BENJAMIN SIEGEL, staffers are using a filtration machine to air out the speaker's office -- which boasts the best view of the Washington Mall in town -- before Ryan's arrival. http://abcn.ws/1N9HMBC

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

IN CASE YOU MISSED IT

LOOK AT THE CELEBRITIES SUPPORTING OHIO MARIJUANA BALLOT ISSUE. Ohioans will vote Tuesday on a measure to legalize marijuana with a surprise twist. The ballot issue has several celebrity backers who plan to become part of the marijuana business if it passes. The ballot measure, called Issue 3, would make it legal for people 21 or older to grow, use or share up to 8 ounces of marijuana for recreational use. ABC's STEPHANIE EBBS reports, it would also grant exclusive commercial growth rights to 10 landowners who would supply the roughly 1,100 dispensaries across the state. Millions of dollars were donated to support the ballot initiative, along with big-name supporters like NFL player Frostee Rucker, former NBA star Oscar Robertson and fashion designer Nanette Lapore, who're listed on the website of a PAC supporting the measure. http://abcn.ws/1HnbtNH

WHO'S TWEETING?

@RosieGray: Ben Carson's Campaign Is Spamming People With Phone Calls And They're Getting Annoyed http://www.buzzfeed.com/rosiegray/ben-carsons-campaign-is-spamming-people-with-phone-calls-and?utm_term=.fwy8jxwjp ...

@CNNPpolitics: .@tedcruz aide's firm targets @SenJohnMcCain , prompting tensions with the GOP http://cnn.it/1NogN9K

@bpolitics: Hillary Clinton and Bernie Sanders enter a new phase in the battle for New Hampshire http://bloom.bg/1KSH7Tn

@jeneps : New Clinton ad on fighting gun violence, airing as part of previous buy in Iowa & NH. She'll talk guns today in Iowa https://youtu.be/K7Dn-4LDUw4

@NYTnickc: After Cruz campaign complains publicly about their super PACs silence, Keep the Promise 1 releases more radio ads http://bit.ly/1Mewobg

YOU MIGHT LIKE

Recommended by powerinbox

This email was sent to podesta@law.georgetown.edu

Please do not reply to this email as this address is not monitored.

Newsletter Unsubscribe
If you no longer wish to receive the newsletter "Political Unit: The Note" at this email address, you may click here to unsubscribe.

Add me to the ABC News Do Not Email List
This email contains an advertisement from ABCNews, 7 WEST 66th Street, New York, NY 10023. To unsubscribe from all types of future commercial email from ABC News regarding its products and services, click here .

© 2015 ABC News Internet Ventures. All rights reserved. ,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Mary Podesta" <podesta.mary@gmail.com>
Date:	12/15/2015 6:39:28 PM
Subject:	Re: off to CA in the morning

And travel safe. Love to the kids.

On Tuesday, December 15, 2015, Mary Podesta <podesta.mary@gmail.com > wrote:

> Back Saturday AM.

From: "Tom Matzzie" <tmatzzie@gmail.com>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 10/14/2010 8:34:00 AM
Subject: [big campaign] my HuffPost: No Regrets the Day After Election Day

fyi

http://www.huffingtonpost.com/tom-matzzie/no-regrets-the-day-after_b_763090.html

Tom Matzzie

Posted: October 14, 2010 02:56 PM

No Regrets the Day After Election Day

Imagine for one minute that you wake up the day after Election Day this year and the horrible has happened: Republicans have captured new majorities in the U.S. House and Senate.

Do you want to look back and wish that you remembered to vote or volunteer or contribute?

I sure as hell don't.

If you and I have regrets the day after the election here is what will have happened.

- Speaker Pelosi will have been replaced by Speaker Boehner.
- Prominent progressive chairs of important committees will lose their gavels. Of the twenty standing committees in the U.S. House, ten of them are chaired by members of the Congressional Progressive Caucus.
- Progressive champions like Rep. Alan Grayson would be gone. Senator Russ Feingold, one of the great defenders of the U.S. Constitution, would have lost his race.
- The likelihood of comprehensive legislation to address climate change or create a boom in renewable energies will all but disappear.
- The push for Social Security privatization will be revived under a Republican Congress.
- The minimum wage and unemployment benefits and Medicare will all come under new attacks from the Republican Congress.
- The good parts of health care reform and financial reform will be slowly weakened until they're meaningless -- and the hope of improving these pieces of landmark legislation will be tossed aside.
- The drumbeat of concerns or opposition to the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan will suffer -- no hearings, no tough questions about the budgets.
- The push for equality for LGBT Americans and populations of color will get zero attention in these new Congresses as they revive decades-old attacks on Civil Rights.
- Tom DeLay-style corruption will have an open door. Rep. John Boehner, the likely new Speaker, has said he wants to look at doing away with the Office of Congressional Ethics.
- And with two years until the presidential election, you better believe that Republican-controlled committees in Congress will launch pointless investigations of President Obama and the Obama Administration in order to grab headlines and create false scandals.

I don't want to have any regrets the day after the election. I don't want to be part of letting all of these bad things happen. Do you?

Let me be clear that I do not share some dogmatic belief that Democrats are perfect or that the legislation or reforms of the last two years have pulled America up again. Not yet at least. I've been frustrated or disappointed with several positions taken by the administration or by an absence of leadership in some areas. I've also been excited, happy or encouraged by some policy changes.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

But you know what, it is perfectly normal and OK to hold two seemingly contradictory feelings: frustration and a desire that Democrats kick some Republican butt on Election Day.

This is just like how a parent can be angry with the child they love. But there is no way in hell you're going to let somebody come into your house and push your kid around.

These new Tea Party Republicans are going to make Newt Gingrich and Tom DeLay look like socialists.

Do you want to have these regrets? Or do you want to know that you did everything you could? In the end, that is really the choice each of us has whether we're progressive, liberal, moderate, Democrat, Independent, a third party or even conservative.

I know what I'm choosing: no regrets.

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Debbie Fine" <debsfine@gmail.com>
Date:	3/20/2015 7:51:02 AM
Subject:	Re: neera was totally supportive

Great

On Mar 20, 2015 2:25 PM, "Debbie Fine" <debsfine@gmail.com > wrote:

> went v well.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Brian Fallon" <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 5/22/2015 6:50:20 AM
Subject: Re: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE

HRC took three or four q's. Sounds like it went well. Hopefully we will see soon on msnbc or cnn. Varun will transcribe.

Sent from my iPhone

On May 22, 2015, at 1:45 PM, Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> They concede the pt and will fix
>
> On Friday, May 22, 2015, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > Brian - I think we should push back. It is not "document" not "documents."
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On May 22, 2015, at 1:31 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Should someone push back on politico with regards to "now classified documents?" It's 23 words out of one single email.
> > >
> > > On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:30 PM, Josh Schwerin <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > First batch of Hillary's State Department emails released
> > > >
> > > > By LAUREN FRENCH, JOSH GERSTEIN and BRYAN BENDER
> > > >
> > > > 5/22/15 12:13 PM EDT
> > > > http://www.politico.com/story/2015/05/hillary-clinton-emails-release-118214.html
> > > >
> > > > The first batch of emails from Hillary Clinton's four years running the State Department was released Friday.
> > > > Even before the emails were made public, the State Department argued that the nearly 900 pages of documents do not fundamentally alter the findings of the State Department's Accountability Review Board that probed the Benghazi terrorist attacks.
> > > >
> > > > "The emails we release today do not change the essential facts or our understanding of the events before, during, or after the attacks, which have been known since the independent Accountability Review Board report on the Benghazi attacks was released almost two and a half years ago," wrote the department's deputy spokeswoman Marie Harf.
> > > > These highly anticipated emails, some of which have already leaked out, give insight into Clinton's tenure as the top U.S. diplomat. They're also serving as fodder for critics of the Democratic presidential front-runner, who is still dogged by questions about a 2012 terrorist attack in Benghazi that killed Ambassador Chris Stevens.
> > > >
> > > > And they are sure to raise more questions about the administration's and Clinton's response to what quickly became a political scandal. There is an email dated Sept. 15 with Clinton providing "talking points" for an upcoming closed-door hearing before the House Select Committee on Intelligence, but with the exception of Jake Sullivan the recipients are blacked out, along with the entire document.
> > > >
> > > > It states only: "Per the discussion at Deputies, here are the revised TPs for HPSCI."
> > > > The emails also show that Clinton received now-classified documents on her personal email address. One of the documents State recently deemed classified was a November 2012 email reporting possible arrests in Libya related to the Benghazi attack. The memo was sent through unclassified State Department channels and forwarded to Clinton's private account by Sullivan, State's Director of Policy Planning. A notation on the document released says it was classified as –"SECRET"—the middle tier of national security classification—on Friday, the same day the records were released.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Clinton has been under intense pressure for weeks since it was revealed that she used a non-official email address while at the State Department and stored those emails on a personal server in her New York home. Republicans jumped on those revelations to accuse Clinton of attempting to runaround federal records laws and keep key documents about Libya and Benghazi from the public.

Republican Rep. Trey Gowdy, chairman of the House Select Committee on Benghazi, has subpoenaed the State Department for all documents on Libya from Clinton's time at the State Department and is refusing to schedule the former secretary to testify until the Obama administration turns the emails over to congressional investigators.

ALSO ON POLITICO

Insiders: Benghazi testimony works to Hillary's advantage

KATIE GLUECK

Gowdy said in a statement Friday that the committee will continue to seek all documents from Clinton's tenure at the State Department on Libya and Benghazi and not the "self-selected" emails the former secretary made available.

"To assume a self-selected public record is complete, when no one with a duty or responsibility to the public had the ability to take part in the selection, requires a leap in logic no impartial reviewer should be required to make and strains credibility," Gowdy said.

The Benghazi Committee has had access to this first batch of email, which represents less than 2 percent of the 55,000 emails Clinton returned to State, for months. Leaked portions of the emails contain extensive communications between Clinton and Sidney Blumenthal — a longtime family ally. Blumenthal would often send Clinton memos on the security in Libya before the 2012 attacks that left four Americans dead.

Blumenthal's analyses of Libya was often met with skepticism from senior State Department officials, including Clinton. Gowdy asked the U.S. Marshals Service to serve Blumenthal with a subpoena on Tuesday.

The emails also give a personal look at Clinton's habits and relationships.

A Oct. 7, 2012 email from Blumenthal invited Clinton and her husband, former President Bill Clinton, to a dinner.

"Postelection, we'd like to have you over for dinner. Bill can come, too, if he's in town. Whatever works," Blumenthal wrote.

The rest of the 55,000 emails will be released to the public in stages. State proposed releasing those records next January, but a judge rejected that plan and ordered the agency to come up with a rolling schedule, which has yet to be finalized.

The documents released Friday are from January 2011 to Dec. 31, 2012, "and relate to the security of, and attacks on, the State Department facility in Benghazi and to the United States' diplomatic presence in Libya, including in Benghazi," Harf said.

Maryland Rep. Elijah Cummings, the top Democrat on the Benghazi panel, said in a statement that the committee should now schedule Clinton to testify.

"Instead of the selective leaking that has happened so far, the American people can now read all of these emails and see for themselves that they contain no evidence to back up claims that Secretary Clinton ordered a stand-down, approved an illicit weapons program, or any other wild allegation Republicans have made for years," Cummings said.

Read more: http://www.politico.com/story/2015/05/hillary-clinton-emails-release-118214.html#ixzz3atDON74L

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:29 PM, Ian Sams <isams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

This strikes me as a selective placement from someone with access to the emails, maybe Benghazi committee staff since Alex has strong House GOP relationships. Hard to imagine Alex found this tidbit in an email and wrote this piece exclusively after the emails published 45 minutes ago.

He also gets the email address wrong.

http://dailycaller.com/2015/05/22/hillary-discussed-speculation-about-her-health-with-aides-in-emails/

Hillary Discussed Speculation About Her Health With Aides In Emails

ALEX PAPPAS

Political Reporter

1:15 PM 05/22/2015

Then-Secretary of State Hillary Clinton discussed with aides the chatter on cable news about whether she actually suffered a concussion in 2012, according to emails released by the State Department on Friday.

A week before she was to testify before Congress in December 2012 about the attacks in Benghazi, Clinton postponed her appearance with aides explaining she had fainted and suffered a concussion.
On Dec. 20, chief of staff Cheryl Mills forwarded Clinton by email a transcript of Fox News host Greta Van Susteren discussing Clinton's health with Arizona Republican Sen. John McCain.

"Senator," Van Susteren said during that segment, "there is a report from the State Department that Secretary of State Hillary Clinton will testify on Benghazi before the middle of January. There has been some criticism of whether or not she has a concussion. I believe she has a concussion. What do you think?"

McCain replied: "I have never seen her back down. And I believe that she is now not physically well enough to testify and she will testify the middle of January."
Mills sent a transcript of that interview to Clinton's personal email — hrod@clintonemail.com — and to close aide Huma Abdein.
Speaking of McCain, Clinton replied: "Huma called him and [South Carolina Sen. Lindsey] Graham."
"Also," Clinton added, "someone should call Greta VS to thank her for 'knowing the truth.'"
The emails released Friday, ahead of the Memorial Day weekend, are a few of the thousands the Democratic presidential candidate has turned over to the State Department from her personal email account. Clinton acknowledges she used that email account for both personal and official business.

<image001.png>

From: Tyson Brody [mailto:tbrody@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Friday, May 22, 2015 1:21 PM
To: Ian Sams
Cc: Josh Schwerin; Brian Fallon; Christina Reynolds; HRCRR; Jennifer Palmieri; Kristina Schake; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Huma Abedin; Cheryl Mills; Jake Sullivan

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Subject: Re: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE

Attached are the redacted and unredacted versions of the email as a side by a side.

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:16 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Want to flag that if you look at the email in this link, HRC's email is redacted. But in yesrterday's new york times dump, the same email is unredacted. Could it be because Committee leaked?
>
> https://twitter.com/gabrielmalor/status/601796614060167169
>
> See it unredacted from the times below:
>
> <image003.png>
>
> On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:16 PM, Ian Sams <isams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Lachlan Markay @lachlan
> >
> > Email with Hillary's revised Benghazi talking points is completely redacted pic.twitter.com/A3uGN0erHW
> >
> > ---
> >
> > From: Ian Sams [mailto:isams@hillaryclinton.com]
> > Sent: Friday, May 22, 2015 1:05 PM
> > To: Josh Schwerin; Brian Fallon
> > Cc: Tyson Brody; Christina Reynolds; HRCRR; Jennifer Palmieri; Kristina Schake; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Huma Abedin; Cheryl Mills; Jake Sullivan
> > Subject: RE: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Date: May 22, 2015

Contact:

Jamal D. Ware

202-226-7100

Amanda Duvall

202-225-6030

Statement on the Release of Secretary Clinton's Benghazi Emails

Washington, DC— Select Committee on Benghazi Chairman Trey Gowdy, R-S.C., today issued the following statement after the State Department released 300 self-selected emails from former Secretary Hillary Clinton, over which the department had no control and no custody for nearly two years. These emails were turned over to the State by former Secretary Clinton in the fall of 2014 in reaction to a request from the Select Committee:

"More than six months after the Select Committee first discovered Secretary Clinton's unusual email arrangement with herself, and after the media discovered Secretary Clinton relied exclusively on a personal server housing a personal email account eschewing any official email address, State Department transferred 300 messages exclusively reviewed and released by her own lawyers," Gowdy said. "These lawyers, it must be noted, owed and continue to owe a fiduciary responsibility to Secretary Clinton to protect her interests. To assume a self-selected public record is complete, when no one with a duty or responsibility to the public had the ability to take part in the selection, requires a leap in logic no impartial reviewer should be required to make and strains credibility."

"It is also important to remember these email messages are just one piece of information that cannot be completely evaluated or fully understood without the total record. The Committee is working to collect and evaluate all of the relevant and material information necessary to evaluate the full range of issues in context. We will not reach any investigative conclusions until our work is complete, but these emails continue to reinforce the fact that unresolved questions and issues remain as it relates to Benghazi."

"The Select Committee continues to believe the American people have a right to the full and complete record of her official emails and, therefore, asked Secretary Clinton to turn her server and the full body of emails over to a neutral, detached, independent third party for review. This is also why the State Department must comply with a months-old subpoena for emails of the former Secretary's top aides, whose emails have never been received or reviewed by any congressional committee."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"The Committee's interest is in building a complete record from which the final, definitive accounting regarding the terrorist attacks in Benghazi can be provided. The best way to answer all questions related to the attacks in Benghazi continues to be having access to the full public record, not a "record" controlled, possessed and screened exclusively by Secretary Clinton's personal lawyers."

###

Background Information on Released Emails:

Among the emails the Select Committee finds highlight the existence of significant investigative questions:

September 24, 2012—"Compiled protest and Benghazi Statements." A document that reinforces issues relating to characterization of the motives for the attacks. For example, Jake Sullivan noted, "You never said spontaneous or characterized the motives. In fact you were careful in your first statement to say we were assessing motive and method. The way you treated the video in the Libya context was to say that some sought to justify the attack on that basis."

August 24, 2012 — "H: Intel on new Libya president. Sid." In this document two and a half weeks before the attacks, Jake Sullivan writes to the Secretary, "Some warning signs," in response to the deteriorating security situation in Benghazi, which forced the Red Cross to suspend activities, and reinforces questions about what was done in response to these warnings.

April 4, 2012—"Secretary Clinton's Leadership on Libya." This document characterizes Secretary Clinton's ownership of U.S. policy in Libya.

April 8, 2011—"UK game playing; new rebel strategists; Egypt moves in. Sid" In this document, Secretary Clinton responded to a Blumenthal memo with, "Fyi. The idea of using private security experts to arm the opposition should be considered."

There are several instances of State personnel notifying the Secretary about security concerns and issues:

April 10, 2011 – Forwarded email about deteriorating security

April 22, 2011 – Request for continuous coverage in Benghazi, "security permitting"

April 24, 2011 – Forwarded email about hotels being targeted

June 10, 2011 – Email including information about credible threat info against hotel and that personnel are evacuating to alternate locations

August 21, 2011 – Email regarding concerns about Islamist militias

January 9, 2012 – Email stating that disarming and reintegrating of militias isn't going as well as they had hoped

February 24, 2012 – Email stating that militia rivalries are dangerous

August 24, 2012 – Email stating that there are "some warning signs"

The Committee also has an interest in understanding the inexplicable gaps in the Secretary's emails during key times of her involvement in Libyan policy, including:

June 10-August 8, 2011—Time period where Secretary Clinton was heavily involved in Libya policy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

September 14-October 21 2011—Dates of Secretary Clinton's trip to Libya, when the now-famous picture of Clinton on her blackberry was taken

October 21, 2011-January 5, 2012—Time period when the State Department was extending the Benghazi mission for another year

April 27- July 4 2012—Time period of increased security during which an IED was thrown at the compound blasting a hole through the wall and during which the British ambassador was attacked

From: hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com [mailto:hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com] On Behalf Of Josh Schwerin
Sent: Friday, May 22, 2015 1:03 PM
To: Brian Fallon
Cc: Tyson Brody; Christina Reynolds; HRCRR; Jennifer Palmieri; Kristina Schake; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Huma Abedin; Cheryl Mills; Jake Sullivan
Subject: Re: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE

First Batch of Hillary Clinton's Emails on Libya Made Public

BY CARRIE DANN

http://www.nbcnews.com/politics/hillary-clinton/first-batch-hillary-clintons-emails-libya-made-public-n362506

A batch of Hillary Clinton's personal emails made public on Thursday morning offers a glimpse into her team's initial exchange of information in the wake of the Benghazi attacks as well as her relationship with longtime confidante Sidney Blumenthal, who sent her at least two dozen memos regarding Libya during her tenure as Secretary of State.

The State Department plans to release about 850 pages of the emails, which had been handed over to the congressional panel investigating the Benghazi attacks. But on Thursday, the New York Times released about a third of that batch of correspondence, which Clinton exchanged using a private server rather than a government email account.

The documents show that, while Clinton used her personal email account to receive information the government calls "sensitive," she did not appear to use her private server to exchange classified information.

The "sensitive" information included details like the location of State Department officials in Libya during a time of instability in the country in 2011.

The documents released by the New York Times also show that Clinton received numerous briefing memos about Libya from Blumenthal, a longtime friend of the Clintons who was not employed by the State Department. The New York Times reported earlier this week that Blumenthal was also involved with a possible business venture in the country at the time.

Two of those memos from Blumenthal came in the days immediately following the September 11, 2012 Benghazi attacks.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

In one, sent on September 12, Blumenthal suggested that top security officers in the country believed that the attacks "were inspired by what many devout Libyan viewed as a sacrilegious internet video on the prophet Mohammed originating in America." Clinton forwarded that information to top adviser Jake Sullivan with the message "more info."

But another memo sent the following day indicated that the attacks may have actually been carried out by a militia group. Blumenthal wrote that officials in the country "believe that the attackers having prepared to launch their assault took advantage of the cover provided by the demonstrations in Benghazi protesting an internet production seen as disrespectful to the prophet Mohammed."

The release of the emails comes after a prolonged political fight for Clinton over her use of a private email server while serving as Secretary of State.

On Tuesday, Clinton urged the State Department to expedite the vetting of the emails after initial reports suggested that the data trove would not be ready for public release until January of next year

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 1:00 PM, Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> State did a nice job with this, despite the initial, sensationalized tweet by AP
>
> On Friday, May 22, 2015, Josh Schwerin <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > State Dept. releases Hillary Clinton e-mails in Benghazi probe
> >
> > AP MAY 22, 2015
> >
> > http://www.bostonglobe.com/news/nation/2015/05/22/state-dept-set-release-hillary-clinton-mails-benghazi-probe/E48MdmnEHKruEi5sTKzOwM/story.html
> >
> > WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Hillary Rodham Clinton received information on her private email server about the deadly attack on U.S. diplomatic facilities in Benghazi that was classified Friday at the FBI's request.
> >
> > The email in question, forwarded to Clinton by her deputy chief of staff, relates to reports of arrests in Libya of possible suspects in the attack.
> >
> > The information was not classified at the time the email was sent and was upgraded from unclassified to ''secret'' on Friday, according to State Department officials. The officials said 23 words of the November 2012 message were redacted from the release of 896 emails totaling 296 pages, to protect information that may damage foreign relations.
> >
> > They said no other redactions were made for classification reasons.
> >
> > Spokeswoman Marie Harf says publication includes 296 e-mails given to a House committee investigating the 2012 attack on the US diplomatic post in Benghazi, Libya.
> >
> > She says redactions were made according to Freedom of Information Act standards. The emails will be released via the State Department's FOIA website, foia.state.gov .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The documents cover e-mails between 2011 and 2012 related to the Benghazi facility and its security, and to the broader issue of a US diplomatic presence in Libya.

Harf says the e-mails don't provide new facts about how four Americans were killed on Sept. 11, 2012. The State Department also said on Twitter that the emails don't provide a change in its understanding of the events.

The State Department is still reviewing 55,000 further pages of e-mails from Clinton's private email account. They'll be published on a rolling basis.

On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 12:42 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> User Actions
> Following
> Matt Lee@APDiploWriter
>
> Matt Lee retweeted Brian Fallon
>
> Classified this morning - as the story makes clear.
>
> Matt Lee added,
>
> Brian Fallon @brianefallon
> Classified only in recent days MT @KThomasDC: Clinton received now-classified Benghazi info on private email server, documents show.
>
> On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 12:35 PM, Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>
>> WASHINGTON (AP) — Clinton received now-classified #Benghazi info on private email server, documents show.
>>
>> On Fri, May 22, 2015 at 12:35 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>>
>>> Please use this email chain to send around clips that are breaking on the email release. Thanks!
>>>
>>> --
>>> You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
>>> To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
>>> To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .
>>
>>
>
> --
> You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
> To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
> To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--
Josh Schwerin
Spokesperson
Hillary for America
@JoshSchwerin

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

--

Josh Schwerin

Spokesperson

Hillary for America

@JoshSchwerin

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

--
Josh Schwerin
Spokesperson
Hillary for America
@JoshSchwerin

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Vanguard <vanguard@eonline.e-vanguard.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 11/27/2015 3:51:00 AM
Subject: Live video webcast: Slow growth in 2016?

Vanguard

Live video webcast

Slow growth in 2016?

Register now

Dear John D Podesta,

Vanguard invites you to participate in a live discussion on Vanguard's global economic outlook for 2016. Overall, 2015 was a good year for the U.S. economy. What's in store for 2016? Please join us on Friday, December 11, 2015, as Vanguard Global Chief Economist Joe Davis discusses important topics, such as:

- Prospects for the U.S. and global economies.
- Inflation and the Fed's monetary policy.
- Vanguard's outlook for the financial markets.

Date: Friday, December 11, 2015
Time: 1 p.m., Eastern time

Joe Davis
Vanguard Global Chief Economist

Rebecca Katz
Moderator

About our speakers

Register now

You'll have a chance to submit questions for our panelists when you register and during the live event. They'll address as many questions as possible.

After you register, we'll email you a confirmation with a link to attend the event.

Know someone who might like to attend this event? Forward this email to share the invitation.

Have questions about online security for this event?

Legal notices and email administration
All investing is subject to risk, including the possible loss of the money you invest.

Because you're a valued Vanguard client, we thought you'd be interested in this information. If you prefer not to receive emails of this type, simply call us at 800-662-2739 or email us. Please do not reply to this message to opt out.

© 2015 The Vanguard Group, Inc. All rights reserved. The material in this message is promotional in nature.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

455 Devon Park Drive | Wayne, PA 19087-1815 | vanguard.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Kevin Zeithaml" <info@martinomalley.com>
To: "John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date: 1/17/2016 8:39:00 AM
Subject: I'm personal aide to Gov. O'Malley

John,

I've been personal aide to Governor O'Malley for almost a year now. I go where he goes. I attend every event with him, and help him prepare for his interviews, speeches, and meetings. It's been a once in a lifetime experience.

Today, I want to share what it is like to be on the road with Governor O'Malley. I'll keep sending updates throughout the day about what we are doing to prepare for the last debate before the Iowa Caucuses.

First, I need your help with the campaign. We only have 15 days left till caucus night, and from what I've heard from our team in Iowa, we still need some funding for our Get Out The Caucus Plan (GOTC).

If we are able to get funding to hire 20 more organizers TODAY, we will be able to knock on thousands of doors and make tens of thousands of phone calls. This is what can make the difference come caucus night.

Donate now to make sure we can hit all of our targets for GOTC and caucus night.

Thanks,
Kevin

Kevin Zeithaml
Special Assistant
O'Malley for President

DONATE

Paid for by O'Malley for President

Contributions to O'Malley for President are not tax deductible.

This email was sent to podesta@law.georgetown.edu.
Click here to unsubscribe .

O'Malley for President
1501 St. Paul Street, Suite 115
Baltimore, MD 21202

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Danielle Nierenberg" <danielle@foodtank.com>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	2/9/2016 8:12:18 AM
Subject:	Follow up Re: SPEAKER INVITATION: 2016 Food Tank Summit in Washington, D.C.

Dear John,

I am following up on our invitation to speak at the 2016 Food Tank Summit in Washington, D.C. on April 20-21 in partnership with American University. I would be honored if you could join us and we really appreciate your response.

If you have any questions please send me an email at danielle@foodtank.com or call 202-590-1037 .

Sincerely,

Danielle

--

Danielle Nierenberg

President and Founder

Food Tank

Email: daniellenierenberg@gmail.com

Cell: 202-590-1037

Connect w/ me on Facebook , Twitter , Google+ , and LinkedIn .

Contact w/ Food Tank on Facebook , Twitter , Instagram , YouTube , Pinterest , LinkedIn , & Flipboard .

Become a member of Food Tank by clicking HERE and/or please join more than 150,000 food activists and get my FREE weekly newsletter by clicking HERE now!

On Mon, Jan 11, 2016 at 3:41 PM, Danielle Nierenberg <danielle@foodtank.com > wrote:

> Dear John,
>
> On behalf of American University and Food Tank, we are delighted to invite you to be a keynote speaker at the second annual Food Tank Summit to be held in Washington, D.C. on April 20-21, 2016. The event will take place at The Greenberg Theatre and will be shown via livestream at special watch events all over the world.
>
> The focus of the Food Tank Summits are to highlight creative and innovative ways to cultivate a better food system. This year, Food Tank is quadrupling the number of summits. In 2015, Food Tank hosted the 1st annual summit in partnership with The George Washington University. The event sold out within minutes, bringing together 400+ in person attendees and more than 15,500 livestream viewers. We are thrilled to expand this platform to Sacramento, Chicago, and Sao Paulo, Brazil this year, in addition to Washington, D.C. again.
>
> Food Tank Summits bring together policymakers, academics, youth, members of the funding and donor community, and advocates to inject new energy into the international dialogue around alleviating hunger and obesity, preventing food waste, recognizing the role of women and youth in the food system, and ensuring access to safe, affordable, and nutritious food for all.
>
> The Summit will be two inspiring days, the first will be filled with interactive discussion, including a variety of speakers from around the world. The first day of events will include dynamic panel discussion and exciting keynote speakers. The second day will be experiential, creating opportunities for networking, advocacy, touring urban farms, workshops, seasonal, local food, and lots of fun.
>
> We think your extraordinary commitment to sustainability in the food system will make you an ideal speaker for the Summit, and we are sure the audience will be thrilled to hear from you. We will be thrilled if you will consider speaking at the Summit.
>
> Each speaker will be part of a panel made up of five to seven leading experts who will each have exactly five minutes to explore the challenges and solutions they find in their work. We find that this format allows speakers to distill their thoughts in a creative way, while also giving the audience an opportunity to hear from a wide cross-section of the food movement. The panel discussion will be followed by a question and answer session with the audience.
>
> Please let us know if you are interested and can make the time to join us. You can email me at Danielle@foodtank.com or call 202-590-1037 if you have any questions. I would be incredibly honored for you to join us! Read more about the 2016 Food Tank Summits HERE .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sincerely,

Danielle

--

Danielle Nierenberg

President and Founder

Food Tank

Email: daniellenierenberg@gmail.com

Cell: 202-590-1037

Connect w/ me on Facebook , Twitter , Google+ , and LinkedIn .

Contact w/ Food Tank on Facebook , Twitter , Instagram , YouTube , Pinterest , LinkedIn , & Flipboard .

Become a member of Food Tank by clicking HERE and/or please join more than 150,000 food activists and get my FREE weekly newsletter by clicking HERE now!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Clinton, Press Office \(Clinton\)" <Press_Office@clinton.senate.gov>
To:
Date:	12/5/2007 7:49:47 AM
Subject:	RELEASE: Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton Introduces Legislation to Improve Global Aids Programs For Women And Girls

NEW YORK

Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton

PRESS RELEASE

For Immediate Release
December 5, 2007

Contact:
Clinton Press Office (202) 224-2243 or
press_office@clinton.senate.gov

SENATOR HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON INTRODUCES LEGISLATION TO IMPROVE GLOBAL AIDS PROGRAMS FOR WOMEN AND GIRLS

Bill Would Require President to Develop Strategy to Address Women's Specific Vulnerabilities to HIV

WASHINGTON, DC—Today, Hillary Rodham Clinton introduced the Protection Against Transmission of HIV for Women and Youth (PATHWAY) Act of 2007, the Senate companion of legislation introduced by Representative Barbara Lee. This legislation would require the President to develop and implement a comprehensive, integrated and culturally relevant global HIV prevention strategy that addresses the vulnerabilities of women and girls. It would also strike the requirement that one third of prevention funding under the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief be spent on abstinence-until-marriage programs.

"Women account for about half of those living with the epidemic worldwide, and represent more than 60% of those living with HIV and AIDS in sub-Saharan Africa," Senator Clinton said. "Our government pledged to prevent seven million new infections through the PEPFAR program, but we cannot make any progress against this disease unless we address the circumstances, like gender-based violence, that increase women's vulnerability to HIV infection. We also must ensure that we use science, not ideology, to guide our prevention programs, and repeal funding restrictions that limit the success of activities at the local level."

According to UNAIDS, 33 million people around the world are living with HIV. Women account for about half of those living with the virus, but in certain populations, they are disproportionately affected. Among sub-Saharan African youth aged 15-24—the group which accounts for about two thirds of all new infections—women account for three out of every four new infections. Young women are not only getting infected at greater rates, but they do not have the knowledge to protect themselves. In studies of youth in 17 countries completed in 2003, more than 75 percent of young women surveyed could not identify ways to protect themselves from HIV. And the circumstances of women often limit their ability to prevent HIV infection. According to UNICEF, more than 40 percent of girls in Africa and South Asia are married before their 18th birthday – meaning that abstinence-until-marriage messages will not teach them how to protect themselves against HIV.

The PATHWAY Act will require our government to develop a strategy to address these many factors. It will focus attention on the stigma surrounding HIV, the links between gender-based violence and HIV infection, the ways in which increasing educational and economic opportunities for women can prevent HIV infection, and ways in which to improve access to female-controlled prevention methods. This legislation will also strike funding restrictions that require a certain percentage of funds to be spent on non-comprehensive prevention programs, which, according to the Government Accountability Office, limits the ability of programs on the ground to address the need in communities being served by U.S. funding.

This legislation is supported by the International Women's Health Coalition, Global AIDS Alliance, the Center for Health and Gender Equity, Physicians for Human Rights, Advocates for Youth, Population Action, the International Center for Research on Women, and Population Services International.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

###

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sandler, Herbert" <hms@sandlerfoundation.org>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 1/24/2014 4:37:29 PM
Subject: FW: Democratic think tank taking shape

Note from Mae Podesta
Also, do you remember Steve Kirsch?

From: Podesta, Mae [mailto:MSPodesta@mlstrategies.com]
Sent: Wednesday, June 04, 2003 1:03 PM
To: Megan C. Rouse (E-mail); Gordon. Rouse (E-mail); podesta@ici.org; gabe@steitz.com; peter@steitz.com
Cc: John Podesta (E-mail); Radha S. Chaurushiya (E-mail); Akila Weerapana (E-mail)
Subject: Democratic think tank taking shape

In case any of you are still as I confused as I was about what Dad has been up to, maybe this article from The Hill will help....

Democratic think tank taking shape
By Alexander Bolton

The Democrats are ramping up efforts to launch a liberal think tank in September that they say will give their party the unified message it lacked in 2002 and counter the well-funded network of conservative policy shops.

John Podesta, who served as White House chief of staff during the Clinton administration, is spearheading the project and consulting with Democratic leaders on Capitol Hill.

The think tank, known for now as the American Majority Institute, will have an annual operating budget of at least $10 million, a sum that would immediately make it the largest Democratic think tank in town.

By comparison, the Progressive Policy Institute, the think tank affiliated with the centrist Democratic Leadership Council, has an annual operating budget of around $3 million.

Key Democrats attribute Republican control of the White House and both branches of Congress in part to their party's lack of an effective mechanism for disseminating liberal ideas to the public and the media. They say such wealthy conservative groups as the Heritage Foundation and the American Enterprise Institute (AEI) have helped Republicans gain the upper hand in the battle over ideas.

"Certainly right now the conservative right does a much better job of feeding the media beast facts and arguments that make their case," said Joe Lockhart, a Democratic consultant who served as White House spokesman in the Clinton administration. "On the progressive side of the aisle, we've been asleep at the wheel."

"This will be part of the push-back effort," he added, referring to the American Majority Institute.

Indicating the importance of the project, Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle (D-S.D.) convened a meeting of leading Senate Democrats to review and discuss it shortly before the Memorial Day recess.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

“We have to begin building a structure similar to that which the Republicans have funded for many years,” said Sen. Byron Dorgan (D-N.D.), chairman of the Democratic Policy Conference. “We’re trying to begin that process, but it’s slow. We don’t have the same easy funding sources that the Republicans have had.”

The American Majority Institute moved into new offices at 15th and H Streets N.W. this week and has already filled some key slots. Podesta will serve as president; Laura Nichols, who worked as communications director for former House Minority Leader Dick Gephardt (D-Mo.), will be senior vice president; Sarah Wartell, who served as chief of staff for the National Economic Council in the Clinton administration, will be the chief operating officer; and Neera Tanden, former policy director and deputy campaign manager for Sen. Hillary Clinton (D-N.Y.), will oversee domestic policy.
Organizers will spend the summer raising money and hiring more staff before the formal launch in September.

Nichols said the institute will be a think tank “with a muscular communications component to it.”

“There are a number of excellent policy think tanks on the progressive side, but what they’re lacking is a serious marketing and communications component,” she said.

Sen. Jon Corzine (D-N.J.), chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, said many in his party think liberal think tanks devoted to narrow topics need to be better organized.

“It’s not a holistic view,” he said. “There’s a belief that you need something central, you need to be able to partner with other [groups] that might do specific work and pull those things together.”

Some Democratic strategists view the new think tank as a vehicle for crafting a unified message, something the party struggled to find before last year’s election, when it lost control of the Senate and six seats in the House.

“It would serve as a communications hub for a lot of the policy ideas people have,” said a strategist familiar with the American Majority Institute. “It would be a place where people are brought together to hash out policy in a lot of different areas.”

Although some conservatives view the Brookings Institution — one of the largest policy think tanks in Washington, with an annual operating budget of around $36 billion — as left-leaning, many Democrats complain that it is too independent, academic and aloof to give their party much of a boost.

Indeed, Brookings describes itself as a “nonpartisan organization devoted to research, analysis, education and publication focused on public policy issues.”

By contrast, the Heritage Foundation, which has an annual operating budget of around $30 million, states its mission unambiguously: “To formulate and promote conservative public policies based on the principles of free enterprise, limited government, individual freedom, traditional American values, and a strong national defense."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Republicans can rely on a slew of other well-funded conservative think tanks, such as the AEI (annual expenses: about $16 million), the Hudson Institute (annual budget: about $7 million), and the Cato Institute (annual budget: about $15 million).

Democrats have fewer allies, with less money. The Center on Budget & Policy Priorities has an annual budget of around $8 million; the Economic Policy Institute has a budget close to $5 million.

The idea of creating a new Democratic think tank gained momentum when Steve Kirsch, the billionaire founder of the Internet search engine Infoseek, began pushing it.

"What happened is I started talking to various people in Washington saying, 'We need a Heritage Foundation for the left.'" said Kirsch.

Soon after, a committee was set up to find someone to put the think tank together.
"John Podesta was on virtually everybody's shortlist," Kirsch said.

However, Democrats say they realize it will take some time to build a policy network that can match conservative groups.

"The Heritage Foundation, the Cato Institute and other conservative think tanks have been at this for 40 years since [former Senator Barry] Goldwater [R-Ariz.] lost in 1964," said Steve Grossman, a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Grossman said conservatives have achieved "a gradual dominance of think tanks, magazines, talk radio, and TV."

"The intellectual capital for that [dominance has been fueled by] … what think tanks have been pouring out in thoughtful pieces that have been gradually accepted by other people," he said.

"I think this is part of the push-back."

Mae S. Podesta
Project Analy st
Mintz, Levin, Cohn, Ferris, Glovsky, and Popeo, P.C.
701 Pennsylvania Avenue, Suite 900
Washington, DC 20004-2608
(202) 434-7 336
(202) 434-7 400 (fax)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jennifer Palmier I" <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com>
To: "Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com>
Date: 3/7/2015 7:13:19 AM
Subject: Re: DRAFT STATEMENT

Agree with Robby's edits and views on Powell. One factual q... it says she only emailed state employees at state.gov addresses - is that right? Press will ask if she ever emailed close staff like Huma, Philippe and Cheryl on their personal accounts.

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 7, 2015, at 2:04 PM, Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com > wrote:

> My edits attached. The one thing in here I feel strongly about is that she NOT include the part about meeting with other former secretaries and that they told her she should do this. I recognize that the boss will have to approve, but if she wants to include that, I'd say we should discuss with her. I worry it opens a major can of worms and deflects the heat in a potentially unhelpful way.
>
> On Sat, Mar 7, 2015 at 1:42 PM, Heather Samuelson <hsamuelson@cdmillsgroup.com > wrote:
>> All:
>>
>> Per our call today, attached is the DRAFT statement.
>>
>> As a reminder, this is a DRAFT and should not be circulated.
>>
>> Please note that Katherine Turner from David Kendall's office is copied on here, and she and/or David should be copied on all future communications.
>>
>> Let us know your thoughts.
>>
>> Best.
>> Heather
>
> <2015-03-07 Draft statement - updated for review - REM Edits.docx>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Ann O'Leary" <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 9/26/2015 4:43:07 AM
Subject: Re: F.D.A. Nominee Califf's Ties to Drug Makers Worry Some - The New York Times

Califf does have real ties industry, but there is no smoking gun. I think it might be worth doing some more digging if we were going to do this and make a very compelling case. But I agree with Podesta we would need more time to set up and we'd really anger WH. I also checked into the person who came after Kessler. It was Jean Hanney and she was his deputy and a physician. No ties to industry prior to her appointment, but went on board if a Pharma company after she left.

Ann O'Leary
Sent from my iPhone
(510) 717-5518 (cell)

On Sep 26, 2015, at 11:30 AM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> It also will not break through as big news on MTP.
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Sep 26, 2015, at 2:27 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > I think we will pay a huge price with the WH on this one. Worries me.
> >
> > On Sep 26, 2015 1:13 PM, "Ann O'Leary" <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > +Podesta
> > Califf the Obama nominee does have real ties to the drug industry - Chris Jennings is calling a few people for me to learn more so we don't tip our hand directly. We are clean on Clinton Admin FDA Commissioner - it was David Kessler, an academic who had run a teaching hospital - and best known for taking on big tobacco. We could certainly signal that we want someone willing to stand up to Pharma (in the same way Kessler stood up to Tobacco).
> >
> > BUT - I want to do a little more digging and due diligence before we hit this guy. Having been through a nomination fight with my husband (in which he lost), this is personal and messy and horrible on the person nominated and their families - so I don't take attacking this guy lightly.
> >
> > Do you want to do it on Meet the Press?
> >
> > Also, as long as I have all of your attention - on Cadillac Tax - the general consensus is that we should frame our position as Cadillac Tax should be repealed but that we should tax people who make more than $250K b/c they don't need to have tax-payer funded subsidies. I have not nailed this down with HRC. Should I try to do that today if we are going to announce this on Meet the Press?
> >
> > On Sat, Sep 26, 2015 at 10:00 AM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > Better go look at WJC administration FDA nominees.
> >
> > On Sat, Sep 26, 2015 at 12:59 PM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > This is ultimately a political call, not a policy call. I don't really like the idea of bashing this White House's nominees, knowing their vetting process and standards.
> >
> > But if you guys want to do it, I cannot identify a policy reason not to -- you all know the facts.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Ann, any other intel?

On Sat, Sep 26, 2015 at 12:53 PM, Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

> Any update on this? As we consider fights that fit into the larger themes we are trying to promote, this seems like a good fight to have. Plus, the VP would be in a box of having to support this nominee.
>
> On Tue, Sep 22, 2015 at 12:06 AM, Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> > Interesting. I'll do some asking around to see what folks in the public health world think.
> >
> > On Mon, Sep 21, 2015 at 8:25 PM, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com> wrote:
> >
> > > I don't know anything about the guy.
> > >
> > > If we weren't hitting the Administration with Keystone this week, I might be tempted, but I think that probably makes it a bad idea.
> > >
> > > Lets keep an eye on it and see about those Pharma ties.
> > >
> > > Mandy Grunwald
> > > Grunwald Communications
> > > 202 973-9400
> > >
> > > -----Original Message-----
> > > From: Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
> > > To: Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com>
> > > Cc: Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com>; Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com>; bfallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com>; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
> > > Sent: Mon, Sep 21, 2015 11:22 pm
> > > Subject: Re: F.D.A. Nominee Califf's Ties to Drug Makers Worry Some - The New York Times
> > >
> > > What do you think?
> > >
> > > > On Sep 21, 2015, at 10:33 PM, Mandy Grunwald
> > > <gruncom@aol.com> wrote:
> > > >
> > > > Do we want to weigh in on this?
> > > >
> > > >
> > > http://www.nytimes.com/2015/09/20/health/fda-nominee-califfs-ties-to-drug-industry-raise-questions.html
> > > >
> > > >
> > > >
> > > Mandy Grunwald
> > > > Grunwald Communications
> > > > 202 973-9400
> > > >
> > >
> > --
> > Ann O'Leary
> > Senior Policy Advisor
> > Hillary for America
> > Cell: 510-717-5518

--
Ann O'Leary
Senior Policy Advisor
Hillary for America
Cell: 510-717-5518

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Dan Tarullo" <Dan.Tarullo@ptt.gov>
To:	"Heather Higginbottom" <Heather.Higginbottom@ptt.gov>
Date:	11/13/2008 12:15:46 PM
Subject:	Autos Memo, attachment
Attachments:	Autos memo.doc Possible Approach to Autos - rev.doc

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sara Solow" <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 3/6/2016 8:08:39 AM
Subject: Re: Draft on Detroit Infrastructure Commitment-dfp v. 3

Got it

On Sun, Mar 6, 2016 at 3:01 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
I think we have to say the American Federation of Teachers or they will hear that we are afraid to be associated with the union

On Sunday, March 6, 2016, Sara Solow <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
(For the record I do know that AFT = American Fed of Teachers!! But I just worry that viewers don't so I was trying to suggest very simple language!)

On Sun, Mar 6, 2016 at 2:47 PM, Sara Solow <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
For the viewers who don't know what the AFT is or any of these big phrases... two questions

1) is she personally involved in helping get Detroit schools money to rebuild, or no?
2) If not, then should she just say "the teachers are working with the mayor to loan their own money -- from their retirement savings -- to help rebuild the schools"

On Sun, Mar 6, 2016 at 2:05 PM, Tina Flournoy <tflournoy11@gmail.com > wrote:
just to keep the legal part straight - on the AFT part - second bullet - should say they will work “with their trustees” to make sure

On Mar 6, 2016, at 1:46 PM, Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Will do with Randi - weave in Clinton story and make sure they release it before tonight's debate.

And for HRC's TPs at TONIGHT at debate - here is what I suggest and here is background:

- We need to insist on Congressional and State action to fix the water infrastructure in Flint and the molded, crumbling schools in Detroit, but we cannot wait for their action.

- I am proud that unions and their pension funds have stepped up to offer help. In Flint, while the Mayor is awaiting the federal and state resources to remove and replace the lead pipes, the Union Labor Life Insurance Company (ULLICO) will offer up to $25 million in “gap financing” in the form of low-cost loans so Flint can start this work immediately.
- And in Detroit, the American Federation of Teachers just announced they will work to make sure that union pension funds can also be used to renovate and overhaul classrooms and school infrastructure in Detroit’s 97 pubic school buildings. Of course, the state must act as a partner in addressing Detroit's public school debts, but the unions are doing more than their part to help fix these egregious problems.

BACKROUND:
FLINT

CGI/Labor Infrastructure Pension Funds – In 2014, some of the largest pension funds that handle union pensions made a CGI commitment, pledging to invest over $10 billion in infrastructure projects nationwide. President Clinton encouraged this fund to help with Mayor Weaver’s plans to replace the city’s lead pipes. Mayor Weaver’s Fast Start Plan would replace the city's 15,000 lead pipes in one year. This $55 million project would target high-risk households first, and expand in phase two to replace pipes for all Flint water customers. While the Mayor is awaiting the federal and state resources for the project, Union Labor Life Insurance Company (ULLICO) believes they can provide $25 to $30 million in “gap financing” in the form of a low-cost loan. They also have experience investing in and managing municipal water systems (Rialto, CA). The Building Trades are also an important partner on the workforce side. The Mayor said one of their biggest challenges is "lack of capacity" and manpower to move this project and will be working with the building trades to get the manpower she needs. The Plumbers Union has provided early help (Chelsea visited the Plumbers Hall to thank them when she went to Flint), but the city will likely need to draw on the skilled trades from around the region to complete a project of this scale.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

DETROIT

Outline of Detroit Infrastructure Commitment Announcement

The American Federation of Teachers (AFT) has partnered with the Amalgamated Bank, the National League of Cities and the First Five Years Fund to launch a $100 million Education Infrastructure Fund.

This revolving loan fund provides affordable, flexible capital loans to public school systems for capital improvements and other infrastructure upgrades for early childhood facilities and K-12.

It provides for acquisition, construction and term financing to build or improve classrooms..

The capital needs of the Detroit public schools are critical and growing. The city’s public schools have limited availability to adequate facilities, and a dearth of low cost capital providers.

Access to affordable capital will allow Detroit schools to renovate classrooms to provide for a healthy & safe learning environment.

The state of Michigan will serve as a critical backstop in the restructuring lead by transition manager Judge Steven Rhodes.

The labor movement, together with its asset manager partners and other stakeholders (North America’s Building Trades Unions and the Kresge Foundation) commit to provide the following for Detroit’s schools;

- Low-interest loans, technical and business assistance and energy audits to upgrade heating and water systems, retrofit lighting and replace inefficient windows, and provide for removal and abatement of lead, mold and asbestos;
- Work closely with the Mayor, community, Detroit Public School District and Judge Rhodes and other stakeholders to renovate and overhaul classrooms and school infrastructure in Detroit’s 97 pubic school buildings. This effort is conditioned on local control and the state acting as a partner in assuming and Detroit public schools debt, and in backing any new financing;
- Other projects as mutually agreed;
-

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Our consortium sets a goal of deploying $50 million in capital over the next year to achieve the goals outlined above.

In the event the local landscape is stabilized and strengthened with the return of local control to the people of Detroit and the creation of a genuinely local entity with broad authority to oversee new schools, interventions, and closures, we anticipate exploring the possibility of committing even more capital and support to all public schools in the City."On Sun, Mar 6, 2016 at 1:27 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
He's leaving for North Carolina so highlighting will need to be done on social or by her. We need Randi to weave Clintons into story if possible

On Sunday, March 6, 2016, Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Yes, my feeling is AFT and ULLICO announced these efforts and then WJC highlights in next 48 hours. If that works, I'll get Randi out with it today. Ok?
>
> Ann O'Leary
> Sent from my iPhone
> (510) 717-5518 (cell)
>
> On Mar 6, 2016, at 1:14 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > Ann
> > Are you managing how and when this will get announced? It's moving fast and Randi is driving but not sure how we fit into announcement
> >
> > ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> > From: Randi Weingarten <randiweingarten@gmail.com >
> > Date: Sunday, March 6, 2016
> > Subject: Draft on Detroit Infrastructure Commitment-dfp v. 3
> > To: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, John Podesta <jp66@hillaryclinton.com >, Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com >
> >
> > John and Ann- this is a draft... Only a draft... Its gone back and forth last nite and this am between AFT and Richard Tao of the Mayor's office....
> >
> > <Outline of Announcement on Detroit Infrastructure Commitment-dfp v. 2.docx>

--
Ann O'Leary
Senior Policy Advisor
Hillary for America
Cell: 510-717-5518

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 9/17/2015 10:55:44 AM
Subject: Re: TWEET Roofers Endorsement

Great! Will send now.

On Thu, Sep 17, 2015 at 5:55 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Ok
>
> On Thursday, September 17, 2015, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Very proud that @HillaryClinton received her fourth national union endorsement from the #RoofersUnion today https://www.hillaryclinton.com/p/briefing/statements/2015/09/17/roofers-waterproofers-endorsement/
> >
> > --
> > Milia Fisher
> > Special Assistant to the Chair
> > Hillary for America
> > mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
> > c: 858.395.1741

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Joanne Laszczych" <jlaszczych@cdmillsGroup.com>
To:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> Jake.Sullivan@gmail.com "Robby Mook" <robbymook@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/5/2015 11:23:20 AM
Subject:	Call confirmed for 8:30pm EST, Monday, January 5

Debrief call confirmed for this evening at 8:30pm EST.

Please use:

Dial-in: 1-530-881-1000
Code: 742374#

Thanks.

Joanne
From: Cheryl Mills [mailto:cheryl.mills@gmail.com]
Sent: Monday, January 5, 2015 10:21 AM
To: Jake.Sullivan@gmail.com; Robby Mook; John Podesta
Cc: Eryn Sepp; Joanne Laszczych
Subject: Call tonight at 830pm?

Dear Robby and John

Does a debrief call with Jake tonight at 830pm work?

If so, I will ask Joanne to circulate a dial-in number.

best.

cdm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"David Donnelly" <ddonnelly@campaignmoney.org>
To:	bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date:	8/13/2008 3:37:33 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] McCain's Lobbyists Netted Nearly A BILLION Dollars

Here's a new analysis Campaign Money Watch just completed:

http://www.campaignmoney.org/pressroom/2008/08/13/the-nearly-1-billion-connection-mccain-and-his-lobbyists-clients

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:
Wed, 08/13/2008 - 9:11am

The (Nearly) $1 Billion Connection: McCain And His Lobbyists' Clients

Washington, D.C. – Campaign Money Watch, a nonpartisan campaign finance watchdog group, announced today the result of a new analysis of the fees Sen. John McCain's (R-AZ) lobbyist bundlers, advisors and staff members have collected from domestic clients over the past decade.

The total? A staggering $930,949,819.

"The McCain campaign relies on big money lobbyists, and they'll rely on him," said David Donnelly, director of Campaign Money Watch. "In the 'you-scratch-my-back, I'll-scratch-yours' world of Washington, $931 million gets the special interests the best government money can buy. But just think of the payday these lobbyists might expect in a McCain Administration."

Campaign Money Watch's analysis of data provided by the nonpartisan Center for Responsive Politics (http://www.opensecrets.org) also found that employees and Political Action Committees of these lobbyists' clients have donated $11,750,051 to McCain's campaigns, a fact that raises its own set of problems, Donnelly said.

"How can John McCain say he'll reduce the influence of special interests in Washington, when he's so fully dependent on lobbyists and their clients to finance his campaign?" Donnelly asked. "All candidates need to raise money, but is this exemplary of a candidate who claims he'll tackle the special interests?"

To highlight the connections between John McCain and his lobbyists, Campaign Money Watch launched a new Web site last Tuesday called McCain's Lobbyists (http://www.McCainsLobbyists.com). The site shows focuses on 40 of the most prolific – some would argue profligate – lobbyists around McCain. It shows how much money their clients have given to McCain, as well as how much money those lobbyists have earned off those clients.

Campaign Money Watch is a project of the nonpartisan Public Campaign Action Fund. The organization works to hold politicians who are against comprehensive campaign finance reform accountable for where they get their political donations.

##

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Steven Spinner" <stevespinner@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	11/8/2015 12:27:16 AM
Subject:	The 10 Most Vulnerable House Members in the country

John,

Honda made the list of the 10 most vulnerable house members! As you know, this is big. Last year 7 out of 10 didn't return.

http://atr.rollcall.com/10-vulnerable-house-members/

Best,
Steve

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Mark McCullough" <Mark.McCullough@seiu.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 12/17/2009 2:57:12 AM
Subject: [big campaign] Letter from President Andy Stern to SEIU Members: Where Do We Go From Here?

Hey there –

After we met with our executive board last night, President Stern, drafted the following letter to our members. We posted it on our site shortly ago, http://www.seiu.org/2009/12/þ#letter-from-president-andy-þ$stern-to-seiu-members-where-þ%do-we-go-from-here.php, and are sending it to out to our 2.2 million nurses, doctors, home healthcare workers, janitors, security guards, and child care workers.

We are having a press call with President Stern and a few of our members at 1:30 today.

As always, let me know if you have any questions!

Mark

Letter from President Andy Stern to SEIU Members: Where Do We Go From Here?

Dear Brothers and Sisters,

A little over a year ago, you stood up and showed a nation that Yes, We Can. You knocked on doors, picked up phones, wrote your friends and family and neighbors and helped ring in a resounding victory. It was a win not just for a candidate, but for a people. For a country. For a promise of a better future for all of our kids and grandkids and generations to come.

And after that bright and shining day in November, you hung in there. At a time when people usually pack up, go home, and play the spectator sport of complaining about the system, you got up each and every day and did things both heroic and small to make sure that this time, we didn't leave change to chance.

For nearly a century, Presidents and congressional leaders have debated how to fix our health insurance system. It has become a given that we can and must do better as a nation. But as surely as each generation has tried, each time, politics, special interests and scare tactics have blocked progress and made us come to believe we can't: We can't change, we can't make our country better – plain and simple, we just can't.

I am writing to you today because I believe this is the moment when we must stand as one and say enough.

We talked to more than 200,000 of our sisters and brothers all around the country as part of a Town Hall-style telephone call last week to talk about your questions, your concerns and your frustrations about what is happening in Washington with health insurance reform.

Cynthia from Maryland was worried about her health benefits being taxed.

Maria in California didn't understand why the public option might be off the table.

Gerry from West Virginia wanted to know if he would be able to afford his health coverage.

One thing was clear: When SEIU stands up for affordable care every American can count on, we stand 2.2 million strong and ready to fight for the change our families, friends and neighbors; our patients and our nation need.

But at the very moment that we saw real and meaningful changes within our grasp, one Senator came forward to say "no we can't." He can't let the Senate have an up-or-down vote on health insurance reform.

And the result of this Senator saying "we can't?" The public option is declared impossible. Americans cannot purchase

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Medicare at an earlier age. The health insurance reform effort we have needed for a century is at risk.

SEIU does not accept that this monumental effort - that this reform that is so necessary to the health and wellbeing of our economy, our families and our future - can be over without a fight. A fight to make it work for you and your families.

Last night, we held a meeting with your International Executive Board - leaders from across the country. Leaders who know you, who understand what you are going through, and above all else, who believe that every one of you deserves a chance to weigh in on our next steps.

We talked about everything that makes this reform meaningful:

The 30 million more people who will have healthcare they can count on;

The people who will no longer lose their coverage if they get sick;

All of us who no longer have to worry about being denied coverage because of pre-existing conditions;

Women who will no longer be discriminated against just because of their gender.

But we also recognized, that like you, we have concerns. And while it is not entirely clear what the Senate bill will look like, it is becoming clearer that:

For many people, care will still be too expensive to afford.

Some of you would face an additional burden because your health insurance benefits would be taxed.

And the best way we saw possible to hold insurance companies accountable was no longer an option.

So we asked ourselves - and we are asking you - the most critical question we have of this entire debate: where do we go from here?

We know we will fight. We will continue to fight for everything we know is important. We will fight to make care affordable. We will fight for real health insurance reforms. We will fight for employers to provide their employees with coverage. And, we will fight to pay for all of it responsibly without a tax on your benefits.

But we aren't the only ones who must fight.

President Obama must remember his own words from the campaign. His call of "Yes We Can" was not just to us, not just to the millions of people who voted for him, but to himself. We all stood shoulder to shoulder with the President during his hard fought campaign. And, we will continue to stand with him but he must fight for the reform we all know is possible. He must fight for Cynthia, Maria, and Gerry – for every American.

Our challenge to you, to the President, to the Senate and to the House of Representatives is to fight. Now, more than ever, all of us must stand up, remember what health insurance reform is all about, and fight like hell to deliver real and meaningful reform to the American people.

In Solidarity,

Andy Stern

Mark D. McCullough
Senior Campaign Communications Specialist
Service Employees International Union, CTW, CLC
1800 Massachusetts Ave NW
Washington, DC 20036
Phone: (202) 730-7283
Cell: (202) 812-2528
E-mail: mark.mccullough@seiu.org

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Please consider the environment before printing this email.

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Elias, Marc \(Perkins Coie\)" <MElias@perkinscoie.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/23/2015 8:13:10 AM
Subject:	Re: Weekly Update on Pending Legislation to Change Presidential Primary Dates

Anytime you want an update, we can provide one.

--
Marc E. Elias
Perkins Coie LLP
700 13th St, NW
Washington, DC 20005
202-434-1609 (ph)
202-654-9126 (fax)
melias@perkinscoie.com

From: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Date: Monday, March 23, 2015 at 10:54 AM
To: Marc Elias <melias@perkinscoie.com >
Cc: Jeff Berman <jbermandc@gmail.com >, "marlondmarshall@gmail.com " <marlondmarshall@gmail.com >, Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >
Subject: Re: Weekly Update on Pending Legislation to Change Presidential Primary Dates

Marc
Do you have the lead on tracking electoral college reform? Do we have problems in states beyond Michigan?
John

On Mar 23, 2015 10:32 AM, "Elias, Marc (Perkins Coie)" <MElias@perkinscoie.com > wrote:

> Here is the memo for this week.
>
> --
> Marc E. Elias
> Perkins Coie LLP
> 700 13th St, NW
> Washington, DC 20005
> 202-434-1609 (ph)
> 202-654-9126 (fax)
> melias@perkinscoie.com
>
> ---
>
> From: <Elias>, Marc Elias <melias@perkinscoie.com >
> Date: Monday, March 16, 2015 at 5:34 PM
> To: "marlondmarshall@gmail.com " <marlondmarshall@gmail.com >, Jeff Berman <jbermandc@gmail.com >
> Cc: Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
> Subject: Weekly Update on Pending Legislation to Change Presidential Primary Dates
>
> --
> Marc E. Elias
> Perkins Coie LLP
> 700 13th St, NW
> Washington, DC 20005
> 202-434-1609 (ph)
> 202-654-9126 (fax)
> melias@perkinscoie.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

NOTICE: This communication may contain privileged or other confidential information. If you have received it in error, please advise the sender by reply email and immediately delete the message and any attachments without copying or disclosing the contents. Thank you.

NOTICE: This communication may contain privileged or other confidential information. If you have received it in error, please advise the sender by reply email and immediately delete the message and any attachments without copying or disclosing the contents. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Huma Abedin" <huma@hrcoffice.com>
To: "Cheryl Mills n" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
Date: 1/8/2015 7:04:38 AM
Subject: Re: Axelrod

We can have a longer conversation about Axelrod. I downloaded to Robby.
We shouldn't be under any illusions that he will start saying only positive things.
He's not looking for a job in 2016, he sees himself in a different role now and feels he needs to say what he thinks (lots of obama people have said they don't like ready for hillary or her inevitability language) otherwise he won't be credible.

From: Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
Sent: Wednesday, January 7, 2015 8:58:33 PM
To: Huma Abedin
Cc: Philippe Reines; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Nick Merrill; Huma Abedin; Dan Schwerin; Jake Sullivan
Subject: Re: Axelrod

what is odd is that - she did more than reach out to him when she left - she went a did a fundraiser for his charitable enterprise.

then he still said/tweeted less than kind things.

so the notion that it is coming somehow related to her not having spoken to him strike me a hollow in light of some of his comments given her generosity to him as one of her first appearances.

On Wed, Jan 7, 2015 at 11:18 AM, Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com > wrote:

> Just wanted to follow-up on this original note.
>
> As you may have seen, Ax tweeted this a short while ago: >..Smart of @HillaryClinton to be counseling with @benensonj. He was brilliant, essential player in @BarackObama wins!
>
> He called me last night to give us a heads up that O'Malley and Webb have both asked to speak at his institute. We got into a conversation about his public comments. He assured me that he is 100 percent supportive of HRC and that she will be the nominee and understands that we might be frustrated with what he has said. I sense that he is disappointed that we have talked to everyone else in Obama world except for him and I assured him that HRC would be in touch soon. I think we are now in a good place with him but she needs to call him and I conveyed that to her. Will try to get it done this week.

From: Philippe Reines [mailto:pir@hrcoffice.com]
Sent: Wednesday, December 17, 2014 10:35 PM
To: CDM; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Nick Merrill; Huma Abedin; Dan Schwerin; Jake Sullivan
Subject: Axelrod

We had discussed the utility of reaching out to David Axelrod, but Is he on HRC's – or anyone's — call sheet? I hate to reward bad behavior, but this seems like one headache we could easily neutralize.

Axelrod on Hillary: 'Ready for What?'

By Peter Sullivan

December 16, 2014

The Hill

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

David Axelrod, a former adviser to President Obama, said Tuesday that Hillary Clinton needs to establish a rationale for her presidential candidacy, saying when he hears "Ready for Hillary," he thinks, "Ready for what?"

"What happened in 2008 was that Hillary's candidacy got out in front of any rationale for it, and the danger is that that's happening again," Axelrod, who was a top adviser to Barack Obama's come-from-behind win over Clinton in 2008, said on MSNBC's "Morning Joe."

"You hear Ready for Hillary; it's like, 'Ready for what?' "

Axelrod said Clinton could be using the time before she announces her candidacy to decide the answer to that question.

"Now Hillary's task is to define what it is that she's running for and running about," Axelrod said. "And what would the future look like under another President Clinton, and I suspect that's what she's taking her time working through now, but she has to answer that question."

Liberal groups have been pushing forward with an effort to convince Sen. Elizabeth Warren (D-Mass.) to challenge Clinton from the left on economic issues.

MoveOn.org, one of the groups, announced Monday that it has passed 100,000 signatures on its "Run Warren Run" petition. Warren insists she is not running but always phrases the denial in the present tense, which some see as leaving the door open.

Asked if there is an opening for Warren, Axelrod said, "I suppose there is."

"My suspicion is that what she's doing is trying to influence how Hillary frames her candidacy and the issues she focuses on," Axelrod said. "I think Elizabeth is very sincere about her concerns about what's happening in the American economy, and Hillary hasn't yet said what exactly her program will be, what she's running on. I think Elizabeth knows she's got maximum leverage by still being in the conversation."

Many of Axelrod's fellow Obama campaign alumni are now working for Clinton's campaign-in-waiting in some capacity. Jim Messina, Obama's 2012 campaign manager, for example, signed on as co-chairman of the pro-Clinton super-PAC Priorities USA.

Two more top campaign aides, Mitch Stewart and Jeremy Bird, have joined Ready for Hillary.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Beatriz MANZ" <bmanz@berkeley.edu>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	2/16/2015 4:06:56 AM
Subject:	Automatic message. Away from email Re: Time to relax between big tasks????

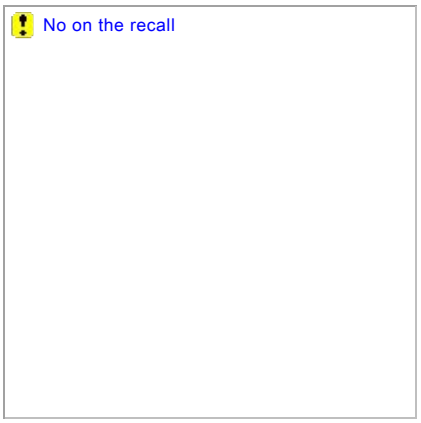
I am on sabbatical. Sorry for not acknowledging your email message.
I will only be checking email occasionally.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Megan Rooney" <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Speech Drafts" <speechdrafts@hillaryclinton.com> "Speech Book" <speechbook@hillaryclinton.com> "Matt Paul" <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com> "Molly Scherrman" <mscherrman@hillaryclinton.com> "Lily Adams" <ladams@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	12/3/2015 1:11:32 PM
Subject:	DRAFT / FOR THE BOOK: Sioux City remarks (infrastructure + Tom Perez)
Attachments:	12-03-15 draft IA infrastructure with Tom Perez 815pm.docx

Hi all -- this is for tomorrow. It has placeholder language at the start about the shootings... a lot of love for Tom Perez... and then goes into our standard economic message, with a boiled-down version of the Hardhats for Hillary rollout. Also an updated call to action to Congress, now that there's a bipartisan infrastructure bill finally.

This can go in the book -- and everyone else, just send me edits tonight as you're able.



Thanks,
Megan

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Alan Franklin, ProgressNow Colorado" <info@progressnowcolorado.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 8/20/2013 5:47:59 AM
Subject: "A wave of fear"

ProgressNow Colorado

Dear Fellow Progressive,

I'm writing today with a simple message. Everything you and I have fought for in the past decade is under attack.

Click here to fight back: the most important election you've never heard of is only three weeks away.

For years, Senate President John Morse and Senator Angela Giron have fought for our shared values. In 2013, after victory at the polls in 2012, the Colorado legislature accomplished a long list of goals we have sought for years—civil unions, tuition equity for all Colorado students, increasing renewable energy, workplace discrimination protection, creating Colorado in jobs, and more: all in addition to a few common-sense gun safety bills in response to tragedy and to save lives. I don't have room to list all of the things we accomplished, but I have never been more proud of our Colorado legislature.

The extreme right is trying to reverse not just this year's victories, but a decade of progress in Colorado. Their goal is to start "a wave of fear" across the nation by underhandedly taking down two good Colorado lawmakers in wasteful, misguided recall elections. Watch this shocking video at MSNBC and see for yourself what the leaders of the recalls are trying to do.

Right now, no one in America needs your help more than Senators Morse and Giron. Click here to make a donation against these recall elections today via ActBlue. Every dollar you give will go directly to their campaigns.

If the wasteful, partisan recalls against Senators Morse and Giron succeed, the right wing will use that to stall progress on all the issues we care about: education, healthcare, leveling the playing field for consumers and workers, equality for all Colorado families, and creating good-paying, sustainable jobs right here in Colorado.

I will not stand by and allow these progressive heroes to be removed from office simply for doing their jobs. We elect leaders to make decisions, and that's what Senators Morse and Giron do every day. They don't deserve this. Recalls are for criminals and corruption, and we have regular elections in America to decide who we think is best for the job.

We can't let the constant threat of recalls over any disagreement become the norm. Click here to donate to Senators Morse and Giron right now . Show your support for them, and for everything we have accomplished together in our fight for progressive change.

This election is not in November. It is September 10th -- only three weeks away. There is no time to wait. Do not wake up the day after these elections wishing you had done more. Donate now , and understand that this is one of the most important contributions you'll ever make.

Thank you,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Alan Franklin

©2005-2012 ProgressNow Colorado. All rights reserved.

You received this mailing because you either subscribed to our mailing list, or were referred by another user.

This email was sent to: john.podesta@gmail.com

Unsubscribe | View in Browser | Forward to a Friend

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 8/7/2015 10:03:21 AM
Subject: Re: Email statement

we had same convo here earlier as well

On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 4:58 PM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> Just talked to Podesta - we are thinking we shouldn't put out the statement at this point because it is so late in day on a Friday the press is bound to respond negatively and it will defeat our purpose in framing this. Think we should send it out tomorrow morning.
>
> On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 4:51 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > Plus Kristina to this chain.
> >
> > Okay - Dan can you add the questions line on and send back to the plane so we can get her to sign off on it and out as soon as possible?
> >
> > Huma - what should we do about getting options to her? I rank them in order of my personal preference;
> >
> > 1)Monday interview w/ Andrea Mitchell in NH (w/ a Sunday prep).
> >
> > 2) Sunday interview with Andrea Mitchell (Saturday prep)
> >
> > 3) Monday avail in NH (w/ Sunday prep)
> >
> > I think option 1 gives us best shot of press, Dems and voters feel like she addressed the questions about the emails
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Aug 7, 2015, at 4:22 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:
> >
> >
> > > like her saying she looks forward to answer questions that anyone has about this
> > >
> > > On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 4:17 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > I think this is pitch perfect, and truly excellent.
> > > >
> > > > The only point I would make is that I think, as we discussed, we need an overture that there's been a shift, that she needs to do something to convey that. We will couch this from a staff level in larger terms, but I think she needs to nod to that mentality too, sooner rather than later.
> > > >
> > > > I think calling a reporter out of the blue would check that box, but maybe either way we need something a little more specific in here that says she will be on the campaign trail in the coming days, and she looks forward to answering questions about this, and about her plans for America's future, etc. You could stick it in the last graph pretty easily.
> > > >
> > > >
> > > >
> > > >
> > > > On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 3:18 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:
> > > > > My edits in yellow - (also incoroporating DEK DOJ point):
> > > > >
> > > > > STATEMENT

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

I understand that many Americans have questions about the stories they hear on the news about emails and servers. As I said back in March, it clearly would've been better if I'd just used a government email account. Using a personal email account was a mistake, plain and simple. I am committed to doing everything I can to clear up any remaining confusion about this. That's why I've asked the State Department to publish 55,000 pages of my work emails. I've also repeatedly offered to answer questions before Congress and I look forward to doing so in October.

I hope the State Department and other relevant agencies will sort out as quickly as possible which emails are appropriate to release to the public. In the meantime, my team has worked with the Department to ensure these files are stored in a safe and secure manner. To put to rest any on-going security questions from other agencies, I have directed my team to give my email server, as well as a thumb drive containing copies of all the emails already provided to the State Department, to the Department of Justice.

Going forward, I will continue doing my part for transparency and accountability. I'm also going to focus on what's most important to everyday American families -- raising incomes, making college more affordable, and helping families get ahead and stay ahead. That's why I'm running for President and that's what I'll be working on every single day.

On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 3:13 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Agree with both recommendations.

From: Kendall, David [mailto:DKendall@wc.com]
Sent: Friday, August 7, 2015 3:12 PM
To: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >; Heather Samuelson <hsamuelson@cdmillsgroup.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com>; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >; Turner, Katherine <KTurner@wc.com >
Subject: RE: Email statement

It's a good statement. Two suggestions.

1) I can see why you might not want to say who the turnover was to, but it seems to me omitting this may be misinterpreted and certainly will trigger another round of questioning. This may defeat the whole point of the exercise. The statement could be read to imply we turned over the thumb drive and server to the State Department—which we didn't ("There they go again—misleading, devious, non-transparent, tricky etc."). I would recommend saying "to the Department of Justice."

2) Maybe it's only me, but "hand over" seems a little pejorative—how about just "turn over"?

David E. Kendall

Williams & Connolly LLP

725 Twelfth Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20005

(P) 202-434-5145 | (F) 202-434-5029

dkendall@wc.com | www.wc.com/dkendall

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Dan Schwerin [mailto:dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Friday, August 07, 2015 3:03 PM
To: Jennifer Palmieri; Cheryl Mills; Heather Samuelson; Kendall, David; John Podesta; Nick Merrill; Brian Fallon; Robby Mook; Jake Sullivan; Huma Abedin
Subject: Re: Email statement

Here's a draft of a short statement we could release today from HRC, hopefully to be followed in the coming days by more fulsome comments on camera.

STATEMENT

I understand that many Americans have questions about the stories they hear on the news about emails and servers. As I said back in March, it clearly would've been better if I'd just used a government email account. Using a personal email account was a mistake, plain and simple. I am committed to doing everything I can to clear up any remaining confusion about this. That's why I've asked the State Department to publish 55,000 pages of my work emails. I've also repeatedly offered to answer questions before Congress and I look forward to doing so in October.

I hope the State Department and other relevant authorities will sort out as quickly as possible which emails are appropriate to release to the public. In the meantime, my team has worked with the Department to ensure these files are stored in a safe and secure manner. To put to rest any on-going security questions from other agencies, I have directed my team to hand over my email server, as well as a thumb drive containing copies of all the emails already provided to the State Department.

Going forward, I will continue doing my part for transparency and accountability. I'm also going to focus on what's most important to everyday American families -- raising incomes, making college more affordable, and helping families get ahead and stay ahead. That's why I'm running for President and that's what I'll be working on every single day.

###

This message and any attachments are intended only for the addressee and may contain information that is privileged and confidential. If you have received this message in error, please do not read, use, copy, distribute, or disclose the contents of the message and any attachments. Instead, please delete the message and any attachments and notify the sender immediately. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Teddy Goff" <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com>
"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
"Marlon Marshall" <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 10/4/2015 10:55:23 AM
Subject: Fwd: [Important Request] Attend a Debate Watch Party

In case you haven't seen

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Tony Podesta <podesta@podesta.com >
Date: Sunday, October 4, 2015
Subject: Fwd: [Important Request] Attend a Debate Watch Party
To: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

> From: "Claire & Zack, Bernie 2016" <info@berniesanders.com >
> Date: October 4, 2015 at 2:55:54 PM EDT
> To: <tpodesta@podesta.com >
> Subject: [Important Request] Attend a Debate Watch Party
> Reply-To: Info@BernieSanders.com
>
> Bernie 2016
>
> Dear Bernie Supporter,
>
> From day one, Bernie has said that no president, not even the best president you can possibly imagine, is enough to take on the Koch Brothers and the billionaire class all on his or her own.
>
> This moment requires a grassroots movement of millions and millions of people. That's what Bernie is talking about when he says we need a political revolution, and that's what we are organizing through our campaign. And after we win the election, the movement we're building will give us the power to take back our country from the billionaire class.
>
> And there's one very important step you can take right now to push our effort forward.
>
> On October 13th — nine days from today — supporters from across the country are hosting debate watch parties during the first Democratic Primary debate of the campaign.
>
> Right now there are more than 2,400 Debate Watch Party events already on our website. Can you find one and sign up to help grow our political revolution?
>
> Yes, I will sign up and RSVP to attend a Debate Watch Party on October 13th.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

No, [but I will make a contribution of $25.43 — the average donation we've received in the past week — to help pay for the materials required to pull off the events.]

One thing you can expect from the night is this: when the organizing portion of the evening is complete and the debate is over, we're going to immediately put people to work.

Movements are built in small steps, but this evening will be a big step forward for our political revolution.

[But only if you sign up to attend a Debate Watch Party right now.]

It's been amazing how many of you are already organizing out there for this campaign. All across America. In every community. Nothing like this has ever happened so early on any presidential campaign in history.

I can't to see what we're able to accomplish together on October 13th.

All of our best,

Claire Sandberg & Zack Exley
Bernie 2016

★ CONTRIBUTE ★

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Paid for by Bernie 2016

(not the billionaires)

PO Box 905 - Burlington VT 05402 United States - (855) 4-BERNIE

This email was sent to tpodesta@podesta.com . If you need to update or change your information or email address, click here to update your info . Email is one of the most important tools we have to reach supporters like you, but you can let us know if you'd like to receive fewer emails . We'd hate to see you go, but if you need to do so, click here to unsubscribe . Stand against the powerful special interests who are systematically buying our Congress and have their sights set on the presidency by contributing to Bernie here .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Daniel B. Poneman" <dponeman@gmail.com>
Date: 2/18/2015 2:57:32 PM
Subject: Re: Congratulations!

Thx I think we have McWilliams headed to China thanks to my call with Hank. Look forward to hearing how it went when you are back.

On Feb 18, 2015 7:14 PM, "Daniel Poneman" <dponeman@gmail.com > wrote:

> John:
>
> Greetings from Jo'burg, where I have been working on possible solar deals all week. On the fly susie and I decided to add a Botswana safari starting tomorrow, so will be offline for 9 days. Unprecedented!
>
> Just wanted to thank and congratulate you for the tremendous contributions you made to the president and to the Nation in your most recent tour in government. You made a huge difference on so many issues that matter, and as always you managed it with grace and good humor. The dinner you and Mary hosted for the big data team was just one of the typically generous things you did.
>
> And your efforts will continue to bear fruit, as you started a lot of great things in motion. The upcoming Paulson institute seminar in China is only the most recent example.
>
> Hope you get at least some down time. And as I said before if I can help in any way on energy and security issues please let me know.
>
> All best
>
> Dan
>
> Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jennifer Palmieri" <JPalmieri@americanprogress.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	7/10/2008 5:09:11 AM
Subject:	draft answer

Just so you have it in your possession, here is the draft answer I sent to Pfeiffer. Have not heard back yet.

"I have been asked to give some advice on how to organize a transition should Senator Obama win in November. Recognizing the breadth and gravity of the problems the next president will face it is prudent for the Obama team to give some early thought on how they would proceed with the transition into a new government. I am happy to provide the benefit of my experince in this effort and will have nothing more to say publicly on the matter."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Andrei and Stephanie Cherny" <paperlesspost@paperlesspost.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/31/2014 9:46:59 PM
Subject:	Happy New Year from the Chernys!

If you click here to add paperlesspost@paperlesspost.com to your address book, you will receive all mail from Andrei and Stephanie Cherny on time in the future. The delivery of this Paperless Post mail may have been delayed due to your email and spam blocking settings.

For: John.podesta@gmail.com

VIEW THE CARD

HAPPY NEW YEAR FROM THE CHERNYS!

Have a great 2015!

Ben, Belle, Stephanie and Andrei Cherny

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

For the best Paperless Post experience, add paperlesspost@paperlesspost.com to your address book to ensure you receive all cards and invitations in your inbox. Block this person from sending you Paperless Post mail. Click here to stop receiving emails from Paperless Post including invitations and cards. Learn more about our privacy policy .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Anita Dunn" <adunn@barackobama.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 10/27/2008 6:01:49 AM
Subject: RE: transition spokesperson

You know I love Laura and Jen but assumed we were looking at them for jobs in White house or other places in Administration - Daniella's name is floating around for a MO job I think?

-----Original Message-----
From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Monday, October 27, 2008 12:57 PM
To: Anita Dunn
Subject: Re: transition spokesperson

fyi, laura would be great but i think she wants to stay on communications rather than spokesperson side. Other people to consider are Jen or Daniella Leger. Latter is Jen's deputy, AA and excellent. Both would be good in the WH, but I assume a lot of those bunks have occupants in them.

On Mon, Oct 27, 2008 at 1:50 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com> wrote:
> Pj is good. mostly on national security side. I'll ck on his wed > availability What about Sarah Feinberg?
>
> On Mon, Oct 27, 2008 at 1:42 PM, Anita Dunn <adunn@barackobama.com> wrote:
>> Per our earlier discussion about having the spokesperson for the transition >> be someone who won't be WH spokesperson or someone visibly considered for >> senior EOP jobs, wanted to get your recommendations - you had mentioned PJ >> Crowley at one point. I don't know him - does it make sense for me to try >> to catch up with him on Wednesday when I'm in dC? Is there someone else I >> should meet with?
>>
>> Thanks
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com> "Sara Solow" <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	11/18/2015 6:35:28 AM
Subject:	RE: Inquiry: Politico | Encryption and Anonymization

We will not address the internet freedom funding so I would do something about that. We will address the broader encryption issue.

From: Nick Merrill [mailto:nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Wednesday, November 18, 2015 1:35 PM
To: Sara Solow <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Tony Carrk <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: Re: Inquiry: Politico | Encryption and Anonymization

Got it. Thanks for all of this. Is this something we want to deploy or do we think enough of this will get addressed tomorrow that maybe we can tell him to wait as we will have more to say going forward, starting tomorrow. Thoughts?

On Wed, Nov 18, 2015 at 12:12 PM, Sara Solow <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Agree with Jake. Man this is tough. Is there evidence that bad guys -- not just dissidents but terrorists or whatever -- have also benefitted from the technologies supported by the Internet freedom agenda? Either way, I think the talking points Jake put down, from Ben, stay the same.
>
> On Nov 18, 2015, at 11:53 AM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Adding Tony and Sara S, and others from comms. This is going to be a challenge. I think we should give a comment on the anonymizing tools and punt on backdoors (she'll have more to say on that tomorrow).
> >
> > On anonymizing tools, Ben Scott has suggested the following talking points. Boiled down, the points are:
> >
> > 1-The bad guys could already get crypto -- we helped the good guys get it.
> > 2-The Internet Freedom investments in these technologies were strongly bipartisan (and remain so).
> >
> > Talking Points:
> >
> > ➢ Secretary Clinton's Internet Freedom agenda is a signature achievement at the State Department. She elevated human rights in a digital era to the top tier of foreign policy issues and built a new kind of diplomacy around harnessing the power of technology to serve the foreign policy goals of the United States.
> >
> > ➢ The Internet Freedom programs that invest in software development were designed to help people help themselves. Authoritarian governments will not willingly grant freedom of expression or the right to privacy. But technology can empower people with secure communications tools.
> >
> > ➢ Making secure communications tools usable for the average citizen in authoritarian societies was a central goal of Secretary Clinton's. She achieved that goal. The latest generation of Internet Freedom technologies is so user-friendly that even Silicon Valley giants have taken up the tools built by tiny NGOs.
> >
> > ➢ Of course, the leaders of America's Internet Freedom policies are aware that secure communications technologies can cut both ways. Providing people with tools powerful enough to resist intervention by their own governments means that our own security services will be challenged as well. This question was thoroughly reviewed and debated at the time the Internet Freedom agenda was launched.
> >
> > ➢ Secretary Clinton joined the consensus view of Congressional leaders from both parties that supporting Internet Freedom technologies requires uncompromising commitment to the security of users. And while we will do all we can to support the work of law enforcement, the steadfast protection of fundamental rights around the world puts us on the right side of history.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

➢ A bipartisan group of Congressional leaders have supported and funded these programs for many years. Since 2008, Congress has appropriated more than $200 million to enable these innovative Internet Freedom programs. Since 2014, under Republican leadership in Congress, the annual allocation for Internet freedom programs has increased to $50.5 million.

➢ Following Secretary Clinton's push for Internet Freedom, uptake of these Internet Freedom tools has grown from hundreds of thousands of regular users to more than 900 million people in 60 countries who use these technologies to exercise their rights in the digital world.

From: Teddy Goff [mailto:tgoff@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Wednesday, November 18, 2015 11:48 AM
To: Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Subject: Re: Inquiry: Politico | Encryption and Anonymization

just giving JDP and JS a heads up on this in case they aren't on HRCRR@.

On Wed, Nov 18, 2015 at 11:24 AM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

I assume we don't have anything on this just yet....

Begin forwarded message:

Resent-From: <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >
From: Joe Marks <jmarks@politico.com >
Date: November 18, 2015 at 11:15:57 AM EST
To: "nmerrill@hrcoffice.com " <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >
Subject: Comments on encryption and anonymization

Hi Nick,

I'm working on a story today about the renewed debate over end to end encryption following the Paris attacks. One thing the article explores is Sec. Clinton's support for anonymizing tools such as Tor for political dissidents when she was secretary and whether that may be a political liability.

Can the campaign comment on whether that support may be a liability and/ or whether Sec. Clinton has a firmer position on government backdoors for encryption since the Re/Code interview in February where she called it a "classic hard choice?"

My deadline is 2 p.m.

Thanks,

Joe

--
Joseph Marks
Reporter, Cybersecurity
Politico Pro
703-647-8776 (desk)
202-664-7910 (cell)
jmarks@politico.com
@Joseph_Marks_

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com>
Date:	4/20/2015 10:14:56 AM
Subject:	Re: for the Washington Post pushback

We are having a $ event at his house tomorrow at 2:00. Interest in coming?

On Apr 20, 2015 4:14 PM, "Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com > wrote:

> My idea:
> Vernon Jordan

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Anna James" <aj66@nyu.edu>
To: "Reynoso, Jennifer" <jreynoso@stblaw.com>
Date: 10/31/2011 7:25:54 AM
Subject: Re: Special Advisor

Thank you Cheryl and thank you John. Jennifer & Victoria - Please let me know if you would like for me to join your call tomorrow with John and I will move my afternoon meetings to join.
Best,
Chelsea

On Mon, Oct 31, 2011 at 2:09 PM, Reynoso, Jennifer <jreynoso@stblaw.com > wrote:

> Thank you Cheryl.
>
> John, could we set up a time to speak tomorrow? Victoria and I are available from 1 pm to 3:30 pm. Would that work for you?
> Jennifer
>
> IRS Circular 230 disclosure: To ensure compliance with requirements imposed by the IRS, we inform you that any tax advice contained in this communication (including any attachments) was not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of (i) avoiding tax-related penalties under federal, state or local tax law or (ii) promoting, marketing or recommending to another party any transaction or matter addressed herein.
>
> CONFIDENTIALITY NOTE:
>
> The information contained in this email message and any attachments is legally privileged and confidential information intended only for the use of the individual or entity to whom it is addressed. If the reader of this message is not the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any dissemination, distribution or copy of this message or its attachments is strictly prohibited. If you have received this email in error, please immediately notify us by telephone, fax, or email and delete the message. Thank you.
>
> _____
>
> Jennifer Reynoso
> Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP
> 425 Lexington Avenue
> New York, New York 10017
>
> Tel: (212) 455-2287
> Fax: (212) 455-2502
> jreynoso@stblaw.com
>
> _____
>
> From: Cheryl Mills [mailto:cheryl.mills@gmail.com]
> Sent: Monday, October 31, 2011 2:06 PM
> To: Reynoso, Jennifer; Bjorklund, Victoria B
> Cc: Anna James; john.podesta@gmail.com
> Subject: Special Advisor
>
> Jennifer
>
> I am following up on our conversation a few minutes ago.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

As you know, Bruce fell unexpectedly ill (but will recover). President Clinton connected with him in person last night to ensure Bruce knew that the Foundation's collective priority was his health and the opportunity for him to take time to heal. In the interim, he has asked John Podesta to serve as a special advisor, with particular focus on providing leadership and being a resource and decision-maker for the corporate audit.

I am copying John on this email so that you two can connect -- I have given him a frame of reference regarding the objectives for the corporate audit and I know Chelsea can share even more but wanted you all to a have a point of additional contact in light of Bruce's unexpected illness.

best.

cdm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "ABA CLE - Section of Public Contract Law" <cle@americanbar.org>
To: "John D Podesta" <podesta@LAW.GEORGETOWN.EDU>
Date: 2/2/2015 6:00:00 AM
Subject: Still Time to Register | The Most Important Government Contracts Related Decisions of 2014

Trouble viewing? View online version .

The Most Important Government Contracts Related Decisions of 2014

Presented by the ABA Section of Public Contract Law

NEW CLE!

The Most Important Government Contracts Related Decisions of 2014

Thursday, 2/5/15
1:00 PM - 2:30 PM ET
CLE Webinar

CLE credits requested	1.50 General CLE Credit Hours
List price	$195
ABA Member price	$150
Sponsor Member price	$95

Sponsor(s):
Section of Public Contract Law
Government and Public Sector Lawyers Division

Register Now

Government contracts experts will provide an in-depth analysis of the most important cases of 2014, including:

- Metcalf Construction Co. v. United States, 742 F.3d 984 (Fed. Cir. 2014) - Presented by John S. Pachter
- Raytheon Company v. United States, 747 F.3d 1341 (Fed. Cir. 2014) - Presented by Hon. Elizabeth W. Newsom
- Veridyne Corporation v. United States, 758 F.3d 1371 (Fed. Cir. 2014) - Presented by E. Sanderson Hoe
- Sikorsky Aircraft Corp. v. United States, 2014 WL 6915672 (Fed. Cir. Dec. 10, 2014) - Presented by Karen L. Manos
- In re Kellogg Brown and Root, Inc., 756 F. 3d 754, 2014 WL 2895939 (D.C. Cir. 2014) - Presented by Robert J. Sherry
- Moderated by Stuart B. Nibley, K&L Gates LLP

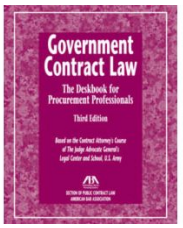
Learn more

Faculty

E. Sanderson Hoe, Partner, McKenna Long & Aldridge LLP, Washington, DC
Karen L. Manos, Partner, Gibson Dunn & Crutcher LLP, Washington, DC
Hon. Elizabeth W. Newsom, Judge, U.S. Armed Services Board of Contract Appeals, Falls Church, VA
John S. Pachter, Member, Smith, Pachter, McWhorter PLC, Tysons Corner, VA
Robert J. Sherry, Partner, K&L Gates LLP, Dallas, TX
Moderator: Stuart B. Nibley, Partner, K&L Gates LLP, Washington, DC

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Also from the ABA



LEARN MORE

The Most Important Government Contracts Related Decisions of 2014
CD-ROM

LEARN MORE

Key Issues in Government Contractor Mergers and Acquisitions
Webinar

LEARN MORE

Government Contract Law: The Deskbook for Procurement Professionals, Third Edition

Like
Exclusive Content
Member Benefits

Follow
ABA News
Promotions

Connect
Professional Development
Practice Management

Shop
ShopABA.org
Books, CLE and more

This message was sent to podesta@law.georgetown.edu .
Your e-mail address will only be used within the ABA. We do not sell or rent e-mail addresses.

Update your profile | Manage your email preferences | Unsubscribe | Privacy Policy | Contact Us

American Bar Association |
321 N Clark, Chicago, IL 60654-7598 |
800-285-2221 | 312-988-5522

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Furman, Jason L." <Jason_L_Furman@cea.eop.gov>
To:	"Furman, Jason L." <Jason_L_Furman@cea.eop.gov>
Date:	11/5/2014 4:09:41 PM
Subject:	Speech at LSE on structural challenges and opportunities in the U.S. economy
Attachments:	furman_2014_structural challenges opportunities_lse.pdf

Attached and at the link below please find a speech that I gave today at the London School of Economics on structural challenges and opportunities in the U.S. economy.

The speech examines the current economic recovery before looking at the evolution of longer-term trends that have resulted in three fundamental challenges facing middle-class incomes: productivity growth, inequality, and labor force participation. Lastly, I discuss three structural opportunities that can help address these challenges: the slowing growth of health care costs, shifts in energy production and consumption, and the implications of new technologies.

http://www.whitehouse.gov/sites/default/files/docs/structural_challenges_and_opportunities_in_the_u.s._economy_11.5.14_jf.pdf

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sara Latham" <Sara.Latham@ptt.gov>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/24/2008 3:47:48 AM
Subject:	FW: Goldfarb

One final thought on this: John Podesta, head of the Center for American Progress, is running the Obama transition. CAP was the most visible proponent of a 'muscular progressivism' during the Bush years, and yet the transition appears likely to bring very few muscular progressives into government. Does Podesta really subscribe to the foreign policy ideas produced by his own organization, or does Obama simply disagree with Podesta on these issues?

From: Sarah Wartell [mailto:swartell@americanprogress.org]
Sent: Monday, November 24, 2008 10:44 AM
To: Sara Latham
Subject: FW: Goldfarb

See reference to JDP at bottom -- just fyi.

Sarah Rosen Wartell
Executive Vice President
swartell@americanprogress.org

From: Brian Katulis
Sent: Monday, November 24, 2008 10:40 AM
To: John Halpin; Sarah Wartell; Jennifer Palmieri; Faiz Shakir; Matthew Duss Subject: Goldfarb

http://www.weeklystandard.com/weblogs/TWSFP/2008/11/is_progressive_foreign_policy.asp

Is Progressive Foreign Policy Dead on Arrival?

It will be some time before we know the full extent of Obama's ambitions on domestic policy, but progressives are sure to feature prominently in any debate over health care, energy, banking, etc. In the realm of foreign policy, however, progressives seem already to have been marginalized, or dismissed entirely.

Barack Obama's national security team is beginning to take shape and there is not a progressive in sight. Assuming the leaks and rumors are true, Hillary will be at State, Jones will serve as national security adviser , Brennan will head the CIA , Gates will stay on at Defense , and Obama will be taking counsel from Scowcroft all the while. These people are not progressives (except Clinton on domestic policy); they are generally considered to be in the realist camp, with the possible exception of Clinton, a liberal internationalist. Jones, Gates and Scowcroft aren't even Democrats.

None of this is surprising. Obama never seemed to take progressives very seriously on foreign policy. Throughout the campaign he signaled his respect for the foreign policy of Bush 41, and his advisers tended to split between realists like Richard Danzig and liberal internationalists like Samantha Power. In the one instance that Obama did genuinely excite progressives -- his call to sit down with the leaders of rogue states for direct and unconditional negotiations -- there was no formal roll out or set-piece speech announcing the policy. Instead, even supporters of the idea acknowledged that his arrival at the position had been 'accidental,' and Obama backpedaled over the course of the campaign.

What is clear is that the split between realists and neoconservatives has been resolved, for the time being, in favor of the realists, whose titular leader, Colin Powell, endorsed Obama at the end of the campaign. Over the last eight years this split produced some genuine personal animosity between the two camps, and, in fact, it may have been personal animosity more than anything else that drove Powell away from McCain and into the arms of Obama. So what had been an intra-Republican fight has now led the realists to take refuge in an ascendant Democratic party.

But the real losers here seem to be progressives. If progressives can't get their foot in the door on national security in an Obama administration, it's difficult to imagine precisely what conditions would bring them to power, since we are unlikely to see a more liberal president for decades.

Meanwhile, in foreign policy, the fight for the soul of the Republican party -- realists vs. neocons -- has shifted venues, with realists drifting into prominent positions in a Democratic administration and neoconservatives staying behind. The liberal internationalists, led by Hillary, will also be a powerful force in the new administration, and in their battles with Obama's realists they may find willing allies among the neocons on the right. After all, liberal internationalists have been allied with out-of-power neoconservatives before, most notably during the fight inside the Clinton administration over U.S. policy in the Balkans.

Since progressives will have their hands full with domestic policy over the next four years, they could well be completely locked out on matters of national security. The same fights that riled the Bush administration could then continue into the Obama administration -- with different winners and losers perhaps, but the same basic framework guiding the debate. Progressives are getting wise to this pretty quickly. From their point of view, neocons, realists, and liberal internationalists are separated by only a few degrees of difference. Their frustration may be some small consolation to conservatives of all stripes.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

One final thought on this: John Podesta, head of the Center for American Progress, is running the Obama transition. CAP was the most visible proponent of a 'muscular progressivism' during the Bush years, and yet the transition appears likely to bring very few muscular progressives into government. Does Podesta really subscribe to the foreign policy ideas produced by his own organization, or does Obama simply disagree with Podesta on these issues?

Posted by Michael Goldfarb on November 22, 2008 01:48 AM | Permalink

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
Date:	3/5/2015 11:32:16 AM
Subject:	Re: Can you call me

Tried you
Call when convenient
202-999-0738

On Mar 5, 2015 5:08 PM, "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:

> cdm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Neera Tanden" <ntanden@americanprogress.org>
Date: 4/29/2015 5:53:24 AM
Subject: Re: Recommendation to Appoint Donald Sussman to the Board

Aye

On Apr 29, 2015 9:49 AM, "Neera Tanden" <ntanden@americanprogress.org > wrote:

Dear Members of the Board,

I am pleased to announce that Donald Sussman has agreed to rejoin the CAP Board of Directors. Based on his distinguished career and previous service on the board, I believe he would be an excellent addition. Please see the memo below for more information on my recommendation and on proposed next steps.

Center for American Progress

MEMORANDUM

Date: April 29, 2015

To: Center for American Progress Board of Directors

From: Neera Tanden, President

Re: Recommendation to Appoint Donald Sussman to the Board

Recommendation for Board Action

I write to strongly recommend that the board re-appoint Donald Sussman to the CAP Board of Directors. Many of you know Donald from his previous service on the CAP Board and from his dedicated work in progressive politics and philanthropy. Donald served as a valued CAP director from May 2009 to May 2012, when he resigned from all boards in order to demonstrate his commitment to an independent news source as a new owner of Maine Today Media.

Now, he is in a position to rejoin. Donald has also had a long and distinguished career in finance. Significantly, he has never stopped being part of the American Progress family and I am confident that his perspective and commitment will be an important part of advancing our work. If appointed, he will participate in the spring meeting on May 26, 2015.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

If you agree with my recommendation, please (1) email Alex DeMots to let him know at your earliest convenience at ademots@americanprogress.org , and (2) print and sign the attached proposed Unanimous Consent and return it to Alex via facsimile (202-315-0453) or as a pdf via email.

Alternatively, if you would like to discuss this recommendation, please do not hesitate to contact me.

Thank you for your consideration.

Attachment: Proposed Unanimous Consent

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tina Flournoy" <Tina@presidentclinton.com>
To:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
Date:	4/7/2015 6:48:43 PM
Subject:	Re: Draft for Discussion / Revision

WJC in Panama. Will get to him but don't know when he can get on the phone

On Apr 7, 2015, at 9:45 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:

> Dear All (Oscar for WJC):
>
> Attached is stab at capturing the discussion today, building on the draft that Maura did (thank you).
>
> Note: I think the multilateral piece is hard to make simple or readily comprehensible; it has the impact of making the exception for current programs feel broader than it would without that addition.
>
> Look forward to discussing tomorrow. I can do a call at 815am. I have a 730am and a 9am and 10am call; my next best time is 11:30am.
>
> best.
>
> cdm
>
> <2015-04-07 Foundation Policy Adjustments - DRAFT.docx>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"United Airlines, Inc." <unitedairlines@united.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	3/8/2015 3:58:14 AM
Subject:	Boarding pass for confirmation CMWCZJ
Attachments:	CMWCZJ.pdf

Thank you for checking in at united.com.

Boarding documents for the following traveler(s) are included with this email:

JOHNDAVID PODESTA

Please use one of the following options to retrieve your boarding documents:

1. Use your mobile boarding documents. Select a link below to display your mobile boarding document on the screen of your mobile device. Scroll down to the barcode, and then scan the barcode at security checkpoints and at the gate to board your flight(s). Printed versions of mobile boarding documents will not be accepted.

   Mobile boarding document links:
   Mobile boarding document for flight UA1709 from Washington, DC - Washington-Dulles (IAD) to San Francisco, CA - San Francisco (SFO)

   For JOHNDAVID PODESTA
   https://mobile.united.com/CheckIn/MobileCheckInShortCut?txtInput=CMWCZJ&eBP=1 igin=WXssDp%2bAJwlPrxk4F4Jo63nS55zbBXiL

2. Print the attached boarding documents. The attachments are designed to be printed and cannot be displayed on your mobile device.

3. Print your boarding documents from united.com or at an airport kiosk.

Taking high tech to new altitudes

Make the United app your on-the-go travel center. You can book any flight, check in, and see your flight status all with the touch of a finger. Download today at http://united.com/mobile

You can also change your seat assignment, switch flights and more by returning to united.com. Go to the check-in page http://checkin.united.com and enter your confirmation number to get started.

If your travel plans change, please go to united.com, use an airport kiosk, speak to a United representative at the airport or call 1-800-UNITED-1 (1-800-864-8331) for assistance.

Please note: Minimum required check-in and boarding times vary by airport. If you are not in the immediate boarding area at the required minimum time before departure, your reservations are subject to cancellation and you may not be eligible for denied boarding compensation. Review minimum required check-in and boarding times at http://united.com/web/en-US/content/travel/airport/process/default.aspx

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
To:	"Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com> "Margolis, Jim" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com> "Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com> "John Anzalone" <john@algpolling.com> "Huma Abedin" <huma@hrcoffice.com> "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com> "Joel Benenson" <jbenenson@bsgco.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Philippe Reines" <pir@hrcoffice.com> "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> teddy.goff@gmail.com kristinakschake@gmail.com jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com
Date:	2/14/2015 1:19:21 PM
Subject:	Valentine's Day

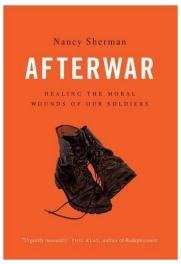
Bill Clinton (@billclinton)
2/14/15, 8:12 AM
I hope you dance, especially today. pic.twitter.com/gd1e306gNT

Hillary Clinton (@HillaryClinton)
2/14/15, 3:16 PM
@billclinton It's a date!

On Feb 14, 2015, at 1:28 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com > wrote:

The link is to an article about paid sick leave becoming law there.

Hillary Clinton (@HillaryClinton)
2/14/15, 1:22 PM
Good week for #Philadelphia ...
philly.com/philly/news/po…



This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Office of the President" <presidentsoffice@georgetown.edu>
To:	allfacultyandstaff@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	11/2/2015 4:21:53 PM
Subject:	Book Event: "Afterwar: Healing the Moral Wounds of Our Soldiers"

The Office of the President
Georgetown University

invites you to a discussion, book signing, and reception on

Afterwar: Healing the Moral Wounds of Our Soldiers by
Nancy Sherman, Ph.D.
University Professor at Georgetown University, Inaugural Distinguished Chair in Ethics at the United States Naval Academy, and Author of Afterwar,The Untold War and Stoic Warriors with this distinguished panel

C.J. Chivers, New York Times Pulitzer Prize-Winning War Correspondent and Former Marine
James Fallows, Writer and National Correspondent for The Atlantic

Ian Fishback, Former Army Special Forces Major
Josh Grenard, Former US Army Reserve Captain-Company Commander
Miriam Krieger, Major, USAF and Special Assistant to the Office of the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff
Meosha Thomas, US Navy (Ret) and CEO One Savvy Veteran
Stephen Xenakis, MD, Brigadier General (Ret, Army)

Monday, November 16, 2015
5:00-7:00 p.m.

Lohrfink Auditorium, Hariri Building
(Doors open and book sales begin at 4:00 p.m.)

Reception to follow
Fisher Colloquium, Hariri Building

Please RSVP here by Wednesday, November 11

Requests for accommodations related to a disability should be made by Thursday, November 12 by emailing guevents@georgetown.edu . A good faith effort will be made to fulfill requests.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Haim Saban" <kussa@saban.com>
Date:	6/18/2015 8:36:51 AM
Subject:	Re:

You bet.

On Thursday, June 18, 2015, Haim Saban <kussa@saban.com > wrote:

> Is Huma still on the team?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Catherine Chieco" <crchieco@gmail.com>
Date:	12/21/2014 10:47:34 PM
Subject:	Re: He is fast asleep so no rush

Talk later.

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

> On Dec 21, 2014, at 10:01 PM, Catherine Chieco <crchieco@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> Got here about 9:35... I went up and told him i was here..he said he had just taken pills...
> Thanks so much...
> Have a safe trip and a great holiday..
> Love to you both
> K
>
>
> Sent from my iPad
>
>> On Dec 21, 2014, at 9:36 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com> wrote:
>>
>> We left around 8:45. He seemed good.
>>
>> JP
>> --Sent from my iPad--
>> john.podesta@gmail.com
>> For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com
>>
>>> On Dec 21, 2014, at 11:30 AM, Catherine Chieco <crchieco@gmail.com> wrote:
>>>
>>>
>>>
>>> Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Lois Quam" <lois.e.quam@icloud.com>
Date:	3/11/2015 3:04:40 AM
Subject:	Re: Friday

Look forward.

On Mar 11, 2015 6:23 AM, "Lois Quam" <lois.e.quam@icloud.com > wrote:

> See you at the enviro reception. I'm always ready to be of help to you.
>
> Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Elias, Marc \(Perkins Coie\)" <MElias@perkinscoie.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
	"Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com>
	"Charlie Baker" <Charlie.Baker@deweysquare.com>
Date:	3/12/2015 9:39:02 PM
Subject:	REVISED Memo
Attachments:	Fundraising for Super PACs[1].pdf

Regarding superpacs. This reflects John's two comments:

1. A fixed typo.

2. Clarification re providing contact info for the PAC.

--
Marc E. Elias
Perkins Coie LLP
700 13th St, NW
Washington, DC 20005
202-434-1609 (ph)
202-654-9126 (fax)
melias@perkinscoie.com

NOTICE: This communication may contain privileged or other confidential information. If you have received it in error, please advise the sender by reply email and immediately delete the message and any attachments without copying or disclosing the contents. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com> "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	5/8/2015 4:22:03 AM
Subject:	Can you ck me into train and forward an eticket

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Wang, Jenny W. EOP/WHO" <Ya_W_Wang@who.eop.gov>
To:	John.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/5/2015 3:23:31 PM
Subject:	Jingle 5K

Hi John -

For the Jingle Bell 5K tomorrow, Denis will plan to pick you up at your house.

He should be there between 8:15 and 8:30am tomorrow morning.

The race, I believe, starts at 9am.

Thanks!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Mitchell W. Berger" <MBerger@bergersingerman.com>
To: "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 1/7/2016 7:39:08 AM
Subject: RE: Podesta Meeting Today?

Mila ,
I was drawn into some emergency client matters and have been in court non stop.
Memo forthcoming asap.
Meeting to be rescheduled , sorry I did not see your confirmation .
Best, Mitchell

From: Milia Fisher [mailto:mfisher@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Thursday, January 07, 2016 8:54 AM
To: Mitchell W. Berger
Subject: Re: Podesta Meeting Today?

Either way, John asked me to follow up with you about a memo you were going to send him. He'd love to see it, meeting or no meeting!

Thanks,
Milia

On Thu, Jan 7, 2016 at 8:44 AM, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
Hi Mitchell-

I realized just this morning that I never had confirmation from you here. I assume you and Nick are not coming in this AM?

Thanks much,
Milia

On Mon, Jan 4, 2016 at 9:57 AM, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
Hi Mitchell-

I'm Milia Fisher, John's assistant. January 7th between 9 and 12 would work just fine. Shall we say 10:00 AM?

Thanks!
Milia

On Wed, Dec 30, 2015 at 3:46 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Mitchell W. Berger <MBerger@bergersingerman.com >
Date: Wed, Dec 30, 2015 at 1:20 PM
Subject: RE: NYC
To: Nick Mastroianni II <nick@usifund.com >
Cc: "john.podesta@gmail.com " <john.podesta@gmail.com >

John,
As a follow up to part of our conversation see below. Do any of these times work?

As to the second part of the conversation, deliverable next week.
Happy new year,
Mitchell

From: Nick Mastroianni II [mailto:nick@usifund.com]
Sent: Wednesday, December 30, 2015 9:10 AM
To: Mitchell W. Berger
Subject: NYC

Mitchel.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

I am in the city this coming week and can meet on January 6 between 2 and 5 and Jan 7 between 9-12 If any of these times work. Let me know.

Nicholas A Mastroianni II
President & CEO
US Immigration Fund LLC
115 Front Street, Suite 300
Jupiter, Florida 33477

(T) 001-561-799-0050
(F) 001-561-799-0061
(C) 001-561-662-6831
(E) Nick@usifund.com

US Immigration Fund, LLC and it's related companies are not affiliated with, nor agencies of, the United States Government.

All information in this email, as well as any attachments and/or references, are highly confidential and not to be shared with anyone other than the original intended recipient. If you are not an intended recipient of confidential and privileged information in this email, please delete it, notify us immediately by return email, and do not use or disseminate such information. All information in this email, as well as any attachments and/or references herein, shall not constitute an offer to sell or a solicitation of an offer to buy any interest in any security or any security derivative products of any kind, or any type of trading or investment advice, recommendation or strategy. No offer to sell or solicitation of an offer to buy an interest in any security [or other such product may be made to a prospective subscriber (i) until a copy of the applicable subscription materials have been provided to and reviewed by such prospective purchaser, which must be completed and returned in accordance with the terms thereof, (ii) unless made exclusively outside the United States to a prospective subscriber who is a non-U.S. citizen or non-U.S. permanent resident in accordance with Regulation S of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended; and (iii) in any jurisdiction in which such offer or solicitation is unlawful. Any representations to the contrary are unlawful. US Immigration Fund, LLC and it's related companies are not affiliated with, nor agencies of, the United States Government.*
*All information in this email, as well as any attachments and/or references, are highly confidential and not to be shared with anyone other than the original intended recipient. If you are not an intended recipient of confidential and privileged information in this email, please delete it, notify us immediately by return email, and do not use or disseminate such information. All information in this email, as well as any attachments and/or references herein, shall not constitute an offer to sell or a solicitation of an offer to buy any interest in any security or any security derivative products of any kind, or any type of trading or investment advice, recommendation or strategy. No offer to sell or solicitation of an offer to buy an interest in any security [or other such product may be made to a prospective subscriber (i) until a copy of the applicable subscription materials have been provided to and reviewed by such prospective purchaser, which must be completed and returned in accordance with the terms thereof, (ii) unless made exclusively outside the United States to a prospective subscriber who is a non-U.S. citizen or non-U.S. permanent resident in accordance with Regulation S of the Securities Act of 1933, as amended; and (iii) in any jurisdiction in which such offer or solicitation is unlawful. Any representations to the contrary are unlawful. * U.S. Immigration Fund, LLC and its related companies are not affiliated with, nor agencies of, the United States Government.

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

c: 858.395.1741

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Tikkun <magazine@tikkun.org>
To: Podesta@Law.Georgetown.Edu
Date: 12/30/2014 5:56:25 AM
Subject: Why does America Torture?

Tikkun { tē-kün } to heal, repair, and transform the world

Editor's Note:
The article below by Prof. Alan Gilbert raises important ethical issues that must concern everyone on the planet. It reminds us that the most important criminal justice legacy of the Obama Administration may be its willingness to let the torturers go free, without any attempt to hold them responsible for their actions--thus signaling to future generations of torturers that the worst they might expect is to have their acts (but not their names) revealed in public by a Congressional investigation, and that they are free to defend their acts of torture as "necessary" or "justified" without fear of prosecution. That, of course, is an open invitation for the next generation of torturers to continue or even broaden the range of people they torture and the techniques they use, knowing that even a supposedly liberal Administration will avoid confronting, much less prosecuting, them. Please read this article carefully and you'll see why my reaction is to say: Shame on Obama and jail the torturers! If you appreciate this article, and want to see Tikkun continue to publish, this is one more reason to make a tax-deductible contribution to Tikkun NOW at www.tikkun.org or even better by joining our interfaith and secular-humanist-welcoming action and education arm of Tikkun, the NSP Network of Spiritual Progressives (membership at the $50 or more level also gets you a free one year sub to Tikkun magazine) by going to www.spiritualprogressives.org . Or by mailing a check to Tikkun at 2342 Shattuck Ave, #1200, Berkeley, Ca. 94704.
--Rabbi Michael Lerner rabbilerner.tikkun@gmail.com

Why Does America Torture?

by Prof. Alan Gilbert John Evans Professor at the Josef Korbel School of International Studies of the University of Denver

On December 21, the New York Times called editorially for the prosecution of torturers, based on the Senate Intelligence Committee's 600 page Executive Summary on torture. The Times says rightly that the US government will only be considered a defender of human rights if it acts against these powerful torturers under the law. And beyond the Senate report, it names Cheney and his minions as those who need to be prosecuted, though interestingly not President George W. Bush who is plainly guilty of ordering torture.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 29, 2014

Why does America torture?

On December 21, the New York Times called editorially for the prosecution of torturers, based on the Senate Intelligence Committee's 600 page Executive Summary on torture. The Times says rightly that the US government will only be considered a defender of human rights if it acts against these powerful torturers under the law. And beyond the Senate report, it names Cheney and his minions as those who need to be prosecuted, though interestingly not President George W. Bush who is plainly guilty of ordering torture.

For the Times, in its effort to restore the law, criminal Presidents must apparently, no matter what their crimes, must go scot-free. But if the President need pay no attention, so much for the rule of law.

***

The Times and others need to shed their surviving obsequiousness

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

to torture and murder... See here .

***

As intelligence professionals like Ray McGovern have long insisted, torture never gets useful information. Why then is it done?

In an article from Veterans Today, a journal of the "Clandestine Community," Jim W. Dean underlines the likely planting of false information which leads to repulsive foreign policy decisions - the second Iraq aggression, the disgrace of black sites, the corrupting of the European community (the carefully blacking out of names of allies in the Senate Report by the solicitous CIA\Obama administration), and most importantly, the trashing of the law against torture as the centerpiece of international law and of American law. (h/t Darrol) It is this last point on which the Times' editorial finally touches.

***

Habeas corpus - the right of each prisoner to a day in court and not to be tortured - is, as Philip Soper argues, the central feature of a system of law as opposed to despotism. It is what had distinguished (somewhat, if one does not disregard genocide against indigenous people, the ordinary practice of slavery, Jim Crow and the like, which mark American history...) the US or English system of law from, say, the Chinese.

***

The Chinese Communists were modern revolutionaries, but their view and practice of law were from the Emperors. To be just now in Dharamsala, to hear from Ama Adhe about her torture - see here and here - where she ended up eating the leather off boots, and was one of three women, out of 400, who survived 3 years in a Chinese prison in the late 1950s (she went on to be brutalized for another 27 years; she has no hearing in her right ear so Yeshi, the translator had to sit to her left for the questions; she has the Dalai Lama's spirit of compassion, wanting a happy life for the Chinese so long as Tibet is independent, and is a kind of angel...) is to understand how barbaric the Chinese rulers were and are.

***

The Chinese have but to point to American practices in the black sites and Guantanamo underlined in the 600 page Executive Summary of the Senate Torture Report - published against the will of Obama and the CIA under tremendous pressure from below and from some determined Senators - and there is no difference in kind...

***

But the clash between habeas corpus, enshrined in the Magna Carta in 1215 and then fought over for 400 years or the international agreements making an absolute ban on torture and which are also centerpieces of American law (and for which the Nuremburg and Tokyo tribunals, under American prosecutorial leadership, executed Nazi and Japanese war criminals after World War II), and these Chinese/ Bush-Cheney enacted/Obama-protected practices is noisome.

***

Writing for intelligence professionals, Jim Dean says that Israeli intelligence could plant false stories, and these would gain high currency in the US through torture. Here is the core of his account:

"'Here is why torture is a horrible problem, because corrupt interrogators can lead a person while they are interrogating them, telling them what they really want them to tell them and they will stop torturing them,'" he continued [no, ripping human bodies apart is horrible and not because of the bad information it elicits].

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"'And then what will happen is that someone would submit a false report like the Israelis, and the US intelligence... will end up torturing two people to confirm it, and then the government actually gets hustled in doing something based on a completely false report,'" he explained.

"'And this actually makes it a threat to the national security, because corrupt insiders inside the government can rig events, like they had done for the Iraq war,... to initiate a war,'" the journalist noted."

***

There is a large element of truth here: once a government goes in for torture, it does not get the truth and is extremely easy to manipulate, plant false information on from on high (most likely) and below.

***

Dean's argument is the theory of disillusioned CIA critics of why the US invaded Iraq yet again (now we are on the third round with Obama...). For there is no plausible "national interest" in these elite aggressions. They have forfeited American strength and revealed the rottenness of American power, including its harms to most Americans.

***

But Dean's explanation is too convenient, blaming Israel (however reactionary its apparent ethnic cleansing in Palestine) for what are plainly crimes executed in accordance with (fantasies about) American "interests"....

***

For the CIA, not Israel, under the urging of Bush and Cheney, enacted torture; the decent people both there (such as Ray McGovern) and in the FBI - Ali Soufan - have criticized these crimes relentlessly. McGovern even rightly calls for the abolition of the CIA. See here .

***

I conjoin with Dean's comments a post I put up in 2009 on Mr. Cheney "What the Torturer Knew." What is most clear about the barbarity of American torture is that the CIA torturers were even repulsed themselves by water boarding Abu Zubaydah 82 times, asking in the middle to stop. For this was the practice, as the Senate Report makes clear, of "ensuring" the prisoner knew nothing beyond what he had confessed not under torture, a criminal policy that took torture on many individuals, without any justifiable suspicion, to the max.... David Addington, Cheney's "man," stilled them: "Be Men!" But torture did not - ever, once - get any useful information (see the Torture Report and Andrew Sullivan here and the*New York Times* editorial below).

***

What it did do was seek for ties between Saddam and Al-Qaida. The US plan was to invade Iraq from the first day of the Bush administration - see the Treasury Secretary Paul O'Neill's memoir, The Price of Loyalty. O'Neill who had been in the Ford and Reagan administrations, was rightly confused by a cabinet discussion at the first meeting in January 2001 which assumed the administration would invade Iraq, making tactical plans...but failed to discuss: why?

***

Bush and his minions fixed on this policy without any clear justification. Cheney looked for any "prop" for his assertion of ties between Al-Qaida and Saddam; the "dark side" was his means.

***

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

But no such ties between Saddam and Al-Qaida existed...

***

Torture is also, as Elaine Scarry underlines in her remarkable book, The Body in Pain, a way of asserting domination, of threatening or trying to scare people widely.

***

But Richard Cheney is more frightening to Americans than to others. And in fact, his policy also yields justified hatred among many - recall the Count of Monte Christo and then ask: how many Monte Christos has the US minted at Guantanamo...

***

It was Cheney's desire - underlined in his loathsome "Meet the Press" interview last Sundayhere , a former Secretary of Defense, Ford Chief of Staff, V-P Mafioso, strutting and screaming - to get the information he already knew by torture.

***

So "What the Torturer Knew" - see below - is the primary and obvious aspect of torture. That the neocons, including Israelis or certain influential Straussians, ran Cheney is not obvious. That Cheney bought much of their lies/fantasies and sought to carry them out is clear.

That Israel is becoming, in its Occupation of Palestine, more and more of a depraved racist regime, murdering 426 children in Gaza last summer for one Israeli child murdered by Hamas rockets, is clear.

That Israel and the United States, its endless supplier of weapons like the named for genocide "Apache" helicopter, need to be stopped is clear.

***

But that the tail wags the dog, that the US, across administrations, does not benefit from its relation with Israel, is not clear. For a long time, the US played divide and rule in the Middle East to control the oil and establish military bases.

***

Now, with the arrival of nonviolent Palestinian resistance (BDS, in the villages and the like), with the increasing knowledge of Americans (AIPAC has given up on the campuses now; there is too much evidence about what Israel does, and “hasbara” – Israeli public relations – will not cover forced transfer, lies about negotiations, and wanton murders...).

Israel is becoming increasingly isolated even in America...

***

The American invasions of the Middle East starting with the first Gulf War reveal 25 years of decline, the latest with no boots on the ground except some mercenary “invisibles,” are signs of an unpromising, decadent, militarist addiction.

***

Better the US clean up its torture act; read the Senate Report and ask yourself – are “we” better, in kind, than the hideous IS – and the difficulty in the answer may startle you. For as Cheney said on Meet the Press, torturing innocents to death, hung up when their legs were broken, in stress positions, and anal rape, no biggie. The only criminals are those who did 9/11...See here .

Defending the Bill of Rights and human rights promise something different...

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

***
Nonetheless, Dean's commentary does suggest one route by which those determined to plant false information can gull credulous CIA torturers (the latter are sometimes breathed on by Mr. Cheney to spread lies; one self-described "Troglodyte"/reactionary on the second floor of Langley described how frightened he was when Cheney came down and "breathed" on him).

***

But the Iraqi engineer "curveball" made up for German intelligence a story about mobile bioweapons laboratories. Germany, a comparatively civilized nation, did not use torture. though they "interrogated" him for a year and a half. The engineer wanted and got asylum in Germany. Yet both German and British intelligence warned the US about his "information." See here .

Nonetheless, Bush and Powell also picked up and used this "information" in speeches pushing for aggression (as Cheney planted front page stories in the*New York Times* through access to Judith Miller - via his minion Scooter Libby - and then cited those*Times*'s stories as "evidence" for Iraqi wmds).

***

It is mainly the danger of winds blowing from the top - the thuggish Cheney, the hapless and easily incited Bush - and the pressures of American militarism or war complex dominated politics funded at a trillion dollars a year (the official Pentagon and "intelligence" budgets) - pushing things ever to the Right. The latter is what I call the "right wing two step" in which one oligarchic party calls out for craziness hoping to win elections given a compliant mainstream press, coupled with the other oligarchic party putting up little fight - Obama's bombing of Syria is the latest illustration.

Now Senator Mark Udall on the torture report, Obama on recognizing Cuba are counterexamples, which in their difficulty/ exceptionalism - Udall and Obama no longer face elections - underline the point.
***
The Senate Report misleadingly concentrates on the CIA, leaves aside the criminal Bush administration. And the Times editorial restricts the matter too much. So I also include a piece by William Boardman on 12 top war criminals, CIA director George Tenet and Mitchell and Jesson, the “psychologist” novice interrogator/torture enthusiasts being but numbers 11 and 12 – see also here . It is worth taking in how extensive this program was (only Colin Powell objected to it, was apparently out of the loop...).
***
But while it is surely true, for example, that Jay Bybee or John Yoo should be disbarred, the act of rationalizing torture in a position of legal responsibility, if Americans still value the rule of law and the physical and moral security of citizens, is a war crime for which they should be tried....

***

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Even Boardman thus adjusts somewhat to the “politics” of the powerful. But Obama, who represented some hope when he came into office, has become an accomplice to torture, and the next election (unless Rand Paul is nominated and holds onto some principle) will be, without a movement from below, between abettors of neo-cons/friends of torturers (Hillary supports Obama's initial renunciation of water boarding, yet opposes bringing war criminals to justice...see here).

***

But enough pressure from below on Obama and the appointment of an independent prosector who does his job (unlike the one who, as the Times pointed out, was charged with finding acts of torture beyond those permitted by the Bush administration and scandalously brought no charges) may become possible.

***

I also link here to an article on the edits from the Senate Report by the CIA/Obama of names/places of allied torturers (Poland, for example, where one notorious black site was). This corrupt editing underlines the wreckage of international law, of which the absolute ban on torture is the centerpiece, brought about by the Bush administration. But there will be a fight in Europe to restore these things. And the UN special rapporteur on torture again called, with the Senate report, for trials of the Bush\Cheney administration under the Convention against Torture. Further, as the Times' editorial insists, the US needs to repudiate these actions across the board – Cheney and Bush and the others need to be confronted with trials and jail time (capital punishment is a barbaric American thing so probably, despite US legal precedent, they haven’t quite earned that...)...

***

Even Senator Feinstein, a collaborator with torturers, spoke up. See here . Even the Times, which under Bill Keller, propagated the euphemism "very harsh interrogations" and refused to look at torture, has now spoken out strongly against it.

***

It is only being a decent society, having law at all, which hangs in the balance...

New York Times

The Opinion Pages | EDITORIAL

Prosecute Torturers and Their Bosses

By THE EDITORIAL BOARD DEC. 21, 2014

Photo

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Dick Cheney. CreditWin McNamee/Getty Images

Since the day President Obama took office, he has failed to bring to justice anyone responsible for the torture of terrorism suspects — an official government program conceived and carried out in the years after the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001.

He did allow his Justice Department to investigate the C.I.A.'s destruction of videotapes of torture sessions and those who may have gone beyond the torture techniques authorized by President George W. Bush. But the investigation did not lead to any charges being filed, or even any accounting of why they were not filed.

Mr. Obama has said multiple times that "we need to look forward as opposed to looking backwards," as though the two were incompatible. They are not. The nation cannot move forward in any meaningful way without coming to terms, legally and morally, with the abhorrent acts that were authorized, given a false patina of legality, and committed by American men and women from the highest levels of government on down.

Americans have known about many of these acts for years, but the 524-page executive summary of the Senate Intelligence Committee's report erases any lingering doubt about their depravity and illegality: In addition to new revelations of sadistic tactics like "rectal feeding," scores of detainees were waterboarded, hung by their wrists, confined in coffins, sleep-deprived, threatened with death or brutally beaten. In November 2002, one detainee who was chained to a concrete floor died of "suspected hypothermia."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

These are, simply, crimes. They are prohibited by federal law, which defines torture as the intentional infliction of "severe physical or mental pain or suffering." They are also banned by the Convention Against Torture, the international treaty that the United States ratified in 1994 and that requires prosecution of any acts of torture.

So it is no wonder that today's blinkered apologists are desperate to call these acts anything but torture, which they clearly were. As the report reveals, these claims fail for a simple reason: C.I.A. officials admitted at the time that what they intended to do was illegal.

In July 2002, C.I.A. lawyers told the Justice Department that the agency needed to use "more aggressive methods" of interrogation that would "otherwise be prohibited by the torture statute." They asked the department to promise not to prosecute those who used these methods. When the department refused, they shopped around for the answer they wanted. They got it from the ideologically driven lawyers in the Office of Legal Counsel, who wrote memos fabricating a legal foundation for the methods. Government officials now rely on the memos as proof that they sought and received legal clearance for their actions. But the report changes the game: We now know that this reliance was not made in good faith.

No amount of legal pretzel logic can justify the behavior detailed in the report. Indeed, it is impossible to read it and conclude that no one can be held accountable. At the very least, Mr.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Obama needs to authorize a full and independent criminal investigation.

The American Civil Liberties Union and Human Rights Watch are to give Attorney General Eric Holder Jr. a letter Monday calling for appointment of a special prosecutor to investigate what appears increasingly to be "a vast criminal conspiracy, under color of law, to commit torture and other serious crimes."

The question everyone will want answered, of course, is: Who should be held accountable? That will depend on what an investigation finds, and as hard as it is to imagine Mr. Obama having the political courage to order a new investigation, it is harder to imagine a criminal probe of the actions of a former president.

But any credible investigation should include former Vice President Dick Cheney; Mr. Cheney's chief of staff, David Addington; the former C.I.A. director George Tenet; and John Yoo and Jay Bybee, the Office of Legal Counsel lawyers who drafted what became known as the torture memos. There are many more names that could be considered, including Jose Rodriguez Jr., the C.I.A. official who ordered the destruction of the videotapes; the psychologists who devisedthe torture regimen; and the C.I.A. employees who carried out that regimen.

One would expect Republicans who have gone hoarse braying about Mr. Obama's executive overreach to be the first to demand accountability, but with one notable exception, Senator John McCain, they have either fallen silent oractively defended theindefensible. They cannot even point to any results: Contrary to repeated claims by the C.I.A., the report concluded that "at no time" did any of these techniques yield intelligence that averted a terror attack. And at least 26 detainees were later determined to have been "wrongfully held."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

***

"Veterans Today, Military Affairs Journal of the Clandestine Community

Insiders mislead US based on false CIA interrogation reports: Analyst

US Senate Intelligence Committee released a report last week detailing CIA torture techniques.

Sun Dec 21, 2014 7:43AM GMT

A political commentator says "insiders" mislead the US government to make crucial decisions based on false information they receive from terror suspects under harsh tactics.

Speaking to Press TV on Thursday, Jim W. Dean, managing editor of Veterans Today from Atlanta, said the CIA uses very skilful interrogators who lead suspects into telling them what they want to hear.

"It has tremendous potential for abuse because if you get somebody like the Dick Cheney crowd looking for some kind of a justification for launching an attack or about an incoming threat, they can put out the word that they need confirmation on this or that and that they need to have the interrogators bring in people to confirm things," Dean said.

"Here is what torture is a horrible problem, because corrupt interrogators can lead a person while they are interrogating them, telling them what they really want them to tell them and they will stop torturing them," he continued.

"And then what will happen is that someone would submit a false report like the Israelis, and the US intelligence... will end up torturing two people to confirm it, and then the government actually gets hustled in doing something based on a completely false report," he explained.

"And this actually makes it a threat to the national security, because corrupt insiders inside the government can rig events, like they had done for the Iraq war,... to initiate a war," the journalist noted.

Dean said this is "one of the biggest threats that we face and they are always done by insider people."

The US Senate Intelligence Committee released a report last week detailing torture techniques used by the Central Intelligence Agency during the presidency of George W. Bush.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The report confirmed that the CIA used extreme methods such as waterboarding, sleep deprivation, mock executions and threats that the relatives of the prisoners would be sexually abused.
An analysis of the report by the Nation Magazine showed that human experimentation was a “core feature” of the spy agency’s torture program.

***

"WEDNESDAY, MAY 20, 2009
Democratic-Individuality.Blogspot.com

What the Torturer Knew

The FBI interrogator Ali Soufan recently reported in testimony to the Senate that he connected with Abu Zubaydah by treating his wounds and talking to him. Abu Zubaydah gave him information which led to the capture of Khalid Shaikh Mohammed. As Soufan testified in answer to Senator Lindsay Graham from South Carolina who tried to defend Vice President Cheney, outsmarting people for information is tougher than beating them to a pulp. Graham used to know this – he once opposed torture. But now he said “these techniques have been used since the Middle Ages”; there must be, he tried to suggest, a reason. Thuggery – scaring the life out of many people by randomly brutalizing whomever one can lay one’s hands on – is, I am afraid, the ordinary reason of corrupt kings and princes. Waterboarding has been used since the Inquisition, as was burning Jewish teenagers at the stake (see Montesquieu, Spirit of the Laws, book 26). Thus, the mark of law and civilization at all – as opposed to tyranny – is the absolute ban on waterboarding and torture. The rump elements of the Republican Party have zealously become the partisans of Torquemada.

In one of now “Judge” Jay Bybee’s torture memos released recently by Obama, it reports that Khalid Shaikh Mohammed was waterboarded 183 times in a month. This was plainly crazy even for torturers and the CIA men who did the job apparently complained about it. Zubaydah was waterboarded over 80 times. But Soufan had procured the only information Zubaydah had. What the torturer wanted wasn’t information from Zubaydah; what the torturer wanted was what the torturer already knew.

Vice President Cheney wanted Zubaydah or anybody else (didn’t matter who) to give up the information that Al-Qaida had ties with Saddam. The fact that this claim was untrue and bizarre – Al Qaida is a fanatical offshoot of the Sunnis and Saddam was secular and locked up and killed fanatical and other Sunnis and Shia – did not interfere. Cheney is way smart compared to most bureaucrats and politicians, but he works best through silence and intimidation. His own ignorance was not obstacle. If he forced enough torture, he could get a “justification” for aggressing against Iraq. And Cheney knew with a passion that this must be right. He even went down into the lower floors of the CIA to breathe on lower level CIA officers and get the information he wanted. He would break his subordinates in order to break the prisoners.

Cheney, Rice and Bush are all still quick to summon up 9/11. But not only did they give up the search for Osama Bin Laden; they used “enhanced interrogation,” that is torture, to try to force what they already knew out of the tortured. That is the only thing torture is good for. Note the particular criminality of the torture – it was not a bizarre response to 9/11; it was an obsessively calculated action to justify a long planned aggression against Saddam. All the excuses for the criminals cannot hide the fact that what they did was not an attempt to gain information about 9/11. That was not what Cheney knew, and Ali Soufan had already done this. Note: even the threadbare rationalizations for torture of the American establishment and the Democratic Party (these people were desperate and had lost their bearings because of 9/11) do not justify this policy. Gaining information to prevent an attack from Al-Qaida had nothing to do with the torture. Instead, it was designed to confirm a war which the "Cheney-Rumsfeld" cabal had determined on long before 9/11. Secretary of Commerce Paul O'Neill in his book with Ron Suskind, The Price of Loyalty tells the fascinating story that he walked into his first cabinet meeting with Bush and the others were discussing the tactics of going to war with Iraq. Weren't you supposed, he wondered, to discuss whether and why to go to war first? He had been in the Ford and Reagan administrations and also wondered what happened to cabinet discussions of policy. Under the influence of Rove and Cheney, cabinet discussions under George W. Bush only focused on politics. Perhaps that is a reason for the singular disasters in every aspect of public policy which the Bush-Cheney regime achieved. In any case, what the torturer did to these "high value detainees in secret prisons" later became the American way at Abu Ghraib, Guantanamo and Bagram. The torturer used naked power to enact his own fantasies, which had nothing to do with protecting the United States against another 9/11.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

In addition, the use by the CIA of the techniques of the psychologists Mitchell and Jesson, who advised the SERE (Survival, Evasion, Resistance, Escape) program for American soldiers who might be captured was also an offshoot of Cheney's move to "dark side." But as sloppy as Cheney (instilling fear substitutes for finding out anything) or perhaps a blowhard intimidated by Cheney, CIA chief George Tenet could not be bothered to find out whether either of these "psychologists" had ever done an interrogation. They hadn't. The FBI agent Ali Soufan knew how to get information. In contrast, the torturer knew already what he would elicit from prisoners. Questioning suspects had nothing to do with it. He would see to it that the screws were applied to them until they gave up what he knew.

The CIA did not succeed with Zubaydah (though apparently they made him quite crazy) or Khalid Shaikh Mohammed. It did succeed with Al-Libi, who recently died in a prison in Syria under mysterious circumstances. Under torture, Al-Libi told the CIA what Cheney wanted to hear. Colin Powell then prepared his February 16, 2003 UN speech, trying to weed out some believable claim among the Cheney/neocon fantasies by going to CIA headquarters for four days and throwing away papers in disgust. Powell tried to resist the craziness, but his obsequiousness to the President meant that he had ultimately to choose something that the torturer knew. He settled on Al-Libi's words under torture (he may or may not have known that Al-Libi was tortured). He gave a speech in which the only true things he said were his name and that he was Secretary of State of the United States. As his assistant in the State Department, Richard Haas (one of many decent civil servants who resigned from the Bush administration) later said, "It was the most embarrassing speech he gave in his life."

The torturer knew what he wanted. But there was a huge anti-war movement of which I was a part, largely unaddressed in the mainstream press. The invasion of Iraq – an act of aggression, without even a UN Security Council sanction – was never a popular war. Even the initial blitzkrieg and careful close-up photographing of the toppling of a statue of

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Saddam deeply impressed only the mainstream or access media, the talking heads who all say what will get the President and Vice-President to give them access. The New York times via Judith Miller printed the words of Ahmed Chalabi (the corrupt Iraqi exile the neocons, especially Cheney relied on) on the front page. Cheney then invoked the New York Times on Meet the Press the same day: "Even the Times agrees." Everyone needs to say what the Vice President already knew.

There is something deeply dishonorable about a war waged at all costs, with threadbare stories justifying it. The administration could not find weapons of mass destruction. It could not find ties to Al-Qaeda. Still what the torturer knew possessed others even prestigious Democratic Senators like Hillary Clinton and Joe Biden who feared to be thought weak on "national security." What the torturer knew passed for American wisdom even in the mainstream news downplaying and distorting protests. Months and months passed, and later there was a stolen election (exit polling which has never been wrong in Presidential elections indicated that Kerry had won). For another four years, the torturer sailed on.

What the torturer knew was a lie that served the torturer. What the torturer knew betrayed what had been decent in American policy (at least the CIA tortured in the dark, though foreign minions) and had made America comparatively respected in the world. What torture obtains is the fantasy that the torturer knew. That is the only truth in the show "24." which is television for the torturer. That torture elicits only the torturer's fantasies is the truth about torture. That it reveals only the degradation of the torturer - Cheney strove long to remain silent and hidden - is also the truth about torture. Unless President Obama appoints a bipartisan commission to gather the facts or Attorney General Holder appoints a special prosecutor, torture will remain the truth about the United States of America. Barack Obama is decent and knows better than this. He courageously released the 4 torture memos unredacted over the yelps of four former CIA heads. The legal side of the case – that American officials plainly tortured and that the legal advice on which they supposedly authorized the torture was thrown together after the torture had already been ordered and occurred, and would not, if a student had thrown it together hastily late at night, have passed a beginning law school class - is now clear internationally and even here at home. It remains to be seen whether Obama will reveal more information about torture, or whether the Democrats will slide back into acquiescence. Will what the torturer knew be enshrined in an American police state in which citizens can be indefinitely detained and tortured at the whim of a President – as Jose Padilla was turned "into a chair" according to his lawyers in his three and a half years under torture in a West Virginia brig? Or will we the people, finally, demand that the law to take its course?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

William Boardman
Reader Supported News

Obviously guilty: two presidents and much of two administrations

According to recent polling, something like half of all Americans who were asked questions weighted to support torture answered that the torture was "justified." The good news here is that something like half of all Americans, responding to push-poll type questions, still aren't willing to say the government is justified in torturing in their name.

The more serious question is why "respected" polling organizations use biased questions and why "respected" news organizations report the results uncritically. ABC News/Washington Post asks about "treatment of suspected terrorists" (no hint that innocents were tortured). Pew frames the question with "the September 11th terrorist attacks" (no hint the torture went on for years after). CBS News uses a false choice, "sometimes justified" versus "never justified," as well as calling the victims "suspected terrorists." HuffPost also uses "suspected terrorists" and adds "details about future terrorist attacks" to load the question further (no hint that no such person with such details has yet been identified).

In other words, we have dishonest polling organizations asking dishonest questions that dishonest media report as if they were not dishonest. And still something like half of the manipulated poll-takers are unwilling to endorse torture. That is a source of hope. Especially if some pollster would ask people if they think torture is legal anywhere? Or maybe some pollster could ask people if they know how many times Bush and members of his administration have been convicted as war criminals for committing torture and other cruel, inhumane and degrading treatment of people. The answer is: once. In 2012, the Kuala Lumpur War Crimes Commission tried Bush and seven others in absentia. Bush and the others refused to participate. Kuala Lumpur's attempts to arrest Bush in Canada were blocked by the Canadian government.

George Bush and Dick Cheney knew perfectly well that what they wanted others to do in their name was both torture and illegal; that's why they went to such lengths to get compliant lawyers to call it something else and say that other thing was legitimate. So the list has to begin with them. Where it ends is a long way beyond 10. Everyone on the list is almost surely a participant or accomplice in years of torture. Each, at a minimum, needs to be publicly examined under oath, subject to all relevant law, including perjury.

Top 10 Government Torturers, 2001-2014

1. George Bush . As president, he's accountable for all the acts of his administration, especially the ones he ordered and/or approved. An anonymous CIA spokesman says Bush "fully authorized torture."Karl Rove says Bush knew about and approved of torture, and participated in it, as did Rove. Dick Cheney says Bush knew and approved. In early 2008, Bush vetoed legislation designed to control the CIA, including a ban on waterboarding. Congress failed to over-ride the veto. Bush was convicted in Kuala Lumpur in 2012.

2. Dick Cheney . The vice president says he knew, he approved, and he would "do it again in a minute." He has famously promoted "the dark side." He was convicted in Kuala Lumpur in 2012.

3. Condoleezza Rice , National Security Advisor, knew, approved, and participated. She has pleaded bad memory to Congress, but still publicly defends torture now. Her assistant and successor, Stephen J. Hadley, was either in the loop or unbelievably feckless, as were an unknown number of staffers and members of the National Security Council.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

4. Andrew Card , White House chief of staff, knew, approved, and participated, even though he's a Life Boy Scout. Why should Card, who accuses Barack Obama of misleading the American people , continue as president of Franklin Pierce University? Card's successor, Joshua Bolten, and an unknown number of other White House staffers are almost surely accomplices. The son of a CIA father, Bolten is a lawyer who teaches at Princeton despite his ties to torture as well as a contempt of Congress citation for stonewalling in another matter. Bolten is also co-chair of the Clinton Bush Haiti Fund , a non-profit organization that's supposedly helping a country the U.S. has tortured for the better part of two centuries.

5. Alberto Gonzales . As White House Counsel, and later as Attorney General, he not only knew, approved, and participated, he was one of the main legal apologists for the torture regime. His successors, Harriet Miers , an especially close Bush aide, and Fred Fielding, a Watergate survivor thought by some to be Deep Throat, both likely knew and remained silent about official torture. Fielding stonewalled Senate requests for documents relating to torture. Gonzales was convicted in Kuala Lumpur in 2012. Why should they not be disbarred?

6. Jay Bybee . As an Assistant Attorney General under the late (but guilty) John Ashcroft, Bybee was in charge of the Office of Legal Counsel, the office that decides what's legal, subject to reversal only by the attorney general or the president. Bybee was the midwife of Bush torture policy justifications, a number of legal memoranda that allowed the Bush administration to claim that torture and other crimes were legal. These are generally known as the "Torture Memos " and illustrate the workings of a fine legal mind operating without conscience. Before some of his torture memos became public, Bybee was confirmed to a lifetime appointment as a federal judge. In 2013, Judge Bybee ruled, in an apparently gross conflict of interest , that government personnel should be immune from any liability for torture. Why should he not be disbarred? Or impeached? Bybee was convicted in Kuala Lumpur in 2012.

7. John Yoo . Working in the Office of Legal Counsel under Bybee, Yoo was the prime author of several of the torture memos, built on the philosophical premise that there are no constraints on the president's power as commander-in-chief (a legal coup d'etat effectively rendering the Constitution irrelevant and the president omnipotent, all done in secret). In 2005, Yoo publicly affirmed the authority of the president to order the crushing of an innocent child's testicles. In 2009, Barack Obama revoked Yoo's torture memos, but in 2010 a secret proceeding in the Justice Department "cleared" Yoo of wrongdoing. These days, Yoo continues to protect torturers in the White House, while shifting any blame to the CIA. He continues to teach lat at the University of California, Berkeley. Why should he not be disbarred? He was convicted in Kuala Lumpur in 2012.

8. David Addington . Legal counsel (and later chief of staff) to Dick Cheney, Addington was by many accounts among the hardest of the hardliners driving to the dark side, backed by Cheney's full authority. He knew, he approved, and he participated in U.S. torture program and their legal fig leaves . His predecessor as chief of staff, lawyer Scooter Libby , also knew, approved, and participated in torture. He was convicted of perjury about other government crimes and disbarred (temporarily). Addington is now a vice president at the Heritage Foundation. He was convicted in Kuala Lumpur in 2012. Why should he not be disbarred?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

9. Donald Rumsfeld . As Secretary of Defense, Rumsfeld knew, approved and participated in torture programs wherever the military went. Abu Ghraib . Bagram . Guantanamo . And other places, some unknown . Rumsfeld expresses no remorse, least of all in the documentary "The Unknown Known ." Rumsfeld's deputy, Paul Wolfowitz, knew, approved, and participated in torture programs , seeking information to justify the war on Iraq. He is now a senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute. William Haynes , general counsel for the Defense Department, knew, approved, and participated in torture programs. For trying Guantanamo prisoners, Haynes designed the military commissions that were later ruled unconstitutional. In a 2002 memo , Haynes blocked further waterboarding of Guantanamo prisoners , citing the Armed Forces "tradition of restraint." Rumsfeld and Haynes were convicted in Kuala Lumpur. Why should Haynes not be disbarred?

10. James Mitchell and Bruce Jessen . Private contractors and PhD psychologists who call themselves Dr., Mitchell and Jessen were paid $81 million (on a $180 million contract) to torture people. Both are retired Air Force officers on government pension. Reportedly the CIA has indemnified them against liability for any crimes they've committed. They were hands-on torturers and know, literally, where at least some of the bodies are buried. CIA general counsel John Rizzo (who also knew, approved, and participated in torture) called Mitchell and Jessen's techniques "sadistic and terrifying." No one knows how many private contractors, like Blackwater and others, tortured, disappeared, or murdered people, but they should be brought to account.

11. George Tenet . The Clinton-appointed head of the CIA is awash in torture-guilt, but that pales compared to his role in lying the U.S. into an aggressive war in Iraq, one of the highest war crimes. In 2004, Bush gave him the Presidential Medal of Freedom, which he should give back. In 2007 he was still saying, "We don't torture people ." His successors, especially Porter Goss and Michael Hayden , may have tidied up the CIA a bit, but they held no one accountable for the crimes they continued to deny . The new Director of National Intelligence, John Negroponte , forced Goss out at the CIA in favor of Negroponte's deputy Hayden , then still a four-star Air Force general. As ambassador to Honduras, Negroponte wasimmersed in the dirty wars of Central America and all the unaddressed crimes the U.S. sponsored there. In 2004, when the CIA inspector general reported that the CIA was violating the Convention Against Torture, assistant attorney general Steven Bradbury in the Office of Legal Counsel wrote three more "torture memos" to quash the inspector general's concern. The new CIA head, John Brennan , remains in denial and cover-up mode.

How does any nation recover from being a rogue state?

Even though this top 10 list includes way more than 10 people guilty of participating in torture, it's by no means an exhaustive list of all the government workers with greater or lesser culpability for crimes against humanity over the past three presidencies. Kidnapping, euphemistically called extraordinary rendition , grew popular in the Clinton administration and there's no reason to believe our government has abandoned the practice, any more than the government has given up torture, illegal detention, or assassination. The U.S. may be less of a rogue state now than it was a decade ago, but it's still far from an honorable member of the international community that accepts accountability under international law.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To be clear, torture has long been a chronic, low level vein of criminality by U.S. government operatives, with bipartisan collusion at least since the beginning of the Cold War. Torture (and murder) was endemic to the American Indian Wars of the 19th century and to U.S. military predation in the Philippines (1899-1913), where Mark Twain described the troops as "our uniformed assassins."

The U.S. Defense Department, formerly the War Department, has considered torture one of its options during its entire existence, used sparingly perhaps by the U.S. government but encouraged among our proxies around the world. Starting in 1946, the School of the Americas (now known euphemistically as the Western Hemisphere Institute for Security Cooperation) has periodically trained the military officers of Latin American dictatorships in the uses of torture in peacetime.

The CIA and its proxies have used torture on an as-needed basis since the CIA was created in 1947. The CIA's Phoenix Program in Viet-Nam combined torture and assassination in a years-long terror campaign against the Viet Cong (also terrorists). What the CIA did in Laos, Cambodia, and elsewhere is less well known (if known at all) but not less ugly and criminal. Some sense of official atrocity can be inferred from the CIA torture manuals supplied to Central American dictatorships during the Reagan administration.

Even in the context of longstanding, institutionalized official torture -- Torturers 'R' US, in effect -- the Bush administration took American government crime to a new level not seen in official circles since a similar panic produced the Salem witch killings. What George Bush, Dick Cheney, and their accomplices did out of blind fear was to embrace torture as right and just. Previously, even the structure of torture programs reflected guilty knowledge that the practice is abhorrent, hence better done by others on our behalf whether in Iran or Argentina, Iraq or Guatemala, wherever perceived witches threatened supposed American interests.

The United Nations Special Rapporteur on counterterrorism and human rights is a British lawyer named Ben Emmerson. Regarding the CIA torture report, he issued a statement saying, in part:

"The individuals responsible for the criminal conspiracy revealed in today's report must be brought to justice, and must face criminal penalties commensurate with the gravity of their crimes.

The fact that the policies revealed in this report were authorised at a high level within the US Government provides no excuse whatsoever. Indeed, it reinforces the need for criminal accountability.

"International law prohibits the granting of immunities to public officials who have engaged in acts of torture. This applies not only to the actual perpetrators but also to those senior officials within the US Government who devised, planned and authorised these crimes.

"As a matter of international law, the US is legally obliged to bring those responsible to justice... States are not free to maintain or permit impunity for these grave crimes.

"It is no defence for a public official to claim that they were acting on superior orders...

"However, the heaviest penalties should be reserved for those

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

most seriously implicated in the planning and purported authorisation of these crimes... There is therefore no excuse for shielding the perpetrators from justice any longer.

The US Attorney General is under a legal duty to bring criminal charges against those responsible.
"Torture is a crime of universal jurisdiction. The perpetrators may be prosecuted by any other country they may travel to. However, the primary responsibility for bringing them to justice rests with the US Department of Justice and the Attorney General." [emphasis added]

The Obama administration has a moral and legal duty to bring American war criminals of three administrations to justice. Not to do so is to continue to use American exceptionalism as a justification for the worst crimes against humanity. The national precedent is to honor those most responsible for government crimes, but what honor is there in that?"

****

Alan Gilbert is John Evans Professor at the Josef Korbel School of International Studies of the University of Denver. He is the author of the books Marx's Politics, Democratic Individuality, Must Global Politics Constrain Democracy? and Black Patriots and Loyalists: Fighting for Emancipation in the War of Independence. Gilbert is a democratic theorist and also writes poetry. He has recently been one of the authors of the University of Denver's Report on John Evans' role in the 1864 Sand Creek Massacre, central to Colorado's and the University's founding.

...

Click here to unsubscribe
if you are having trouble unsubscribing Click here

Copyright 2014 Tikkun Magazine. Tikkun is a registered trademark.
2342 Shattuck Avenue, #1200
Berkeley, CA 94704
510-644-1200
Fax 510-644-1255

empowered by salsa

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Michael Huttner, ProgressNowAction" <michael@progressnowaction.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	7/3/2008 5:03:30 AM
Subject:	FW: Taking the Initiative: T. Boone and Me

From: Carl Pope, Sierra Club [mailto:carl.pope@sierraclub.org]
Sent: Thursday, July 03, 2008 11:27 AM
To: Michael Huttner
Subject: Taking the Initiative: T. Boone and Me

Carl Pope's Taking the Initiative

T. Boone and Me

July 3, 2008

Sweetwater, TX -- Sweetwater was once known for hosting the world's largest rattlesnake "roundup" -- 12,000 reptiles every year. Now it calls itself "the world's wind capital" and, by the end of the year, turbines there will be pumping out 3,000 megawatts of wind to provide green power to America's electricity customers. Sweetwater is the County seat of Nolan County, which by itself would rank as the world's fourth-largest nation for wind power -- boasting more wind than the entire state of California. The rattler-friendly pastures and cotton fields around Sweetwater are dotted with General Electric, Siemens, and Toshiba turbines -- big ones, some generating 2.3 megawatts a pop.

T. Boone Pickens was first known as an oil and gas man and then as a corporate raider, but these days he is jousting to topple Sweetwater from its title. Flying with me to visit his wind operations in Sweetwater, he makes it clear that his next wind project is big, Texas-style -- 4,000 megawatts up in the Panhandle north of here. Pickens just doesn't believe that America's energy future is in oil any more. He dismisses the current calls for opening up the coast to drilling, saying that the government's official estimates of oil and gas reserves are wildly inflated -- "the geology just isn't there."

Pickens is infuriated by our continued and increasing addiction to imported oil, which he says now costs us $700 billion a year, and will soon climb to an even trillion. (He is watching the market as we fly, and as oil hits $143 a barrel, the Dow plummets. Boone notes "well, my securities are going to go down, but my commodities book will make up for most of today's loss." Pickens is long on oil, meaning he is betting that the price keeps going up.)

To put it plainly, T. Boone Pickens is out to save America.

But how can wind power, which generates electricity, help us out of our imported oil dilemma? Long-term, it will be through plug-in hybrid cars. But Pickens doesn't think we can afford to wait for the long term, so he's offering an audacious alternative vision -- generate enough wind so that America no longer needs to use natural gas to generate electricity, and then use that gas instead to power up to one-third of our vehicle fleet with compressed natural gas (CNG).

The conversion is clearly feasible. CNG cars are already normal in countries like Argentina, where they cost no more than conventional models. The barriers in the U.S. have been the resistance of the major oil companies and that we would need to install CNG pumps at service stations. But many fleets already burn the fuel, which is much cleaner, and emits about one-third less carbon than gasoline. And CNG now has another advantage: It costs about half as much as gasoline does. If we were to convert any significant part of the U.S. fleet, the resulting decline in world oil demand would actually reduce oil prices, potentially sharply. It's probably the only short-term (2-3 year) strategy that might.

How to recruit the necessary public support? This would take, it seems to me, a government mandate to get the distribution network in place. After all, the oil industry has hardly rushed to install E85 pumps for ethanol. We can expect that it will fight any effort to break its monopoly. And the auto industry would need to be more than a passive partner if we're going to get enough CNG vehicles rolling off the assembly lines to make a difference. Will it embrace this play? Lastly, the millions of Americans who own gasoline-powered trucks and SUVs would need to start buying affordable CNG-conversion kits for their vehicles to lower their driving costs. Pickens says he has a game plan, and will announce it next week.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Who knows? I certainly never expected to be inspecting wind operations with Pickens or to be hearing his scorn for the current political notion that we can somehow drill our way out of the oil-price crisis. He's certainly likely to draw an audience that a green wind-power advocate from the Sierra Club could never command. I think we should all stay tuned.

For a web-version of this email, please visit: http://sierraclub.typepad.com/carlpope/2008/07/t-boone-and-me.html

Taking the Initiative is the blog of Sierra Club Executive Director Carl Pope.

Subscribe to Taking the Initiative.

Unsubscribe from Taking the Initiative.

Tell a Friend about Taking the Initiative.

Become a Sierra Club Member.

Want to keep up with the Sierra Club's latest activities and news?
Sign up to receive Sierra Club Insider , the Sierra Club's flagship e-newsletter sent out twice a month. The Insider provides everything from information on new reports and issues to planning great hiking trips to how you can help change environmental policy. View recent editions of the Insider.

Sierra Club | 85 Second St., San Francisco, CA 94105 | sierraclub.org | member.services@sierraclub.org

Update My Profile | Manage My Email Preferences | Update My Interests

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Philip Murphy" <phil@murphyfamilynj.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/12/2014 5:26:22 AM
Subject:

Great work in Beijing!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tamera Luzzatto" <luzzatto@aol.com>
To:	"Mary Podesta" <podesta.mary@gmail.com>
	"John Podesta-personal" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"David Barmak" <DBarmak@mintz.com>
Date:	6/8/2014 12:26:19 PM
Subject:	Coming in from farm tomorrow

Anyone want new lettuces and herbs??

Sent from my iPhone
Tamera Luzzatto
Work: 202-540-6501
Cell: 202-329-6864

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: brucerlindsey@aol.com
To: "Victoria Bjorklund" <vbjorklund@stblaw.com>
john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 12/9/2011 4:24:24 PM
Subject: Re: Priv & Conf: Governance Review Update

Victoria,

Thank you for the update. As you suggested, please bill us this year for the governance portion of your bill.

Bruce
Sent via BlackBerry by AT&T

From: "Bjorklund, Victoria B" <vbjorklund@stblaw.com>
Date: Fri, 9 Dec 2011 17:00:23 -0500
To: Bruce R. Lindsey (brucerlindsey@aol.com)<brucerlindsey@aol.com>;
(john.podesta@gmail.com)<john.podesta@gmail.com>
Cc: (aj66@nyu.edu)<aj66@nyu.edu>
Subject: Priv & Conf: Governance Review Update

Dear Bruce and John—I am writing to give you an update on the progress of our governance review work since my November 11 update.

UPDATE
First, we completed 38 interviews (more than double the original estimate); we reviewed governing documents for the Clinton Foundation and its affiliates; we prepared an organization chart of the Clinton Foundation and its affiliates and other offices/activities of the President; we reviewed Doug Band's Friday, November 18 memorandum addressed to us and compared its points with our documents and officer/staff comments as we prepared our remarks; we compiled the results of all these interviews and document reviews into our oral report; we sorted the interview comments into "theme sheets"; and we presented our oral report at our meeting on Wednesday, November 23.

Second, as requested at the November 23 meeting, we redacted and reformatted the theme sheets and delivered them to the two of you and to Chelsea for your confidential information.

Third, we prepared and delivered to you on Saturday, December 3, our draft governance review memorandum and a draft checklist of recommendations.

Fourth, we researched and delivered to you on Tuesday, December 6 sample COO position descriptions.

BILLING
Our billing group advises me that through December 7, we have recorded 298.5 hours of work giving rise to a discounted fee of $176,412. Disbursements and similar charges come to $502. This is below the $200,000 fee that I estimated at our first meeting, even though the scope of work expanded significantly as events unfolded and our timeframe for completion was accelerated. It is also below the fees for many governance reviews, which often total about $300,000, as we had discussed at that first meeting. Bruce, I know that you wanted the bill to be lower but I believe that you are aware of the additional work that we have been asked to do and have done along the way.

Since the Clinton Foundation's taxable year is a calendar year that ends 12/31/11, I thought that you might want a portion of this total amount billed and paid this year. In that way, we and you could for optics purposes spread the billing and payment cycle over two Form 990 reporting years 2011 and 2012. For example, I could prepare and send you an invoice Monday for governance review services for half of the total which the Foundation could pay before 12/31 and then send a second bill in January 2012 for the remainder (and any new work you might ask us to do).

Please advise if you would like me to bill the Foundation in that manner. If not, please advise how you would like me to proceed.

Please also let me know if you have any questions or if there is anything further that you would like us to do at this time.

With best regards,

Victoria

IRS Circular 230 disclosure: To ensure compliance with requirements imposed by the IRS, we inform you that any tax advice contained in this communication (including any attachments) was not intended or written to be used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of (i) avoiding tax-related penalties under federal, state or local tax law or (ii) promoting, marketing or recommending to another party any transaction or matter addressed herein.

Victoria B. Bjorklund
Partner
Head, Exempt Organizations Group
Co-Chair, Diversity Committee
Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP
425 Lexington Avenue

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

New York, New York 10017

Tel: (212) 455-2875
Cell: (646) 258-9444
Fax: (212) 455-2502
vbjorklund@stblaw.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Joshua Dorner" <jdorner@americanprogress.org>
To: jessvandenberg@gmail.com
bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 8/1/2012 1:08:32 PM
Subject: RE: [big campaign] ThinkProgress: Steve King Defends Dog Fighting Comments In Bizarre Diatribe

In other Steve King news:

http://thinkprogress.org/politics/2012/08/01/619371/steve-king-birther/

Rep. King Goes Birther: Suggests Obama's Parents Telegrammed Fake Hawaii Birth Announcement From Kenya

By Scott Keyes on Aug 1, 2012 at 9:28 am

Rep. Steve King (R-IA)

Try as they may, Republicans just can't seem to kick their birther habit.

The latest GOPer to dabble in the ridiculous fantasy that President Obama wasn't actually born in the United States: Rep. Steve King (R-IA).

During a tele-townhall meeting late last week, King was asked about his views on whether President Obama is a natural-born American citizen. The Iowa Congressman noted that his staff had investigated the matter and found birth announcements in the two Hawaii newspapers the week after Obama's birth. However, King went on to float the absurd notion that his parents "might've announced that by telegram from Kenya."

KING: We went down into the Library of Congress and we found a microfiche there of two newspapers in Hawaii each of which had published the birth of Barack Obama. It would have been awfully hard to fraudulently file the birth notice of Barack Obama being born in Hawaii and get that into our public libraries and that microfiche they keep of all the newspapers published. That doesn't mean there aren't some other explanations on how they might've announced that by telegram from Kenya. The list goes on. But drilling into that now, even if we could get a definitive answer and even if it turned out that Barack Obama was conclusively not born in America, I don't think we could get that case sold between now and November.

Watch it:

The fact that this "issue" even still needs to be addressed is beyond silly. If Obama's birth certificate itself isn't enough to convince the likes of Steve King and Arizona Sheriff Joe Arpaio about where the president was born, no amount of evidence will.

From: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com [mailto:bigcampaign@googlegroups.com] On Behalf Of Jessica VandenBerg
Sent: Wednesday, August 01, 2012 4:07 PM
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Subject: [big campaign] ThinkProgress: Steve King Defends Dog Fighting Comments In Bizarre Diatribe

Steve King Defends Dog Fighting Comments In Bizarre Diatribe

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

By Scott Keyes on Aug 1, 2012 at 2:04 pm

Yesterday, ThinkProgress reported on Rep. Steve King's (R-IA) comments that "there's something wrong with" outlawing dogfighting when "people fighting" is legal. King has since tried to backtrack from the claim, arguing that while his words were "distorted," he still believes that "we've crossed a moral line" by "elevating animals up to above that of humans."

In explaining himself, King argues that animals have more rights than fetuses, and suggests that liberals have so devalued life, that a man can rape a young girl, kidnap her, force her to undergo an abortion across state lines, and then "drop her off at the swingset….and that's not against the law in the United States of America." Watch it:

King also claimed that he has broken up more dog fights than he started and has instructed his staff "to post three of those family dogs up on the Facebook page tonight so you can see what goes on in our house."

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to dubois.sara@gmail.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to dubois.sara@gmail.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	Creamer2@aol.com
To:	bigcampaign@googlegroups.com can@americansunitedforchange.org
Date:	9/23/2009 7:59:42 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] Huff Post from Creamer -- Don't Americans Deserve Health Care As Good As French?

Don't Americans Deserve a Health Care System as Good as the One In France?

A few years ago there was a great uproar from the Right Wing against France because its government opposed the War in Iraq. The Republican Congress went so far as to rename the "French Fries" in the Congressional cafeteria "freedom fries."

Of course, the Republican response was stupid and parochial – and not many years after, most Americans had come to agree with the French that the War in Iraq was a huge mistake.

I think of myself as an internationalist, but my latent sense of nationalist competitiveness is indeed aroused by the fact that, per capita, France spends less than half of what we do on health care and yet the World Health Organization ranks their health care outcomes as number one in the world, and we are only 37th.

We spend $7,290 per person and end up in 37th place. They spend only $3,601 and they are number one. That's just not right.

On the average, Frenchmen live almost three years longer than the average American. That's infuriating.

What's more, every legal resident of France is covered by health insurance, and in the U.S. 46 million people are uninsured. When someone in France goes to the hospital, everything except a small co-payment is covered – it's that simple.

The government doesn't deliver health care in France. Private doctors and hospitals do most of that. It just provides health insurance for everyone.

If you walk into one store and a suit you like costs $600 – and next door the very same suit is $300, most people would call you a chump for spending $600. In this case the French are paying $300 and getting a better suit. What are we, idiots?

I, for one, refuse to believe that we are not as smart as the French. I can't believe that we will willingly allow ourselves to continue being fleeced by the private insurance executives who make millions off our current broken health care system.

In their private moments, those executives must not believe their luck. They are laughing all the way to the bank – laughing at us that we could be such suckers – and doing everything they can to keep things just the way they are.

Just today, they and their Republican defenders in Congress will try to prevent the Senate Finance Committee from ending the current practice (put in place by Bush and the Republicans) of subsidizing private insurance firms 14% to provide Medicare Advantage members the same benefits as Medicare. Do they think we are complete fools?

President Obama's health insurance reform plan finally offers us a chance to end the national embarrassment of being the world's biggest health care chumps. We can finally begin the process of ending the stranglehold of private insurance companies over our health care system with strong regulation, and by offering Americans a choice of keeping their private insurance or joining a strong public health insurance plan.

Of course the private health insurance companies hate the thought of a public health insurance option because it would force them to compete, cut profit margins, cut executive salaries, and control costs – just what America needs. And most Americans understand that. In a poll conducted just a week ago, 62% said they would be more likely to support President Obama's health insurance reform proposal if they had a choice of a public option. Only 28% said they would be less likely.

The only reason we wouldn't get a public option is if the insurance companies and their allies are allowed to hold our health care hostage by threatening to stop any form of health insurance reform if Congress limits their unfettered ability to fleece us through the current system. It is up to us to make sure that doesn't happen.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Call your Senators today. Tell them that – as Americans-- we're done with being the world's biggest health care chumps.

Robert Creamer is a long-time political organizer and strategist, and author of the recent book: "Stand Up Straight: How Progressives Can Win," available on amazon.com .

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	gms-noreply@georgetown.edu
To:	podesta@georgetown.edu
Date:	5/18/2015 2:57:52 PM
Subject:	[GMS] DC Wage Theft Prevention Act Notification

This is an automated message from the Georgetown Management System (http://gms.georgetown.edu/).

In compliance with the District of Columbia Wage Theft Prevention Act, you have received a Compensation Statement in your GMS inbox of certain pay and employment information required to be provided to you.

Please login to GMS at gms.georgetown.edu to access your GMS Inbox to review and acknowledge receipt of this statement.

If you have any questions regarding this notice, please contact the HR/Benefits Help Desk at 202-687-2500.

Thank you.

For more information, please contact your department administrator.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Gayle Smith" <gaylesmithgayle@gmail.com>
Date:	8/24/2008 3:04:18 AM
Subject:	Re: National Security Cluster

Anybody raise Rod Von Lipsey? Ray takeh?

On 8/24/08, Gayle Smith <gaylesmithgayle@gmail.com> wrote:
> Good idea. Also Rudy.
>
> On Sat, Aug 23, 2008 at 10:16 PM, John Podesta
> <john.podesta@gmail.com>wrote:
>
>> Have you thought about using Kerrick as your Dod lead? Don't think >> Jim's using him.
>>
>>
>>
>> On 8/22/08, Gayle Smith <gaylesmithgayle@gmail.com> wrote:
>> > Mike - memo is attached, based on 12 consultations thus far. Until we >> have >> > a format set up, I'll keep updating this memo. List of names can be >> broken >> > down further if needed and have bio information on all if needed.
>> >
>> > A few names/issues are not included as I fear the memo left on the bus
>> and >> > did not want to include:
>> >
>> > 1. Bill Richardson - recommended by some, most thought he should/would >> be >> > vetted. Appreciation of his strengths is negotiations, real concerns >> about
>> > some weaknesses in US/UN role.
>> > 2. Holbrooke - not named by anyone, though discussed with some. All >> > acknowledge his brilliance and capability, but feel that inability to be >> a >> > team player is enormously problematic. In several cases, strongly >> > recommended that he not be on any list; in others, recommended that he >> > be >> > considered for envoy or other discrete positions down the road. Very >> strong >> > feeling that given number of crises and disarray in agencies and IC, >> bottom >> > line most important qualification for top level is team player skills.
>> > 3. Tony Lake - recommended by some. Tells me he does not want senior >> > position. But one never knows, should probably vet?
>> > 4. Biden - on everyone's list. But let's see what the text message >> says.
>> > If it says something else, he should obviously be on the list....
>> >
>> > And I feel a bit weird about this, but most of the people I have >> consulted
>> > so far raised my name with reference to State/F or NSC - so I put it >> down.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>> > Feel free to double back with any of them. I have several more meetings >> set >> > up including deeper detail on DoD and on DHS so good to update this >> > soon.
>> > Cheers, GS
>> >
>>
>> --
>> Sent from Gmail for mobile | mobile.google.com
>>
>

--
Sent from Gmail for mobile | mobile.google.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>
To:	"Huma Abedin" <huma@clintonemail.com>
	"Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
	"Philippe Reines" <pir@hrcoffice.com> jake.sullivan@gmail.com
	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/19/2014 4:27:20 PM
Subject:	Re: Executive Action | HRC

I am working on language that could be used for either paper statement or remarks on Friday, and will circulate tonight.

On 11/19/14, 5:03 PM, "Huma Abedin" <Huma@clintonemail.com> wrote:

>Just ask john.
>John, did you and hrc talk about EA this afternoon?
>
>----- Original Message -----
>From: Nick Merrill [mailto:nmerrill@hrcoffice.com]
>Sent: Wednesday, November 19, 2014 04:53 PM Eastern Standard Time
>To: Huma Abedin; Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com>;
>'jake.sullivan@gmail.com' <jake.sullivan@gmail.com>
>Cc: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>
>Subject: Re: Executive Action | HRC
>
>I see her in 37 minutes so it would be good to have a sense by then...
>
>On 11/19/14, 4:51 PM, "Huma Abedin" <Huma@clintonemail.com> wrote:
>
>>I think she may have talked to him.
>>She's out of pocket for a bit now.
>>
>>----- Original Message -----
>>From: Nick Merrill [mailto:nmerrill@hrcoffice.com]
>>Sent: Wednesday, November 19, 2014 04:47 PM Eastern Standard Time
>>To: Huma Abedin; Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com>;
>>'jake.sullivan@gmail.com' <jake.sullivan@gmail.com>
>>Cc: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>
>>Subject: Re: Executive Action | HRC
>>
>>Just heard back from the WH. Jen Palmieri is going to call me to go over >>stuff, and mentioned that John is supposed to be calling HRC this >>afternoon to go through the plan, so it would be good if when he did we >>were synced up with him on approach.
>>
>>From: Huma Abedin <huma@clintonemail.com>
>>Date: Wednesday, November 19, 2014 at 4:38 PM
>>To: Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com>, Jacob Sullivan
>><Jake.sullivan@gmail.com>, NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
>>Cc: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>
>>Subject: Re: Executive Action | HRC
>>
>>
>>Hrc just called to check in on draft statement. Needless to say, she's >>anxious to look at it. what do you think timewise you need to have >>something realistically?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>>
>>
>>From: Philippe Reines [mailto:pir@hrcoffice.com]
>>Sent: Wednesday, November 19, 2014 03:57 PM Eastern Standard Time
>>To: Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com>; NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
>>Cc: Huma Abedin; DBS <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>
>>Subject: Re: Executive Action | HRC
>>
>>
>>We need to start getting used to saying things on camera, might as well >>start now.
>>
>>_____
>>
>>From: Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com>
>>Date: Wed, 19 Nov 2014 15:15:44 -0500
>>To: Nick Merrill<nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
>>Cc: Huma Abedin<huma@clintonemail.com>; Dan
>>Schwerin<dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>; Philippe Reines<pir@hrcoffice.com>
>>Subject: Re: Executive Action | HRC
>>
>>In my view, that's better than paper statement but would like Podesta and >>PIR view.
>>
>>On Wednesday, November 19, 2014, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
>>wrote:
>>> 92Y is not a great opportunity, no Qs and falls during the POTUS >>>remarks. Q&A is with Walter Isaacson on Friday evening, could easily do >>>it there.
>>> From: Jacob Sullivan <Jake.sullivan@gmail.com>
>>> Date: Wednesday, November 19, 2014 at 3:12 PM
>>> To: NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
>>> Cc: Huma Abedin <huma@clintonemail.com>, Dan Schwerin
>>><dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com>
>>> Subject: Re: Executive Action | HRC
>>>
>>> What is context of 92Y appearance? Does she have to answer qs? Best >>>would be for her to answer q Fri, supporting action and then calling for >>>immediate negotiations on legislative path toward CIR.
>>>
>>> On Wednesday, November 19, 2014, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
>>>wrote:
>>>> She is currently a surprise at the 92nd Street Y, and no significant >>>>press presence.
>>>> From: Huma Abedin <huma@clintonemail.com>
>>>> Date: Wednesday, November 19, 2014 at 1:46 PM
>>>> To: Jacob Sullivan <Jake.sullivan@gmail.com>, NSM
>>>><nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
>>>> Cc: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>, Philippe Reines
>>>><pir@hrcoffice.com>
>>>> Subject: Re: Executive Action | HRC
>>>>
>>>> First they said fri, then said tomorrow night.
>>>> She is on stage at 92nd street Y at the same time as his speech.
>>>>
>>>> From: Jake Sullivan [mailto:jake.sullivan@gmail.com]
>>>> Sent: Wednesday, November 19, 2014 01:12 PM Eastern Standard Time

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>>>> To: Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
>>>> Cc: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com>; Philippe Reines
>>>><pir@hrcoffice.com>; Huma Abedin
>>>> Subject: Re: Executive Action | HRC
>>>>
>>>> I thought this was fri?
>>>>
>>>> On Wednesday, November 19, 2014, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
>>>>wrote:
>>>>> Taking HRC off for a moment. We are out giving a speech at St.
>>>>>Jude¹s
>>>>> tomorrow at about 1:15pm Eastern, so that¹s one option depending on >>>>>the WH >>>>> timing. We could also tweet and expand up it on Friday where she¹s >>>>>out a >>>>> couple of times, once talking about Cookstoves first thing in the >>>>>morning >>>>> and then doing a Q&A with Walter Isaacson at the NY Historical >>>>>Society at >>>>> night. Or we could do a more formal statement, as HRC is suggesting.
>>>>> As
>>>>> you¹re all aware, we don¹t typically put out formal statements, so >>>>>while >>>>> that certainly doesn¹t preclude us from doing so here, it¹s just a >>>>>matter >>>>> of how light a touch we want to take, or not.
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>>> On 11/19/14, 12:04 PM, "H" <hrod17@clintonemail.com> wrote:
>>>>>
>>>>>>I want to release it right after POTUS announces. Can you get info >>>>>>from
>>>>>>WH that will help us?
>>>>>
>>>>>
>>>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ed Hughes" <ed.hughes@clintonglobalinitiative.org>
To:	"John Podesta (john.podesta@gmail.com)" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	12/7/2012 1:26:41 PM
Subject:	CGI Board Discussion on Digital Strategy

John,

I hope this note finds you well. My apologies for the late notice, but we want to update you on a very recent discussion and invite you to join a special meeting of CGI's board of directors next week, likely next Tuesday, 12/11, to assess a potential significant investment in a digital strategy for CGI.

Earlier this week, we met with Chelsea to discuss CGI's digital strategy. She has subsequently asked to reconvene board next week, while Bruce and Eric are back in NYC for other Foundation meetings, to review the proposal (I will distribute a briefing shortly). In order to accommodate President Clinton's schedule, we're currently looking at a time next Tuesday, December 11, between 12:30 – 2:30 PM. We hope to have a time finalized by tomorrow.

You are welcome to join this discussion, if available. Please let us know if you have any questions.

Thanks,

Ed

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Monica Vernon" <info@jackhatch.com>
To: "John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date: 8/15/2014 6:48:23 AM
Subject: Hatch 1, Branstad 0

HATCH VERNON for GOVERNOR
JACKHATCH.COM // #IOWASFRESHSTART

Dear John,

Yesterday Jack went head to head with Governor Branstad during the Iowa Press debate at the Iowa State Fair. It was a clear victory for Jack. He was calm and caring – gubernatorial – in comparison to Branstad's defensive fumbling and hot temperament.

Help us get the word out by making a contribution of $5, $20, or $50 today.

During the debate Governor Branstad spent a lengthy amount of time defending his actions in office, including the multiple scandals that have rocked his administration – the revelations of cronyism in state government, dumb economic development deals, and unconstitutional overreaches of power.

When asked about his vision for the future, Branstad looked to the past, blamed the federal government, and never offered his own plan. Jack on the other hand was able to clearly articulate specifics of his vision to make progress for Iowans. Jack talked about better infrastructure, better education and better jobs. Jack had spoke clearly and concisely, while Branstad rambled on without answering questions.

"I've been governor through a lot of disasters" said Governor Branstad. The crowd laughed and agreed. It was not a great moment for Branstad. What was most concerning to me was his dismissal of the 2008 disaster that crushed so much of Eastern Iowa. He categorized it as just one of many that happen each year in our state. It was a put down for all who have ever worked hard to help their community recover.

Stop the governor's disasters. Contribute $50, $20 or $5 to our campaign today.

The Des Moines Register's political columnist summed up the debate by saying "For the first-time debater, Hatch stood up to the pressure. He needed to give Iowans a reason to tune in to this campaign, and he did that Thursday night."

Best always,

Monica

P.S. You can read Kathie Obradovich's piece by clicking here.

CONTRIBUTE

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Paid for by Neighbors for Hatch
PO Box 4915
Des Moines, IA 50305

Copyright (C) 2014 Neighbors for Hatch, All rights reserved.

unsubscribe

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Alex DeMots" <ademots@gmail.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com john.podesta@ptt.gov
Date:	11/25/2008 9:39:41 AM
Subject:	Administration Position
Attachments:	ademots resume.pdf

Hi John -

Thanks for signing the book for my father - I'm sure he'll get a real kick out of it.

I'm not looking to leave CAP, where I am very happy, but the pull of working for the new administration is strong. I was hoping you could give me your advice on the best way to proceed.

I am most interested in serving as an FEC Commissioner. The President will have the opportunity to fill two of the Democratic seats next year. I'm currently helping Bob Lenhard with FEC transition work.

If they need someone to work on election/ethics/lobbying policy in the White House, I'd love to do that. I'd also be interested in the Office of Legal Counsel at DOJ or in any agency where I could help implement significant structural or regulatory changes.

Debbie knows I'm looking into this. I've emailed with Mel as well. My resume is attached.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Best,
Alex DeMots

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sara DuBois" <sara@progressiveaccountability.org>
To: "Sara Du Bois" <sara@progressiveaccountability.org>
Date: 7/29/2008 1:33:13 AM
Subject: [big campaign] '08 Daily News Clips - 7/29

08 Election Daily News Clips
July 29th, 2008

Candidate Tracking:

All times in Eastern Standard Time

10:40am BUSH: Signs the Block Burmese JADE Act of 2008 at the White House

10:55am BUSH: signs the Conquer Childhood Cancer Act of 2008 at the White House

12:45pm McCain: Town Hall in Sparks, Nevada
- Tracking scheduled for this event

3:40pm BUSH: Speech after touring Lincoln Electric Co, in Cleveland, Ohio

3:30pm McCain: Fund Raiser in Incline Village,NV

5:40pm BUSH: Attends a private fundraising event at Gates Mills, Ohio

6:30pm McCain: Fund Raiser in Denver, CO

News Clips:

MCCAIN NEWS

McCain gains on Obama in poll (USA Today 7/29/08)
By Jill Lawrence
Republican John McCain gained ground in a new USA TODAY/Gallup Poll that found Democrat Barack Obama's highly publicized foreign trip has not broadened confidence in his ability to be commander of the U.S. military.
http://www.usatoday.com/news/politics/election2008/2008-07-28-poll_N.htm
See USAToday blog's "Gains for McCain in latest USA TODAY/Gallup Poll": http://blogs.usatoday.com/onpolitics/2008/07/gains-for-mccai.html
See NYT's "Where's the Bounce?": http://www.nytimes.com/2008/07/28/us/politics/28web-nagourney.html?_r=1&oref=slogin

McCain says he could support 16-month Iraq timetable (CNN 7/29/08)
* Sen. John McCain talks to Larry King about timetable on troop withdrawal [But ... only ... if military chiefs deemed the "conditions on the ground" safe enough]
* Says he would only support it if commanders on the ground approved
* McCain says he would not attend Olympics opening in Beijing
* Interview also addresses Obama's travels, Iraq and other issues
http://www.cnn.com/2008/POLITICS/07/28/mccain.larryking/index.html
Link to transcript of McCain on CNN's "Late Edition": http://transcripts.cnn.com/TRANSCRIPTS/0807/27/le.01.html

A Canceled Obama Visit, and the Story Behind It (NYT 7/29/08)
By JEFF ZELENY
For four days, Senator John McCain has sought to keep alive a story about how Senator Barack Obama called off a visit to American troops recuperating from war wounds at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center in Germany. Last week, Mr. McCain's aides took pains to stay away from the controversy. But by Monday, the criticism had been turned into a television commercial and the McCain campaign had tapped a retired soldier to add a personal face to the story.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

http://www.nytimes.com/2008/07/29/us/politics/29truth.html

Former Ramstein medical chief denounces McCain (Politico blog 7/28/08)
By Jonathan Martin
VoteVets, the pro-Democrat group of retired military personnel, counters McCain's Black Hawk down statement with some outrage from Col. Katherine Scheirman (Ret.), the retired Chief of Medical Operations for United States Air Force in Europe Headquarters at Ramstein Air Force Base in Germany:
http://www.politico.com/blogs/jonathanmartin/0708/Former_Ramstein_medical_chief_denounces_McCain.html?showall

Obama, McCain Shift Talk Back to Economic Issues (WSJ 7/29/08)
By AMY CHOZICK
After a week of trading jabs over the war in Iraq, presidential contenders Barack Obama and John McCain shifted their focus from foreign policy to the U.S. economy.
http://online.wsj.com/article/SB121725490753989863.html?mod=rss_Politics_And_Policy
Link to video: http://link.brightcove.com/services/link/bcpid452319854/bctid1695582036

McCain backs off his no-new-tax pledge (AP 7/28/08)
By Charles Babington
Republican presidential candidate John McCain drew a sharp rebuke Monday from conservatives after he signaled an openness to a higher payroll tax for Social Security, contrary to previous vows not to raise taxes of any kind.
http://www.boston.com/news/politics/2008/articles/2008/07/28/mccain_backs_off_his_no_new_tax_pledge/?rss_id=Boston.com+--+Top+political+stories

McCain Talks About P.O.W. Experiences (NYT blog 7/28/08)
By Michael Cooper
For months some nervous Republicans have pressed Senator John McCain to talk more about his experiences as a prisoner of war in North Vietnam. While his biography is well known in some circles, they argue, the details of his story are not known by many regular voters.
http://thecaucus.blogs.nytimes.com/2008/07/28/mccain-talks-about-pow-experiences/

Undermining McCain (Weekly Standard 7/29/08)
by Irwin M. Stelzer
How the Bush administration is weakening McCain's message.
http://www.weeklystandard.com/Content/Public/Articles/000/000/015/375ajfni.asp

McCain: Offshore Drilling is 'Something We Have to Do' (WSJ blog 7/28/08)
Standing in the hot sun in front of a large oil pump in central California, John McCain again issued a plea for more offshore oil drilling, suggesting it would not take long for consumers to see the benefits.
http://blogs.wsj.com/washwire/2008/07/28/mccain-offshore-drilling-is-something-we-have-to-do/
Link to video: http://thepage.time.com/video-mccain-outside-oil-derrick/
Link to Obama response: http://thepage.time.com/obama-camp-response-to-mccains-remarks-outside-oil-derrick/

McCain promotes drilling for oil off US coast (AP 7/28/08)
By Beth Fouhy
BAKERSFIELD, Calif. --Republican John McCain said Monday that drilling for oil off the U.S. coast is an essential part of any plan to lower gas prices and reduce dependence on foreign sources, and he criticized Democrat Barack Obama for opposing it. ...McCain called Obama the "Dr. No" of energy. But McCain once was too.
http://www.boston.com/news/politics/2008/articles/2008/07/28/mccain_promotes_drilling_for_oil_off_us_coast/?rss_id=Boston.com+--+Top+political+stories
See WaPo blog's "At Inland Oil Field, McCain Again Offers Support for Offshore Drilling": http://blog.washingtonpost.com/the-trail/2008/07/28/at_inland_oil_field_mccain_aga.html?hpid=sec-politics

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

See HuffPo's "Adventures In Message Discipline With John McCain": http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2008/07/28/adventures-in-message-dis_n_115425.html

Melanoma cancer survivor John McCain has piece of skin removed from his face (LA Times 7/29/08)
By Michael Muskal and Mark Z. Baraba
The Republican candidate says the procedure was part of a routine checkup. Democratic candidate Barack Obama, meanwhile, was treated this weekend for a sore hip caused by playing basketball.
http://www.latimes.com/news/nationworld/nation/la-na-illness29-2008jul29,0,1159138.story
See Reuters's "McCain has spot removed from his face: aide": http://www.reuters.com/article/politicsNews/idUSN2849967620080728?feedType=RSS&feedName=politicsNews
See Ambinder's "Just Asking...": http://marcambinder.theatlantic.com/archives/2008/07/just_asking_9.php

For McCain, defining affirmative action may be the issue (Fox News blog 7/29/08)
by Mosheh Oinounou
As Sen. John McCain prepares to address the second major African-American group in the last month with a planned speech before the Urban League Friday, the presumptive GOP nominee's apparent flip flop on affirmative action is generating an increasingamount of buzz.
http://embeds.blogs.foxnews.com/2008/07/29/for-mccain-defining-affirmative-action-may-be-the-issue/
See HuffPo's "McCain Tests The Waters Of Race As Campaign Issue": http://www.huffingtonpost.com/2008/07/28/mccain-tests-the-waters-o_n_115381.html

The Education Of Douglas Holtz-Eakin? (Atlantic Online 7/28/08)
By Marc Ambinder
"I used to say that Barack Obama raises taxes and John McCain cuts them, and I was convinced I stand corrected." -- Douglas Holtz-Eakin, chief domestic policy adviser for Sen. John McCain, in Time.
In most campaigns, there are internal battles between intellectually honest policy folks and consultants who want to create the clearest contrasts possible. Even though McCain has promised not to raise taxes, he has never ruled out accepting a payroll tax increase in order to shore up Social Security.
http://marcambinder.theatlantic.com/archives/2008/07/the_education_of_douglas_holtz.php
See TIME's "The Candidates' Tax Plans: Fuzzy Math": http://www.time.com/time/politics/article/0,8599,1826219,00.html

Holtz-Eakin Doesn't Need No Educating... (Atlantic Online 7/28/08)
By Marc Ambinder
McCain adviser Doug Holtz-Eakin responds to the commentary about his remarks to Time published this a.m., which the McCain campaign contends (I think rightly) have been taken out of context:
http://marcambinder.theatlantic.com/archives/2008/07/holtzeakin_doesnt_need_no_educ.php

A Chat With McCain's Economic Brain, Douglas Holtz-Eakin (US News & World Report blog 7/28/08)
By James Pethokoukis
I recently interviewed Douglas Holtz-Eakin, John McCain's economic guru, over at McCain HQ. Here is some of what he had to say about the weak economy, high gas prices, and the plunging housing market, with the best bits in boldface:
http://www.usnews.com/blogs/capital-commerce/2008/07/28/a-chat-with-mccains-economic-brain-douglas-holtz-eakin.html

McCain adviser says McCain will ditch cap-and-trade if elected. (ThinkProgress 7/28/08)
Earlier this month, conservative pundit Larry Kudlow caused a stir when he reported that a "senior McCain official" told him that McCain was off cap-and-trade, his signature greenhouse gas reduction plan. The McCain campaign quickly responded that the notion the Senator may be backing off cap-and-trade is "totally false." But Kudlow may have been right after all. Last Friday, McCain adviser Steve Forbes told Glenn Beck that McCain's environmental plan is not going to "get very far" under McCain and will be abandoned as "people start to examine the details."
http://thinkprogress.org/2008/07/28/mccain-adviser-says-mccain-will-ditch-cap-and-trade-if-elected/

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Club for Growth goes after McCain (MSNBC blog 7/28/08)
By Domenico Montanaro
Fiscal conservative group The Club for Growth went after presumptive GOP nominee McCain on social security.
http://firstread.msnbc.msn.com/archive/2008/07/28/1229574.aspx

McCain defends his tech smarts in S.F. (San Francisco Gate 7/29/08)
By Carla Marinucci
He says he's using computer more each day ... GOP presidential candidate John McCain, fundraising in the San Francisco Bay Area, one of the nation's technology capitals, acknowledged Monday that he isn't a "tech freak" or entirely comfortable with the Internet, BlackBerrys or e-mail. But he strongly disputed criticism that he is "out of the loop" as unfair.
http://www.sfgate.com/cgi-bin/article.cgi?f=/c/a/2008/07/28/MNQS120PDK.DTL
See Newsweek's "The Techie in Chief": http://www.newsweek.com/id/148980

Senator John McCain to Speak in Sparks (Reno's KOLO TV 7/29/08)
Preparations were underway Monday for a planned visit from one of the men hoping to become the next U.S. president. Senator John Mccain will be in town Tuesday, speaking candidly to Nevada voters. ...Across town, Washoe County Democratic party members were also getting ready, but instead, to protest the senator's appearance.
http://www.kolotv.com/home/headlines/26002094.html
See KTVN's "McCain Supporters, Opponents Get Ready for Tuesday's Visit": http://www.ktvn.com/Global/story.asp?S=8749574&nav=menu549_2

McCain Outlines Vice Presidential Selection Philosophy (Washington Post blog 7/28/08)
By Robert Barnes
Sen. John McCain's choice of a running mate appears to be ... a Republican. McCain was asked about his choice today while speaking, via webcast, to a group of friends and supporters in Bermuda who had gathered to raise money for him.
http://blog.washingtonpost.com/the-trail/2008/07/28/mccain_outlines_vice_president.html

Punch Drunk Love (The New Republic 7/29/08*)
*Print date: 8/13/08
by Michael Crowley
John McCain has made plenty of political enemies in his day, butamong the most surprising is Eddie Goldman. The New York resident doesn't fixate on McCain's position on campaign finance, or his religious views, or his support for the Iraq war. What upsets Goldman is the way John McCain treated ultimate fighting.
http://tnr.com/politics/story.html?id=8adb26e1-5e0b-48f7-9587-55d3cf9a365f

OPINIONS AND EDITORIALS

Our view on campaign fairness: McCain attack ad cheapens campaign. More to come? (USA Today 7/29/08)
Blaming Obama for energy crisis is just silly. Focus on solutions.
http://blogs.usatoday.com/oped/2008/07/our-view-on-cam.html#more

McCain Takes Harsher Tone (RealClearPolitics 7/29/08)
By Reid Wilson
John McCain understands that his best chance at winning the White House is to make the November election a referendum on Obama. But McCain's tone, sharpened in recent weeks, could damage one of the most unique and most popular brands in American politics.
http://www.realclearpolitics.com/articles/2008/07/mccain_takes_harsher_tone.html

The Price of RomneyCare (WSJ 7/29/08)
'Free' insurance is getting very expensive in Massachusetts.
http://online.wsj.com/article/SB121728669884991317.html?mod=opinion_main_review_and_outlooks

BUSH NEWS

Report Faults Aides in Hiring at Justice Dept. (NYT 7/29/08)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

By ERIC LICHTBLAU
Senior aides to former Attorney General Alberto R. Gonzales broke Civil Service laws by using politics to guide their hiring decisions, picking less-qualified applicants for important nonpolitical positions, slowing the hiring process at critical times and damaging the department's credibility, an internal report concluded on Monday.
http://www.nytimes.com/2008/07/29/washington/29justice.html?bl&ex=1217476800&en=8f738be5ba496284&ei=5087%0A

Execution by Military Is Approved by President (NYT 7/28/08)
By STEVEN LEE MYERS
President Bush on Monday approved the first execution by the military since 1961, upholding the death penalty of an Army private convicted of a series of rapes and murders more than two decades ago.
http://www.nytimes.com/2008/07/29/us/29execute.html?_r=1&oref=slogin

Bush forced Maliki to back down on withdrawal in 2006. (ThinkProgress 7/28/08)
Earlier this month, Iraqi Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki announced that he was in "negotiations" for "a timetable" for the withdrawal of U.S. forces from Iraq. The Bush administration initially scoffed at Maliki's statement, but a little over a week ago, the White House embraced a "general time horizon" for the reduction of U.S. troops. Gareth Porter reports today that this is not the first time Bush and Maliki have clashed over timelines. In fact, soon after Maliki took office in 2006, Bush quashed an Iraqi proposal for a withdrawal timetable:
http://thinkprogress.org/2008/07/28/bush-forced-maliki-to-backdown-on-withdrawal-in-2006/

OTHER TOP NEWS

Four Women Kill Dozens In Suicide Blasts in Iraq (Washington Post 7/29/08)
By Sudarsan Raghavan; A01
Wearing their flowing black garments, they can carry hidden explosives past most checkpoints because customs of modesty prevent male guards from frisking them. On Monday, four female suicide bombers in two Iraqi cities used this tactic to enter areas defended by hundreds of soldiers and police officers.
http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2008/07/28/AR2008072800169.html

Petraeus: Level of violence in Iraq tapers toward 'normal' (USA TODAY 7/29/08)
By Jim Michaels
U.S. combat deaths in Iraq appear headed to the lowest monthly total since the start of the war as the top U.S. general there said overall violence is declining toward "normal" levels.
http://www.usatoday.com/news/military/2008-07-28-Petraeus_N.htm

Gates: War With Iran 'Would Be Disasterous,' It's 'The Last Thing We Need' (ThinkProgress 7/28/08)
In the most recent issue of the Army War College's quarterly journal "Parameters," Defense Secretary Robert Gates wrote an article (pdf) titled "Reflections on Leadership," in which he examines the "three principles of war for a democracy" espoused by General Fox Conner — "a tutor and mentor to both" General Dwight D. Eisenhower and General George Marshall.
http://thinkprogress.org/2008/07/28/gates-iran-disasterous/

White House Predicts $482 Billion Deficit (NYT 7/29/08)
By ROBERT PEAR and DAVID M. HERSZENHORN
The White House predicted Monday that President Bush would leave a record $482 billion deficit to his successor, a sobering turnabout in the nation's fiscal condition from 2001, when Mr. Bush took office after three consecutive years of budget surpluses.
http://www.nytimes.com/2008/07/29/washington/29budget.html?em&ex=1217476800&en=71db57acf742fc11&ei=5087%0A

Kaine in 'Serious' Talks With Obama (Washington Post 7/29/08)
By Michael D. Shear and Shailagh Murray; A01
Virginia Gov. Timothy M. Kaine has told close associates that he has had "very serious" conversations with Sen. Barack Obama about joining the Democratic presidential ticket and has provided documents to the campaign as it combs through his background, according to several sources close to Kaine.
http://www.washingtonpost.com/wp-dyn/content/article/2008/07/28/AR2008072802041.html?hpid=topnews

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

See ThePage's "VEEPSTAKES POTPOURRI": http://thepage.time.com/2008/07/29/veepstakes-potpourri-37/

GOP ready to link Obama to Reid, Pelosi (Politico 7/29/08)
By: Patrick O'Connor
Barack Obama returns to Capitol Hill on Tuesday to speak with House Democrats, and Republicans will try to spoil the party by linking the Democrats' presidential nominee to Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid, House Speaker Nancy Pelosi and their reluctance to allow votes on offshore oil drilling.
http://www.politico.com/news/stories/0708/12130.html

Campaign ads attack GOP candidates for oil industry ties (LA Times 7/29/08)
By Richard Simon
With consumers fuming about high gas prices, political strategists see connections to oil firms as an added liability -- and Democrats are taking aim.
http://www.latimes.com/news/politics/la-na-oil29-2008jul29,0,5208338.story

Latest MoveOn Ad Targets Youth Vote (WSJ blog 7/28/08)
By Susan Davis
In its latest effort supporting Barack Obama, MoveOn.org released a 30-second television ad Monday geared toward the youth vote, to air nationally on the age- appropriate channels of MTV and Comedy Central.
http://feeds.wsjonline.com/~r/wsj/washwire/feed/~3/348697731/
Link to video of ad: http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BncNpB6IZ9I

Blackwater received millions in small business contracts — but it's not a small business. (ThinkProgress 7/28/08)
An audit by the Inspector General of the Small Business Administration found that private security firm Blackwater "obtained dozens of small business contracts worth more than $110 million even though" the company "may have exceeded size limits for a small business":
http://thinkprogress.org/2008/07/28/blackwater-received-millions-in-small-business-contracts-but-its-not-a-small-business/

POLLS

Gallup/USA Today Poll: McCain +4 (Time blog 7/28/08)
...The Friday-Sunday poll, mostly conducted as Obama was returning from his much-publicized overseas trip and released just this hour, shows McCain now ahead 49%-45%among voters that Gallup believes are most likely to go to the polls in November. In late June, he was behindamong likely voters, 50%-44%.
http://time-blog.com/real_clear_politics/2008/07/gallupusa_today_poll_mccain_4.html

Nat'l Poll: Obama +5 (Time blog 7/28/08)
Posted by KYLE TRYGSTAD
A new Democracy Corps national poll (July 21-24, 1,004 LV) shows Obama with a 5-point lead over McCain, 50-45. When only respondents from 18 battleground states are included (735 LV), the margin decreases to just a 1-point edge for Obama (48%-47%). With Bob Barr and Ralph Nader included in the candidate list, Obama's lead grows by 1 point, 49%-43%.
http://time-blog.com/real_clear_politics/2008/07/natl_poll_obama_8_1.html

--
Sara DuBois
Tracking / Communications Manager
ProgressiveAccountability.org
sara@progressiveaccountability.org
202-609-7681 (office)
410-967-7306 (cell)

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Adam Jentleson \(CAPAF\)" <ajentleson@americanprogressaction.org>
To: "big campaign" <bigcampaign@googlegroups.com>
Date: 10/14/2008 6:17:47 AM
Subject: [big campaign] FW: RELEASE: Debate Study Guide - Domestic Policy Edition

For Immediate Release
October 14, 2008

Contact
Adam Jentleson, 202.682.1611
ajentleson@americanprogressaction.org

RELEASE: Debate Study Guide – Domestic Policy Edition

Download the PDF

WASHINGTON, DC—The Wonk Room has released a new study guide to educate those watching the presidential debate about Sen. John McCain's positions on domestic policy and the errors the McCain-Palin campaign commits in explaining their stance on the issues.

With Hofstra University in Hempstead, NY as the host of the debate, the guide also includes a fact sheet on how New York has fared under the failed policies of George W. Bush – policies that John McCain and Sarah Palin would continue.

Click here to download the PDF .

The Center for American Progress Action Fund is the sister advocacy organization of the Center for American Progress . The Action Fund transforms progressive ideas into policy through rapid response communications, legislative action, grassroots organizing and advocacy, and partnerships with other progressive leaders throughout the country and the world. The Action Fund is also the home of the Progress Report.

If you would rather not receive future email messages from Center for American Progress Action Fund, let us know by clicking here.
Center for American Progress Action Fund, 1333 H St. NW, Washington, DC 20005-4707 United States

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Hannah Richert" <hannah@presidentclinton.com>
Date:	9/25/2015 5:04:00 AM
Subject:	WJC is calling you at 12:15pm

if Sen. Feinstein mtg hasn't broken up on time - Hannah will keep trying or you can call her back on +1 (212) 348-4963

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 8/27/2015 6:09:08 AM
Subject: Re: A personal story from Filippo

Should be czoi@sunedison.com

On Thu, Aug 27, 2015 at 12:10 PM, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> Yep will do!
>
> On Thu, Aug 27, 2015 at 12:09 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
> > Can you see if you can dig up a new email for Cathy Zoi for me.
> >
> > ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> > From: filippo chiesa <filippo.chiesa@hotmail.it >
> > Date: Wednesday, August 26, 2015
> > Subject: A personal story from Filippo
> > To: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
> > Cc: "filippo.chiesa@srpcorp.com " <filippo.chiesa@srpcorp.com >
> >
> > Dear John,
> >
> > How are you? I hope everything is well. Also hope you can make it back to Italy some time soon.
> >
> > On my side, I am good and still in Rome, in the process of integration into SunEdison, which became one of our shareholders last summer. Do you happen to know Cathy Zoi? She has been appointed to lead the rural electric utility company that SunEdison is planning to launch to bring electricity to remote areas of developing countries. It is an interesting idea and one I would like to work on in the future. I have seen reading her profile that she has been active in the US government and in various US no-profit organizations, so I thought of dropping you a note to see whether you worked with her in the past.
> >
> > All the best for all your work and warm regards from a hot, summery Italy.
> >
> > Filippo
> >
> > ---
> >
> > Date: Sun, 17 May 2015 19:27:00 -0400
> > Subject: Re: A personal story from Filippo
> > From: john.podesta@gmail.com
> > To: filippo.chiesa@hotmail.it
> > CC: filippo.chiesa@srpcorp.com ; esepp@equitablegrowth.org
> >
> > Filippo,
> > Thanks so much. You made my day. As you can tell from the book, I was very close to my father and still miss him even though we lost him more than 25 years ago. When I think of him, I'll think of your father too. Hope to see you soon and thanks again for sharing this with me.
> > John
> >
> > On May 17, 2015 8:11 AM, "filippo chiesa" <filippo.chiesa@hotmail.it > wrote:
> >
> > > Dear John,
> > >
> > > I hope all is well. I am sharing with you a short personal story, as I know you will find it interesting.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

My father, Adalberto Chiesa, died of cancer in 2011. An American Field Service student in New Jersey in the late 1950s, he always remained very passionate about American history, culture, society and politics. As a result, he left behind him a wide collection of books in those fields, as well as a son who shares those interests. Before passing away, he expressed to me the desire that his book collection could continue to live in a library or university.

After overcoming some logistical hurdles, I am now meeting his desire. A selection of his books was taken by the Johns Hopkins Bologna Center, where I studied. A couple of weeks ago, I received confirmation from their librarian, who sent me one sample of the entries of my father's books into the university's catalogue.

Guess what? By chance, the one sample she sent me (attached) is your "The Power of Progress", which my dad had bought and added to his library in the summer when I was at CAP - I still have the other copy of the book with your dedication in my house in Chiavari. Your book is now at the Johns Hopkins Bologna Center, with a note mentioning my father's name.

I am very proud of this connection and wanted to share this with you.

Wishing you all the best on this Sunday and for the times ahead.

Filippo

Subject: Re: Confirming Receipt
To: esepp@equitablegrowth.org
CC: John.podesta@gmail.com
From: filippo.chiesa@hotmail.it
Date: Wed, 11 Mar 2015 02:43:08 +0000

Thank you, Eryn. Safe travels John!
All the best,

Filippo
Sent from my BlackBerry® smartphone

From: Eryn Sepp <esepp@equitablegrowth.org >
Date: Mon, 9 Mar 2015 15:19:21 +0000
To: filippo.chiesa@hotmail.it <filippo.chiesa@hotmail.it >
Cc: 'John.podesta@gmail.com '<John.podesta@gmail.com >
Subject: Confirming Receipt

Dear Filippo—

Just a note to confirm receipt of your lovely note and the pictures that you dropped off for John Podesta today. He's currently traveling but I've cced him on this message so that he knows you stopped by.

Thank you also for the contact update—I've made sure your contact card reflects.

All the best,
Eryn

Eryn M. Sepp
Washington Center for Equitable Growth
1333 H St. NW, Suite 100, Washington, D.C. 20005
Main: (202) 682-1611 | Direct: (202) 741-6386 | Cell: 202-492-2967

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Email: esepp@equitablegrowth.org
*Check out the Equitablog
Follow us on

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
o: 646.854.1198 c: 858.395.1741

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
o: 646.854.1198 c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ross Wallen" <rwallen@usaction.org>
To:	"Ross Wallen" <rwallen@usaction.org>
Date:	10/17/2013 5:00:03 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] USAction Statement on Budget Deal

Hey all, (Apologies for cross-posting!)

Just sharing USAction's statement on the budget deal.

Best,
Ross

USACTION ON BUDGET DEAL: PROGRESSIVES STOOD UP TO EXTREMISM, WILL RAISE THEIR VOICES UNTIL THERE'S AN ECONOMY THAT WORKS FOR ALL OF US

Washington, DC -- Today, USAction released a statement from its Executive Director Fred Azcarate on the budget deal signed into law this morning:

"This week, USAction affiliates and members in dozens of cities across the country delivered a message at the doors of Republican Members of Congress: Enough is enough. Cease and desist from holding our country hostage with self-serving, extremist demands. Re-open the government and pay our bills to avoid a default crisis. From Charleston, WV to Spokane, WA and from Lewiston, ME to Springfield, MO, we sent a clear message that progressives are energized, unified and ready to take on the extremists who tried to shut down our country and slash Social Security and Medicare."

"Today, we can be grateful that our government is once again open and our potential for disaster has been temporarily averted, and that citizen's voices played an important role during this time of national crisis. Progressives worked together like never before to stand up to the hostage-takers and make Congress hear from the people who were being hurt by their actions."

"But our work isn't done. The real crisis is the lack of jobs and an economy that works for all of us. We will continue to oppose Republican manufactured budget crises and make sure we defend critical programs like Social Security, Medicare and the Affordable Care Act. Just as we did this week, we'll raise our voices until we know Congress hears—and does the right thing."

# #

Ross Wallen
Program Manager for Digital Organizing and Outreach
USAction / USAction Education Fund

202-263-4573 rwallen@usaction.org @RossWallen

USAction blog , Twitter and Facebook .

Join USAction on November 12th for the 2013 Progressive Leadership Awards! Sponsorship Opportunities Available.

--
--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group. Moderated by Aniello, Lori and Sara.

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "big campaign" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to bigcampaign+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com.
To post to this group, send email to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com.
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/groups/opt_out .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Denise Cardinal" <denise@progressnow.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 2/8/2011 1:00:19 AM
Subject: Put down the Pringles! ProgressNow 2011 Update

ProgressNow - Building the online progressive movement state by state

February, 2011

When I took the job at ProgressNow and ProgressNow Education to be the Executive Director, I already knew our state partners were shining examples of progressive success. But the past month has seriously impressed me – and I'm sure you'll be impressed as well. While many of us have felt like spending these gray post-election days curled up on the couch, eating carbs and pretending it was 2009, the ProgressNow affiliates got back up and back in the ring without missing a beat. Our states have been hammering the right, standing up to smear campaigns and teaching new and experienced activists and allies skills for surviving and thriving in the 21st century. Trust me, after reading this you'll be convinced to drop the Pringles and get back to the gym to train for the next fight.

Here's a synopsis of some of their work – and feel free to call me or email me with any questions, comments or ideas for how we can help you or your organization build for progressive success.

Best,

Denise Cardinal
Executive Director ProgressNow and ProgressNow Education
612.269.9276

What we did!

Beck and Limbaugh came after us in PENNSYLVANIA. Over in FLORIDA, they stole the story from Ralph Reed and Dick Morris. The Washington Post published a story about our NEBRASKA effort. Think budget problems in a swing state like WASHINGTON might matter? How many people got smarter because of FLORIDA? And in WISCONSIN they even got to SUE the bad guys. There's more great stuff happening in COLORADO, NEW HAMPSHIRE, MICHIGAN, NEVADA, and OHIO. Read on for a full list of ProgressNow accomplishments:

ProgressNow Colorado

ProgressNow Colorado

Newly elected Colorado Secretary of State Scott Gessler has a history as an attorney representing some of the most politically controversial right wing attack groups and candidates in Colorado. Learning of plans by Gessler to "moonlight" part time for his old law firm while serving as Secretary of State, ProgressNow Colorado led the demand by citizens across the state for Gessler to abandon this plan, fraught with conflicts of interest and the possibility of harm to fair elections in state. The petition effort , joined by thousands of Colorado residents, dominated press coverage of the controversy.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Colorado Secretary of State just announced that he will not be moonlighting after all , resulting from "intense public scrutiny" (AKA ProgressNow Colorado).

Progress Florida

Progress Florida

"Damn, that was quick." St. Petersburg Times education reporter Ron Matus, upon hearing that Progress Florida's Stop Scott's Private Voucher Scheme petition had surpassed 10,000 signatures.

ProgressFlorida launched the Save Our Schools campaign with a petition drive and Facebook page , targeting Gov. Rick Scott and his recently proposed universal private school voucher scheme. Numerous organizations including Public Education Matters, Floridians Against Rick Scott, Florida New Majority, and others forwarded our alert to their own networks helping us educate more than 130,000 Floridians about Gov. Scott's attack on public education. We also took the story away from rightwing foot soldiers, including Dick Morris and Ralph Reed, by highlighting their radical agenda for Florida's schools.

ProgressMichigan

ProgressMichigan

From throwing a media spotlight on Michigan's Fred Upton and his attack on Clean Air Act enforcement as the new U.S. House Energy Chair, to organizing labor and progressive reaction to Republican Governor Rick Snyder's State of the State address, Progress Michigan worked behind the scenes developing aggressive January earned media and online advocacy effort for its partners, serving a vital role in a state where we need to keep fighting strong on our side.

Bold Nebraska

Bold Nebraska

Bold Nebraska was featured in the Washington Post for it's fantastic organizing work to stop the TransCanada tar sands pipeline. Because of Bold Nebrask's work, three bills have been introduced to regulate the project — a stark contrast when just months ago every state senator and the Governor told the press they had "no role" in ensuring pipeline regulation and safety. Almost half of Nebraska's state legislature (both R and D) sent a joint letter to Sec. Clinton urging her to do more studies before deciding on the permit to allow the pipeline to be built.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Granite State Progress

Granite State Progress

Granite State Progress has been hard at work to launch Camp Courage , two weekends of an intensive training on how to talk to our legislators, friends, family and community members about the importance of equality through our own stories and experiences. Based on the model developed by the Courage Campaign, these trainings across New Hampshire empowered individuals to have "Courageous Conversations" about their personal reasons for supporting marriage equality. Working in local teams, we established ways to strengthen equality in our community and at the State House, one person at a time.

ProgressNow Nevada

ProgressNow Nevada

ProgressNow Nevada has worked to organize and mobilize the Nevada Values Coalition with hundreds of thousands of members and social service clients seeking balanced solutions to the state's budget crisis. The coalition has garnered significant coverage in statewide press. ProgressNow Nevada Action highlighted freshman U.S. Representative Joe Heck's vote to repeal health insurance reform and showcase the hypocrisy of the congressman's own insurance coverage while too many Nevadans go without.

ProgressOhio

ProgressOhio

ProgressOhio's list of work in January includes connecting and assisting dozens of progressive allies in the state — including the Ohio AFL-CIO, Summit County Progressives, the Legislative Progressive Caucus, PIRG and the Buckeye Forest council. Like so many states, Ohio's budget has taken center stage and ProgressOhio is at the center of the fight . Taking on the role of communications for the One Ohio Now budget coalition group led to hundreds of participants at the kickoff event and great news coverage as the legislature got to work.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Keystone Progress

Keystone Progress

Keystone Progress organized the second Pennsylvania Progressive Summit in Pittsburgh. It was attended by over 400 people, including more than 20 current and former elected officials. The Summit included 72 workshops with keynote speaker Rev. Jesse Jackson, who inspired and motivated the crowd . The event has since been attacked by right wing media , including Glenn Beck and Rush Limbaugh who targeted Rev. Jackson's remarks, and the Pittsburgh Tribune Review who editorialized against PA State Education Association's sponsorship of the Summit (We know we're doing something right when Beck and Limbaugh come after us!).

Fuse Washington

Fuse Washington

Fuse Washington is the coalition lead for budget work framing the solutions in terms that favor our side. Our work makes sure everyone knows what they stand for on the other side: tax loopholes for corporations, cutting health care coverage for families and growing class sizes for your kids. News coverage is reflecting this frame , changing the debate in a big way.

One Wisconsin Now

One Wisconsin Now (OWN)

One Wisconsin Now began 2011 hosting "Rock the Pantry," a progressive rally and music event attended by over 350 to counter the inaugural events of the new conservative governor and legislative majorities in Wisconsin. One Wisconsin Now's successful fundraiser for Wisconsin food pantries contrasted with Gov. Scott Walker's partisan campaign and Republican Party fundraiser in the media, including television, radio and print.One Wisconsin Now was at the heart of a national news story when right wing Juneau County District Attorney Scott Southworth told a school that teaching age appropriate sexual education coursework was a form of "sexual assault of children." After filing a lawsuit against Southworth when he failed to fulfill an open records request about email communications between himself and ultra-conservative extremist organizations, he settled the case in January, turned over the records and paid One Wisconsin Now's full legal fees and statutory damages.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ryan Duncan" <ryan@progressiveaccountability.org>
To:	sara@progressiveaccountability.org
Date:	11/19/2008 10:30:44 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] Re: [blog-cabal] Tracking Update: Palin Rally in Cape Girardeau, MO 10/30/08

Can't find.

On Thu, Oct 30, 2008 at 10:12 AM, Sara DuBois <sara@progressiveaccountability.org > wrote:

> Cape Girardeau, MO: Palin Rally 10/30/08
> Big Highlights (via streaming video)
>
> - "Promise[s]" after victory on Nov. 4, those 'Country First' signs wont be put away in some warehouse just as some campaign slogan -- it is going to be printed on every page of every federal employee handbook
>
> - Says it's "nonsense" what's going on today with a "lack of energy policy"
> - Continues standard stump (energy indep, govt reform, special-needs kids / families come first) and standard attacks, including
>
> - continues attack on Obama for ties to ACORN (distinguishing between politician who "still" hasn't disavowed a group accused of committing voter registr. fraud and a leader who won't tolerate it)
> - particularly passionate experience/patriotism push (mccain has fought for you, ready on day 1, knows how to win a war vs. i wish Obama, just once, would say he wants america to win!)

--
Sara DuBois
Tracking / Communications Manager
ProgressiveAccountability.org
sara@progressiveaccountability.org
202-609-7681 (office)
410-967-7306 (cell)

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail lori@progressiveaccountability.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	9/20/2015 9:51:27 AM
Subject:	Re: You getting on the call?

Told Bonnie to proceed without me.

Sent from my iPhone

> On Sep 20, 2015, at 4:47 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> waiting for you

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Aniello Alioto" <anielloa@gmail.com>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 1/6/2010 1:18:23 PM
Subject: [big campaign] Fwd: BREAKING: Judge Walker rules; 82,103 say "televise Prop 8 trial!"

82,103 in less than 24 hours is impressive!

Let's help the Courage Campaign Institute (ProgressNow State Partner in CA) and CREDO Action get another 17,897 in the next 36 hours.

Please read, click & forward widely via any link below - it's shockingly fast.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Rick Jacobs, Courage Campaign Institute <info@couragecampaign.org >

Courage Campaign

> Yesterday, we asked you to respond to Judge Vaughn Walker's request for public comment on potentially televising the Prop 8 federal trial that starts Monday. In less than 24 hours, an amazing 82,103 people have joined you in signing the letter from the Courage Campaign Institute and CREDO Action.
>
> Thank you for signing the letter. Now we need you to spread the word by forwarding this message to your friends urgently. Despite Judge Vaughn Walker's ruling below (please read on), right-wing groups like the National Organization for Marriage and Focus on the Family are gathering signatures to stop any broadcast of the Prop 8 trial. Please tell your friends ASAP.
>
> GOAL: 100,000 signatures. DEADLINE: Friday 9 AM:
>
> http://www.couragecampaign.org/TeleviseTheTrial

Dear Aniello --

The news is spreading like wildfire. And it's both good and bad.

From a San Jose Mercury News article:

> "Chief U.S. District Judge Vaughn Walker approved court-operated cameras in his courtroom for delayed release on YouTube, but rejected a bid by media organizations to televise the proceedings themselves for live broadcast."

This decision is NOT final: Judge Walker is leaving the public comment period open until Friday, pending a ruling on his decision by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit.

While we are pleased that the trial may be on a delayed broadcast via YouTube at least, our call for full transparency -- a televised broadcast that network news and cable channels can pick up live, as it happens -- has not been met.

And, it's entirely possible that the 9th Circuit Appeals Court may overrule Judge Walker's ruling, shutting down all broadcasting -- even a delayed daily YouTube broadcast. Lawyers representing supporters of Prop. 8 have already opposed broadcasting the trial in any form whatsoever and are likely to fight Walker's ruling.

Millions of lives across America will be affected by this federal trial challenging Prop 8. That's why more than 80,000 people have already signed our letter asking for a televised trial. To keep up the pressure before the public comment period closes on Friday, please sign here now:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

GOAL: 100,000 signatures. DEADLINE: Friday 9 AM:

http://www.couragecampaign.org/TeleviseTheTrial

With right-wing religious groups like NOM and Focus on the Family organizing against televising the trial, we need as many signatures on this letter as possible.

If you know other people who believe the Prop 8 trial should be televised so that as many people as possible can see it, please forward this message to them ASAP.

Thank you so much for your incredible response to this critical action. We will update you again as soon as news breaks.

Rick Jacobs
Chair, Courage Campaign Institute

The Courage Campaign Institute is part of the Courage Campaign's online organizing network that empowers more than 700,000 grassroots and netroots supporters to push for progressive change and full equality in California and across the country.

To power our campaign to televise the Prop 8 trial, please chip in what you can today:

This email was sent to:
AnielloA@gmail.com

To unsubscribe: http://couragecampaign.org/unsubscribe

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
To: "Margolis, Jim" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com>
"Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com>
"John Anzalone" <john@algpolling.com>
Date: 1/19/2015 3:40:33 PM
Subject: Re: Press Updates

Sounds good. Thank you all.

From: <Margolis>, Jim Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >
Date: Monday, January 19, 2015 at 5:37 PM
To: Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >
Cc: Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >, Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >
Subject: Re: Press Updates

Like it

From: Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >
Date: Monday, January 19, 2015 at 5:23 PM
To: John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >
Cc: Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >, Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, GMMB GMMB <jim.margolis@gmmb.com >, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >
Subject: Re: Press Updates

I like that.

On Mon, Jan 19, 2015 at 5:13 PM, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com > wrote:

> That is great
>
> John Anzalone
> Anzalone Liszt Research
> 334-387-3121 . Office
> @AnzaloneLiszt
>
> On Jan 19, 2015, at 4:12 PM, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com > wrote:
>
> > Maybe:
> >
> > What would MLK say today? Great strides but miles to go. We have to keep up the fight against injustice.
> >
> > Mandy Grunwald
> > Grunwald Communications
> > 202 973-9400
> >
> > On Jan 19, 2015, at 5:07 PM, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com > wrote:
> >
> > > What is missing is the "but there is much to still do."
> > >
> > > Then I would add; we must match on against ...
> > >
> > > John Anzalone
> > > Anzalone Liszt Research
> > > 334-387-3121 . Office
> > > @AnzaloneLiszt
> > >
> > > On Jan 19, 2015, at 3:41 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > Hi All,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

We've talked among the personal staff about HRC sending out a tweet to commemorate MLK Day, and the following is what we came up with. We wanted everyone to see it before it goes out in about 30 minutes.

"What would MLK say if he was alive today? Much progress has been made but we must march on against injustice & inequality. #MLKDay"

For context, here is what HRC tweeted last year:
"As a teenager I saw # MLK speak in Chicago & shook his hand. He urged us to stay engaged with the cause of justice. As vital as ever today."
Nick

From: NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >
Date: Friday, January 16, 2015 at 3:59 PM
To: Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com >, Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Jim Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >
Subject: Re: Press Updates

Also I want to mention that a Daily Beast reporter from the hill beat emailed and asked the diversity question. I reminded him that anyone that's come on to help out doesn't replace those who have been close advisers for sometime, and I mentioned Cheryl and Maggie's names. I don't know that he'll write but FYI.

From: NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >
Date: Friday, January 16, 2015 at 3:07 PM
To: Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com >, Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Jim Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >
Subject: Re: Press Updates

Hi everyone,

We wanted to share a tweet HRC sent out a little while ago and give some background on it.

In short, Barney Frank reached out to us yesterday and asked if she would engage on Dodd-Frank. He made the obvious arguments, that it would be good for her and good for him as he is spending a lot of time making the case for why the GOP chipping away at it is such a travesty. After thinking through the language with HRC, Jake, Dan, and Philippe, we tweeted the below.

Hillary Clinton (@HillaryClinton)
1/16/15, 1:57 PM
Attacking financial reform is risky and wrong. Better for Congress to focus on jobs and wages for middle class families.

From: NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 at 11:12 AM
To: Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com >, Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Jim Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >
Subject: Re: Press Updates

Amy Chozick posted, here it is below.

A Field Guide to Who's Who in the Fledgling Clinton Campaign

Republicans are already clawing for spots in next year's presidential race, and so are the Democratic operatives who are meeting in Hillary Rodham Clinton's living room and her New York offices.

Mrs. Clinton, whose schedule has been unusually quiet of late, and her advisers are fielding résumés and talking to potential campaign aides (a mix of old and new). As the presumptive front-runner, Mrs. Clinton has her pick of talent. But several people with knowledge of the discussions say that some of the Democrats' most gifted political professionals have decided, for the moment, that the safest place to be is on the sidelines.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

After all, in 2008, things didn't end so well for Mrs. Clinton's first campaign manager or her first chief strategist.

So here's an informal and wildly incomplete guide to the Clinton 2016 campaign as it slowly, quietly and cautiously begins to take shape (No, Mitt Romney has not called):

People to impress: Cheryl Mills, Huma Abedin and Evelyn S. Lieberman.

Doesn't tolerate drama: John Podesta.

Will run things: Robby Mook (and his mafia).

Dark horse: Stephanie Schriock of Emily's List.

Spin meisters: Brian Fallon or Jennifer Palmieri (a Podesta pick)

Money man: Dennis Cheng.

Policy wonk: Jake Sullivan.

Message makers: Wendy Clark, the Coca-Cola marketing whiz, and Roy Spence, the advertising guru based in Austin, Tex. ("Don't Mess with Texas," or Hillary.)

The X-Factor: Chelsea.

– Amy Chozick

From: NSM <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com >
Date: Wednesday, January 14, 2015 at 11:08 AM
To: Huma Abedin <huma@hrcoffice.com >, Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hrcoffice.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, Philippe Reines <pir@hrcoffice.com >, Jim Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >
Subject: Press Updates

I'll use this to circulate things for discussion as they break. I'd also like to revisit getting a regular call on the books assuming we all agree that makes the most sense.

For our first installment, here's what we teed up with Maggie.

<Screen Shot 2015-01-14 at 11.05.48 AM.png>

<Screen Shot 2015-01-14 at 11.05.48 AM.png>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Hudson Institute" <events@hudson.org>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	11/2/2015 9:30:03 AM
Subject:	Upcoming Events: Japanese Defense Policy, Philanthropy's Future, and more

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Reynoso, Jennifer" <jreynoso@stblaw.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 11/4/2011 7:50:33 AM
Subject: Re: Clinton Foundation Governance Review

John
I am free on Monday at 2 and happy to join.

----- Original Message -----
From: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: Reynoso, Jennifer
Cc: Bruce Lindsey (brucerlindsey@aol.com) <brucerlindsey@aol.com>; Bjorklund, Victoria B; Botjer, Jordan A.; Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
Sent: Fri Nov 04 14:23:32 2011
Subject: Re: Clinton Foundation Governance Review

Jennifer,
I'm headed to NYC on Monday for a series of meetings with the senior staff and an all staff call, the purpose of which is to reassure people, calm them down with respect to the audit, and let them know that until Bruce is able to return full time, I will serve as an advisor and senior resource to move forward program decisions and any management reforms that may result from the audit. The senior staff meeting is scheduled for 2:00 at the Water St HQ. Would you or Victoria have any interest in attending that to answer any questions concerning the nature and timing of the audit? You are probably seeing most of these people one on one, so it may not be necessary, but I thought it might be helpful to have them all hear the same thing at once.

Bruce,
Do you have any concerns proceeding this way. Any messages you want me to make sure I communicate?

John

On Thu, Nov 3, 2011 at 12:57 PM, Reynoso, Jennifer <jreynoso@stblaw.com> wrote:
> Privileged and Confidential
> Attorney Client Privilege
> Attorney Work Product
>
> Dear Bruce, Chelsea, Terry and John,
>
> We wanted to let you know that our interviews are proceeding well. We have > attached below for your information the following documents:
> 1. Document Request List, sent to Scott Curran on October 28, 2011.
> 2. Current schedule of interviews. We continue to work to schedule > additional interviews.
> 3. Governance questionnaire.
>
> Please do not hesitate to contact us if you wish to discuss. Victoria can > be reached at 212-455-2875 or vbjorklund@stblaw.com. Jennifer can be > reached at 212-455-2287 or jreynoso@stblaw.com. Jordan can be reached at > 212-455-2188 or jbotjer@stblaw.com.
> Regards,
> Victoria, Jennifer and Jordan

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>
>
> IRS Circular 230 disclosure: To ensure compliance with requirements > imposed by the IRS, we inform you that any tax advice contained in this > communication (including any attachments) was not intended or written to be > used, and cannot be used, for the purpose of (i) avoiding tax-related > penalties under federal, state or local tax law or (ii) promoting, marketing > or recommending to another party any transaction or matter addressed herein.
> CONFIDENTIALITY NOTE:
> The information contained in this email message and any attachments is > legally privileged and confidential information intended only for the use of > the individual or entity to whom it is addressed. If the reader of this > message is not the intended recipient, you are hereby notified that any > dissemination, distribution or copy of this message or its attachments is > strictly prohibited. If you have received this email in error, please > immediately notify us by telephone, fax, or email and delete the message.
> Thank you.
> _____
>
> Jennifer Reynoso
> Simpson Thacher & Bartlett LLP
> 425 Lexington Avenue
> New York, New York 10017
>
> Tel: (212) 455-2287
> Fax: (212) 455-2502
> jreynoso@stblaw.com
> _____
>
>
>
>
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/28/2016 8:17:35 AM
Subject:	Here's your "security document"
Attachments:	Southwest Airlines - Print Boarding Passes and Security Documents.pdf

Attached. Were they able to issue you a boarding pass at the gate?

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com>
Date: 6/10/2015 5:11:44 PM
Subject: Re: New Draft

Mandy, thanks for the note and I'm sorry you didn't like this version as much as the last. HRC asked me to collect and share reactions in the morning so will be helpful to go over specific suggestions with you.
Dan

On Wed, Jun 10, 2015 at 11:31 PM, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com > wrote:

I think this has taken a bit of a step backward. Yesterday's draft seemed tighter. I know you need to make significant edits for time, so I'm not going to track changes. A few areas to look at edits/cuts:

--Feels like we now have way too much FDR
--The Republican section feels weaker not stronger. It doesn't do the humor she was looking for and it doesn't quite have the moral indictment either.
--The section after her mother's story but before the four fights feels redundant and a bit flabby -- I think we can tighten there
--There are some detours in the policy section -- coal! -- that break the rhythm and seem odd to devote so much time to. Overall, this section is really long now.

I'll be at HQ in the morning and happy to get into more specifics and help edit/rewrite.

thx

mandy

Mandy Grunwald
Grunwald Communications
202 973-9400

-----Original Message-----
From: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >
To: David Binder <David@db-research.com >; John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >; Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >; Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >; Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >; Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >; Lissa Muscatine <lmuscatine@gmail.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Sent: Wed, Jun 10, 2015 6:09 pm
Subject: New Draft

Team, the Secretary asked me to share this latest draft with all of you and said that she'd love thoughts overnight.

This version reflects our conversation yesterday and a big thanks to Mandy for sending additional suggestions on how to beef up the policy section.

One thing to keep in mind as you read is that it would be great to find places to cut.

Thanks
Dan

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Guy Cecil" <ghcecil@gmail.com>
Date:	2/16/2015 9:37:35 AM
Subject:	Re: Reconnecting

Sure. Let me see if tomorrow is a disaster. Probably best to schedule something later in the week. Eryn and I are getting our bearings.
JP

On Feb 16, 2015 12:35 PM, "Guy Cecil" <ghcecil@gmail.com > wrote:

> John,
>
> Do you have some time to reconnect this week? I am around and available by phone if that's easier (especially given the coming weather).
>
> Thanks
>
> Guy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Harwood, John \(NBCUniversal\)" <John.Harwood@nbcuni.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	3/3/2016 4:58:06 PM
Subject:	Interview happening tomorrow - thank you

John Harwood
CNBC/NYT
202 669 0751

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Brooke Anderson" <info@quinnforillinois.com>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	10/23/2014 5:55:20 AM
Subject:	re: Don't let Bruce Rauner get away with this

Friend,

Yesterday was a sad day for journalism, and a scary day for our state.

Bruce Rauner's attacks on a veteran Chicago Sun-Times reporter and his wife led an award-winning political journalist to resign, just days before the election.

Rauner's efforts to conceal his business record are without precedent. They extend now to attacking members of the press and their families.

Stifling dissent and silencing reporters strike at basic pillars of democracy. There's no place for that in Illinois.

Brooke

Brooke Anderson
Communications Director
Quinn for Illinois

--------- ORIGINAL MESSAGE ---------

FROM: Lou Bertuca
SUBJECT: Don't let Bruce Rauner get away with this

Friend,

Now we know just how far Bruce Rauner is willing to go to take over Illinois.

After news broke that Rauner threatened the female CEO at one of his outsourcing companies, we didn't see any more reporting on the story for days -- and now we have an idea why that might be.

Bruce Rauner allegedly retaliated against the reporter to silence him.

It's chilling, but this is what we're up against.

Will you chip in $5 or more right now to make sure Rauner doesn't get away with this?

This is someone who bragged about having the money, power, and influence to get his way.

And shortly after the Sun-Times stopped reporting on this damning story, they announced that they were abruptly changing their policy of not endorsing candidates. This morning, they endorsed Rauner -- without ever meeting with Governor Quinn.

Sound fishy?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

We have 17 days to stop this guy. Chip in $5 or more now to make sure we can:

https://www.quinnforillinois.com/stop-bruce-rauner

Thank you.

Lou

Lou Bertuca
Campaign Manager
Quinn for Illinois

Contributions are not tax deductible. State law requires that the occupation and name of the employer be reported for any individual who contributes over $500. Taxpayers for Quinn does not accept contributions from State employees. In addition, the Illinois Procurement Code prohibits certain businesses and their affiliates that have contracts, bids, and proposals with state agencies from making political contributions to state office holders responsible for awarding the contract. For more information about this campaign contribution limitation, please consult the State Board of Elections website .

Paid for by Taxpayers for Quinn. A copy of our report, filed with the IL State Board of Elections is (or will be) available on the board's website (elections.il.gov) or for purchase from the State Board of Elections in Springfield, IL. Taxpayers for Quinn

Quinn for Illinois
676 N LaSalle Street
Ste. 340
Chicago IL 60654 United States

If you believe you received this message in error or wish to no longer receive email from us, please unsubscribe .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Judy Feder" <Judy@Judyfeder.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 7/30/2008 4:40:03 AM
Subject: REMINDER: Rep. Wasserman Schultz in DC for Judy

John--

Please Join us for a Fundraiser for

Judy Feder
Candidate for US House of Representatives
From Virginia's Tenth District

With Special Guest
DCCC Red-to-Blue Co-Chair
Rep. Wasserman Schultz

Wednesday July 30, 2008
From 6:30 to 8:30
439 New Jersey Ave, SE
Washington DC, 20003

Individual Contribution Levels:
$1000 Host $500 Sponsor
$250 Friend $100 Supporter

Click Here to RSVP!!

Feder for Congress
6818 Tennyson Dr McLean, VA 22101
www.JudyFeder.com

Please RSVP to Julia Druhan at 703-388-2813 or Julia@judyfeder.com

Contributions are not tax deductible. Corporate contributions are not accepted. Federal law requires us to use best efforts to collect the name, address, occupation, and name of employer of individuals whose contribution exceeds $200 in a calendar year.

Paid for and Authorized by Judy Feder for Congress

6818 Tennyson Dr
McLean, VA 22101

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

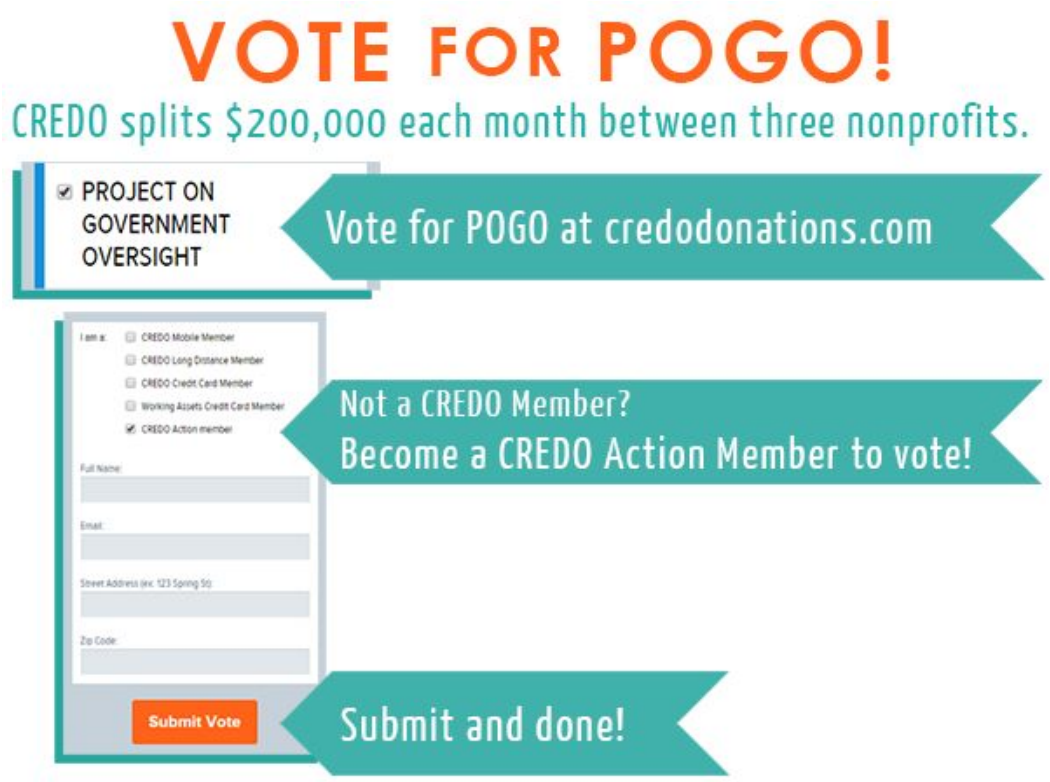
To unsubscribe from this mailing list, click here
POWERED BY NGP SOFTWARE, INC.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Danielle Brian, Project On Government Oversight" <danielle@pogo.org>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	6/25/2015 4:41:13 AM
Subject:	Only a few days left

POGO
PROJECT ON GOVERNMENT OVERSIGHT

Trouble viewing this message? Click to view in a browser



Dear John,

There are only a few days left to help POGO receive a grant that could be worth as much as $100,000.

You can vote for POGO on CREDO's donation website - and if you're not a CREDO member already, follow the graphic below. Every vote we get means money for us that will go toward funding investigations and advocacy on your behalf.

After you've voted, please share this email with at least five friends or family members who support our work to hold the federal government accountable.

To vote, visit http://www.credodonations.com/

From all of us at POGO, thank you for your support. We really couldn't do our work without it.

With appreciation,

Danielle Brian
Executive Director

P.S.: POGO is one of three nonprofits eligible to receive grants this month from CREDO, which will base the size of their grant to POGO on the number of people nationwide who vote for us. Your online vote can help make the CREDO grant have an even bigger impact.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

We rely on people like you to spread the word about our work. Tell a friend about POGO!

POGO :: 1100 G Street, NW, Suite 500 :: Washington, DC 20005 :: (202) 347-1122

Unsubscribe

POWERED BY blackbaud
nonprofit software

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Tom Matzzie" <tom@zzranch.com>
To: "Andrew Baumann" <ABaumann@gqrr.com>
Date: 2/8/2008 4:54:35 AM
Subject: Re: Battleground Survey

Hey, I want to throw a methodological curveball into the mix after consulting with some folks.

1. I think we need to select off of the voter file instead of doing RDD. That will give us more ability to go deeper on the analysis later.
2. I think with the uncertainty around the Dem nominee we should drop the balance in the batteries--cut the Obama and HRC batteries. The effect of this will be to exaggerate McCain movement but it will also expose who the hardcore McCain supporters are--people sticking with him under the best of circumstances. So, the survey design would be something like this: opening Qs, McCain ballot and attributes, message and doubts batteries, closing ballot and attributes, demographic questions.

This will save us time, money and it will exaggerate results--which is what we need since we didn't since big movements last time. We can also probably cut down to 800 sample across 20-22 mins.

Unless there are strong objections from anybody I'd like to move forward with this.

On Feb 7, 2008 9:48 PM, Andrew Baumann <ABaumann@gqrr.com> wrote:
>
>
>
>
> All,
>
>
>
> Attached please find the draft questionnaire for the battleground survey.
> There are some notes in imbedded in red. Also please note that we have > tweaked some of the McCain messaging based on Stan's recommendations.
>
>
>
> We are currently scheduled to go into the field on Sunday. If we are to > keep to that schedule we need to have comments back by early afternoon > tomorrow.
>
>
>
> The ad is currently timed at 30.5 minutes so we will need to make some cuts.
>
>
>
> We had originally budgeted for this to be a 20 minute survey with a sample > size of N=1800, but that was assume two remaining candidates. We had this > budgeted at $85,500. In this survey we just have McCain but we are > splitting the attacks on him so we still need a relatively large sample. A

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

> 25 minutes survey (which would keep us from having to cut 10 full minutes) > at N=1200 would cost $70,800.
>
>
>
> We could get to about 25 minutes with the following cuts:
>
>
>
> Cutting two attributes in the HRC/BHO attributes battery.
> Splitting the McCain attributes so each respondent hears 6 > Cutting four items from the better jobs batteries (that compare BHO/HRC to > McCain on issues and attributes)
> Cutting the re-ask of the better jobs batteries > Cutting the question on which attributes are most important (we can use > regression modeling to look at this anyway)
> Cutting the questions on which economic issue and which accountability > issues are most important
>
>
>
> Or we can talk about other options.
>
>
>
> Andrew
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
> Andrew Baumann
>
> Analyst
>
>
>
> 10 G Street NE, Suite 500, Washington, DC 20002
>
> Phone: 202 478 8300 / Fax: 202 478 8301
>
>
>
> abaumann@gqrr.com
>
> www.greenbergresearch.com
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Caren Benjamin" <Benjamin@americansunitedforchange.org>
To:	bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date:	10/5/2009 7:48:56 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] please help

Please help. Meg Whitman - the former CEO of eBay and Republican candidate for Governor of California (and infrequent voter) is flying across the country on Thursday to campaign for Republican Gubernatorial Candidate of Virginia Bob McDonnell - who as a 34 year old man on the verge of entering elective politics wrote a graduate school thesis in which, among other things, he said that working women were a detriment to society, that married couples should not have access to contraception and that women should not have the right to choose.

If Bob McDonnell's extreme views had won the day - Meg Whitman would have never been the CEO of a major company, would not have had access to child care and would never have been in the position she is in today to run for public office. What is Meg Whitman thinking campaigning with a man whose views would bar women from the work place and who as an elected official has fought against issues of important to women like equal pay for equal work? Why would Meg Whitman campaign for a far right wing ideologue and misogynist like Bob McDonnell? Is she not ready for prime time? or does she just no know the facts?

Please email your lists both nationally and in California and urge your members to call Meg Whitman right away at (408) 400-3887 - tell her you are outraged that she would have the poor judgment to campaign with a man, Bob McDonnell, who has so little regard for women and families. Please have your members call Meg Whitman at (408) 400-3887 and demand that she cancel her appearance with Bob McDonnell in Virginia and apologize for even thinking that it is ok to campaign with someone who think families should not have access to child care, that women should not have the right to make their own medical decisions and that women who work are a detriment to their families.

Meg Whitman is being brought to Virginia by Bob McDonnell for one reason - it's his desperate attempt to recover from the revelations of his thesis and his real extreme views on women that have resulted in near disaster for his campaign. Please email your members - have them call Meg Whitman at at (408) 400-3887 and tell her in no uncertain terms that it is a mistake for her to help Bob McDonnell hide his real views on women and that it would be shameful if she allowed Bob McDonnell to use her appearance to fool voters into thinking he has the interests of women at heart when clearly he does not.

Learn more about Bob McDonnell's extreme views here: http://www.bobmcdonnellblueprint.com/ and at the links below.

http://www.bobmcdonnellblueprint.com/women/

http://www.bobmcdonnellblueprint.com/choice/

http://www.bobmcdonnellblueprint.com/contraception/

Caren Benjamin, Deputy Executive Director
Americans United for Change
202-470-5881
202-257-9209 (cell)
benjamin@americansunitedforchange.org

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 12/31/2015 7:04:47 AM
Subject: Re: Letter to Mia- Draft 2

Great thx

On Thursday, December 31, 2015, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Bumping this for your review.

On Wed, Dec 30, 2015 at 2:12 PM, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

*Phrased the number of union endorsements precisely per Nikki (I had counted building trades as no. 18) and reordered those sentences a little so they flow. She said we can say "over 11 million workers" now.

*Added the criminal justice policy page link in plain text. Apologies, it was previously a hyperlink, which didn't show up on your printout!

Hi Mia-

Thanks for your support, and for reaching out with these very thoughtful suggestions. It's great to see a smart young person so deeply engaged in the political process.

First, I've passed on your email to our digital team and asked them to take a look at your recommendations for our social media strategy. Even a big operation like ours is always learning what people respond to online, and evolving to best communicate with people around the country.

I can see that you really care about Hillary Clinton, so I want you to have the most up-to-date facts when you're talking to your friends. Hillary absolutely believes that black lives matter and that our criminal justice system is out of balance. She was the first candidate to address these issues. In her first major speech of the campaign, she said we have to come to terms with some hard truths about race and justice in America and called for an end to the era of mass incarceration. In October, she met with leaders of the BLM movement to discuss their recommendations for making progress. Our policy team also put together an in-depth page on our website that lays out Hillary's full criminal justice proposals, if you'd like to see more details. https://www.hillaryclinton.com/issues/criminal-justice-reform/

We are very proud of the support we have received from the labor movement. 17 national unions and the North America Building Trades have endorsed Hillary so far. These unions, which include the SEIU, AFT, NEA, and AFSCME, represent over 11 million American workers. She will continue fighting for them throughout this campaign and, hopefully, as President of the United States.

I really appreciate your reaching out, and I hope this has been helpful. If you end up in Brooklyn sometime next year we would love to show you around our HQ. Please keep working hard to make Hillary our next President.

Talk soon.

Best,
John

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com>
To:	DMCOS <DMCOS@who.eop.gov>
Date:	4/24/2015 3:04:01 AM
Subject:	Re: Yes!

Totes

Sent from my iPhone

> On Apr 24, 2015, at 7:02 AM, DMCOS <DMCOS@who.eop.gov> wrote:
>
>
> "No handwringing - [Chairman John] Podesta won't have it."
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ira Magaziner" <ira@sjsadvisors.com>
To:	"Bruce Lindsey" <blindsey@clintonfoundation.org> john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	5/15/2012 12:01:06 PM
Subject:	FW: Gujarat article in The Times
Attachments:	Print - Solar giant turns the desert green (and blue) in Gujarat _ The Times.pdf

Bruce and John:

Attached is an article from the London Times on the launch of the Gujarat solar park. The Clinton Foundation role is mentioned and in fact the commemorative book they put out leads with us. The parks in Rajasthan and South Africa are also moving and will be much bigger and will be primarily solar thermal. We have also been asked to do work in China and Malaysia on solar parks based on success that we are having. It has all taken longer than we would have hoped, but it is taking off. And unlike the cities work, this does not require too much staff on our part.

We lost the opportunity to scale up the ground breaking pilots we conceived in waste, LED street lighting, building retrofits, climate positive development and electric vehicles when we had to turn over the CCI cities program to the Bloomberg Foundation. Fortunately, we do not have to end our role in the solar parks. This will take up about $200 thousand of our $975 thousand budget this year.

Ira

Solar giant turns the desert green (and blue) in Gujarat By Robin Pagnamenta, 23 April 2012

Asia's mightiest solar power farm has been switched on in the Indian desert state of Gujarat. It is part of a drive to transform the region into one of the world's leading green energy producers and to provide electricity to some of the 400 million people who still have no access to it.

The Gujarat Solar Park, which spans a remote 3,000 acres near the border with Pakistan, started generating 214 megawatts of electricity, sufficient to power 90,000 British households, over the weekend. The huge array of solar panels outstrips China's 200MW Golmud Solar Park as the biggest in Asia. An official said that eventually the facility would reach a capacity of 1,000MW, bigger than any other single existing solar power plant in the world.

India, which is heavily dependent on imported coal, oil and gas for its energy requirements, is still chronically short of electricity and is aiming to build 20,000 megawatts of solar capacity by 2020.

Alan Rosling, chairman of Kiran Energy, one of about 20 developers involved in the project, said that Gujarat was following a unique development model for the solar farm, which was first conceived by the US-based Clinton Foundation.

Rather than a single developer, the Gujarat Solar Park is owned by the government. It has leased out tracts of land plus access to common services – including a grid connection, 24 hour security, access to water and new roads – to a variety of solar developers, who will then pay an annual rent to use the facility.

Dr. Horst J. Kayser, chief executive of AEG Power Solutions, a German company which opened a plant in Bangalore to manufacture solar panels for the park and other Indian projects, said: "Such multi-user model parks are going to be replicated in the future due to the sheer fact that this develops the overall infrastructure and the living standards of these areas."

About $600 million has already been ploughed into the Gujarat Solar Park by foreign companies including Germany's Bosch, Japan's Sharp and America's First Solar as well as Indian groups like Tata.

The government of Gujarat has also pledged to purchase the electricity generated from the site at a fixed cost, to ensure developers can be confident of future returns. "In India, there are a lot of issues around land security and ownership as well as getting the right permits so this is really a very attractive model," said Mr Rosling.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The Gujarat Solar Park now represents more than 25 per cent of India's total installed solar capacity of 840 megawatts across the country.

Gujarat is already developing a second solar power park 60km away on the same multi-user principle at another location, which is being developed with the assistance of the Asian Development Bank. The organization has pledged funding of $500 million.

"Gujarat is clearly the solar capital of India," said Mr Rosling, whose company has leased a 150 acre plot on the site.

Dr Horst said India was a highly attractive market for solar, because its economy is growing at 7 per cent and there is huge unmet demand for power across the country. India's "abundant irradiation" - sunshine - makes solar power a good commercial proposition, especially with the falling cost of solar technologies, he added.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	sara@lathamgroup.co.uk "Sara Latham" <saralatham@me.com>
Date:	5/10/2015 11:09:43 PM
Subject:	Heathrow Hell

In a crazy line at immigration. I think I might just clean up here and head directly to the first meeting. I'm probably another hourin the immigration line. Do you have the address of the law office we are meeting at?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Scott Lilly" <slilly@americanprogress.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	1/4/2008 10:36:04 AM
Subject:	Portland

You mentioned about month ago that you might know some contacts in Portland that Brendan might talk with about finding a job out. Do you recall who they are?

Sent from my BlackBerry Wireless Device

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Harwood, John \(NBCUniversal\)" <John.Harwood@nbcuni.com>
To:	John.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	3/10/2015 5:37:19 PM
Subject:	What did you think of HRC presser today?

John Harwood
CNBC/NYT
202 669 0751

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
To:	"Wendy Clark" <hellowendyclark@me.com>
Date:	3/22/2015 9:42:25 AM
Subject:	Thursday Time

Wendy/John

To do the branding preview on Thurs in DC, I can do 10am or 2pm - do either work for you all.

cdm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Danielle Crutchfield" <Danielle.Crutchfield@ptt.gov>
To:	"Danielle Crutchfield" <Danielle.Crutchfield@ptt.gov>
Date:	1/4/2009 11:35:59 AM
Subject:	MONDAY Schedule for President Elect Barack Obama
Attachments:	Dec 5 - DC public.doc

FINAL
Schedule for President Elect Barack Obama
Monday, January 5, 2009
Washington, DC
Reggie Love 469-328-9072 and Marvin Nicholson 202-579-0158 will be traveling with PE

AM NO SCHEDULE

10:40 – 10:55 am EN ROUTE CAPITOL HILL (HOUSE SIDE)
Lead: Ruemmler
Limo: PE, Reggie
Staff: Marvin, Arun, Alex
Press 1: Tubman

11:00 – 11:30 am MEETING WITH SPEAKER NANCY PELOSI
Attire: Business
Location: Speaker Nancy Pelosi's office
Staff: Rahm, Schiliro, Dan Turton
Site: Kenny Thompson
Set-up: One on one meeting
PRESS: CLOSED

11:35 – 11:45 pm EN ROUTE PTT HQ
Lead: Ruemmler
Limo: PE, Reggie, Rahm, Gibbs
Staff: Marvin, Schiliro, Alex, Arun
Press 1: Tubman

11:50 – 12:15 pm PDB

12:20 – 12:40 pm LUNCH

12:45 – 2:15 pm EMERGENCY ECONOMIC MEETING
Attire: Business
Location: PTT
Room: 8037
Attendees: 10 attendees seated at the table
Call time: 12:15 pm
Site: Chase Cushman
Set-up: Long executive style wood table. 10 chairs seated around the table with flags on sticks behind the table. Water glasses and note pads on the table
Seating order Rahm Emanuel / Tim Geithner / PE / Christina Romer /Melody Barnes (facing press)
Carol Browner / Peter Orszag / Lawrence Summers /Senator Tom Daschle / Ron Klain (backs to press)
On stage with: n/a
Sound/Podium: boom mics
Remarks: briefing only
Briefing: Marne Levine
Teleprompter: NO
PRESS: CLOSED, Pool spray at the end of the meeting
Press Staff: Robert Gibbs
Format:
-Meeting starts
-Attendees not seated at the table exit room
-Press proceeds in room
-PE makes brief statement
-PE takes brief Q&A from the press
-Meeting concludes

2:20 – 2:30 pm EN ROUTE CAPITOL HILL
Lead: Michael Ruemmler
Limo: PE, Schiliro, Rahm, Reggie
Staff: Marvin, Gibbs, Klain, Alex, Arun
Press 1: Tubman

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

2:35 – 3:10 pm MEETING WITH SENATE MAJORITY LEADER HARRY REID AND VPE
Attire: Business
Location: Sen. Reid's Leadership office
Room: S-221
Site: Kenny Thompson
Set-up: One on one meeting
PRESS: CLOSED

3:15 - 4:00 pm BIPARTISAN MEETING
Attire: Business
Location: The Capitol
Room: LBJ Room S-211
Attendees: VPE, Hoyer, Clyburn, Boehner, Cantor, Reid, Durbin, McConnell and Kyl
Staff: Schiliro, Rahm (each member will have 1 staff member present), and Shawn Maher
Call time: 3:00 pm
Site: Kenny Thompson
Set-up: Large conference table with Chairs on the side of the room for staff. There will be flags on sticks behind the table
Seating order: (Note: Order is clockwise around the table from left to right)
1.House Minority Leader John Boehner
2.House Speaker Nancy Pelosi
3.President-elect Barack Obama
4.Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid
5.Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell
6.Senate Assistant Majority Leader Dick Durbin
7.Senate Minority Whip Jon Kyl
8.Vice President-elect Joe Biden
9.House Minority Whip Eric Cantor
10.House Majority Whip Jim Clyburn
11.House Majority Leader Steny Hoyer
Remarks:Briefing only
PRESS:CLOSED; Pool spray at the top and statements after meeting at stake out, no Q&A (NO PE for statement)
Press Staff:Robert Gibbs
Format:
-Press is pre-set inside the room
-members, PE and VPE enter the room and take their seats
-Pool spray starts, no audio only visual
-Press exits the room and meeting begins
-Meeting concludes and YOU depart

4:00 - 4:15 pm EN ROUTE RESIDENCE
Lead: Michael Ruemmler
Limo: PE, Reggie
Staff:Marvin, Gibbs, Arun, Alex

4:15 – 9:15 pm NO SCHEDULE

9:15 pm DAILY TEAM CALL

RON WASHINGTON DC

Danielle M. Crutchfield
Presidential Transition Team
Cell: 202-510-8828
danielle.crutchfield@ptt.gov

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "ABA CLE - Section of State and Local Government" <cle@americanbar.org>
To: "John D Podesta" <podesta@LAW.GEORGETOWN.EDU>
Date: 10/8/2015 7:00:00 AM
Subject: Bullying in School: Issues and Strategies

Trouble viewing? View online version .

Bullying in School: Issues and Strategies

New CLE Webinar!

Bullying in School: Issues and Strategies

Monday, October 26, 2015
1:00 PM - 2:30 PM ET
Webinar

CLE credits requested	1.50 General CLE Credit Hours
List price	$195
ABA Member price	$150
Sponsor Member price	$95

Sponsor(s):
Section of State and Local Government
Section of Civil Rights and Social Justice
Commission on Sexual Orientation and Gender Identity

National Bullying Prevention month is a time become aware of educate yourself on ways to prevent school bullying and its devastating effects on schools and their communities. Join our panel as they cover:

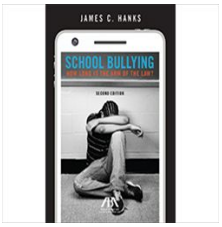
- Regulation of off-campus use of social media
- Constitutionally appropriate investigations and effective disciplinary responses
- Strategies for deterrence and remediation including restorative justice and peer-to-peer mediation

Learn more

Faculty

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Mary Kay Klimesh | Partner |Seyfarth Shaw LLP | Chicago, IL
Merry C. Rhoades | Partner | Tueth Keeney, et. al., P.C. | Edwardsville, IL
Angela Richardson-Bryant | Adjunct Faculty | IIT Stuart School of Business | Chicago, IL



Moderator
James C. Hanks | Shareholder | Ahlers & Cooney, P.C. | Des Moines, IA

Too Busy to Attend?

Pre-Purchase the recording of the program now.
CD-ROM

Pre-purchase

Also from the ABA

LEARN MORE

School Bullying: How Long is the Arm of the Law? Second Edition
Book/E-Book

LEARN MORE

ABA Value Pass
Yearlong Access to CLE

LEARN MORE

School Bullying: How Long is the Arm of the Law
Book/E-Book

Like
Exclusive Content
Member Benefits

Follow
ABA News
Promotions

Connect
Professional Development
Practice Management

Shop
ShopABA.org
Books, CLE and more

This message was sent to podesta@law.georgetown.edu .
Your e-mail address will only be used within the ABA. We do not sell or rent e-mail addresses.

Update your profile | Manage your email preferences | Unsubscribe | Privacy Policy | Contact Us

American Bar Association |
321 N Clark, Chicago, IL 60654-7598 |
800-285-2221 | 312-988-5522

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Steve Smith" <Ssmith@aflcio.org>
To:	bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date:	7/9/2008 6:06:37 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] AFL-CIO launches ad featuring union veteran

The AFL-CIO will launch an ad tomorrow in six states featuring union Vietnam veteran Jim Wasser. The ad launch coincides with the formation of the AFL-CIO national Union Veterans Council, which will work to engage and mobilize union veterans around economic issues. See Cillizza's story below:

Link to story and ad:
http://blog.washingtonpost.com/thefix/2008/07/aflcio_goes_after_mccain_in_ba.html

AFL-CIO Goes After McCain in Battleground States
The AFL-CIO is preparing to launch television ads in six battleground states tomorrow that take direct aim at separating John McCain 's military service from his service and record in the U.S. Senate.

"Every vet respects John McCain's war record," says Jim Wasser, a Navy combat Vietnam veteran. "It's his record in the Senate that I have a problem with."

Wasser goes on to detail McCain's support for spending $10 billion a month in Iraq "just like Bush" and adds that McCain sided with the president "against increasing health benefits for veterans." As Wasser utters those words, a picture of a person who lost both legs is shown -- a controversial image sure to draw criticism from some Republicans who will claim the AFL is seeking to politicize the conflict.

"People should let John McCain know," Wasser says at the ad's end. "His agenda is not what we need. Not now."

The commercials, which will hit the airwaves tomorrow to coincide with the launch of the AFL-CIO Veterans Council -- a group designed to communicate with the more than two million union vets and those currently serving in the military.

"Our nation's veterans deserve much better than the failed Bush economy has given them," AFL-CIO President John Sweeney said of the new ads. "With the formation of the AFL-CIO Union Veterans Council, veterans will be front and center in the effort to put our country back on track."

The ads, which were produced by the Democratic media firm Laguens Kully Klose, will run on broadcast stations in Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Wisconsin for the next three weeks. The AFL-CIO would not disclose the exact amount being spent on the buy, only that it was a "significant targeted buy."

A major television ad buy represents something of a strategic change of pace for the AFL-CIO, which over the last decade has focused much more on building their member to member contact operation than on running national television ads.

But, with 2006 clearly an election decided on national issues and 2008 seemingly headed in that direction as well, it appears as though the AFL-CIO has decided to re-invest in television ads aimed at reaching a broader audience.

Steve Smith
AFL-CIO
815 16th St., NW
Washington, DC 20006
202-637-5142 (office)
202-412-4440 (cell)

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jesse Ferguson" <jesse@jesseferguson.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com "Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com> "Huma Abedin" <huma@hrcoffice.com> "Marlon Marshall" <marlondmarshall@gmail.com> "Amanda Renteria" <amandarenteria@gmail.com> "Jennifer Palmieri" <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com> "Kristina Schake" <kristinakschake@gmail.com> "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com> "Karen Finney" <finneyk8@yahoo.com> "Jim Margolis" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com> "Joel Benenson" <jbenenson@bsgco.com> "John Anzalone" <john@algpolling.com> "Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com>
Date:	4/9/2015 8:50:49 AM
Subject:	Event Memo - Benensons OTR.docx
Attachments:	Event Memo - Benensons OTR.docx

All – attached is the event information for tomorrow (Friday) night at Joel's in NYC. It includes the latest RSVP list. Might change slightly by tomorrow night but won't change dramatically.

Hope it's helpful.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 5/5/2015 1:44:35 PM
Subject: Re: May 14/15

Great idea. I'll check with Dean.

On May 5, 2015, at 8:23 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

Can you ck in with the Dean and see if we can alter the flow so I go right on at say 12:35 and we talk over lunch and I get out at 1:10 so I can make the 2:00.

On May 5, 2015 6:51 PM, "Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com > wrote:

John, here are more details regarding the finance meeting on the 14th and how it meshes with the Georgetown Law event. We also included Friday for your reference so you could make some decisions about whether it's worth it to go up on Thursday and stay over for a portion of Friday morning. See below, and let us know what questions and concerns you have. Offline for dinner from 8-9 pm EDT (7-8 pm your time) but free after that.

200 Hillstarters gathering in Brooklyn
Timing: 2:00-6:00 PM (HRC from 2-5 pm, most likely, with evening reception 5-6 pm -- finance staff is pretty confident that the reception will go long, as late as 7 pm, but HRC is not scheduled to attend that. And, of course, we've been warned the entire timeline could change if HRC's calendar dictates it.)
Location: In Brooklyn: Liberty Warehouse: 260 Conover St, Brooklyn, NY 11231

Here is the tick-tock for the Georgetown event. They are expecting you to stay until 1:50 pm. Below that is your flight option:

12:00 PM – Guests arrive and head to the alumni reception on the outdoor patio (Astor Terrace), located through the Salon.
*Reception will be held inside the Salon in the case of inclement weather.
12:35 PM – Alumni and Guests are seated for the luncheon. Salads are pre-set.
12:40 PM – Dean Treanor welcomes alumni to the St. Regis and on behalf of Georgetown Law, thanks them for attending, and advises them that lunch will be served and then he will return to the mic to give an update on the Law Center and introduce John Podesta toward dessert.
1:15 – 1:20 PM – Dean Treanor makes remarks about the Law Center, introduces John Podesta (L'76), and invites John to join him on the stage.
1:20 - 1:40 PM – Conversation between the Dean and John Podesta.
1:40 – 1:50 PM – Questions from the guests.
1:50 PM – Dean Treanor thanks Mr. Podesta, gives him a small token of appreciation, and close the lunch.
2:00 PM – Alumni and guests depart from the St. Regis.

1 Flight option that allows your participation in both Georgetown & the evening reception portion of the Finance Meeting in Brooklyn (5-6 pm):

3:00pm-4:24pm
DCA - LGA
Delta 2720
This is the only option that works with Georgetown and the reception.

If you decide to go up and stay in New York and stay overnight, Dennis had something in mind for the next day, if this makes it worth your while to go: "All of our regional fundraisers are flying in for the summit on the 14th and then we are doing a team meeting with them on Friday, May 15 during the morning/day. Would be great if JP could stop by for 15 mins - most likely at HQ."

We had planned on you being in DC for the 15th to:

- meet with the Equitable Growth team
- have dinner with Antonio Weiss
- just in case we needed to do anything physically on the Georgetown grades (which are due at Noon), but grades and WCEG can be done over the phone.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Amtrak Options to return on Friday 5/15:
-2 pm Acela (gets into WAS at 4:53 pm)
or
-2:02 pm Northeast regional (gets into WAS at 5:20 pm)

Both allow you enough time to get out of the NY tunnels to get on the call with Equitable Growth:

3 - 4 pm: (Call if you're on the train back from NY / Meeting if you decide to stay in DC)
Equitable Growth team: May 26th Pre-Meeting
Background materials? Yes--and they want your thoughts on them. Docs will be ready this Friday 5/8 and Eryn will bring them to your house on Sunday morning 5/10 (along with the London briefing and anything else you need).

Then finally, dinner with Antoniou (Time tbd--he's totally flexible and even says push to a different date if it's too hard). He just wrote today to say Susannah (his wife) would love to come too if Mary will be joining, and especially if at Brandywine. Otherwise, could just meet somewhere downtown.

There you go! That's what the 14th and 15th look like. Milia and Eryn are available this evening to discuss on the phone if you have questions or want to tweak any part of this.

--
Eryn M. Sepp
Cell: 818-456-2881

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "t r u t h o u t" <messenger@truthout.org>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 10/3/2014 7:13:06 AM
Subject: Carbon Capture and Clean Coal: Obama's Multibillion-Dollar Climate Pipedream

View Recent Newsletters

Tell a friend about Truthout!

Friday, 3 October 2014

truthout

Donate Today!

Truthout is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization; donations are tax deductible.

Carbon Capture and Clean Coal: Obama's Multibillion-Dollar Climate Pipedream

Mike Ludwig, Truthout: Trapping carbon dioxide from burning coal and using it to extract more fossil fuels may seem like a counterintuitive approach to addressing climate change, but that's exactly what the Obama administration hopes the industry will do.

Read the Article

William Rivers Pitt | An Open Letter to My Democratic Spammer

William Rivers Pitt, Truthout: "Come November, if the Democrats wind up flopping and flailing for an explanation as to why they got routed at the polls, let me offer a succinct reply: You stand for nothing. You are the Washington Generals to the Harlem Globetrotters."

Read the Article

Public Infrastructure, Private Investment? Whose Hands Are in Whose Pockets?

Ellen Dannin, Truthout: In reading the US Treasury Department's glowing new report on public-private partnerships, prescription sunglasses should be worn to separate truth from fiction.

Read the Article

Unemployment Rate Falls to 5.9 Percent in September, as Economy Adds 248,000 Jobs

Dean Baker, Center for Economic and Policy Research: The unemployment rate in September fell by 0.2 percentage points to 5.9 percent. This is the first time it has been below 6.0 percent since July 2008. There has been no acceleration in wage growth even as the unemployment rate has fallen.

Read the Article

The People's Climate March Is Over: What Now?

Joseph Boutilier, Truthout: Here are eight reasons to be hopeful for climate action post-New York, and eight ways to stay active in movements that impact

BuzzFlash

Stanford Scientists Link Drought in California to Global Warming

Mark Karlin, BuzzFlash at Truthout: Climate change is indeed starting to get personal.

Read the BuzzFlash Commentary

Charles P. Pierce | The Country Simply Can't Go On Like This

Read the Article at Esquire

Poisoned Fracking Playgrounds a Threat to Texas Kids

Read the Article at BuzzFlash

Here's Everything Wrong With the White House's

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

climate justice.
Read the Article

How Often Do Rape Kits Go Unprocessed?

Emily Homrok, Truthout: When the processing of rape kits proves not to be a police priority, is it surprising that victims feel they - and their violation - are somehow not important?
Read the Article

We're All in This Together

Tiffany Williams, OtherWords: Realizing how much they have in common, low-wage workers from a variety of industries are joining together to demand a living wage, bringing many consumers along with them.
Read the Article

Generation '97 Drives Struggle for Identity and Fairness in Hong Kong

Yoichi Shimatsu, New America Media: The leadership and activist numbers are coming from Generation '97: young people born during the 1997 handover of the then-British Crown colony to Chinese sovereignty. These youngsters, most still in high school, are finding themselves at the forefront of a populist struggle for electoral rights.
Read the Article

Why the Surge in Islamic State Recruitment?

Lizabeth Paulat, Care2: Recruitment has soared within ISIS since the US-led coalition began its bombing campaign in the region. Although it seems incomprehensible to most as to why someone would want to join the Islamic State, there is one thing they all seem to have in common.
Read the Article

Koch-Backed Small Business Group Endorses Walker

Brendan Fischer, PR Watch: The National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB) has endorsed Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker for re-election. The NFIB purports to represent small business, but receives much of its funding from big business interests including the Kochs, the far-right Bradley Foundation and Karl Rove's Crossroads GPS.
Read the Article

White House's War on the Islamic State

Read the Article at The Nation

Judge Rejects White House Plea to Keep Guantanamo Force-Feeding Hearings Secret

Read the Article at The Guardian

David Swanson | The New War, the Forever War and a World Beyond War

Read the Article at World Beyond War

Budget Cuts "Eroded Our Ability to Respond" to Ebola, Says Top Health Official

Read the Article at Mother Jones

It's Illegal to Hold a Rally in Thailand, but Students Did It Anyway to Support Hong Kong's Protesters

Read the Article at Global Voices

The CIA/MSM Contra-Cocaine Cover-Up

Robert Parry, Consortium News: With Hollywood set to release a movie about the Contra-cocaine scandal and the destruction of journalist Gary Webb, an internal CIA report has surfaced showing how the spy agency manipulated the mainstream media's coverage to disparage Webb and contain the scandal.
Read the Article

Scottish Vote Gives UK a Chance to Repair Itself - but It's a Big Job

Eunice Goes, The Conversation: For years, Westminster politicians justified their neglect of constitutional issues by saying there are no votes in the

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Constitution. But David Cameron's statement in the wake of Scotland's "No" vote suggests that this rather condescending view is about to change.

Read the Article

Support Truthout with a tax-deductible donation

Please add messenger@truthout.org to ensure you receive our messages

Truthout is a proud member of the New spaper Guild/CWA, Local 36047

Subscribe | Unsubscribe

Privacy Policy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Amanda Renteria" <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	4/18/2015 4:31:01 AM
Subject:	Re: Senate Caucus

Marlon and I just talked about this. We were going to take some of the slides from the finance presentation and use those.

Sent from my iPhone

> On Apr 18, 2015, at 11:28 AM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> Are we presenting there on Tues?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sandler, Herbert" <hms@sandlerfoundation.org>
To:	"Sandler, Susan" <ses@sandlerfoundation.org>
	"Sandler, Jim" <james@sandlerfoundation.org>
	"Daetz, Steve" <sdaetz@sandlerfoundation.org>
Date:	2/18/2015 9:06:57 PM
Subject:	Clinton foundation's global network overlaps with fami ly's political base - The Washington Post

Ugh!

http://www.washingtonpost.com/politics/clintons-raised-nearly-2-billion-for-foundation-since-2001/2015/02/18/b8425d88-a7cd-11e4-a7c2-03d37af98440_story.html?hpid=z3

Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	terryllierman@gmail.com
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/5/2016 10:02:56 AM
Subject:	Having bkfst Sunday with

Secretary Sebelius. & Harkin. Need me to say or do anything with them?

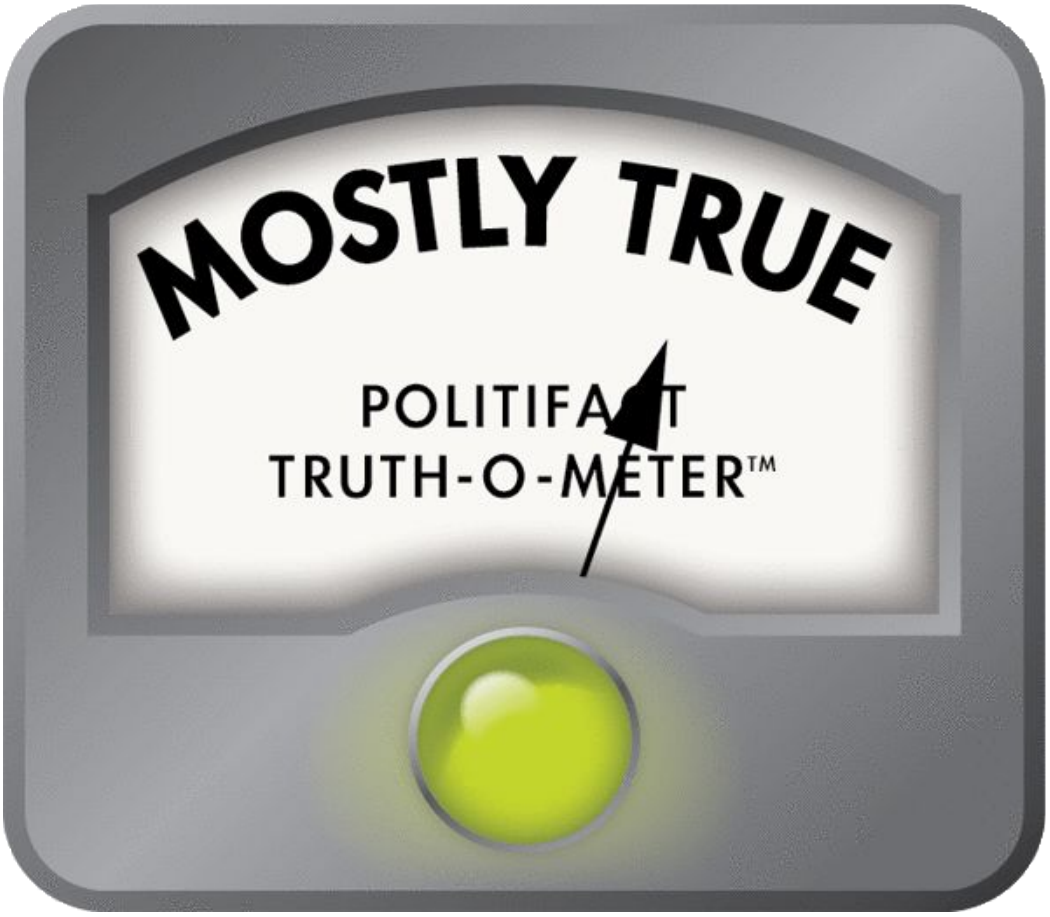
Terry Lierman
Cell 301-787-2926

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Aniello Alioto" <aniello@progressnow.org>
To:	bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date:	5/11/2011 2:47:04 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] OWN/IOW's 2/3 of WI Corps Pay No State Income Tax: "Mostly True"

Good meme to hammer re: WI... Walker & corporations v. citizens of WI...

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Scot Ross <scotross614@gmail.com >
Date: Wed, May 11, 2011 at 9:42 AM
Subject: OWN/IOW's 2/3 of WI Corps Pay No State Income Tax: "Mostly True"
To:



OWN's 501c3 partner, the Institute for One Wisconsin, completed a comprehensive 20-page report in April called "We're Not Broke..." PolitiFact took on one of our central facts.

http://www.politifact.com/wisconsin/statements/2011/may/11/one-wisconsin-now/one-wisconsin-now-says-two-thirds-wisconsin-corpor/

"Two-thirds of Wisconsin corporations don't pay state income taxes."

One Wisconsin Now on Monday, April 18th, 2011 in a news release and report

One Wisconsin Now says two-thirds of Wisconsin corporations don’t pay state income taxes

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Share this story:

Wisconsin Gov. Scott Walker's push for major cuts in education funding and state employee compensation rests on his claim of a fiscal emergency he traces mainly to government overspending.

But Democrats and liberal groups say skewed tax policies favoring the wealthy and business at the expense of the middle class are big factors in the state's budget shortfalls.

Efforts to make that case have often centered on this phrase: "Two-thirds of Wisconsin corporations don't pay state income taxes."

The liberal advocacy group One Wisconsin Now -- through its affiliated research arm, Institute for One Wisconsin -- has been part of the effort to get that phrase before the public .

The institute's April report , "We're Not Broke," called that two-thirds number "shocking," arguing it was evidence that businesses here don't pay their fair share because of tax loopholes, credits and Wisconsin's below-average corporate tax rates.

With Walker advocating repealing the corporate income tax altogether, we thought it was time to get to the bottom of this claim.

When asked to back up the claim, Scot Ross, executive director of both One Wisconsin groups, pointed to a 2011 Department of Revenue report and an analysis of corporate taxation by the nonpartisan Legislative Fiscal Bureau. Both use 2007 data, which state officials say was the latest and best available as of early 2011.

A quick word about the numbers: The universe we are dealing with is corporate income taxes paid by regular "C" corporations at the 7.9% corporate rate -- one of the largest sources of state tax revenue.

The Revenue Department study intentionally excludes "S" corporations and limited liability companies that pass through income to multiple owners or partners. They are taxed at lower rates under the *personal i*ncome tax system, rather than corporate.

Officials at both agencies report this: Of 52,497 corporate returns, 17,564 had a tax liability totaling almost $703 million.

By our math, that's 66.5 percent of the corporations with no liability -- the two-thirds in the claim.

We wondered if this was a one-year spike.

It's not.

Revenue Department officials ran a special report for us . It showed the same 66% figure with little variation in 2004, '05, '06 and '07.

They threw in a bonus year, 2008 -- and the share of corporations that didn't have any tax liability jumped to 69 percent in that year. (The 2008 data was not available when the Institute for One Wisconsin did its report).

In fact, the two-thirds mirrors things at the federal level.

The Government Accountability Office reported that at least 60 percent of all U.S. companies -- including many small ones -- reported no federal income-tax liability from 1998 to 2005, according to a Wall Street Journal article from 2008.

How can it be that at least two out of three corporations pay no tax? Part of the answer lies in the same Revenue Department table.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Very close to two-thirds of those 52,497 Wisconsin corporate filers reported zero net income or a net loss in 2007 -- leaving them with no tax liability.

"Just because some corporations are large and profitable, it does not follow all corporations are large and profitable," said John Koskinen, chief economist in the state Department of Revenue. "Most corporations are very small with little or no profit."

The president of Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, a research organization, put it this way:

"It's worth stating the obvious -- if a company is making no money after expenses, it will not pay taxes," said Todd Berry. "Depreciation is such an expense (deduction) -- and one that is generally accepted."

Additionally, some companies are inactive in a given year, noted Stephanie Marquis, spokeswoman for the state Department of Revenue.

A significant number of individuals -- as opposed to corporations -- also do not have a tax liability. Some 31% did not owe income taxes, according to a 2009 revenue department figures. But that understates the number who didn't owe taxes, possibly by a large amount, because households with low incomes do not have to file, according to our calculations based on census data.

We asked Ross, among those who have cited the number, why he called it "shocking" that firms with no net income would not pay taxes.

Ross pointed to the multitude of tax credits and deductions. When used, they can take a profitable firm and reduce its bottom line to zero for tax purposes.

The state revenue report confirms the phenomena: A small number of corporations had net income, but still didn't owe any state income taxes.

In total, 390 profitable firms that paid no state income tax claimed enough in tax credits that reduced their tax liability to zero, the Revenue Department report notes. So that means tax credits allowed 2% of firms with net income to avoid taxes.

But that's just a slice of how many firms got tax preferences to reduce their corporate income taxes.

In addition to the dozen or more tax credits for corporations, state records list more than 20 other breaks in the form of deductions, exclusions and special treatment, a state report shows.

The total tax break for all the preferences was more than $254 million in 2008, according to that Revenue Department report.

So it's clear that tax breaks can have a big impact on corporate tax collections, which in Wisconsin rate in the middle of the pack or lower nationally, a Journal Sentinel investigation found in 2010.

Proponents of business tax breaks say it's important to give incentives for business expansion and improvement. Critics say their pro-business impact is unclear.

Despite the controversy over the whole issue, no comprehensive study exists to quantify why firms report no net income. State officials say that would require an individual review of tens of thousands of tax returns.

Finally, it's worth noting two developments that limit the usefulness of the state's data in drawing conclusions about the business tax climate.

No. 1: It's common now for start-up businesses to form as partnerships instead of "C" corporations. So part the picture is missing, because the state does not pull out tax-payment data on these firms, many of which are small. State revenue officials still say their data on "C" corporations is worthwhile, given the large dollars at stake.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

No. 2: A relatively new change called "combined reporting" could increase corporate tax revenue collections in the years ahead. No data is yet available on that, however.

What's the bottom line?

The liberal Institute for One Wisconsin used state data to assert that two-thirds of Wisconsin corporations pay no state income taxes. The two-thirds number is solid, the trend is long-term and it is reflected by federal tax data as well.

For some corporations, tax breaks reduce the bottom line to zero in tax liability. But the group failed to note that some share of those non-paying businesses simply don't make enough to pay taxes. We can't say how significant that detail is because the data doesn't exist.

On the Truth-O-Meter that rates as Mostly True.

--
Aniello Alioto
National Political Director
Aniello@ProgressNow.org
o: 202.756.4109
c: 502.664.2420

AZ: Arizona Progress
CA: Courage Campaign
CO: ProgressNow Colorado
FL: Progress Florida
MI: Progress Michigan
MN: Alliance for a Better Minnesota (ABM)
NE: Bold Nebraska
NH: Granite State Progress
NM: Progress New Mexico
NV: ProgressNow Nevada
OH: ProgressOhio
PA: Keystone Progress
TX: Progress Texas
WA: Fuse Washington
WI: One Wisconsin Now (OWN)

Twitter: @ProgressNow
Facebook: ProgressNow

www.ProgressNow.org

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Paul Rothstein" <rothstei@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	"Naomi Mezey" <mezeyn@law.georgetown.edu> "Law Faculty and Visitors" <LawFacultyandVisitors@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	1/26/2016 12:06:46 PM
Subject:	RE: Some thoughts on using Zoom

Thanks much, Naomi. Helpful. I ran several small test runs Sunday and Monday with a few students who volunteered, preparatory to using Zoom later today in my large Evidence class. I found I was able to get a list of who participated in the meetings, after I closed the sessions. Can't recall exactly what I did to get the names, but it is there somewhere.

Paul

Paul Rothstein
Professor of Law
Georgetown University Law Center
"Law never is, but is always about to be."---Justice Benjamin Cardozo

---

From: Naomi Mezey
Sent: Tuesday, January 26, 2016 10:11 AM
To: Law Faculty and Visitors
Subject: Some thoughts on using Zoom

Hi Everyone,

Nan Hunter and I used Zoom for the first time yesterday to teach our class and I thought I would share what worked well and what didn't in case this is helpful for others. We were both co-hosts and we had 25 students participating. Based on that experience, my sense was that Zoom works surprisingly well for smaller discussions or large lecture-based classes. I think it would be too clunky to really do a large socratic-style class with lots of back and forth among many participants. To my 20th century mind it does not compare to the in-class experience, but it is a fairly effective back up plan for snow days.

(1) Before you teach, be sure to do a test meeting with someone from IST. They have done a great job making themselves available and it was enormously helpful.
(2) It takes a little time, but I think it is worth doing a quick roll call at the start of the class to confirm which students are present. You can see up to about 20 video feeds (with names) on your screen at once and you can scroll through to see the others, but some students (who have technical or audio problems) will use the telephone to call in and you will only see their telephone number. There is not a record of participants afterward.
(3) Ask your students to mute themselves when they are not speaking to eliminate ambient noise.
(4) You can ask your students to use the "Raise Hand" function to ask or answer questions—it works pretty well and allows to see who wants to participate.
(5) You can use power point with Zoom, which I thought was helpful for keeping everyone visually focused on content, but when you do that the video feeds scroll down the side of your screen and you can see many fewer students at one time. Also, when Nan had the power point open she could not manage participants (to see raised hands or mute people). As co-host I could do that, but that effectively required two people. So combining Zoom with power point has some costs.
(6) Kick everyone in your household off the internet before you begin! I had some problems with connectivity at a couple points.

If others who have tried Zoom have insights or suggestions, please share. Particularly welcome would be ideas for how to structure or design a class to make the most of Zoom.

Happy Zooming, Naomi

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Naomi Jewel Mezey
Associate Dean for J.D. Programs
Georgetown Law
600 New Jersey Ave. NW
Washington D.C. 20001
202-662-9854

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Mary Podesta" <podesta.mary@gmail.com>
Date:	6/21/2015 7:55:16 AM
Subject:	What are your plans

Did you survive rain?

Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Girardeau Spann" <spann@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	"All Faculty and Staff" <AllFacultyandStaff@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	7/14/2015 3:01:22 PM
Subject:	Marriott Email Scam

I just received an email from Marriott Rewards asking me to update my phone number and email address as part of a security upgrade. The email looked genuine, but I was nevertheless suspicious enough to call Marriott to ask if it was legitimate. They told me that it was not. So if you get such an email, I would advise against clicking anything.

Gerry Spann

Girardeau A Spann
James and Catherine Denny Professor of Law
Georgetown University Law Center
600 New Jersey Ave, NW
Washington, DC 20001-2075
Phone: 202-662-9103
Fax: 202-662-9495
Email: spann@law.georgetown.edu

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nancy Pelosi" <info@cheribustos.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	10/11/2012 9:09:51 AM
Subject:	this is important

John,

People ask me all the time if we are going to win back the Majority. My answer is yes! But we can't do it without your immediate help.

We only need 25 seats to win and my friend, Cheri Bustos has a great chance in Illinois.

But, in order for Cheri to win, she needs your urgent help today. Tomorrow marks 25 days till Election Day and one of the biggest advertising decision deadlines we will have this cycle.

Final budgeting decisions are being made now.

Please contribute now and help them so they can expand their advertising buy and have more voters see their ads. It's that simple - every dollar that comes in goes right back out to fund more ads on television.

She needs to go toe-to-toe with GOP Super PACs who are attacking her.

If we want to win this November, we have to go all in.

Thank you for helping Cheri - she will be a great addition to Congress.

Now, let's win this.

On to Victory,

Nancy

Paid for by Friends of Cheri Bustos

P.O. Box 77
East Moline, IL 61244

send to a friend

TO UNSUBSCRIBE FROM THIS MAILING LIST, CLICK Þ#HERE
POWERED BY Þ$NGP VAN, INC.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Harwood, John \(NBCUniversal\)" <John.Harwood@nbcuni.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 10/21/2015 4:33:04 PM
Subject: Re: Biden

Ha

John Harwood
CNBC/NYT
202 669 0751

On Oct 21, 2015, at 7:29 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> I will never doubt you again.
>
> On Oct 21, 2015 6:05 PM, "Harwood, John (NBCUniversal)" <John.Harwood@nbcuni.com > wrote: >> told you so
>>
>> John Harwood
>> CNBC/NYT
>> 202 669 0751

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tony Podesta" <tpodesta@podesta.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	1/13/2009 10:13:16 AM
Subject:	Harry Reid call

Reid called said he was returning my.
Didn't call, did you

T

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Julius Genachowski" <jg@rock-creek-ventures.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	9/22/2008 2:38:09 AM
Subject:

Time this week for coffee or a meal? I'm on the road tomorrow, but in DC Weds-Friday...

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"George Paine" <georgepaine2@gmail.com>
To:	John.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	2/27/2015 1:23:01 PM
Subject:	Thought in retirement

John - With Netanyahu coming to speak to the House I keep picturing the Rs in Muslim prayer positions in their semi circular seating arrangement bowing before the turbaned Israeli mullah. Is this wrong of me? Keep the faith. - George

--
George C Paine II
3702 Whitland Ave
Nashville TN 37205
Cell 615/300-5587
Home 615/297-0810

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Minyon Moore" <Minyon.Moore@deweysquare.com>
To:	"Roy Spence" <Roy.Spence@gsdm.com> "Jim Kennedy" <jkennedy2006@gmail.com> "Huma Abedin" <Huma@clintonemail.com>
Date:	7/23/2014 6:55:34 PM
Subject:	RE: Hi Clinton People...I know I am kinda young but my Poppie/Granddaddy "Roy" says yall are his best and most loyal friends ever...

So so so adorable.

From: Roy Spence [mailto:Roy.Spence@gsdm.com]
Sent: Wednesday, July 23, 2014 9:16 PM
To: Jim Kennedy; Huma Abedin
Cc: capriciamarshall@gmail.com; preines.hrco@gmail.com; Minyon Moore; mwilliams@griffinwilliams.com; cheryl.mills@gmail.com; Judy Trabulsi; jake.sullivan@gmail.com; john.podesta@gmail.com; mw@griffinwilliams.com; nmerrill.hrco@gmail.com; Roy Spence
Subject: Hi Clinton People...I know I am kinda young but my Poppie/Granddaddy "Roy" says yall are his best and most loyal friends ever...

...And cause of that-ya'll are my best friends...well except Momma and Daddy and Mr. Bear and...well you know...I know I am not a Boomer/Gen x/Millennial/or even Gen z...but I know that Aunt Hillary would Be awesome for all of us grandbabies of those generations-from all parts of America and the world...She like President Mandela and President Washington could be the "Generational President"...not for ya'll generation but those of us who are following...Aunt Hillary has the wisdom to create the new roadmap for us all...dang I am sounding like Poppie. That's it...hope to see you all soon and love and hugs and Ride at Dawn...well my Mom hates that idea...

Charlie Spence Clauer...

Sleep till Dawn

Ps don't get used to this "cursive letter handwriting"...it is so you all...and my hand is cramped totally up...

This e-mail is intended only for the named person or entity to which it is addressed and contains valuable business information that is proprietary, privileged, confidential and/or otherwise protected from disclosure. If you received this email in error, any review, use, dissemination, distribution or copying of this email is strictly prohibited. Please notify us immediately of the error via email to disclaimerinquiries@gsdm.com and please delete the email from your system, retaining no copies in any media. We appreciate your cooperation.
----------gsdm.legal.disclaimer.03242011

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: johnson_lo <johnson_lo@mail2000.com.tw>
To:
Date: 12/11/2008 1:44:55 AM
Subject: 上帝保佑大家平安吉祥
Attachments: 採訪上帝.ppt

Subject: 上帝保佑大家平安吉祥

願　上帝保守各位好友　平安喜樂　身體健康

這方法很棒 ..希望大家都能存在手機裡唷！

ICE概念
In case of emergency
假如發生緊急狀況.....ICE概念( 這封你一定要知道！)

Dear All,

We all carry our mobile phones with hundreds of names/numbers stored in its memory but yet nobody, other than ourselves, knows which of these numbers belong to our near and dear ones?

我們的手機裡儲存著數百通的名字和電話號碼
,但除了我們自己本身外,沒有任何一個人知道這些號碼中的哪一支號碼是屬於我們的
至親好友

In case we are involved in an accident or had a heart attack and the people attending us get hold of our mobile phone but don't know which number to call to inform our family members. Yes, there are many numbers stored but which one is the contact person in case of an emergency?

假如我們身陷在意外中或心臟病發時,
而照料我們的人員要用我們的手機通知我們的家人時,
卻不知要打哪支號碼.
當然,手機中儲存著許多號碼,
但哪一支是緊急聯絡人的號碼呢 ?!

For this reason, we must have one or more telephone numbers stored under the name ICE (In case of Emergency) in our mobile phones.

基於這個理由,

我們必須要有以 ICE (In case of Emergency 假如發生緊急狀況)
為名的一個或更多的電話號碼儲存在我們的手機中
.

Recently, the concept of 'ICE' is catching up quickly. It is simple, an important method of contact during emergency situations. As cell phones are carried by majority of the population, just store the number of a contact person or person who should be contacted at during emergency as ICE' (meaning In Case of Emergency).

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

最近, 'ICE'的概念正快速地蔓延形成.
在緊急狀況時,它是一種簡單又重要的聯絡方式.
既然大多數人都攜帶手機 , 就把
緊急聯絡人的電話號碼用 'ICE '
為代號儲存起來.

The idea was thought up by a paramedic who found that when they went to the scenes of accidents, there were always mobile phones with patients, but they didn't know which number to call.

這的點子是由一位醫務人員想出來的.他發現當他們到意外現場時,往往意外當事人身上都會攜帶手機,
但醫務人員不知道該打哪支號碼通知家屬.

He therefore thought that it would be a good idea if there was a nationally recognized name for this purpose.

因此他想如果在這種情況下,有一個全國性可辨識的名字,這將會是個好點子.

Following a disaster in London , the East Anglican Ambulance Service has launched a national 'In case of Emergency (ICE)' campaign. In an emergency situation, Emergency Service personnel and hospital staff would then be able to quickly contact your next of kin, by simply dialing the number stored as 'ICE'.

倫敦的一件災難後, 東英救護部門便發起一個全國性的
'假如發生緊急狀況(ICE)' 活動.
在緊急狀況下,緊急部門人員及醫院員工,只要撥打以'ICE'
為名儲存的電話號碼,將可以很快速地聯絡上你的至親.

Please forward this. It won't take too many 'forwards' before every body will know about this. It really could save your life, or put a loved one's mind at rest. For more than one contact name simply enter ICE1, ICE2 and ICE3 etc. A great idea that will make a difference!

請將此封 E-MAIL 轉寄出去,
讓更多人知道.它或許真的可以救你
(妳)的命.如果有超過一個以上的 緊急聯絡人
,很簡單地,只要輸入 ICE1, ICE2 和
ICE3...等即可.一個好主意,讓一切將會有所不同!

Let's spread the concept of ICE by storing an ICE number in our mobile phones today! Please forward to your all nearest and dearest. Thanks!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

今日,藉由儲存在我們手機中的一個ICE號碼,讓我們把ICE 概念傳出去!

本通訊及其所有附件所含之資訊均屬機密，僅供指定之收件人使用，未經寄件人許可不得揭露、複製或散布本通訊。若您並非指定之收件人，請勿使用、保存或揭露本通訊之任何部份，並請即通知寄件人並完全刪除本通訊。本通訊僅供參考，且不應視為任何要約、要約之引誘、或締結契約或交易之確認或承諾。寄件人並不保證本通訊內所載數據資料或其他資訊之完整性及正確性，該等資料或資訊並得隨時不經通知而變更。又本通訊之評論或陳述不當然反映國泰人壽保險公司或其關係企業之意見或看法。網路通訊可能含有病毒，收件人應自行確認本郵件是否安全，若因此造成損害，寄件人恕不負責。

The information contained in this communication and attachment is confidential and is for the use of the intended recipient only. Any disclosure, copying or distribution of this communication without the sender's consent is strictly prohibited. If you are not the intended recipient, please notify the sender and delete this communication entirely without using, retaining, or disclosing any of its contents. This communication is for information purposes only and shall not be construed as an offer or solicitation of an offer or an acceptance or a confirmation of any contract or transaction. All data or other information contained herein are not warranted to be complete and accurate and are subject to change without notice. Any comments or statements made herein do not necessarily reflect those of Cathaylife Insurance Co., Ltd. or any of its affiliates. Internet communications cannot be guaranteed to be virus-free. The recipient is responsible for ensuring that this communication is virus free and the sender accepts no liability for any damages caused by virus transmitted by this communication.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nelson W. Cunningham" <ncunningham@maglobal.com>
To:	"Nelson W. Cunningham" <ncunningham@maglobal.com>
Date:	9/12/2014 9:23:50 AM
Subject:	Congressman Scott Peters -- Endorsed by US Chamber of Commerce and Supported by Simpson/Bowles
Attachments:	9.16.14 S Peters Lunch Reception Invite.pdf 9.18.14 S Peters Dinner Invite.pdf 9.19.14 S Peters Coffee Break Invite.pdf

Dear Friends:

Many of you know of my good friendship and great respect for Rep. Scott Peters, who in his first term in Congress representing San Diego. He is a centrist Democrat with experience as a practicing attorney, City Councilman and San Diego Port Commissioner, who has been dedicated to solutions to keep San Diego and the critical border with Mexico economically vibrant.

Well, I am not alone in my admiration. As you can see from the note below from Scott's capable chief of staff, Michelle Dorothy, Scott has received two notable indications of support in recent days:

1) The US Chamber of Commerce has endorsed him over his Tea-Party Republican opponent. This is one of the very few instances where the Chamber has supported a Democrat in a contested race – and as you can imagine this was not done lightly.
2) Alan Simpson and Erskine Bowles wrote an opinion piece in San Diego media supporting Scott's approach to responsible budgeting – after Crossroads GPS cynically attached Scott for supporting this "controversial budget plan," based on the widely-respected Simpson/Bowles plan of 2010.

This will be one of the tightest races in the country, and one where friends like you can make a difference.

In the next week there will be three opportunities to meet Scott and support him:

Tuesday, September 16, Noon-1:00: Lunch reception at Molly Allen Associates (412 First Street SE)

Thursday, September 18, 6: 6:00 Dinner at Rasika (633 D Street NW)

Friday, September 19, 10:30-11:30 Coffee Break at Molly Allen Associates (412 First Street SE)

Details are in the attached invitations – please try to help where it can really make a difference. I am copying Michelle, who will be happy to help with any rsvps or arrangements.

Nelson

From: Michelle Dorothy [mailto:mdorothy@gmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, September 10, 2014 9:49 PM
To: Michelle Dorothy
Subject: 10-Second Scott Peters Race Update

I wanted to flag two items for you.

First, you know that Scott has the guts, integrity, and common sense to make the tough choices to get our debt down and our fiscal house in order. It's being noticed. Last week, Alan Simpson and Erskine Bowles penned an op-ed to highlight Scott's work to reduce our national debt. In short, they said "we need more members of Congress like Peters." I agree!

Second, you probably know that Scott was endorsed last week by the US Chamber of Commerce. Did you also know that Carl DeMaio attacked the Chamber when he heard about the endorsement and that became a story of its own?!? Seriously, the Chamber "threw some major shade" on DeMaio in response. You just gotta read the story .

In a related note, DeMaio attacked the pharmaceutical industry last week, too. Weird.

Michelle
COS, Rep. Scott Peters

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This email is free from viruses and malware because avast! Antivirus protection is active.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	7/7/2015 10:19:34 AM
Subject:	RE: O'Malley on Debt-Free

Happy to.

From: Robby Mook [mailto:re47@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Tuesday, July 7, 2015 5:18 PM
To: Kristina Schake; Jake Sullivan; Jennifer Palmieri; John Podesta
Subject: Fwd: O'Malley on Debt-Free

Can/should we do a quick call to check in on this?
I think we need to get aligned on this.

Begin forwarded message:

> From: "Ann O'Leary" <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com >
> Date: July 7, 2015 at 4:50:11 PM EDT
> To: Mike Vlacich <mvlacich@hillaryclinton.com >
> Cc: Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >, Marlon Marshall <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com >, Harrell Kirstein <hkirstein@hillaryclinton.com >, Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >
> Subject: Re: O'Malley on Debt-Free
>
> +Brian Fallon
>
> We just had a good conversation and I'm feeling better about doing the refi + hitting for profit event as a topper to a townhall where she is hearing from young people hampered in efforts to buy first home, start business, or start family due to debt. We do need to be careful not to bill this as our college affordability plan but we can lay seeds of what needs to be addressed and make clear we'll say more soon.
>
> Big policy speech next week is wage growth/Econ framing and we can have this be more about growth + opportunity for those already in debt.
>
> Brian - Do you want to add anything to my summary?
>
> Also, Mike V - I totally agree they O'Malley is likely to roll something out that NH won't be able to take advantage of - and we should get friends in NH to point that out!!
>
> Ann O'Leary
> Sent from my iPhone
> (510) 717-5518 (cell)
>
> On Jul 7, 2015, at 1:15 PM, Mike Vlacich <mvlacich@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > I am curious what O'Malley's proposal would mean for NH students, will it even help them given our state funding challenges? That is why there was some hesitation in rolling debt free in NH rather than other places.
> >
> > To Robby's point, I do worry about this now. I am worried that HRC will be asked about debt free college in the q and a phase and unless we are planning to propose something in the future that is bolder than Bernie and O'Malley, the story might have people saying they are "disappointed" or that "it falls short".

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

There are ways to work around this. Unsure if its worth having a quick chat or we can hash out over email.

On Tue, Jul 7, 2015 at 3:58 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> This has always been my concern with doing re-fi first. Yes, it will seem small and will be judged as such. How much that matters in the long term, I can't be certain.
> I would really prefer that we do debt issue first before re-fi but I realize we've chosen the current plan based on a number of factors, including how HRC wants to proceed.
>
> On Tue, Jul 7, 2015 at 1:37 PM, Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > My feeling is that as long as we lean into having in place a thoughtful plan for college affordability and starting with helping the 40 million students in debt, it will be ok.
> >
> > But comms/political folks, tell me if my radar is off?
> >
> > On Tue, Jul 7, 2015 at 10:35 AM, Mike Vlacich <mvlacich@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Smaller group and plus Harrell and Kari :
> > >
> > > Does this raise red flags about rolling out our refi plan next week in NH? Would it seem small in comparison?
> > >
> > > If we didn't do refinancing, is there anything else we would have ready to go?
> > >
> > > On Tue, Jul 7, 2015 at 1:29 PM, Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > FYI - I've gotten a few phone calls this morning that O'Malley is going to be announcing his "Debt-Free College" proposal in NH tomorrow. Folks aren't sure of all the details, but looks like he is trying to go big and do entirely debt-free - meaning tuition + cost of attendance.
> > > >
> > > > Please let me know if anyone hears more or press start poking around.
> > > >
> > > > --
> > > > Ann O'Leary
> > > > Senior Policy Advisor
> > > > Hillary for America
> > > > Cell: 510-717-5518
> > >
> > > --
> > > Ann O'Leary
> > > Senior Policy Advisor
> > > Hillary for America
> > > Cell: 510-717-5518

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Glenn Thrush" <gthrush@politico.com>
Date: 4/30/2015 12:50:54 PM
Subject: Re: sorry to bother...

OTR: No problems here

On Apr 30, 2015 3:00 PM, "Glenn Thrush" <gthrush@politico.com > wrote:

> No worries
> Because I have become a hack I will send u the whole section that pertains to u
> Please don't share or tell anyone I did this > Tell me if I fucked up anything
>
> Insiders expressed confidence in Dennis Cheng, the campaign's relatively unknown campaign finance director, whose selection was seen as a signal the campaign was avoiding another mistake of '08: The empowering of celebrity donors who crowded out the younger, more aggressive bundlers who helped power Barack Obama's money machine.
>
> Yet in recent days, as Clinton has assessed her daunting challenge, it's become clear that the force behind the fundraising operation is campaign chairman John Podesta, who has been quietly cultivating big donors and coordinating fundraising strategy.
>
> Podesta, people close to the campaign, supports the Cheng-led strategy of creating an army of small- to medium-scale campaign bundlers – a "flat" fundraising structure that would give donors the sense of ownership in the campaign. Podesta jokingly refers to himself as the "Sultan of Flat," but the older generation of Clinton fundraisers and donors interviewed over the past two weeks said they believed the new structure would eventually give way to a more conventional fundraising apparatus that would empower mega-donors on the coasts.
>
> Managing the friction between the old lions of Clinton fundraising – who have no use for the flat org chart -- and younger players Cheng hopes to recruit won't be easy. Cheng recently angered several former Obama fundraisers by offering them their old regional finance jobs – even though they had gone onto to bigger, more lucrative careers in Washington over the years; They turned him down, according to a former Obama campaign official.
>
> Cheng has also been trying to reassure Obama bundlers and even former lower level Clinton Administration aides, who have now grown to have successful careers, that they won't be left. "Their sense is that unless they raise zillions of dollars, they're never going to be noticed and certainly never going to infiltrate their already tight-knit inner circle, so why bother," one New York-based fundraiser said. "Everyone knows who Clinton's inner circle is, that they are going to raise a boat load of money with relatively little effort, and that there is little that can be done by a new person to make their mark
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Apr 30, 2015, at 3:06 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > Sure. Sorry for the delay I was on a plane.
> >
> > On Apr 30, 2015 9:44 AM, "Glenn Thrush" <gthrush@politico.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Can I send u a couple of grafs, OTR, to make sure I'm not fucking anything up?
> > > --
> > > Glenn Thrush
> > > Chief Political Correspondent, POLITICO
> > > Senior Staff Writer, POLITICO Magazine
> > > Cell (call first): 202-731-4974
> > > Desk: 703-647-8543

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

http://www.politico.com/reporters/GlennThrush.html

From: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Date: Wednesday, April 29, 2015 at 6:34 PM
To: Glenn Thrush <gthrush@politico.com >
Subject: Re: sorry to bother...

OTR: not sure what you mean by the first issue. I'm the sultan of flat. My whole pitch is all are welcome and grow the network.

On Apr 29, 2015 11:38 AM, "Glenn Thrush" <gthrush@politico.com > wrote:

> Hey sir— sorry to bother — OTR question
>
> Was working on a fundraising story (when Maggie and Matea's stories popped)
> Been talking to bundlers who told me that one of the reasons you need to get HRC out on the road was simply that the Hillfunders mid-level strategy was getting enough traction and you had to mine the old 08 crowd a little quicker than u thought…
> Also- to be a pain in the ass — I've heard that u were never entirely on board with the whole 'flat' idea in the first place.
> Cheers/Thrush
> --
> Glenn Thrush
> Chief Political Correspondent, POLITICO
> Senior Staff Writer, POLITICO Magazine
> Cell (call first): 202-731-4974
> Desk: 703-647-8543
> http://www.politico.com/reporters/GlennThrush.html

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com>
To:	"Maya Harris" <mharris@hillaryclinton.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/14/2016 5:27:35 PM
Subject:	Al Sharpton heads up

You may know this already but he reached out to us to host an even for him on the African American vote in the week before the SC Primary. He said he wasn't endorsing but talking about the issues.

We can't really turn him down but we don't want it to hurt our IRS status so we want to have some sense of his remarks. I'll keep you posted.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
Date: 10/23/2015 3:14:38 PM
Subject: Re: Clinton Campaign Thanks Benghazi Select Committee

One reporter deemed it the "Hillary Clinton campaign 11 hour telethon."

Sent from my iPhone

On Oct 23, 2015, at 9:47 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:

cdm

Begin forwarded message:

From: "Kendall, David" <DKendall@wc.com >
Date: October 23, 2015 at 2:51:50 PM EDT
To: Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >, Heather Samuelson <hsamuelson@cdmillsgroup.com >, Hartina Flournoy <tflournoy11@gmail.com >, "Phil Schiliro" <pschiliro@sb-atalaya.com >
Subject: Clinton Campaign Thanks Benghazi Select Committee

Clinton Thanks Benghazi Committee for Invaluable Service to Her Campaign http://www.newyorker.com/humor/borowitz-report/clinton-thanks-benghazi-committee-for-invaluable-service-to-her-campaign

---

This message and any attachments are intended only for the addressee and may contain information that is privileged and confidential. If you have received this message in error, please do not read, use, copy, distribute, or disclose the contents of the message and any attachments. Instead, please delete the message and any attachments and notify the sender immediately. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sylvia Larsen" <sylviablarsen@gmail.com>
To:	"John Graham" <jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com>
Date:	9/18/2015 4:24:36 AM
Subject:	Re: HILLARY / NEW HAMSPHIRE

Dear John and NJ friends,
I will certainly spread the word to welcome your NJ State Chair John Currie and leadership team to our Granite State. We are grateful for the help in support of Hillary as we join together to elect Hillary our next President of the United States. She wowed the crowds in Laconia and Concord yesterday , added US Sen Shaheen's endorsement earlier and gains our great Governor, Maggie Hassan's endorsement today.
It takes a village. Let's make it happen.
Best personal regards, Sen Sylvia Larsen, NH

Sent from my iPad

On Sep 18, 2015, at 8:56 AM, John Graham <jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com > wrote:

> Dear Sylvia[Senator Sylvia Larsen],
> As part of Hillary`s longtime supporters , I want to let you know that N.J.State Chairman John Currie and the New State Leadership Team IS COMING TO New Hampshire today in Hillary`s support. Please let Senator Jean Shaheen know and give our N.J. Support Team the highest in courtesies. This is late notice . Chairman Currie `s endorsement is consistent with our past mutual relationships i.e. Congressman Bill Pascrell and myself. Thank you Sylvia. We are all moving forward in electing Hillary the NEXT President of the United States., best,
> John.
>
> John F.X. Graham, CEO
> FAIRVIEW INSURANCE AGENCY ASSOCIATES
> 25 Fairview Ave
> Verona, NJ 07044
> Tel: 973-857-0870
> Fax: 973-857-9645
> www.fairviewinsurance.com
> jgraham@fairviewinsurance.com
>
> Please access our website at www.fairviewinsurance.com to see a complete list of our services.
>
> Internet e-mail confidentiality: Privileged/confidential information may be contained in this message. If you are not the addressee indicated in this message, or responsible for delivery of this message to such person, you may not copy or deliver this message to anyone. In such case you should destroy this message and kindly notify the sender by e-mail. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "CSIS Strategic Technologies Program" <techpolicy@csis.org>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 1/21/2015 7:01:18 AM
Subject: CSIS Invite: Data Beyond Borders

To ensure receipt of our email, please add us to your address book.

CSIS | CENTER FOR STRATEGIC & INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

STRATEGIC TECHNOLOGIES PROGRAM

Invitation

Data Beyond Borders: Mutual Legal Assistance in the Internet Era

The Center for Strategic & International Studies invites you to the launch of a report commissioned by the Global Network Initiative to address the growing demand from law enforcement agents for access to data subject to another country's jurisdiction. The report evaluates legal and policy reforms to improve the mutual legal assistance system to meet the legitimate interests of governments, companies, and Internet users while ensuring the protection of human rights.

Speakers:

Andrew Woods
Report Author and Assistant Professor of Law
University of Kentucky College of Law

Nicole Jones
Senior Law Enforcement and Security Counsel
Google

Gail Kent
International Communications Data Policy
UK National Crime Agency

Greg Nojeim
Senior Counsel and Director, Freedom, Security and Technology Project
Center for Democracy & Technology

Moderated by:

James A. Lewis
Director and Senior Fellow, Strategic Technologies Program, CSIS

Wednesday, January 28, 2015
1:00pm – 3:00pm
2nd Floor Conference Room C
CSIS, 1616 Rhode Island Ave NW

Please RSVP by January 26 to TechPolicy@csis.org

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

WATCH LIVE STREAM

Questions? Contact Us

About the Global Network Initiative

GNI is a multi-stakeholder group of companies, civil society organizations (including human rights and press freedom groups), inv estors and academics who have created a collaborativ e approach to protect and adv ance freedom of expression and privacy in the ICT sector. Learn more at www.globalnetworkinitiative.org

To unsubscribe from all CSIS emails, please click here .

If you would prefer not to receive emails from us, go here .
Please send any comments about this email to imisadmin@csis.org

Powered By informz

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Democrats.org <democraticparty@democrats.org>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 3/16/2016 6:16:46 AM
Subject: BREAKING: President Obama's Supreme Court nominee

John --

The White House just announced that President Obama is nominating Merrick B. Garland to become our next Supreme Court justice.

A native of Chicago, Merrick Garland has been a judge for the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit since 1997, serving as Chief Judge since 2013. With two decades of federal court experience, Garland is fully prepared for all of the responsibilities he will face as our next Supreme Court justice -- no matter how Senate Republicans try to spin it.

Frankly, I've grown a little sick of Republicans in Congress and their antics that have ranged from simply unproductive to downright offensive. Over the course of President Obama's seven years in office, the GOP has used our Congress as its own stage for public temper tantrums and meltdowns, habitually standing in the way of progress instead of doing their jobs and helping our country move forward.

This is not leadership, John. This is obstruction. It's a vendetta against President Obama's presidency, plain and simple, and we just cannot afford to let the Republican Party hold a fully-functioning government hostage with their political games -- especially at the expense of the Supreme Court.

So add your name to send Senate Republicans the message that it's time for them to do their jobs and confirm Judge Garland:

http://my.democrats.org/Confirm-the-Nominee

Thank you,

Debbie

Debbie Wasserman Schultz
Chair
Democratic National Committee

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Paid for by the Democratic National Committee, 430 South Capitol Street SE, Washington DC 20003 and not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com. If this isn't the best email address at which to reach you, update your contact information . Our email list is the best way we have of staying in regular contact with supporters like you across the country and letting you know about the work President Obama and other Democrats are doing. If you like staying in touch, but want to receive only the most important messages, click here . Click here to unsubscribe from our supporter list, but if you leave, it will be harder for you to stay involved in the organization that you've been such a critical part of. This organization is powered by you, and we'd love to hear your ideas. Send us any comments, criticisms, or feedback here , or just reply to this email! Thanks for supporting President Obama and other Democrats.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sara Du Bois" <sara@progressiveaccountability.org>
To: "Sara Du Bois" <sara@progressiveaccountability.org>
Date: 7/1/2008 5:09:25 AM
Subject: [big campaign] Tracking Update: McCain Speech in Indianapolis, IN 07/01/08

Hello All,
We were not able to send a tracker to today's event. However, we were able to track the event via online streaming video. Below are the notes from that viewing.

Big Highlights

- Derides Supreme Court's "jarring decision" in last week's child-rapist case
  - Says Obama "may not care for this particular decision, but it was exactly the kind of opinion we could expect from an Obama Court"
- Asserts link between "rising rate of incarceration" and reduction in crime
  - Advocates "one-way journey" out of jail; touts 2007 Second Chance Act, community- and faith-based initiatives
- Says "we need to stay on the offensive against crime"
- Promises more federal funding to crack down on illegal aliens
- Promises to "do more" to restore funding to Byrne/JAG program, to increasing funding for communications equipment for law enforcement at all levels
- Promises to "get serious" against Internet predators, invest in cyber security Laments rise in gang violence

Indianapolis, IN: McCain Speech 07/01/08

Background Details

- Introductory remarks Sheriff Webre, Pres. of National Sheriffs' Association: mentions McCain's history as POW, Congressman
- McCain thanked Sen. Lindsey Graham and Joe Lieberman, Steve Goldsmith (Indianapolis Mayor), Eric Estrada for being in attendance.
- Cindy stood on stage by her husband.

FULL Remarks:
LINK: http://thepage.time.com/transcript-of-mccains-remarks-to-the-national-sheriffs-association/

ARLINGTON, VA — U.S. Senator John McCain will deliver the following remarks as prepared for delivery at the National Sheriffs' Association's 68th Annual Conference in Indianapolis, IN, today at 11:00 a.m. EDT:

Thank you, Sheriff Webre, for the kind introduction, and thank you all very much. I appreciate the warm welcome to Indianapolis, and I am proud to be in the company of more than two thousand sheriffs and deputy sheriffs. I'm very honored, and have never felt safer.

There is a small fraternity of occupations that deserve every citizen's gratitude, every day. And sheriffs and deputy sheriffs are charter members. Some functions of government take place far from public view, and success and failure can be hard to measure. But that is never true in your calling. In law enforcement, the standard is always 100 percent success, and there is no such thing as "close enough" for government work. Protecting innocent citizens from those who would do them harm is the most elementary responsibility of government. Law enforcement work is often hard, sometimes heroic, and always necessary. We are all in your debt, and I thank you for your service.

When President Ronald Reagan came before this organization in 1984, he spoke of a "new mandate from the American people." He described some of the social theories of the preceding decades, and how these fashionable ideas had fostered a permanent criminal class of violent repeat offenders. In the 1960's and 70's, violent crime had increased throughout most of our country. In some cities, people felt as if their neighborhoods were under hostile occupation. At the federal level, President Reagan offered a different approach to criminal justice, focused on vigorous enforcement and stricter sentencing. Criminal justice reform is a part of the Reagan revolution that is often forgotten today. But over time, America became a better, safer, and more just country because of those reforms. And you're the ones who helped to make it happen.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

We still hear some academics and politicians speaking as if a rising rate of incarceration and a reduction in crime were unrelated facts. But, of course, when the most violent and persistent criminals are in prison, crime rates will go down. And this is exactly what happened through the 1990's and most of this decade. The progress our country made against crime was the result of smart policies, bipartisan cooperation, and, above all, high-quality work by the men and women of law enforcement.

Many of our cities became safer during the 1990's, thanks to the resolute action of city and county leaders such as my friend Rudy Giuliani and his police commissioner Bill Bratton. During both Republican and Democratic administrations, Congress continued to supply states and localities with new resources. Under legislation I've supported, we have also sought to increase penalties for repeat felons who commit crimes with a firearm, or commit violent crimes on behalf of a criminal gang. We have worked to improve the National Instant Criminal Background Check System for firearms purchases. And we have sought to increase the fines criminals must pay into the Federal Crime Victims Fund and bar all criminals from profiting from their crimes.

We also expanded public registry requirements for convicted sex offenders — because to prevent and punish the exploitation of children, the surest policy is zero-tolerance. When anyone is convicted of a sexual assault on a child, they should stay in prison for a long time, and their names should stay forever on the National Sex Offender Public Registry. When they are released — if they are released — they should be tracked both in their physical movements and in their Internet usage. And under a bill I have authored as a senator, and intend to sign into law as president, we're going to get serious against Internet predators: Anyone who uses the Internet in the commission of a crime of child exploitation is going offline and into prison for an additional ten years.

In protecting children and in all criminal justice policy, at both the state and federal level, we have shown how much can be achieved when consistent principles are applied and both parties work together. And this spirit will be needed in meeting the challenges of our own time. The overall trends in crime are small comfort to the more than six million victims of violent crime in America each year, or to the more than 18 million victims of property crime. In an enterprise measured by the standard of 100 percent success, there is no time to linger on the progress of the past. We need to stay on the offensive against crime, and especially crimes of violence.

The federal government has its own well defined set of law-enforcement concerns, such as multi-state criminal syndicates, terrorist cells, government corruption, and the protection of America's borders. And from the standpoint of state and local law enforcement, often the best service our federal government can render is to do these things and do them right. Presidential leadership is essential in all of these responsibilities. But nowhere is the influence of a president more critical to law enforcement than in the power of judicial nominations.

It will fall to the next president to nominate hundreds of men and women to the federal courts. These choices will have far-reaching consequences for all Americans, and perhaps especially for law enforcement. When a serious crime is investigated, prosecuted, and punished, it takes many hours and the best efforts of police, trial courts, and juries. Yet one badly reasoned opinion, by one overreaching judge, can undo it all. Just like that, evidence of guilt can be suppressed, or a dangerous predator released because of judge-made laws having little or nothing to do with the requirements of the Constitution. Even worse, when such opinions issue from the highest court, they set a precedent for many more injustices, and they add one more obstacle to the work of law enforcement.

We saw such presumption again just last week in a matter before the Supreme Court. In the considered judgment of the people of Louisiana and their elected representatives, the violent rape of a small child is a capital offense. There is nothing in our Constitution to contradict that view. But five justices decided the people's judgment didn't take into account "evolving standards of decency," and so they substituted their judgment for that of the people of Louisiana, their legislators, their governor, the trial judge, the jury, the appellate judge, and the other four justices of the Supreme Court.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

It's a peculiar kind of moral evolution that disregards the democratic process, and inures solely to the benefit of child rapists. It was such a jarring decision from the Court that my opponent, Senator Obama, immediately and to his credit expressed his disagreement. I'd like to think this signals a change of heart on his part about his votes against the confirmation of two of the four dissenters in the case, Justice Samuel Alito and Chief Justice John Roberts. More to the point, why is it that the majority includes the same justices he usually holds out as the models for future nominations? My opponent may not care for this particular decision, but it was exactly the kind of opinion we could expect from an Obama Court.

Should I be elected president, I will look for accomplished men and women with a proven record of excellence in the law, and a proven commitment to judicial restraint. They will be the kind of judges who believe in giving everyone in a criminal court their due: justice for the guilty and the innocent, compassion for the victims, and respect for the men and women of law enforcement.

In all of criminal justice policy, we must put the interests of law-abiding citizens first — and above all the rights of victims. And when we formulate criminal justice policy, words of praise for the good work of local law enforcement are not enough. We must give active support to officers of the peace across America, by providing the tools you need to meet new dangers. Even as crime has diminished in some areas, including New York and other major cities, crime is spreading in many small and mid-sized jurisdictions. And the general numbers in crime reduction conceal one of the most disturbing facts of all — the rise of new, better organized, and more widely dispersed gang violence and transnational gangs. Once largely confined to major cities, the threat of gang violence is now well known to sheriffs and corrections officers across America. And in all cases of violent crime, in both urban and rural areas, it's the poorest among us who are most vulnerable.

To meet all of these challenges, and others, you will need assistance, critical resources, and new technologies that often only the federal government can provide. And one of the most critical of these resources concerns the radio spectrum. So that police, fire-fighters, and other public safety agencies can freely communicate with one another, we will build a long overdue national, interoperable public safety broadband network. You and all your colleagues in law enforcement need seamless communication across every agency and jurisdiction for emergency response. For more than a decade now, I have tried to persuade the Congress to provide dedicated radio spectrum and funding for communications equipment to local, state, and federal law enforcement officers. Just last year, I introduced a bill that provided for more than twice the capacity that the FCC has currently set aside for public safety. Special interests in Washington want the FCC to auction off more of that spectrum than I do. But no matter what price it might fetch at auction, it should be available for fighting crime and saving lives.

The Congress, too, needs to get its priorities straight, and that begins by supporting the priorities of front-line law-enforcement personnel. As it is, funds distributed by the Department of Justice are too often earmarked according to their value to the re-election of members of Congress instead of their value to police. This is especially true in the case of grants allocated under the Byrne/JAG program — many of which are urgently needed to interdict drugs and track the movement of violent gangs. The result is that millions of dollars are wasted every year, and a lot of good ideas and programs in local law enforcement never get funded.

Earmark spending bills are the broken windows of the federal budget process, and by ending these abuses we set a new tone and we set much greater reforms in motion. Earmark spending runs against the public interest in many ways, and especially when public safety is in the balance. And that's why, as president, I will veto every bill with earmarks, until the Congress stops sending bills with earmarks. It may take a while for Congress to adjust, but sooner or later they'll figure out that there's a new sheriff in town.

Law enforcement professionals know best what they need in the field. And today, what's often needed most are more personnel and better technologies for tracking criminals, gathering data, and sharing vital information. We need to make certain that every agency is working with others where necessary, so that the miscommunications and missed opportunities before 9/11 are never repeated. To protect our energy supply, air and rail transport, banking and financial services, we need to invest far more in the federal task of cyber security. In this new century, and especially with the threat of terrorist attacks, every state, local, and federal agency concerned with public safety should have access a shared repository of information. In the case of any suspected terrorist, we must make certain that law enforcement knows who they are, where they are, and what they're up to.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

We know as well that tens of thousands of felons — in custody and at large — entered our country illegally. Why has it has fallen to sheriffs and other local officials to protect their citizens from these foreign-born felons? Because our federal government failed to protect our borders from their entry, and this serious dereliction of duty must end.

Our compassion for laborers who entered this country unlawfully — our understanding of their struggles, even as we act to secure the border — speaks well of America. But this respect does not extend to criminals who came here to break our laws and do harm to people. Through the Criminal Alien Program, we have made some progress in recent years. Too often, however, states are left to deal with the high costs and excessive regulation involved in deportation proceedings, and many local officers are left waiting for immigration agents to show up on site. So, as president, I will expand the Criminal Alien Program. We will require that the federal government assume more of the costs to deport and detain criminal aliens — because this is a problem of the federal government's own making.

As if all of these challenges were not enough, another has arisen because of your own hard work and success these past 25 years in sending serious offenders to prison. Many are due for release, and just last year some 750,000 inmates reentered society. Unless we change our approach over the next four years, these released prisoners are likely to reoffend in very high numbers, committing millions of new crimes and finding millions of new victims. And we need to be as committed in preparing them for freedom as we were in taking that freedom away.

Maybe you have heard the story of an ex-inmate named Don Cox, who received a sentence of 90 years for being an accomplice to a murder right here in Indianapolis in 1978. Mr. Cox would likely have spent the rest of his life in prison, had it not been for the efforts of another man named Tim Streett. In the short version of a powerful story, Mr. Streett is the son of the victim, and had even been a witness to his father's murder. He is also a witness to the possibilities of redemption. After years of bitterness, Mr. Streett sought out the prisoner. In time, he even became his friend. And it was he who asked prosecutors to seek parole for Mr. Cox. As Tim Streett explains his change of heart, "Anger and bitterness — that can build up. But true forgiveness says, 'I forgive you, and it's over.'"

Across a prison and jail population of 2.3 million souls, there may be some who will never find or even seek this path. But the way should be open to all. This was the spirit of the Second Chance Act of 2007, a law designed to make the walk out of prison, past the gates and razor wire, a one-way journey. Ex-convicts need more than a few bucks and a bus ticket out of town. Many will need job training, a place to live, mentors, family counseling, and much more. Beyond government, there are churches and community groups all across our country that stand ready to help even more. And these groups will have the committed support of my administration.

With so many sentences about to expire, and so many second chances about to be offered, the stakes are high for our country. And nobody understands that better than sheriffs, their deputies, and other officers of the peace. Great challenges lie ahead of you, and you will meet them as those who carry the badge of law enforcement always have — with courage and with honor. I thank each one of you for the dedication you bring to a hard job. I thank all of you for your commitment to the cause of justice. And I thank you for your kind attention here today.

--
Sara DuBois
Deputy Director of Tracking & Media Monitoring Progressive Accountability
sara@progressiveaccountability.org
202-609-7681 (office)
410-967-7306 (cell)
--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Karen Pierce" <piercekl@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	"All Faculty and Staff" <AllFacultyandStaff@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	8/12/2015 5:45:30 AM
Subject:	Softball Results

Last night our softball team played Beveridge & Diamond, the number one team in the league. Our Hoyas had a strong start, but lost in the end, 13-3.

We still have two games left in our regular season, so come out and cheer on the team. We'll be on the Ellipse for a 6:00 pm game next Tuesday.

Karen

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Michael Brune" <michael.brune@sierraclub.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/30/2016 7:12:43 AM
Subject:	Flint

Glad to see u call for a debate there. We're going to amplify.

--
Michael Brune
Executive Director
Sierra Club
415-977-5662
www.sierraclub.org

Follow on Facebook and Twitter

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
Date:	9/4/2015 2:40:53 AM
Subject:	Secured Jeff Z's monster van do we have nibbles on a second one? Does Tamera have a van?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Gayle Smith" <gaylesmithgayle@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/23/2008 10:17:49 PM
Subject:	Re: National Security Cluster

Denny Blair came up (as did others). List I sent is those who came up several times, have second list of those mentioned by one or two and as discussed with others will add these to the mix. But any names you have pls send. Some guy named Podesta came up a lot.

On Sat, Aug 23, 2008 at 10:42 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> In the department of random additions:
> Denny Blair?
>
> On 8/22/08, Gayle Smith <gaylesmithgayle@gmail.com > wrote:
> > Mike - memo is attached, based on 12 consultations thus far. Until we have > > a format set up, I'll keep updating this memo. List of names can be broken > > down further if needed and have bio information on all if needed.
> >
> > A few names/issues are not included as I fear the memo left on the bus and > > did not want to include:
> >
> > 1. Bill Richardson - recommended by some, most thought he should/would be > > vetted. Appreciation of his strengths is negotiations, real concerns about > > some weaknesses in US/UN role.
> > 2. Holbrooke - not named by anyone, though discussed with some. All > > acknowledge his brilliance and capability, but feel that inability to be a > > team player is enormously problematic. In several cases, strongly > > recommended that he not be on any list; in others, recommended that he be > > considered for envoy or other discrete positions down the road. Very strong > > feeling that given number of crises and disarray in agencies and IC, bottom > > line most important qualification for top level is team player skills.
> > 3. Tony Lake - recommended by some. Tells me he does not want senior > > position. But one never knows, should probably vet?
> > 4. Biden - on everyone's list. But let's see what the text message says.
> > If it says something else, he should obviously be on the list....
> >
> > And I feel a bit weird about this, but most of the people I have consulted > > so far raised my name with reference to State/F or NSC - so I put it down.
> > Feel free to double back with any of them. I have several more meetings set > > up including deeper detail on DoD and on DHS so good to update this soon.
> > Cheers, GS
> >
>
> --
> Sent from Gmail for mobile | mobile.google.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Mary Podesta" <podesta.mary@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	5/1/2015 12:52:41 AM
Subject:	Re: Saturday

I will pick you up.

On May 1, 2015 12:08 AM, "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> On UA 208 Scheduled to get in at 3:52. Let me know chatter you can't pick up.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Cardinal, Denise" <denise@allianceminnesota.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 8/11/2008 8:56:47 AM
Subject: [big campaign] R-N-C! R-N-C!

Let's face it, Saint Paul is going to be way more interesting than Denver. Ron Paul activists holding a counter convention, loads of anti-war protesters, AND our fantastic spaces at three locations to watch it all. What more could you want?

Below is the credentialing process we have for our new media spaces — forward liberally and share with legacy media as well, since we know that so many of them now are also blogging at the RNC and they will want to cover our stuff.

Finally — if you plan on coming here for other events at the RNC, please let us know at Alliance for a Better Minnesota —we're launching a website with a media resource section where we can list it, and include it in our pitches.

Regardless, we would love to see you. You'll have a heckuva time. You betcha.

Denise
denise@allianceminnesota.org

Independent Journalists, New Media Gurus, Bloggers, Alternative Media Outlets...

Are you looking for a place to work during the Republican National Convention?

Apply Here:

http://theuptake.org/

<http://www.theuptake.org > Space is limited and will fill up quickly.

Where: 3 locations around the Xcel Center in Saint Paul
<http://maps.google.com/maps/ms?ie=UTF8&hl=en&msa=0&msid=113766478125843831737.0004526dd0203dc768137&ll=44.95751,-93.168182&spn=0.124145,0.365982&z=12> Credentials allow access to all three locations during the convention Only $50.00 for the week of August 31 - September 5

<http://www.theuptake.org > Location 1: The UpTake New Media Space

<http://maps.google.com/maps/ms?ie=UTF8&hl=en&msa=0&msid=113766478125843831737.0004526dd0203dc768137&ll=44.95751,-93.168182&spn=0.124145,0.365982&z=12>
Click on the map <http://maps.google.com/maps/ms?ie=UTF8&hl=en&msa=0&msid=113766478125843831737.0004526dd0203dc768137&ll=44.95751,-93.168182&spn=0.124145,0.365982&z=12> to see locatons and details for all events at the RNC. The UpTake is on top of everything going on! Just outside the convention center, The UpTake New Media Space is the closest space with internet access – only 300 yards outside the convention center! It's as close as you can get to the RNC without security clearance!

Who: The UpTake is an online news organization reporting political news through citizen journalists.

What: The UpTake New Media Space will provide a safe, comfortable place for journalists to work, meet and relax during the convention.

The New Media Space features:

- 300 Yards from the front door of the Convention Center
- Dedicated T-1 Upload and Download
- Open 8:00 am to ??? (which means pretty late)
- More fun than you can Twitter about!

Location 2: Golden's Deli

Where: Just blocks from the Xcel Center, Golden's Deli will provide access to events both inside and outside of the convention hall. A locally-owned place with tasty chow made with local ingredients, it's a great place to get away from all that conservative rhetoric. For more info visit www.goldensdeli.us <http://www.goldensdeli.us > We'll have wifi access and screens to watch the

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

RNC action at night, during the day, we'll have some media events you can cover.

Who: Alliance for a Better Minnesota www.allianceminnesota.org <http://www.allianceminnesota.org > is a Minnesota-based online progressive advocacy and communications organization working to provide cutting edge online tools for working families and give a voice to progressives statewide.

What: ABM will be providing a versatile space that will be part blogging green room and part event center. Expert panels will be held on key issues with added commentary and availability of progressive Minnesotans and working people to be integrated into traditional coverage of the convention through streaming web feeds, live satellite feeds, and other media methods.

When: The space will be available starting on the afternoon of Sunday, August 31st through the afternoon of Friday, September 5th until midnight each night.

Location 3: "Liberal Lounge."

"Liberal Lounge – Sponsored by the SEIU" will be set up as an evening venue in which progressive bloggers, activists, new media and alternative media to relax, socialize, network, perform and write. Located within walking distance of both the Xcel Energy Center and the offices and workspace of The Uptake Citizen Media, "Liberal Lounge – Sponsored by the SEIU" will provide a convenient gathering space for media and bloggers to move on to once the major coverage from the day is complete and the official workspace are closed.

The "Liberal Lounge – Sponsored by the SEIU" space is a converted pool-house that currently serves as an events space for Jon Oulman, owner of Jon Oulman Salons and The 331 Club, the bar of Drinking Liberally Minneapolis. "Liberal Lounge – Sponsored by the SEIU" will be open from 5 pm to 12am Monday through Thursday of the convention, and will have complementary beer, wine, soda, water, coffee and snacks available.

Space is limited and will fill up quickly.

http://theuptake.org/ <http://www.theuptake.org >

Jason Barnett
The UpTake
Executive Director
http://theuptake.org/

------ End of Forwarded Message

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.
-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

From: "Fidelity Investments" <Fidelity.Investments@mail.fidelity.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 12/9/2014 9:14:01 AM
Subject: Help Us Serve You Better

To view this email as a web page, go here .

Fidelity INVESTMENTS

JOHN PODESTA

Your Opinions Make a Difference.

When your Employer selected Fidelity Investments to administer your workplace savings plan benefits, we made a commitment to help you plan for retirement. Because we know every customer has unique needs, we are conducting a research survey to better understand your preferences and priorities.

A small percentage of Fidelity customers have been randomly selected to participate in this survey. Your feedback will inform Fidelity's continual efforts to deliver an experience tailored to help you meet your retirement goals.

Please help us by completing this 10 minute survey.

Click here to take the survey

We appreciate your input and look forward to service you in the future.

Please be assured that names or individual information will not be used for individual marketing purposes or released to your employer.

Quick Links

Take the survey now

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Privacy Policy | Terms of Use

Fidelity has hired ConsumerMetrics, Inc. (CMI) to develop, collect, and analyze the responses generated by the attached survey. Fidelity and CMI are independent entities and are not legally affiliated.

Neither Fidelity Investments nor CMI will individually respond to any feedback you provide in this survey unless required to do so by applicable law, nor will they use your feedback for individual marketing efforts. Please do not include any personally identifiable information related to an account in your responses. If you have questions or comments that you would like Fidelity Investments to follow up on with you, please contact Fidelity Investments directly through your normal contact channel.

Please do not respond to this e-mail. This mailbox is not monitored, and you will not receive a response.

Fidelity Brokerage Services LLC, Member NYSE, SIPC , 900 Salem Street, Smithfield, RI 02917

705414.1.0

EMAIL REF#1166901945.299473

© 2014 FMR LLC
All rights reserved.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tyson Brody" <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	5/22/2015 9:16:36 AM
Subject:	Re: CLIPS ON EMAIL RELEASE

http://www.bloomberg.com/politics/articles/2015-05-22/how-bad-spin-works-a-handy-lesson-from-the-clinton-blumenthal-e-mails

How Bad Spin Works: A Handy Lesson from the Clinton/Blumenthal E-Mails

May 22, 2015 3:46 PM EDT

The sort of intra-Washington chicanery that is not scandalous, but not often revealed.

The just-released batch of emails from Hillary Clinton's tenure as Secretary of State is full of sausage-making. It's the sort of intra-Washington chicanery that is not scandalous, but not often revealed, because human beings are capable of embarrassment. One of the more excruciating exchanges comes when Sidney Blumenthal, the journalist turned Clinton confidant, offered up pro bono spin work during the weeks before the 2012 election when Republicans started to ask why the attack on America's consulate in Benghazi had not been stopped.

On the morning of October 1, journalist Craig Unger—best known for the 2004 cui bono bestseller House of Bush, House of Saud—published a column in Salon that revealed a "Jimmy Carter strategy" being formulated by Mitt Romney's presidential campaign.

"According to a highly reliable source," wrote Unger, "as Mitt Romney and President Barack Obama prepare for the first presidential debate Wednesday night, top Republican operatives are primed to unleash a new two-pronged offensive that will attack Obama as weak on national security, and will be based, in part, on new intelligence information regarding the attacks in Libya that killed U.S. Ambassador Chris Stevens on Sept. 11."

More than that, the "scoop" made no sense.

This source of this scoop, wrote Unger, had "firsthand knowledge of private, high-level conversations in the Romney camp that took place in Washington, D.C., last week." According to the source, "over and over again they talked about how it would be just like Jimmy Carter's failed raid [on Iran in 1980]," and "they feel it is going to give them a last-minute landslide in the election." Curiously, the source predicted that the strategy would fail.

The story went up at 9:30 a.m. Eastern time. Forty-three minutes later, Blumenthal sent Hillary Clinton an email with the text of the story and the subject "Romney's last gambit. Got done and published." In other words, Blumenthal, formerly a Salon columnist, was taking credit for the Romney story being placed in Salon.

In a now-deleted tweet, Romney strategist Stu Stevens snarked that it was "a mistake" to invite Blumenthal into a secret strategy session. "This was just a joke," Stevens added in an e-mail, "highlighting he knew nothing."

More than that, the "scoop" made no sense. The Romney campaign was based in Boston, not Washington. The idea of hitting the White House over the Benghazi attacks was hardly being dreamed up in secret—Romney had done it weeks earlier, and been chastened by a media blowback. Surrogates, however, continued to talk plenty about Benghazi. The only point to the story was that it made Romney's team look callow, which was how allies of the Obama administration wanted them to look.

The running theme of Blumenthal's missives to his "old friend," the Democratic frontrunner, is that Blumenthal is a gusher of terrible advice. The revelation of these emails is that even terrible advice could pay off, if the media was willing to accept a narrative that made the Clintons' enemies look malicious. Republicans did not quite need a FOIA to discover that, but it certainly didn't hur

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Tara McGuinness" <tmcguinness@progressivemediausa.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 5/27/2008 11:14:08 AM
Subject: [big campaign] Bush-McCain Round-up - thx -SEIU, CMW, Moveon

Hey All-
I wanted to share this memo that went to press today framing the work of a number of groups framing up the Bush/McCain fundraiser.
Special thanks to SEIU, CMW, Moveon who all took the lead and made news (Globe, CNN, others) framing the Bush/McCain event.

Although the White House has announced the campaign didn't want pictures, we have put up a Bush/McCain photo album. Here's the link to the slideshow on McCain Source: http://mccainsource.com/news?id=0523

TO: Interested Parties
FR: Progressive Media USA
DT: May 27, 2008
RE: Bush-McCain Roundup

Today, President Bush attends a fundraiser for Senator John McCain – the person who Bush has said "would be the best to carry forth his agenda."[i] While Bush and McCain are hiding from the cameras, numerous organizations are highlighting McCain's policy similarities to Bush:

SEIU: Bush and McCain Stand United Against Fixing Health Care System
Read the release here .

CAMPAIGN MONEY WATCH: McCain Relies on Nearly Three Dozen Top Bush Fundraisers
Read the release here .

MOVEON.ORG POLITICAL ACTION: As Bush & McCain Appear Together at AZ Fundraiser, New TV Ad & 300 Events Nationwide Say There's No Difference Between the Two
Watch the ad here .

RELATED NEWS:

Poor ticket sales, expected protests scuttle Bush-McCain fundraiser at Phoenix Convention Center [Phoenix Business Journal , 5/23/08]

"Sources familiar with the situation said the Bush-McCain event was not selling enough tickets to fill the Convention Center space, and that there were concerns about more anti-war protesters showing up outside the venue than attending the fundraiser inside. Another source said there were concerns about the media covering the event."

McCain does tricky dance with unpopular Bush [CNN , 5/27/08]
"McCain campaigned for Bush's re-election in 2004, and the Arizona senator has also become one of the strongest advocates for the war in Iraq, the thing that is most likely to define President Bush's legacy."

McCain campaigns with Bush, seeing pluses, minuses [Associated Press , 5/27/08]
"John McCain's complex relationship with President Bush can be summed up with a simple saying: can't live with him, can't live without him. The president's own popularity is bottom-of-the-barrel low. Even allies privately fret that he's an albatross for the Republican looking to succeed him. Voters are crying out for change amid a prolonged Iraq war and a weakened economy."

POLLING:
Bush Approval
"Among all Americans, 28% approve of the way Bush is handling his job as president and 69% disapprove." [American Research Group , 5/20/08]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"For the week ending May 23, 34% of Americans approved of the way the George W. Bush performed his role as President….Sixty-three percent (63%) now disapprove of the President's Performance." [Rasmussen , 5/18/08]

Disapprove 65, approve 31 [Democracy Corps/Greenberg Quinlan Rosner , 5/20/08]

Bush Thermometer Score

Bush thermometer: Cool 58, Warm 30 [Democracy Corps/Greenberg Quinlan Rosner , 5/20/08]

Bush Handling of the Economy

"When it comes to Bush's handling of the economy, 23% approve and 71% disapprove." [American Research Group, 5/20/08]

---

[i] Fox News, "Fox and Friends, 2/8/2008

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Doug Band" <doug.band@teneoholdings.com>
To: "JOHN Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 3/29/2014 2:43:40 PM
Subject: Re:

Been here every march since 1989
Never seen it quite like this
You could play golf
Its raining today

Still one of the best places in the world

_____
From: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Sent: Saturday, March 29, 2014 2:33:03 PM
To: Doug Band
Subject: Re:

Any snow?

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

> On Mar 28, 2014, at 8:33 PM, Doug Band <doug.band@teneoholdings.com> wrote:
>
> In your town
> Lake tahoe
> Magical place
>
> Hope you are well

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com>
Date:	3/4/2016 3:29:33 PM
Subject:	Re: Sanders release | Sanders Blames Clinton for Decline of Middle Class in Trade-Battered Michigan

What time we meeting tomorrow? We should plot out the prep.

On Mar 4, 2016, at 10:20 PM, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com > wrote:

> Jake worked on an answer for this.
>
> Mandy Grunwald
> Grunwald Communications
> 202 973-9400
>
> On Mar 4, 2016, at 10:17 PM, Ron Klain <ron.klain@revolution.com > wrote:
>
> > Yes I saw this. It's not as bad as they make it seem. But they are on s real line of attack.
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Mar 4, 2016, at 9:59 PM, Sara Solow <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Did you guys see this video they have released from her speaking about outsourcing in India, in 2012?
> > >
> > > Sorry if I missed this on an earlier email chain.
> > >
> > > It is worth watching the video, where she says there are pluses and minuses to outsourcing.
> > >
> > > ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> > > From: Matt Ortega <mortega@hillaryclinton.com >
> > > Date: Fri, Mar 4, 2016 at 5:07 PM
> > > Subject: Sanders release | Sanders Blames Clinton for Decline of Middle Class in Trade-Battered Michigan
> > > To: Rapid Response <hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com >

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Bernie
PRESS

Sanders Blames Clinton for Decline of Middle Class in Trade-Battered Michigan

March 4, 2016
Contact: Michael Briggs (802) 233-8653

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. – Bernie Sanders on Friday said "disastrous" trade deals backed by Hillary Clinton decimated Michigan manufacturing, threw Michigan workers out of decent-paying jobs and are "one of the reasons that the middle class in the country is disappearing."

"If the people of Michigan want to make a decision about which candidate stood with workers against corporate America and against these disastrous trade agreements, that candidate is Bernie Sanders," he said to cheers from 2,125 supporters here at the Streeters Center.

Starting with the job-killing North American Free Trade Agreement, Clinton supported trade deals when she was secretary of state, a U.S. senator and first lady.

Sanders joined picket lines to protest NAFTA and other trade deals "crafted by "the big-money interests and corporations," Sanders said.

"Hillary Clinton was on the other side of many of these trade agreements," Sanders added.

Not only was Clinton on the wrong side of a series of business-backed trade deals, she also has only grudgingly questioned the biggest trade deal of all time. Until an election-eve conversion, she had backed the Trans-Pacific Partnership, a proposed 12-nation Pacific Rim trade deal which would be the biggest in history.

Meanwhile, Sanders' campaign responded to Clinton's assertion in Detroit that she has a plan to restore manufacturing jobs. "The American people are sick and tired of establishment politicians who promise to create manufacturing jobs during campaign season but support trade policies that make it easier to outsource these jobs the day after they get elected," Sanders said in a prepared statement.

Meanwhile, Sanders' campaign on Friday distributed a video showing Clinton in India in 2012 discussing what she said were "pluses and minuses" to outsourcing U.S. jobs.

To read Sanders' statement, click here .

To see the video of Clinton on outsourcing, click here .

###

PAID FOR BY BERNIE 2016

(not the billionaires)

PO Box 905 - Burlington, Vermont 05402, United States

--
@MattOrtega
Digital Communications

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Hillary for America

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Robert Kasdin" <rkasdin@columbia.edu>
To: undisclosed-recipients:
Date: 5/13/2015 11:10:18 AM
Subject: Personal Next Step

Friends,
Below is a statement just released from Johns Hopkins Medicine.
Best,
Robert

Media Relations and Public Affairs
Date: May 13, 2015
Contact: Helen Jones, 410-502-9422, hjones49@jhmi.edu

Robert A. Kasdin named senior vice president and chief operating officer of Johns Hopkins Medicine

Baltimore, MD — Johns Hopkins Medicine announced today the appointment of Robert A. Kasdin to the newly created role of senior vice president and chief operating officer. Kasdin comes to Johns Hopkins Medicine from Columbia University, where he has been senior executive vice president since 2002. He starts on July 1.

As Johns Hopkins Medicine's first senior vice president and chief operating officer, Kasdin will partner with leadership to drive organization-wide change within a rapidly evolving environment. He will be responsible for overall operations, including strategic direction, administration of existing programs and development of new initiatives to ensure that Johns Hopkins Medicine's strategic imperatives are achieved or exceeded.

"Robert is a proven and experienced leader, and we are pleased to have him join our stellar team here at Johns Hopkins," says Paul B. Rothman, dean of the medical faculty and CEO of Johns Hopkins Medicine. "His expertise will aid us as we continue to advance care and treatment for patients from our city, throughout our country and around the world."

"Johns Hopkins Medicine has seen tremendous growth," says Ronald R. Peterson, president of The Johns Hopkins Hospital and Health System and executive vice president of Johns Hopkins Medicine. "We are looking forward to Robert's guidance as we take advantage of opportunities to develop and improve our operational efficiencies and effectiveness."

Vastly qualified, Kasdin has overseen overall operations, finances, human resources, information technology, and development and commercialization of intellectual property at Columbia University. Additionally, he has played an important role in Columbia's relationships with major donors and with city and state government. While at Columbia, he also reorganized the university's operations to integrate business processes and improved efficiency and accountability.
Before joining Columbia, Kasdin served as the executive vice president and chief financial officer of the University of Michigan, treasurer and chief investment officer for the Metropolitan Museum of Art, and the vice president and general counsel for Princeton University Investment Company. He began his career as a corporate attorney at Davis Polk & Wardwell.
Kasdin earned his B.A. from Princeton and his J.D. from Harvard Law School. He is a board member of the Harbor Funds, Apollo Commercial Real Estate Finance, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the National September 11 Memorial & Museum and the ARTstor Digital Library. He previously chaired the board of trustees of the Dalton School and co-chaired the transition committee for the New York City comptroller-elect in 2013. He is also a member of the Council on Foreign Relations.

Kasdin is married to Claire Ullman, a political scientist. They have three children.

# #

Johns Hopkins Medicine (JHM), headquartered in Baltimore, Maryland, is a $7 billion integrated global health enterprise and one of the leading academic health care systems in the United States. JHM unites physicians and scientists of the Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine with the organizations, health professionals and facilities of The Johns Hopkins Hospital and Health System. JHM's vision, "Together, we will deliver the promise of medicine," is supported by its mission to improve the health of the community and the world by setting the standard of excellence in medical education, research and clinical care. Diverse and inclusive, JHM educates medical students, scientists, health care professionals and the public; conducts biomedical research; and provides patient-centered medicine to prevent, diagnose and treat human illness. JHM operates six academic and community hospitals, four suburban health care and surgery centers, and 39 primary and specialty care outpatient sites under the umbrella of Johns Hopkins Community Physicians. The Johns Hopkins Hospital, opened in 1889, has been ranked number one in the nation by U.S. News & World Report for 22 years of the survey's 25 year history, most recently in 2013. For more information about Johns Hopkins Medicine, its research, education and clinical programs, and for the latest health, science and research news, visit www.hopkinsmedicine.org .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Senior Executive Vice President
Columbia University in the City of New York
535 West 116th Street
311 Low Memorial Library, MC 4342
New York, NY 10027
212-854-9967 - tel
212-854-9978 - fax
rkasdin@columbia.edu

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com "Bruce Lindsey" <BruceRLindsey@aol.com> "Anna James" <aj66@nyu.edu>
Date:	11/18/2011 4:18:19 AM
Subject:	Update

I wonder if we can get on call this weekend to get updated.

best.

cdm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Bill de Blasio" <bdeblasio.nyc@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 3/6/2016 7:55:23 PM
Subject: Re: "I" police

She also seems starkly unhappy tonight. Again stating the obvious, she needs to talk more about the positive (dare I say, joyful) reality of where she wants to take us, and less just about the harsh reality of the problems we face.

From: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: Sun, 6 Mar 2016 21:40:21 -0500
To: bdeblasio.nyc@gmail.com<bdeblasio.nyc@gmail.com>
Subject: Re: "I" police

Very fair. She's better in her speeches but reverts in this format. Since we have another debate in 3 days we can work on it.

On Sunday, March 6, 2016, Bill de Blasio <bdeblasio.nyc@gmail.com > wrote:

> Hillary was fantastic on the gun control answer, then totally blew the mass incarceration question. Why on Earth did she say "Are you going to ask Senator Sanders that question?" instead of just addressing the issue. When she makes it about her, she loses the high ground. Stating the obvious, I know, but she keeps doing it...

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "t r u t h o u t" <messenger@truthout.org>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 11/24/2014 9:36:13 AM
Subject: Henry Giroux: Current "Reforms" Attempt to Drive Young People Out of Democracy

View Recent Newsletters

Tell a friend about Truthout!

Monday, 24 November 2014

truthout

Donate Today!

Truthout is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization; donations are tax deductible.

We believe Truthout's ad-free, truly independent news model is not just an ideal - it's a vital necessity for genuine democracy and civic engagement. But it only works with your support - that's why we need your help to raise over $27,000 in the next day and a half. If you read Truthout and want us to survive, please contribute any amount you can spare today!

DONATE NOW!

Click here to donate.

(Truthout is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit. EIN: 20-0031641)

You can also donate by check, made payable to:
Truthout, P.O. Box 276414, Sacramento, CA 95827
(Please include your email address on your check.)

Or call in your donation:
213.489.1971

Henry Giroux: Current "Reforms" Attempt to Drive Young People Out of Democracy

Camilla Croso, Latin-American Campaign for the Right to Education: In this interview, Henry Giroux talks about corporate interests in the privatization of education, attacks on the importance of schooling and the marginalization of youth under the current political and economic systems.

Read the Interview

Deforestation, "Development" Connected to Spread Ebola in West Africa

Jeff Conant, Truthout: Silas Siakor, director of Friends of the Earth Liberia, discusses the root

BuzzFlash

Without Systemic Change, This Single, College-Educated Mother Can't Find a Living-Wage Job

Mark Karlin, BuzzFlash at Truthout: The devastating irony of changes to the US economic system is that they are being undertaken to worsen conditions for US workers, not to improve them.

Read the BuzzFlash Commentary

Seven Candidates for Corporate Rip-Off of the Year

Read the Article at BuzzFlash

Media Goes Wild Over Hagel Firing but Not

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

causes of West Africa's impoverishment and the complex relationship between disease, deforestation and development.

Read the Interview

The Craving for Democracy

Lorenzo Del Savio and Matteo Mameli, Truthout: Craving real democracy, many people are unwilling to participate in an electoral game that does not provide any form of genuine popular control over decisions that affect people's well-being and freedom.

Read the Article

Obama Extends War in Afghanistan

Kathy Kelly, War Is a Crime: News agencies reported Saturday morning that weeks ago President Obama signed an order, kept secret until now, to authorize continuation of the Afghan war for at least another year. The order authorizes US air strikes "to support Afghan military operations in the country" and US ground troops to continue normal operations.

Read the Article

Dean Baker | Seven Years After: Why This Recovery Is Still a Turkey

Dean Baker, Truthout: Economic policy making continues to be dominated by people who were unable to see an $8 trillion housing bubble. There is no reason to believe that these people have a better understanding of the economy today than they did seven years ago.

Read the Article

Malarkey on the Potomac: Five Bedrock Washington Assumptions That Are Hot Air

Andrew Bacevich, TomDispatch: People in Washington don't have time for reality. They're lost in a world of their own. Consider the following claims, each of which in Washington circles has attained quasi-canonical status. Subjected to even casual scrutiny, none of these claims will stand up.

Read the Article

Are Killers Still in Charge of Our Health Care?

The Daily Take Team, The Thom Hartmann Program: Obamacare was a good start for reeling in for-profit insurance companies and their "profits over people" platform, but it's not enough. No more Americans should die because of delayed treatments and denied doctors' visits all done in the name of increased profits.

Read the Article

Tough Lessons for Rahm

Sarah Karp, Catalyst-Chicago: Over the past decade, the number of black educators in Chicago's public schools dropped precipitously. With his actions disproportionately affecting black teachers, that pattern continued during Mayor Rahm Emanuel's time in office.

Read the Article

Obama Refuses to Close Door on Torture

Faiza Patel, The Brennan Center for Justice: The brutal tactics employed

but Not Obama's Secret Afghanistan Reversal

Read the Article at Mother Jones

Anonymous Targets Cleveland Police After 12-Year-Old's Death

Read the Article at The Root

How Grassroots Efforts Against Fracking Are Succeeding

Read the Article at BuzzFlash

US Drone Strikes - The Facts on the Ground: 41 Men Targeted but 1,147 People Killed

Read the Article at The Guardian

DHS Set to Destroy Government-Wide Network Surveillance Records

Read the Article at Nextgov

Politicians Who Regulate Big Cable Invest in AT&T, Comcast and Verizon

Read the Article at Gizmodo

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

by the United States after 9/11 have led many observers to question its commitment to postwar human rights treaties. Both allied and hostile nations have watched to see if Obama acknowledged that the United States is bound by global torture standards. His answer did not reassure them.

Read the Article

Tallying Up Returns on Corporations' Political Investments

Sue Sturgis, Facing South: The amount that the 200 most politically active corporations in the United States spent on federal lobbying and campaign contributions between 2007 and 2012, according to a new report from the Sunlight Foundation, titled "Fixed Fortunes": $5.8 billion.

Read the Article

Economic Update: Capitalism's Personal Costs

Richard D. Wolff, Truthout: This week's episode provides updates on Italy's general strike, opera economics, Miami baseball and Argentina loans as well as responses to listeners on the economics of US children and on a new political party.

Listen to the Radio Segment

On the News With Thom Hartmann: The Future of the Postal Service May Be in Jeopardy, and More

In today's On the News segment: If Congress refuses to act in the next month, the future of the United States Postal Service could be in jeopardy; about one out of every 30 kids in the United States is homeless; Walmart workers are preparing for their biggest Black Friday strike yet; and more.

Watch the Video and Read the Transcript

Upon News of Plea Deal, Activists Vow to Organize Until Marissa Alexander Is Free

Staff and Contributors, Free Marissa Now Mobilization Campaign: Marissa Alexander has chosen to accept a plea deal with the State of Florida. The plea deal includes time served (1,030 days), an additional 65 days in Duval County Jail which will begin today, and two years of house arrest while wearing a surveillance monitor.

Read the Press Release at Speakout

Support Truthout with a tax-deductible donation

Please add messenger@truthout.org to ensure you receive our messages

Truthout is a proud member of the New spaper Guild/CWA, Local 36047

Subscribe | Unsubscribe

Privacy Policy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
To:	"Todd Stern" <sterntd@state.gov> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	5/6/2014 5:47:31 AM
Subject:	Fwd: White House's weather deja vu

Did we get a credit for this?
Promise I didn't leak it

Sent from my iPad

Begin forwarded message:

From: POLITICO Pro <politicoemail@politicopro.com<mailto:politicoemail@politicopro.com>>
Date: May 6, 2014 at 12:30:18 PM AST
To: Tony Podesta <podesta@podesta.com<mailto:podesta@podesta.com>>
Subject: White House's weather deja vu
Reply-To: "politicoemail@politicopro.com<mailto:politicoemail@politicopro.com>" <politicoemail@politicopro.com<mailto:politicoemail@politicopro.com>>

White House's weather deja vu

By Bob King

5/6/14 12:29 PM EDT

The stars of meteorology were aligned as the White House made its case on climate change.

NBC's Al Roker was there, along with more than 100 national and local television weather forecasters — some of them doing their TV hits from the White House lawn. They met with the president and his advisers. And the administration hoped the broadcasters' popular appeal would help sell the public on the need to take action on global warming.

No, that wasn't the big climate-weather outreach<https://www.politicopro.com/story/energy/?id=33545> that the Obama White House held on Tuesday. It was a quite similar event <http://www.nytimes.com/1997/10/02/us/clinton-nudges-tv-forecasters-on-warming.html> that the Clinton White House held in October 1997, as that administration was preparing for discussions of a global climate agreement in Kyoto, Japan.

But yes, Roker was invited both times.

Bracewell & Giuliani energy specialist Frank Maisano pointed out the coincidence Tuesday morning, in an email with the subject line: "Seems like we've done this before."

As with President Barack Obama's event on Tuesday, the hope for then-President Bill Clinton's administration was that the TV forecasters could reach viewers who weren't paying attention to — or being informed by — the usual White House press corps.

"You, just in the way you comment on the events that you cover, may have a real effect on the American people," Clinton told the broadcasters, according to The New York Times' coverage of the two-day seminar. He added, "I do think it's very important, since you have more influence than anybody does on how the American people think about this, that at least you know what you believe and how you think we should proceed."

The Times remarked: "Playing host to the nation's television weather forecasters was the most innovative step in a White House campaign to rally public support for new binding global targets for restricting greenhouse gases."

Of course, the Senate never ratified the Kyoto agreement.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The Obama administration is now in a similar position as it prepares for international talks in Paris with hopes of reaching a binding global agreement on how to counteract climate change. But Obama has also gone ahead with regulations to tackle the problem, including next month's debut of EPA rules meant to throttle greenhouse gas pollution from thousands of power plants.

"The only difference seems to be the underlying use of regulations to do it more effectively this time," Maisano commented. "Clinton and his folks wanted to regulate power plants, but never went that far."

To view online:
https://www.politicopro.com/go/?id=33574

You've received this POLITICO Pro content because your customized settings include: Energy: Receive All Energy Articles. To change your alert settings, please go to https://www.politicopro.com/member/?webaction=viewAlerts.

This email alert has been sent for the exclusive use of POLITICO Pro subscriber Tony Podesta. Forwarding or reproducing the alert without the express, written permission of POLITICO Pro is a violation of federal law and the POLITICO Pro subscription agreement. Copyright © 2014 by POLITICO LLC. To subscribe to Pro, please go to www.politicopro.com<https://www.politicopro.com>.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Barack Obama" <info@barackobama.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/9/2012 6:03:37 AM
Subject:	Insurmountable?

John --

The headlines are talking about how you and I got beat again by the other side in fundraising.

Those headlines aren't going away. I will be outspent in this election. And we will not win the ad wars on TV and radio -- right now, the other side is outspending us on TV by at least 2-to-1 in most battleground states.

And that's OK. But only if we're able to keep the spending gap close enough so that our investments in a truly grassroots campaign pay off.

I believe in that model, and I'm betting that you do, too.

It's moments like these that I need you to act on that belief. Can you make a donation of $3 or more today?

https://donate.barackobama.com/Keep-It-Close

Thank you,

Barack

P.S. -- To say thanks for all you're doing for me and for this campaign, we're inviting a couple grassroots supporters -- and their guests -- to New York for a special event with some basketball greats. Even if you don't share my love for basketball, I'd love to meet you. If you're interested, make a donation here today, and you'll be automatically entered to join us. I may even challenge you to a quick shootaround.

No purchase, payment, or contribution necessary to enter or win. Contributing will not improve chances of winning. Void where prohibited. Entries must be received by August 10th, 2012. You may enter by contributing to Obama for America here , or click here to enter without contributing. Two (2) winners will each receive the following prize package: round-trip tickets for winner and a guest from within the fifty U.S. States, DC, or Puerto Rico to a destination to be determined by Sponsor; hotel accommodations; and tickets for winner and a guest to an event with President Obama on a date, at a venue and for a duration to be determined by Sponsor (approximate retail value of all prizes $3,200). Odds of winning depend on number of entries received and timing of entries received. Promotion open only to U.S. citizens, or lawful permanent U.S. residents who are legal residents of 50 United States, District of Columbia and Puerto Rico and 18 or older (or age of majority under applicable law). Promotion subject to Official Rules and additional restrictions on eligibility. Sponsor: Obama for America, 130 E. Randolph St., Chicago, IL 60601.

Paid for by Obama for America

Contributions or gifts to Obama for America are not tax deductible

This email was sent to: john.podesta@gmail.com.
If that is not your preferred email address, you can update your information here .
We believe that emails are a vital way for the campaign to stay in direct contact with supporters. Click here if you'd like to unsubscribe from these messages.
This campaign is a community, and all ideas are welcome.
We appreciate any feedback you might have -- positive or negative.
Click here to contact the campaign with any questions or concerns.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Doug Band" <doug@presidentclinton.com>
Date:	2/9/2012 1:57:01 PM
Subject:	Re:

thx.

On 2/9/12, Doug Band <doug@presidentclinton.com> wrote:
> Muhtar not interested
>
> Peter seligman pushing for it....

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Lindsay Roitman" <lroitman@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <John.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/23/2015 5:45:44 AM
Subject:	Thank you!

John -- Thank you so much for your time yesterday. I hope you think it was a good use of your time! Erika's event raised $92k! I think both meetings were valuable.

Can you connect me with Dwight Holton in Portland, I think we are going to try and take HRC there in August. Would love to get him involved.

Thanks again, safe travels. See you soon.

--
Lindsay Roitman
Deputy National Finance Director, NW
206-851-5092

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Nat Simons Elan" <NSimons@elanmgmt.com>
To:	"John Podesta (John.podesta@gmail.com)" <John.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/3/2016 4:38:53 PM
Subject:	Talking
Attachments:	winmail.dat

Hi John,

I just texted you, but I wanted to follow it up with a quick email. Do you have any time over the next day or two for a five minute conversation?

Nat

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "James and Gretchen Sandler" <jsgi@pacbell.net>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 10/7/2008 6:25:33 PM
Subject: Re: Ideas for fishery related positions

Bullet number one, Andy Rosenberg was from Josh Reichert at Pew. Bullet number two was from the folks at Oceana, also a big fan of Andy's as you can tell.

On Oct 7, 2008, at 5:29 PM, john.podesta@gmail.com wrote:

> Jim,
> I'll put Rosenberg in the mix at your suggestion. Can you tell me > who these other comments are from?
> John
> Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile
>
> -----Original Message-----
> From: James and Gretchen Sandler <jsgi@pacbell.net>
>
> Date: Thu, 02 Oct 2008 11:41:16
> To: <john.podesta@gmail.com>
> Subject: Ideas for fishery related positions
>
>
> John,
>
> I talked with a few folks about some ideas for candidates for > positions in > the government related to fisheries oversight. Below are some of > their > ideas. Let me know if you would like the sources of these ideas or > more > about the people listed.
>
> Best,
> Jim
>
>
>
> 1) Jim, at this point we have only one recommendation, and that is > Andy
> Rosenberg to head up NOAA. We are trying to come up with a > recommendation > for NMFS as well but it is taking more time than we anticipated as > we are > spending time vetting candidates internally. The following is a > brief > statement regarding Andy¹s qualifications, and why we think he > would be > good. I will also send via another email his biographical > information in > the event you need it.
>
> Dr. Andrew A. Rosenberg would bring to the position of NOAA

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

> Administrator/Under Secretary of Commerce his experience working > both within > and outside of government as a scientist and policy-maker. Dr.
> Rosenberg > has the scientific training and academic credentials to understand the > technical work of NOAA, the practical policy experience from ten > years in > government, and more in non-governmental and international > settings, to > understand the application of environmental science to public > policy. His > work on the US Commission on Ocean Policy, the Joint Ocean Commission > Initiative and other projects have given him a solid basis for > reinvigorating an agency that will play a critical role in shaping > marine > policy in a new Administration. Dr. Rosenberg has worked directly on > contentious issues of ocean management and has a reputation for > technical > strength and problem solving skills. NOAA has great assets but > urgently > needs to change mission, structure and perspective to meet the complex > challenges of climate change, ocean management, and scientific > excellence in > the coming years. Dr. Rosenberg can help re-establish the > principles of > science-based decision making and lead NOAA as a strong agent of > change in > the coming years.
>
>
> 2) Here are the positions we are most interested in, along with > suggestions > of strong potential appointees. Obviously we have not talked to these > people to ascertain their willingness to take the job, but with > that one > qualification (significant especially for the Sec¹y Commerce > names), we¹d > want them to be on either candidate¹s transition list. Let me know > if you > have any questions.
>
>
>
> KEY OCEAN POSITIONS
>
> Secretary of Commerce
> Maria Cantwell
> Leon Panetta
> Tony Knowles
>
> Deputy Secretary of Commerce for Oceans/Atmosphere and NOAA > Administrator
> Leon Panetta
> Andy Rosenberg
> Don Boesch
>
> Assistant Secretary and NOAA Deputy Administrator

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

> Andy Rosenberg
> Sally Yozell, Battelle and former Deputy Undersecretary under Clinton > Billy Causey
>
> Deputy Under Secretary for Oceans and Atmosphere
> Andy Rosenberg
> Roger Griffis, NOAA
>
> Director of NMFS
> Andy Rosenberg
>
> Head of CEQ
> Bobby Kennedy, Jr.
> Frances Beineke
>
> EPA Administrator
> Katie McGinty
> Mark Van Putten
>
> State Department
> Director Oceans and Intl and Env. And Scientific Affairs
> Denny Kelso
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>
>

From: "MileagePlus Program" <MileagePlus@news.united.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 10/9/2015 12:09:34 AM
Subject: Planning a fall getaway? Book hotels and cars with your miles

Simple, convenient and easy: Hotel & Car Awards

To ensure delivery to your inbox, please add MileagePlus@news.united.com to your address book.

View in Web browser

United Airlines - United MileagePlus

MileagePlus # XXXXX888

John, use miles to plan your next trip.

Hotel and Car Awards — The smarter solution for travelers

Wherever your travels take you, book hotels and cars with your miles.

Additional benefits

Experience the convenience of MileagePlus® Hotel and Car Awards when you travel this fall.

Browse thousands of hotels worldwide to find the perfect room or choose from the great selection of cars — all available with miles, or a combination of miles and money.

Find the perfect hotel room:

Book a room ›

Find your ideal ride:

Rent a car ›

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Use your miles to have more fun

My account | Earn award miles | Use award miles | News & offers | My status

Stay connected to United:

united.com Partner offers Unsubscribe Change email address Update email preferences Privacy policy

Terms and conditions:

*Charges for incidentals that you incur while traveling are not included in your original reservation and must be paid by you directly to the hotel property. These charges may include but are not limited to resort fees, hotel energy surcharges, parking fees, babysitting, room service, telephone fees, internet usage fees, in-room movies, mini-bar charges, use of fitness center, gratuities, and other incidentals. Payment for such additional charges must be made in currency, not miles, via a major credit card or similar form of payment, as required by the hotel property. See full hotel terms and conditions .

Miles accrued, awards, and benefits issued are subject to change and are subject to the rules of the United MileagePlus® program, including without limitation the Premier® program (the "MileagePlus Program"), which are expressly incorporated herein. United® may change the MileagePlus Program including, but not limited to, rules, regulations, travel awards and special offers or terminate the MileagePlus Program at any time and without notice. United and its subsidiaries, affiliates and agents are not responsible for any products or services of other participating companies and partners. United and MileagePlus are registered service marks. For complete details about the MileagePlus Program, go to united.com .

See additional MileagePlus terms and conditions .

C000011734 12506 ET01

Don't miss the latest emails; add MileagePlus@news.united.com .
This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com by United Airlines.
Please do not reply to this email. We cannot accept electronic replies to this email address.
Email mileageplus@united.com with any questions about your MileagePlus account or the MileagePlus program.

To contact the sender, write to:
United MileagePlus
900 Grand Plaza Dr.
Houston, TX 77067

© 2015 United Airlines, Inc. All rights reserved.

A STAR ALLIANCE MEMBER

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sarah Stephens" <sarah@democracyinamericas.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 1/1/2016 5:04:36 AM
Subject: Setting the Table for 2016

Having trouble viewing this message? Click Here

January 1, 2016

Dear Friends,

In 2015, as the Cuban and American flags rose in the breeze of diplomacy and engagement, we had an amazing vantage point - seeing the changes from the inside and sharing what we learned and what we believed with all of you.

We are grateful to the leaders and believers who made all of this possible.

Among them, we want to recognize diplomats at the U.S. State Department in Washington and in our new U.S. Embassy in Havana who encouraged our work and, from time to time, made us a part of theirs.

We thank our friends in Congress, old and new, who came away from our trips to Cuba inspired and energized to change U.S. policy, Governors like Andrew Cuomo of New York who capitalized on President Obama's opening to partner with Cuba and create economic opportunity in their states, and the businesses and artists, experts and advocates, who looked to us so they too could become part of this historic change.

We are grateful to the Cubans - especially the amazing women who are central to much of our work - who welcomed us in Havana, Regla, Pinar del Rio, Cojimar and elsewhere; they shared their stories and aspirations with our eleven delegations, so we could better understand Cuba by listening and exchanging with them.

We were, to paraphrase Tennyson, a part of all that we met.

In just a few days from now, we'll be accompanying a delegation led by Governor Terry McAuliffe of Virginia. After food sales to Cuba were legalized in 2000, Virginia was one of the first states to forge a relationship with Cuba, and overtime became one of its most reliable suppliers. Governor McAuliffe has spent years, outside and inside government, engaging with Cuba, hosting its diplomats in Virginia and visiting Cuba. When he returns to Havana, he will be, to say the least, a known commodity to our Cuban hosts.

Our country spent decades using food as a weapon of foreign policy against Cuba. Even after 2000, the weight of U.S. sanctions prevented a full, two-way trade relationship in agriculture products that would have made it easier for Cubans to put food on their tables and bring Cuban agricultural products into our supermarkets and stores.

As this June 2015 report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture makes clear, changes in U.S. policy are needed so that Cuba and the U.S. can resume normal agricultural trade, allowing Cuban and American farms to prosper.

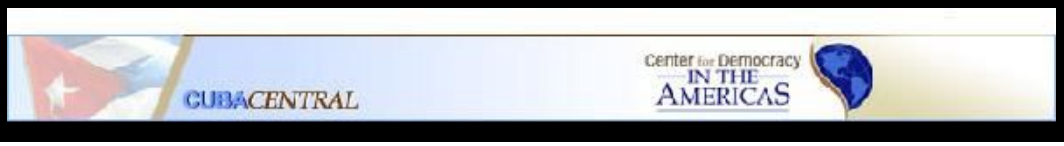
No other sector of the U.S. economy has agitated for better relations - more patiently or effectively - and worked harder to bring the United States and Cuba together than American agriculture.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To drive the process of normalization and engagement forwarded, the U.S. business community and others could hardly do better than following the example set by our farmers.

We hope you have been enjoying the happiest, safest, and most joyful of holidays.

Happy New Year!



Until next time,

The Cuba Central Team

Like our work? Consider a monthly donation!

The Cuba Central Newsblast is produced by the Center for Democracy in the Americas (CDA). CDA is devoted to changing U.S. policy toward Cuba and the other countries of the Americas by basing our relations on mutual respect, fostering dialogue with those governments and movements with which U.S. policy is at odds, and recognizing positive trends in democracy and governance. For more information, check out the CDA website. You can also like us on Facebook or follow us on Twitter .

© 2015 Center for Democracy in the Americas. All rights reserved.

Forward email

SafeUnsubscribe

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com by sarah@democracyinamericas.org | Update Profile/Email Address | Rapid removal with SafeUnsubscribe ™ | About our service provider.

Trusted Email from Constant Contact
Try it FREE today.

Center for Democracy in the Americas | PO Box 53106 NW | Washington | DC | 20009

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Sara Solow" <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Betsaida Alcantara" <balcantara@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 2/17/2016 10:42:59 AM
Subject: Re: FYI: HRC statement on the border in NH

Ok. Current stuff works. Let's just maybe adjust language in DACA sentence to say shed treat them like others with deferred action and not exempt them. And take out the words "follow the law" - so it doesn't look like she's contradicting the last sentence below (even though that was about all undocumented persons and not DACA and dapa in particular)

On Feb 17, 2016, at 5:27 PM, Betsaida Alcantara <balcantara@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

GEORGE STEPHANOPOULOS: Immigration going to be a big issue in this campaign?

In the past, you've said that undocumented immigrants would not be covered by your health care proposals. Here's an exchange we had in 2007.

(BEGIN VIDEO CLIP)

GEORGE STEPHANOPOULOS: Would illegal immigrants be covered under your plan?

CLINTON: Illegal immigrants would not be covered. No. They would not be covered. I will continue to have a safety net, which I think is in the best traditions of our country and also for public health reasons absolutely necessary.

But we did not cover them in '93, '94 and my plan does not cover them now.

(END VIDEO CLIP)

GEORGE STEPHANOPOULOS: Now you say that undocumented immigrants should be able to buy into the exchanges. So why the shift?

HILLARY CLINTON: Well, because number one the kind of plan that was passed in the Affordable Care Act gives you a market-based way of getting into the insurance market. So, if you can afford to buy a policy, you can. You don't get, however, any of the subsidies that American citizens get.

GEORGE STEPHANOPOULOS: Martin O'Malley says they should. Why not?

HILLARY CLINTON: Well, I disagree with him. I think part of comprehensive immigration reform should be looking at all of these issues. But as things stand right now, under the Affordable Care Act, if you have the money and you are undocumented, you can buy into it, but without the subsidies. That's why it's important we continue to support community health centers, we continue to support our hospitals because those are often the places that undocumented people and poor people go.

GEORGE STEPHANOPOULOS: And what's the reason for not going further?

HILLARY CLINTON: Because I don't think legally you can. I mean, that is not something that we can legally support. The law is very clear about that.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 17, 2016, at 1:22 PM, Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

were you able to find the comments she made about health care on the Sunday morning program (I think it was This Week)?

On Wed, Feb 17, 2016 at 3:53 PM, Sara Solow <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Here is what she said in Windham on Nov. 10. It does express support for continued border security -- today. But I think we can use the answer we've prepped, and which you'll see soon, which says: we don't need more walls; we've invested a ton in this and the border is more secure than in years; it's time to focus on CIR.

QUESTION: Hi. Hi, Secretary Clinton. I was wondering what you think about, like, securing the Mexican border with some of the illegal immigrants that come in. Just wondering.

HILLARY CLINTON: Well, look, I voted numerous times when I was a senator to spend money to build a barrier to try to prevent illegal immigrants from coming in, and I do think you have to control your borders. But I think that it's also true that we need to do more to try to, number one, deal with the people who are already here, many of whom have been here for decades, because it is just never going to happen that we're going to round up and deport 11 or 12 million people. I don't care how tall the wall is or how big the door is, that is never going to happen. (Applause.) And I think it is an unnecessarily provocative thing to say. We need to secure our borders; I'm for it, I voted for it, I believe in it. And we also need to deal with the families, the workers who are here, who have made contributions, and their children. And we – Mexican immigration no longer is really the issue. The Mexican economy is doing well enough, we've had no net Mexican immigration in the last several years. We now get immigrants from Central America and Latin America, and a lot of them make a very dangerous trip with smugglers and traffickers to try to get into our country, and we need to do more to try to put some resources into those countries to try to deal with some of the conditions, particularly the violence, the drug dealers and the like that create that.

And we have an example of how effective the United States can be. When my husband was President, as you remember, there was a war going on in Colombia by drug traffickers and insurgent rebels. It was such a violent war that elected officials, business leaders, academics were being kidnapped, many of them murdered, otherwise held for ransom. And we did something called Plan Colombia, where we helped the government figure out how to secure their country from drug traffickers and rebels, and it took a number of years, but now it's a success story.

So we can do more to stop the problem from where it starts. We can do more to secure our border. And we should do more to deal with the 11 or 12 million people who are here, get them out of the shadows because we will have a better economic outcome if we do that. Because what happens now is if you're undocumented you will work for as little as you can be paid, and that influences the labor market and takes away jobs from Americans because there's no even playing field. If we get them out of the shadows and we enforce the labor laws, we will see a much better labor market for Americans and we will also see much more contribution into the Social Security and Medicare system as well as the taxes. I mean, right now we know that undocumented workers pay into the Social Security system many billions of dollars, but it could be even more.

So yeah, we have to do all of that. And to talk about just one piece of it I think is misleading and doesn't help us get to where we can solve the problems that we face. (Applause.)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "The Almanac of American Politics 2010" <aap@njp-media.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 6/24/2009 2:59:29 AM
Subject: Which governor won a “Mr. Tight Jeans” contest?

Republican Gov. Butch Otter of Idaho once entered and won a "Mr. Tight Jeans" contest at the Rockin' Rodeo bar in Boise.

However, Otter's ability to fit into tight pants did not translate into legislative success. In 2008, he had difficulty getting many of his proposals through the Legislature, even though he had Republican majorities in both chambers. He proposed an 11% increase in the state's budget, a 5% pay raise for state employees and an increase in vehicle-registration fees to fund road repairs, all of which the Legislature either modified or rejected outright.

You will find these and many other interesting facts in The Almanac of American Politics 2010 .
The 2010 Almanac also includes:

- A statistical breakdown of the 2008 presidential vote by state and congressional district.
- In-depth profiles and photographs of every governor, senator and House members.
- Updated demographic information for every district and state from the Census Bureau’s American Community Survey.
- More than 60 state and congressional district maps, census data and information on everything from campaign expenditures to voting records to interest group ratings and more.
- Michael Barone’s expert predictions of winners and losers in 2010 redistricting.

Two easy ways to pre-order:

- Use this online order form
- Call our client services at 800-356-4838

As we are just weeks away before the 2010 Almanac publishes, don't miss your chance to be among the first to pre-order The Almanac of American Politics 2010. Reserve your copy today!

National Journal Group • The Watergate • 600 New Hampshire Ave NW • Washington, DC 20037
Don't want to receive any more offers? Click here to Unsubscribe

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Amy Dacey" <amy@fundforamerica.net>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "John Stocks" <jstocks@nea.org> "Anna Burger" <anna.burger@seiu.org> "Robert McKay" <rmckay@mckayfund.org> "Frank Smith" <fes33@aol.com>
Date:	5/13/2008 9:20:02 AM
Subject:	Ben Smith and outside groups

I talked to Ben on background and reiterated who the Fund is and what we do and then directed him to Kirk Adams as a better source for clarification from the candidate side..

This was the result on his blog.. Not good

Shutting down the independent groups

My story on Politico:

Senator Barack Obama's campaign is steering the candidate's wealthy supporters away from independent Democratic groups, calling into question what had been expected to be the groups' central role in this year's Democratic offensive against Senator John McCain.

Obama's national finance chairwoman, Chicago hotel mogul Penny Pritzker, told supporters at a national finance committee meeting in Indianapolis May 2, and in other conversations, not to give money to the groups, people familiar with her comments said.

"From the beginning of this race Obama has told supporters that if they want to help his effort, they should do so through his campaign," said Obama spokesman Bill Burton, who confirmed that Pritzker has told donors not to give to the groups. "And he means exactly what he says."

Most presidential candidates say they don't encourage the outside groups, and donors are accustomed to taking those words with a grain of salt. The candidates' words are typically seen as mere legal defenses against allegations that the campaigns are illicitly coordinating with outside groups.

The donors have been considering entreaties from Progressive Media USA, run by conservative-journalist turned liberal media critic David Brock; from former Clinton aide John Podesta's Fund for America; and from America Votes, a group backed by billionaire George Soros that focuses on voter mobilization, among other efforts.

But in recent days, major donors have begun to conclude that Obama is serious in trying to cut off funds to the outside groups.

"It's given donors pause," said one prominent Democratic donor of Pritzker's words.

--
Amy K. Dacey
Executive Director
Fund for America
202-730-7727

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/21/2015 5:46:04 AM
Subject:	TWEETS 8/21

TWEETS 8/21

Learned a lot from folks I met on my trip to South Carolina this week. Excited to work w/ them. Follow @HillaryforSC.

The CA drought puts lives & livelihoods at risk. We must act now for our kids, grandkids. We are all responsible. http://nyti.ms/1Po5xly

RETWEETS 8/21

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
o: 646.854.1198 c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	3/4/2015 7:51:59 AM
Subject:	Call Cheryl?

Hey -- Sorry to be so cryptic. Didn't want to throw Robby's name around any more than necessary.

Robby is hoping you can call Cheryl before you get on the train. He said you'd know why. She is surprisingly available for the whole 3 pm hour, on her cell.

Also, less urgently, now that you know about the MTP request, there's one more new one that Robby will soon know about:
FOX News Sunday with Chris Wallace is requesting you explicitly on the HRC emails. Timing is 9 am out of DC.

Thanks,
Eryn

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Neera Tanden" <ntanden@americanprogress.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Brian DeMarco" <bdemarco@americanprogress.org>
Date:	3/5/2016 1:53:10 PM
Subject:	Re: Weird question

I don't think so but adding Brian to check when he's in office.

Sent from my iPhone

> On Mar 5, 2016, at 3:51 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> has CAP or CAPAF received any contributions from NRDC Action Fund? I used to be on their board and they have a 5 year look back on Board conflicts. The reporting period is 6/14-present

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Megan Rooney" <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	3/12/2016 12:54:03 PM
Subject:	REVISED FINAL: AIDS statement
Attachments:	2016-3-12 HRC statement on hiv and aids 730PM CLEAN.docx 2016-3-12 HRC statement on hiv and aids 730PM TRACKED.docx

OK, just a few more little tweaks from the road. THIS is now good to go. Thank you all.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 7:24 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
Please hold.

On Mar 12, 2016, at 7:12 PM, Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

!!!!

On Saturday, March 12, 2016, Lauren Peterson <lpeterson@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
Thank you!! Will post on medium ASAP -- please shout if anyone has objections.

On Mar 12, 2016, at 7:10 PM, Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

+ Speech drafts for everyone's visibility

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 7:09 PM, Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
The Secretary approved the statement, with small tweaks. Attached are two versions, tracked and clean. This is good to go. Thanks all.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 5:06 PM, Lauren Peterson <lpeterson@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
Apologies, this is the correct version.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 5:00 PM, Lauren Peterson <lpeterson@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
Updated here.

Thank you!

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 4:59 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
Megan can you send back? Need to print.

On Mar 12, 2016, at 4:51 PM, Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Pls make one small change. Swap this out for current PEPFAR sentence:

We should increase global funding for HIV and AIDS prevention and treatment.

On Mar 12, 2016, at 4:39 PM, Lauren Peterson <lpeterson@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Also + Corey!

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 4:15 PM, Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
OK everybody -- here is the latest revised draft. New first graf. Everything else is the same.

Nick is getting this to her.

HILLARY RODHAM CLINTON

STATEMENT ON HIV AND AIDS

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Yesterday, at Nancy Reagan's funeral, I said something inaccurate when speaking about the Reagans' record on HIV and AIDS. Since then, I've heard from countless people who were devastated by the loss of friends and loved ones, and hurt and disappointed by what I said, and I understand why. I made a mistake, plain and simple.

I want to use this opportunity to talk not only about where we've come from but where we must go in the fight against HIV and AIDS.

To be clear, the Reagans did not start a national conversation about HIV and AIDS. Unfortunately, the opposite was true. That distinction belongs to generations of brave men and women who started not just a conversation but a movement that continues to this day.

The AIDS crisis in America began as a quiet, deadly epidemic. Because of discrimination and disregard, it remained that way for far too long. When many in positions of power turned a blind eye, it was groups like ACT UP, Gay Men's Health Crisis and others that came forward to shatter the silence. They organized and marched, held die-ins on the steps of city halls and vigils in the streets. They fought alongside a few courageous voices in Washington, like U.S. Representative Henry Waxman, who spoke out from the floor of Congress.

Then there were all the people whose names we don't often hear today – the unsung heroes who fought on the frontlines of the crisis, from hospital wards and bedsides, some with their last breath. Slowly, too slowly, ignorance was crowded out by information. People who had once closed their eyes opened their hearts.

If not for those advocates, activists and ordinary, heroic people, we would not be where we are in preventing and treating HIV and AIDS. Their courage – and their refusal to accept silence as the status quo – saved lives.

We've come a long way. But we still have work to do to eradicate this disease for good and to erase the stigma that is an echo of a shameful and painful period in our country's history.

This issue is important to me. At the 1992 Democratic National Convention, when my husband accepted the nomination for president, we marked a break with the past by having two HIV-positive speakers -- the first time that ever happened at a national convention. As First Lady, I brought together world leaders to strategize and coordinate efforts to take on HIV and AIDS around the world. In the Senate, I put forward legislation to expand global AIDS research and assistance and to increase prevention and education. And as Secretary of State, I launched a campaign to usher in an AIDS-free generation through prevention and treatment, targeting the populations at greatest risk of contracting HIV.

The AIDS crisis looks very different today. There are more options for treatment and prevention than ever before. More people with HIV are leading full and happy lives. But HIV and AIDS are still with us. They continue to disproportionately impact communities of color, transgender people, young people and gay and bisexual men. There are still 1.2 million people living with HIV in the United States today, with about 50,000 people newly diagnosed each year. In Sub-Saharan Africa, almost 60 percent of people with HIV are women and girls. Even though the tools exist to end this epidemic once and for all, there are still far too many people dying today. That is absolutely inexcusable.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

I believe there's even more we can – and must – do together. For starters, let's continue to increase HIV and AIDS research and invest in the promising innovations that research is producing. Medications like PrEP are proving effective in preventing HIV infection; we should expand access to that drug for everyone, including at-risk populations. We should call on Republican governors to put people's health and well-being ahead of politics and extend Medicaid, which would provide healthcare to those with HIV and AIDS. We should call on states to reform outdated and stigmatizing HIV criminalization laws. We should increase funding for the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR). And we should cap out-of-pocket expenses and drug costs, and hold companies like Turing and Valeant accountable when they attempt to gouge patients by jacking up the price of lifesaving medications.

We're still surrounded by memories of loved ones lost and lives cut short. But we're also surrounded by survivors who are fighting harder than ever. We owe it to them and to future generations to continue that fight together. For the first time, an AIDS-free generation is in sight. As president, I promise you that I will not let up until we reach that goal. We will not leave anyone behind.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 4:09 PM, Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> I am on the phone with Nick now
>
> On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 4:06 PM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Nick what do we have to do to get this out?
> >
> > On Mar 12, 2016, at 4:04 PM, Lauren Peterson <lpeterson@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Edits, rather -- they updated a few of the numbers. Sorry!
> > >
> > > On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 4:02 PM, Lauren Peterson <lpeterson@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > Here is an updated version with a few notes from research.
> > > >
> > > > I think we really should do everything we can to get this up today, if at all possible (fingers crossed). Does not seem to be dying down online, either.
> > > >
> > > > On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 4:01 PM, Xochitl Hinojosa <xhinojosa@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > >
> > > > > Flagging that there was a whole segment on MSNBC where someone with HIV/AIDS said that HRC's apology wasn't enough. Buzzfeed is also writing a follow up piece on whether our supporters and activists were satisfied. While I pointed them to folks who can be helpful, I'm sure they'll find supporters who aren't satisfied. LGBT media is also hearing from angry people.
> > > > >
> > > > > On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 3:56 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > >
> > > > > > Adding Maya.
> > > > > >
> > > > > > On Mar 12, 2016, at 3:26 PM, Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > > >
> > > > > > OK everyone --
> > > > > >
> > > > > > Here is a revised draft of a statement. It does include the words "I made a mistake" in the first line.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

We need a strategy for getting her to approve this. I don't know if that means someone who is traveling with her (Maya?) making the case... or something else.

File attached as well.

Nick -- I am officially handing this off to you!

**

Yesterday, at Nancy Reagan's funeral, I made a mistake in speaking about the Reagans' record on HIV and AIDS. Since then, I've heard from countless people who were devastated by the loss of friends and loved ones, and hurt and disappointed by what I said, and I understand why. My comment was just wrong.

I want to use this opportunity to talk not only about where we've come from but where we must go in the fight against HIV and AIDS.
To be clear, the Reagans did not start a national conversation about HIV and AIDS. Unfortunately, the opposite was true. That distinction belongs to generations of brave men and women who started not just a conversation but a movement that continues to this day.
The AIDS crisis in America began as a quiet, deadly epidemic. Because of discrimination and disregard, it remained that way for far too long. When many in positions of power turned a blind eye, it was groups like ACT UP, Gay Men's Health Crisis and others that came forward to shatter the silence. They organized and marched, held die-ins on the steps of city halls and vigils in the streets. They fought alongside a few courageous voices in Washington, like U.S. Representative Henry Waxman, who spoke out from the floor of Congress.

Then there were all the people whose names we don't often hear today – the unsung heroes who fought on the frontlines of the crisis, from hospital wards and bedsides, some with their last breath. Slowly, too slowly, ignorance was crowded out by information. People who had once closed their eyes opened their hearts.
If not for those advocates, activists and ordinary, heroic people, we would not be where we are in preventing and treating HIV and AIDS. Their courage – and their refusal to accept silence as the status quo – saved lives.
We've come a long way. But we still have work to do to eradicate this disease for good and to erase the stigma that is an echo of a shameful and painful period in our country's history.
I've been committed to this work for a long time. At the 1992 Democratic National Convention, when my husband accepted the nomination for president, we marked a break with the past by having two HIV-positive speakers -- the first time that ever happened at a national convention. As First Lady, I brought together world leaders to strategize and coordinate efforts to take on HIV and AIDS around the world. In the Senate, I put forward legislation to expand global AIDS research and assistance and to increase prevention and education. And as Secretary of State, I launched a campaign to usher in an AIDS-free generation through prevention and treatment, targeting the populations at greatest risk of contracting HIV.

The AIDS crisis looks very different today. There are more options for treatment and prevention than ever before. More people with HIV are leading full and happy lives. But HIV and AIDS are still with us. They continue to disproportionately impact communities of color, transgender people, young people and gay and bisexual men. There are still 1.2 million people living with HIV in the United States today, with 40,000 people newly diagnosed each year.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

In Sub-Saharan Africa, more than 60 percent of people with HIV are women and girls. Even though the tools exist to end this epidemic once and for all, there are still far too many people dying today. That is absolutely inexcusable.

I believe there's even more we can – and must – do together. For starters, let's continue to increase HIV and AIDS research and invest in the promising innovations that research is producing. Medications like PrEP are proving effective in preventing HIV infection; we should expand access to that drug for everyone, including at-risk populations. We should call on Republican governors to put people's health and well-being ahead of politics and extend Medicaid, which would provide healthcare to those with HIV and AIDS. We should call on states to reform outdated and stigmatizing HIV criminalization laws. We should increase funding for the President's Emergency Plan for AIDS Relief (PEPFAR). And we should cap out-of-pocket expenses and drug costs, and hold companies like Turing and Valeant accountable when they attempt to gouge patients by jacking up the price of lifesaving medications.

We're still surrounded by memories of loved ones lost and lives cut short. But we're also surrounded by survivors who are fighting harder than ever. We owe it to them and to future generations to continue that fight together. For the first time, an AIDS-free generation is in sight. As president, I promise you that I will not let up until we reach that goal. We will not leave anyone behind.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 3:01 PM, Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> HIV and AIDS is way more elegant, too.
>
> I think the chances of her OK-ing this statement with that top are slim. Lauren is walking that back a little. We will have a revised draft to send around shortly.
>
> On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 2:33 PM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Chad's suggestions in all caps. We alway s need to say HIV and AIDS not HIV/AIDS.
> >
> > YESTERDAY I MADE A MISTAKE IN SPEAKING ABOUT NANCY REAGAN'S record on HIV AND AIDS. I've heard from countless people who are hurt and disappointed by what I said, WHO WERE DEVASTATED BY THE LOSSES OF THEIR FRIENDS AND LOVED ONES. I'M SORRY FOR THE PAIN MY COMMENTS CAUSED AND I WANT TO USE THIS OPPORTUNITY TO TALK ABOUT NOT ONLY WHERE WE'VE COME FROM BUT WHERE WE MUST GO IN THIS FIGHT AGAINST HIV AND AIDS.
> > TO BE CLEAR, The Reagans did not start a national conversation about HIV AND AIDS – unfortunately, the opposite was true. That distinction belongs to generations of brave men and w omen who started not just a conversation, but a movement that continues to this day.
> > The AIDS crisis in America began as a quiet, deadly epidemic. When many in positions of power turned a blind eye, it was groups like ACT UP, Gay Men's Health Crisis, and others that came forw ard to shatter the silence. They organized and marched, held die-ins on the steps of city halls and vigils in the streets. They fought alongside a few courageous voices in Washington, like U.S. Representative Henry Waxman, who spoke out from the floor of Congress.
> >
> > And then there w ere all the people whose names we don't often hear today – the unsung heroes who fought on the frontlines of the crisis, from hospital wards and bedsides, some w ith their last breath. Slowly – too slowly – ignorance was crowded out by information. People who had once closed their eyes opened their hearts.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

If not for those advocates, activists, and ordinary people, we would not be w here we are in preventing and treating HIV AND AIDS. Their courage – and their refusal to accept silence as the status quo – saved lives.
We've come a long way since. But we still have work to do to eradicate this disease for good, and erase the stigma that is an echo of a shameful and painful period in our country's history. This is w ork that I've been committed to for a long time. As First Lady, I brought together world leaders to strategize and coordinate efforts to take on HIV AND AIDS around the globe. In the Senate, I put forward legislation to expand global AIDS research and assistance, and increase prevention and education. And as Secretary of State, I launched a campaign to usher in an AIDS-free generation through prevention and treatment, targeting the populations at greatest risk of contracting HIV (including key populations at risk of discrimination), and investing in innovative research and technology.

I believe there's even more we can do together. For starters, we should call on Republican governors to put people's health and well-being ahead of politics and extend Medicaid, which would provide health care to those living w ith HIV AND AIDS. And we should cap out-of-pocket expenses, and hold companies like Turing and Valeant accountable when they attempt to gouge prices of lifesaving medications. And we should expand access to medications like PrEP.
The AIDS crisis looks very different today. We're still surrounded by memories of loved ones lost and lives cut short. But we're also surrounded by survivors who are fighting harder than ever. We owe it to them, and to future generations, to continue that fight together. There are more options for treatment and prevention than ever before. BUT IN EXCUSABLY, HIV AND AIDS CONTINUES TO DISPROPORTIONATELY IMPACT COMMUNITIES OF COLOR, TRANSGENDER PEOPLE, YOUTH AND STILL GAY AND BISEXUAL MEN. WHEN THE TOOLS EXIST TO END THIS EPIDEMIC ONCE AND FOR ALL, THERE ARE STILL FAR TOO MANY PEOPLE DYING TODAY.

More people with HIV are leading full, happy lives. For the first time, an AIDS-free generation is in sight. And AS PRESIDENT, I PROMISE YOU THAT I WILL NOT let up until we reach that goal.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 2:08 PM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Sure.

From: Teddy Goff [mailto:tgoff@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Saturday, March 12, 2016 2:07 PM
To: Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Lauren Peterson <lpeterson@hillaryclinton.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >; Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >; Dominic Lowell < dlowell@hillaryclinton.com>; Dennis Cheng <dcheng@hillaryclinton.com >; Jessica Morales Rocketto <jmoralesrocketto@hillaryclinton.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >; Jenna Lowenstein <jlowenstein@hillaryclinton.com >; Xochitl Hinojosa <xhinojosa@hillaryclinton.com >; Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com >; Zac Petkanas <zpetkanas@hillaryclinton.com >; Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; Nick Merrill

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

<nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; Aditi Hardikar <ahardikar@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: Re: looping back on yesterday

Could we delete "and I said so right away"? Don't think that gets us any extra credit and think it just sounds a hair defensive.

On Saturday, March 12, 2016, Megan Rooney <mrooney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Per Jake, we're tweaking the opening graf here. Otherwise no changes yet to the rest of this statement. To create a process here, please send Lauren and me your edits by 230pm. Then we'll get this out.
>
> I've heard from countless people who are hurt and disappointed by what I said yesterday at Nancy Reagan's funeral about the Reagans' record on HIV/AIDS, and I understand why. The comment was just wrong, and I said so right away.
>
> The Reagans did not start a national conversation about HIV/AIDS. Unfortunately, the opposite is true. That distinction belongs to generations of brave men and women who started not just a conversation, but a movement that continues to this day.
>
> The AIDS crisis in America began as a quiet, deadly epidemic. When many in positions of power turned a blind eye, it was groups like ACT UP, Gay Men's Health Crisis, and others that came forward to shatter the silence. They organized and marched, held die-ins on the steps of city halls and vigils in the streets. They fought alongside a few courageous voices in Washington, like U.S. Representative Henry Waxman, who spoke out from the floor of Congress.
>
> Then there were all the people whose names we don't hear and maybe don't even know – the unsung heroes who fought on the front lines of the crisis, from hospital wards and bedsides, some with their last breath. Slowly, too slowly, ignorance was crowded out by information. People who had once closed their eyes opened their hearts.
>
> If not for those advocates, activists, and ordinary people, we would not be where we are in preventing and treating HIV/AIDS. Their courage and their refusal to accept silence as the status quo saved lives.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

We've come a long way since. But we still have work to do to eradicate this disease for good, and erase the stigma that is an echo of a shameful and painful period in our country's history.

This is work that I've been committed to for a long time. As First Lady, I brought together world leaders to strategize and coordinate efforts to take on HIV/AIDS around the globe. In the Senate, I put forward legislation to expand global AIDS research and assistance, and increase prevention and education. And as Secretary of State, I launched a campaign to usher in an AIDS-free generation through prevention and treatment, targeting the populations at greatest risk of contracting HIV (including key populations at risk of discrimination), and investing in innovative research and technology.

I believe there's even more we can do together. For starters, we should call on Republican governors to put people's health and well-being ahead of politics and extend Medicaid, which would provide health care to those living with HIV/AIDS. And we should cap out-of-pocket expenses, and hold companies like Turing and Valeant accountable when they attempt to gouge prices of lifesaving medications. And we should expand access to medications like PrEP.

The AIDS crisis looks very different today. We're still surrounded by memories of loved ones lost and lives cut short. But we're also surrounded by survivors who are fighting harder than ever. We owe it to them, and to future generations, to continue that fight together. There are more options for treatment and prevention than ever before. More people with HIV are leading full, happy lives. For the first time, an AIDS-free generation is in sight. And we can't let up until we reach that goal.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 1:15 PM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Adding Megan to work with our team to get something good cranked out. Shouldn't be too hard. Megan, you might also enlist Baer.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Robby Mook [mailto:re47@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Saturday, March 12, 2016 1:06 PM
To: Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >; Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com >; Dennis Cheng <dcheng@hillaryclinton.com >; Jessica Morales Rocketto <jmoralesrocketto@hillaryclinton.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >; Jenna Lowenstein <jlowenstein@hillaryclinton.com >; Lauren Peterson <lpeterson@hillaryclinton.com >; Xochitl Hinojosa <xhinojosa@hillaryclinton.com >; Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com >; Zac Petkanas <zpetkanas@hillaryclinton.com >; Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; Aditi Hardikar <ahardikar@hillaryclinton.com >; jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com
Subject: Re: looping back on yesterday

Jake/Maya can someone on your team draft ASAP?

On Mar 12, 2016, at 1:03 PM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> I support doing this today.
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Mar 12, 2016, at 12:59 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Could she do a medium post or something like that on AIDS policy? She could open it by saying she misspoke and apologizes for that and wanted to make sure people understand what she will do.
> >
> > On Mar 12, 2016, at 12:43 PM, Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > And Robby whom I apparently did not successfully loop earlier.
> > >
> > > On Saturday, March 12, 2016, Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > +Aditi

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Definitely a both / and.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 12:38 PM, Dennis Cheng <dcheng@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> My tw o cents – I think this will be helpful, but don't think it will be enough. I think a lot of our people (esp those who are older who lived through the 80s) want to see and hear her address it directly, given that they saw and heard her Reagan remarks on TV. And I think they are looking for more of an explanation, as Teddy mentioned, because they are just so dumbfounded by the comment. But agree that it can then be an opportunity for HRC to talk about her policy agenda for an AIDS free generation, etc.
>
> From: Jessica Morales Rocketto [mailto:jmoralesrocketto@hillaryclinton.com]
> Sent: Saturday, March 12, 2016 12:32 PM
> To: Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >
> Cc: Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >; Jenna Lowenstein <jlowenstein@hillaryclinton.com >; Lauren Peterson <lpeterson@hillaryclinton.com >; Xochitl Hinojosa <xhinojosa@hillaryclinton.com >; Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com >; Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com >; Zac Petkanas <zpetkanas@hillaryclinton.com >; Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com >; dcheng@hillaryclinton.com ; Jen Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >
> Subject: Re: looping back on yesterday
>
> Have floated this idea in a couple of places, but putting it on this thread as well--we have two places online that we could respond to in terms of digital organizing perspective. There is an Out for Hillary group with 14k members that I think some kind of extended engagment over this would be helpful--an AMA with Dominic/Robby/Dennis, a special Note (which is a long form format over Facebook), re-purposing the Medium piece there, etc would go a long way. Our other option is Reddit, which has an extremely vocal core of LGBT members, but I would prioritize this Facebook group, which is the largest LGBT community of Hillary's supporters I know. These are friendlies, they are already carrying water for us making sure the apology is out there, and they firmly sit in groups 1 and 2 that Dom identified.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Whatever we did to send our LGBT talking points to folks has really worked, they are popping up everywhere on the supporter Facebook groups.

On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 11:39 AM, Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> + Robby too for visibility
>
> On Saturday, March 12, 2016, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > I agree something more is needed. A Facebook or Medium post would be good. Also I agree with Dom that we should lean into her policy more.
> >
> > I stayed with Chad last night who was receiving lots of angry calls and notes from people that he didn't call her out by name. He wouldn't do that to her and kept stressing she just made a mistake, but suggested we need to do something more today to protect her. She has a great record and we lost a lot of ground messaging-wise.
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Mar 12, 2016, at 10:53 AM, Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> + a few from both digital and comms
>
> I think our lingering problem on this is that people just don't understand, on a fact level, what happened and how she could have gotten so mixed up. And in the absence of any explanatory information, they assume the worst -- like that this was some cynical political strategy of ours. (Which, I would note, makes no sense -- why would our strategy be to piss everyone off? -- but regardless.)
>
> So I would vote to do a little something just to give people an understanding of how this happened, and then pivot to something else -- maybe that's celebrating the people who really did start a national conversation on AIDS, or something else.
>
> Believe LP is working on a draft that could be a Facebook note or a Medium post, just to give something to react to.
>
> On Sat, Mar 12, 2016 at 9:25 AM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> > And Jen and Teddy. This is helpful--thanks Dom!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Mar 12, 2016, at 10:18 AM, Xochitl Hinojosa <xhinojosa@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

Adding Dennis

On Mar 12, 2016, at 10:13 AM, Dominic Lowell <dlowell@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

Hi all,

I wanted to start a new thread to give a brief update about what I'm hearing from folks and get up to speed on how we're thinking of responding in the short and long term. (Sending to a smaller group from yesterday's call but please do loop in others who should be a part of this convo.)

First, as you can imagine, most people are expressing palpable anger and hurt over the comments. I won't belabor the point because I'm sure we all fielded calls, texts, tweets in the last 24 hours over this. But suffice to say, we aren't in a good place with the community right now.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

If I had to break things down, I'd put people into three categories: 1) supporters who were horrified at the comment but accept the apology; 2) supporters who are angry and can only be mollified with a longer statement, tv appearance, roundtable, or something else big that shows she "gets it." They will continue to make hay in the meantime; and 3) Bernie folks who are happy to have a new line of attack.

What concerns me is that in that second group are a lot folks from Queer Nation, ACT UP, and other activists who are out, loud, and not afraid of direct action or aggressive confrontation. Given that, I'd love if we could build on yesterday's response -- and quickly. I don't want this to fester.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

I assume we're prepping an answer for tomorrow's town hall, but has there been talk in the office of doing more today?

Looking ahead, is it possible to bump up an HIV / AIDS policy rollout? Is there any interest in putting a roundtable conversation or OTR together? (Robbie Kaplan has already volunteered GMHC.)

Would love to know where your heads are at and to be a part of the conversation today about next steps and moving forward.

Thanks,

D.

--

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Dominic Lowell

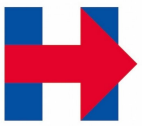
LGBT Outreach Director | Hillary for America

661.364.5186

dlowell@hillaryclinton.com

--

Dominic Lowell



LGBT Outreach Director | Hillary for America

661.364.5186

dlowell@hillaryclinton.com

--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America

<2016-3-12 HRC statement on hiv and aids.docx>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

<2016-3-12 HRC statement on hiv and aids 645pm TRACKED.docx>

<2016-3-12 HRC statement on hiv and aids 645pm CLEAN.docx>

--
Dominic Lowell
LGBT Outreach Director | Hillary for America
661.364.5186
dlowell@hillaryclinton.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "GARCETTI FOR MAYOR" <info@ericgarcetti.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 9/3/2012 2:03:59 PM
Subject: LABOR DAY & PRIORITIES

Eric Garcetti FOR MAYOR 2013

Dear Friend:

As we celebrate our nation's workers today, we must also remember those millions who need jobs now -- for their families' sake and for the sake of all of us.

This Labor Day is an opportunity to make it clear to Washington, Sacramento and our own City Hall that jobs must be the number one priority. More jobs mean more mortgages being paid, more groceries being bought and more savings being put away for college. And businesses and jobs are what generate the resources needed to support any other priorities we have, whether the environment, transportation or public safety.

That's what I'm doing right now at the Democratic National Convention in my capacities as an L.A. official and as a member of the DNC Executive Board, Chair of Democratic Municipal Officials and Vice Chair of the Convention Rules Committee. And that's what I've been working on every day back home in L.A.

You may have seen media coverage last week of the streets department saying that a study to fix our sidewalks would cost more than $10 million and take three years to complete -- not three years to fix our sidewalks, three years to study them. That's outrageous, and I joined with Councilmembers Rosendahl and Buscaino to introduce official action demanding that this study be sent back to the drawing board.

But the larger issue that was highlighted is one of jobs and the economy and how that fits into the City Hall discussion. And right now that discussion is too focused on cuts and taxes.

When it comes to cuts, there is no doubt that we must act when taxpayer dollars are being wasted. But we have to look beyond cuts, for example, when the fact is no money has been spent on a full sidewalk replacement in Los Angeles since 2008. And when it comes to taxes, the current city tax system is unfair, too high, and too complex, and so the priority must be on reforming it first.

We must realize that the resources to pay for sidewalk repairs -- and to put cops on the street, firefighters in our stations, books in our libraries and facilities in our parks -- are generated by economic activity. They're generated when more people are working. I'm focused on jobs on this Labor Day and every day because that's the only way forward, and jobs are what Angelenos need most right now.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

-Eric

Paid for by Garcetti for Mayor 2013
FPPC ID# 1341339
22647 Ventura Blvd. #301 Los Angeles, CA 91364

Eric Garcetti- Los Angeles Mayor 2013
United States

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com . Unsubcribe . | Created with NationBuilder .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com>
To:	"Marc Elias" <melias@perkinscoie.com>
Date:	4/5/2015 5:27:51 AM
Subject:	Granholm

Marc,
As we discussed, we'd like Granholm to leave Priorities and be a volunteer surrogate for us. We don't want to give out any titles at the beginning of the campaign, but we'd like her to get to work for us right away and we can determine titles later.
Thanks for reaching out
Robby

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	john.podesta@gmail.com
To:	laurasnichols@yahoo.com
Date:	11/1/2008 4:12:39 PM
Subject:	Delivered: Schedule/Cabinet appt history
Attachments:	Attach 1

Your message was delivered to the recipient.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Tony Carrk" <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	5/25/2015 8:05:56 AM
Subject:	Awesome Show

Did we fact ck her indonesia awesome show story?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Maya Harris" <mharris@hillaryclinton.com>
"Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 10/29/2015 9:05:15 AM
Subject: Fwd: Fw: CREDO: Secretary Clinton must oppose Social Security benefit cuts

More hedging for the general? Why is she weaseling on the retirement age?

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Date: Thursday, October 29, 2015
Subject: Fw: CREDO: Secretary Clinton must oppose Social Security benefit cuts
To: Brent Budowsky <brentbbi@webtv.net >

This is more Bernie bullshit. She's against raising the retirement age and cuts.

On Thursday, October 29, 2015, Brent Budowsky <brentbbi@webtv.net > wrote:

If Hillary Clinton is seriously considering supporting any cut in social security and/or an increase in the retirement age there may be an argument for voters to cast a protest vote for Bernie in Iowa and New Hampshire. I will soon be writing a column calling for an increase in social security financed by a speculation transaction tax and will directly address HRCS position based on whatever it is when I write the column. Seniors will be livid when they realize they will get no social security cola when their cost of living keeps rising.

Sent from my BlackBerry 10 smartphone on the Verizon Wireless 4G LTE network.

From: Josh Nelson <jnelson@credoaction.com >
Sent: Thursday, October 29, 2015 3:02 PM
To: Josh Nelson
Subject: CREDO: Secretary Clinton must oppose Social Security benefit cuts

CREDO Action released the following statement in response to a report that Secretary Hillary Clinton did not rule out cuts to Social Security and raising the retirement age in her remarks at a campaign event in New Hampshire on Wednesday:

> "Democratic primary voters deserve to know exactly where Secretary Clinton stands on Social Security," said Murshed Zaheed, CREDO's deputy political director. "Sec. Clinton needs to draw a line in the sand and make it clear that she will veto any bill that cuts Social Security benefits or raises the retirement age."

Secretary Clinton's full remarks on Social Security at Wednesday's "politics and eggs" luncheon at Saint Anselm College can be found below:

> Yes you know, I think there are three parts to what we have to do with social security and the first is we really have to defend social security from the continuing efforts by some to privatize it, which I have been studying and opposing for a long time because the numbers just don't work out. And in the Bush administration when I was in the Senate I was one of the leaders in the fight against the Bush plan to privatize and it is something that I number 1, we'll focus on: we are not going to privatize social security. Secondly, I am concerned about those people on social security who are most vulnerable in terms of what their monthly payout is. That is primarily divorced, widowed, single women who either never worked themselves or worked only a little so they have either just their own earnings to depend on or they had a spouse who also was a low wage worker and the first and most important task I think is to make sure that we get the monthly payment for the poorest social security recipients up. So that would be the first thing I would look at. Thirdly, we do have to consider ways to make sure that the funding of social security does maintain the system. I think we have a number of options, this would be something that I would look at, I do not favor raising the retirement age. And I don't favor it because it might be fine for somebody like me, but the vast majority of working people who have worked hard and have had a difficult, maybe last couple of decades trying to continue to work, it would be very challenging for them. If there were a way to do it that would not penalize or punish laborers and factory workers and long distance truck drivers and people who really are ready for retirement at a much earlier age, I would consider it. But I have yet to find any recommendation that I would think would be suitable. And I want to look at raising the cap, I think that's something we should look at how we do it, because I don't want it to be an extra burden on middle class families and in some parts of the country, you know, there's a different level of income that defines middle class. So what do we skip and what level do we start at? And we have to consider that. So those are my three priorities in looking at social security.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

BACKGROUND

CREDO has played a leading role in the fight to stop any cuts to Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid, and expand the programs. Here are some highlights of CREDO's work so far in 2015:

200,000 ACTIVISTS TO BOEHNER: NO CUTS TO SOCIAL SECURITY BENEFITS: In response to House Republicans' January rule change that stopped the routine reallocation of Social Security payroll tax income from the old-age program to the disability program, more than 200,000 CREDO activists signed a rapid response petition telling Speaker Boehner and House Republicans not to use the rule change to force benefit cuts.

175,000 CREDO ACTIVISTS CONDEMN RAND PAUL'S ATTACK ON SOCIAL SECURITY: When Kentucky Senator Rand Paul said that a majority of people who receive Social Security disability benefits are "gaming the system," CREDO activists fought back. More than 175,000 activists nationwide signed our petition telling Senator Paul to "stop attacking disabled Americans and keep [his] hands off of Social Security."

235,000+ ACTIVISTS URGE CONGRESS TO EXPAND SOCIAL SECURITY: CREDO activists went on offense earlier this year, with more than 239,000 signing a petition telling Congress to expand Social Security benefits.

185,000+ FIGHT TO STOP REPUBLICANS' SNEAK ATTACK ON MEDICARE: In June, more than 188,000 CREDO activists signed a rapid response petition urging Democrats in Congress to reject a Republican plan to pay for Trade Adjustment Assistance with an extension on the sequester on Medicare payments.

DONATED $84,000+ TO SOCIAL SECURITY WORKS IN MARCH 2015 As part of its innovative model for funding progressive non-profit organizations, CREDO Mobile donated $84,292 in March 2015 to Social Security Works, a leading organization in the fight to preserve and expand Social Security. Learn more about CREDO's donations program.

CREDO Action , part of CREDO Mobile , is a social change network of 3.8 million activists, sending millions of petition signatures and more than 100,000 phone calls to decision-makers each year. CREDO Action members also participate in meetings, protests and other direct actions for progressive change. Follow CREDOmobile on Twitter.

--
Josh Nelson
Communications Director, CREDO Action

Mobile: 202-550-6175
Twitter: @josh_nelson & @CREDOmobile

Connect with your values.
Join America's progressive phone company.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	9737690034@vzwpix.com
To:	9083097888@vzwpix.com john.podesta@gmail.com ha16@hillaryclinton.com mmoran@mpublicaffairs.com jennifer@njdems.org sensyllars@aol.com rmandel@rci.rutgers.edu walsh@eagleton.rutgers.edu
Date:	12/27/2015 8:09:08 AM
Subject:

Tomorrow we will lock up the box kell for n.h. have them call me or give me the number. If irene is in she will confirm. Happy new year

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/29/2015 3:37:36 AM
Subject:	suggestion

Instead of events with political folks, maybe she should go the other way...emphasizing her bio points that aren't political.

Event in New Haven with child development folks emphasizing advocacy for kids from her time at Yale. Visit Arkansas Hippy program. A meeting with foster kids, emphasizing her work as First Lady.

Maybe go the other way to get her out of being a traditional politician.

Anyway, just a thought.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "ERIC GARCETTI" <info@ericgarcetti.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 10/31/2012 5:02:52 PM
Subject: Join Me to GOTV Against Prop. 32

Eric Garcetti FOR MAYOR 2013

NO ON 32

Dear Friend:

I'm working hard to get out the vote against Prop. 32 and I'm asking for your help.

Prop. 32 would rig the political landscape to favor big corporations. It exempts the same special interests that are funding the campaign behind it: big oil companies, insurance company executives, hedge fund managers, Wall Street bankers, big developers and super PACs. They are pouring millions of dollars into last minute ads to deceive California voters about Prop. 32. We must step up and take action to stop their hidden agenda.

Please join us to get out the vote for No on 32. Every vote is going to count. Please click here to sign up and we'll connect you with key GOTV activities where you can make a difference.

Thanks.
-Eric

ERIC GARCETTI
http://www.ericgarcetti.com/

Eric Garcetti- Los Angeles Mayor 2013
United States

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Paid for by Garcetti for Mayor 2013
FPPC ID# 1341339
22647 Ventura Blvd. #301 Los Angeles, CA 91364
Additional Information is available at ethics.lacity.org
This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com . Unsubcribe . | Created with NationBuilder .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Karen Finney" <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 3/17/2016 11:44:42 AM
Subject: Re: HRC Op-Ed on Gun Violence

I know I know, my apologies on Garner.

On Mar 17, 2016, at 6:42 PM, Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Agree with 1-3, couple of things - first as former senator from NY we need an NYC example, either naming a victim or applauding some of the efforts in the City to deal with the issue like a group of mothers in Harlem or members of the city council pushing CDC to collect data;

Also reminder that Re: Eric Garner he wasn't killed by a gun it was police violence.

Last just flagging that one of the more high-profile cases recently involved two police officers from the precinct right next to the Avalon apt building a bunch of us live in, I think they were shot sitting in their car. So would keep the emphasis on young people losing their lives to gun violence

Sent from my iPhone

On Mar 17, 2016, at 6:58 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Four small things:
>
> I'd change "him" to "them" in the first line.
>
> I'm not sure I'd say she's lead the fight on the Charleston loophole, because she really has no power other than to advocate or denounce. Good to be strong in our language but might lose that first line.
>
> And check the NRA piece with Jen. That played strangely in Ohio for us at least initially. I think it should stay in but flag that for her.
>
> Finally, I know we have Erica Garner issues but we don't want to mention Eric at all? I can see her coming after us for leaving him out of the piece.
>
> On Mar 17, 2016, at 5:18 PM, Corey Ciorciari <cciorciari@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Here is 55k back-up: http://labs.time.com/story/gun-loophole/
> >
> > On Thu, Mar 17, 2016 at 5:12 PM, Ben Krauss <bakrauss@gmail.com > wrote:
> > > Hey everyone,
> > >
> > > This op-ed is live again, and we've made a few revisions. Would be great if everyone could take another quick look so we can get to HRC tonight.
> > >
> > > Thanks!
> > >
> > > On Tue, Mar 15, 2016 at 8:02 PM, Emily Aden <eaden@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > Research edits attached, need backup on one stat.
> > > >
> > > > On Tue, Mar 15, 2016 at 7:40 PM, Harrell Kirstein <hkirstein@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

I like it. Since it is the NYDN I think we should add the terrorist watch list piece. I defer to you on where but we could stick at the end of this riff as a proof point against the NRA?

I've been fighting for this issue for years. So have families across the country. Still, the NRA and their allies in Congress have managed to block even the most commonsense reforms.

Harrell Kirstein
hkirstein@hillaryclinton.com
609 915-5662 | @harrellkirstein

On Tue, Mar 15, 2016 at 7:17 PM, Ben Krauss <bakrauss@gmail.com > wrote:

> Hey everyone,
>
> Attaching a draft op-ed from HRC on gun violence for placement in the New York Daily News.
>
> Please let me know any edits or comments in the next hour or so.
>
> Thanks!

--
Benjamin A. Krauss
+1 (914) 299-6480
bakrauss@gmail.com

--
Corey Ciorciari
Policy Department
Hillary for America
@CoreyCiorciari

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <jp66@hillaryclinton.com> "Eryn Sepp" <esepp@hillaryclinton.com> "Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	6/19/2015 9:05:56 AM
Subject:	Fwd: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON
Attachments:	JDP Response to GOP.docx

John - Jindal and Jeb hit her again in faith. So I think we should do the statement from you as a salvo. See latest version below.

Sent from my iPhone

Begin forwarded message:

> From: Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >
> Date: June 19, 2015 at 3:49:20 PM EDT
> To: Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >
> Cc: Adrienne Elrod <aelrod@hillaryclinton.com >, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >, Jim Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >, Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com >, Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >, Tony Carrk <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >, Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com >, John Podesta <jp66@hillaryclinton.com >, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >, "Ann O'Leary" <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com >, Matt Paul <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com >, Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >, Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >, Katie Dowd <kdowd@hillaryclinton.com >, Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com >
> Subject: RE: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON
>
> Latest version below and attached:
>
> STATEMENT FROM JOHN PODESTA
> Hillary Clinton has spoken out for decades against extremists who pervert the world's great religions to justify brutality against women and girls. That is what Republicans are attacking her for.
>
> ISIS claims their religious faith justifies forcing Yazidi women in Iraq into sexual slavery. Does Governor Bush think we should respect that practice?
>
> The Taliban torture women in Afghanistan in the name of their twisted version of Islam. Does Governor Jindal think that is acceptable? What about forced marriages, honor killings, throwing acid in women's faces?
>
> If Republicans think standing up to these atrocities is part of Hillary Clinton's progressive agenda, we are proud to agree. As a woman of faith herself, she won't hesitate to condemn those who distort religious beliefs to justify barbaric actions. Such distortions are a grave affront to both the girls and women who being persecuted, as well as the religions these barbarians attempt to use as cover for these heinous acts.
>
> ---
> From: Jennifer Palmieri [mailto:jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com]
> Sent: Friday, June 19, 2015 3:34 PM
> To: Joel Benenson
> Cc: Adrienne Elrod; Mandy Grunwald; Kristina Schake; Jim Margolis; Christina Reynolds; Karen Finney; Huma Abedin; Robby Mook; Tony Carrk; Dan Schwerin; Lily Adams; John Podesta; Jake Sullivan; Ann O'Leary; Matt Paul; Brian Fallon; Teddy Goff; Katie Dowd; Maya Harris
> Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON
>
> Jindal hit her on it today, too.
>
> Given that development, consensus in Brooklyn is that we put the John statement out today. We can lay out the argument, get on the record, get our allies to back us up on Twitter and then pick the battle back up next week - assuming that we don't get a lot of response today.
>
> Christina - would you send the John statement back around so folks can see latest?
>
> We thought we would give the statement to Rosie Gray of Buzzfeed first. She covers the republicans - think she will be more sympathetic to our argument than one of our reporters.
>
> What do folks think of this approach?
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Jun 18, 2015, at 10:35 PM, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com > wrote:
>
> Agree.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Adrienne Elrod [mailto:aelrod@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 11:27 PM
To: Jennifer Palmieri
Cc: Mandy Grunwald; Kristina Schake; Jim Margolis; Christina Reynolds; Joel Benenson; Karen Finney; Huma Abedin; Robby Mook; Tony Carrk; Dan Schwerin; Lily Adams; John Podesta; Jake Sullivan; Ann O'Leary; Matt Paul; Brian Fallon; Teddy Goff; Katie Dowd; Maya Harris
Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

Agree 100%. Seems more impactful if it's one issue - women.

Sent from my iPhoneb

On Jun 17, 2015, at 10:57 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> So my take on this issue is that our John response turns the attack into offense for us because we use it to show Bush as anti-women. If we mix another issue into the response that is related to religion, that seems to be fighting on their turf.
>
> On Wed, Jun 17, 2015 at 10:24 PM, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com > wrote:
>
> Do we want the Podesta statement to say something about Bush attacking the Pope because he doesn't believe in politicizing faith and then politicizing faith to attack Hillary?
>
> Mandy Grunwald
> Grunwald Communications
> 202 973-9400
>
> On Jun 17, 2015, at 10:21 PM, Adrienne Elrod <aelrod@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Our external friends are ready to go and we will activate once we have green light !!
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Jun 17, 2015, at 9:46 PM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > Copying in Adrienne too. Jen let us know when HRC approves this plan and we can figure out the implementation and timing.
> > >
> > > Sent from my iPhone
> > >
> > > On Jun 17, 2015, at 9:11 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > agree with all that. I think we should have Albright, Boxer, others all teed up to go on tv, etc.. Maybe we put John's statement on Medium and HFA website, tweet it and line up our DC women leaders' groups set to tweet and share.
> > > >
> > > > On Wed, Jun 17, 2015 at 9:03 PM, Margolis, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com > wrote:
> > > > I guess next best thing. Sorry the line about her faith.
> > > > Still would want others to amplify and to use social if she's willing.
> > > >
> > > > Jim Margolis
> > > > Sent from my iPhone.
> > > > Please excuse typos.
> > > >
> > > > On Jun 17, 2015, at 8:42 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > >
> > > > > HRC does not want to do the response herself.
> > > > >
> > > > > What about a written statement from John? HRC is sleeping now but Huma and I think she would go for that. Played around with Dan's language and turned into a statement from John - see attached.
> > > > >
> > > > > On Wed, Jun 17, 2015 at 6:07 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > > > Interesting that the AP story from Jeb's event talks about religion, but not the HRC hit.
> > > > >
> > > > > Bush in Iowa: 'I don't think we should politicize our faith'
> > > > > AP | Thomas Beaumont and Catherine Lucey
> > > > >
> > > > > WASHINGTON, Iowa (AP) — Jeb Bush cautioned against blending politics and religion Wednesday, signaling he will not necessarily heed the pope or pander to social conservatives in Iowa in his policy agenda for the Republican presidential nomination.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"I don't think we should politicize our faith," he said, speaking in a state where evangelical Christians wield significant political influence. "I think religion ought to be about making us better as people and less about things that end up getting into the political realm."

His comments came on the eve of an encyclical by Pope Francis that is expected to endorse the scientific view that human activity contributes to climate change — a conclusion challenged by many Republicans and several of the party's candidates for president.

Bush, who converted to Catholicism, suggested he will not be beholden to a faith-driven policy agenda wherever it comes from because his religion is a personal beacon, not a political roadmap.

"I go to church to have my faith nourished, to have my faith challenged," the former Florida governor told reporters after the outdoor meeting with about 75 eastern Iowa Republicans in the backyard of a local supporter. "That's why I go to Mass. I don't go to Mass for economic policy or for things in politics."

On the coming encyclical, he said he would read and reflect on it. "I think Pope Francis is an extraordinary leader of a church whose teachings I try to follow, and it doesn't need to get any more complicated than that," Bush said. "But I think it's better to solve this in the political realm."

Bush has said he accepts the scientific premise that the climate is changing and believes that examining the causes should be a priority. But he's contended that the science is not clear on how much global warming comes from human activity.

Bush, on his first visit to Iowa as a declared candidate, was asked at a public event what he would do to put God in public life. He sidestepped somewhat, saying he would more broadly promote the defense of religious liberty. "The next president needs to establish religious freedom as one of the first freedoms," he said.

Daniel Wright, a 32-year-old electronics salesman from eastern Iowa, said Bush was unafraid of the question, which impressed him, but he felt he dodged it.

"Specifically, I was talking about God, not religion collectively, from a Christian point of view," Wright said. "I would have loved to have kept the question on God and not religion as a whole."

It was a rapid introduction to Iowa caucus politics for Bush, whose positions on immigration and education have raised questions among some on the right about whether he's conservative enough. He's been reaching out to influential Christian conservatives for months but has spent less time in Iowa than some other leading rivals.

Iowa Christian conservative groups have already held gatherings for activists where presidential prospects have spoken, though Bush has not. Some candidates also aggressively court pastors, who can be influential among parishioners, especially in evangelically conservative northwest Iowa. It's a segment of Republican primary voters that is also influential in parts of South Carolina, where Bush travels Thursday.

At least eight candidates have confirmed they plan to participate in the July conference of the Iowa Family Leader, a Christian-based policy group. Bush has not attended any such events, although he went to an Iowa agricultural policy conference and the Iowa Republican Party's spring dinner last month.

The past two caucus winners were former Arkansas Gov. Mike Huckabee in 2008, and former Pennsylvania Sen. Rick Santorum in 2012, both of whom heavily courted evangelical Christians.

From: Joel Benenson [mailto:jbenenson@bsgco.com]
Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 6:03 PM
To: Karen Finney
Cc: Huma Abedin; Christina Reynolds; Jennifer Palmieri; Robby Mook; Mandy Grunwald; Tony Carrk; Jim Margolis; Dan Schwerin; Lily Adams; jp66@hillaryclinton.com ; Jake Sullivan; Ann O'Leary; Matt Paul; Kristina Schake; Brian Fallon; Teddy Goff; Katie Dowd; Maya Harris

Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

Defer to comms but that won't turn it into a fight we want.
If we have say 20 prominent women willing to sign a letter and release it that might work

Sent from my iPhone

On Jun 17, 2015, at 5:30 PM, Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> What about turning in to an op-Ed from someone like Albright?
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Jun 17, 2015, at 5:21 PM, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com > wrote:

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

He will keep saying it.

From: Huma Abedin [mailto:ha16@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 5:12 PM
To: Joel Benenson
Cc: Christina Reynolds; Jennifer Palmieri; Robby Mook; Mandy Grunwald; Karen Finney; Tony Carrk; Jim Margolis; Dan Schwerin; Lily Adams; jp66@hillaryclinton.com ; Jake Sullivan; Ann O'Leary; Matt Paul; Kristina Schake; Brian Fallon; Teddy Goff; Katie Dowd; Maya Harris
Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

HRC latest thinking is not to say anything. Feels wrong the more she thinks about it.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jun 17, 2015, at 3:26 PM, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com > wrote:

> Just my opinion but I would lean toward her saying it as opposed to a statement.
> I'll defer to comms but I think if we respond this will be the news of the day and i wild think it's better if it comes from her mouth.
>
> If comms/press think we get as much from statement or at least get to drive story and it is clear we are attacking not responding
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Jun 17, 2015, at 3:08 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Should we be exploring other ways to do it? Just a statement? A quick pull aside with the pooler? Or are we laying low on this for now?
> >
> > ---
> >
> > From: Jennifer Palmieri [mailto:jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com]
> > Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 3:05 PM
> > To: Robby Mook
> > Cc: Mandy Grunwald; kfinney@hillaryclinton.com ; tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com ; Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com ; dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com ; creynolds@hillaryclinton.com ; ladams@hillaryclinton.com ; jp66@hillaryclinton.com ; jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com ; jbenenson@bsgco.com ; aoleary@hillaryclinton.com ; mpaul@hillaryclinton.com ; kschake@hillaryclinton.com ; bfallon@hillaryclinton.com ; tgoff@hillaryclinton.com ; kdowd@hillaryclinton.com ; mharris@hillaryclinton.com ; ha16@hillaryclinton.com
> > Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON
> >
> > No. She did not want to do in charleston.
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Jun 17, 2015, at 3:04 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > All the more reason in my mind to push back today. Palmieri--are we locked in on your end?
> > >
> > > On Jun 17, 2015, at 3:03 PM, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > Total distortion.
> > > >
> > > > Mandy Grunwald
> > > > Grunwald Communications
> > > > 202 973-9400
> > > >
> > > > -----Original Message-----
> > > > From: Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com >
> > > > To: Tony Carrk <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com >
> > > > Cc: Margolis, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >; Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >; re47 <re47@hillaryclinton.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >; Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com >; jp66 <jp66@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; jbenenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >; Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com >; Matt Paul <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com >; Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >; Katie Dowd <kdowd@hillaryclinton.com >; Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com >; ha16 <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >
> > > > Sent: Wed, Jun 17, 2015 2:59 pm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

This is an escalation from his original statement

Sent from my iPhone

On Jun 17, 2015, at 2:40 PM, Tony Carrk < tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> And also, here is what Bush actually said today:
>
> And that's what's missing right now. In fact, Hillary Clinton said something about a month ago that was just striking to me. Because I've given this a lot of thought and I'm deeply troubled about not just Christian persecution in around the world, but also now this belief that if you believe in God or I'm a Catholic and I'm informed by my faith on a lot of things that somehow you just got to get over it. And she said something to the effect of if your religious beliefs comes in conflict with a woman's right to choose or something or some other social issue you just got to get over it. Well I respect people who may not agree with my views. I'm not judgmental. I'm not here to say I'm righteous and therefore you're not.
>
> 12:03
>
> But we're now at a point where people who do have faith and it guides their decisions, that somehow they need us to keep it in a lock box somewhere. Keep it at home and you can't go act on it. And I think that is where we take our stand. I think people of faith have created a better country, a more loving place where people act on their faith to deal with children that are abandoned and abused, to deal with the homeless, to deal with people that are just getting out of prison. If you look at the plight of people, you'll generally find that people acting on their faith on in the front lines of trying to help because that's the definition of their success and their compassion as people. And so we do need to restore this in a way that's not judgmental, not intolerant, all the stuff that many people that don't have faith accuse people of faith of having. There should be in a big country like ours enough space for everybody.
>
> ---
>
> From: Tony Carrk [mailto:tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com]
> Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 2:34 PM
> To: Karen Finney; 'Margolis, Jim'
> Cc: 'Mandy Grunwald'; 're47@hillaryclinton.com '; Jennifer Palmieri; Dan Schwerin; Christina Reynolds; Lily Adams; 'jp66@hillaryclinton.com '; Jake Sullivan; 'jbenenson@bsgco.com '; Ann O'Leary; Matt Paul; Kristina Schake; Brian Fallon; Teddy Goff; Katie Dowd; Maya Harris; 'ha16@hillaryclinton.com '
> Subject: RE: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON
>
> I know we are still discussing whether to do the hit today or not, but for awareness, we pulled her record for standing up for women around the world as secretary of state
>
> ## Hillary Worked To Empower Women At The State Department And Around The World
>
> Hillary Clinton Elevated The State Department's Office Of Global Women's Issues By Appointing Its First-Ever Ambassador-At-Large. "One of the first things I did as Secretary was to elevate the Office of Global Women's Issues by appointing the first ever Ambassador at Large to take the lead on identifying concrete ways the United States could work to secure the human rights of women worldwide. We see this as a moral imperative and a high-reward political, economic, and security strategy." [Hillary Clinton remarks on "Making Human Rights a Human Reality," 12/6/12]
>
> Hillary Clinton "Placed Women's Rights And Needs On The Agenda At International Conferences, On Trips, And Throughout The State Department Itself." "Clinton and her handpicked ambassador-at-large for global women's issues, Melanne Verveer, placed women's rights and needs on the agenda at international conferences, on trips, and throughout the State Department itself. Clinton institutionalized this way of conducting foreign policy in 2010 in a first-time 'quadrennial review' that mentioned women more than 100 times, followed by a March 2012 directive billed as the department's first-ever guidance to embassies and bureaus on how to advance the 'strategic imperative' of gender equality." [National Journal, 3/21/13]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Hillary Clinton Teamed Up With Other Countries To "Break Down Barriers To Women's Political And Economic Empowerment." "President Obama issued a challenge before the United Nations General Assembly in September 2011 to break down barriers to women's political and economic empowerment. […] In response to this challenge, on September 24, 2012, Secretary of State Hillary Clinton launched the Equal Futures Partnership on behalf of the United States along with 12 other founding members." [Equal Futures Partnership face sheet, WhiteHouse.gov , 9/24/12]

Hillary Clinton Developed The First-Ever U.S. National Action Plan On Women, Peace, and Security To "Advance Women's Participation In Making And Keeping Peace Around The World." "In the U.S. government, former secretary of State Hillary Clinton has been the staunchest ally to women in Afghanistan, who have been anxious about her departure for years. As America's top diplomat, Clinton was able to develop the first-ever U.S. National Action Plan on Women, Peace, and Security–a five-point initiative designed to advance women's participation in making and keeping the peace around the world." [MSNBC, 2/15/13]

Planned Parenthood: Hillary Clinton Left "An Incredible Policy Framework For Promoting Women's Rights." "Secretary Clinton left an incredible policy framework for promoting women's rights — under her leadership, the State Department issued numerous policies that aim to ensure women's rights are a top priority throughout our foreign policy, from the National Action Plan on Women, Peace and Security, to the USAID Policy Guidance on Promoting Gender Equality to the United States Strategy to Prevent and Respond to Gender-Based Violence Globally. […] As Clinton said in an interview with Andrea Mitchell this week about her leadership on women's health and rights, 'I do value it as part of my legacy because I think it's commonsense. If we don't pay attention to the lives and roles of women, we will pay a price.'" [Planned Parenthood, 2/1/13]

Gail Collins: Hillary Clinton Worked To Ensure U.S. Diplomacy Would Promote Women's Empowerment "Many Secretaries Down The Line." A Gail Collins column in the New York Times stated, "At State, she's dug deep into the bureaucracy, trying to ensure that American diplomacy will be promoting women's empowerment many secretaries down the line. 'We've created some positions,' Clinton said, making a list. 'We have embedded it in the quadrennial diplomacy and development review process...' That's the thing about Hillary Clinton. Most famous woman in the world, but still a sucker for the quadrennial diplomacy and development review process." [Gail Collins, New York Times, 11/10/12]

Pam Platt: With Hillary Clinton "At The Helm" Of The State Department, "Women Were Regarded, Not Disregarded." According to Courier-Journal editorial director Pam Platt, "For four years, with her at the helm of State, women were regarded, not disregarded. And if that isn't a spectacular achievement, I don't know what is. As she exits the national stage for a while and for whatever comes next for her, I think we need to thank her for moving the needle, at least a little, for women and children throughout the world. I also think we need to take a lesson from her example of being there - in a place, in a moment, in a context - in our own lives and in the lives of others. And to know that each of us has the capacity to spread our tiny time pills, too, no title necessary." [Pam Platt, Courier-Journal, 2/10/13]

Hillary Led International Efforts To Combat Gender-Based Violence And Discrimination

Hillary Clinton Took The Lead In Passing A UN Resolution Aimed At Combating Sexual Violence In Conflict Areas. "More than 60 countries, led by U.S. Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, asked the United Nations on Wednesday to appoint a special envoy for a global fight against the rape of women and children during war. The U.N. Security Council, chaired by Clinton because the United States holds the revolving presidency, unanimously passed a resolution in a bid to stop sexual violence during conflicts and to end impunity." [Reuters, 9/30/09]

Hillary Clinton's State Department Launched The "First U.S. Strategy To Prevent And Respond To Gender-Based Violence Globally." "Because so much violence against women and girls takes place within their homes and communities, and often in the form of harmful traditional practices like female genital mutilation and so-called 'honor crimes,' we've launched the first U.S. Strategy to Prevent and Respond to Gender-Based Violence Globally." [Hillary Clinton remarks on "Making Human Rights a Human Reality," 12/6/12]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Hillary Clinton Applauded The Efforts Of Malala Yousafzai "And The Millions Of Other Girls And Women Who Are Risking Their Lives To Get An Education." "Hillary Clinton honored Malala Yousafzai Monday at a UNESCO event in Paris on International Human Rights Day. […] 'Today, we stand together with Malala and the millions of other girls and women who are risking their lives to get an education," Clinton said via video message. "Girls with secondary schooling are far less likely to become child brides. They are more likely to earn better incomes when they begin working. They will have smaller families, and their children will be healthier.'" [MSNBC, 12/10/12]

Hillary Clinton Rebuked Saudi Arabia For Its Ban On Women Drivers And Publicly Applauded The Efforts Of "Brave" Saudi Women Who Drove In Protest. "Secretary of State Hillary Clinton today voiced her support for a group of women in Saudi Arabia who last week defied their nation's ban on women drivers. Clinton said that the U.S. has expressed its disapproval of the driving ban to 'the highest level of the Saudi government,' but she stressed that last week's demonstrations were not spurred by any U.S. involvement. […] 'This is about Saudi women themselves, they have joined together, they are acting on behalf of their own rights,' she said. 'This is not about the United States, it is about the women of Saudi Arabia. And what these women are doing is brave, and what they are seeking is right. But the effort belongs to them.'" [CBS News, 6/21/11]

Hillary Clinton Intervened To Stop A Child Marriage In Saudi Arabia. "In her memoir, 'Hard Choices,' Mrs. Clinton tells of quietly intervening when Saudi Arabian courts refused a mother's pleas to block the marriage of her 8-year-old daughter to a 50-year-old man. 'Fix this on your own, and I won't say a word," she recalled telling the Saudis. A new judge, she wrote, quickly approved the divorce." [New York Times, 3/8/15]

Hillary Clinton's State Department Worked Actively To Address The Issue Of Gender-Biased Sex Selection. The State Department's "Strategy to Prevent and Respond to Gender-Based Violence Globally," stated, "The Secretary's Office of Global Women's Issues (S/GWI) regularly coordinates with other Department of State bureaus and United States Government agencies on issues including child marriage, female genital mutilation/cutting, 'honor' related crimes, girls' access to education, gender biased sex selection, discriminatory treatment of widows, sexual violence in conflict, and intimate partner violence, among many others." ["United States Strategy to Prevent and Respond to Gender-Based Violence Globally," U.S. Department of State, August 2012]

From: Karen Finney [mailto:kfinney@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 2:24 PM
To: Margolis, Jim
Cc: Mandy Grunwald; re47@hillaryclinton.com ; jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com ; tcarnk@hillaryclinton.com ; dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com ; creynolds@hillaryclinton.com ; ladams@hillaryclinton.com ; jp66@hillaryclinton.com ; jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com ; jbenenson@bsgco.com ; aoleary@hillaryclinton.com ; mpaul@hillaryclinton.com ; kschake@hillaryclinton.com ; bfallon@hillaryclinton.com ; tgoff@hillaryclinton.com ; kdowd@hillaryclinton.com ; mharris@hillaryclinton.com ; ha16@hillaryclinton.com
Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

Talked to Amanda, NALEO not the right audience for a number of reasons incl not an issue discussed openly.

Sent from my iPhone

On Jun 17, 2015, at 2:17 PM, Margolis, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com > wrote:

> Good point in ISIS.
>
> This is one where she has to be strong, with the message internalized. That doesn't seem like a stretch to me given her history.
>
> I also like that we have a second hit tomorrow on the Trump/ extreme stuff that's more on point for that audience.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

So I like moving on it today if she's comfortable. Even if the audience response is more muted.

From: Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >
Date: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 at 2:08 PM
To: Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >, "jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com " <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: "tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com " <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com >, "dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com " <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >, "kfinney@hillaryclinton.com " <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com >, "ladams@hillaryclinton.com " <ladams@hillaryclinton.com >, "jp66@hillaryclinton.com " <jp66@hillaryclinton.com >, "jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com " <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com>, GMMB GMMB <jim.margolis@gmmb.com >, Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com >, Matt Paul <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com >, "kschake@hillaryclinton.com " <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >, "bfallon@hillaryclinton.com " <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >, "tgoff@hillaryclinton.com " <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >, "kdowd@hillaryclinton.com " <kdowd@hillaryclinton.com >, Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com >, Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

I agree that's the message for NALEO but I'd love to do this women/faith hit today.

Mandy Grunwald
Grunwald Communications
202 973-9400

-----Original Message-----
From: Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >
To: Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Tony Carrk <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com >; Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >; Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com >; Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <jp66@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >; Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >; Jim.Margolis <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >; Ann O'Leary <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com >; Matt Paul <mpaul@hillaryclinton.com >; Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >; Katie Dowd <kdowd@hillaryclinton.com >; Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com >; Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >
Sent: Wed, Jun 17, 2015 2:05 pm
Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

I think we should just be clear about exactly what news we want to make. Personally, I think branding the GOP as bigoted and extreme is more in line with our bigger picture, long term goals, so I would favor sticking with asking why they didn't speak out against what trump.

On Jun 17, 2015, at 1:54 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Plus Huma.
>
> Talked this over with our SC director. I think we should do this at NALEO rather than Charleston.
>
> 1) the first time HRC directly responds in person to Jeb, she really has to nail it and he crowd needs to respond well. I don't think he crowd is going to get it in Charleston. Think there is an easier way to build it into NALEO.
>
> 2) We should also make sure we have women lined up to defend her when we do this and don't feel like we'd be ready to do that this afternoon, but could be tomorrow.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

3) I talked this over with John and he made good point that we need to work to get this into the Muslim space - meaning that we need to make clear that she is talking about groups like Boko Haram that prevent Islam to use as cover for barbaric practices. So think our language needs work to make that clear - like specifically name check groups that do these kinds of practices so it is clear who we are talking about. Maybe do a "catalog of sins," as Mandy calls it.

4) For all these reasons, I would wait and do this tomorrow. I get NALEO is not amazing place to do this either, but better. And we can give her some time to internalize the language. Since press has not really picked up on the hit, I think we have a day to wait, but would not let it go beyond Thursday.

Thoughts?

Sent from my iPhone

On Jun 17, 2015, at 1:22 PM, Tony Carrk < tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> We will share her record of speaking out on these issues shortly
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Jun 17, 2015, at 1:15 PM, Dan Schwerin < dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Here's what we've come up with as a response to Jeb (with full document attached):
> >
> > I'm proud to have spoken out for decades on behalf of women and girls around the world who face brutality and oppression just because of their gender.
> >
> > Yet on the first two days of his campaign, Jeb Bush is attacking me because I said that religion should never be a justification for violence against women anywhere in the world.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Does he think genital mutilation and forced marriages are ever acceptable?

Does he think domestic violence anywhere is ever acceptable?

Does he think genocide and rape against women and girls are ever acceptable?

Does he think any faith ever makes any of these abuses acceptable?

I am a woman of faith and I don't -- and I won't stop

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

speaking out.

On Wed, Jun 17, 2015 at 1:09 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

> And digital
>
> On Jun 17, 2015, at 12:57 PM, Karen Finney <kfinney@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> > +Fallon
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Jun 17, 2015, at 12:56 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
> >
> > > Looping in Dan, who has been working on some language on this.
> > >
> > > Also, an FYI, Politifact will be weighing in soon.
> > >
> > > From: Tony Carrk [mailto:tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com]
> > > Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 12:46 PM
> > > To: Christina Reynolds; Lily Adams
> > > Cc: Karen Finney; Jennifer Palmieri; John Podesta; Jake Sullivan; Mandy Grunwald; Joel Benenson; Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com ; Ann O'Leary; Matt Paul; Kristina Schake
> > > Subject: RE: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON
> > >
> > > All,
> > >
> > > Wanted to share the background doc we have put together that includes:
> > > 1 – Bush's attack
> > > 2- Context for HRC quote
> > > 3 – Joan Walsh column/ pushback
> > > 4 – Some background that religious organizations are exempt from the contraception requirement in the ACA
> > >
> > > Please let us know if you have any questions,
> > >
> > > Tony
> > >
> > > From: Christina Reynolds [mailto:creynolds@hillaryclinton.com]
> > > Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 11:51 AM
> > > To: Lily Adams
> > > Cc: Karen Finney; Jennifer Palmieri; John Podesta; Jake Sullivan; Mandy Grunwald; Joel Benenson; Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com ; Tony Carrk; Ann O'Leary; Matt Paul; Kristina Schake
> > > Subject: Re: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

+Kristina.

On Jun 17, 2015, at 11:50 AM, Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> I think the next step question is - if reporters here do not pick up on this here, do we want to engage proactively.
>
> My position is that we wouldn't want to elevate this hit in Iowa if it wasn't necessary to rebut but open to hearing from you all.
>
> On Wed, Jun 17, 2015 at 10:45 AM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> > Sounds good. And feel free to work around the Walsh piece—it lays it out as well as anything we're going to get.
> >
> > From: Lily Adams [mailto:ladams@hillaryclinton.com]
> > Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 11:44 AM
> > To: Christina Reynolds
> > Cc: Karen Finney; Jennifer Palmieri; John Podesta; Jake Sullivan; Mandy Grunwald; Joel Benenson; Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com; Tony Carrk; Ann O'Leary; Matt Paul
> > Subject: Re: FW: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON
> >
> > Matt and I don't have a problem with this going national first. We can get a quote from a few women leaders in Iowa in response if we want to engage directly but there isn't a walsh-type columnist in Iowa that would be able to do this right just with a pitch.
> >
> > If you all get something written nationally then we will push it around in state. That work for folks?
> >
> > On Wed, Jun 17, 2015 at 10:32 AM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
> >
> > > Flagging that Jeb

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

hit her again on the religious point. Lily, see below for a great Joan Walsh piece that lays out why this is crap. Tony, do you all have the background in one place on both this and the Little Sisters issue? Are there any women in Iowa who might be willing to push back on this—she was talking about some pretty horrible things here. And more importantly, what is Iowa's take on raising the volume on this in Iowa, or would you like it to happen on a more national level?

We can get supportive women groups to push back on it—or we can do it from here, but want to get Team Iowa's view on it landing in Iowa first.

http://www.salon.com/2015/06/16/jeb%E2%80%99s_slimy_new_hillary_attack_the_anti_religion_smear_the_media_is_letting_him_get_away_with/

Jeb's slimy new Hillary attack: The "anti-religion" smear the media is letting him get away with

When Jeb Bush claimed Hillary Clinton said that if religious Americans oppose progressive policies, their religious beliefs "have to be changed," in his campaign kickoff speech Monday, I assumed he was misrepresenting his Democratic rival, and that the media would point it out. But he got in the hilarious juvenile “That’s what she said!” joke, and that’s all reporters talked about.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

In fact Bush pulled that small quote from Clinton’s inspiring “Women in the World” speech in April – and in doing so, shamelessly distorted its meaning. And he got his slur from the far right: Glenn Beck’s The Blaze and Tucker Carlson’s Daily Caller tried to make the case that Clinton’s words applied to domestic disputes over abortion and contraception at the time – but nobody fell for it, because it was such a silly claim. So far, Bush has gotten away with it. But he shouldn’t. Clinton was talking about countries where girls don’t go to high school, where domestic violence is legal, where high maternal mortality rates are tolerated. And she did say: “Deep-seated cultural codes, religious beliefs, and structural biases have to be changed.”

Look at those four words in the context of her speech. Here’s what Clinton said:

Yes, we’ve nearly

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

closed the global gender gap in primary school, but secondary school remains out of reach for so many girls around the world.

Yes, we've increased the number of countries prohibiting domestic violence, but still more than half the nations in the world have no such laws on the books, and an estimated one in three women still experience violence.

Yes, we've cut the maternal mortality rate in half, but far too many women are still denied critical access to reproductive health care and safe childbirth.

All the laws we've passed don't count for much if they're not enforced. Rights have to exist in practice, not just on paper. Laws have to be backed up with resources and political will. And deep-seated cultural codes, religious beliefs, and structural biases have to be changed.

As I have said and as I believe, the advancement of the full participation of women and girls at every aspect of their societies is the great unfinished business of the 21st century, and not just for women but for everyone — and not just in far away countries but right here in the United States.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

So does Jeb Bush object to any or all of that? Is he against closing the gender gap in education in the developing world? (In the U.S., women outpace men in educational attainment, so Clinton clearly wasn't talking about this country.) Is he for domestic violence (the same is true; we have those laws here)? Does he oppose efforts to cut the maternal mortality rate? What, exactly, is objectionable in what Clinton said?

Bush, of course, put Clinton's words in an entirely different context: the domestic battle over the "conscience clause" in the Affordable Care Act, and the larger clash over so-called "religious freedom" laws around marriage equality. And here's what he said:

These have been rough years for religious charities and their right of conscience. And the leading Democratic candidate recently hinted of more trouble to come.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Secretary Clinton insists that when the progressive agenda encounters religious beliefs to the contrary, those beliefs, quote, “have to be changed.” That’s what she said, and I guess we should at least thank her for the warning.

“That’s what she said.” Nyuk-nyuk.

Bush went on to hit the high point of his speech, his defense of the Little Sisters of the Poor, a group of Catholic nuns who have objected to using the conscience clause in the ACA that would let them refuse to provide contraception to employees. Now remember: there is a conscience clause that lets religious charities out of the contraception mandate. Some feminist groups weren’t happy about its addition to the law. But the Little Sisters sued the federal government claiming that even having to exercise that option – signing a paper attesting to their religious objection to the law – infringes their religious freedom, and might open the door to a third party providing contraception. (The government says it doesn’t.)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Bush ignored all that, of course, and delivered this applause line: “It comes down to a choice between the Little Sisters and Big Brother, and I’m going with the Sisters.” It got him a huge ovation, though I thought it was dangerous for him to bring up the notion of “Big Brother,” given that his own big brother’s failed presidency haunts his campaign.

But back to the point: Hillary Clinton didn’t suggest that the religious beliefs of the Little Sisters of the Poor, or anyone else, “have to be changed.” Bush knows that. And he got away with the blatant misrepresentation of her views, until now.

Just like he got away with claiming last week that the unwed mother-shaming Scarlet Letter law Florida adopted while he was governor was actually designed to increase child support collection. Since it only applied to cases where unmarried mothers were giving up children for adoption, it had absolutely nothing to do with child support. Bush either lied, or didn’t care enough to remember one of the most controversial policy debates of his tenure.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

So far, though, the only mainstream criticism of Bush's campaign holds that it's "joyless ." I agree with that assessment, but that's the least of it. Bush does seem like he's playing the self-sacrificing grownup running a reluctant campaign made necessary by the juveniles in his party, and that dynasty in the other party. Watch him use his large war chest to try to joylessly destroy all of them in the weeks to come.

From: hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com [mailto:hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com] On Behalf Of Tony Carrk
Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 11:25 AM
To: HRCRR
Subject: FW: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

From: Brinster, Jeremy [mailto:BrinsterJ@dnc.org]
Sent: Wednesday, June 17, 2015 11:23 AM
To: tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com
Cc: Dillon, Lauren
Subject: 2016 GOP HIT - HILLARY CLINTON

Gov. Jeb Bush, Washington, IA 6/17/15

.@JebBush - @HillaryClinton

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

said if your religious beliefs come in conflict with a woman's right to choose, you have to get over it.
https://twitter.com/SamanthaJoRoth/status/611191470389747712

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com.
To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com.

--
Lily Adams
Iowa Communications Director
Hillary for America
c: 202-368-4013

--
Lily Adams
Iowa Communications Director
Hillary for America
c: 202-368-4013

<2015-06-17 Trident Technical College - 1pm.docx>

This email is intended only for the named addressee. It may contain information that is confidential/private, legally privileged, or copyright-protected, and you should handle it accordingly. If you are not the intended recipient, you do not have legal rights to retain, copy, or distribute this email or its contents, and should promptly delete the email and all electronic copies i\

STATEMENT FROM JOHN PODESTA

Hillary Clinton has spoken out for decades against extremists who pervert the world's great religions to justify brutality against women and girls. That is what Jeb Bush[Republicans] is attacking her for.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

ISIS claims their religious faith justifies forcing Yazidi women in Iraq into sexual slavery. Does Governor Bush think we should respect that practice?

The Taliban torture women in Afghanistan in the name of their twisted version of Islam. Does Governor Bush/ Republicans think that is acceptable? What about forced marriages, honor killings, throwing acid in women's faces?

If Governor Bush thinks standing up to these atrocities is part of Hillary Clinton's progressive agenda, we are proud to agree. As a woman of faith herself, she won't hesitate to condemn those who distort religious beliefs to justify barbaric actions. Such distortions are a grave affront to both the girls and women who being persecuted, as well as the religions these barbarians atSTATEMENT FROM JOHN PODESTA

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Hillary Clinton has spoken out for decades against extremists who pervert the world's great religions to justify brutality against women and girls. That is what Jeb Bush[Republicans] is attacking her for.

ISIS claims their religious faith justifies forcing Yazidi women in Iraq into sexual slavery. Does Governor Bush think we should respect that practice?

The Taliban torture women in Afghanistan in the name of their twisted version of Islam. Does Governor Bush/ Republicans think that is acceptable? What about forced marriages, honor killings, throwing acid in women's faces?

If Governor Bush thinks standing up to these atrocities is part of Hillary Clinton's progressive agenda, we are proud to agree. As a woman of faith herself, she won't hesitate to condemn those who distort religious beliefs to justify barbaric actions. Such distortions are a grave affront to both the girls and women who being persecuted, as well as the religions these barbarians attempt to use use as cover for these heinous acts.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

tempt to use use as cover for these heinous acts.

n your system; do not retain copies in any media. If you have received this email in error, please notify the sender promptly. Thank you.

<JDP 061715.docx>

This email is intended only for the named addressee. It may contain information that is confidential/private, legally privileged, or copyright-protected, and you should handle it accordingly. If you are not the intended recipient, you do not have legal rights to retain, copy, or distribute this email or its contents, and should promptly delete the email and all electronic copies in your system; do not retain copies in any media. If you have received this email in error, please notify the sender promptly. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Furman, Jason L." <Jason_L_Furman@cea.eop.gov>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 6/19/2015 10:07:39 AM
Subject: RE: WP op-ed and new CEA Report: The Surprising Decline in Oil Consumption

You're faster than us!

From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Friday, June 19, 2015 1:03 PM
To: Furman, Jason L.
Cc: Deese, Brian C.
Subject: Re: WP op-ed and new CEA Report: The Surprising Decline in Oil Consumption

Already tweeted it.

On Fri, Jun 19, 2015 at 12:15 PM, Furman, Jason L. <Jason_L_Furman@cea.eop.gov > wrote:

> Brian Deese and I have an op-ed in today's Washington Post (pasted below) that draws on a new CEA report (attached) on the underappreciated surprise in the U.S. oil market: that the consumption of petroleum was slightly lower in 2014 than in 1997 in fact was 6.6 million barrels per day less than what was forecast in 2003. This surprise is nearly twice the surprising increase in petroleum production—and the consumption surprise is expected to grow over time, in part due to policies like the heavy duty truck rule being released today by the EPA and DOT .
>
> The boon of reduced oil consumption
> By Brian Deese and Jason Furman
>
> The average American family is on pace to save about $700 at the pump this year. One reason for this has been widely reported: A historic increase in U.S. oil production has increased global supply and put downward pressure on prices.
>
> But a potentially even more important reason has gotten far less attention — a historic decline in the amount of oil that our economy is consuming. Indeed, in 2014 Americans used less petroleum than they did in 1997, despite the fact that the economy is nearly 50 percent larger than it was 17 years ago. A new report this week by the Council of Economic Advisers documents that this drop in consumption is one of the biggest surprises in global oil markets in the past decade. If it continues, it will have positive implications for our economy, our national security and our efforts to combat climate change.
>
> After a half-century in which it generally rose, U.S. oil consumption leveled off and has begun to decline. No one expected this development. The Energy Information Administration (EIA), which produces some of the most influential and well-regarded forecasts in the field, until recently consistently projected increases in oil consumption. In fact, U.S. consumption in 2014 was 6.4 million barrels per day below the projection it made in 2003 — an amount greater than the oil produced by Iraq and Kuwait combined and about twice the magnitude of the unexpected increase in U.S. oil production. Importantly, that decline in consumption is not expected to be just a passing phenomenon: The latest forecasts for U.S. oil consumption through 2025 are relatively flat.
>
> We are already seeing the benefits of this. The drop in consumption relative to expectations has helped reduce U.S. net imports of petroleum by nearly half, reducing our dependence on foreign oil and our macroeconomic vulnerability to rises and falls in the world price of oil. By reducing net U.S. oil usage by the equivalent of about 10 percent of global production, these developments have contributed to the decline in the global price of oil over the past year. And the decline in the consumption of oil has contributed to the nearly 10 percent decline in overall U.S. carbon emissions from 2005 to 2014, one of many ways in which smart energy policies can also be good for our efforts to mitigate climate change and protect the health of our children.
>
> Click here for more information!
> Moreover, this is a truly American story. Over this period, we have not seen similar declines in most other advanced economies. For example, the percentage reduction among European economies has been roughly half of that in the United States.
>
> So what is behind this trend and what can we do to continue it? The majority of the decline in oil consumption has been in the transportation sector, but the industrial, residential and commercial sectors have come in below expectations as well. To date, about three-quarters of the decline in the transportation sector has been due to a reduction in the number of miles driven, which is explained not only by the fallout from the Great Recession and gasoline prices that exceeded pre-crisis levels until mid-2014 but also demographic shifts, such as the aging of the population and the retirement of the baby boomers, that are likely to persist. The other quarter of the decline is due to increased efficiency, in part because of new rules requiring a more fuel-efficient fleet. Moreover, the fact that we have replaced about 10 percent of our transportation fuels with biofuels, thanks to a bipartisan law enacted by Congress in 2007, has further reduced our reliance on imported fossil fuels.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Efficiency is expected to matter even more — it is projected to account for nearly half of the reduction in consumption in 2025 relative to past projections — as the vehicle mileage rules continue to phase in.

New policies the administration is announcing Friday to improve fuel efficiency for heavy-duty vehicles will help build on this trend. Heavy-duty trucks are the fastest growing component of the transportation sector and are responsible for about one-fifth of its energy use and carbon emissions.

In addition, the president is pushing for Congress to increase our investments in transportation infrastructure, including a 70 percent increase in transit investments that would help reduce miles traveled by expanding transportation options. Together with other policies to reduce emissions from power plants, cut methane emissions from the oil and gas sectors and phase down the use hydrofluorocarbons, this would help us hit the U.S. goal of reducing carbon emissions by 26 percent to 28 percent below 2005 levels by 2025 — a goal the president formalized this year as part of our efforts to lead the world toward a global agreement on climate change. And as the recent trends have shown, it would put to rest the idea that we must choose between fighting climate change and growing our economy: Improving fuel efficiency standards for cars, trucks and other vehicles allows us to do both.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	terryllierman@gmail.com
Date:	2/27/2016 3:05:23 PM
Subject:	Re: WOW‼

Thanks!!! Really good night!!

> On Feb 27, 2016, at 8:39 PM, terryllierman@gmail.com wrote:
>
>
>
> Terry Lierman
> Cell 301-787-2926

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com>
Date:	5/18/2015 10:39:49 AM
Subject:	Re: Glad you said no

Yup. Maybe we can rent the Queen Mary for the next 18 months and fill it with her brothers and assorted crazy hangers on sail around and around.

On Monday, May 18, 2015, Neera Tanden <ntanden@gmail.com > wrote:

> When h asked us to hire her old friend

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Hannah Linkenhoker" <hannah@nmapartners.com>
To:	"Maya Harris" <mharris@hillaryclinton.com> "Ann O'Leary" <aoleary@hillaryclinton.com> jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	11/20/2015 4:17:38 PM
Subject:	Letter from Green Dot Public Schools re charter school comments
Attachments:	MP Clinton letter.pdf

Hi Maya, Ann, Jake, John:

Hope you're all doing well, I'm sure this week has been nothing short of intense for your team. I thought Secretary Clinton's speech at the Council on Foreign Relations yesterday was excellent, due in no small part to all of your efforts, I'm sure. She is clearly our next Commander in Chief, and the only one qualified to manage this complicated and dangerous world we exist in.

I'm reaching out today on behalf of Green Dot Public Schools , in response to comments made throughout the week regarding charter schools. Green Dot is a non-profit public school organization headquartered and founded in Los Angeles, whose teachers are unionized and whose schools accept the entire attendance boundary of students, including students with disabilities. As you can read in detail in the attached letter from Green Dot CEO Marco Petruzzi, Green Dot is a model for schools everywhere and is committed to transforming public education for ALL students. They do successful school turnarounds of the most severely failing schools better than anyone in the country. Their story and example is an important voice in the debate about charter schools, and I hope you will read and share this information with Secretary Clinton.

Green Dot would welcome a school visit from someone on the campaign at one of their schools in Los Angeles, Memphis, or Tacoma, and I'd be happy to arrange a conference call with Marco to answer any questions about further details on this complicated policy issue.

Thank you for taking the time to read this email and attached letter, and thank you for all you are doing to elect our next President Clinton. I'm proud to be on this journey with you.

Best,
Hannah
--
Hannah Linkenhoker
NMA Partners
12100 Wilshire Blvd, Suite 600
Los Angeles, CA 90025
Office: 310-207-0133
Cell: 415-652-6909
Hannah@nmapartners.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
Date:	1/22/2016 9:44:43 AM
Subject:	Re: Gov Engler

Yes. Not a priority for me but will do.

On Friday, January 22, 2016, Tony Podesta <podesta@podesta.com > wrote:

> John –
>
> Willing to sit down with Gov Engler of BRT during one of your trips to Washington or Brooklyn?
>
> Is this a priority?
>
> Thx,
>
> Tony

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 8/7/2015 10:18:03 AM
Subject: Re: Email statement

She wants to make edits
Isn't sure he beginning is right

Sent from my iPhone

On Aug 7, 2015, at 4:34 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Clean:

STATEMENT

I understand that many Americans may have questions about the stories they hear on the news about emails and servers. As I said back in March, it clearly would've been better if I'd just used a government email account. Using a personal email account was a mistake, plain and simple. I am committed to doing everything I can to clear up any remaining confusion about this. I want people to have the chance to learn more about the incredible work of the Department I was proud to lead. I've asked State to publish 55,000 pages of my work emails. I've also repeatedly offered to answer questions before Congress and I look forward to doing so in October.

I hope the State Department and other relevant agencies will sort out as quickly as possible which emails are appropriate to release to the public. In the meantime, my team has worked with the Department to ensure these files are stored in a safe and secure manner. To put to rest any on-going security questions from other agencies, I have directed my team to give my email server to the Department of Justice, as well as a thumb drive containing copies of all the emails already provided to the State Department.

Going forward, I will continue doing my part for transparency and accountability, and I look forward to answering Americans' questions in the days ahead. I'm also going to focus on what's most important to everyday American families -- raising incomes, making college more affordable, and helping families get ahead and stay ahead. That's why I'm running for President and that's what I'll be working on every single day.

###

On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 5:31 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> Agree this is good, but I'd take out "That's why" in the next sentence. You know, because it's not why...
>
> On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 5:30 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:
> > my edit on this (which I like)
> >
> > On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 5:28 PM, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > > One comment on statement. It feels like we need a line about how proud she is of work at state. I tried below. Too much?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

STATEMENT

I understand that many Americans have questions about the stories they hear on the news about emails and servers. As I said back in March, it clearly would've been better if I'd just used a government email account. Using a personal email account was a mistake, plain and simple. I am committed to doing everything I can to clear up any remaining confusion about this. I WANT PEOPLE TO HAVE THE CHANCE TO LEARN MORE ABOUT THE INCREDIBLE WORK OF THE DEPARTMENT I WAS PROUD TO LEAD. That's why I've asked the State Department to publish 55,000 pages of my work emails. I've also repeatedly offered to answer questions before Congress and I look forward to doing so in October.

On Aug 7, 2015, at 5:11 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Totally agree on prepped and confident.
>
> On Aug 7, 2015, at 5:08 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Sunday would be marginally better. But if It happens on Sunday, news on Monday will be the interview anyway. And I think most important consideration is that she is prepped and confident and not sure that can happen by Sunday.
> >
> > Sent from my iPhone
> >
> > On Aug 7, 2015, at 5:04 PM, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> >
> > > One thought on her doing press on Sunday vs Monday: whether the press wants to cover it or not, we have pretty hefty policy to roll out on Monday, so if we get this out of the way Sunday, the policy gives us a nice way to move forward. We could even have her come out against Keystone on Monday as well (not sure where that stands), which will solicit criticism but that might help distract from emails. Kind of like bundling taxes, health, and email last Friday.
> > > In any case, I would vote for having her address this Sunday, so we can legitimately claim she's trying to move on and address what voters care about on Monday.
> > > Just a thought.
> > >
> > > On Aug 7, 2015, at 4:58 PM, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
> > >
> > > > Just talked to Podesta - we are thinking we shouldn't put out the statement at this point because it is so late in day on a Friday the press is bound to respond negatively and it will defeat our purpose in framing this. Think we should send it out tomorrow morning.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 4:51 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Plus Kristina to this chain.

Okay - Dan can you add the questions line on and send back to the plane so we can get her to sign off on it and out as soon as possible?

Huma - what should we do about getting options to her? I rank them in order of my personal preference;

1)Monday interview w/ Andrea Mitchell in NH (w/ a Sunday prep).

2) Sunday interview with Andrea Mitchell (Saturday prep)

3) Monday avail in NH (w/ Sunday prep)

I think option 1 gives us best shot of press, Dems and voters feel like she addressed the questions about the emails

Sent from my iPhone

On Aug 7, 2015, at 4:22 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com > wrote:

like her saying she looks forward to answer questions that anyone has about this

On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 4:17 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

I think this is pitch perfect, and truly excellent.

The only point I would make is that I think, as we discussed, we need an overture that there's been a shift, that she needs to do something to convey that. We will couch this from a staff level in larger terms, but I think she needs to nod to that mentality too, sooner rather than later.

I think calling a reporter out of the blue would check that box, but maybe either way we need something a little more specific in here that says she will be on the campaign trail in the coming days, and she looks forward to answering questions about this, and about her plans for America's future, etc. You could stick it in the last graph pretty easily.

On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 3:18 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> wrote:

My edits in yellow - (also incoroporating DEK DOJ point):

STATEMENT

I understand that many Americans have questions about the stories they hear on the news about emails and servers. As I said back in March, it clearly would've been better if I'd just used a government email account. Using a personal email account was a mistake, plain and simple. I am committed to doing everything I can to clear up any remaining confusion about this. That's why I've asked the State Department to publish 55,000 pages of my work emails. I've also repeatedly offered to answer questions before Congress and I look forward to doing so in October.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

I hope the State Department and other relevant agencies will sort out as quickly as possible which emails are appropriate to release to the public. In the meantime, my team has worked with the Department to ensure these files are stored in a safe and secure manner. To put to rest any on-going security questions from other agencies, I have directed my team to give my email server, as well as a thumb drive containing copies of all the emails already provided to the State Department, to the Department of Justice.

Going forward, I will continue doing my part for transparency and accountability. I'm also going to focus on what's most important to everyday American families -- raising incomes, making college more affordable, and helping families get ahead and stay ahead. That's why I'm running for President and that's what I'll be working on every single day.

On Fri, Aug 7, 2015 at 3:13 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Agree with both recommendations.

From: Kendall, David [mailto:DKendall@wc.com]
Sent: Friday, August 7, 2015 3:12 PM
To: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >; Heather Samuelson <hsamuelson@cdmillsgroup.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >; Turner, Katherine <KTurner@wc.com >
Subject: RE: Email statement

It's a good statement. Two suggestions.

1) I can see why you might not want to say who the turnover was to, but it seems to me omitting this may be misinterpreted and certainly will trigger another round of questioning. This may defeat the whole point of the exercise. The statement could be read to imply we turned over the thumb drive and server to the State Department—which we didn't ("There they go again—misleading, devious, non-transparent, tricky etc."). I would recommend saying "to the Department of Justice."

2) Maybe it's only me, but "hand over" seems a little pejorative—how about just "turn over"?

David E. Kendall

Williams & Connolly LLP

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

725 Twelfth Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20005

(P) 202-434-5145 | (F) 202-434-5029

dkendall@wc.com | www.wc.com/dkendall

From: Dan Schwerin [mailto:dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Friday, August 07, 2015 3:03 PM
To: Jennifer Palmieri; Cheryl Mills; Heather Samuelson; Kendall, David; John Podesta; Nick Merrill; Brian Fallon; Robby Mook; Jake Sullivan; Huma Abedin
Subject: Re: Email statement

Here's a draft of a short statement we could release today from HRC, hopefully to be followed in the coming days by more fulsome comments on camera.

STATEMENT

I understand that many Americans have questions about the stories they hear on the news about emails and servers. As I said back in March, it clearly would've been better if I'd just used a government email account. Using a personal email account was a mistake, plain and simple. I am committed to doing everything I can to clear up any remaining confusion about this. That's why I've asked the State Department to publish 55,000 pages of my work emails. I've also repeatedly offered to answer questions before Congress and I look forward to doing so in October.

I hope the State Department and other relevant authorities will sort out as quickly as possible which emails are appropriate to release to the public. In the meantime, my team has worked with the Department to ensure these files are stored in a safe and secure manner. To put to rest any on-going security questions from other agencies, I have directed my team to hand over my email server, as well as a thumb drive containing copies of all the emails already provided to the State Department.

Going forward, I will continue doing my part for transparency and accountability. I'm also going to focus on what's most important to everyday American families -- raising incomes, making college more affordable, and helping families get ahead and stay ahead. That's why I'm running for President and that's what I'll be working on every single day.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

###

This message and any attachments are intended only for the addressee and may contain information that is privileged and confidential. If you have received this message in error, please do not read, use, copy, distribute, or disclose the contents of the message and any attachments. Instead, please delete the message and any attachments and notify the sender immediately. Thank you.

--

Kristina Schake | Communications
Hillary for America

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	mae_podesta@mckinsey.com
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	4/2/2015 1:09:18 PM
Subject:	Are you in nyc tonight?

+===+
This email is confidential and may be privileged. If you have received it in error, please notify us immediately and then delete it. Please do not copy it, disclose its contents or use it for any purpose.
+===+

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Burns Strider" <burns.strider@americanbridge.org>
To: CTRFriendsFamily <CTRFriendsFamily@americanbridge.org>
Date: 1/23/2015 12:59:54 AM
Subject: Correct The Record Friday January 23, 2015 Morning Roundup

Correct The Record Friday January 23, 2015 Morning Roundup:

Headlines:

National Journal: "Clinton Ally Defending Her From Keystone Attacks"

[Subtitle:] "The Democratic opposition research firm Correct the Record is touting her record on energy."

Politico: "McDonough: Hillary 'would be a very good president'"

"After working closely with Clinton during her four years as secretary of state and having a clear understanding of how the presidency works, McDonough said he's optimistic about her ability to do the job. 'She would be a very good president.'"

CNN: "No, Hillary Clinton didn't go to Canada with 65 Secret Service agents"

"Hillary Clinton did not have 65 Secret Service agents protecting her in Canada on Wednesday, a Secret Service source told CNN, despite a report from a Canadian radio station to the contrary."

Washington Post blog: PostEverything: Andrew Kohut, Pew Research Center founding director: "Why putting a Bush or Clinton back in the White House could be harder than you think"

"On all three measures, Hillary Clinton is in a much better position than Jeb Bush."

MSNBC: "A new batch of endorsements for Clinton"

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

“Ready for Hillary, the super PAC that has been laying the groundwork for a Clinton bid since early 2013, will host an Asian-American and Pacific Islander fundraiser in Washington Tuesday featuring almost a dozen Asian-American Democrats in Congress.”

Boston Globe: “Former Maine senator Olympia Snowe speaks at Symphony Hall”

“Among the field of presumptive presidential candidates, Snowe said former secretary of state Hillary Clinton and former Florida governor Jeb Bush are likeliest to govern in a bipartisan fashion.”

Articles:

National Journal: “Clinton Ally Defending Her From Keystone Attacks”

By Emily Schultheis

January 22, 2015

[Subtitle:] The Democratic opposition research firm Correct the Record is touting her record on energy.

Hillary Clinton has long avoided addressing whether she supports the construction of the Keystone XL pipeline – a project that earns rare bipartisan support in the Senate but is opposed by the Obama administration. Her latest dodge came in Canada, where she gave two paid speeches Wednesday and offered no comment on the subject.

But she's now getting an assist from a leading Democratic opposition research firm in defending her record on energy. Correct the Record, an arm of American Bridge which is closely allied with Clinton's campaign, will release a new report today boosting the former Secretary of State's record on other energy issues, a move that comes as the new Republican-controlled Senate debates a Keystone vote.

The report lists nine areas where Clinton was involved in energy-related efforts, including "fighting for clean energy" in the Senate and "prioritizing cleaner energy worldwide."

Speaking at a "Global Perspectives" event in Winnipeg Wednesday, Clinton again declined to state her position on the pipeline, a move that dominated much of the coverage following the speech. "We have differences and you won't get me to talk about Keystone because I have steadily made it clear that I'm not going to express an opinion," she said. "It is in our process and that's where it belongs." (She's previously said it would be inappropriate for her to offer a position either way, given her tenure at State and the State Department's ongoing formal review process.)

The report, titled, "Hillary Clinton: Smart Energy Innovation," doesn't mention Keystone, but focuses on Clinton's efforts on other aspects of energy policy from her tenure in the U.S. Senate and as Secretary of State.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"Hillary Clinton's record on energy policy and the environment demonstrates that she acutely recognizes the challenges and realities we face," Correct the Record spokeswoman Adrienne Watson said. "She has fought to advance clean, alternative energy solutions to create jobs, boost our economy and preserve the environment for future generations."

While in the Senate, Correct the Record notes, Clinton co-sponsored legislation like the Clean Power Act and the Diesel Emissions Reduction Act to encourage better technologies for power plants and vehicles. She also co-sponsored the Electric Reliability Act to help modernize America's power grid.

At State, Clinton helped coordinate a regional partnership with other countries in the Americas to promote clean energy development and reduce greenhouse gas emissions. The report also notes her role in launching the U.S.-Africa Clean Energy Finance Initiative, as well as her efforts to bring China to the table to cooperate on energy and environmental goals.

Correct the Record has put out similar reports to bolster Clinton's record on other issues: they began with one on the economy last spring and have hit on the former Secretary of State's record on issues such as foreign policy, minimum wage raises and education. As the sole group defending Clinton ahead of her expected 2016 campaign, Correct the Record has worked to get out ahead of Clinton critics on issues as they arise.

Keystone, in particular, is a politically fraught issue for Clinton, because taking a stance either way would disappoint different segments of the Democratic electorate. By saying she supports construction of the pipeline, which would run from Canada to the Gulf Coast, Clinton would put herself at odds with the White House, which has vowed a veto should Republicans pass legislation approving it. And among key Democratic constituencies, environmental groups oppose the pipeline, while labor leaders have said it would help create jobs.

Asked about Clinton's lack of a position Keystone, Watson echoed Clinton's own rationale for not commenting on the issue.

"Secretary Clinton has repeatedly stated that, as the former Secretary of State who oversaw the department charged with completing the environmental assessment of the Keystone project, it would be inappropriate to comment and risk influencing the process until this assessment is complete."

Politico: “McDonough: Hillary ‘would be a very good president’”

By Jennifer Epstein

January 22, 2015, 1:30 p.m. EST

White House chief of staff Denis McDonough says he’s not losing sleep thinking about how the dynamic between President Barack Obama and likely presidential candidate Hillary Clinton will shake out as the 2016 campaign heats up.

“I don’t worry about it,” he said Thursday at a POLITICO Playbook Lunch. Clinton showed little distance in a speech Wednesday from the positions the president took during his State of the Union address but left room to eventually highlight differences, from his right or his left.

After working closely with Clinton during her four years as secretary of state and having a clear understanding of how the presidency works, McDonough said he’s optimistic about her ability to do the job. “She would be a very good president.”

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

McDonough also described Clinton as “absolutely dogged,” “very strategic” and a “really … decent and caring person” who “embodies the best of what I’ve seen in this town.”

McDonough sat down with POLITICO’s Mike Allen just as the White House told reporters that the president will not be meeting with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu during a March visit that was first announced by House Speaker John Boehner (R-Ohio), who had not consulted with the White House.

The chief of staff wouldn’t say much about the White House’s reaction to the invitation but did say that “the president has always seen the relationship with Israel as something that’s above partisan politics.”

He later added that it’s “not a question of anger so much as a question of making sure that we’re continuing to apply that historic and traditional view” about the importance of the U.S.-Israel relationship. “I don’t want to jump to any conclusions” about whether the flap will derail any relationships.

Drawing on military practice, McDonough’s West Wing forms “red teams” to address issues. One, led by just-elevated senior adviser Brian Deese, is a “contingencies group” that began working in the late summer to prepare for the State of the Union address and the new Congress, McDonough said. Deese was determined that the lame duck session of Congress last year would be “the start of a new and refreshing period” instead of the end of an old period.

Another red team examined the State of the Union address for potential vulnerabilities and yet another is working on “exactly what we can expect from our Republican colleagues in the House and Senate” and preparing to respond to them and work with them.

The White House chose to send Obama to red states —Idaho and Kansas — for his post-State of the Union tour to emphasize that he is reaching out to the whole country and not just heavily Democratic states. “By the use of his time he wants to make clear what he said at the end of his speech, which is that the country is not as deeply divided” as some in Washington would suggest, McDonough said.

Many Democrats on Capitol Hill are opposed to the Trans-Pacific Partnership trade agreement, but it’s an area where some of the president’s own party and the vast majority of Republicans agree. Obama is planning to push ahead aggressively this year, McDonough said. Though the odds seem good for the administration, “we’re not banking anything — we’re gonna work this hard,” he said.

McDonough volunteered cybersecurity as another area where he expects to see Congress and the White House make progress this year.

CNN: “No, Hillary Clinton didn't go to Canada with 65 Secret Service agents”

By Dan Merica and Cassie Spodak

January 22, 2015, 3:57 p.m. EST

Hillary Clinton did not have 65 Secret Service agents protecting her in Canada on Wednesday, a Secret Service source told CNN, despite a report from a Canadian radio station to the contrary.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

News Talk 980 CJME, a local radio station in Saskatoon, reported on Wednesday night that a security supervisor from the venue hosting Clinton said "approximately 65 agents" were in house to protect the former first lady.

The news ballooned on Thursday morning when the conservative Weekly Standard cited the radio station in a post, the influential Drudge Report linked to the story and the anti-Clinton super PAC America Rising blasted an email to reporters about Clinton's "army of Secret Service agents, paid for at taxpayer expense."

All of this, however, was incorrect, says a source at the Secret Service.

"Although it's our policy not to discuss specific security measures, in this instance we can say this number is grossly inaccurate and exaggerated," the source said.

A Clinton spokesman declined to comment and referred CNN to the Secret Service.

Because Clinton is a former first lady and secretary of state, she regularly travels with a cadre of agents who protect her wherever she goes. When Clinton is traveling for speaking engagements and events, her personal protection is regularly increased by local agents.

Washington Post blog: PostEverything: Andrew Kohut, Pew Research Center founding director: “Why putting a Bush or Clinton back in the White House could be harder than you think”

By Andrew Kohut

January 23, 2015, 6:00 a.m. EST

[Subtitle:] Having a familiar last name doesn't ensure a candidate’s victory. Sometimes it hurts.

The 2016 presidential campaign, now in full swing in the media and the political class, starts with a fundamental question: How can American voters, who are so dissatisfied with Washington politics and the state of the nation, name the wife of one former president, and the son and brother of two others as top candidates for the White House? National dissatisfaction is at a dismal 68 percent, and Americans’ confidence in their government has been in steady decline for years. And yet, voters seem prepared to put two familiar names — Bush and Clinton — back at the helm. In recent polls, Hillary Clinton led the Democratic field by an average 49.5 percentage points, according to Real Clear Politics. And Jeb Bush led the crowded GOP field by an average 5.8 percentage points, when Mitt Romney is taken out of consideration. (When Romney’s name is included, he becomes the top choice of the Republicans by an average 8.8 percentage points, and Bush slips into second.)

Though neither has officially declared candidacy, Hillary Clinton and Jeb Bush would share a common challenge on the campaign trail: How will the legacies of their familial predecessors effect their chances of winning the election? Having a familial tie can be a boon for a presidential candidate: two first sons have risen to the White House. But having a familiar last name doesn’t ensure a candidate’s victory. Senator Robert A. Taft, eldest child of President William Howard Taft, sought the Republican nomination for president three times and failed. The value of being related to a former president when running for the Oval Office can hinge on several factors, including the past president’s own popularity, the severity of his political problems, and how closely voters link him to the legacy candidate. On all three measures, Hillary Clinton is in a much better position than Jeb Bush.

For one, Bill Clinton has been a more popular ex-president than George W. Bush for some time. In a September 2012 Pew Research Center national survey, President Bill Clinton had a 68 percent favorability rating, compared to President George W. Bush’s 41 percent. There is some good news for Jeb Bush: Public opinion of his older brother has become considerably more positive since then, and the popularity gap with President Bill Clinton has narrowed. A spring 2014 Gallup Poll found 64 percent of the public rating Bill Clinton favorably, while Bush's ratings had climbed to 53 percent. Over time, Americans tend forgive, to some degree, those presidents who were unpopular when they left office.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Within their own parties, both former presidents have high favorability ratings from likely voters. However, analysis of data from the 2012 Pew survey found Clinton's "very favorable" rating among likely Democratic voters dwarfed Bush's comparable rating among likely GOP voters (64 percent to 39 percent). Given W.'s improved overall ratings, that gap in likely-voter opinion has probably diminished, but not disappeared.

Still, popularity alone doesn't ensure former presidents will be assets to relatives on the campaign trail. A contentious campaign could resurrect some highly charged, negative images from President George W. Bush's and President Bill Clinton's pasts, potentially undermining Jeb Bush's and Hillary Clinton's standings. In Hillary Clinton's case, that means facing several of her husband's personal scandals, including Gennifer Flowers, Whitewater, and Monicagate. For Jeb Bush, it means answering for some of his brother's perceived political mistakes: Iraq, Hurricane Katrina, and the Great Recession. All will remind voters in their respective parties of incidents they would rather forget.

But at this very early stage, a Washington Post/ABC News poll released Thursday finds Hillary Clinton is suffering less than Jeb Bush from the negative legacy. A greater number of respondents said Bill Clinton's presidency makes them more likely to support Hillary Clinton (23 percent) than said it makes them less likely to support her (14 percent). And 62 percent say the Bill Clinton presidency makes no impact on their support for Hillary at all.

Jeb Bush's family connections are not as positive. While most respondents (55 percent) said the Bush presidencies don't affect their position on Jeb Bush, when there is an effect, it's usually negative. In the poll, 33 percent of adults said they are less likely to support Jeb Bush given that his father and brother served as president, while just 11 percent said they're more likely to back him.

Besides the legacy factor, these candidates face another major challenge: neither is likely to be the first choice of the more ideological wings of their respective parties. Jeb Bush may well be a hard sell to tea party Republicans, as he has been seen as not conservative enough on immigration and economic issues. A mid-December ABC/Washington Post poll of Republican voters found Jeb Bush leading the field with 14 percent, just ahead of Rand Paul and Paul Ryan (the poll did not include Romney). But the lead was not statistically significant, and the pollsters noted that the former Florida governor lost ground as voters became more conservative: He had 18 percent among moderate Republican voters, but 12 percent among very conservative voters. The December CNN/ORC International poll did show Bush significantly ahead of the rest of the field at 23 percent in its nomination trial heat (which also didn't include Romney). But it noted that many Republican respondents said they were less likely to support him when heard his stance on important issues for conservatives. When they learned that he never signed a pledge to oppose all new taxes, 38 percent said they were less likely to support him. When they found out that he described illegal immigration as an "act of love" showing concern about families, 42 percent were less supportive.

At this point there is little indication that liberal Democrats are less enamored with Hillary Clinton than moderate or conservative party members. In fact, just the opposite. A February 2014 PRC poll showed 87 percent of liberals saying they would like to see her run for president, while only 69 percent of other Democrats held that view. However, this preference may be unlikely to stick. In 2008, liberals backed Clinton over Barack Obama early on, but by March, they significantly preferred Obama (53 percent) to the former first lady (36 percent). In contrast, conservative Democrats were about evenly divided in their preferences for the two leading candidates.

The increasingly energized liberal wing of the Democratic Party – which has grown as Democrats have moved left on the role of government, regulation of business and various social issues – ultimately may be looking for a more progressive candidate than Hillary Clinton. Gallup reported last week a record number of self-identified liberals in its national surveys and found that 43 percent of Democrats identify as liberals. A moderate candidate like Hillary Clinton, often described as pro-business, might have difficulty satisfying an increasingly liberal party.

There is a lot to suggest that both legacy front-runners will face significant challenges to hold their ground, though Jeb Bush appears to be at a disadvantage. But the economy is a wild card in determining how tough the road will be for both candidates. It will be a while before voters fully engage and seriously consider the alternative candidates to the legacy names, especially on the Democratic side. By then, the positive impacts of an improved economy may well have reached a larger slice of the electorate and diminished their appetite for change. In turn, this may well lessen the electorate's demand for a fresh name in the White House. In the end, if the economy improves, both Hillary Clinton and Jeb Bush will profit.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

MSNBC: “A new batch of endorsements for Clinton”

By Alex Seitz-Wald

January 22, 2015, 9:41 p.m. EST

Hillary Clinton is still likely several months away from making a presidential announcement, but she just added a slew of endorsements to her non-campaign.

Ready for Hillary, the super PAC that has been laying the groundwork for a Clinton bid since early 2013, will host an Asian-American and Pacific Islander fundraiser in Washington Tuesday featuring almost a dozen Asian-American Democrats in Congress. The event is part of the super PAC’s efforts to build a grassroots list of Clinton supporters, while also getting Democratic officials and officeholders to publicly commit to Clinton.

Neera Tanden, Clinton’s top policy adviser during her 2008 presidential campaign and the current president of the Center for American Progress, is a featured speaker.

Honorary chairs include Sen. Mazie Hirono and 10 members of the House: Reps. Mike Honda, Doris Matsui, Judy Chu, Ami Bera, Madeleine Bordallo, Tammy Duckworth, Ted Lieu, Grace Meng, Mark Takai, and Mark Takano.

Other hosts of the event include Democratic policy experts, like Obama White House economic adviser Ginger Lew, former Clinton White House adviser Irene Bueno, and Third Way national security director Mieke Eoyang.

Tickets go for the group’s signature $20.16 price, and range up to $500 for chairs, according to an invitation.

Clinton, who spoke in Canada Wednesday night, is expected to announce her presidential ambitions in late spring.

Boston Globe: “Former Maine senator Olympia Snowe speaks at Symphony Hall”

By Mark Shanahan

January 23, 2015

Former Maine senator Olympia Snowe spoke at Symphony Hall this week as part of Lesley University’s Boston Speakers Series. The moderate Republican spent 18 years in the Senate and now toils at the Washington think tank BipartisanPolicy.org. Among the field of presumptive presidential candidates, Snowe said former secretary of state Hillary Clinton and former Florida governor Jeb Bush are likeliest to govern in a bipartisan fashion.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Calendar:

Sec. Clinton's upcoming appearances as reported online. Not an official schedule.

· February 24 – Santa Clara, CA: Sec. Clinton to Keynote Address at Inaugural Watermark Conference for Women (PR Newswire)

· March 4 – New York, NY: Sec. Clinton to fundraise for the Clinton Foundation (WSJ)

· March 19 – Atlantic City, NJ: Sec. Clinton keynotes American Camp Association conference (PR Newswire)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Lona Valmoro" <lvalmoro@hrcoffice.com>
To:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> "Phil Barnett" <pbarnett@sb-atalaya.com> "Phil Schiliro" <pschiliro@sb-atalaya.com> "Matt?? Siegler" <matt@sb-atalaya.com> bfallon@hillaryclinton.com jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com "Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com> "Philippe Reines" <pir@hrcoffice.com> "Huma Abedin" <huma@hrcoffice.com> "Dan?? Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com> jp66@hillaryclinton.com "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Mandy?? Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com> "Kendall, David" <DKendall@wc.com> "Turner,?? Katherine" <KTurner@wc.com> "Heather Samuelson" <heather.samuelson@gmail.com>
Date:	10/19/2015 9:23:47 AM
Subject:	IMPT -- today's afternoon session will begin at 2:00pm now (NOT 1:00pm)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Gene Karpinski, League of Conservation Voters" <emc@lcv.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 8/19/2013 9:00:53 AM
Subject: Special Update: a toxic week for climate denial

LEAGUE OF CONSERVATION VOTERS

Dear John,

This headline in the Washington Post says it all "Why isn't climate denialism politically toxic? "

As the story highlights, this is precisely what your investment in LCV is helping to change. For too long, too many politicians have been able to espouse an extreme, anti-science view on climate change, stalling meaningful progress on this issue with little consequences.

With your support, LCV has launched an ambitious new campaign to change that.

- We began by releasing a bipartisan poll showing that young voters overwhelmingly view climate deniers as "crazy" and "ignorant", and that by overwhelming margins they support federal action on climate change.
- Last week, we followed up with hard-hitting ads targeting four climate change deniers in Congress, likely the first ever to focus exclusively on their denial of climate science.
- On August 13, we partnered with Organizing for Action and some of our state leagues on a high-profile National Day of Action, involving hundreds of LCV members across the country at grassroots events outside the offices of climate change denying Members of Congress.

This campaign has already reached tens of millions through broad media coverage, and it is clear that we have struck a nerve with the deniers.

Of course, this is just the start. We know that oil barons -- like David and Charles Koch -- are spending millions of dollars to both undermine the scientific consensus and to prop up climate deniers. So, this needs to be a long-term effort, but it's one that we must win if we are ever going to get serious about solving the looming climate crisis.

I hope you'll read more highlights from this work below. Thanks again for all you do.

Onward,

Gene

Holding Climate Deniers Accountable

LCV launched a potent, nearly $2 million campaign to inform constituents if their Member of Congress is a climate denier and to put pressure on the deniers themselves. The campaign includes television ads criticizing Senator Ron Johnson, Representative Mike Coffman, Representative Rodney Davis, and Representative Dan Benishek for their extreme views in denying the proven science of climate change. LCV is urging their constituents to contact these members of Congress to tell them that it's time to act on climate change.

You can watch the ads by clicking the links: Senator Ron Johnson , Representative Mike Coffman , Representative Rodney Davis, and Representative Dan Benishek .

Senator Ron Johnson is Having a Tiff

We have struck a nerve with the deniers. On the first day of the ad campaign, Senator Ron Johnson wrote a highly inappropriate and hyperbolic response to our ad, accusing LCV of being on an "environmental jihad". He wrote:

"The League of Conservation Voters is not an organization with a balanced approach to a cleaner environment. They are an extreme left group on an environmental jihad*."*

We can't let him use name calling to distract from the damage he is doing by siding with polluters over people. That's why we're asking every LCV supporter across the country to help us send Senator Johnson a message today: we expect him to change his stance on climate and we won't back down.

Tell Senator Johnson to apologize and to stop denying climate change. Already more than 30,000 people have signed our petition and I hope you will join them by signing here .

Day of Action on Climate Change

We partnered with Organizing for Action to conduct grassroots events outside the offices of Members of Congress that deny climate change. The joint effort delivered special "Climate Denier Awards" to more than 130 members of Congress. Hundreds of LCV members turned out in 15 cities across the country. Below are just a few photos from some of the events held around the country.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Media Highlights

1. The debate over climate change -- WJLA.com
2. Ron Johnson accuses group fighting climate change of 'environmental jihad' -- Huffington Post
3. Sen. Ron Johnson: I'm the target of an "environmental jihad" -- Salon
4. $2M ad campaign targets 'anti-science, anti-climate' Republicans -- The Hill
5. Environmental groups seek to rally support for Obama's climate action plan -- Bloomberg BNA
6. GOP Senator says group is on 'environmental jihad' against him -- Talking Points Memo
7. Political Notes: Maryland League of Conservation Voters takes aim at Harris -- CapitalGazette.com
8. Environmentalists deliver climate change denier award to Congressman Issa -- KPBS.org
9. Groups fault Garrett for climate change views -- New Jersey Herald

Update Your Profile
To Unsubscribe Click Here

1920 L Street, NW Suite 800
Washington, DC 20036
202-785-8683

POWERED BY blackbaud
nonprofit software

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	usarmy.mcnair.mdw.mbx.armytenmiler@mail.mil
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	7/30/2015 5:04:03 AM
Subject:	ATM Youth Run Registration Opens in August and Other News

Run Army Run Strong

Army Ten-Miler

Exciting 2-Day Expo World Class Race

In This Edition:

*ATM Youth Run Registration
*ATM Expo Exhibit Info
*ATM Transfer Program Ends 21-Aug
*Free Army Performance in Sep
*Pasta Dinner Tickets Available Online
*HQ Race Hotel
*ATM Proceeds Benefit Soldiers
*ATM Gear - Gear Up & Look Hooah

Support MWR Program

US Army

ATM Youth Run Registration - Registration for the 2015 ATM Youth Runs will open 4-Aug. There will be a 100 meter run for grades K-3 and a 200 meter run for grades 4-8. Runs will be conducted on 11-Oct after the 10-mile race at 11:30am in the Pentagon North Lot. All participants will receive a race number, shirt, and finisher medal. Field is limited to 450 participants so register early.

ATM Expo Exhibit Info - Showcase your products or services to 35,000+ runners and U.S. service members at the ATM Expo on Oct 9-10 at the DC Armory. Expo is free and open to the public. For more information contact Darryl Gale at 202-685-3577 or darryl.a.gale.naf@mail.mil .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

ATM Transfer Program - Over 1,200 runners traditionally use the ATM Transfer Program to buy or sell a race entry. The secure, easy to use, online Transfer Program runs until 21-Aug. For more info click here .

Free Army Performance in Sep - The Spririt of America is a FREE live-action, patriotic show returning to DC September 2015! The all-Soldier cast reenacts historically-accurate vignettes accompanied with performances by the Army's elite ceremonial units. For more info go to www.spiritofamerica.mdw.army.mil .

GEICO Pasta Dinner - Order your tickets online - still only $29! Known for its hearty buffet, music, and esprit de corps. The dinner is attended by the Sergeants Major of the Army, Guard, Reserve and over 1,000 runners from around the world! Dinner always sells out so order your tickets early. Click here for ticket info and sales.

HQ Race Hotel - The Crystal Gateway Marriott is the HQ race hotel and hosts the GEICO pasta dinner. A special room rate is available to runners. Limited rooms still available. The hotel is conveniently located on the Metro, near Reagan National Airport, near restaurants and is within walking distance of the Pentagon. For more info and reservations click here .

ATM Proceeds Support Soldiers - All proceeds from the Army Ten-Miler benefit Soldier and Soldier Family MWR programs. Thank you for supporting Soldiers!

ATM Gear - G&G Outfitters is the exclusive gear supplier for the Army Ten-Miler. The ATM gear store offers a complete line of fashionable, performance wear for men and women at competitive prices. To gear up and look Hooah click here .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Thank You Sponsors for Supporting Soldiers

Lead Sponsors

AUSA

AUSA

Major Sponsors

Supporting Sponsors

Copyright (c) 2015 Army Ten-Miler. Distribution of this announcement is not an endorsement of these commercial products and services by the Federal Government, the DoD, or the Army.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Bradley Komar" <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Kristina Costa" <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	2/23/2016 9:09:26 AM
Subject:	Re: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"

I think we can get Polis if we want him to. he does not like that he is painted as anti-fracking in the press and this is an opportunity for him to push off sanders and appear more reasonable. It also benefits us---a win-win.

I am going to quietly check with Conservation Colorado (the state LCV) and see if they have an appetite for pushing back on Sanders.

I think the Denver Post Ed Board could smack Sanders if we want them to but that makes it a bigger fight.

Keep in mind this is a busy news day in CO and we have had no media inquires. We can either start a fight or line up the validators for when the Sanders starts the fight. I think the latter makes more sense but its a close call.

So should I line up validators in Polis and local LCV while holding off on the Denver Post Ed Board until Sanders engages?

On Tue, Feb 23, 2016 at 3:38 PM, Kristina Costa <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Brad, do you think we can get polis?
>
> We also lost comms. +
>
> /KLC
>
> On Feb 23, 2016, at 5:37 PM, Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > Just got off with Brad and filled him in on LiUNA/labor drama. LCV isn't willing to hit Bernie on this. Sounds like Polis is the best bet if press stats asking, otherwise better to duck and cover.
> >
> > From: Bradley Komar [mailto:bkomar@hillaryclinton.com]
> > Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 2:21 PM
> > To: Trevor Houser
> > Cc: Kristina Costa; Jake Sullivan; Sara Latham; John Podesta; Tyson Brody; Samantha McClain; Mr. Pete Ogden; Ben Kobren
> > Subject: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"
> >
> > I would prefer an ally (congressman polis and/or LCV) Who have strong bone fides on the environment to whack sander's for taking an irresponsible position and in doing so, threatening real progress on frack fluid disclosure and air quality regulations. This is yet another promise he can't keep.
> >
> > I think we will be forced to weigh in by sanders and of course we have to state our position: it's a transitional energy--and we need to go green. But that is a very soft response that sounds better if Bernie is being hit by the left.
> >
> > I would watch our tone and not sound too pro-fracking. A reluctant tone is a better fit for dem caucus

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

goers (it's a transition energy. It's not great but it allows us to get to where we want to be)

On Tuesday, February 23, 2016, Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com > wrote:

> ++ John and Sara on this chain.
>
> Brad and I just chatted. We think the following posture makes sense:
>
> "Bernie's call for banning all hydraulic fracturing is, extreme, unfeasible and ignores the contribution natural gas has made to our economy and our efforts to reduce carbon pollution. What we need to focus on is putting in place common sense safeguards to protect our air and water, like mandatory disclosure of fracking chemicals, closing the Halliburton loophole, regulations to reduce methane emissions from both new and existing sources. Hillary has called for all of these things to make sure that those communities that choose to pursue natural gas development do so safely and responsibly. And she will stand by those communities that decide they don't want natural gas production to occur."
>
> Did I capture it Brad? We are seeing if some progressive allies can hit Bernie for being too extreme on this.
>
> ---
>
> From: Kristina Costa [mailto:kcosta@hillaryclinton.com]
> Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 1:48 PM
> To: Jake Sullivan; Bradley Komar
> Cc: Tyson Brody; Samantha McClain; Clips; Trevor Houser; Mr. Pete Ogden; Ben Kobren
> Subject: RE: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"
>
> Trevor and Brad are connecting now to discuss.
>
> ---
>
> From: Jake Sullivan [mailto:jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com]
> Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 4:38 PM
> To: Bradley Komar <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com >
> Cc: Kristina Costa <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com >; Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com >; Samantha McClain <smcclain@hillaryclinton.com >; Clips <clips@hillaryclinton.com >; Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com >; Mr. Pete Ogden <progden@gmail.com >; Ben Kobren <benkobren@gmail.com >
> Subject: Re: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"
>
> Should we try to do anything with this?
>
> On Feb 23, 2016, at 4:07 PM, Bradley Komar <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > "The only candidate to oppose fracking"
> >
> > What does that mean? A complete 100% fracking ban. There is no elected dem and I believe no enviro group that takes this position. In fact, such an extreme position threatens the progress of common-sense safety measures like frack fluid disclosure and methane capture/air quality regulations.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

The Denver Post Editorial Board could really smack him for this. This is tricky waters for caucus goers but his language may leave him vulnerable.

Jared Polis is a regarded as a leader of the regulating fracking team in CO and his argument is reforms, not a ban.

"Fracking can endanger our drinking water and threaten our climate"

For the fact check: The threaten our climate is based on methane released in the air when extracting natural gas from the ground. Colorado mandates oil and gas pay for methane capture technology to prevent the potent green house gas from escaping and the state issues large fines to bad actors. Natural gas burns cleaner than other traditional energies so the "threatens our climate" is about methane released during extraction which Colorado has already addressed.

Still really tough for us to talk about.

On Tue, Feb 23, 2016 at 2:00 PM, Kristina Costa <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> + for awareness
>
> From: clips@hillaryclinton.com [mailto:clips@hillaryclinton.com] On Behalf Of Tyson Brody
> Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 3:45 PM
> To: Bradley Komar <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com >
> Cc: Samantha McClain <smcclain@hillaryclinton.com >; Clips <clips@hillaryclinton.com >
> Subject: Re: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"
>
> at the very least in Colorado: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0gALQGCrjZs&feature=em-uploademail
>
> On Tue, Feb 23, 2016 at 3:43 PM, Bradley Komar <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > Do we know where this is playing?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Tuesday, February 23, 2016, Samantha McClain <smcclain@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0gALQGCrjZs
>
> v/o: Bernie Sanders. The courage to stand up to Big Oil, because he won't take their money.
>
> That's why Sanders said no to the Keystone pipeline, and never waffled.
>
> He's also the only candidate to oppose fracking, because fracking can endanger our drinking water and threaten our climate.
>
> Sanders has the most far reaching plan to fight climate change and build a clean energy future.
>
> Bernie Sanders. People before polluters.
>
> Sanders: I'm Bernie Sanders and I approve this message.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Leslie de Leon" <ld333@law.georgetown.edu>
To:	Announcements <Announcements@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	6/15/2015 9:39:56 AM
Subject:	Jack says "Walk, job, run--it all counts!"

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	john.podesta@gmail.com
To:	"Juliana Gendelman" <jgendelman@americanprogress.org>
Date:	10/31/2008 11:09:48 AM
Subject:	Let's put eller off till tomorrow.

Sent via BlackBerry from T-Mobile

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: SportsAuthority.com <SportsAuthority.com@em.sportsauthority.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 10/1/2012 10:04:25 AM
Subject: New UNDER ARMOUR Fitness Apparel! Just in Time for Fall

Shape Your Season with UNDER ARMOUR! New Fall Fitness Apparel. Shop Now

View Online Version

SPORTS AUTHORITY

Store Locator »
Events »

My Account Help

FOLLOW THE AUTHORITY

Fitness Clothes Shoes Accessories Team Sports Action Sports Golf/Racquet Games Fan Shop Outdoors Outlet

GET FREE SHIPPING ON ALL ORDERS OF $75 OR MORE*

SHAPE YOUR SEASON
With New Fall Fitness Apparel From UNDER ARMOUR

SHOP WOMEN'S ▸ SHOP MEN'S ▸

ADD SOME SPRING TO YOUR STEP asics

Men's & Women's ASICS® GT-2170™ Running Shoes
Buy Now »

Men's & Women's ASICS® GEL-Kayano® 18 Running Shoes
Buy Now »

TAKE IT TO THE NEXT LEVEL
Shop Running Accessories »

GET 5% BACK

JOIN OUR MEMBER PROGRAM TODAY AND START SCORING REWARDS ON ALL IN-STORE MERCHANDISE
Learn More »

THE LEAGUE BY SPORTS AUTHORITY™

QUICK LINKS

- ▸ APPAREL
- ▸ FOOTWEAR
- ▸ RUNNING
- ▸ FITNESS
- ▸ BASEBALL
- ▸ BASKETBALL
- ▸ FOOTBALL
- ▸ SOCCER
- ▸ BICYCLING
- ▸ GOLF
- ▸ TENNIS
- ▸ LACROSSE
- ▸ ACTION SPORTS
- ▸ SKI/ SNOWBOARD
- ▸ CAMPING
- ▸ FISHING/ HUNTING
- ▸ MENS
- ▸ WOMENS
- ▸ KIDS

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

* Free Shipping is applied to your order when the retail value of products in your cart subtotal to be $75 or more. Shipping savings will be reflected in the shopping cart. Offer applies to GROUND shipping only. Priority shipping will be applied for expedited orders. Items that are oversized or are larger than load will have normal shipping charges applied. Offer is valid on orders shipped to one address within the continental United States. Orders that are $75 and over placed NOW – 10/27/12 at 11:59pm EST that include qualifying items will receive free shipping. Exclusions apply. This promotion is for a limited time and can be modified or terminated at any time without advance notice. Offer does not apply to gift certificates, gift cards, taxes, or similar charges. Offer cannot be combined with any other promotional offer and is not valid on previous purchases.

EMAIL SUBSCRIPTION

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com. To update your email preferences or change your email address, visit My Account . If you would rather not receive email updates from Sports Authority, you can UNSUBSCRIBE at any time. Or, write us at SportsAuthority.com, Email Permissions Manager, 915 S Babcock Street, Melbourne, FL 32901.

CONTACT US

Please do not reply to this email, as we are not able to respond to messages sent to this address.
Visit our Online Help
Online Customer Service: 1.888.801.9164
In-Store Customer Service: 1.800.360.8721

Privacy Policy .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Kenny Coffin" <kennycoffin@gmail.com>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	11/13/2015 3:20:09 PM
Subject:	American Best Interest

Dear Mr. Podesta,

My name is Ken Coffin, I am a Canadian citizen residing in Edmonton Alberta Canada.

As a good neighbor and ally to the US, I was curious as to why NASA is feeding the Canadian Space Agency with wrong or misinformation regarding certain anomaly scenarios that are occurring.

Our intelligence is limited. We rely on US-Canadian joint ventures to accomplish our goals which feed the US new wonderful tools.

Why are we being shut out and shut down?

I take this personally both as a Citizen of Canada and as a member of the scientific community.

We cannot improve the ion drive systems if we are left out.

If the US does not want to continue our long standing friendship, and solely act in its own best interests, then we can end the charade of NAFTA now.

We were technologically superior to the US.
We don't need the US.

I think, and you will agree, that without our contributions, the US would not have grown the way it has.
Canadians own Hollywood, New York, Florida, the Stanley Cup and by right, the Pennant that was stolen from us due to the baseball strike.
By all rights and reason, we require full disclosure of all alien contact and all treaties the US has agreed to with the aliens.
We might have weak intelligence, but we have ascertained that we are food, labor, and resource generators for the alien over lords.
Our information came from your own DoD, casually and off the record by credible sources.
Now we want to know if we are going to be dealt a hand at the table or will we be left out like last time?

I represent a Canadian organization that doesn't exist that looks like DARPA, but works with the government to pursue positive growth business.

Our interests lie in the contribution to the positive growth of humanity.

We think that we can make the world better, happier and more peaceful. But we can't do that if we are about to see a mass extinction event occur.

Our historical data is wrong, our timelines are wrong, and with all the information being withheld or lied about, we have a very bad feeling that the US is leading us into a trap.

If you can please help us help you it would be greatly appreciated!

We just need to know who and what we are dealing with. What are their intentions? Are they hostile? Can we stop them if necessary? What deals were cut?

If the US betrayed Canada's trust, or put itself forward at Canada's expense, we will not tolerate another Afghanistan situation. That was ten years of work wasted.

We don't have to let the US win the cup or the pennant and we certainly don't have to keep our currency artificially deflated to satisfy US ego.

We can also cut our own deals with these alien visitors/landed martians.

But we won't engage them unless the US denies us access privileges and full debriefing.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

My advice is bring us to the table. We need more information because our data is currently not up to date.
Our failed attempts at catching UFOs showed how weak we were.
This is because we do not know what we are up against.
We need more data.

Plus, with the magnetic north pole moving towards the equator, we need help. If we can find allies that can help we would welcome it.
Or in 20+ years we will all be dead anyway.

Magnetic North now over Siberia.
In ten years it will be over the black sea. In 20 years it will be over Indonesia.

If the US cut a deal, now would be a good time to start calling in favors!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Michael Huttner" <michael@huttner.org>
To:	"Michael Huttner" <michael@huttner.org>
Date:	11/12/2010 5:52:44 AM
Subject:	Wanted to ensure you received this invite Confidential. Please do not forward.

Dear Key Advisor,

I wanted to ensure you received this invite.

If you are in Washington DC this coming Monday, November 15, please join me, Ted Trimpa and Denise Cardinal, the new Executive Director of ProgressNow, at the new offices of the Democracy Alliance for this confidential conversation. Details from Denise below.

Please reply to me at this email to let me know if you can join us and/or if there is someone else you would like me to include.

Michael
303-931-4547 cell

Hey guys -- I'm in town for the Democracy Alliance conference and would love to see you at our event -- it's a great way to find out about what we do. Erin Neff of our successful Nevada affiliate will be talking about how they saved Harry Reid.

Denise----

Monday, November 15, 10:45 – 11:30 a.m. Building the Progressive Megaphone in 2011 and 2012
Democracy Alliance Conference Facilities – 1575 Eye Street, NW; West Room

What do we say? Who do we talk to? Where and when? Please join Denise Cardinal, the new Executive Director of ProgressNow, to discuss these questions and seek answers and ideas from other attendees in this discussion about the role of communication hubs, national earned media work, and research providers as we move into 2012. RSVP to Denise Cardinal at denise@allianceminnesota.org .

--
Denise Cardinal
612.269.9276

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	12/10/2015 12:28:58 PM
Subject:	Re: Hamilton Ticket

Grazie! Grazie!

On Dec 10, 2015 1:06 PM, "Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> whooooooooo hooooooooo!
> thanks Hannah!
>
> On Thu, Dec 10, 2015 at 4:00 PM, Hannah Richert <Hannah@presidentclinton.com > wrote:
>
> > All set!
> >
> > Hamilton
> > Wed. 12/23 MAT
> > 4 tkts
> > Under: J. Podesta
> > $167/tkt

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Orszag, Jon" <jorszag@compasslexecon.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com "Steiner, Joshua" <Joshua.Steiner@quadranglegroup.com> william.m.daley@jpmchase.com
Date:	11/2/2008 2:45:22 PM
Subject:	autos

Hi John/Josh/Bill:

I just wanted to give you an update re: my new task of coming up with the policy ideas to help the auto industry.

My plan is to circulate a draft options memo to this group by Wednesday AM.

I spoke with Jack Lew tonight (and he filled me in on his conversations with Roger, Rob Liberatore, and Martin Baily). I will be speaking with a number of experts/analysts tomorrow and Tuesday (including Mark Gallogly).

If you have any questions, please feel free to email or call me.

Thanks,
Jon

Jonathan M. Orszag
COMPASS LEXECON
202.253.9306
202.318.0596 fax
jorszag@compasslexecon.com
www.compasslexecon.com

Confidentiality Notice:
This email and any attachments may be confidential and protected by legal privilege. If you are not the intended recipient, be aware that any disclosure, copying, distribution or use of the e-mail or any attachment is prohibited. If you have received this email in error, please notify us immediately by replying to the sender and then delete this copy and the reply from your system. Thank you for your cooperation.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Aniello Alioto" <aniello@progressnow.org>
To:
Date:	6/25/2013 8:35:01 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] NAT'L PRESS CALL ADVISORY: Student Loan Debt Devastating the Economy, Inhibiting Personal Economic Freedom

FYI -- we're doing a press call tomorrow on student loan debt leading up to the rate increase happening on July 1. Scot will be one of the participants and he'll be talking through the results of the survey many of you took part in. This has gone out to a list of national reporters who have focused on the issue (and WI reporters) but if there are a couple in-state folks you know are interested, please pass this along.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: John Neurohr <jneurohr@progressnow.org >

PRESS CALL ADVISORY: Student Loan Debt Devastating the Economy, Inhibiting Personal Economic Freedom

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Contact: John Neurohr

Phone: 412-531-2464

Email: jneurohr@progressnow.org

Washington, D.C. – With subsidized student loan rates set to double on July 1st, the larger student debt crisis is gaining national attention with more and more evidence showing that the impact of student debt stretches beyond students and their families to the economy as a whole.

On Wednesday, June 26th at 3:30 p.m. EDT, student loan experts will host a press call to discuss the impact of student debt on consumers and families and the broader economy.

Rates are set to double from 3.4 percent to 6.8 percent by the end of this week if Congress can't find a solution. With only days to go, time is running out for the more than 7 million college students and families who rely on these loans and would be hit with $1,000 hike in college costs if rates double.

On the call, Anne Johnson, Director of Campus Progress, will detail the student loan debt crisis, including demographics, types of debt, and solutions for dealing with the inability of federal borrowers to refinance. ProgressNow Education's Scot Ross will talk through a recent national survey of 60,000+ Americans affected by student loan debt and the implications that these findings have for the economy as a whole. Finally, Robert Applebaum, Co-Founder and ED of StudentDebtCrisis.org will explain how the coming increase in interest rates is a small part of a massive and ever-growing student loan debt problem.

WHO:

Anne Johnson, Director of Campus Progress, the youth arm of the Center for American Progress

Scot Ross, ProgressNow Education's Student Debt Campaign Manager and Executive Director of One Wisconsin Now

Robert Applebaum, Co-Founder & Executive Director of StudentDebtCrisis.org

WHEN:

Wednesday, June 26th – 3:30 PM Eastern

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

CALL-IN INFORMATION:

888-387-8686

Conference ID #: 5188424

For questions, please contact John Neurohr at jneurohr@progressnow.org .

--
--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group. Moderated by Aniello, Lori and Sara.

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "big campaign" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to bigcampaign+unsubscribe@googlegroups.com.
To post to this group, send email to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com.
For more options, visit https://groups.google.com/groups/opt_out .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Tiernan Sittenfeld" <tiernan_sittenfeld@lcv.org>
Date: 3/2/2016 11:34:43 AM
Subject: Re: 2 LCV press releases from the last 24 hours

Thanks!!!

On Wednesday, March 2, 2016, Tiernan Sittenfeld <tiernan_sittenfeld@lcv.org > wrote:

http://www.lcv.org/media/press-releases/LCV-Congratulates-Hillary-on-Big-Super-Tuesday-Victories.html

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Tuesday, March 1, 2016

CONTACT: Seth Stein, 202-454-4573 or Seth_Stein@lcv.org

LCV Congratulates Hillary on Big "Super Tuesday" Victories

Washington, D.C. – Hillary Clinton was announced as the winner of the majority of the states that voted tonight in the "Super Tuesday" 2016 Democratic presidential primaries. Republican frontrunner Donald Trump also won the majority of the states in his party's primaries tonight. In response League of Conservation Voters President Gene Karpinski issued the following statement:

> "Congratulations to Hillary! Tonight she scored a series of big wins in the Democratic primary, where voters have tuned in to her message of breaking down the barriers to progress on key issues like climate change and environmental justice . Unfortunately, Donald Trump's support in the Republican primaries is of serious concern. An outright climate denier who has claimed climate change is a hoax perpetuated by the Chinese is now the presumptive Republican nominee. To be perfectly clear – with Trump in the White House, all the incredible progress we've made these past few years on climate change and environmental protection under President Obama would be obliterated. In the tough fight for the White House, we have already begun pointing out the stark differences between Hillary's smart policies and outspoken leadership and Trump's reckless policies and crude rhetoric."

In November, LCV Action Fund endorsed Hillary Clinton for president—its earliest endorsement of a presidential candidate in the history of the organization and the first endorsement ever made before any votes are cast.

###

Paid for by the League of Conservation Voters, www.lcv.org , and not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

http://www.lcv.org/media/press-releases/Update-on-LCV-s-GreenRoots-Program-for-Hillary-Clinton.html

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Wednesday, March 2, 2016

Contact: Hannah Blatt, (202) 454-4554 or hannah_blatt@lcv.org

Update on LCV's GreenRoots Program for Hillary Clinton

WASHINGTON, DC—The League of Conservation Voters (LCV) is proud to have mobilized its members as volunteers for Hillary Clinton through its grassroots program, GreenRoots. To date, GreenRoots has engaged more than 250 LCV members who have completed more than 1,140 shifts, with nearly 370 of those shifts completed during the days leading up to the primaries and caucuses. The GreenRoots program has recruited members in Iowa, New Hampshire, Nevada, Colorado, and Virginia and has emailed LCV members in nearly every state where primaries and caucuses have occurred to date.

"In states across the country, LCV members are thrilled to volunteer their time to ensure that Hillary becomes our next president," said LCV Senior Vice President of Government Affairs Tiernan Sittenfeld. "We are more excited than ever to be supporting Hillary because her experience, skills, and passion for confronting our many environmental challenges—ranging from the climate crisis to ensuring clean drinking water for all of America's children—make her the exact right person for the job. We are confident she will hit the ground running on day one in the oval office."

In January, the League of Conservation Voters (LCV) released a new digital ad in support of Hillary Clinton for president that contrasts Clinton's leadership on climate change with climate science deniers as exemplified by Donald Trump.

In November, LCV Action Fund endorsed Hillary Clinton for president—its earliest endorsement of a Presidential candidate in the history of the organization and the first endorsement ever made before any votes were cast.

###

Press release paid for by the League of Conservation Voters Action Fund, www.lcvactionfund.org , and not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

Hannah Blatt

Communications Coordinator

League of Conservation Voters

Work: 202-454-4554

Cell: 323-497-6299

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	frotondaro@catholicsinalliance.org
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <jpodesta@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	2/26/2016 7:07:45 AM
Subject:	John,

You likely saw Nancy Pelosi's comments praising Sen Sanders for bringing millennials into the political process and saying they only wanted fairness and opportunity.
I think this is the perfect tone to take with these voters.
I have been dismayed in the last few weeks to see both Pres and Sec Clinton talk about these voters as wanting impossible things, or as Mitt Romney might say, free things.
I do 't see how this language helps at all.
Sec Clinton does not need millennials to win the nomination. She may need them to win the election. They should be embraced

Fred

Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Deese, Brian C. EOP" <Brian_C_Deese@who.eop.gov>
To:	John.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	8/2/2015 8:07:41 PM
Subject:	Re: Checked in with the Clintons

Thanks. Happy to. Safest would be after 330pm EST once we've gotten through POTUS's announcement. I could do anytime after that.

From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Sunday, August 02, 2015 10:45 PM
To: Deese, Brian C. EOP
Subject: Checked in with the Clintons

i gave her a briefing and I think she's in a good place. WJC is traveling. Could you give him a briefing tomorrow by phone? He's in Wyoming. Good times for you?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: mae_podesta@mckinsey.com
Date: 1/9/2014 9:27:17 PM
Subject: Re: New Contacts for John Podesta

Always # 1. Did you think that was obnoxious?

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

On Jan 10, 2014, at 12:33 AM, mae_podesta@mckinsey.com wrote:

So where do I sit within the hierarchy of priorities ;-)

----- Forwarded by Mae Podesta/NJE/NorthAmerica/MCKINSEY on 01/09/2014 11:32 PM -----

From: "Sepp, Eryn" <Eryn_M_Sepp@who.eop.gov >
To: "Sepp, Eryn" <Eryn_M_Sepp@who.eop.gov >,
Date: 01/09/2014 05:55 PM
Subject: New Contacts for John Podesta

Hello everyone—

John Podesta is settling in well in the West Wing, and he asked that I send out his new contacts to all who require them. Feel free to pass these on if asked, with the caveat that we're not able to accommodate as much as we used to. I apologize if this information is redundant for you, but I don't want to miss anyone.

For any scheduling or call requests more than a week out, I will be reviewing external requests every Saturday for consideration. We generally cannot make firm commitments more than 24-72 hrs in advance, and even then, everything is subject to cancellation. I ask that you be kind and not flood me all at once with call and meeting requests, as we're still getting acquainted with the scheduling rhythm here, and we are subject to the whims of a higher power for the next year. If you have a request that can possibly wait until after the State of the Union on Jan 28th, please hold off until then.

Thank you for your understanding during this period of transition, and I look forward to working with you all this new year!

John Podesta
Counselor to the President
White House Business Only: John_D_Podesta@who.eop.gov
Other than White House business: john.podesta@gmail.com

Scheduling:
Eryn M. Sepp
202-456-1404 (which rings through to my BBerry if I'm not around)
White House Business Only: Eryn_M_Sepp@who.eop.gov
Other than White House business: eryn.sepp@gmail.com (will generally not be checked during business hours)

Also contact me if you have:
-Information you don't know if you should forward to John.
-A call request for John on a particular subject, but you don't know where your topic would fit in the hierarchy of priorities.

When in doubt, send to gmail or just call.

All the best,
Eryn

Eryn M. Sepp
Special Assistant to the Counselor to the President
202-456-1404
Eryn_M_Sepp@who.eop.gov

+===+
This email is confidential and may be privileged. If you have received it in error, please notify us immediately and then delete it. Please do not copy it, disclose its contents or use it for any purpose.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

+===+

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Raj Goyle" <info@goyleforcongress.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 11/1/2010 3:41:36 PM
Subject: BREAKING NEWS - GOTVeritas Update

BREAKING NEWS:

MSNBC talk show host Rachel Maddow has joined the growing national press outrage over the Wichita "bigotron" scandal.

Click HERE to watch her scathing "analysis" of the controversial illegal and offensive pro-Pompeo advertising from her prime time national broadcast.

Then please forward this email to every decent and honorable person you know.

CLICK HERE TO CONTRIBUTE

CLICK HERE TO VOLUNTEER ON ELECTION DAY!

Dear John,

Veritas means truth. And with less than 24 hours before polls open we still need your help pushing back with truth the smears and attacks from our opponent and his allies.

Help us pull the plug on these bigoted attacks. Make a final contribution of $10, $20, $30 or even $100 right now.

With thousands of dollars of anonymously funded attacks and independent smear campaigns, our opponent is still trying to keep you from knowing the truth about him, his outsourcing record, and his support for an extreme agenda that hurts our state.

Please help us fight back right now - donate here today .

Don't let them stop you from getting out the vote and getting out the truth.

We will work non-stop for the next 30 hours until every vote is counted and every truth is told. Can you help make calls from home today or tomorrow? Please email matthew@goyleforcongress.com or call 316-681-8133 to volunteer.

Thank you for standing with us again today to make this all possible.

On to Victory,

Raj

UPDATE: I was just told by a staffer that MSNBC is now running a TV story about these latest attacks. Here's the link to that story AND the other national press this ugly incident has received: http://www.msnbc.msn.com/id/39943721

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

CONTRIBUTE

POLITICO

"Race is back in the battle between Republican Mike Pompeo and Democrat Raj Goyle", Read more: http://www.politico.com/news/þ+stories/1010/44457_Page2.html#þ.ixzz1434plmVU

THE HUFFINGTON POST

"Mike Pompeo Billboard Urges Kansas Residents to 'Vote American' Against Indian-American Candidate Raj Goyle"
Read more: http://www.huffingtonpost.com/þ.2010/10/31/raj-goyle-mike-þ/pompeo-billboard_n_776659.html

Paid for and Authorized by Raj Goyle for Congress, Inc.

Contributions to Raj Goyle for Congress, Inc. are not deductible for federal income tax purposes.
P.O. Box 780971
Wichita, KS 67278

send to a friend

TO UNSUBSCRIBE FROM THIS MAILING LIST, CLICK ÞOHERE POWERED BY Þ1NGP SOFTWARE, INC.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Amitabh Desai" <adesai@clintonfoundation.org>
To:	"Bruce Lindsey" <blindsey@clintonfoundation.org>
Date:	2/21/2012 10:03:02 AM
Subject:	Rwanda concern

Dear Bruce, Laura, and Doug, the note below requests your guidance regarding CHDI in Rwanda. We'd welcome your feedback and would be happy to discuss this further at your convenience. Sincerely, Ami and Walker

THE CHALLENGE: The Rwandan public and government associate Soyco and Rwandan Farmers with WJC, but we have little or no operational input or control of those programs. This presents reputational risks - for example next year if Soyco is accused of unjust labor practices, or an accident/fatality occurs at the factory, or if the farmers complain the factory isn't paying them fair prices, etc, there is a risk that WJC is held responsible, albeit unfairly.

POSSIBLE ACTIONS. Options to address this challenge include:

1. Continue the status quo. Reputational risks persist. WJC and we may talk about continuing to do agricultural work in Rwanda but the facts on the ground no longer support that claim. NOT RECOMMENDED.

2. Try to establish operational input/control with the businesses. This is probably not feasible since we have no representation at Board or Management level in Soyco or Rwandan Coffee. Even if feasible, is this really desirable? Do we want to be minority stakeholders in these businesses? This would require staff /local resources. NOT RECOMMENDED.

3. RECOMMENDED OPTION: Declare progress and implicitly distance WJC from the ongoing operations of the business. During the next Africa trip, WJC could visit the sites of the businesses, declare the progress that's been achieved, and implicitly/overtly say we have succeeded in creating new businesses and that continuing responsibility for the businesses now shifts to the shareholders on record. Reality is that going forward, WJC would not be able to say that we have ongoing agricultural programs on the ground, but this would resolve the reputational concerns with Rwandan government and public.

4. Establish a support program for soy and coffee farmers who are selling produce to Soyco and Rwandan Farmers. Downside is this would require supporting staff/local resources - which could be requested from AGRA. The Hunters are focused on processing but there is still a need/opportunity to support farmers in being more productive. AGRA has a much more positive feeling about their investment in Malawi than in Rwanda and they could see it as positive if CDI takes over responsibility for managing the AGRA grant in Rwanda. We are working on a new proposal to AGRA after recent meetings in Nairobi, so the timing would be good to suggest this and ask for more Rwanda funding. More broadly, the upside of this option is that this would enable WJC to say rightfully that we have ongoing agriculture programs in Rwanda. This also would provide an opportunity to engage donors who approach us with an interest in Rwanda. Please note that this could be done as a complement to (but is not needed for) the RECOMMENDED option above.

5. Withdraw. Send a letter to Rwandan Government and/or others, making clear that WJC / CF have no continuing agricultural programs via CHDI in Rwanda. This would attempt to dissolve the optics of an ongoing CHDI program in Rwanda. This is probably unnecessarily jarring, especially given the feasibility of the RECOMMENDED option above.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Elias, Marc \(Perkins Coie\)" <MElias@perkinscoie.com>
To:	"Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com>
Date:	4/5/2015 9:28:39 AM
Subject:	Re: Granholm

Do you have phone # or email?

--
Marc E. Elias
Perkins Coie LLP
700 13th St, NW
Washington, DC 20005
202-434-1609 (ph)
202-654-9126 (fax)
melias@perkinscoie.com

From: Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >
Date: Sunday, April 5, 2015 at 12:27 PM
To: Marc Elias <melias@perkinscoie.com >
Cc: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Subject: Granholm

Marc,
As we discussed, we'd like Granholm to leave Priorities and be a volunteer surrogate for us. We don't want to give out any titles at the beginning of the campaign, but we'd like her to get to work for us right away and we can determine titles later.
Thanks for reaching out
Robby

NOTICE: This communication may contain privileged or other confidential information. If you have received it in error, please advise the sender by reply email and immediately delete the message and any attachments without copying or disclosing the contents. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	podesta.mary@gmail.com
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/3/2016 10:48:31 AM
Subject:	Roy Erickson
Attachments:	Roy Erickson.vcf

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Opinion Miles Club" <info@opinionmilesclub.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 7/9/2015 5:00:02 AM
Subject: You can still share your opinion and be rewarded

? ? ?
?
?
?
?
?
?
? ? ?
?
?
? ? ?
?
?
??
? ?
? ?
? ? ? ? ?
?
?
?
? ?
?
?
?
OpinionMilesClub
MileagePlus UNITED
?

? ? ?
?
?
Reward: 50 Award Miles
Survey Length: 10 Minutes
Participate now by clicking here » ?
? ?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

? ?
? ?
?
?

? ?

You're Invited!

?

Dear John,

Tired of people telling you what you should be thinking? Why not use this survey to express yourself and help influence those around you.

Thanks for participating!
-The Opinion Miles Club Team

? ? ?

? ?
?
?

? ? Take this survey now » ?

? ?
? ?
? ?

?

?
? ? ?

? ?

?
?
?

? ? ? ? ? ?

?

?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

?

? Terms & Conditions |? Privacy Policy |? Unsubscribe ?

?

Opinion Miles Club is a product of Survey Sampling International, LLC, 6 Research Drive, Shelton, Connecticut 06484 USA.

*United Airlines & MileagePlus have no responsibility for the content of the surveys you may receive and does not share views expressed during survey participation.

Miles accrued, awards, and benefits issued are subject to change and are subject to the rules of the United MileagePlus program. Please allow 6-8 weeks for miles to post to your account. United may change the MileagePlus program including, but not limited to, rules, regulations, travel awards and special offers or terminate the MileagePlus program at any time and without notice. Bonus award miles, award miles and any other miles earned through non-flight activity do not count or qualify for Premier® status unless expressly stated otherwise. United and its subsidiaries, affiliates and agents are not responsible for any products and services of other participating companies and partners.

Taxes and fees related to award travel are the responsibility of the member. The accumulation of mileage or Premier status does not entitle members to any vested rights with respect to the program. United and MileagePlus are registered service marks. For complete details about the MileagePlus program, go to www.united.com .

? ?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Charles Hicks" <chicks@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"HRC Rapid" <HRCRapid@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Meredith Thatcher" <mthatcher@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Julie McClain" <jmcclain@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	6/24/2015 4:02:12 AM
Subject:	June 23 Evening Cable News

National

-- Discussion with Ari Berman about congressional Democrats unveiling a VRA fix; Chris Hayes asked whether voting rights would be an issue in 2016; Berman said voting rights should be a huge issue because it was the 50th anniversary of the Voting Rights Act and this is the first election in 50 years without the full protections of the Voting Rights Act; Berman said that's why HRC is talking about the issue. MSNBC's All In With Chris Hayes , 2015 06 23 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Ari Berman on HRC and voting rights.mp4

-- Report that HRC was having a hard time describing what she accomplished during her six (sic) years as Secretary of State; showed footage of Rosie Perez on The View listing off HRC's accomplishments from June 18th; panel with Greg Gutfeld and Bernard McGuirk; Gutfeld said going to The View for political analysis is like going to Jiffy Lube for sushi; Gutfeld said it looked like Perez just got her CliffsNotes off the Internet; Bill O'Reilly said there was a good amount of people who would just vote for HRC; McGuirk said HRC attacked women who accused WJC of "doing bad things." Fox News' The O'Reilly Factor , 2015 06 24 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Bill OReilly hits The Views Rosie Perez on HRC.mp4

-- Report on the Senate vote to save BHO's trade agenda; panel with Susan Page, Michelle Bernard, and Sam Stein; Bernard noted that BHO's legacy would have been harmed if he couldn't get his trade agreement given that WJC got NAFTA through Congress; Chris Matthews noted the WJC is for BHO's trade deal, said HRC said she was for it 125 times; Matthews said HRC has to steer around trade because of labor's influence in the party; Stein said there was an internal rift within the Democratic party over trade. MSNBC's Hardball With Chris Matthews, 2015 06 23 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Chris Matthews on HRC WJC trade.mp4

-- Report on HRC making race a big part of her campaign; showed footage of Bobby Jindal and Mike Huckabee talking about race; panel with AB Stoddard and Steve Hayes; Stoddard said some GOP candidates should be embarrassed about dodging whether the SC murders were based on race; Stoddard said HRC knows she has to use this moment because there might not be another moment when she could have the country's attention and the black community's attention to talk about race; Hayes said HRC made clear that she would talk about race long before her comments about Charleston; Hayes noted that HRC spoke a week ago about voting rights; Baier noted that Arkansas was one of the states that hat tipped the Confederacy. Fox News' Special Report With Bret Baier, 2015 06 23 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, AB Stoddard and Steve Hayes on HRCs race talk.mp4

-- Report that race relations were becoming a major focus of HRC's campaign; Ed Henry reports; Henry reported that HRC spoke near Ferguson about the Charleston church shooting; Henry reported that HFA said HRC wanted to focus on race, said HFA said it was not the result of HRC's pollsters; Henry contrasted HRC talking about race in 2016 with HRC not talking about race in 2008; Henry said HRC is trying to keep African Americans on her side for 2016; showed footage of HRC speaking on Saturday; Henry reported HRC "pounced" after the Baltimore riot in April as well; showed footage of HRC speaking at SIPA; showed footage of HRC's Texas speech on voting rights; reported Chris Christie said he didn't expand early voting in NJ to avoid fraud; Henry reported HFA said Republicans should be worried they aren't talking about race as directly as HRC is. Fox News' Special Report With Bret Baier, 2015 06 23 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Ed Henry on HRCs race comments post Charleston.mp4

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

-- Report that politicians, corporations, and citizens are having a new conversation about getting Confederate icons out of public spaces; mentioned that HRC spoke about race near Ferguson; showed footage of HRC saying that "we can't hide from hard truths about race and justice"; shifted into report on others who oppose the Confederate flag's display. MSNBC's PoliticsNation With Al Sharpton , 2015 06 23 Hillary Clinton, Clips, National, Al Sharpton on HRCs Charleston shooting comments.mp4

--
Charles Hicks
(912) 429-8253

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"David Brock" <davidbrockdc@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "John Podesta" <jpodesta@americanprogress.org>
Date:	10/20/2013 5:25:18 AM
Subject:	Book
Attachments:	BenghaziHoax.copy.pdf

John,

Thanks again for the blurb. Wanted to make sure you had the final version of the book to be released Tuesday.

Best,

David

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ken Salazar" <kennethlsalazar@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <John.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/31/2015 8:41:02 AM
Subject:	Thanks

Hilary's call to Federico was a home run. Thank you.

Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Providence Hogan" <provspa329@gmail.com>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	8/5/2014 4:35:25 AM
Subject:	Global warming.

Mr. Podesta,
Thank you for the email regrading global warming. It is a cause I fully believe in.

However- these days to me it is secondary considering the pain and violence in Israel and Gaza.

The Gazan people must be saved from Hamas. Indeed- the world must.

Thank you,

Providence Hogan, LMT

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Bradley Komar" <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Christina Reynolds" <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	2/25/2016 7:48:07 AM
Subject:	Re: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"

An email from Bernie's campaign today. I'll let folks know when/if we get media inquiries. Email is Below

Subject Line: Fracking, hedge funds, and Hillary Clinton

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Bernie Sanders <info@berniesanders.com >
Date: Thu, Feb 25, 2016 at 1:30 PM
Subject: Fracking, hedge funds, and Hillary Clinton
To:

Sisters and Brothers -

Just days before the Iowa caucus, Hillary Clinton left the campaign trail for a high-dollar fundraiser at a hedge fund. That same hedge fund is a major investor in fracking, an incredibly destructive practice of extracting natural gas by pumping hundreds of secret chemicals into the ground.

Hillary Clinton supports fracking. I do not.

And just as I believe you can't take on Wall Street while taking their money, I don't believe you can take on climate change effectively while taking money from those who would profit off the destruction of the planet.

Please contribute $3 to our campaign right now to help elect a president who isn't beholden to special interests that profit off of pollution.

Dick Cheney pushed through changes to the Safe Drinking Water Act that legalized fracking, despite the fact that fracking companies keep the chemicals they pump into the ground a secret.

People who live near fracking locations no longer have drinkable water, and in some cases their tap water is actually flammable. Oklahoma has even seen a rash of earthquakes that many believe are a result of fracking.

In short, fracking is a disaster for the planet.

We need a president who is not beholden to special interests and who will do everything in his or her power to fight the effects of climate change. It's clear that to elect that kind of president, millions of people need to come together and chip in whatever they can.

Make a $3 contribution to our campaign now to send a message that you want to elect a president who will do everything possible to fight climate change.

We can’t afford to let people who would destroy our planet elect our next president.

Thank you for your support.

In solidarity,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Bernie Sanders

On Tue, Feb 23, 2016 at 5:14 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

I think lining up the validators absolutely makes sense—we can pull the trigger only if we need to, but good to be prepared.

From: Bradley Komar [mailto:bkomar@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 6:57 PM
To: Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >; Kristina Costa <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com >; Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Sara Latham <slatham@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com >; Samantha McClain <smcclain@hillaryclinton.com>; Mr. Pete Ogden <progden@gmail.com >; Ben Kobren <benkobren@gmail.com >; Josh Schwerin <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; HRCRR <hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com >

Subject: Re: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"

I agree 100% would love to whistle passed the graveyard. but they are airing the ad for a reason, I expect they will draw us into a comment, and validators knocking Bernie for being irresponsible and in doing so, threatening real progress, makes a lot of sense to me. This is yet another promise he can't keep.

I can quietly line up the validators now or wait until he fires. Nothing public until we a drawn out.

Let me know.

On Tue, Feb 23, 2016 at 4:30 PM, Lily Adams <ladams@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Agree

Lily Adams

cell: (202) 368-4013

On Feb 23, 2016, at 6:24 PM, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Some of us were discussing earlier—given that he doesn't name her, I wouldn't draw attention to it unless we have to.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com [mailto:hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com] On Behalf Of Kristina Costa
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 6:21 PM
To: Bradley Komar <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Sara Latham <slatham@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com >; Samantha McClain <smcclain@hillaryclinton.com >; Mr. Pete Ogden <progden@gmail.com >; Ben Kobren <benkobren@gmail.com >; Josh Schwerin <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >; HRCRR <hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: RE: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"

+ HRCRR back to consider Bradley's plan for pushing back on Sanders CO ad. I think this approach makes sense but defer to comms.

From: Bradley Komar [mailto:bkomar@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 6:09 PM
To: Kristina Costa <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Sara Latham <slatham@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >; Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com >; Samantha McClain <smcclain@hillaryclinton.com >; Mr. Pete Ogden <progden@gmail.com >; Ben Kobren <benkobren@gmail.com >; Josh Schwerin <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: Re: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"

I think we can get Polis if we want him to. he does not like that he is painted as anti-fracking in the press and this is an opportunity for him to push off sanders and appear more reasonable. It also benefits us---a win-win.

I am going to quietly check with Conservation Colorado (the state LCV) and see if they have an appetite for pushing back on Sanders.

I think the Denver Post Ed Board could smack Sanders if we want them to but that makes it a bigger fight.

Keep in mind this is a busy news day in CO and we have had no media inquires. We can either start a fight or line up the validators for when the Sanders starts the fight. I think the latter makes more sense but its a close call.

So should I line up validators in Polis and local LCV while holding off on the Denver Post Ed Board until Sanders engages?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Tue, Feb 23, 2016 at 3:38 PM, Kristina Costa <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Brad, do you think we can get polis?

We also lost comms. +

/KLC

On Feb 23, 2016, at 5:37 PM, Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com > wrote:

Just got off with Brad and filled him in on LiUNA/labor drama. LCV isn't willing to hit Bernie on this. Sounds like Polis is the best bet if press stats asking, otherwise better to duck and cover.

From: Bradley Komar [mailto:bkomar@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 2:21 PM
To: Trevor Houser
Cc: Kristina Costa; Jake Sullivan; Sara Latham; John Podesta; Tyson Brody; Samantha McClain; Mr. Pete Ogden; Ben Kobren
Subject: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"

I would prefer an ally (congressman polis and/or LCV) Who have strong bone fides on the environment to whack sander's for taking an irresponsible position and in doing so, threatening real progress on frack fluid disclosure and air quality regulations. This is yet another promise he can't keep.

I think we will be forced to weigh in by sanders and of course we have to state our position: it's a transitional energy--and we need to go green. But that is a very soft response that sounds better if Bernie is being hit by the left.

I would watch our tone and not sound too pro-fracking. A reluctant tone is a better fit for dem caucus goers (it's a transition energy. It's not great but it allows us to get to where we want to be)

On Tuesday, February 23, 2016, Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com > wrote:

++ John and Sara on this chain.

Brad and I just chatted. We think the following posture makes sense:

"Bernie's call for banning all hydraulic fracturing is, extreme, unfeasible and ignores the contribution natural gas has made to our economy and our efforts to reduce carbon pollution. What we need to focus on is putting in place common sense safeguards to protect our air and water, like mandatory disclosure of fracking chemicals, closing the Halliburton loophole, regulations to reduce methane emissions from both new and existing sources. Hillary has called for all of these things to make sure that those communities that choose to pursue natural gas development do so safely and responsibly. And she will stand by those communities that decide they don't want natural gas production to occur."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Did I capture it Brad? We are seeing if some progressive allies can hit Bernie for being too extreme on this.

From: Kristina Costa [mailto:kcosta@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 1:48 PM
To: Jake Sullivan; Bradley Komar
Cc: Tyson Brody; Samantha McClain; Clips; Trevor Houser; Mr. Pete Ogden; Ben Kobren
Subject: RE: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"

Trevor and Brad are connecting now to discuss.

From: Jake Sullivan [mailto:jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 4:38 PM
To: Bradley Komar <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Kristina Costa <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com >; Tyson Brody <tbrody@hillaryclinton.com >; Samantha McClain <smcclain@hillaryclinton.com >; Clips <clips@hillaryclinton.com >; Trevor Houser <tghouser.hrc@gmail.com >; Mr. Pete Ogden <progden@gmail.com >; Ben Kobren <benkobren@gmail.com >
Subject: Re: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"

Should we try to do anything with this?

On Feb 23, 2016, at 4:07 PM, Bradley Komar <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> "The only candidate to oppose fracking"
>
> What does that mean? A complete 100% fracking ban. There is no elected dem and I believe no enviro group that takes this position. In fact, such an extreme position threatens the progress of common-sense safety measures like frack fluid disclosure and methane capture/air quality regulations.
>
> The Denver Post Editorial Board could really smack him for this. This is tricky waters for caucus goers but his language may leave him vulnerable.
>
> Jared Polis is a regarded as a leader of the regulating fracking team in CO and his argument is reforms, not a ban.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"Fracking can endanger our drinking water and threaten our climate"

For the fact check: The threaten our climate is based on methane released in the air when extracting natural gas from the ground. Colorado mandates oil and gas pay for methane capture technology to prevent the potent green house gas from escaping and the state issues large fines to bad actors. Natural gas burns cleaner than other traditional energies so the "threatens our climate" is about methane released during extraction which Colorado has already addressed.

Still really tough for us to talk about.

On Tue, Feb 23, 2016 at 2:00 PM, Kristina Costa <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:

> + for awareness
>
> From: clips@hillaryclinton.com [mailto:clips@hillaryclinton.com] On Behalf Of Tyson Brody
> Sent: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 3:45 PM
> To: Bradley Komar <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com>
> Cc: Samantha McClain <smcclain@hillaryclinton.com>; Clips <clips@hillaryclinton.com>
> Subject: Re: NEW AD: Bernie Sanders - "Frack"
>
> at the very least in Colorado: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0gALQGCrjZs&feature=em-uploademail
>
> On Tue, Feb 23, 2016 at 3:43 PM, Bradley Komar <bkomar@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> > Do we know where this is playing?
> >
> > On Tuesday, February 23, 2016, Samantha McClain <smcclain@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
> >
> > > https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=0gALQGCrjZs
> > >
> > > v/o: Bernie Sanders. The courage to stand up to Big Oil, because he won't take their money.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

That's why Sanders said no to the Keystone pipeline, and never waffled.

He's also the only candidate to oppose fracking, because fracking can endanger our drinking water and threaten our climate.

Sanders has the most far reaching plan to fight climate change and build a clean energy future.

Bernie Sanders. People before polluters.

Sanders: I'm Bernie Sanders and I approve this message.

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the Google Groups "HRCRR" group.
To unsubscribe from this group and stop receiving emails from it, send an email to hrcrr+unsubscribe@hillaryclinton.com .
To post to this group, send email to hrcrr@hillaryclinton.com .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Jairam Ramesh" <jairam54@gmail.com>
Date:	1/19/2015 8:57:57 AM
Subject:	Re: india

Let me see what the schedule looks like. Love to see you.

On Jan 19, 2015 7:27 AM, "Jairam Ramesh" <jairam54@gmail.com > wrote:

> Great. I know you will be swamped so wont even suggest a possible 5 min meet
>
> On 19 Jan 2015 09:25, "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> > Planning to.
> >
> > On Jan 19, 2015 3:31 AM, "Jairam Ramesh" <jairam54@gmail.com > wrote:
> >
> > > will you also be coming to India John??

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/30/2016 12:28:42 PM
Subject:	In Des Moines tonight at Marriott

Let me know if you want to meet up. Getting in at like 9

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Poll: ☑YES ☒NO \(via TurnoutPAC.org\)" <admin@turnoutpac.org>
To:	"John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	10/15/2015 12:35:23 PM
Subject:	Would you support every state having a Vote by Mail option for elections?

Thanks to low voter turnout, Democrats got crushed in the 2014 Election. For that reason, the Progressive Turnout Project is conducting a series of one-question polls on proposals to increase voter turnout in 2016.

PROGRESSIVE TURNOUT PROJECT

INSTANT POLL

RESPONDENT: JOHN PODESTA [20005]

Do you support every state having a Vote by Mail option for elections?

YES >> NO >>

Unsure? Click here.

27 states and Washington, D.C. allow voters to Vote by Mail if they prefer (similar to absentee voting but no excuse is needed).

In those states, every voter who requests to is sent their ballot in the mail several weeks before election to fill out and send back.

We want to hear what you think. Do you think every state should offer the option to Vote by Mail?

Answer our instant poll: http://go.turnoutpac.org/vote-by-mail

Thanks for your feedback,

The Progressive Turnout Project

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Progressive Turnout Project
P.O. Box 215
Northbrook, IL 60065-0215

This message was sent to: podesta@ law.georgetown.edu | Click here to UNSUBSCRIBE.

Paid for by the Progressive Turnout Project and not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee.

This message was sent to: podesta@law.georgetown.edu | Change or update your email address by clicking here.

The Progressive Turnout Project is proudly dedicated to doing what we do best -- connecting with voters one on one and getting Democrats to the polls. To learn more click here .

Emails are a crucial way to stay in touch with our top supporters. If we're going to increase turnout in 2016, we need you with us every step of the way.

If you'd still like to unsubscribe from our emails, click here . If you'd like to receive fewer emails, you can click here . If you'd like to donate to help fund our efforts to increase Democratic and Progressive turnout in the 2016 Election, please click here .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Gabe Podesta" <gpodesta@gmail.com>
Date:	5/31/2014 7:42:04 AM
Subject:	Bergdahl

We are very happy here.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	john.podesta@gmail.com
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/3/2008 1:36:35 PM
Subject:	Delivered: Fw: Paul Glastris
Attachments:	Attach 1

Your message was delivered to the recipient.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Sandler, Jim" <james@sandlerfoundation.org>
Date: 7/24/2014 2:16:57 PM
Subject: Re: BREAKING: President Obama authorizes seismic blasting

202-456-1404

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

On Jul 24, 2014, at 2:01 PM, "Sandler, Jim" <james@sandlerfoundation.org > wrote:

> Hi John,
>
> What is a good number?
>
> Sent from my iPad
>
> On Jul 20, 2014, at 4:52 PM, "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
>> Yes call me this week.
>>
>> JP
>> --Sent from my iPad--
>> john.podesta@gmail.com
>> For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com
>>
>> On Jul 19, 2014, at 12:34 PM, "Sandler, Jim" <james@sandlerfoundation.org > wrote:
>>
>>> Hi John,
>>>
>>> This is an issue that Oceana has been working on for a while. Do you know much about this?
>>>
>>> Thanks,
>>> Jim
>>>
>>> Begin forwarded message:
>>>
>>> From: "Claire Douglass, Oceana" <wavemaker@oceana.org >
>>> Date: July 19, 2014 at 7:06:57 AM PDT
>>> To: "Mr. James Sandler" <james@sandlerfoundation.org >
>>> Subject: BREAKING: President Obama authorizes seismic blasting
>>> Reply-To: <wavemaker@oceana.org >

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

OCEANA | Protecting the World's Oceans

Dear James,

Great movements are defined by how they respond to setbacks. They either fade away or return stronger and more fierce. This is one of those moments for our movement to protect our oceans.

Yesterday, the Obama Administration released a "record of decision" that will allow seismic blasting in an area of the East Coast twice the size of California—the same dynamite-like blasts that are predicted to injure and possibly kill up to 138,200 marine mammals, as well as harm commercial and recreational fisheries, tourism and coastal recreation–putting more than 730,000 jobs in the blast zone at risk.

There are two questions to answer: Why did they do this? And how can we stop it?

Why? Because multinational oil companies have billions of dollars to throw around, appearing to buy favors and spread lies about mythical funds that will go to coastal communities. But coastal communities and leaders are smarter than that. 16 coastal towns and 78 local coastal elected officials already have spoken out against seismic off their shores.

President Obama's huge mistake

Stand up to help stop seismic blasts on the East Coast! »

So what now? No blasting will happen without specific permits being approved. Today's decision only begins that process. We need to tell the Obama Administration today that we know their record of decision is severely flawed and, more importantly, we're going to be there every step of the way to stop all permits that threaten treasured marine animals and coastal livelihoods.

In the last year, you and Wavemakers like you have stood up for precious ocean life like the right whale—of which there are less than 500 left worldwide . We've seen new scientific reports confirming that these amazing creatures not only make the U.S. East Coast their home, but travel and live in a much bigger area than previously thought. Are we ready to start blasting the few right whales that are left?

We're just getting started. Take action today to tell the Obama administration that seismic blasting will be devastating for our coast and that we won't let it happen without a fight.

For the oceans,
Claire Douglass
Campaign Director, Climate & Energy
Oceana

Oceana.org | Join | Contact Oceana | Privacy Policy

Text JOIN to 50555 to sign up for Oceana text alerts. Standard message and data rates may apply.

Click here to update your information.

This message was sent to james@sandlerfoundation.org . If you no longer wish to be an Oceana supporter, you can unsubscribe by simply clicking here.

Oceana | 1350 Connecticut Ave. NW, 5th Floor, Washington, DC 20036 USA p: +1 877.762.3262

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Raj Goyle \(LinkedIn Invitations\)" <invitations@linkedin.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/4/2010 6:10:24 PM
Subject:	Reminder about your invitation from Raj Goyle

LinkedIn

Dear John,

This is a reminder that on December 18, Raj Goyle sent you an invitation to become part of their professional network at LinkedIn.

Follow this link to accept Raj Goyle's invitation.

https://www.linkedin.com/e/isd/940124328/yjMRzbmD/

Signing up is free and takes less than a minute.

This is a reminder that on December 18, Raj Goyle sent you an invitation to become part of their professional network at LinkedIn.

> To: John Podesta [john.podesta@gmail.com]
> From: Raj Goyle [raj@rajforkansas.com]
> Subject: Raj Goyle wants to stay in touch on LinkedIn

> John,
>
> I'd like to add you to my professional network on LinkedIn.
>
> - Raj Goyle

The only way to get access to Raj Goyle's professional network is through the following link:

https://www.linkedin.com/e/isd/940124328/yjMRzbmD/

You can remove yourself from Raj Goyle's network at any time.

© 2009, LinkedIn Corporation

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: PayPal <paypal@e.paypal.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 9/9/2015 4:01:40 AM
Subject: Notice of Policy Updates

John Podesta, PayPal Policy update now available. View online

PayPal

Notice of Policy Updates

Dear John Podesta,

We are making some changes to the PayPal User Agreement that will go into effect on October 30, 2015. If you're interested in all the details, take a look at our Policy Updates Page. Here are the highlights:

- We revised Section 3 to make it clear that our send money functionality requires that the person receiving funds create a PayPal account in order to receive the funds.
- Person to person payments will not be available for payments sent from Puerto Rico after October 30th.

These changes will be effective on October 30, 2015 for all U.S. users.

We are also sending you a copy of our Error Resolution Notice below to provide helpful information if you have a billing error or unauthorized transaction on your Account. Just remember that you can check out our Error Resolution Notice anytime by going to Section 12 of the PayPal User Agreement .

As always, if you need help or have any questions, give us a call or visit our Help Center . You can find the link on any page of our website.

Thank you for being a PayPal customer.

Sincerely,

PayPal

ANNUAL ERROR RESOLUTION NOTICE

The purpose of this notice is to provide you with important information about reporting errors in payments made using PayPal's services. You should keep this notice for future reference.

What to do About Questions or Errors with Your Transactions.

You should notify PayPal as soon as you can if you believe:

• your account statement (you can access your account statement by logging into your account) or your transaction confirmation (which is sent to you via email) is wrong;
• you need more information about a transaction listed on the statement or transaction confirmation; or
• there has been an unauthorized transaction, other error or unauthorized access to your PayPal account.

You must notify us no later than 60 days after the error FIRST appears in your account statement. We will extend the 60-day time period if a good reason, such as a hospital stay, prevented you from notifying us within 60 days.

For any type of error, you can telephone PayPal Customer Service at (402) 938-3614. You can also notify us in writing or online by following the instructions below.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

If the transaction does not involve a PayPal debit card, notify us by either:
• Using the form available in the PayPal Resolution Center to file an unauthorized transaction report, or
• Writing to PayPal, Attn: Error Resolution Department, P.O. Box 45950, Omaha, NE 68145-0950.

If the transaction involves your PayPal debit card, notify us by either:
• Logging into your PayPal account, going to the "Account Overview" page and selecting the transaction details for the transaction you wish to dispute. Then follow the directions provided for disputing the transaction; or
• Mailing the Written Statement of Disputed PayPal ATM/Debit Card Transactions Form or other notice to PayPal, Attn: PayPal Debit Card Department, P.O. Box 45950, Omaha, NE 68145-0950, or faxing it to 303-395-2855. A link to the form can be found with the directions provided for disputing the transaction as noted above.

If you notify us orally, we may request that you send us your complaint or question in writing (by following the notification procedures described in the paragraphs above) within 10 business days of providing us the oral notice.

When you notify us (orally or in writing), provide us with the following information:
• Your name and email address you used to register your account, and
• A description of the suspected unauthorized transaction or other error and an explanation as to why you believe it is incorrect or why you need more information, and
• The dollar amount (and if possible, the date) of the suspected unauthorized transaction or other error.

During the course of our investigation, we may request additional information from you.
Once you notify us of a suspected error, we will investigate your complaint or question within 10 business days (or up to 20 business days for new accounts – accounts that have 30 days or fewer since the date of their first transaction). If we need more time, we may take up to 45 days to complete our investigation (or up to 90 days for new accounts, point of sale or foreign initiated transactions).

If we decide that we need more time to complete our investigation (as explained directly above), we will provisionally credit your account for the amount of the suspected error. You will receive the provisional credit within 10 business days of the date we received your notice (20 business days for new accounts). This will allow you to have use of the money until we complete the investigation. If we ask you to put your complaint or question in writing and we do not receive your written complaint or question within 10 business days (or 20 for new accounts), we will not provisionally credit your account.

We will inform you of our decision within three business days after completing our investigation. If we determine that there was an error, we will promptly correct the error. If you have already received a provisional credit, you will be allowed to retain those funds. If we decide that there was not an error, we will include an explanation of our decision in our email to you. If you received a provisional credit, we will remove it from your account. You may request copies of the documents that we used in our investigation.

For this purpose, our "business days" are Monday through Friday. Holidays are not included as business days.

Please do not reply to this email. We are unable to respond to inquiries sent to this address. For immediate answers to your questions, visit our Help Center by clicking "Help" located on any PayPal page or email.

Copyright © 2015 PayPal, Inc. All rights reserved. PayPal is located at 2211 N. First St., San Jose, CA 95131.

NA03252

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Matthew Greer" <mjg256@georgetown.edu>
Date:	4/28/2015 2:44:45 PM
Subject:	Re: Congressional Investigations Paper Clarifications

Matt,
20 page minimum. Use your preference on endnotes or footnotes, just try to hit the page minimum without the notes.
John

On Apr 28, 2015 5:21 PM, "Matthew Greer" <mjg256@georgetown.edu > wrote:

> Professor Podesta & Judge Leon,
>
> I have a couple of minor clarifications about the paper requirements.
>
> 1. Is the length supposed to be at least 20 pages, or 20 pages maximum?
>
> - Should we use endnotes or footnotes? I know the length is measured without footnotes, but would a certification that the length is met without footnotes and then leaving the footnotes in place be sufficient?
>
> Thanks very much for clarifying and for a lively, edifying semester.
>
> Respectfully,
> Matt
>
> Matthew J. Greer
> J.D. Candidate | Georgetown University Law Center
> Editor-in-Chief (Volume 46) | Georgetown Journal of International Law
> Office: (202) 662-9693
> Cell: (802) 343-6626

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Elias, Marc \(Perkins Coie\)" <MElias@perkinscoie.com>
To:	"Charlie Baker" <cbaker@hillaryclinton.com> "Dennis Cheng" <dcheng@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	10/16/2015 7:30:37 AM
Subject:	Re: Recall our conversation that I surprised you with this as it was a key step to VP running (you were going to check into)

The list originated with Obama for America. Nice the election two entities – Organizing for Action and, more recently, the DNC were given the list as well. So, they aren't co-owned, each entity owns a version of the same base list. Organizing for Action clearly can't give the list to a campaign (its a c4). The DNC shouldn't be able to — since it would be an inkind. The campaign could — because it would be a transfer to an affiliated committee — Obama for America was an authorized committee of Biden for VP, so it can transfer assets to Biden for President. However, because the WH won't want to own the politics of doing so, they will likely try to get the DNC to do it anyway. This of course has implications for DNC neutrality as well—which the DNC is aware of.

Who decides? The campaign list is owned by the legal entity — Obama for America Inc. It has a treasurer and board, just like HFA. And they decide whether to transfer the list. It is not Biden's by right, rather its permissible for the Obama campaign to give it if they choose to. As I mentioned, Kerry Edwards 04, Inc chose not to honor the request of John Edwards for that list. SI, basically the WH/POTUS decides.

--
Marc E. Elias
Perkins Coie LLP
700 13th St, NW
Washington, DC 20005
202-434-1609 (ph)
202-654-9126 (fax)
melias@perkinscoie.com
@marceelias

From: Charlie Baker
Date: Friday, October 16, 2015 at 8:39 AM
To: Dennis Cheng
Cc: Marc Elias, John Podesta, Robby Mook
Subject: Re: Recall our conversation that I surprised you with this as it was a key step to VP running (you were going to check into)

And doesn't the DNC co-own?

On Oct 16, 2015, at 8:18 AM, Dennis Cheng <dcheng@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> So technically Obama owns the list and Biden has no ownership or part ownership?
>
> On Oct 16, 2015, at 7:19 AM, Elias, Marc (Perkins Coie) <MElias@perkinscoie.com > wrote:
>
> > Also--the press is reporting this as automatic. It's within the discretion of the president to give or not give. After 2004 John Edwards wanted the ke04 list and was told no. I do t believe that McCain gave his list to palin.
> >
> > --
> > Marc E. Elias
> > Perkins Coie LLP
> > 700 13th St, NW
> > Washington, DC 20005

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

202-434-1609 (ph)
202-654-9126 (fax)
melias@perkinscoie.com
@marceelias

Sent from my iPhone

On Oct 15, 2015, at 7:42 PM, Elias, Marc (Perkins Coie) <MElias@perkinscoie.com > wrote:

We need to discuss. This isn't exactly this simple.

--
Marc E. Elias
Perkins Coie LLP
700 13th St, NW
Washington, DC 20005
202-434-1609 (ph)
202-654-9126 (fax)
melias@perkinscoie.com
@marceelias

From: John Podesta
Date: Thursday, October 15, 2015 at 7:09 PM
To: Robby Mook, Charlie Baker, Marc Elias, Dennis Cheng
Subject: Fwd: Recall our conversation that I surprised you with this as it was a key step to VP running (you were going to check into)

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Robert Wolf <rwolf@32advisors.com >
Date: Thursday, October 15, 2015
Subject: Recall our conversation that I surprised you with this as it was a key step to VP running (you were going to check into)
To: H <hdr29@hrcoffice.com >
Cc: "John Podesta (john.podesta@gmail.com)" <john.podesta@gmail.com >

Per CNN story just published:

Biden would have full access to the vaunted Obama campaign email list, since he is effectively a part owner since he was on the ticket in 2008 and 2012.

Disclaimer: Visit www.32advisors.com/disclaimer for information about this email.

NOTICE: This communication may contain privileged or other confidential information. If you have received it in error, please advise the sender by reply email and immediately delete the message and any attachments without copying or disclosing the contents. Thank you.

NOTICE: This communication may contain privileged or other confidential information. If you have received it in error, please advise the sender by reply email and immediately delete the message and any attachments without copying or disclosing the contents. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	ndowling@idsinternational.com
Date:	2/16/2016 8:46:15 AM
Subject:	Sorry to miss you

Really sorry to miss you today. I was called up to Harlem last minute for the Secretary's speech on racial injustice and reforming our criminal justice system. I've copied my assistant, Milia, to schedule a time for us to connect soon.

best,
John

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	8/23/2015 7:37:13 AM
Subject:	NCES TPs, Notes, Moniz Questiosn
Attachments:	NCES VIP RECEPTION NOTES.docx Moniz Q&A.docx DRAFT Remarks for John Podesta_v4 SPEECH DRAFT (1).docx

Hi John-

Attaching three docs for your review.

1. Notes and talking points for the two NCES VIP awards presentations
2. Draft questions for Moniz
3. Your NCES speech from last year (in case it's helpful)

Please let me know if you have any edits or would like me to pull any additional material.

I will have Michelle print two copies of these docs and add them to the front pocket of your binder.

Thanks!
Milia

--
Milia Fisher
Special Assistant to the Chair
Hillary for America
mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
o: 646.854.1198 c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sara Latham" <Sara.Latham@ptt.gov>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	11/14/2008 4:09:28 AM
Subject:	Josh Bolten call, 11am said not to pull you out of a mtg, but would like to speak to you

202 456 6798

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Katherine McFate, Center for Effective Government" <katherine@foreffectivegov.org>
To:	podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date:	11/12/2014 6:10:54 AM
Subject:	Gaming the Rules: Big Business Stifles Small Business Voices, Delays and Weakens Public Protections

Center for EFFECTIVE GOVERNMENT

November 12, 2014

Dear John,

When is a small business not really a small business? That may sound like some sort of riddle, but it's an important question when it comes to the effectiveness of our health, safety, environmental, and consumer finance protections.

In a new report just released today , we found that trade associations and big business are shutting genuine small business voices out of the federal rulemaking process and weakening some crucial standards and safeguards meant to protect all of us.

This is happening through a process required by federal law. EPA, OSHA, and the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau have to hold special small business review panels if they believe a proposed standard may have a significant economic impact on small businesses. But Gaming the Rules: How Big Business Hijacks the Small Business Review Process to Weaken Public Protections shows that this process has been captured by trade associations and their large corporate members.

The Office of Advocacy, an independent office within the Small Business Administration, has played a key role in this problem by recommending that trade association representatives, rather than small business owners, serve as advisors to these panels.

Small business owners have echoed our concerns. "Big businesses and the trade associations that represent them have hijacked this process," said Frank Knapp, small business owner and president of the South Carolina Small Business Chamber of Commerce. "This effectively gives corporate interests early access to federal regulators and ensures that small business voices are not heard."

The result: recommendations from the review panels have not been limited to small business concerns, and in some cases, agencies have weakened health, safety, and consumer protection standards. This happened with an important clean air standard from EPA and an OSHA standard that was designed to protect workers from a cancer-causing chemical called hexavalent chromium.

It doesn't have to be this way. Our report contains recommendations that the agencies and the Office of Advocacy can adopt to improve the process. These include identifying qualified small business owners to advise the panels and limiting panel recommendations on public protections to specific small business concerns.

Please take a look at our report . Then let these agencies know that they should be listening to the voices of real small businesses.

KM3sm.jpg

Warm regards,

Katherine McFate

Katherine McFate
President and CEO

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

ForEf

DONATE

Combined Federal Campaign #10201

Visit Our Affiliated Web Sites

RTK NET
Coalition for Sensible Safeguards
Our Government Matters

To stop receiving e-mails like this, click to unsubscribe .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ann Kirkpatrick" <info@kirkpatrickforsenate.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <podesta@law.georgetown.edu>
Date:	9/28/2015 11:20:16 AM
Subject:	Join me tomorrow for margaritas in DC!

You are invited to stop by and celebrate at "End of Quarter Margaritas" with Special Guest: Hon. Tim Walz

To support

Congresswoman Ann Kirkpatrick (AZ-1)

Candidate for the United States Senate Committee on Agriculture
Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure

Tuesday, September 29th
4:30 - 6:00 p.m.

The Majority Group Townhouse
19 D Street SE
Washington, DC

$2,000 PAC Host
$1,000 PAC Guest
$500 Individual Host
$250 Friend
$50 Young Professional

For more information or to RSVP, please contact Molly Allen or Colin Craib at (202) 827-8200 or colin@mollyallenassociates.com

Please make contributions payable to:
Kirkpatrick for Senate
c/o Molly Allen Associates LLC
412 First Street SE, Suite 100
Washington, DC 20003

Federal Election law requires us to use our best efforts to collect and report the name, mailing address, occupation and name of employer of individuals whose contributions exceed $200 per election cycle.
Corporate checks and contributions from foreign nationals cannot be accepted.
Contributions of gifts to Kirkpatrick for Senate are not tax deductible

Paid for by Kirkpatrick for Senate

This email was sent to: podesta@law.georgetown.edu

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To unsubscribe, go to: http://kirkpatrickforsenate.com/subscriptions

Paid for by Kirkpatrick for Senate

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jeremy Funk" <funk@americansunitedforchange.org>
To:	bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date:	1/25/2010 9:02:00 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] FW: Emergency rally in DC - can you come?

FYI

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Levana - Health Care for America Now <hcan@healthcareforamericanow.org >
Date: Sat, Jan 23, 2010 at 4:28 PM
Subject: Emergency rally in DC - can you come?
To: Melinda Gibson <mgibson@healthcareforamericanow.org >

Dear friend:

We've been writing letters. We've been calling. But it's not enough. The insurance companies and big corporations are fighting back - and they just won a U.S. Senate election and Supreme Court decision to give them even more power in their attempt to block health care reform.

So we must fight back harder than ever and tell Congress that now is the time to stand up to corporate lobbyists and finish health reform. We need them to finish it right and finish it now.

That's why we're having an emergency rally in Washington, DC, to send a message that Republican obstructionism and corporate lobbyists won't stop us from passing real reform - or stand in the way of environmental, worker rights, and other crucial reforms.

Can you join us on Tuesday, January 26th at 12 pm? Click here for details and to RSVP.

The Chamber of Commerce has spent millions of dollars - laundered millions from big insurance - to defeat reform. The the Supreme Court ruling this week only makes matters worse, opening the floodgates to unrestricted corporate money into our political arena.

On Tuesday we will rally outside the Chamber to remind Congress that no matter how much money is on the side of big insurance and big corporations, we have the people. We will fight back with the voices of those denied coverage and those burdened and bankrupted by skyrocketing premiums.

Can you join us? Click here to RSVP.

Here are the details:

Where: Farragut Square (southeast corner of the park, I Street & Connecticut NW - map)

When: Tuesday, January 26th at 12 pm

You'll be joined by leaders in the progressive movement and people who've been hurt by insurance companies.

Come and stand with us to tell Congress that we need health care reform and we need it now!

Click here to RSVP.

See you there!

Levana Layendecker
Health Care for America Now

P.S. Can you forward this email to a few of your friends in the DC area? We really need a crowd to send a strong message.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

--
Melinda Gibson
Operations Manager
Health Care for America Now
Health Care for America Education Fund
1825 K Street
Suite 400
Washington, DC 20006
(202) 454-6189
www.healthcareforamericanow.org

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	1/31/2016 12:32:55 PM
Subject:	Re: Best kept secret...

Mandy mentioned it because she read it on Kamala's Twitter yesterday. Sneaky Maya. Obviously we need to do a belated celebration that will involve a sheet cake.

Sent from my iPhone

> On Jan 31, 2016, at 7:29 PM, Sara Latham <slatham@hillaryclinton.com> wrote:
>
> Yesterday was Maya Harris' birthday!!!
>
>
>
>
> Sent from my iPhone

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	12/15/2015 11:21:43 AM
Subject:	Re: Lou Weisbach photo(s)

Not really

On Tuesday, December 15, 2015, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Do you remember him from a Chicago event?
>
>
>
>
> --
> Milia Fisher
> Special Assistant to the Chair
> Hillary for America
> mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
> c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Teddy Goff" <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Christina Reynolds" <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com> "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com> "Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Brian Fallon" <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	12/22/2015 8:56:46 AM
Subject:	Re: CLIP | Politifact: Sanders spins the facts when he says campaign did not 'go out and take' Clinton data (Mostly False) drummed up a little bit of amplification here:

https://twitter.com/ASDem/status/679402536093093890
https://twitter.com/ggreeneva/status/679402099369750528
https://twitter.com/Mitch_Stewart/status/679403868413894656

On Tue, Dec 22, 2015 at 3:22 PM, Josh Schwerin <jschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

Sanders spins the facts when he says campaign did not 'go out and take' Clinton data

By Jon Greenberg on Tuesday, December 22nd, 2015 at 3:19 p.m.

http://www.politifact.com/truth-o-meter/statements/2015/dec/22/bernie-s/Sanders-take-Clinton-voter-data/

It might feel like pure inside baseball, but the data breach that gave the Bernie Sanders campaign staff access to some of the Hillary Clinton campaign's voter information goes to the heart of modern elections.

At stake are the details that tell a campaign who is persuadable to the cause, and who's likely to actually come out and vote.

Sen. Bernie Sanders, I-Vt., apologized to the Democratic primary leader Hillary Clinton at a weekend debate in New Hampshire. Clinton accepted his apology and said it was time to move on.

But in an interview the next day on NBC's Meet the Press , host Chuck Todd pressed Sanders on exactly what happened when a software glitch allowed his people to see some of the Clinton data. The system is run by the Democratic National Committee, and the DNC had temporarily blocked the Sanders campaign from using its valuable voter information.

"As a result of a breach caused by the DNC vendor, not by us, information came into our campaign about the Clinton campaign," Sanders said Dec. 20, 2015.

"Magically," asked Todd?

"We didn't go out and take it," Sanders replied.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Really? In this fact-check, we'll explore whether the Sanders campaign staff didn't "go out and take information from the Clinton campaign.

A quick recap

On Wednesday, Dec. 16, 2015, NGP VAN, the vendor that operates the system, released a software modification that had a bug. According to a lawsuit filed by the Sanders campaign, "several staff members of the campaign accessed and viewed confidential Information" that belonged to the Clinton campaign.

The breach was reported within the Sanders campaign the same day. The staffer who had dug into the Clinton files, Josh Uretsky, told CNN that he had poked around in the system to document the extent of the software bug.

By Wednesday, the DNC knew of the problem and contacted the Sanders campaign. Senior staff fired Uretsky at some point on Thursday. The DNC blocked the campaign from using the voter system pending an investigation. The Sanders campaign sued on Friday, and by Friday evening, access was restored.

On Saturday, the Sanders campaign suspended two other staff members.

Steps and missteps

No one questions that a software error created the opportunity for the Sanders staffers to see what they shouldn't. The press release from NGP VAN plainly says that .

So then the question is, what did the Sanders campaign staff do?

Thanks to a leak of the activity logs on the NGP VAN system, we have some idea. The Twitter user Iowa Starting Line posted them and you can see those logs here . No one has questioned their authenticity. Here's one example:

Time	State	Action
10:46:00	TX	Creates folder "Targets" and saved HFA Primary Priority 9-10 as search "Not Sanders 9"
10:47:00	TX	Searched: HFA Primary Priority 0-1
10:48:00	TX	Saved list "Not Hilary" into folder "Targets"
10:49:00	TX	Searched: HFA Primary Priority 9-10
10:49:00	TX	Saved list "Not Sanders" into folder "Targets"
10:52:07	NH	Logs into NH
10:56:00	NH	Searched: 2016:HFA Combined Persuasion 80-100
10:57:00	NH	Created folder "Ranged Targets" and saved list "Persuasion 80-100" into it
10:57:45	HI	Logs into HI
11:01:00	HI	Creates user csmith_bernie
11:07:00	HI	Creates user csanchez_bernie
11:09:48	NH	Logs into NH
11:13:00	NH	Searched: HFA Turnout 60-100
11:13:00	NH	Saved list "Turout 60+" into folder "Ranged Targets"
11:15:00	NH	Searched: HFA Turnout 40-60
11:17:00	NH	Saved list "Turnout 40-60" into folder "Ranged Targets"
11:22:00	NH	Searched: HFA Support 50-100
11:23:00	NH	Saved list "Not Sanders" into folder "Ranged Targets"
11:23:35	OH	Logs into OH
11:26:00	OH	Grants full VF access to javiergNV
11:27:27	NH	Logs into NH
11:27:38	NH	Attempts to run a search. At this point cannot access page sections.
11:41:17	NH	Hits counts and cross tabs 4 times

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

These logs show Sanders people spent a bit under two hours in the data. During that time, they called up information from about a dozen states. They queried the database for the number of voters who met certain criteria. The "Turnout" variable shows on a scale of 1 to 100 how likely a person is to vote. A voter with a high "Priority" score would be someone the campaign will make every effort to contact.

The NGP VAN statement said the Sanders campaign could not see actual lists of voters. All that would be visible would be tallies of people. The sole exception was "a one page-style report containing summary data on a list was saved out of VoteBuilder by one Sanders user."

That would correspond to the final item on the log above where at 11:41 a.m. there is a notation for "Hits counts and cross tabs 4 times."

It is unclear if that page was printed out or copied. But it was created because a Sanders staff member took specific actions.

Two people who know the NGP VAN system told PolitiFact that even the most minimal data gleaned from the Clinton campaign would have been valuable.

David Atkins, a campaign consultant and county official in the California Democratic Party, told us that the information would give the Sanders campaign some idea of how the Clinton campaign was targeting voters. And it would offer "a sort of polling snapshot to see how well or poorly she was doing in certain states."

Daniel Kreiss teaches at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and is the author of Taking our Country Back , which looks at Democratic online campaigning.

"At the very least, topline numbers would provide a ballpark overview of the numbers the opposing campaign was working with in these states," Kreiss said.

Not only could that open a window into the state of the race, it could help the Sanders campaign's measure the accuracy of its own information.

Atkins cautioned that to this day, only a handful of people actually know what took place. But the activity logs don't help the Sanders campaign's position.

"What appears damning is that hours passed where they didn't contact the vendor immediately, which is what I -- and most campaign operatives -- would have done," Atkins said.

We reached out to the Sanders campaign for comment and did not hear back.

Our ruling

Sanders said that his campaign did not go out and take information from the Clinton campaign. From all accounts, it is true that the Sanders campaign did not attempt to break into the voter data of a rival campaign. The Sanders people stumbled upon a glitch.

But rather than reporting the glitch immediately, they probed the database for a bit under two hours. At some point, the staff produced a page of information that at the very least would show the count of certain voters.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Experts familiar with the Democratic voter data base say that the Sanders campaign would have gleaned valuable information. At the end of the day, they knew some things about the Clinton campaign that they hadn't known before, even if they didn't seek to crack into the Clinton data.

We rate Sanders' claim that the campaign didn't "go out and take" information asMostly False.

--
Josh Schwerin
Spokesman, Deputy Director of Rapid Response
Hillary for America
@JoshSchwerin

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <jp66@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 4/20/2015 4:07:06 PM
Subject: Fwd: NH update

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Margolis, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >
Date: Mon, Apr 20, 2015 at 11:06 PM
Subject: Re: NH update
To: Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >, Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >, John Podesta <jp66@hillaryclinton.com >, David Binder <David@db-research.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >

Are we getting much reaction?
She should prob look to do a little clean up tomorrow.

Jim Margolis
Sent from my iPhone.
Please excuse typos.

> On Apr 20, 2015, at 7:16 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> Anyone concerned by reports that by saying the economy had "stalled," > she is attacking Obama? Cnn and ap did.
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
>> On Apr 20, 2015, at 7:14 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>
>> 567 days, 567 opportunities!
>>
>>
>>
>> On Apr 20, 2015, at 7:09 PM, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com > wrote:
>>
>> Good. That's good reinforcement for her to keep saying for the next 18 >> months or so!
>>
>> -----Original Message-----
>> From: Huma Abedin [mailto:ha16@hillaryclinton.com]
>> Sent: Monday, April 20, 2015 4:16 PM
>> To: Joel Benenson
>> Cc: Jennifer Palmieri; Jim Margolis; Mandy Grunwald; Nick Merrill; >> Kristina Schake; Robby Mook; John Podesta; David Binder; John
>> Anzalone; Jake Sullivan; Dan Schwerin
>> Subject: Re: NH update
>>
>> Joel , she noted that everyone nodded when she said that line.
>>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>> Sent from my iPhone
>>
>>> On Apr 20, 2015, at 5:34 PM, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com > wrote:
>>>
>>> Great.
>>> Did she take Qs from press yet?
>>>
>>> -----Original Message-----
>>> From: Jennifer Palmieri [mailto:jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com]
>>> Sent: Monday, April 20, 2015 2:42 PM
>>> To: Jim Margolis; Joel Benenson; Huma Abedin; Mandy Grunwald; Nick >>> Merrill; Kristina Schake; Robby Mook; John Podesta; David Binder; John
>>> Anzalone; Jake Sullivan; Dan Schwerin
>>> Subject: Re: NH update
>>>
>>> She did great at house party. We have audio. Enthusiastic, did "make middle class mean something again."
>>>
>>> Sent from my iPhone
>>>
>>>> On Apr 20, 2015, at 2:31 PM, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>>>>
>>>> Think tv took her live, so may have already seen but she did very >>>> well in her open. From what I saw, she did not look down once, did >>>> "make middle class mean something again" with feeling. She did the >>>> four fights, but not a ton of rationale. At any rate, delivery was great.
>>>> Sent from my iPhone
>

This email is intended only for the named addressee. It may contain information that is confidential/private, legally privileged, or copyright-protected, and you should handle it accordingly. If you are not the intended recipient, you do not have legal rights to retain, copy, or distribute this e-mail or its contents, and should promptly delete the email and all electronic copies in your system; do not retain copies in any media. If you have received this email in error, please notify the sender promptly. Thank you.

--
JP
jp66@hillaryclinton.com
For scheduling: mfisher@hillaryclinton.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Gabe Podesta" <gpodesta@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/19/2015 1:53:03 AM
Subject:	Costco

Mae is getting in the shower now. We'll update when we leave but expect around 1.

Pig looks good--stashed in the downstairs fridge.

--
Gabe Podesta

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Terry Sheridan" <tsheridan@clintonfoundation.org>
Date:	1/21/2012 5:35:50 AM
Subject:	CGSGI

In the department of things I've forgotten about, did we ever pick a CEO for this?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 3/3/2016 11:01:08 AM
Subject: Re: new language in Clinton message

I've actually been very sensitive to this "whole AGAIN" point and have been leaving that out for the reason he mentions. But sometimes she just says it because the rhythm is better.

On Thu, Mar 3, 2016 at 5:42 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

> Fan mail
>
> ---------- Forwarded message ----------
> From: Zeldin, Michael <mzeldin@buckleysandler.com >
> Date: Thursday, March 3, 2016
> Subject: new language in Clinton message
> To: "john.podesta@gmail.com " <john.podesta@gmail.com >
> Cc: "podesta@podesta.com " <podesta@podesta.com >
>
> John,
>
> See yellow highlight below. This is really good. I hope my comments helped shape this message.
>
> The one thing I heard in her super Tuesday speech that I thought that I would avoid is that she said: “whether we like it or not, we are in this all together…” I would advise eliminating the “like it or not” part and just say that “in order to make America whole we must be in this altogether.”
>
> One other small nit is that she says “we need to make America whole again”. I am not sure when America ever was whole. So thought might be given to saying something like: “it is time to make America whole; where no one is left out; where all have equal opportunity, where all lives matter, etc”
>
> My two cents.
>
> Michael
>
> Michael Zeldin
> Special Counsel
> BuckleySandler LLP
> 1250 24th Street NW
> Suite 700
> Washington, DC 20037
> T. 202-349-7928 | F. 202-349-8080
> M. 202-258-2770
> mzeldin@buckleysandler.com
> www.buckleysandler.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Buckley Sandler LLP

Hillary Clinton lost no time transitioning into a general-election message, positioning herself as the opposite of Donald Trump in an optimistic speech threaded with themes of "love and kindness."

"Despite what you hear, we don't need to make America great again. America has never stopped being great," Clinton told supporters after her big primary victory in South Carolina on Saturday night.

"But we do need to make America whole again," she said to loud applause. "Instead of building walls, we need to be tearing down barriers."

"We have so much to look forward to," Clinton said. "There is no doubt in my mind that America's best years are ahead of us. We have to believe that, we have to work for that."

She's come a long way from her campaign message of "Pick me because I have experience."

Clinton mentioned the five mothers by name that she recognized at CNN's Democratic town hall on Tuesday -- five African-American women who have lost their children to gun violence or at the hands of police.

"They have not been broken or embittered. Instead, they have channeled their sorrow into strategy, and their mourning into a movement. And they are reminding us of something deep and powerful in the American spirit," Clinton said.

"When we stand together, there is no barrier too big to break," she said. "Tomorrow, this campaign goes national."

Get complete coverage of breaking news on CNN TV, CNN.com and CNN Mobile.

Watch CNN live or On Demand from your computer or mobile device.
Watch live CNN news coverage now at http://cnn.it/go

You have opted-in to receive this e-mail from CNN.com.
To unsubscribe from Breaking News e-mail alerts, go to: http://cnn.com/EMAIL/breakingnews/unsubscribe.html?l=domestic-adh-bn
One CNN Center Atlanta, GA 30303
(c) & (r) 2016 Cable News Network

This email message (including any attachments) is only for use by the intended recipient(s) and is presumed confidential. It also may be subject to the attorney-client privilege or other confidentiality protections and may constitute inside information. If you are not an intended recipient, you may not review, copy, distribute, or otherwise use this message or its contents. If you received this message in error, please notify the sender and delete this message (including any attachments) from your system immediately. Any unauthorized reading, copying, distribution, or other use of this message or its contents is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tony Carrk" <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com> "Ron Klain" <ron.klain@revolution.com> "Karen Dunn" <karen.l.dunn@gmail.com> "Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com> "Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com> "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/3/2016 10:36:48 AM
Subject:	FW: CLIP | Politico: Goldman Sachs chief Lloyd Blankfein: Sanders candidacy a 'dangerous moment'

I wouldn't be surprised if these quotes get added to Sanders's stump soon. Both this, and what he said about not making an endorsement as to not her them.

From: clips@hillaryclinton.com [mailto:clips@hillaryclinton.com] On Behalf Of Tyson Brody
Sent: Wednesday, February 3, 2016 5:35 PM
To: Clips <clips@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: CLIP | Politico: Goldman Sachs chief Lloyd Blankfein: Sanders candidacy a 'dangerous moment'

Goldman Sachs chief Lloyd Blankfein: Sanders candidacy a 'dangerous moment'
By ELIZA COLLINS

02/03/16 03:02 PM EST

Share on Facebook Share on Twitter

The head of Goldman Sachs said on Wednesday that Bernie Sanders' insurgent candidacy "has the potential to be a dangerous moment."

Lloyd Blankfein, who is chairman and CEO of the bank, was speaking to CNBC's "Squawk Box."

Story Continued Below

In January, Sanders was asked by Bloomberg Politics to list an example of corporate greed, and he listed Blankfein.

"I don't take it personally since we never met," Blankfein responded.

But he added that Sanders' attacks on the "billionaire class" and bankers could be dangerous.

"it has the potential to personalize it, it has the potential to be a dangerous moment. Not just for Wall Street not just for the people who are particularly targeted but for anybody who is a little bit out of line," Blankfein said. "It's a liability to say I'm going to compromise I'm going to get one millimeter off the extreme position I have and if you do you have to back track and swear to people that you'll never compromise. It's just incredible. It's a moment in history."

Blankfein avoided saying whether he supported former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, though both Clintons have long ties to Blankfein and to Goldman Sachs, which has been a heavy donor to Bill Clinton's charity work.

Sanders: We're 'working very hard' to attract senior voters

By NICK GASS

In 2012, Blankfein said he was a registered Democrat but a Rockefeller Republican. In 2015, he donated to the campaigns of Republican senators Rob Portman and Roy Blunt, but in 2008 he endorsed and raised money for Clinton's failed presidential bid. His wife Laura has donated the $2,700 maximum to Clinton's 2016 campaign.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

But on Squawk Box, Blankfein would say only, “I don’t want to help or hurt anybody by giving them an endorsement."

During the Democratic debate in January, Sanders criticized Clinton's Goldman Sachs ties, referring four times to tax returns released by her campaign showing she received a total of $675,000 for three speeches to the bank in 2013.
"Goldman Sachs is not going to bring forth a secretary of the Treasury for a Sanders administration," he said.

According to an account in 2014 by former Treasury Secretary Timothy Geithner, Bill Clinton apparently said of the populist anger sweeping the country, “You could take Lloyd Blankfein into a dark alley and slit his throat, and it would satisfy them for about two days. Then the blood lust would rise again

Read more: http://www.politico.com/story/2016/02/lloyd-blankfein-bernie-sanders-218689#ixzz3z9B2bKg4

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "The Grand Masters 2016" <grandmasters2016@gmail.com>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 1/24/2016 11:02:57 PM
Subject: A Letter to the 'Chanakyas' of the Indian Legal Fraternity

Limited Seats Left

View this email in your browser

LEX WITNESS
in association with
SILF SOCIETY OF INDIAN LAW FIRMS presents

The Grand Masters 2016

A CORPORATE COUNSEL LEGAL BEST PRACTICES SUMMIT SERIES

THE GRAND MASTERS 3.1	THE GRAND MASTERS 3.2	THE GRAND MASTERS 3.3
12TH FEBRUARY	19TH FEBRUARY	26TH FEBRUARY
NEW DELHI	BENGALURU	MUMBAI

Explore The Summit Agenda | Registration Procedures

Explore Sponsorship Opportunities

Dear In-House Counsel,

Greetings from Team Witness!

It has been great staying in touch with you ever since 2009, and serving you with enriched content and legal undercurrents of the industry. Continuing the legacy as always, Lex Witness once again with pride presents The 3rd Annual Edition of The Grand Masters 2016 – An In Housel Counsel summit series in February 2016.

The Grand Masters 3.1 – New Delhi – 12th February 2016
The Grand Masters 3.2 – Bangalore – 19th February 2016
The Grand Masters 3.3 – Mumbai – 26th February 2016

The Grand Masters Series is one the most sought after series when it comes to the country's most influential general counsel community gets together to brain storm on topical issues and challenges that a GC's desk comes across on a daily basis.

The Grand Masters 2016 summits have been receiving a very encouraging response from various stakeholders of the industry who aim to get together and carve out a brainstorming discussion over the various challenges and winning strategies that an In-House Counsel shall possess today.

So step up, come forth and join your very own The Grand Masters 2016 . Read forth for more details on The Grand Masters 2016

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Your Witness Please!

Lex Witness - India's 1st Magazine on Legal & Corporate Affairs
Unit No 426, 2nd Floor, MG Road, Ghitorni,
New Delhi - 110030
E: grandmasters@witnesslive.in
T: 91-11-66.56.9797
W: www.grandmasters.in

AND THE GRAND MASTERS ARE...

Dr. Ashwini Sandu, Global Head IPR, United Phosphorus Limited
Dr. Lalit Bhasin, President, SILF
Dr. Sheetal Chopra, India Lead - IPR Advocacy IPR Policy & Communications, Ericsson India
Dr. Sunil Mittal, Group General Counsel, Kalpataru Group
Akshat Sulalit, General Counsel, Ibibo Group
Alok Dhir, Founder & Managing Partner, Dhir & Dhir Associates
Amber Gupta, Head Legal & Company Secretary, Birla Sun Life Insurance
Ameet Datta, Partner, Saikrishna & Associates
Amitabh Lal Das, Director & Head - Legal, Compliance & Regulatory, Max Life Insurance
Anil PM, Head - Legal & Board Affairs, PNB MetLife India Insurance
Anubhav Kapoor, General Counsel and Company Secretary, Tata Technologies
Anupam Sharan, Leadership - Contract Management, American Express
Atul Dua, Founder & Senior Partner, Seth Dua & Associates
B. Sai Chandravadhan, Managing Director, Sand Legal Services
Badrinath Durvasula, Senior Vice President Legal, Adani Group
Chad Sluss, Senior Vice President of Services, International Society of Primerus Law Firms
Damini Marwah, General Counsel and Legal Head., IL&FS Financial Services
Debolina Partap, Vice President and Head Legal, Wockhardt Group
Eshwar Sabapathy, Partner, S Eshwar Consultants, House of Corporate & IPR Laws
Gobind Chandiramani, Group Sr. VP - Legal, Godfrey Phillips India
J. Sai Deepak, Associate Partner, Saikrishna & Associates
Jasmeet Wadehra, Head - Legal, Power, Vedanta Group
Jayashree Swaminathan, Director, Dhir & Dhir Associates
Jogy P Thomas, CEO, ATS Infrastructure
Jugnu Bagga, Head - Legal, Paras Buildtech India
Kapil Chaudhary, Corporate Counsel, India & SAARC, Autodesk India
Kumar Medhavi, Senior VP - Legal Risk Management, Yes Bank
Lakshika Joshi, General Counsel and Head- IP Licensing, Nucleus Software
Lokesh Rajpal, Associate Director, Flipkart.com
Manish Gupta, General Counsel & Company Secretary, Usha International Monica Datta, Partner, Saikrishna & Associates
Nikhil Sahni, Partner, Saikrishna & Associates
Nilesh Sharma, Partner, Dhir & Dhir Associates
Pathik Arora, Assistant General Counsel & Company Secretary, InterGlobe Hotels
Pulin Kumar, Group Sr. Legal & Compliance Director, Adidas Group
Rajinder Sharma, General Counsel, Flipkart
Rajiv Mohapatra, Head Legal, Vodafone M-Pesa
S Mahadevan, Executive Vice President - Legal Compliance & Risk Management, Hinduja Global Solutions
S Ravi Shankar, Managing Partner, Law Senate
Saikrishna Rajagopal, Managing Partner, Saikrishna & Associates
Sangeetha Karpore, Compliance Head - Emerging Markets, Dr. Reddy's Laboratories
Santanu Roy, Senior Legal Counsel, Bechtel India
Saurabh Malhotra, South Asia Compliance Officer, Syngenta India
Selwyn Black, Partner, Carroll & O'Dea Lawyers

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Shreedhar S. Parundekar, Manager Brand Protection – South Asia, Legal Affairs, Mercedes-Benz India
Subodh Prasad Deo, Partner, Saikrishna & Associates
Subramanian Narayan, VP & Dy. Company Secretary, Mphasis
TA Srinivasen, Head – Corporate Legal, Dalmia Cement (Bharat)
Vasanthika Srinath, VP & General Counsel, The Minacs Group

For Speaking, Sponsorship & Delegate Participation Opportunities

Bhupinder Kaur | E: Bhupinder@WitnessLive.in | M: 9654155065
Neelima Maheshwari | E: Neelima.Maheshwari@WitnessLive.in | M: 8800841600

Copyright © 2016 Lex Witness - India's 1st Magazine on Legal & Corporate Affairs, All rights reserved.
A Lex Witness Industry Connect Initiative

Our mailing address is:
Lex Witness - India's 1st Magazine on Legal & Corporate Affairs
426, 2nd Floor, Ghitorni, MG Road
New Delhi 110030
India

Add us to your address book

Want to change how you receive these emails?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list

MailChimp

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Gene Karpinski, LCV Victory Fund" <feedback@lcv.org>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 10/18/2010 4:58:11 AM
Subject: BREAKING: New numbers on environmental candidates

LCV VICTORY FUND

Dear John,

Undecided voters are deciding – and our polling puts seven important environmental Senate races and several key House races within the margin of error.

Early voting in Colorado started yesterday. It began two days ago in Nevada, and nearly two weeks ago in Wisconsin. When our canvassers knock on a door in critical battleground states, the person who opens it can vote the very same day.

LCV Victory Fund urgently needs to raise $70,000 for canvassing and get-out-the-vote efforts in the last two weeks of the campaign. But with voters already mailing in ballots, every day we wait is a missed opportunity.

Our planet's future is at stake on November 2.

Seven Senate races are within the margin of error.

Donate to LCV Victory Fund by October 29, the Friday before Election Day.

Don't miss a moment - make a gift to LCV Victory Fund today >>

I promise you, if you give today, your gift will have an impact on these elections. Every dollar we put to work could make the difference in a neck-and-neck race.

LCV Victory Fund is focusing on these tight races where we have the best chance of making a real impact. With two weeks left, here are the seven states where we're concentrating our Senate efforts – and your dollars:

- Pennsylvania: Rep. Joe Sestak is running in a very tight race against ex-Rep. Pat Toomey, the former President of the radical right-wing group Club for Growth. The most recent public poll shows Rep. Sestak pulling ahead for the first time. Rep. Sestak is an environmental leader who voted for the House-passed American Clean Energy and Security Act that would have helped create more than 71,000 new clean energy jobs in Pennsylvania, reduced carbon pollution and increased energy independence.

- Nevada: We're running a canvass operation that's going to reach 45,000 votersTWICE – to drive support for Senator Harry Reid, one of our longest-running champions of clean energy in the Senate. Reid's race is statistically tied right now – and if he loses, his seat goes to Sharron Angle, who's dismissed climate change as a "mantra of the left."

- Washington: We're helping lead a coalition of progressive organizations to re-elect Senator Patty Murray, an environmental champion who polls show is running just a few points ahead of two time candidate for Governor Dino Rossi, who believes there's still "a lot of debate" on the science of global warming.

We're also working around the clock in New Hampshire, Wisconsin, and Missouri, where pro-environment candidates are running one or two point races against their Dirty Dozen opponents. And we're pulling out all the stops in Colorado to elect Michael Bennet, who's beginning to surge against Ken Buck, who's both a Dirty Dozen member and a global warming denier.

And of course we are continuing to work overtime to re-elect members of the House of Representatives who voted for the American Clean Energy and Security Act, which would create clean energy jobs, increase our national security, and protect the planet from global warming pollution. We are working especially hard for clean energy champions like Rep. Tom Perriello in Virginia, Rep. John Boccieri of Ohio, Rep. Mark Schauer in Michigan and Rep. Dina Titus of Nevada.

Making a contribution to LCV Victory Fund is the most effective, efficient action you can take between now and November 2 to ensure that the House and Senate don't fall into the hands of Big Oil's crew of climate deniers.

Give now and watch your dollars go straight to work defeating the Dirty Dozen, so we can continue working to pass laws that protect the environment.

LCV Victory Fund knows how to set the facts straight and get voters to the polls, even in the toughest election years. But to see our strategy through, we urgently need more resources.

Thank you for your generosity. Our nation – and the planet – is counting on it.

Sincerely,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Gene Karpinski
LCV Victory Fund

Paid for by LCV Victory Fund, www.lcv.org, and not authorized by any candidate or candidate's committee

Privacy Policy
To review our Privacy Policy, click here .

To Unsubscribe Click Here

POWERED BY blackbaud nonprofit software

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Gabe Podesta" <gpodesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/22/2014 3:10:34 PM
Subject:	Re: First Impression of Afghanistan

Sent hoe a Skype text. Let us know when you want to talk.

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

> On Mar 20, 2014, at 7:57 AM, Gabe Podesta <gpodesta@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> After nearly a week of travel I've made it to my semi-permanent temporary home in Afghanistan.
>
> A year ago, when I was stationed at Andrews, my boss called a staff meeting on a Friday morning. I was a week or so away from what proved to be a week-long court-martial and was burning the candle at both ends that week in preparation. I ran my fingers through my hair as I sat in the conference room and discovered my hair was particularly greasy. I thought back and realized that in my singular focus on the upcoming trial I had managed to forget to bathe all week. As in, the last shower I took was on Sunday night, a full five days earlier.
>
> I tell you this story so that you have some context for what I am about to declare: Afghanistan is the dirtiest place on the planet. The air is thick with smoke and dust. Everything--literally everything--is covered in a coating of dirt (one hopes). My room is absolutely filthy and despite my very best efforts all afternoon I've not made a dent in the cleanup. The previous tenant left a vacuum cleaner, leading me to believe that he or she made some effort to keep it clean and nonetheless the walls are caked in black grime. This place is truly gross.
>
> Having said that, I'm glad to finally be here. I met my coworkers earlier and it seems like the work will be interesting and the experience one of a lifetime. In that last 24 hours alone I've flown in a C-17 and a Blackhawk helicopter. My present duty station, McChord Field, is home of the C-17 Globemaster III and yet I am now the sole attorney in the legal office with the distinct pleasure to say I've actually flown in one.
>
> I suspect that the seven months will go by in a flash. Before you know it I'll be unloading off the rotator back in the States. You may not recognize me; I'll be the one that looks like I just emerged from a 12 hour shift in a coal mine.
>
> Love and miss you all. Gabe
>
> Sent from my iPad
> PS--Yes, my iPad works in Afghanistan. Who knew?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Averyl Bailey" <Averyl.Bailey@ptt.gov>
To:	"Sara Latham" <Sara.Latham@ptt.gov>
Date:	11/26/2008 1:51:54 AM
Subject:	RE: thanks

Sara,

LOL, you're both welcome and I wish both of you a great Thanksgiving :-)

Averyl

From: Sara Latham
Sent: Wednesday, November 26, 2008 8:51 AM
To: Averyl Bailey
Cc: 'john.podesta@gmail.com'
Subject: thanks

Averyl - thanks for the delicious pumpkin loaf - John and I both polished ours off !!

have a great thanksgiving.

Sara

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Brooke Goren" <bgoren@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"HRC Rapid" <HRCRapid@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Julie McClain" <jmcclain@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Meredith Thatcher" <mthatcher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	7/23/2015 4:02:14 AM
Subject:	July 22 Evening Cable News

National

-- Coverage of Quinnipiac poll showing HRC polling low on trust and honesty in Colorado, Virginia, and Iowa. Says she is losing to all three Republican front runners in the new poll in these three states. Jessica Tarlov joins the show and says that people are a little sick of HRC not answering questions and the press being roped off, they're sick of the emails although Tarlov says she doesn't think that's the biggest deal in the world. Says Benghazi has been talked about a little more especially over Chattanooga. Says this doesn't mean that she's free falling, and the general election was always going to be close. Tarlov says her advice to HRC would be to be more open with people. Says it's the slow drip of information that is problematic. Tammy Bruce says it's not about the issues with HRC, it's about her manner and nature. Says people want something different and speaks to the fact that HRC is not going to get better because she's not going to get new anytime soon. Anthony Scaramucci says HRC is going to wait since this is so early and her dodging strategy is something that she did very successfully in her 2000 senate race. Says HRC has a declining slope of likeability whereas Scott Walker has an inclining slope of likeability. Host says HRC's unfavorability ratings are even higher than in 2007. Making Money with Charles Payne. 2015 07 22 Hillary Clinton Commentary, National, Panel Comments on Quinnipiac Poll

-- Coverage of Quinnipiac poll showing HRC polling low on character issues. Ed Henry reports that HRC's bid has run into a summer stall. Says HRC is losing to all three Republican front runners in the new poll in three states. Says favorability rating has declined. Shows clip of Ed Rollins saying this is a hard number to change because HRC has been in the public eye for so long. Shows clip of Joe Trippi saying none of the Republicans have a lock on the nomination. Ed Henry shows HRC video on gender card. Says Carly Fiorina says Republicans need to spend more time working to defeat HRC rather than focusing on one another. Henry says the polls present an opening for Biden or another Democrat to join the race. Special Report with Bret Baier . 2015 07 22 Hillary Clinton Commentary, National, Ed Henry Comments on Quinnipiac Poll Implications

-- Coverage of Quinnipiac poll showing HRC losing to Bush, Walker, and Rubio in Colorado, Iowa, and Virginia. Says honesty, trustworthiness, and favorability are all low in these polls as well. Notes that the one thing HRC does have is leadership qualities according to the poll. Kirsten Powers says these numbers are on par with the national polls which say HRC is a good leader. Some people have pointed to WJC saying that he won even when people didn't trust him. Says we don't know if the Republican numbers are because of the trustworthiness issue or if it's the fact that she didn't have any real opponents before, and now she has real alternatives. Charles Krauthammer says the more you see HRC the more her numbers go down, and that's the sign of a weak candidate. Says the surprising thing is the Bernie Sanders does better against the Republicans. Yochi Dreazen says Bernie Sanders won't beat her, but he'll be able to hit her on not being where the passion of the party is. Powers says things like the email scandal is not going to be something that voters base their decision on and people seem to think that she's a good leader. Krauthammer says the emails alone won't sink HRC, but it reinforces the idea that people can't trust her. Special Report with Bret Baier . 2015 07 22 Hillary Clinton Commentary, National, Krauthammer and Powers on Quinnipiac Poll

-- Coverage of Quinnipiac poll showing HRC trailing Bush, Rubio and Walker in Colorado, Iowa, and Virginia. Says honesty, trustworthiness, and favorability are all low in these polls as well. Says this is not the first poll that has shown HRC with trust issues. Paul Begala joins the show and says HRC needs to go out and campaign on economic issues. Says her message is that she wants to boost wages for middle class Americans, and if people agree with that, they are going to vote for her. Says if you believe Americans deserve a raise, you will vote for HRC. Says the undecided in the poll was way too high. Says the key right now is for candidates to get their messages out. Erin Burnett OutFront . 2015 07 22 Hillary Clinton Commentary, National, Begala on Quinnipiac Poll

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

-- Coverage of Quinnipiac poll showing HRC trailing Bush, Rubio and Walker in Colorado, Iowa, and Virginia. Katherine Mangu-Ward comments and says at this point the polls essentially function as entertainment. Says polls do allow for something like an actual comparison and allows people to analyze the race a little bit. Tom Shiliue says HRC is unlikeable to both Democrats and Republicans. Shiliue says HRC was never inevitable because people don't like her and she talks herself out of people's good graces. Sam Morril says HRC and WJC are panicking and she has charisma issues. Kennedy . 2015 07 22 Hillary Clinton Commentary, National, Kennedy Pannel on Quinipiac Poll

-- Chris Frates comments on Donald Trump's financial information. Comparison between Trump's international business dealings and HRC's connection to the Clinton Foundation's work with foreign governments. Says both could be conflicts of interest if either candidate were to become president. Frates says, like the Clintons, Donald Trump makes big money on speaking engagements which could be a liability as well. CNN Tonight with Don Lemon. 2015 07 22 Hillary Clinton Commentary, National, Chris Frates on Trump Financial Information

-- Report on HRC's comments on Sandra Bland case. Host quotes HRC saying, I hope and expect that there will be a full investigation into this situation. It is also a tragic reminder of the ongoing systemic issues of race and justice in America that we must address with urgency, and we have to do more than talk – we have to take action. Dana Perino joins the show and says there is this weird thing of HRC and other presidential candidates wanting to comment on every news event. Says it would have been better if HRC exercised restraint and judgement. Says HRC indicted police forces throughout America. Says HRC's statement is political since police department is already taking action to deal with the officer. Says the politicizing does not help the family of Sandra Bland at all. Says the issue of mental issue is one that HRC, if she wants to lead the country, could take up instead. The Kelly File . 2015 07 22 Hillary Clinton Commentary, National, Dana Perino on HRC Sandra Bland Statement

-- Ed Henry comments on the fact that HRC quickly condemned Republicans for waiting to respond to controversial statements from Donald Trump yet she has not stood up to Planned Parenthood. Says it's interesting that PP employees have donated significant amounts of money to HRC's campaign. Notes that other democrats have not commented either. Notes that Harry Reid has come out and touted the benefits of fetal tissue research. Shows clip of Harry Reid's statement. The Kelly File . 2015 07 22 Hillary Clinton Commentary, National, Ed Henry on Planned Parenthood Controversy

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	cosjbb <cosjbb@who.eop.gov>
To:	"John Podesta" <John.Podesta@ptt.gov> john.podesta@gmail.com rahm@friendsofrahmemanuel.com
Date:	11/29/2008 3:20:21 AM
Subject:	Mumbai

This morning, the President participated in a secure VTC w/ the national/homeland security team -- incl our amb to India and consul in Mumbai, SecState, DNI, CIA, DOD, FBI, etc. President will make a generic statement to press on arrival at WH around 1:00 today; will reference keeping President-elect apprised.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Dan Schwerin" <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Ronald Klain" <rklain@aol.com>
	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Brian Fallon" <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/8/2016 6:50:02 AM
Subject:	RE: Revised gun riff

Senator Sanders voted with the NRA and I voted against the NRA

Would change this to gun lobby.

From: Dan Schwerin [mailto:dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com]
Sent: Friday, January 8, 2016 1:47 PM
To: Ronald Klain <rklain@aol.com >; Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >; Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >; John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Subject: Revised gun riff

I took Ron's riff and condensed to 375 words. What do you think?

- I was very proud of the President this week making a powerful statement about the urgent need to end the epidemic of gun violence in America. His new executive actions include steps that I've advocated for throughout this campaign. We are losing 90 people a day to gun violence, so the President is right: this is a national crisis. And, as he said, voters should not support any candidate who does not support common-sense gun reform.
- Democrats have a real choice here, because standing up to the gun lobby is a big difference between Senator Sanders and myself. The Brady Bill has kept 2 million guns out of the hands of people who shouldn't have them -- Senator Sanders voted against it five times. But that may not be his worst vote on gun safety.
- Ten years ago, gun safety advocates wanted to take gun makers and sellers to court for their reckless disregard for human life. If an auto company sells an unsafe car, you can sue them. Unsafe food, unsafe tools, unsafe toys – the makers can all be sued. So the NRA wrote a bill that said, "No one can sue a gun maker or a gun seller."
- The bill came before Congress. The pressure was intense. The head of the NRA called the vote "the most significant piece of pro-gun legislation in twenty years." And when it really mattered, Senator Sanders voted with the NRA and I voted against the NRA.
- I would certainly understand if Senator Sanders would just stand up and say, "I got this one wrong. I made a mistake. I'm sorry." But he hasn't. He's defended his vote time and again. He's said he would "consider" some changes to the law – but that was almost 90 days ago – and where are the changes?
- And so, go back to what President Obama said -- this immunity issue is one of his most important concerns. The President of the United States will not support any candidate who is wrong on gun safety. Unless Senator Sanders changes his position on immunity for gun sellers and gun makers, he's wrong on gun safety, wrong on the leading cause of death for young people in our country, and the wrong candidate for President.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Chris Lu" <clu@barackobama.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com> "Steiner, Joshua" <Joshua.Steiner@quadranglegroup.com>
Date:	10/18/2008 8:18:21 AM
Subject:	RE: message from press staff

John -- Just to clarify: I had asked Josh to put something together so I could include it in the weekly briefing memo to Biden/Obama. So, the paragraphs would only go to them, not to the press.

-----Original Message-----
From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Saturday, October 18, 2008 4:10 PM
To: Steiner, Joshua
Cc: Chris Lu
Subject: Re: message from press staff

.don't think we need to put anything out, but this is fine if others in the campaign think we need to do something. I would probably drop 2nd para. no need for that level of detail.

On Sat, Oct 18, 2008 at 12:36 PM, Steiner, Joshua <Joshua.Steiner@quadranglegroup.com> wrote:
> Here are two draft paragraphs that John and you should obviously feel free > to edit. I've copied John since he was there. Hope it's helpful:
>
>
>
>
>
> On October 17th in New York, the transition economic team (led by Bill > Daley) met with its informal "advisory board," which consists of Laura > Tyson, Roger Ferguson, Anne Mulcahy, Bob Reich, Bob Rubin, Larry Summers, > Paul Volker and Jack Lew. All members except Mr. Volker were scheduled to > attend, but Mr. Ferguson was unable to come at the last minute. In > addition, John Podesta, Pete Rouse, Bob Litan, Todd Stern and Michael Froman > attended. The group spent six hours reviewing the following topics:
> Stimulus, Budget, Financial Markets (including foreclosures) and > International Econonics. Each area began with a review of the positions > expressed during the campaign.
>
>
>
> Several high level areas received particular attention: 1) framing the > budget discussions in contrast to the situation in 1993 and in light of the > current economic climate; 2) the size, timing and content of a stimulus plan > given the economic climate and budget picture; 3) efforts to address the

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

> foreclosure crisis; and, 4) reviewing the international agenda in light of > potentially conflicting priorities (e.g., addressing China's currency > policies without compromising important bilateral financial relationships).
>
>
>
> _____
>
> From: Chris Lu [mailto:clu@barackobama.com]
> Sent: Saturday, October 18, 2008 8:49 AM
> To: Steiner, Joshua
> Subject: RE: message from press staff
>
>
>
> Josh -- Here's their contact info:
>
>
>
> Anita Dunn - adunn@barackobama.com
>
> Dan Pfeiffer - dpfeiffer@barackobama.com
>
>
>
> And the number for the communications office in HQ is 312-819-2423
>
>
>
> Also, I'm putting together the weekly briefing memo that we give to Obama > and Biden on our transition planning. Is there anything I can/should tell > them about yesterday's meeting - who was there, what was discussed, > comments, concerns, etc.? John reviews the memos before they get sent out > but any information you have would be useful.
>
>
>
>
>
> _____
>
> From: Steiner, Joshua [mailto:Joshua.Steiner@quadranglegroup.com]
> Sent: Fri 10/17/2008 9:15 PM
> To: Chris Lu
> Subject: RE: message from press staff
>
> We had our economic "advisory board" meeting today and told them not to > speak to the press. Also said we would circulate names to whom they should > refer calls from the press. Are Anita and Dan the right people and if so, > could you please give me their numbers? Thanks.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

>
>
>
> _____
>
> From: Chris Lu [mailto:clu@barackobama.com]
> Sent: Friday, October 17, 2008 12:06 AM
> To: Chris Lu; Adam Hitchcock; john.podesta@gmail.com;
> william.m.daley@jpmchase.com; cedley@gmail.com; Valerie Jarrett;
> fpena@vestarden.com; fromanm@citi.com; don.gips@level3.com; Pete
Rouse;
> Melody Barnes; jg@rock-creek-ventures.com; cbutts.obama08@gmail.com;
> burke1262@cox.net; cbrowner@thealbrightgroupllc.com;
sonalshah@google.com;
> ricesusane@aol.com; todd.stern@wilmerhale.com; Jim Steinberg; Steiner, > Joshua; elgieh@yahoo.com; alexkoff@aol.com; ldh@stanford.edu;
> james.rubin@bcpartners.com; cvarney@hhlaw.com; Lisa Brown; John Leibovitz;
> noveck@gmail.com; gaylesmithgayle@gmail.com; tcuellar@stanford.edu;
> sewallconroy@comcast.net; Gitenstein, Mark H.; tedkaufman@comcast.net; > blevin@stifel.com; katy kale; sarahelizabethfeinberg@gmail.com; laura > nichols; Jeanne Lambrew
> Cc: jgendelman@americanprogress.org; fanny.l.sliwinski@chase.com;
Jayne
> Thomisee; rhamilton@vestarden.com; guillens@citi.com;
> sherry.licari@level3.com; afauvre@thealbrightgroupllc.com; Katie Johnson;
> Elizabeth Utrup; catforrester@google.com; Phil Schiliro
> Subject: message from press staff
>
>
>
> This comes from Anita Dunn, one of our communications people on the > campaign: "Both the Times (Peter Baker) and the Post (Balz, Shaleigh > Murray) are working on big transition pieces. A timely reminder to all our > task force members not to talk to the press is definitely in order."
Please
> pass this message to others on your teams. And just a reminder, all > press calls should be directed to Anita Dunn or Dan Pfeiffer at the > campaign. Thanks.
>
>
>
>
>
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Burns Strider" <burns.strider@americanbridge.org>
To: CTRFriendsFamily <CTRFriendsFamily@americanbridge.org>
Date: 7/9/2014 1:27:55 AM
Subject: Correct The Record Wednesday July 9, 2014 Morning Roundup

Correct The Record Wednesday July 9, 2014 Morning Roundup:

Headlines:

Wall Street Journal blog: Washington Wire: "Clinton Says She Asked to Be Removed From Rape Case"

"The pro-Clinton group American Bridge 21st Century sent out a 'Correct the Record' item saying that the controversy amounted to an effort by conservative critics to 'rehash old news.'"

Washington Post column: Ruth Marcus: "Hillary Clinton's lawyerly past"

"The real scandal in this case would have been if she had let her feminist ideology trump her ethical responsibility — to zealously represent even the most loathsome client."

Huffington Post blog: Peter D. Rosenstein: "The Media Obsession With Hillary and Bill Clinton Continues"

"After 45 years in the public eye Hillary can still be the candidate of the future, which would finally include more women in power."

Media Matters for America: "How Morning Joe Is Helping To Turn Clinton's Legal Work Into A Political Liability"

"Joe Scarborough and Ezra Klein are helping to normalize guilt-by-association smears targeting defense attorneys based on their clients, arguing that Hillary Clinton's work defending an alleged child rapist in 1975 is becoming a political liability."

Washington Free Beacon: "Is MSNBC Turning on Hillary?" [VIDEO]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

"MSNBC's Hardball was home of a contentious debate Tuesday night between left-wing Salon's Joan Walsh and MSNBC analyst Michelle Bernard over the 'Hillary Tapes' uncovered by Washington Free Beacon reporter Alana Goodman."

Boston Globe: Letter to the Editor: President of Simmons College Helen Drinan: "Simmons tuition didn't pay Clinton fee"

"The Simmons Leadership Conference, not Simmons College, sponsored Clinton's appearance. All proceeds from the conference go to fund graduate scholarships at the college. This year's proceeds, which represent the surplus after all costs are covered, were the highest in conference history. Clinton's appearance was instrumental to that end."

Wall Street Journal blog: Washington Wire: "Hillary Clinton: Some Families 'Just Have a Commitment' to Politics"

"Mrs. Clinton, in a new interview with Der Spiegel of Germany, didn't apologize for the preponderance of Bushes and Clintons on the national political scene."

CNN: "Clinton weighs in on American political dynasties"

"The Clintons and the Bushes aren't the only families with an extended presence in American presidential politics. That's a piece of history Hillary Clinton was sure to note in an interview published Tuesday in Germany's Der Spiegel when asked if America will turn into a monarchy if she or Jeb Bush were to win the presidency in 2016 (should either decide to run)."

National Journal: "What Hillary Clinton Gets Wrong About Political Dynasties"

"Hillary Clinton is an ambivalent member of a political dynasty—at least when she's talking to reporters."

New York Times: "It Takes a Village (and a Composer and a Writer)"

"Now she [Sec. Clinton] can add another line to her résumé: musical theater muse."

Washington Post blog: The Fix: "Hillary Clinton is rich. She is not Mitt Romney rich."

"But it's also worth noting that, while Romney has spent his life as a part of the upper economic echelon of Americans, the Clintons are relative newcomers to extreme wealth. And their extreme wealth isn't quite as extreme as Romney's."

Politico Magazine column: Sec. John Kerry: "Why Is the Senate Hobbling American Diplomacy?"

"Last year, high-level State Department advocacy was responsible for more than $5.5 billion worth of contracts awarded to U.S. companies by foreign governments. These contracts translated directly into thousands of jobs for Americans here at home."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Articles:

Wall Street Journal blog: Washington Wire: "Clinton Says She Asked to Be Removed From Rape Case"

By Janet Hook

July 8, 2014, 2:42 p.m. EDT

A decades old legal case is continuing to haunt Hillary Clinton, who said in a new interview on the subject that she had asked to be removed from a 1975 case defending a man accused of child rape.

In a July 4 interview with Mumsnet, a British online network, Mrs. Clinton said the case came up while she was teaching at the University of Arkansas and doing legal aid work, and a local judge appointed her to represent a man accused of raping a 12-year-old girl.

"I asked to be relieved of that responsibility, but I was not," said Mrs. Clinton, who was 27 at the time. "And I had a professional duty to represent my client to the best of my ability, which I did."

Some Republicans have seized on the case, and Mrs. Clinton's defense tactics, to discredit Mrs. Clinton's claim to be a lifelong defender of women's rights. The old case came back into focus last month after the Washington Free Beacon, a conservative website, disclosed audio clips of Mrs. Clinton saying in an interview that she took the case after a prosecutor asked her to as "a favor." She indicated that she believed the man was guilty because she laughed when she told the interviewer, laughing, that it "forever destroyed my faith in polygraphs" when her client passed a polygraph test.

Citing that clip, Joe Scarborough, the Republican host of MSNBC's "Morning Joe," during Tuesday's broadcast said Mrs. Clinton's latest statement that she was forced to represent the defendant contradicted her earlier characterization that she was doing it as a favor to a legal colleague.

"Hillary Clinton chose to do this," Mr. Scarborough said. "This completely changes the conversation."

The pro-Clinton group American Bridge 21st Century sent out a "Correct the Record" item saying that the controversy amounted to an effort by conservative critics to "rehash old news."

"The right wing is speculating that Clinton chose to take the case, even though that myth has been widely debunked," the group said in a memo, who cited interviews with the prosecutor who corroborated Mrs. Clinton's account of the case in her 2003 book, "Living History."

Washington Post column: Ruth Marcus: "Hillary Clinton's lawyerly past"

By Ruth Marcus

July 8, 2014, 8:11 p.m. EDT

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

It should not be necessary to write this column.

Lawyers represent clients. Criminal defense lawyers represent clients accused of crimes — sometimes horrible, evil clients accused of heinous crimes. It is the ethical and professional responsibility of these lawyers to defend those clients as vigorously as possible.

Sometimes such representation results in less than perfectly just results. As Justice Benjamin Cardozo famously put it, the criminal goes free because the constable has blundered. That is the way — the only way — an adversary system of criminal justice can function.

End of story, or it would be, except that the decades-old criminal case at issue here involves Hillary Clinton.

To back up, Clinton — then Hillary Rodham — was a 27-year-old law professor in 1975 running a newly formed legal aid clinic at the University of Arkansas in Fayetteville.

As reported by Glenn Thrush in Newsday in 2008, “hard-drinking factory worker” Thomas Alfred Taylor had been accused of raping a 12-year-old girl, the daughter of a family he was living with. Taylor had asked the judge to fire his court-appointed male lawyer and have a female attorney represent him instead. There were only a half-dozen women practicing law in the county at the time, and the judge picked Clinton.

When the prosecutor, Mahlon Gibson, called to tell her the news, “Hillary told me she didn’t want to take that case, she made that very clear,” Gibson told Newsday. Clinton herself described the incident in her autobiography, “Living History”: “I really didn’t feel comfortable taking on such a client, but Mahlon gently reminded me that I couldn’t very well refuse the judge’s request.”

So Clinton went to work. She mounted an attack on the physical evidence against Taylor, enlisting a noted forensics expert to cast doubt on the validity of the physical evidence against her client.

And, as is distasteful but common in rape cases, Clinton prepared to attack the victim’s credibility. Requesting that the victim undergo a psychiatric examination, Clinton wrote in an affidavit, “I have been informed that the complainant is emotionally unstable with a tendency to seek out older men and to engage in fantasizing. I have also been informed that she has in the past made false accusations about persons, claiming they had attacked her body.”

Was there a basis for this claim? The victim says not; the state’s investigator doesn’t recall such evidence; the records were lost in a flood. In any event, the forensic attack carried the day; the prosecutor reduced the charges from first-degree rape to unlawful fondling of a minor. Taylor received four years’ probation and a year in jail.

This story was revived recently after the Washington Free Beacon unearthed audiotapes of interviews conducted by reporter Roy Reed and deposited at the University of Arkansas. “I had him take a polygraph, which he passed — which forever destroyed my faith in polygraphs,” Clinton recalled and chuckled.

“What was sad about it was that the prosecutor had evidence, among which was his underwear… which was bloody,” she recalled. The crime lab “neatly cut out the part that they were going to test,” came back with results and promptly sent back the underpants with a hole — having thrown away the crucial piece. So Clinton presented the prosecutor with her expert’s credentials and announced, “This guy’s ready to come from New York to prevent this miscarriage of justice.” Again, chuckling.

To the Free Beacon, this story “calls into question Clinton’s narrative of her early years as a devoted women and children’s advocate in Arkansas.” In its view, Clinton “struck a casual and complacent attitude toward her client and the trial for rape of a minor.”

Let’s stipulate: Clinton’s laughter can sometimes be off-putting; she tends to use it as a way to deflect unwelcome questions. Not in this case. Certainly, Clinton could express more empathy for the girl. But her laughter, as I hear it, is at the vagaries of the system and bureaucratic ineptitude, not the victim.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

In short: Feel free to dislike Clinton. Feel free to believe she'd be a terrible president. Don't blame her for doing her job. The real scandal in this case would have been if she had let her feminist ideology trump her ethical responsibility — to zealously represent even the most loathsome client.

Huffington Post blog: Peter D. Rosenstein: "The Media Obsession With Hillary and Bill Clinton Continues"

By Peter D. Rosenstein, political consultant

July 7, 2014, 12:59 p.m. EDT

Two, three or more major stories about Hillary and Bill Clinton are in the papers and on TV daily. The Hillary stories range from glowing to glowering. The NY Times has had a reporter assigned to the Hillary beat for more than a year. In a recent Washington Post column Fareed Zakaria writes about Hillary's hardest choice, "Clinton's great challenge will be to decide whether she represents change or continuity." In a NY Times story she is compared to John McCain and the reporter does a "Chicken little the sky is falling" piece on her poll numbers. The Washington Post running out of new things to say about Hillary has taken to writing stories about Bill's quest to be First Gentleman. The Nation says the media are suffering from Hillary Fatigue, yet they are still writing about her and dreaming up new things to say.

The interesting thing isn't the stories but the fact that media outlets are so obsessed with the Clintons clearly believing the public is too. Reporters writing pure speculation and general nonsense get it on the front page. Maybe the public is obsessed with them but it must be hoped if Hillary runs the stories will migrate to a discussion of issues and less of the "How much Hillary is paid for a speech" or whether "Bill is involved in strategy."

The poll number stories aren't new. From the day she became first lady of Arkansas to being appointed secretary of state, her poll numbers have swung wildly. When she is out of day-to- day politics her numbers are up and when the opposition is skewering her the numbers go down. So what? Zakaria is totally wrong about what her hardest choice will be. Hillary doesn't have to make a conscious decision about representing change or continuity. Rather she can talk about her vision for a better America and what she sees is going right with what she believes she can change for the future.

In her book Hard Choices, Clinton laid out foreign policy areas in which she is in lock-step with the president and some such as her recommendation to arm the Syrian opposition Obama chose not to follow. There is every reason to believe that Clinton will be nuanced in a campaign. It isn't simply a case of "with-em-or-agin-em," which is what reporters would like to see. Voters are smarter than that.

Hillary and Bill Clinton have been in the public eye since Hillary Rodham was the first student commencement speaker at Wellesley College in 1969 and when Bill ran for Congress in Arkansas in 1974. There isn't much new the press can find that we already don't know. Their marriage, with its ups and downs, has lasted longer than all those of their critics.

Hillary has always fought for universal health care and will benefit because many of the issues surrounding the Affordable Care Act will have been settled by the time she may announce. Then the recent Supreme Court decision on the Hobby Lobby case to which Hillary voiced strong disagreement allows her to point out the continuing war on women by five old Catholic men and the Republican Party candidates who support them.

Hillary will point out that a Democratic president, Barack Obama, saved the nation pulling it out of a deep recession. But she has shown an understanding that there is a long way to go before everyone is participating in the recovery. Bill will remind people of the state of the nation when he was president. We weren't at war and there were budget surpluses. But Hillary can share her vision for change and she has acknowledged and shown an understanding that we are living in a different world than existed 20 years ago.

Stories like the one in the Washington Post about Bill having made over $100 million since leaving office has people like me thinking "that ain't bad for a good ole southern boy from Hope, Arkansas." For years no one has paid that much attention to the huge sums of money made by all the ex-presidents and other politicians or celebrities who make millions from their speeches. But Hillary suddenly out-performs and gets paid more than all of them and it's now a major story. Wow, a woman with views worth more and commanding more money than men.

Voters often elect wealthy people. John F. Kennedy and Franklin Roosevelt with inherited wealth; and Ronald Reagan and both Bushes, who were millionaires when elected. Mitt Romney didn't lose because he was rich but rather because people felt he couldn't connect with those who weren't. Hillary Clinton doesn't have that problem. People know where she stands on issues and they know where she comes from and that neither she nor Bill was born with a silver spoon in their mouth. People have always respected her incredible work ethic from her earliest days at the Children's Defense Fund and her work for universal health care; equal pay for equal work for women; a great education for all children; and a world that will be more at peace tomorrow than it is today.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

After 45 years in the public eye Hillary can still be the candidate of the future, which would finally include more women in power. She will break that final glass ceiling if she runs. Hillary is a grandmother building a better world for her grandchild, something no longer the sole province of grandfathers.

What Republicans fear is that voters will recognize how a brilliant and feeling woman in the White House will make a difference for them, their children, and their families. Hillary understands how that resonates here and around the world.

Winning the White House for a Democrat will be made easier when more women vote. Hillary can make that happen and her skirt-tail effect would impact elections up and down the spectrum. Some question whether she can create the excitement that will cause that to happen. The media's obsession with her and Bill show she can. When the campaign actually begins, we can only hope the media will focus on the issues that matter to people because that is what is important to the future of America.

Media Matters for America: "How Morning Joe Is Helping To Turn Clinton's Legal Work Into A Political Liability"

By Jeremy Holden

July 8, 2014, 7:28 p.m. EDT

[Subtitle:] Vox's Ezra Klein Joins Scarborough In Mainstreaming "Disturbing" Guilt-By-Association Smear

Joe Scarborough and Ezra Klein are helping to normalize guilt-by-association smears targeting defense attorneys based on their clients, arguing that Hillary Clinton's work defending an alleged child rapist in 1975 is becoming a political liability.

The American Bar Association has condemned this type of attack as "disturbing."

Clinton's work on the case, known publicly and reported on for years, re-emerged after the Washington Free Beacon violated library policy and published an interview Clinton gave in the mid-1980s discussing her legal representation of the alleged rapist.

Clinton defended her work on the case in an interview with Mumsnet that was published July 4, explaining once again that she was assigned to the case, that she asked to be relieved from the assignment, and that she "had a professional duty to represent my client to the best of my ability."

Reporting on the warmed-over scrutiny of the case on Tuesday, Vox claimed that "a criminal defense case from Hillary Clinton's past as a lawyer is becoming a political liability." The headline ominously stated: "Hillary Clinton's legal career is coming back to haunt her."

Klein, the co-founder of Vox, appeared on Morning Joe to expand on the idea that Clinton's legal work was a political liability. "I think it's hard for folks to understand why you would go to the mat for a client who had done something terrible who you knew is guilty," Klein said. "And what she's saying there is that that was her obligation as a lawyer and that the prosecution had done a horrible job."

[VIDEO]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

While Scarborough at one point agreed that attorneys "usually take that court appointment and do their best to defend their client," he subsequently tried to parse the distinction between a public defender and Clinton's role as a court-appointed attorney from a legal aid clinic:

SCARBOROUGH: [I]sn't there a distinction, though, between when you are hired by a public defender's office, and the purpose of the public defender's office is actually to give people the representation that they are guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States of America? And then you have Hillary Clinton's case, where she was running a legal clinic. She may have been court-appointed, but obviously she had a lot more discretion on whether she was going to take a child rapist or not on as a client than if you are a public defender, where you are working as a public defender, you have no choice.

Legal and child welfare experts told Newsday that Clinton's work in the case was appropriate in 2008, the last time her work in the case came under media scrutiny. Clinton wrote about the case in her 2003 autobiography, Living History. Jonathan Adler, a libertarian law professor, has urged Clinton's critics not to attack her representation in this case, specifically warning that it could be chilling to send a message to young attorneys that representing unpopular clients could become a "political liability."

Adler is not alone. Republicans Ken Starr, Lindsey Graham, and Michael Mukasey have all cautioned against using an attorney's clients as a cudgel.

Scarborough's and Klein's analysis of why this case is a liability for Clinton focused in part on their interpretation of Clinton's tone in the 30-year-old interview, which Scarborough claimed amounted to "boasting" about her successful defense of the alleged rapist. "She sounded boastful on the tape that she was able to get this 41-year-old guy who raped a young girl, a minor girl, and get him off and was laughing about the evidence, laughing about the lie detector test, laughing about a lot of it. It does sound -- it's disturbing to say the least, isn't it?"

Scarborough did not reconcile his claim that Clinton was being "boastful" with the fact that she called the case "sad" while explaining how the prosecution had destroyed evidence, forming the basis of an eventual plea bargain.

CLINTON: But you know what was sad about it was that the prosecutors had evidence, among which was his underwear. ... His underwear, which was bloody. Sent it down to the crime lab [unintelligible]. The crime lab took the pair of underpants, neatly cut out the part that they were going to test, tested it, came back with the result of what kind of blood it was, what was mixed in with it, then sent the pants back with a hole in it as evidence. So I got an order to see the evidence, and the prosecutor didn't want me to see the evidence. I had to go to Maupin Cummings and convince Maupin that yes indeed I had a right to see the evidence before it was presented. So they presented the underpants with a hole in it. I said, "What kind of evidence is that?" You know, a pair of underpants with a hole in it. Course the crime lab had thrown away the piece that they'd cut out. It was really odd. I mean, I plea-bargained it down because it turned out they didn't have any evidence.

Morning Joe did air parts of the interview where Clinton discussed what she thought was sad about the case.

CNN legal analyst Paul Callan has rejected claims that Clinton can be heard laughing about the result of the case and instead argued that Clinton is clearly laughing generally about the legal process. "It's a lawyer telling a lawyer tale," Callahan said.

The criticism of Clinton is part of an alarming trend of using a lawyer's clients as a disqualification for public service. In March, the Senate blocked Debo Adegbile's nomination to the Department of Justice's Civil Rights Division amid scrutiny of his work at the NAACP on behalf of an accused cop killer. And the American Bar Association condemned the Republican Governors' Association earlier this year for running ads attacking a South Carolina gubernatorial candidate for his work as a criminal defense attorney.

In a letter to RGA Chairman Chris Christie, ABA President James Silkenat warned: "The Republican Governor's Association ad sends a disturbing message to lawyers -- that their clients' past actions or beliefs will stain their own careers, especially if they want to serve their country in public office."

Washington Free Beacon: “Is MSNBC Turning on Hillary?” [VIDEO]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

By Washington Free Beacon Staff

July 8, 2014, 8:07 p.m. EDT

MSNBC's Hardball was home of a contentious debate Tuesday night between left-wing Salon's Joan Walsh and MSNBC analyst Michelle Bernard over the "Hillary Tapes" uncovered by Washington Free Beacon reporter Alana Goodman.

Goodman unearthed tapes from the 1980s of Hillary Clinton discussing an accused child rapist she defended when she was 27 years old, part of which included her laughing about facets of the case that ultimately resulted in her client, who she thought was guilty, serving less than one year in prison.

Host Chris Matthews laid out the facts behind the case to introduce the segment, adding he's not particularly fond of "clever" defense lawyers.

"I have listened to the whole tape," Matthews said. "She does laugh throughout it. I don't know how to talk about it."

"It's not a fun tape to listen to," Walsh said. "I'm not going to try and sugarcoat it."

However, when Bernard laid out the New York Times' reporting that Clinton had been appointed to the case, rather than that Clinton actually took it because the prosecutor called and asked her to take it on, Walsh grew indignant and accused Bernard of "filibustering."

"This is very serious," Bernard said. "Hillary Clinton took the case. This is a woman who undoubtedly has always been an advocate for women, children and families but she took the case. She knew what the allegations were. She indicated in the tape that she believed that her client, more likely than not, was guilty of the crime that he was accused of. People are going to say, inevitably, 'Who is the real Hillary Clinton?'"

An upset Walsh accused Bernard of presenting a "twisted" view of the facts, but even Matthews was puzzled at that accusation, asking, "What was twisted?"

"The facts are the facts," Bernard replied.

At one point, Matthews just looked down and sighed while the two argued over Clinton.

Boston Globe: Letter to the Editor: President of Simmons College Helen Drinan: "Simmons tuition didn't pay Clinton fee"

By Helen Drinan, president of Simmons College

July 9, 2014

In his column last Friday, Kevin Cullen called out Simmons College for paying Hillary Clinton an undisclosed speaking fee. He suggests that a parent paying tuition to send a student to Simmons College would want to know the amount of that fee. Cullen, however, is misinformed.

The Simmons Leadership Conference, not Simmons College, sponsored Clinton's appearance. All proceeds from the conference go to fund graduate scholarships at the college. This year's proceeds, which represent the surplus after all costs are covered, were the highest in conference history. Clinton's appearance was instrumental to that end.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Helen Drinan

Boston

Wall Street Journal blog: Washington Wire: "Hillary Clinton: Some Families 'Just Have a Commitment' to Politics"

By Peter Nicholas

July 8, 2014, 7:03 p.m. EDT

Is the U.S. presidency a dynasty controlled by a few privileged families?

Should Hillary Clinton win the White House in 2016 and serve two full terms, that would mean either a Bush or Clinton will have held the presidency for 28 of the prior 36 years (interrupted by Barack Obama's eight-year stint).

Even the Bush family matriarch, Barbara Bush, questioned last year whether the country is well served by more of the same.

"We've had enough Bushes," she said, in reply to a question about the presidential prospects of her son Jeb, the former Republican governor of Florida.

Mrs. Clinton, in a new interview with Der Spiegel of Germany, didn't apologize for the preponderance of Bushes and Clintons on the national political scene.

She said that "certain families just have a sense of commitment or even a predisposition to want to be in politics."

Two that come to mind? The Roosevelts and the Adamses, Mrs. Clinton said. John Adams was the nation's second president; his eldest son, John Quincy Adams, was the nation's sixth. Theodore Roosevelt served from 1901-1909; his distant cousin Franklin Roosevelt served from 1933 until his death in 1945.

Still, Mrs. Clinton said that her last name proved to be no help when she ran for president in 2008 and lost to someone with no political pedigree: Mr. Obama.

The U.S., she said, "is not a monarchy in which I wake up in the morning and abdicate in favor of my son."

But what about her daughter? Chelsea Clinton has become an increasingly prominent figure in national public life and now plays a leadership role in the family's charitable foundation. Would Mrs. Clinton like to see Chelsea find her own place in politics–the family business?

"It is really up to her, and I'll support her in whatever she chooses," Mrs. Clinton told Der Spiegel.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

CNN: "Clinton weighs in on American political dynasties"

By Dana Davidsen

July 8, 2014, 4:01 p.m. EDT

The Clintons and the Bushes aren't the only families with an extended presence in American presidential politics.

That's a piece of history Hillary Clinton was sure to note in an interview published Tuesday in Germany's Der Spiegel when asked if America will turn into a monarchy if she or Jeb Bush were to win the presidency in 2016 (should either decide to run).

"We had two Roosevelts. We had two Adams," Clinton said, adding "It may be that certain families just have a sense of commitment or even a predisposition to want to be in politics."

"I ran for president, as you remember. I lost to somebody named Barack Obama, so I don't think there is any guarantee in American politics. My last name did not help me in the end," she said. "Our system is open to everyone. It is not a monarchy in which I wake up in the morning and abdicate in favor of my son."

If Bush ran and won in 2016, he would be the third Bush in the White House over the past three decades. And if Clinton ran and won the next election, she would be the second President Clinton in the White House in the past two decades, after her husband.

As Clinton weighs whether to launch a campaign for the White House in 2016, her name recognition - as former first lady, as well as secretary of state and senator - has been a double-edged sword.

Her global popularity helped during her time as America's top diplomat and will undoubtedly spur book sales as she continues the European leg of her book tour for "Hard Choices." But being such a longtime figure in U.S. politics might also prove to be a negative if she runs for president as Americans' trust in Washington falters.

Jeb Bush, the former Florida governor, is also considering a run for the White House. Should he run, he has the support of his family - including his father, Bush 41, and his brother, Bush 43 - but his mother, Barbara Bush, has expressed reservations about having another Bush in the White House.

She said in an interview earlier this year "I think this is a great American country, and if we can't find more than two or three families to run for high office, that's silly."

Bush has joked about his mother's comments, but also discussed how his family name may hurt him as much as help him if he decides to run for the White House in 2016.

And a majority of Americans agree with Mrs. Bush. Sixty-nine percent of people questioned in a NBC News/WSJ poll conducted in April said there should be more diversity in families in the White House.

National Journal: "What Hillary Clinton Gets Wrong About Political Dynasties"

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

By Emma Roller

July 8, 2014

Hillary Clinton is an ambivalent member of a political dynasty—at least when she's talking to reporters.

In an interview with the German newspaper Der Spiegel, Clinton insisted for the umpteenth time that she hasn't made up her mind about running for president. But more interesting was this question posed to Clinton, which framed her potential run as evidence of the quasi-aristocratic nature of the presidency [emphasis mine]:

SPIEGEL: For the past 25 years, there were two families that were very prominent in politics, your family and the Bush family. First George Bush was president for four years, then your husband led the country for eight years, and then George W. Bush was president for eight years. If either you or Jeb Bush were to win the election in 2016, once again a member of these two families would become president. Will the American democracy turn into a monarchy?

Clinton: We had two Roosevelts. We had two Adams. It may be that certain families just have a sense of commitment or even a predisposition to want to be in politics. I ran for president, as you remember. I lost to somebody named Barack Obama, so I don't think there is any guarantee in American politics. My last name did not help me in the end. Our system is open to everyone. It is not a monarchy in which I wake up in the morning and abdicate in favor of my son.

Clinton's right—we do not live in a monarchy. But it might seem like it, surveying the field of popular Democrats who want to run in 2016 whose initials are not HRC (cue crickets).

Which raises the question: Do dynastic families have more of a genetic commitment to public service, as Clinton suggests, or is it just the family business? Blake Carrington would never claim to "just have a sense of commitment or even a predisposition to being an oil tycoon."

Still, one recent study found that inherited political power is more about nurture than nature.

Researchers at Brown University found that political power in Congress is self-perpetuating, and that the longer a politician holds office, the more likely he or she is to see relatives become politicians. They found that, from 1789 to 1996, 8.7 percent of members had relatives who previously served in Congress.

The authors of the study concede that "unobserved family characteristics" could contribute to politicians' dynastic powers. They also found that children of politicians aren't necessarily more likely to become miniature versions of their parents—nor does having political parents give them a predisposition for public service. But if these political offspring do decide to go into politics, they'll have a leg up on the competition:

“We find that dynastic politicians are less likely to start their career in the House, suggesting they have the ability or means to enter directly through the Senate, a much smaller and more prestigious body. This difference cannot be attributed to a later entry into Congress: dynastic legislators enter Congress at about 44 years of age, just like non-dynastic legislators. Dynastic legislators are not more likely to come from a state different than the one they represent and are significantly less likely to have previous public experience, although they are more likely to have a college degree.”

Americans generally have a love-hate relationship with political dynasties—we say we don't want the same families to continue holding office, but as soon as names are named, we flock to their corner. In a recent survey on dynasties, a majority of respondents said they hope the Bushes and the Clintons of the world don't dominate the 2016 presidential race. Ironically, most respondents also reported favorable views of the Clinton and Bush families.

Liking a political family is, of course, different from voting one's members into office cycle after cycle. But data presents a startling disconnect between how voters want democracy to work in theory and in practice.

Whether or not having a household name helps your election chances, belonging to a political dynasty certainly conveys some privileges that no-name candidates don't have. Practically, it's easier to raise money and organize supporters as a candidate when you are (or your family is) a known commodity, potentially with a ready-made support network already at your service. And psychologically, the power of incumbency cannot be underestimated, as political reputations trickle down from patriarch or matriarch to family members.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Of course, this effect could also backfire for politicians whose names bear negative associations. Jeb Bush publicly acknowledged earlier this year that his name was "an issue." Then again, it appears that time can heal many wounds—George W. Bush is more popular today than he was during his last three years in office.

Are political dynasties different from other types of dynasties? In U.S. culture, the first family takes on de facto royalty status in a way that other family empires rarely do—unless your last name happens to be Kardashian. But unlike in a monarchy, what America's royalty does with the power conferred upon them is completely up to them.

New York Times: "It Takes a Village (and a Composer and a Writer)"

By Amy Chozick

July 8, 2014

As Hillary Rodham Clinton contemplates another run for the presidency in 2016, she has written a book ("Hard Choices"), delivered upbeat paid speeches to trade groups ("Leadership is a team sport") and pitched in at her family's foundation. Now she can add another line to her résumé: musical theater muse.

Like Eva Perón in "Evita" and Imelda Marcos in "Here Lies Love" (not to mention the Founding Fathers who crowd "1776"), Mrs. Clinton is a larger-than-life political leader whose career cries out for music. Or so believe the creators of "A Woman on Top" and "Clinton: The Musical," two shows currently testing the waters in New York.

Depending on whom you ask, Mrs. Clinton is either one of the world's most admired women or a political animal who attracts scandal. The more positive view mostly wins out in these stage depictions.

"A Woman on Top," which will hold a reading for potential investors on Wednesday, is the inspirational tale of a female political candidate's battles against sexism, set to song. Virginia Stanton is a New York senator who, in her noble quest for the presidency, inspires millions of women but ends up suffering a precipitous loss to a charismatic male opponent. (Shock spoiler alert: Her husband, a charming Southern governor, can't control his impulses.)

"Clinton: The Musical," a satire about scandals of the 1990s, will make its United States premiere on July 18 as part of the New York Musical Theater Festival. Written by Paul and Michael Hodge, Australian brothers, it portrays two sides of President Bill Clinton: the jovial id who cannot control himself and the pensive policy wonk who cannot stop talking about the intricacies of health care reform. Mrs. Clinton is the struggling-to-be-stabilizing force, grappling with the Lewinsky scandal while slyly eyeing her own Senate run.

Paul Hodge said his inspiration was Mr. Clinton's 2004 autobiography, "My Life," in which the former president explored his "outside life" and his "internal life." Dick Morris, the former Clinton aide-turned-enemy, called these parallel lives "Saturday Night Bill" and "Sunday Morning President Clinton."

Different actors play each side of the former president. "He's so complex that it seemed like an appropriate device," Mr. Hodge said.

There's only one Hillary. In the song "No!," she and both versions of her husband struggle to write a 1998 State of the Union address that will not remind people of the Lewinsky affair. Lines like "We can stand erect ..." and "No longer on our knees ..." are promptly rejected.

The Clintons have already left a big mark on pop culture, from the 1998 movie "Primary Colors," based on the roman à clef by Joe Klein, to "The

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Special Relationship," a 2010 HBO movie about Mr. Clinton and Tony Blair. The USA Network's political drama "Political Animals," with Sigourney Weaver as a fictional version of Mrs. Clinton, lasted a single season.

Other projects haven't gotten off the ground. Last fall, NBC abandoned plans to develop a mini-series about Mrs. Clinton, starring Diane Lane. Around the same time, CNN scrapped a documentary from Charles H. Ferguson, who won an Oscar for the 2010 documentary "Inside Job."

Mrs. Clinton's supporters and critics had expressed concerns that the projects would either denigrate her in order to create TV drama or cast her in an unfairly positive light ahead of the 2016 election. (Both networks said the outside pressure had no impact on their decisions to cancel the projects.)

The creators of the musical "A Woman on Top," Rhonda Kess and Dale Kiken, are unabashed Clinton supporters. They began writing the show in the years after Mrs. Clinton's 2008 defeat by Barack Obama, when talk of sexism permeated cable news.

"If there's a way for this piece to stimulate conversation while being extremely entertaining, then we'll have set out with what we wanted to do," said Ms. Kess, a classical composer who wrote the music that accompanies Mr. Kiken's dialogue. (They previously collaborated on "Lost and Found: The Trial of St. Bernadette," which had its premiere in Los Angeles last year.)

As Virginia Stanton seeks the country's highest office, she says things like "Liberty, freedom and equality still ring true in the ears of America," while her ex-husband and opponent, Gov. George Reitman of Texas, tries to squash her ambitions. "Naw, honey, why would you want to get all that muck over your nice skirt," he says.

"Clinton: The Musical," which was nominated for best new musical at the Edinburgh Festival Fringe in 2012, takes a less earnest approach. Paul Hodge said he had the idea for the show after he went with his father to a production of "Keating!," a musical about Paul Keating, the former prime minister of Australia. At the end of the performance, his father remarked that he didn't think politicians were necessarily the best musical subjects.

"He said, 'The only politician who would make a good musical would be Bill Clinton,' " Mr. Hodge recalled. "And I said, 'Of course!' " For the Hodges' show, Mrs. Clinton's character always had political ambitions, but the musical has evolved as it became clearer that she could run for president again in 2016. And the history of the Lewinsky scandal, which inevitably plays a big part in the musical, had to be rethought after Ms. Lewinsky re-emerged with an essay in the June issue of Vanity Fair. "That reminded everyone, us included, that she is a real human being and not just a joke that has been going on for all these years," said Adam Arian, the show's director.

The creators of both shows hope to attract attention and backing to reach large audiences. For the "Clinton: The Musical" team, in particular, the New York Musical Theater Festival is a chance to gauge the local appetite for all things Clinton after its debut in Edinburgh. "Paul wanted to know what the American audience thought about material developed by an Australian in the United Kingdom," said Dan Markley, the executive director of the festival.

Will the much debated phenomenon of Clinton fatigue extend to the stage?

In "Clinton: The Musical," Duke Lafoon portrays Billy Clinton, the fun-loving side to the serious W. J. Clinton (Karl Kenzler). Mr. Lafoon had previously played Mr. Clinton in "Monica! The Musical," a 2005 Off Broadway show that featured Mrs. Clinton as a scheming strategist.

He said he'll hang up his Bill Clinton act after this one.

"They're so heavily in the news right now, with Hillary's book and potential run for the White House, so we'll ride that wave," Mr. Lafoon said. "At the same time, I understand what people say. Do we need these jokes again?"

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Washington Post blog: The Fix: "Hillary Clinton is rich. She is not Mitt Romney rich."

By Aaron Blake

July 8, 2014, 8:30 a.m. EDT

Hillary Clinton's wealth is still all the rage -- first because of some "inartful" comments she made about it and more recently because of scrutiny of her massive speaking fees.

But just how rich is Clinton? Well, as the chart below shows, she would likely be wealthier than any other major 2016 presidential candidate or recent president who has filed an official federal financial report.

But she's not really in the same ballpark as two other recent candidates: Massachusetts' own Mitt Romney and current Secretary of State John Kerry -- or at least she wasn't as of 2012.

Here's how that looks, according to the most recent federal filings:

[INTERACTIVE NET WORTH CHART, 2012]

And here's the full interactive graphic.

You'll note that Clinton's maximum estimated net worth ($25 million) was about 1/10th that of Romney, with whom Kerry is in the same ballpark. It's important to note that the Clintons likely upped their net worth significantly after Hillary Clinton left as secretary of state -- some have estimated it at $55 million or higher -- but that's a lot of ground to make up.

Does it matter that Clinton's wealth is not quite on-par with the Romneys and the Kerrys of the political world? Maybe not. Clearly, they are all far wealthier than the vast, vast majority of Americans, and it's becoming clearer and clearer that, just like Romney, Clinton will have to deal with questions about whether she's out of touch with average Americans (and $225,000 speaking gigs won't do anything to quell that).

But it's also worth noting that, while Romney has spent his life as a part of the upper economic echelon of Americans, the Clintons are relative newcomers to extreme wealth. And their extreme wealth isn't quite as extreme as Romney's.

Politico Magazine column: Sec. John Kerry: "Why Is the Senate Hobbling American Diplomacy?"

By Sec. John Kerry

July 8, 2014

Boko Haram's horrifying abduction of more than 200 schoolgirls in Nigeria ignited universal calls for help to "bring back our girls." President Barack Obama responded with urgency, but lost in the story is that one tool the United States would like to have at our disposal is hampered by the absence of U.S. ambassadors in neighboring Cameroon and Niger.

Both embassies have been without ambassadors for more than eight months. That means we lost eight months when we would have had full-strength, highest-level capacity to build greater regional cooperation and trust to combat the rising threat from this brutal extremist group. Eight months when U.S. advice and training could have helped equip these critical countries to better help themselves. Eight months when we could have provided better assistance to respond to a moral outrage.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This is not an isolated example. The United States continues to operate without a complete diplomatic toolbox to exert our leadership and advance our security and economic interests across the globe, because a broken Senate confirmation process has left us without permanent ambassadors in 40 countries.

The nominees for these jobs, including Niger and Cameroon, are victims of a confirmation backlog that grows with each passing day. It leaves too many of our best and brightest — particularly career Foreign Service officers — languishing on the sidelines instead of being on the ground fighting to protect and promote our interests.

Who are these diplomats? Fifty-three State Department nominees are pending before the Senate. Thirty-seven of them have been approved by the Foreign Relations Committee and could be confirmed immediately with a simple vote. The majority of the nominees, 35 in all, are apolitical career diplomats, and none of them are controversial.

There is a solution staring us in the face — and that answer is the powerful example of how military nominees are traditionally treated by the Senate. The administration's military nominees are confirmed quickly and en bloc, which is the proper way to handle them. For America to play a strong role in the world, we need equal treatment for diplomats. The Senate should carve out State's career nominees and expedite their confirmation just as it does for military promotions.

Make no mistake: Vacancies in so many world capitals send a dangerous message to allies and adversaries alike about America's engagement. This perception makes it much more difficult to do the nonpartisan work at the heart of U.S. foreign policy — defending the security of our nation, promoting our values and helping our businesses compete to create American jobs back home.

The length and number of these vacancies compromise U.S. national security. In the Middle East alone, the tragic conflict in Syria and rising extremism threaten a region where we have extensive economic and security interests. The Senate, to its credit, confirmed ambassadors to Egypt and Iraq last month, but more remains to be done. The Senate must quickly approve ambassadors to Algeria, Kuwait and Qatar, just three of the countries where we have pressing security interests.

Vacancies also exist in strategic European countries like Hungary, Turkey, the Czech Republic, Moldova and Albania. Without the authority of an ambassador, we cannot engage fully with officials at the highest levels in places where shared democratic values are under threat. In yet another example, we need an ambassador in Honduras to help find ways to prevent the crush of unaccompanied minors along our southwestern border.

Ambassadors also are the front line of our global push on behalf of U.S. businesses large and small. Last year, high-level State Department advocacy was responsible for more than $5.5 billion worth of contracts awarded to U.S. companies by foreign governments. These contracts translated directly into thousands of jobs for Americans here at home.

America's leading companies recognize that our ambassadors are vital to their success overseas. Already this year, U.S. businesses have sought embassy assistance in pursuing $119 billion worth of contracts in countries where a nominee is pending. These opportunities will go to our global competitors if we don't have ambassadors to lead our advocacy. We simply cannot lead if we are not represented.

In my travels as secretary of state, I have seen as never before the thirst for American leadership in the world. And in my nearly 30 years in the Senate, I saw firsthand the determination of most senators to make their institution work effectively. I believe that both of these are powerful reasons for the Senate to act now to both provide greater American leadership around the globe and to demonstrate that our democracy can work here at home.

Calendar:

Sec. Clinton's upcoming appearances as reported online. Not an official schedule.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

- August 9 – Water Mill, NY: Sec. Clinton fundraises for the Clinton Foundation at the home of George and Joan Hornig (WSJ)
- August 28 – San Francisco, CA: Sec. Clinton keynotes Nexenta's OpenSDx Summit (BusinessWire)
- September 4 – Las Vegas, NV: Sec. Clinton speaks at the National Clean Energy Summit (Solar Novis Today)
- October 2 – Miami Beach, FL: Sec. Clinton keynotes the CREW Network Convention & Marketplace (CREW Network)
- October 13 – Las Vegas, NV: Sec. Clinton keynotes the UNLV Foundation Annual Dinner (UNLV)

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	robbymook@gmail.com
To:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
Date:	8/1/2014 1:21:48 PM
Subject:	Re: Can we move call to 8am?

Fine with me.

> On Aug 1, 2014, at 8:14 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> She now has a 1015am commitment on Sunday.
>
> cdm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: SportsAuthority.com <SportsAuthority.com@em.sportsauthority.com>
To: john.podesta@gmail.com
Date: 1/31/2013 12:03:52 AM
Subject: 30% Off NIKE Hyperwarm!

Plus, Huge Deals on NIKE Shoes & Socks. Shop Now

View Online Version

SPORTS AUTHORITY

Store Locator »
Events »

My Account Help

FOLLOW THE AUTHORITY

Fitness Clothes Shoes Accessories Team Sports Action Sports Golf/Racquet Games Fan Shop Outdoors Outlet

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

QUICK LINKS

▶ APPAREL	▶ BASEBALL	▶ BICYCLING	▶ ACTION SPORTS	▶ MENS
▶ FOOTWEAR	▶ BASKETBALL	▶ GOLF	▶ SKI/ SNOWBOARD	▶ WOMENS
▶ RUNNING	▶ FOOTBALL	▶ TENNIS	▶ CAMPING	▶ KIDS
▶ FITNESS	▶ SOCCER	▶ LACROSSE	▶ FISHING/ HUNTING

* Selection varies by store. Excludes $.97 and $.98 clearance price endings.

 Discounted item must be of equal or lesser value. Excludes $.97 clearance price endings.

EMAIL SUBSCRIPTION

This email was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com. To update your email preferences or change your email address, visit My Account . If you would rather not receive email updates from Sports Authority, you can UNSUBSCRIBE at any time. Or, write us at SportsAuthority.com, Email Permissions Manager, 915 S Babcock Street, Melbourne, FL 32901.

CONTACT US

Please do not reply to this email, as we are not able to respond to messages sent to this address.
Visit our Online Help
Online Customer Service: 1.888.801.9164
In-Store Customer Service: 1.800.360.8721

Privacy Policy .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Amanda McTyre, Common Good VA" <events@commongoodva.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	4/10/2014 1:51:14 PM
Subject:	The Kochs are back in VA

Friend, who do they think they are?

The Koch Brothers-funded Super PAC just bought air time in Virginia to fund an ad claiming to speak for Virginians. That's right, two billionaires from Kansas think they can waltz in here and drown out Virginians' voices.

That's just not right.

People across the Commonwealth have spoken — they want to close the health care coverage gap and provide affordable health insurance to hundreds of thousands of Virginians. We're fighting to make that a reality, but we need your help.

Will you donate $5 today so that we can make sure Virginians aren't drowned out by out-of-state special interest attack ads?

Common Good VA is dedicated to supporting Governor McAuliffe and closing the health care coverage gap.

Not only will that provide affordable health insurance to hundreds of thousands of our friends and neighbors who just want a shot at healthy and productive lives here in Virginia — but it will also create good paying jobs across the Commonwealth. And it will infuse our economy with money that we can then spend on improving our schools and fixing our transportation system.

Will you stand with me and show the Koch Brothers and their special interest friends that Virginians' principles can't be bought?

Donate $5 today to help us fight back against the Koch Brothers' attack ads.

Thanks for helping us build a stronger Virginia,

Amanda McTyre
Common Good VA

CONTRIBUTE NOW

Paid for by Common Good VA.

You're receiving this because you signed up for emails from Terry McAuliffe for Governor.
Unsubscribe

1710 E. Franklin Street
3rd Floor
Richmond, VA 23223
(703) 822-7604

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: johnson_lo <johnson_lo@mail2000.com.tw>
To:
Date: 12/29/2008 5:37:19 AM
Subject: 16個創意風力發電設計：摩天塔隨風旋轉

16個創意風力發電設計：摩天塔隨風旋轉

據國外媒體報道，如果有人提到「風能」，絕大多數人的腦海中可能浮現出這樣一幅圖畫——位於一個遙遠山頂上能夠產生巨大能量的大型高成本三葉風力渦輪機。建造風輪機發電廠不過是利用風能的一種最為常見的方式，實際上，風能利用的方式和種類遠遠超出很多人的想像，有些應用甚至會令人產生一種非常興奮的感覺。從風力車到智能家用風能發電機，從空中漂浮的渦輪到納米「氣孔皮膚」，風能利用的創新之路是無止境的。

我們不妨大膽想像一下：讓外表圓潤的風輪機安靜地「坐」在你後院的一個角落，產生可供整個房子使用的電量；擁有一輛風能汽車，速度超過傳統意義上的電動汽車；不用使用電源插座便可給手機充電，整個充電過程由風完成；建造一座樓層可自行隨風旋轉的摩天大樓。以下是在風能利用方面16個最有趣同時也最具創意的設計：

1. 迪拜可旋轉風能摩天樓

迪拜可旋轉風能摩天樓

在迪拜這個技術革新和可持續發展實驗「重地」，我們經常能發現一些非常有趣的事情，風能利用自然也不例外。在設計上，這個外表漂亮但又有些怪異的塔狀建築的樓層可自行隨風改變形狀，可謂是建築家族中的變形金剛。在風的作用下，建築內部視野始終處於旋轉狀態，從外部看，整座建築的外表經常在地平線上演變形奇觀。

2. 在空中漂浮和飛行的風輪機

在空中漂浮和飛行的風輪機

世界上的風力資源非常豐富，問題是如何找到一種利用風能的最理想方式。在絕大多數情況下，高度越高的風移動速度也越快，如能實現「高空作業」，那在利用風能方面實現材料效率最大化便成為一種可能，這已然是很多人的一個夢想。薩爾薩姆（Salsam）飛行風輪機便決定讓這種夢想成為現實。從圖片上看，巨型撓性軸從在水面上移動的漂浮基地伸出，連接空中的風輪機，撓性軸的長度可自行調節，進而讓風輪機產生最大能量。據悉，這種風能利用方式的工作效率是陸基風輪機系統的幾倍，同時也不必像後者那樣使用質量相當高的材料。

3. 未來派風輪機納米「氣孔皮膚」

未來派風輪機納米「氣孔皮膚」

在人力所能及的範圍讓風能變得易於獲得和無處不在方面，納米「氣孔皮膚」可能是最聰明的設計之一。簡單地說，所謂的納米「氣孔皮膚」是指一個由無數微型渦輪「編織」後形成的一個系統，這種類似織物的系統能夠以任何形狀和面積加以「部署」，即附在建築物表面。雖然每一個渦輪只產生極小電量，但無數渦輪齊上陣卻可形成巨大的網路效應。這種系統能夠以層狀置於現有表面並與城市建築融為一體，同時也無需大量建築成本、額外材料或者對現有結構

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

產生干擾。從某種程度上說，這種風能利用方式能夠「叫板」太陽能電池板。太陽能電池板能夠安裝在屋頂上，風輪機皮膚也是如此。

4. 利用風輪機供電的摩天塔

利用風輪機供電的摩天塔

在利用風能方面，迪拜的另一座建築——巴林世界貿易中心——採用了更為傳統的做法，在視覺上也不會讓人感到驚異。巴林世貿中心由兩個錐形高塔組成，連接高塔的巨橋裝有3個大型風輪機，每一個的直徑達到近100英尺（約合30米）。高塔的錐形設計能夠讓風高速從塔的中間穿過，進而產生最多電力。

5. 動力學風能移動「沙灘怪獸」

動力學風能移動「沙灘怪獸」

利用風能不僅僅是一種發電手段，賽歐·傑森（Theo Jensen）打造的這個令人驚異的可移動「沙灘怪獸」可謂將藝術與工程學完美融為一體。這個可移動怪物結構精巧，鉸接的無數「肢體」極富欺騙性。移動時，肢體能夠保持步調一致，讓「沙灘怪獸」一步步向天推進。除了利用風能外，這個可移動怪物無需借助其它任何能源。

6. 風能轉經輪

風能轉經輪

在西藏人眼裡，轉經輪在宗教上的意義與真正的祈禱者沒什麼兩樣。我們不清楚的是，當自給自足的風能祈禱輪轉動時，究竟哪個人受到祝福。從精神的層面上說，每一次有風經過這個聰明的風能裝置，它都會產生一種積極的能量。

7. 風能逆風比賽用自行車

風能逆風比賽用自行車

這輛逆風自行車曾經是一個小男孩的夢想。在構築了長達40年的夢想之後，一名德國教授最終讓他的夢想成為現實，製造出一輛低底盤風能三輪多座椅比賽用自行車。

8. 雙螺旋槳推進的風能比賽用自行車

雙螺旋槳推進的風能比賽用自行車

形象地說，這輛風能比賽用自行車就是一個陸上帆船，巨大的風輪機安裝在細長而雅致的旋轉座架上，允許駕駛者在任何風向條件下朝不同方向前進。

9. 磁懸浮高效風輪機

磁懸浮高效風輪機

在利用風能方面的一個最大缺陷就是很多能量都被移動組件間的摩擦力消耗。利用磁鐵系統減

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

少摩擦力同時讓渦輪機的旋轉零件處於懸浮狀態，這種設計不僅提高能效，同時還要比傳統的風電廠佔據更少空間。由於這種特殊的移動方式，磁懸浮風輪機也可以旋轉並在風速極低情況下發電，與風電廠的傳統渦輪形成鮮明對比。

10. 風能手機充電器

風能手機充電器

提到利用風能發電，人們往往與大型風輪機聯繫在一起，實際上，風能發電也可以在非常小的規模內進行，風能手機充電器就是一個很好的例子。雖然在便攜性方面無法與典型的充電器相提並論，但在家裡安裝一個風能手機充電器還是非常容易的。它不僅能節省能源，同時也能減少手機充電時間。由於無需電源插座便可完成充電過程，外出旅行時帶上這個風能裝置顯然是一個不錯選擇。

11. 打破紀錄的風能汽車

打破紀錄的風能汽車

利用類似飛機的創新設計，這輛外表超級圓滑的「藍鳥」曾幾次朝速度紀錄發起衝擊。側部的「翼」可實現在地面行進時的穩定性，垂直的堅固類翼帆在設計上驅動「藍鳥」以創紀錄的速度在西部鹽漠平地前進。2009年，「藍鳥」將再一次朝速度紀錄發起衝擊。

12. 未來風電混合動力汽車

未來風電混合動力汽車

奔馳公司研製的F0賽車將尊貴與時尚完美地融合在一起。在某種程度上，這種擁有圓滑外表的汽車仍需要借助電力，但利用風能無疑是它的最大亮點。F0賽車是最先在這種規模下將生態效益與豪華雅致融合在一起的嘗試之一。

13. 可移動式家用風輪機

可移動式家用風輪機

利用風能發電的另一個問題就是始終處於變化之中的城市環境，其中包括居民住址的變更以及建築物的建造、本身出現的破損以及自然災難。一個不用興師動眾的解決辦法是引入個頭更小的可移動式風能發電機，如果這種便於安裝和拆卸的風能裝置能夠得到廣泛應用，勢必讓居民用電發生大的變化。

14. 可飛行的風能發電機

可飛行的風能發電機

地球上空急流風的百分之一便可為整個星球供電，但問題是我們如何「收割」這個巨大的未被利用的自然資源。目前已有幾種解決之道浮出水面，但關鍵是哪一種設計能夠容易而安全地漂浮在空中並實現效率最大化。目前，評委會仍對哪一種才是理想選擇進行評判。

15. 外形時尚的家用風輪機

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

外形時尚的家用風輪機

通過這款風輪機設計，日本人又一次將效率、外觀與技術革新在一款堪稱完美的綠色產品身上融為一體。這款外形酷酷的Loopwing風輪機運行時幾乎沒有任何噪音或者振動，是家庭利用風能發電的完美選擇，除此之外，它還能在極低風速條件下發電。在將來的某一天，也許我們就可以在世界每一戶家庭的院子裡發現這種風輪機的身影，它們將獲得與老掉牙的電視天線和衛星電視天線同樣的榮譽。

16. 螺旋形家用風輪機

螺旋形家用風輪機

在利用風能發電方面，將創新和時尚融合勢必要面臨一系列挑戰，尤其是大規模應用在建築物或者外表圓滑的高速汽車上。但當前遭遇的一個最大障礙仍是如何將風能利用實現小型化，簡單地說，就是讓普通家庭也可以利用風能發電。類似圖片中的這款設計運行時只產生很小噪音、費用低、可在低風速條件下發電並利用所有方向的風，種種優勢讓普通家庭更容易利用風能發電，並且是以一種具有個性化的方式。

.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robert Redford" <feedback@lcv.org>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	10/23/2012 2:37:50 AM
Subject:	Want to win an election? Open this email.

LCV VICTORY FUND

I'm announcing a big opportunity: Chip in to the LCV Victory Fund today, and your donation will be TRIPLED to defeat the Dirty Dozen >>

John,

Let me be blunt: A handful of votes are all that stand between corporate polluters and complete control of Congress.

That's why Karl Rove and the Koch Brothers are pumping money into races from Massachusetts to Montana – attempting to protect their anti-environmental, anti-science cronies, including members of LCV's Dirty Dozen. And it's working – polls show razor-thin margins in races across the country.

If they win, we'll wake up on November 7th to a world where polluters get a free pass and investments in clean energy get slashed. I know you won't let that happen. With so many races neck and neck, we need the LCV's voter outreach programs in full force: knocking on doors for Elizabeth Warren, sending targeted mail for Chris Murphy, and getting environmentalists to vote for Jon Tester.

I know we can win – but they'll need our support, John. For a limited time only, every gift you make to support the LCV Victory Fund's voter outreach efforts will be TRIPLED. There's truly no better time to give.

Help kick out the Dirty Dozen and other anti-environmental candidates with your gift to the LCV Victory Fund. Your donation will have THREE TIMES the impact >>

From now until Election Day, the messaging and ad war is in high gear as campaigns try to sway undecided voters. You know as well as I do that Big Oil's favorite candidates have the funding to blanket the airwaves. Only LCV Victory Fund – with its strategic and aggressive electoral strategies – can set the record straight.

The LCV Victory Fund needs $150,000 to beat the Dirty Dozen on Election Day. Between now and November 2, all contributions to make it happen will be TRIPLED.

Chip in >>

And it's a good thing, too, because we're fighting in some tough races:

- Take Massachusetts, where Elizabeth Warren is neck and neck with anti-environmental opponent Sen. Scott Brown, who has opposed vital clean air protections and cutting tax breaks for the oil industry. The race is a toss-up, and our efforts over the next few weeks could determine the winner.
- Then there's Connecticut Senate candidate Linda McMahon, who has actually said she'd be willing to consider dismantling the EPA. But her opponent, Rep. Chris Murphy, has an LCV lifetime environmental score of 98 percent.
- Or think of Rep. Dennis Rehberg of Montana, a huge ally of the oil industry who's challenging clean-energy champion Sen. Jon Tester. LCV's projections show that this race could come down to a few thousand votes – a margin that's just too close for comfort.

Candidates like Brown, McMahon and Rehberg are padding their war chests with campaign cash from corporate polluters, happy to oppose climate policies but support tax breaks for Big Oil. Their vision of government is one of deregulation, denial, and destruction. It's not a world I want my children and grandchildren to inherit – and I know you agree.

Grassroots support from people like you can tip the balance in these tight races. And in these final two weeks, we've got to go all out to beat the Dirty Dozen and other anti-environmental candidates.

Chip in what you can, and we'll rush it to key races where it's needed most.

This special triple match opportunity couldn't come at a better time, because grassroots donations are the bedrock of the LCV Victory Fund's success. Thank you for being a part of that success with me.

Sincerely,

Robert Redford

Paid for by LCV Victory Fund, 202-785-8683,and not authorized by and candidate or candidate's committee.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Update Your Profile
To Unsubscribe Click Here

1920 L Street, NW Suite 800
Washington, DC 20036
202-785-8683

POWERED BY blackbaud
nonprofit software

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "James Oldham" <oldham@law.georgetown.edu>
To: "Steven Salop" <salop@law.georgetown.edu>
Date: 12/6/2014 11:05:17 AM
Subject: Re: Death of Warren Schwartz

Steve you said it exactly right -- no matter what the subject, Warren immediately was interested and immediately posed provocative, relevant questions. His intellectual curiosity was unbounded! We will miss him!
Jim

Sent from my iPhone

On Dec 6, 2014, at 12:50 PM, "Steven Salop" <salop@law.georgetown.edu > wrote:

> Warren was an amazing colleague. At the lunchtime faculty workshop I ran when I first came to GULC, he felt so vindicated and triumphant that law and economics was finally being discussed at GULC. But at the same time, he was so frustrated that progress wasn't faster and that even I wasn't a sufficiently true-believer in the enterprise. He was a huge contributor to the intellectual vitality of this place back in those days. Georgetown would not be the same today without his efforts.
>
> Steven C. Salop
> Professor of Economics and Law
> Georgetown University Law Center
> (202) 662-9095 (office)
> (202) 253-5431 (mobile)
>
> This electronic message and its attachments contain information that may be confidential or privileged. If you are not the intended recipient, we ask that you notify me immediately via reply e-mail and delete or destroy this message and any copies of it. Thank you for your cooperation.
>
> ---
>
> From: Gregory M. Klass
> Sent: Saturday, December 06, 2014 12:06 PM
> To: Law Faculty and Visitors
> Cc: Dorinda Young; Michael Goldman
> Subject: Re: Death of Warren Schwartz
>
> How very sad. I always found it a joy to see Warren at a faculty workshop or at a Friday L&E colloquium. I got to know him only after he became emeritus, and I was always struck by his continuing interest in new ideas — and his continuing rigor. A true scholar. And a wonderful dinner companion!
>
> I'll also second Sherm's observation: Warren was central to building the law school we have today, for which I owe him (together with others) a debt of gratitude.
>
> … greg
>
> > On Dec 6, 2014, at 11:28 AM, Sherman Cohn <cohn@law.georgetown.edu > wrote:
> >
> > Warren had many commendable qualities, as a scholar, a teacher, a mentor to many, and a fine colleague. But one that stands out in my mind was how he enlivened faculty meetings with his sharp, cutting comments, standing up for what he thought was right even if he were a minority of one. He cared not only about what we did, but how it was done. In so many ways, Warren was a wonderful colleague who played a significant role in building this law school.
> >
> > Sherman
> >
> > Sherman L. Cohn, Professor of Law
> > Georgetown University Law Center
> > 600 New Jersey Avenue NW
> > Tele: 202-662-9069
> > Washington, DC 20001-2075
> > cohn@law.georgetown.edu

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: Peter Byrne
Sent: Saturday, December 06, 2014 11:16 AM
To: Law Faculty Only
Cc: Dorinda Young; Michael Goldman
Subject: Death of Warren Schwartz

Dear colleagues,

I regret to report the death of our retired colleague, Professor Warren Schwartz, yesterday evening, after a long illness. Warren was a pioneer in the Law and Economics movement and taught here for more than 20 years, after many years at the University of Virginia. He had an intense devotion to scholarship leavened by an impish Brooklyn wit.

We do not yet have information about a memorial service but it is likely to be held in the first half of the coming week. I will pass on more information, when I receive it. Also, will consider the best way for Warren to be memorialized at the Law Center.

With a heavy heart,

Peter

J. Peter Byrne
Associate Dean for the J.D. Program
Professor of Law
Faculty Director, Georgetown Climate Center
Georgetown University Law Center
600 New Jersey Ave., NW
Washington, D.C. 20001
(202)662-9066
byrne@law.georgetown.edu

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	DMCOS <DMCOS@who.eop.gov>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/16/2015 4:58:49 PM
Subject:	RE: Mae

Ha!!

We are happy to be invited to the pig roast. We wouldn’t miss it.

DM

-----Original Message-----
From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Tuesday, June 16, 2015 1:48 PM
To: DMCOS
Subject: Mae

My daughter is a big free trader so she thinks we're weasels and that you should boycott the pig roast, but I hope you won't because the kids will have fun and get T shirts to boot.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	jpodesta@americanprogress.org johnpodestatemp@outlook.com
Date:	6/26/2015 12:31:35 AM
Subject:	Fwd: HRC @ VA JJ

Mandy's response

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >
Date: Thursday, June 25, 2015
Subject: HRC @ VA JJ
To: Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: Robby Mook <re47@hillaryclinton.com >, Jennifer Palmieri <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >, Kristina Schake <kschake@hillaryclinton.com >, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Brian Fallon <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com >, Tony Carrk <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com >, Oren Shur <oshur@hillaryclinton.com >, Marlon Marshall <mmarshall@hillaryclinton.com >, Brynne Craig <bcraig@hillaryclinton.com>, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >, Maya Harris <mharris@hillaryclinton.com>, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, Jim <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com >, John Anzalone <john@algpolling.com >, David Binder <David@db-research.com >, Christina Reynolds <creynolds@hillaryclinton.com >, Amanda Renteria <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com >, Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >

Dan,

There's lots of good stuff here but I think our critique of the Republicans has to come from a more consistent point of view, so we make a clear argument.

Our fundamental contrast is that Republicans would rip away the progress we've made on the economy by returning to failed top down economics and are out of touch/stuck in the past on social issues.

So, for example on health care, I wouldn't say they "had a bad day yesterday" - which is a political lens or "they should stop creating problems and start solving them ". I'd focus on the fact they're still trying to fight the progress we've made, and repeal the Affordable Care Act...50 votes, 2 Supreme Court decisions and they still want to return to the days of....

Hope this is helpful.

Thanks

Mandy

Mandy Grunwald
Grunwald Communications
202 973-9400

> On Jun 25, 2015, at 9:28 PM, Dan Schwerin <dschwerin@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:
>
> Team, we checked in with Gov. McAuliffe and he's hoping that tomorrow HRC will talk about 1) Health care, 2) guns, 3) all the progress they're making in VA; 4) why she's running or President. That's what I've done in the attached draft, along with a fair amount of GOP contrast. See what you think -- especially all you McAuliffe alumni out there.
> Thanks
> Dan

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

> <2015-06-25 Virginia JJ 9pm.docx>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Karras Maria" <queenmarika@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	11/4/2009 1:21:42 PM
Subject:	Invitation to connect on LinkedIn

LinkedIn

John,

I'd like to add you to my professional network on LinkedIn.

- Karras

Confirm that you know Karras Maria

Every day, millions of professionals like Karras Maria use LinkedIn to connect with colleagues, find experts, and explore opportunities.

© 2009, LinkedIn Corporation

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Adam Blickstein" <ablickstein@nsnetwork.org>
To: bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date: 7/30/2008 5:10:24 AM
Subject: [big campaign] FW: Generals Rebuke McCain's False Attack On Obama Over Military Hospital Visit

National Security Network

For Immediate Release

Contact:

Adam Blickstein
202-289-7113

Moira Whelan
202-289-7211

Generals Rebuke McCain's False Attack On Obama Over Military Hospital Visit

Washington, D.C. - Even as John McCain's campaign has backtracked from its recent and erroneous assertions regarding Barack Obama's cancelled visit to a military hospital in Germany, three retired Generals signed on to a statement criticizing McCain's decision to falsely attack Obama. Below is the full text of the statement:

> "Over the last several days, Senator McCain and his political handlers have engaged in a systematic attempt to fabricate a story that intends to call into question Senator Obama's patriotism. We believe that by doing so, Senator McCain has abandoned the principles that have led so many military officers to respect him for so many years.
>
> "We are profoundly disappointed that in the thick of political battle, he has been willing to abandon his principles in order to try to win an election.
>
> "We call on Senator McCain and his political operatives to abandon these dishonorable tactics that demean our politics and undermine the commitment that all of us made as military officers to defend the principles and ideals that lay at the foundation of our democracy. "
>
> /s
>
> Major General Mel Montano, US Air National Guard, Retired
> Brigadier General John Johns, US Army, Retired
> Lieutenant General Robert G. Gard, Jr., US Army, Retired

###

The National Security Network (NSN) mission is to revitalize America's national security policy, and bring cohesion and strategic focus to the progressive national security community. NSN works with a broad network of experts to identify, develop and communicate progressive national security policy solutions.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

SafeUnsubscribe®
This email was sent to mwhelan@nsnetwork.org by ablickstein@nsnetwork.org .
Update Profile/Email Address | Instant removal with SafeUnsubscribe ™ | Privacy Policy .
National Security Network | 1225 Eye St. | Ste. 307 | Washington | DC | 20005

Email Marketing by Constant Contact
TRY IT FREE

--~--~---------~--~----~------------~-------~--~----~

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail ryan@campaigntodefendamerica.org with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

-~----------~----~----~----~------~----~-------~--~---

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
	"Eryn Sepp" <esepp@equitablegrowth.org>
Date:	3/5/2015 6:18:08 AM
Subject:	Are you offline?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Neera Tanden" <ntanden@gmail.com>
Date:	6/2/2015 1:22:38 PM
Subject:	Re: King v Burwell

No content in message?

> On Jun 2, 2015, at 8:20 PM, Neera Tanden <ntanden@gmail.com> wrote:
>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com>
Date:	2/24/2015 8:31:57 AM
Subject:	Re: Library documents release

+bruce

JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

> On Feb 24, 2015, at 2:59 PM, Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com> wrote:
>
> What's our next step on discussing the next documents release? I'm leaving Jen off this because she's still at the WH.
> Without knowing what these documents are, my strong preference is to have the released next month so they don't step on an announcement.
> Cheryl, John--how should we proceed on this?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "David Donnelly" <david.a.donnelly@gmail.com>
To: "big campaign" <bigcampaign@googlegroups.com>
Date: 2/16/2010 12:00:19 PM
Subject: [big campaign] NYT: Big donors call for stricter campaign laws

BIG DONORS CALL FOR STRICTER CAMPAIGN LAWS

http://thecaucus.blogs.nytimes.com/2010/02/16/big-donors-call-for-stricter-campaign-laws/

If anyone knows the burdens of political fund-raising, it is the biggest political donors — the rich partisans who field the constant calls from elected officials pressing for checks to fill their campaign coffers.

So to help make their case to House Democratic leaders, advocates of stricter campaign financing laws have enlisted a roster of about 60 of the biggest donors to the House Democratic campaign committee — donors like Jonathan Soros, son of the billionaire financier George Soros; Douglas Durst, the New York real estate magnate; and Herb Sandler, the banker-turned-philanthropist.

A coalition of groups promoting a plan for public financing of Congressional elections has recruited the donors to sign a letter urging House leaders to push it forward, arguing for urgency in the aftermath of the recent Supreme Court ruling, known as Citizens United, which allows corporations, unions and other groups to finance big political commercials. “As we well know from the solicitation calls we receive, our political leaders must fund-raise constantly,” the letter declares.

The donor letter-signers — all among society’s wealthiest few— write: “The court’s action will clearly lead to an increase in independent expenditures by the wealthiest interests in our society, diminishing the voices of candidates and voters alike.” The threat of “outside intervention in elections,” they declare, “will add to the already intolerable pressure on members of Congress to raise campaign funds, a consuming distraction for those who are tasked with leading our nation during difficult times such as these.”

The full letter, addressed to House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, can be read here. <http://fairelectionsnow.org/files/pelosi_donor_letter.pdf>

The proposal they are endorsing would provide grants and matching funds to encourage candidates to rely only on small donations from private contributors. It would also presumably relieve big donors of a considerable financial burden. Prospects this year, however, are uncertain.

--

You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
Date:	6/9/2014 1:39:02 PM
Subject:	Re: Saw the post story. All good or at least relieved?

Good story. Where are you?

On Jun 9, 2014 6:14 PM, "Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com > wrote:

> Sad
> Relieved
> What u think?
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> > On Jun 9, 2014, at 6:06 PM, "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
> >

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Brian Fallon" <bfallon@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Sara Latham" <slatham@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	10/20/2015 4:36:21 AM
Subject:	Re: Friends and Allies Email Talking Points
Attachments:	Talking Points on Emails - bf.docx

I think these are excellent, esp the rich details about emails sent on weekends and holidays.

My only suggested edit (attached) is to rephrase 'not a major user of email' (which to the ear sounds a little contradictory to our emphasis on turning over 55k pages) to something like 'did not rely on email for her day-to-day work'

On Tue, Oct 20, 2015 at 10:48 AM, Sara Latham <slatham@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> + Fallon and Reynolds
>
> On Tue, Oct 20, 2015 at 10:29 AM, Phil Barnett <pbarnett@sb-atalaya.com > wrote:
>
> > We took a shot at drafting talking points for friends and allies on emails. They are attached for your review.
> >
> > Thanks,
> >
> > Phil

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tina Flournoy" <Tina@presidentclinton.com>
To:	cheryl.mills@gmail.com john.podesta@gmail.com BruceRLindsey@aol.com
Date:	2/17/2014 7:49:57 PM
Subject:	Re: MailOnline :: Aide who accused Bill Clinton of groping her in White House claims 'Hillary Clinton IS the war on women ... she enabled his behavior'

Saw it last night and ignored it

From: Cheryl Mills [mailto:cheryl.mills@gmail.com]
Sent: Monday, February 17, 2014 09:33 PM
To: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com>; Bruce Lindsey <brucerlindsey@aol.com>; Tina Flournoy
Subject: MailOnline :: Aide who accused Bill Clinton of groping her in White House claims 'Hillary Clinton IS the war on women ... she enabled his behavior'

Aide who accused Bill Clinton of groping her in White House claims 'Hillary Clinton IS the war on women ... she enabled his behavior'

Kathleen Willey claims President Clinton forced himself on her in a study near the Oval Office in 1993, insists that Hillary 'enabled his behavior' and then conducted a campaign to discredit her.

Full Story:
http://www.dailymail.co.uk/news/article-2561378/Bubba-grope-accuser-says-Hillary-Clinton-IS-war-women-Just-pack-bags-Youve-15-minutes.html

MailOnline

cdm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Clyde Williams" <contact@clyde2016.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/31/2015 1:59:39 PM
Subject:	Wishing...

CLYDEWILLIAMS2016

You and yours a happy New Year!

Thank you for your support this past year. I look forward to continuing to improve our community and country in 2016.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

Clyde

Copyright © 2015 Clyde Williams for Congress, All rights reserved.
Clyde Williams for Congress

Contact us at contact@clyde2016.com

Want to change how you receive these emails?
You can update your preferences or unsubscribe from this list

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Stephen Paduano" <spaduano@hfaintern.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/25/2015 3:30:56 AM
Subject:	Daily Clips (6.25.15)
Attachments:	Daily Clips (6.25.15).docx

Hi John--

I've attached today's clips summary.

Best,

Stephen

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "German Marshall Fund" <press@gmfus.org>
To: podesta@law.georgetown.edu
Date: 11/9/2015 6:00:00 PM
Subject: Transatlantic Take: The Historic China-Taiwan Meeting Will Not Serve Xi

If you have problems viewing this email, you can view it as a web page. To view the mobile-friendly web page click here.

The Historic China-Taiwan Meeting Will Not Serve Xi

Volker Stanzel — November 10, 2015

BERLIN—Only black-and-white photographs remain of the last time the leaders of the Nationalist Party of China, the Kuomintang (KMT), and the Communist Party met. That was Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and Mao Tsetung in September 1945. Seventy years later, though, when the successors of the two – Xi Jinping from Beijing and Ma Ying-jeou from Taipei – met in Singapore this past Saturday, everything was in color and on film too. There is a deep sense of the history shared by the two parties and the cruel struggles between them that led one into exile in Taiwan and the other to power in Beijing. But President Xi does not pursue symbolism alone. Symbolism is always linked to forward-looking politics: just as on September 7 of this year when China celebrated the defeat of Imperial Japan seventy years ago for the first time ever with an army parade in Beijing; reminding friend and foe alike that the new China will not allow itself to be pushed around ever again. This meeting, though, seems to have been a miscalculation by Xi. The West should not expect more unity between China and Taiwan to result...

FULL ARTICLE

Volker Stanzel is a senior advisor to the German Marshall Fund of the United States in Berlin.

The views expressed in GMF publications and commentary are the views of the author alone.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Environmental Justice EPA" <environmental-justice@epa.gov>
To: "Environmental Justice information" <epa-ej@lists.epa.gov>
Date: 3/31/2015 6:04:17 AM
Subject: [epa-ej] Nominations to the Pesticide Program Dialogue Committee Open until April 16, 2015

Environmental Justice Mailing List

Nominations to the Pesticide Program Dialogue Committee Open until April 16, 2015

EPA's Office of Pesticide Programs is currently accepting nominations for the Pesticide Program Dialogue Committee (PPDC). A federal advisory committee, PPDC provides advice and recommendations to the EPA on issues associated with pesticide regulatory development and reform initiatives, evolving public policy and program implementation issues, and science issues associated with evaluating and reducing risks from use of pesticides.

To maintain the broad representation outlined in the PPDC charter, nominees will be selected to represent: federal, state, local and tribal governments; pesticide industry and trade associations; pesticide user, grower and commodity groups; environmental and public interest groups; farm worker organizations; public health organizations; animal welfare groups; and academia. We seek highly qualified, racially and ethnically diverse candidates representing any of these groups.

Submit nominations by email with the subject line PPDC Membership to zimmerman.dea@epa.gov or by mail to Dea Zimmerman (LC-8J), US EPA, 77 W. Jackson Blvd., Chicago, IL 60604.

Nominations must be emailed or postmarked no later than April 16, 2015.

EPA initially announced the call for nominations in the Federal Register on February 13, 2015. EPA is extending the deadline for nominations from March 16 to April 16. This extension will be announced in an upcoming Federal Register notice.

For additional information, including nomination requirements, please see the February 13, 2015 Federal Register notice.

If you have questions, contact Dea Zimmerman at the email above or call (312) 353-6344.

Learn more about the Pesticide Program Dialogue Committee

00625

If you are not already a member, the Office of Environmental Justice would like to invite you to join the EJ ListServ. The purpose of this information tool is to notify individuals about activities at EPA in the field of environmental justice. By subscribing to this list you will receive information on EPAs activities, programs, projects grants and about environmental justice activities at other agencies. Noteworthy news items, National meeting announcements, meeting summaries of NEJAC meetings, and new publication notices will also be distributed. Postings can only be made by the Office of Environmental Justice. To request an item to be posted, send your information to environmental-justice@epa.gov and indicate in the subject "Post to EPA-EJ ListServ"

You are currently subscribed to $subst(List.Name) as: $subst(Recip.EmailAddr)
To unsubscribe, send a blank email to leave-epa-ej@lists.epa.gov
For problems with this list, contact $subst(List.Name)-Owner@lists.epa.gov

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Molly McUsic" <mcusic@wyssfoundation.org>
To:	"bruce babbitt" <bruce.babbitt@raintreeventures.com> "Stevenson, Howard" <hstevenson@hbs.edu> bobbland@aol.com "John Podesta?? \(john.podesta@gmail.com\)" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	4/20/2015 1:31:35 PM
Subject:	Updated agenda
Attachments:	Revised Agenda april 28.docx

Here is the updated board agenda for our meeting next week. Thanks

Molly McUsic | President
The Wyss Foundation
1601 Connecticut Ave. NW, Suite 800 | Washington, DC 20009
Phone: 202-232-4418 Ext. 12 | Fax: 202-232-4419
www.wyssfoundation.org

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Stan Greenberg" <sgreenberg@gqrr.com>
To:	"Tom Matzzie" <tom@zzranch.com>
	"Susan McCue" <susan@one.org>
	"Paul Begala" <pbegala@hatcreekent.com>
	john.podesta@gmail.com
	"Zach Schwartz" <zschwartz@shangrila.us>
Date:	1/3/2008 4:28:55 AM
Subject:	Re: research priorities-FYI

I think we should field almost immediately on McCain. Make a judgment tomorrow. If Romney loses and McCain gets a 3rd, even 4th — we should poll, as McCain will win NH. Stan

On 1/3/08 10:25 AM, "Tom Matzzie" <tom@zzranch.com> wrote:

> FYI--Our researchers are focused on Romney and McCain almost exclusively at the moment. After the poll it is clear we have some great things to hit Huckabee and Giuliani with. We are doing research to be able to field a mid-January poll about McCain if we need. And, we are going deeper on Romney to strengthen our attacks on him.
>
> We are trying to schedule a call for Monday with our update.
>
> -Tom

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Melissa Cantrell" <mcantrell@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"HRC Rapid" <HRCRapid@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	6/10/2015 12:30:37 PM
Subject:	June 10 Evening Network News Roundup
Attachments:	6.10.15 Evening Network.docx

Document attached, 2016 highlights below:

ABC's World News Tonight: No 2016 coverage.

CBS' Evening News: No 2016 coverage.

NBC's Nightly News: Report on Jeb Bush's campaign staff shakeup. Bush tries to downplay the changes in top campaign positions. He remains the favorite among many Republicans; however, he is not the front runner anymore. Reporters claim that changes to campaign staff is symbolizing campaign weaknesses.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Clinton, Press Office \(Clinton\)" <Press_Office@clinton.senate.gov>
To:
Date:	12/17/2007 6:57:14 AM
Subject:	RELEASE: Clinton Measure to Bar Bonuses for Underperforming Homeland Security Contractors Included in Omnibus Appropriations Bill

NEW YORK

Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton

PRESS RELEASE

For Immediate Release
December 17, 2007

Contact:
Clinton Press Office (202) 224-2243 or
press_office@clinton.senate.gov

CLINTON MEASURE TO BAR BONUSES FOR UNDERPERFORMING HOMELAND SECURITY CONTRACTORS INCLUDED IN OMNIBUS APPROPRIATIONS BILL

Washington, DC – Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton today announced that she has secured inclusion of a measure in the Omnibus Appropriations bill that will bar the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) from giving award fees or bonuses to contractors without regard to performance. Senator Clinton's amendment requires DHS to give award fees, or bonuses, to contractors only if the contractor meets specific outlined stipulations in their contract. The Omnibus Appropriations bill is expected to be considered this week by the House and Senate.

"The Department of Homeland Security should be holding their contractors accountable and not rewarding bad behavior. With high risk areas like New York fighting for precious homeland security funds, it is outrageous that DHS is awarding bonuses to contractors that they haven't even earned," said Senator Clinton.

A number of reports have revealed that the Department of Homeland Security has been giving private contractors award fees without proper justification. In 2005, the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) awarded a contract to Boeing initially estimated to be worth $508 million. The Inspector General for the Department of Homeland Security found that the TSA gave Boeing at least $44 million in award fees without evaluating the company's performance. Earlier this year, the Government Accountability Office (GAO) found that despite documented problems in schedule, performance, cost control, and contract administration throughout the first year of the Coast Guard Deepwater contract, a DHS contractor had received a rating of 87 percent, which fell in the "very good" range and resulted in an award fee of $4 million.

Senator Clinton's amendment requires DHS to give award fees or bonuses to contractors only if the contractor meets the stipulations related to cost, schedule, and performance outlined in the contract. If a contractor receives a poor performance evaluation, exceeds costs specified in the contract, or does not meet the deadlines specified in the contract, then the contractor will not receive an award fee or bonus from DHS.

Just recently HRC wrote to the DHS Inspector General calling for an investigation into the contracting practices by DHS. Click here to view Senator Clinton's letter.

###

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sara Latham" <Sara.Latham@ptt.gov>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/2/2008 1:18:20 AM
Subject:	Call in for 815 mtg, just starting

866 790 3345
Pin 9278577#

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <re47@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Haim Saban" <kussa@saban.com>
Date:	2/20/2016 5:22:11 PM
Subject:	Re: Pew!

Thank YOU for making it possible!!

On Feb 20, 2016, at 11:42 PM, Haim Saban <kussa@saban.com > wrote:

> Amigos
> I'm in Israel and just woke up to the news,,,,,, > Haleluya!
> Onward and forward.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	H <hrod17@clintonemail.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	10/22/2014 1:48:37 PM
Subject:	China summit

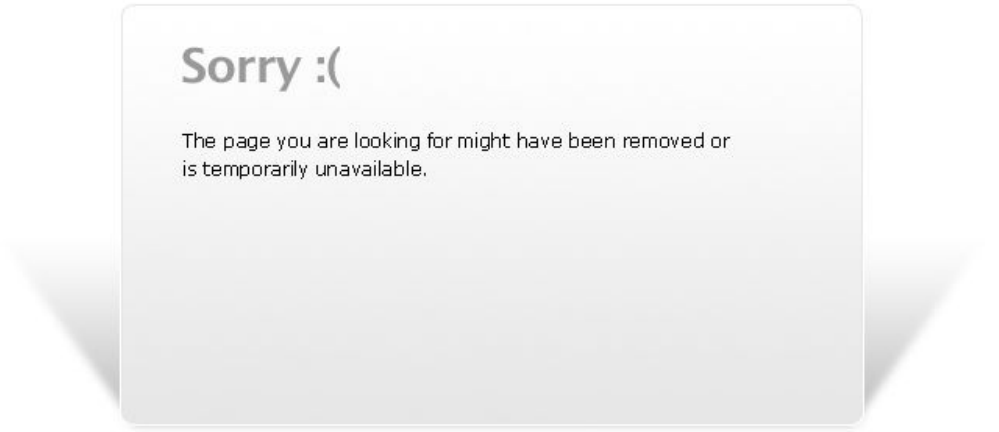
I've heard that the NSC team (Evan, et al) is working to include wildlife protection in the agenda. Kurt Campbell has also been working the Chinese side and believes they will agree if US/POTUS side makes it a clear priority.

Do you think this will happen? Can I help in any way?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Sandler, Herbert" <hms@sandlerfoundation.org>
To:	"Sandler, Jim" <james@sandlerfoundation.org>
Date:	10/15/2015 5:48:06 PM
Subject:	Re: Shared from Twitter: The Republicans' Incompetence Caucus - NYTimes.com

WOW!
He takes my breath away. As you know, I am not a fan, but this piece is by far the best I have seen by anyone. I am literally breathless.



Sent from my iPad

On Oct 15, 2015, at 3:55 PM, Sandler, Jim <james@sandlerfoundation.org > wrote:

> The Republicans' Incompetence Caucus - NYTimes.com
>
> Download the Twitter app

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Campus Broadcast" <broadcast@law.georgetown.edu>
To: "Campus Broadcast" <broadcast@law.georgetown.edu>
Date: 9/8/2014 8:02:36 AM
Subject: Annual Request for Personal Information in GMS

Dear Colleagues,

We need your assistance in updating your personal/demographic information, including your gender, race, ethnicity, citizenship, disability, and military status data in the Georgetown Management System (GMS).

Georgetown University receives substantial federal financial assistance for research projects, student financial aid programs, and other related matters. We are a federal contractor and are subject to governmental recordkeeping and reporting requirements for the Department of Labor, Department of Education, and the administration of civil rights laws and regulations. This obligates us to submit a host of reports documenting data about our employees and students, as well as complying with policies that require us to demonstrate the University's assurance of compliance with federal laws and regulations. Our continued accreditation, receipt of student financial aid, and research funding, for example, depend on the accuracy of these reports. This is a very important initiative for the University and we need your help.

Qatar Employees: you will have received an earlier Qatar-specific message from Mary Anne Mahin. Please follow the instructions in that email and disregard the instructions below.

To review and update your personal/demographic information in GMS, click here . Your GU NetID and password are required to login. Instructions on how to complete these tasks in GMS can be found here .

While reviewing your personal information, we ask that you also review and update your Education information, and Emergency and Work Contact information. The steps on how to find and update your Education and Emergency Contact information are included in the instructions . If you have changes to your work contact information, such as your position title or work phone number, please ask your Department Administrator or HR Contact to assist with those changes in GMS on your behalf.

Although Georgetown is required by federal law to solicit this information, submission of your personal information is voluntary, and the information you provide will be kept confidential and may only be used in accordance with the provisions of applicable laws, federal Executive Orders, and regulations.

Please complete your information review and updates by Friday, October 3, 2014.

Later this month, you will receive a survey from David Shearman, Georgetown University's Veteran's Office Coordinator, to participate in a survey. The University has a growing number of military and veteran students. In an effort to increase understanding and support for this population, and to create more meaningful connections inside and outside the classroom, the Georgetown Veteran's Office is working with the Office of Assessment and Decisions Support (OADS) to identify how many faculty and staff members are veterans. Our goal is to increase engagement between our student veterans and our faculty and staff so Georgetown can continue to improve veteran education. In support of this goal, please verify your veteran status when updating your demographic information and look for our veteran-specific survey in the near future.

Thank you for your attention to this important requirement.

Sincerely,

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Brenda Malone
Vice President and Chief Human Resources Officer

Rosemary Kilkenny
Vice President, Institutional Diversity and Equity

Ardoth Hassler
Executive Director, Office of Assessment and Decision Support

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"KLS GMAIL" <kennethlsalazar@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <John.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Amanda Renteria" <arenteria@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	3/1/2016 3:51:43 PM
Subject:	SuperTuesday

John and Amanda-Congratulations on the seven state victory tonight. Unfortunately Colorado was not in the win column, but lest you worry, the HRC team will win Colorado in November. And indeed when the delegates per Congressional District are apportioned and you add the super delegates, I think we win. More importantly, a few quick observations for November:

1. Hillary won Pueblo County (52-47) large and Hispanic (thanks WJC) and Arapahoe County (large urban and diverse). Hillary won in rural south and eastern Colorado. Indeed, in my native Conejos County, we won 58-40. To me that says, we need to continue our efforts in the suburbs, rural, and Hispanic counties as part of our victory equation;

2. Bernie won in the big Counties and Cities with major university populations-e.g., Boulder, Fort Collins, Greeley, Denver and Grand Junction. As in other places around the Country, we need to figure out how to reach the young voters;

3. For HRC, and real results politicians, caucuses are simply hard. And we were outspent 3 to 1, here in Colorado; and

4. Brad Komar and all the HRC a team did a great job. Onto victory in November. Good night!

Warm regards,

Ken

Sent from my iPad

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	7/26/2015 7:42:20 AM
Subject:	Any sign of the retreat memo?

Brian has to get the Boston Globe op-Ed out as well, but can't figure out whether an intervention is needed. We got to get this to her tomorrow.

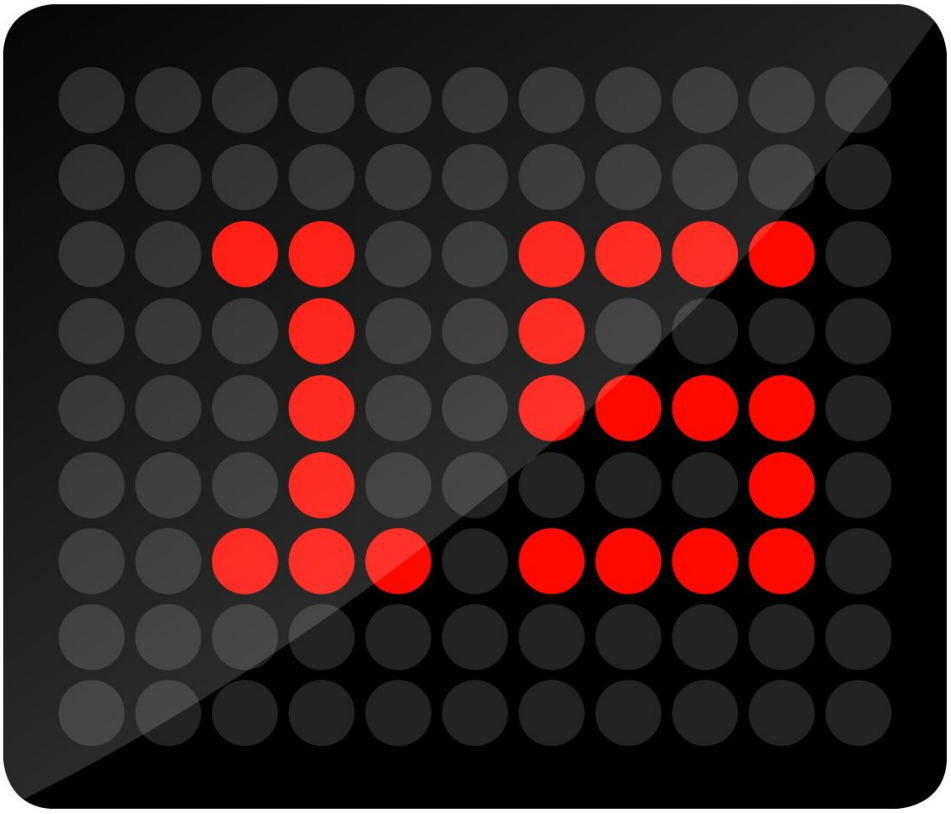
This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Aditi Nangia" <anangia@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Sara Solow" <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com>
	"John Podesta" <jp66@hillaryclinton.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
	"Tony Carrk" <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Barnett, Robert" <RBarnett@wc.com>
Date:	2/9/2016 5:15:37 PM
Subject:	Pick-up tomorrow going to the Doral

Hi John, Bob, and Sara -- Tony has kindly offered to drive you all to the Doral tomorrow for debate prep. I'll let you confirm what makes the most sense timing-wise. Below is the plan I anticipate given your usual pick-up addresses, but let us know if you'd like us to change it up at all.

Sara -- can you plan to cab to Bob's (333 East 91st. -- think the corner of First Avenue and 91st street makes the most sense for the pick-up)?

First pick-up -- John at the corner of Park Avenue and 28th Street.
(FYI John's address is 404 Park Ave South, Corner of 28th and Park)



Second pick-up -- Bob and Sara at the corner of First Avenue and 91st St
(FYI Bob's address is 333 East 91st Street)

Thank you!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Organizing for Action" <info@barackobama.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 12/30/2015 8:06:06 AM
Subject: The clock is ticking

ORGANIZING FOR ACTION

The clock is winding down.

Don't wait until the last second.
Chip in now to help fund this movement.

CHIP IN

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

https://my.barackobama.com/Keep-Up-The-Momentum

PAID FOR BY ORGANIZING FOR ACTION.

Contributions or gifts to Organizing for Action are not tax deductible.
This email was sent to: john.podesta@gmail.com.
If that is not your preferred email address, you can update your information here . We believe that emails are a vital way to stay in direct contact with supporters.
Click here if you'd like to unsubscribe from these messages.
Organizing for Action, P.O. Box 618120 Chicago, IL 60661

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Ross Offinger" <ross@kirstengillibrand.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	7/23/2010 5:28:12 AM
Subject:	did you see this?

John --

Just wanted to be sure you saw Kirsten's message. Thousands of our grassroots supporters have come together to demand that Republicans in Congress support the DISCLOSE Act and stop allowing corporations to buy elections and disenfranchise voters.

We need your help to keep the pressure on these Republican obstructionists.

Click here to sign Kirsten's petition to demand to know who's paying for campaign ads. We cannot allow special interests and corporations to have a bigger voice in our elections than the actual voters.

Thanks for all that you do.

Ross

--

From: Kirsten GIllibrand
Date: July 22, 2010 10:08:20 AM EDT
Subject: What are they hiding?
To: Ross Offinger

Dear John,

Why are the Republicans trying to protect corporations? Why don't they want the American people to know who's trying to influence their votes? What are they trying to hide?

Please stand with me and call on the GOP to stop their obstruction and bring transparency and accountability to our election process.

Click here to sign a petition demanding that Republicans in Congress support the DISCLOSE Act and stop allowing corporations to buy elections and disenfranchise voters.

Every year, corporate special interests spend millions of dollars on nasty, negative ads. But unlike candidates, who have to stand by each of their ads, corporations don't have to come clean about their involvement. It isn't right. Voters deserve to know exactly where these messages are coming from.

The DISCLOSE Act would require corporations and advocacy groups to appear in every ad they run and approve its message. And no company that has a government contract of more than $50,000, or gets taxpayer-funded assistance through a program like TARP, would be able to spend money on elections.

These and other reform measures would help reduce the power and influence corporations have on our elections, but the Republicans say they don't want them. They don't want voters to know who they're beholden to. They don't want to bring transparency and accountability to Washington.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Click here to tell the Republicans that you want to know who's paying for campaign ads. Tell them you won't tolerate special interests having too much influence on the election process.

Citizens United was the wrong decision for our country, but we don't have to let it stand. We can counter it with legislation that brings fairness and honesty back to our elections.

Sincerely,

Kirsten Gillibrand

This message was sent to john.podesta@gmail.com. To unsubscribe from the Gillibrand for Senate email list, please click here.

PAID FOR BY GILLIBRAND FOR SENATE

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Craig Minassian" <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org>
To: "Tina Flournoy" <Tina@presidentclinton.com>
"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 2/25/2015 3:29:28 PM
Subject: RE: WaPo - Draft Quote

Thanks John. Revised. Sending shortly

"As with other global charities, we rely on the support of individuals, organizations, corporations and governments who have the shared goal of addressing critical global challenges in a meaningful way. When anyone contributes to the Clinton Foundation, it goes towards Foundation programs that save lives. The majority of the support from governments was for specific, multi-year programs that are still improving the lives of millions of people around the world and were underway well before Secretary Clinton took office. Both the Clinton Foundation and President Obama's transition team believed that funding should continue to provide live-saving HIV/AIDS medicine to more than 8 million people in more than 70 countries, training for nearly 40,000 farmers in Malawi, Tanzania, and Rwanda trying to earn a better living and to help reduce of 33,500 tons of greenhouse gas emissions annually among other programs."

From: Tina Flournoy [mailto:Tina@presidentclinton.com]
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 5:03 PM
To: John Podesta
Cc: Craig Minassian; Bruce Lindsey; Cheryl Mills Contact; Maura Pally; Bari Lurie contact; Matt Mckenna - gmail; Angel Urena - PC; Nick Merrill (nmerrill@hrcoffice.com); Kamyl Bazbaz contact; Ami Desai - PC
Subject: Re: WaPo - Draft Quote

like that approach

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:59 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:

I'm not sure when CHAI officially separated but the main reason we protected those flows in 2008 was to protect CHAI! Rather than using the It's hard to imagine...language, why don't we put this clearly in the past and say both the Clinton and the President elect's teams thought that funding should continue for established programs to provide 8 million people with life saving drugs, the farmers, etc and posed no conflicts but CF agreed to unprecedented disclosure.
JP
--Sent from my iPad--
john.podesta@gmail.com
For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:37 PM, Tina Flournoy <Tina@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

I get what you're doing but we could very well be in a situation in which someone connected to CHAI will push back on this

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:31 PM, Craig Minassian <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org > wrote:
+ Ami too

Sent from my iPhone

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:23 PM, Tina Flournoy <Tina@presidentclinton.com > wrote:

at this moment CHAI complaining about this issue

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:14 PM, Craig Minassian <cminassian@clintonfoundation.org > wrote:

I'm sensitive to that (which is why I'm asking) but those CHAI Stats are on nearly every public listing of CF accomplishment. I'm want to make people think twice about calls for dropping grants to CF or return the money and the HIV/AIDS work hits home in a way that other stats don't. Plus it's international work. I'm concerned about saying we used money to fund healthy schools (because we didn't use the funding for that).

From: Tina Flournoy [mailto:Tina@presidentclinton.com]
Sent: Wednesday, February 25, 2015 4:09 PM
To: Craig Minassian
Cc: Bruce Lindsey; Cheryl Mills Contact; john.podesta@gmail.com ; Maura Pally; Bari Lurie contact; Matt Mckenna - gmail; Angel Urena - PC; Nick Merrill (nmerrill@hrcoffice.com); Kamyl Bazbaz contact
Subject: Re: WaPo - Draft Quote

I am worried - particularly given the meeting i'm sitting in - that we're using CHAI stats and haven't told them

On Feb 25, 2015, at 4:03 PM, Craig Minassian <cminassian@ .org> wrote:

All,

For the WaPo story we have been discussing, they asked for an on the record response to the following question. Draft response is below with includes feedback from Jen, Nick, Philippe, Matt etc.

Including everyone on this email because I need a quick response about including the CHAI stats. The fact is, at the time, CHAI was more compelling metric, most understandable accomplishment to the public and, importantly, what a majority of the foreign government funding supported.

Please let me know if you have any concerns in the next 30 minutes.

Thanks,

Craig

Q. Why was it important for the foundation that some foreign government donations be allowed to continue after Hillary Clinton became secretary of state (i.e. those from governments that had been giving and then continued to do so at a steady pace, as well as new or increased donation that cleared a state department review)? Why do foundation officials believe such donations did not pose any conflicts of interest given Secretary Clinton's role, as some have alleged?

"As with other global charities, we rely on the support of individuals, organizations, corporations and governments who have the shared goal of addressing critical global challenges in a meaningful way. When anyone contributes to the Clinton Foundation, it goes towards Foundation programs that save lives. The majority of this support from governments is for specific, multi-year programs that are improving the lives of millions of people around the world and were underway well before Secretary Clinton took office. It's hard to imagine someone arguing that funding should be cut off for the more than 8 million people getting access to live-saving HIV/AIDS medicine in more than 70 countries, the nearly 40,000 farmers in Malawi, Tanzania, and Rwanda trying to earn a better living or the reduction of 33,500 tons of greenhouse gas emissions annually."

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Huma Abedin" <huma@hrcoffice.com>
To:	"Moreno Barber. Javier" <JMoreno@elpais.es> "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
Date:	1/13/2015 8:43:10 AM
Subject:	RE: Introduction: Leading European Newspaper Allisnce

Javier – Nice hear from you. I am adding our Press Secretary Nick Merrill to be in touch directly with you on this request.
All the best,
Huma

From: Moreno Barber. Javier [mailto:JMoreno@elpais.es]
Sent: Monday, January 12, 2015 3:10 PM
To: Huma Abedin
Cc: john.podesta@gmail.com
Subject: RE: Introduction: Leading European Newspaper Allisnce

Dear Huma,

As Matt already signaled in his introductory email, I am writing to you on behalf of the Leading European Newspaper Alliance (LENA), which brings together Die Welt from Germany, El País from Spain, Belgium's Le Soir, La Reppublica from Italy and Swiss dailies Tages-Anzeiger and Tribune de Genève. Conversations are underway with France's Le Figaro. LENA is going public later this month, but I am already, as director of the Alliance, commissioning content to be published simultaneously in the above said newspapers (interviews, features, opeds). It is in this regard that I would very much appreciate it if you could consider the possibility of us having an interview with Secretary Clinton. There is plenty for the Secretary to say to the people of Europe. We do not have a set timeframe, and we are perfectly aware of how tight her schedule is. We also know that interviews get arranged by strict policies and guidelines and only if they serve the communication agenda of the Secretary. Nevertheless, if an interview could be arranged in the next days or even weeks, it would send a powerful message to a Continent in distress after the terror attacks in Paris.
Should any questions or further queries arise, please do not hesitate to contact me.
Eagerly awaiting your positive response,
Javier

Javier Moreno Barber
Director Editorial/Chief Content Officer

PRISA

T +34 91 337 84 86
JMoreno@elpais.es
C/ Miguel Yuste, 40
28037 Madrid
www.elpais.com

De: Matt Browne [mailto:mbrowne@americanprogress.org]
Enviado el: viernes, 09 de enero de 2015 1:49
Para: Huma Abedin
CC: john.podesta@gmail.com ; Moreno Barber. Javier
Asunto: Introduction: Leading European Newspaper Allisnce

Dear Huma -

Happy New Year,

I trust this email finds you well. I wanted the opportunity to introduce to Javier Moreno, former Editor in Chief of El Pais, and new director of Leading European Newspaper Alliance (LENA).

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

LENA is launching later this month to strive for the consolidation of an Europe-wide public opinion. Its members share a series of common values regarding the importance of quality journalism in the structuring of open, democratic societies with a message of economic progress, social justice and defence of individual civil liberties.

Die Welt from Germany, El País from Spain, La Repubblica from Italy, Le Soir from Belgium, and Swiss dailies Tages-Anzeiger and Tribune de Genève have already signed, each an opinion leader in their respective markets. Conversations with France's Le Figaro to join the alliance are underway. LENA has therefore a combined reach of many millions of readers, both in print and online, in four different languages and in five countries across Europe. LENA, therefore, assures a broad impact for any interview, oped or feature published simultaneously in all members of the Alliance.

Should Secretary Clinton be interested in speaking to people across Europe, LENA would be delighted to facilitate this,

Very best regards, and warmest wishes for a happy, healthy and prosperous 2015.

Yours ever -

Matt

Sent from my iPhone

"Este correo electrónico contiene información confidencial amparada por el secreto profesional. Cualquier reproducción, distribución o divulgación de su contenido están estrictamente prohibidos. Si usted no es el destinatario indicado en el mismo y recibe este correo electrónico, le rogamos nos lo notifique de inmediato al remitente de este correo y destruya el mensaje recibido sin obtener copia del mismo ni distribuirlo ni revelar su contenido".

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Nelson, Colleen McCain" <Colleen.Nelson@wsj.com>
Date: 4/10/2015 7:40:02 AM
Subject: Re: Thank you

Colleen,
Thanks for coming. See you out on the race course.
John

On Apr 10, 2015 2:37 PM, "Nelson, Colleen McCain" <Colleen.Nelson@wsj.com > wrote:

> Hi John –
>
> I just wanted to thank you again for your hospitality last night. You were so kind to open your home to us, and the food was as fantastic as promised (everyone at the White House raves about your dinners).
>
> I really appreciated the opportunity to connect with a number of folks from Team Clinton.
>
> The evening was a great way to kick off this crazy adventure.
>
> Thank you, and I hope we'll cross paths again soon.
>
> Best,
>
> Colleen
>
> Colleen McCain Nelson
>
> The Wall Street Journal
>
> Office: 202.862.9289
>
> Cell: 214.957.0632

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Jeremy Funk" <funk@americansunitedforchange.org>
To:	bigcampaign@googlegroups.com
Date:	10/4/2010 7:07:25 AM
Subject:	[big campaign] FW: "The omission, [Rep. Paul Ryan] says, does not signal a retreat by him or his party."

From: Jeremy Funk
Sent: Monday, October 04, 2010 2:01 PM
To: 'NationalPresslist@list.americansunitedforchange.org'
Subject: "The omission, [Rep. Paul Ryan] says, does not signal a retreat by him or his party."

MUST READ piece from the National Review below. Congressman Paul Ryan (R-WI) – "The man who might become Budget Committee chairman," as the NR notes – assures the conservative publication that that while his detailed 'Roadmap' budget plan that would privatize Social Security and replace Medicare with vouchers that shortchange seniors on care was not included in the House GOP Leadership's "Pledge to America," : "The omission, he says, does not signal a retreat by him or his party."

"It's a fight, he says, that he does "not intend to lose," the piece concludes.

Rep. Ryan also minces no words when it comes to repealing the Affordable Care Act, including the welcome new Patient's Bill of Rights that took effect on September 23rd, from allowing young adults under 26 to stay on their parents' plans to bringing an end to some of the worst insurance industry practices like denying coverage to kids with "Pre-Existing Conditions," dropping anyone's coverage when they get sick and need it most, or imposing lifetime caps on coverage.

These reforms can not be allowed to stand, according to Paul Ryan: "We should look at every option we have available to us to try to repeal and replace this law," Ryan says. "This law cannot stand. It is a policy disaster and a fiscal explosion." His plan of attack: "We will go at the funding angle from many different directions."

NATIONAL REVIEW

http://www.nationalreview.com/articles/print/248607

OCTOBER 4, 2010 12:00 P.M.

Ryan Looks Down the Road

The man who might become Budget Committee chairman remains committed to fiscal solvency.

Earlier this year, Rep. Paul Ryan, a 40-year-old Republican congressman from Wisconsin, published "A Roadmap for America's Future," his blueprint for balancing the budget. Despite much fanfare, Ryan's proposal — which rigorously tackles federal entitlements, taxes, and spending — was left out of the House GOP's "Pledge to America." The omission, he says, does not signal a retreat by him or his party.

"I did not write the pledge," Ryan says in an interview with NATIONAL REVIEW ONLINE. "I did the first draft of the preamble and that's pretty much what my involvement was.#…#I was consulted on policy ideas, but not on writing the thing. I was not one of its architects." Rather than judge the pledge as an all-encompassing policy document, Ryan calls it an "important and necessary first step." Its text, he notes, does not preclude him from continuing to battle for long-term fiscal solvency.

Should Republicans win the House, Ryan would likely ascend to the chairmanship of the Budget Committee, a powerful post. "We obviously are going to have to take on entitlement reform," he says. "I don't know what the budget will look like, but its form will be determined by the consensus I can get from at least 218 people. What I would hope to do is get this budget needle moving in the right direction." Still, as he looks toward a possible scenario of divided government, Ryan is quick to say that he does not wish to "overpromise."

For the moment, Ryan remains unsure about the exact future of the "Roadmap," and whether he could package its components into a passable budget. But he is confident in his party's ability to have an "adult conversation" on entitlements in coming months. Ryan says Republican leaders are supportive of his ongoing budget work and swats away whispers of intraparty turmoil.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Without hesitation, Ryan tells us that Rep. John Boehner, the House GOP leader, understands the economic stakes. “I think [Boehner] grasps where America is and what we’re confronting,” Ryan says. “John Boehner never once tried to talk me out of pushing these ideas and reforms. There has never been a discouraging comment or word from him on pushing the fold on big ideas.”

Beyond Boehner, Ryan says that his GOP colleagues on the Budget Committee are stalwart in their commitment to entitlement reform. “The culture on the Budget Committee is great,” he says. “Anybody who studies this problem or digs deep into the numbers is seriously frightened about the future of this country. They realize the urgency of the moment. After a sober review of the fiscal condition of this country, most people just put politics aside.”

“I spend a lot of my time looking at these baselines,” Ryan says. “Most people don’t know this stuff. Most people in Congress don’t understand just how quickly our fiscal situation has deteriorated. And now the Left thinks that you can keep raising taxes, as if there were no consequences to that.” To fight back, Ryan says Republicans need to focus on two things: “economic growth and reforming the structure of spending.” The debt, he warns, will continue to spiral out of control unless Congress “literally restructures the programs that are growing so fast.”

The way forward, Ryan continues, must include a robust platform founded upon “pro-growth tax policies, sound money, clear and transparent regulation, and government restraint.” Republicans, he says, “are unanimous on not raising tax rates and in getting our tax code more competitive internationally so that we can grow.”

Repealing Obamacare is another important, and popular, measure. “We should look at every option we have available to us to try to repeal and replace this law,” Ryan says. “This law cannot stand. It is a policy disaster and a fiscal explosion.” His plan of attack: “We will go at the funding angle from many different directions.”

An earmark moratorium — also left out of the pledge — is another area where Ryan promises to tangle. “Of course we are for an earmark moratorium,” he says. “That just goes without saying. You think, if we get the majority next year, that we are going to start turning earmarks on? Some people might think that, but they’re in for a rude awakening.”

In coming months, winning over new GOP members, and providing them with reams of economic data and an idea of the federal government’s long-term fiscal outlook, is high on Ryan’s to-do list. To help the cause, Ryan intends to pen version 3.0 of the “Roadmap” early next year. “What we need to do is quickly bring them up to speed,” he says. Some, of course, are already well-versed on the “Roadmap” and its principles. “Dozens” of House candidates, Ryan confides, have reached out to him to offer their support for his budget plan, which, for the moment, has only 13 co-sponsors. “Reinforcements are coming,” he assures us.

Still, such conversations, Ryan sighs, are often private, since Democrats have eagerly targeted the “Roadmap” and Ryan himself. Many Republicans are wary of backing Ryan’s ideas publicly. “Look, I get that,” he says. “I’ve experienced their demagoguery on entitlements. It’s like being hit by a two-by-four across the head.”

“Scaring seniors is apparently the past, present, and future of the Democratic party,” Ryan continues. “But they have created political paralysis. I’m fed up with it, and I’m not going to let it intimidate me. I’m going to go forward, put ideas out there, and get this debate moving one way or the other.” It’s a fight, he says, that he does “not intend to lose.”

— Robert Costa is a political reporter for NATIONAL REVIEW.

Jeremy J. Funk
Communications Director, Americans United for Change
Office: 202.470.5878
Cell: 605.366.3654
funk@americansunitedforchange.org
www.AmericansUnitedforChange.org

--
You received this message because you are subscribed to the "big campaign" group.

To post to this group, send to bigcampaign@googlegroups.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To unsubscribe, send email to bigcampaign-unsubscribe@googlegroups.com

E-mail dubois.sara@gmail.com with questions or concerns

This is a list of individuals. It is not affiliated with any group or organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tony Carrk" <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Milia Fisher" <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	1/9/2016 11:39:24 AM
Subject:	Re: Confirming tomorrow pickup

Yes

Sent from my iPhone

On Jan 9, 2016, at 6:38 PM, Milia Fisher <mfisher@hillaryclinton.com > wrote:

> Hi Tony/John-
>
> Right now the plan, in my understanding, is for Tony to pick up John at 9:30 from his apartment, 404 Park Ave South (28th and Park). Then you'll go uptown and pick up Costa, Sara.
>
> Sound correct, Tony?
>
> Thanks!
>
> --
> Milia Fisher
> Special Assistant to the Chair
> Hillary for America
> mfisher@hillaryclinton.com
> c: 858.395.1741

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Joe Biden" <info@barackobama.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	9/23/2012 10:24:31 AM
Subject:	Just give it a shot...

John --

This is the last Dinner with Barack of this campaign -- and I don't think you should miss it.

Trust me.

Don't wonder "what if" -- just give it a shot before this great campaign tradition comes to an end.

These dinners have been such an important part of this campaign because of the kind of politics they represent -- where valuable grassroots supporters like you get a seat at the table.

We're counting on you, John. I know we're asking a lot of you right now. Just 44 days to go, let's sprint to the finish.

You've already helped move this campaign forward -- standing with Barack and me and getting your friends and neighbors motivated to vote this fall. Now take the next step and chip in $5 or whatever you can to be automatically entered to join Barack for this last dinner before Election Day:

https://donate.barackobama.com/Dinner

Thank you,

Joe

P.S. -- The good folks of the campaign will fly you and your guest out for a meal you won't soon forget. What are you waiting for? Enter now for dinner with our outstanding president.

No purchase, payment, or contribution necessary to enter or win. Contributing will not improve chances of winning. Void where prohibited. Entries must be received by September 25, 2012. You may enter by contributing to Obama for America here , by signing up for Quick Donate here , or click here to enter without contributing or signing up for Quick Donate. Three winners will each receive the following prize package: round-trip tickets for winner and a guest from within the fifty U.S. States, DC, or Puerto Rico to a destination to be determined by the Sponsor; hotel accommodations for winner and a guest; and dinner for winner and a guest with President Obama on a date to be determined by the Sponsor (approximate retail value of all prizes $4,800). Odds of winning depend on number of entries received. Promotion open only to U.S. citizens, or lawful permanent U.S. residents who are legal residents of 50 United States, District of Columbia and Puerto Rico and 18 or older (or age of majority under applicable law). Promotion subject to Official Rules and additional restrictions on eligibility. Sponsor: Obama for America, 130 E. Randolph St., Chicago, IL 60601.

Paid for by Obama for America

Contributions or gifts to Obama for America are not tax deductible

This email was sent to: john.podesta@gmail.com.
If that is not your preferred email address, you can update your information here .
We believe that emails are a vital way for the campaign to stay in direct contact with supporters. Click here if you'd like to unsubscribe from these messages.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This campaign is a community, and all ideas are welcome.
We appreciate any feedback you might have -- positive or negative.
Click here to contact the campaign with any questions or concerns.
Obama for America, P.O. Box 803638, Chicago, IL, 60680

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	1/17/2014 11:25:06 PM
Subject:	Re: Thought

Let's discuss

cdm

On Jan 18, 2014, at 3:44 AM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com> wrote:

> Karen Dunn for policy/research.
>
> JP
> --Sent from my iPad--
> john.podesta@gmail.com
> For scheduling: eryn.sepp@gmail.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
"Teddy Goff" <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com>
"Laura Rosenberger" <lrosenberger@hillaryclinton.com>
Date: 2/17/2016 9:20:06 AM
Subject: RE: Fw: Army dogs& soldiers reunited

Adding Laura. Hadn't seen this.

From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Wednesday, February 17, 2016 3:20 PM
To: Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >; Teddy Goff <tgoff@hillaryclinton.com >
Subject: Fwd: Fw: Army dogs& soldiers reunited

See this? Worth doing anything?

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Jack Brown <jckmbrown@yahoo.com >
Date: Wednesday, February 17, 2016
Subject: Fw: Army dogs& soldiers reunited
To: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Robin Metz <emetz@knox.edu >

John:

Realize you are busy. Soldiers and their trained and valiant companion dogs form a unique bond.Keeping them together after service seems like the right thing to do. PTSD is often reduced.The bond that is formed in danger and combat deserves to be enjoyed in relative peace and recovery.

If you can look into this and make an inquiry it would be deeply appreciated.

Jack Brown
Knox 68

SEE Piece below Link

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

----- Forwarded Message -----
From: Jack Brown <jckmbrown@yahoo.com >
To: Jack Brown <jckmbrown@yahoo.com >
Sent: Tuesday, February 16, 2016 9:43 AM
Subject: Army dogs

Troops betrayed as Army dumps hundreds of heroic war dogs

Troops betrayed as Army dumps hundreds of heroic war d...

By then, Daniel had been in Afghanistan two months. It was July 2012, his third tour of duty and his first with Oogie, his military working dog. They were leading t...

View on nypost.com Preview by Yahoo

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Todd Park" <toddypark@mac.com> "Robert Mook" <robbymook@gmail.com>
Date:	12/29/2014 11:42:20 AM
Subject:	Re: Talking

Robby,
Todd is expecting a call from you. His personal cell is in the email. He is vacationing with his kids, but reachable.
John

On Dec 28, 2014 5:10 PM, "Todd Park" <toddypark@mac.com > wrote:

> Absolutely -- might you be able to talk any time between 2:30-5:00 pm Pacific / 5:30-8:00 pm Eastern Time tomorrow? And 781 254 0019 should be a great number at which to reach me. If for some reason you get voicemail, just text me and I'll call you right back.
>
> Sent from my iPhone
>
> On Dec 28, 2014, at 10:13 AM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
> Are you available for a call today or tomorrow? 781 # good?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Mary Pat Bonner" <mpbonner@bonnergrp.com>
To:	John.Podesta@gmail.com
Date:	12/23/2010 2:08:35 PM
Subject:	Error

So I just started to send you and e-mail to thank you for reaching out to David around Equality Matters -- I really meant a lot to him.

But in the process, I accidently forwarded with the thank you a memo David insisted I give him about fundraising for all of these entities. So please disregard the last e-mail. Thanks for keeping it confidential.

Have a Great Holiday!!

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Lona Valmoro" <lvalmoro@hillaryclinton.com>
To:	"Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Huma Abedin" <ha16@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Ron Klain" <ron.klain@revolution.com>
	"Karen Dunn" <karen.l.dunn@gmail.com>
	"Kristina Costa" <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com>
	"Sara Aronchick Solow" <sara.solow@gmail.com>
	"John Podesta" <jp66@hillaryclinton.com>
	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/1/2016 11:59:16 AM
Subject:	Tuesday

Team -- There is a very good chance that we will convene a small group debate prep session with HRC on Tuesday, February 2nd in New Hampshire.

Approximately 4:00pm-6:00pm at the Radisson.

Will confirm tomorrow morning but please plan for this -- thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Robby Mook" <robbymook2015@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	3/13/2015 4:52:39 AM
Subject:	Fwd: Plans and Statements
Attachments:	3 13 15 Benghazi Statement.docx 3 13 15 Proactive 4 Week Press Plan.docx PROPOSED RAPID RESPONSE.docx

Begin forwarded message:

From: Jesse Ferguson <jesse@jesseferguson.com >
Date: March 13, 2015 at 10:46:18 AM EDT
To: Robby Mook <robbymook2015@gmail.com >
Cc: Kristina Schake <kristinakschake@gmail.com >, Jennifer Palmieri <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com >
Subject: Plans and Statements

Robby – Attached to this email is

1) The Benghazi statement on emails updated with Podesta edit of Cummings name.
2) The proactive 4 week press plan updated with all our input from meeting last night
3) Jen's outline of the process for rapid response during the prelaunch period.

Have fun. Let us know what you need.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
To:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	6/29/2015 9:05:23 AM
Subject:	Missed Call: Fred Krupp

Fred Krupp would like to call you after 5:15 pm today, after he lands. He met with Brian Deese and wants to discuss it with you. Later this week is also fine if you are slammed. Fred's cell is 203-273-9977.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Cassandra Butts" <cbutts.obama08@gmail.com>
Date:	8/31/2008 7:51:43 AM
Subject:	Re: traveling to Iowa for the campaign

Seems fine.

On 8/30/08, Cassandra Butts <cbutts.obama08@gmail.com> wrote:
> The campaign has asked me to travel to Iowa from September 19 to 21 to > campaign. I'm inclined to do so, but I'd like to check in to make sure it > will not conflict with any transition meetings ahead. Please let me know.
> Best, Cassandra
>

--
Sent from Gmail for mobile | mobile.google.com

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <jpodesta@americanprogress.org>
To:	"Tina Flournoy" <Tina@presidentclinton.com>
	"Ami Desai-Clinton Foundation" <adesai@clintonfoundation.org>
	"Craig Smith" <csmith@ps-b.com>
	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	9/17/2013 8:06:27 AM
Subject:	RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Sorry gang. Just back from China and just getting into this. Let me see if my team has a view. I'm free to get on the call if you want.

-----Original Message-----
From: Tina Flournoy [mailto:Tina@presidentclinton.com]
Sent: Tuesday, September 17, 2013 11:01 AM
To: Ami Desai-Clinton Foundation; Craig Smith; john.podesta@gmail.com
Cc: John Podesta
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

I would really like to hear from John before we proceed.

-----Original Message-----
From: Amitabh Desai [mailto:adesai@clintonfoundation.org]
Sent: Tuesday, September 17, 2013 10:59 AM
To: Tina Flournoy; Craig Smith; john.podesta@gmail.com
Cc: John Podesta Contact
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Thanks. I can raise 2 with them tomorrow and if you all want to join tomorrow, that would be great too.
Also note - Governor Padilla is scheduled to come to CGI next week and to participate in the "island energy issues" discussion. So might be a second opportunity to raise #2 with him in a room full of folks who would give moral support.
I know this probably is crazy talk - but do you think we should invite PRPPA head to the cgi island energy discussion? Would put them in a tight spot to be in that room and face all those folks and not agree to "do" something.

-----Original Message-----
From: Tina Flournoy [mailto:Tina@presidentclinton.com]
Sent: Tuesday, September 17, 2013 10:55 AM
To: Craig Smith; Amitabh Desai; john.podesta@gmail.com
Cc: John Podesta Contact
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

I spoke to WJC about the current state of play. He is open to number 2 - specifically as it relates to Vieques.

-----Original Message-----
From: Craig Smith [mailto:csmith@ps-b.com]
Sent: Tuesday, September 17, 2013 10:52 AM
To: Ami Desai-Clinton Foundation; Tina Flournoy; john.podesta@gmail.com
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Two points I would push them on:

1) If all they are going to do is prepare a report, I am not sure that gets us anything. PRPPA is fighting hard against any change at the moment and a report doesn't move the ball forward. They need to use the report as a tool to generate a call for action on some concrete steps, like a law requiring PRPPA to meet specific targets with a timeline for the conversion to renewables. They talk about some pretty specific goals but process of making them happen is critical and its not clear from the memo how that will occur. The key challenge they face is not figuring out what they need to do but figuring out how to get it done.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

2) The Culebra idea is interesting. In the past the previous Governor has called for making Vieques energy independent. Working on these two islands is something the foundation might want to explore as a joint project with the Government and PRPPA. Because of WJC's history with Vieques, it also gives us a hook. This would require a meeting between someone with the Foundation, PRPPA and the Governor. Don't know if they would agree but would be big if they did and would show the rest of PR that it can be done. PRPPA may have a lobbyist in DC and it might be easier to make the deal up here than down there where everything is so polarized.

-----Original Message-----
From: Amitabh Desai [mailto:adesai@clintonfoundation.org]
Sent: Tuesday, September 17, 2013 10:05 AM
To: Tina Flournoy; john.podesta@gmail.com; Craig Smith
Subject: FW: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

FYI re: Puerto Rico, attached. They want to discuss tomorrow morning at 11am ET.
Would any of you like to join?
Sincerely,
Ami

-----Original Message-----
From: Simon Tam
Sent: Tuesday, September 17, 2013 9:18 AM
To: Amitabh Desai
Subject: FW: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

FYI - please see attached and Efrain's note below for 11AM call on Wednesday, 9/18. I can print copies for you as well as soon as the printer is up and running again.

-----Original Message-----
From: Efraín O'Neill Carrillo [mailto:eoneill@fortaleza.pr.gov]
Sent: Monday, September 16, 2013 10:57 PM
To: Simon Tam
Cc: Elizabeth Sola Oliver
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Hi,

Attached please find a Word document that summarizes Gov. Garcia Padilla's energy policy, and a PowerPoint presentation we could use to guide Wednesday's conference call (11am Eastern time).

If Mr. Desai you has any questions before Wednesday's conference call, please let me know. I will be expecting the call at 11am Eastern time (787) 238-8588

Regards,

Efraín

--
Dr. Efraín O'Neill-Carrillo, P.E.
Asesor Principal en Asuntos de Energía
Oficina del Gobernador
Estado Libre Asociado de Puerto Rico

_____

From: Simon Tam [stam@clintonfoundation.org]
Sent: Tuesday, September 10, 2013 5:23 PM

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

To: Efraín O'Neill Carrillo
Cc: Elizabeth Sola Oliver
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Thank you very much Efrain. I have made note of your contact details and look forward to receiving more information.

Sincerely,
Simon

-----Original Message-----
From: Efraín O'Neill Carrillo [mailto:eoneill@fortaleza.pr.gov]
Sent: Tuesday, September 10, 2013 3:24 PM
To: Simon Tam
Cc: Elizabeth Sola Oliver
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

You can reach me at:

(787) 238-8588

If you have any problems with that number, I can also be reached at (787) 642 3705.

I will be sending via email introductory information about our efforts in PR in the area of sustainability. You might have the info already, but I will forward it just in case.

Regards

Efrain
--
Dr. Efraín O'Neill-Carrillo, P.E.
Asesor Principal en Asuntos de Energía
Oficina del Gobernador
Estado Libre Asociado de Puerto Rico

_____

From: Simon Tam [stam@clintonfoundation.org]
Sent: Tuesday, September 10, 2013 1:43 PM
To: Efraín O'Neill Carrillo
Cc: Elizabeth Sola Oliver
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Thank you very much Efrain. We are confirmed for 11AM ET on Wednesday, September 18. Could you please advise on the best number to reach you that morning? Thanks once again.

Sincerely,
Simon

-----Original Message-----
From: Efraín O'Neill Carrillo [mailto:eoneill@fortaleza.pr.gov]
Sent: Tuesday, September 10, 2013 12:18 PM
To: Simon Tam
Cc: Elizabeth Sola Oliver
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

That's perfect. I've blocked my agenda from 10am to 12noon on Wed. Sept. 18th.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Please confirm.

Regards

Efrain
--
Dr. Efraín O'Neill-Carrillo, P.E.
Asesor Principal en Asuntos de Energía
Oficina del Gobernador
Estado Libre Asociado de Puerto Rico

From: Simon Tam [stam@clintonfoundation.org]
Sent: Tuesday, September 10, 2013 10:03 AM
To: Efraín O'Neill Carrillo
Cc: Elizabeth Sola Oliver
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Dear Efrain,

Thank you for your message and I hope this finds you well. I work closely with Ami Desai and can help coordinate this conversation. Wednesday, September 18 works well. Might you be available between 10AM - 12PM ET that day? Kindly advise at your convenience.

Best,
Simon

Simon Tam
Foreign Policy Associate | Clinton Foundation
77 Water Street, New York, NY 10005
Direct: +1.212.348.0031 | Mobile: +1.734.709.9427 | Fax: +1.866.335.7650 stam@clintonfoundation.org | www.clintonfoundation.org

----- Original Message -----
From: Efraín O'Neill Carrillo <eoneill@fortaleza.pr.gov>
To: Amitabh Desai; Elizabeth Sola Oliver <esola@fortaleza.pr.gov>
Cc: oneill@ieee.org <oneill@ieee.org>
Sent: Tue Sep 10 08:55:46 2013
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Dear Mr. Desai,

Thank you for your message. I'd like to coordinate a phone call to discuss potential ways to further the collaboration between the Clinton Foundation and the Commonwealth of PR.

I am available any time this week, except Thursday after 5pm, and Friday. Next week I am available Wednesday 18th all day, and Thursday 19th anytime in the afternoon.

Best regards,

Efrain
--
Dr. Efraín O'Neill-Carrillo, P.E.
Asesor Principal en Asuntos de Energía
Oficina del Gobernador
Estado Libre Asociado de Puerto Rico

From: Amitabh Desai [adesai@clintonfoundation.org]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sent: Thursday, September 05, 2013 4:44 PM
To: Elizabeth Sola Oliver
Cc: Efraín O'Neill Carrillo
Subject: RE: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Dear Elizabeth, thanks for your note - we enjoyed the visit very much and likewise we look forward to being of assistance for the Governor and people of Puerto Rico. Will Dr. O'Neill be in New York in the coming weeks, or should we arrange a discussion by phone? Sincerely, Ami

-----Original Message-----
From: Elizabeth Sola Oliver [mailto:esola@fortaleza.pr.gov]
Sent: Thursday, September 05, 2013 3:58 PM
To: Amitabh Desai
Cc: Efraín O'Neill Carrillo
Subject: Visit to Puerto Rico, Next Steps

Dear Mr. Desai:
I hope this message finds you well. I am writing on behalf of Mrs. Ingrid M. Vila-Biaggi, Chief of Staff for the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. This email is to follow up on President Clinton's visit to San Juan last July, and to express our interest on establishing continued cooperation with you on certain issues paramount for the development of Puerto Rico.
Governor García-Padilla's administration goals on economic development, health and climate change -to mention just a few- are well aligned with those of the Clinton Foundation and we believe that there are many spaces of collaboration that can be built from his last visit. I am copying Dr. Efraín O'Neill, who is the Governor's Senior Advisor on Energy Affairs.
We look forward to hear from you soon so we can begin this dialogue.

Regards,

Elizabeth Sola Oliver
Aide to the Chief of Staff
Office of the Governor - La Fortaleza
Commonwealth of Puerto Rico

T. 787-721-7000 ext. 3122
M. 787-638-1298
esola@fortaleza.pr.gov<mailto:esola@fortaleza.pr.gov>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
To: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Date: 10/28/2015 11:26:09 AM
Subject: Re: Ragnar $$ Breakdown and a few questions

Heard back from Tony--he's gifting Van 1 gas and says don't worry about it. Here's the final breakdown ready to go when you say so:

Breakdown in the interest of transparency:

$1,522.80 Team Registration paid by John

$30.96 Van 1 Gas Bill by John

$69 Van 1 Gas paid by Brian

$250 for hotel paid by Eryn

$185.45 Van 2 Rental Paid by Gabe

$18 Van 1 Car Wash paid by Brian

Costco run gifted by John.

Van 1 gas gifted by Tony.

GRAND TOTAL divided among 12: $2,058.21

Each person's share before deductions: $171.52

John and Gabe owe nothing

Tony, Larissa, Peter, Dustin, Chris, Bridget, Tamara and Emily owe $171.52 each

Brian owes $150.55

Vivek: No registration (covered by Clay), Misc costs owes $72.61

Clay owes $126.90

Instructions:

We're going old school. Please send a check to 3743 Brandywine St NW, Washington DC 20016.

On Tue, Oct 27, 2015 at 4:26 PM, Eryn Sepp <eryn.sepp@gmail.com > wrote:

> Van 1 gas was $109.96, but agreed, a van shouldn't be as much as a Denali! I'll say $100 and hopefully hear from him before recalc.
>
> Ok re Vivek and Clay. Clay told me he'd pay registration.
>
> Nap time just ended so will recalculate shortly, as soon as Stew can take her.
>
> On Oct 27, 2015, at 4:19 PM, John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com > wrote:
>
>> Let's do a recalculation deleting Costco. I'll just throw that in. Tony's gas estimate seems high-more than our gas guzzler? Why don't we make it $100 which is what we spent. Don't know how to handle Vivek/ Clay, but what you did seems ok

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Tuesday, October 27, 2015, Eryn Sepp <eryn.sepp@gmail.com > wrote:

> Gimme a call if you want to talk it through before I send it out. Will await word from you before I do so:
>
> $1,522.80 Team Registration paid by John
> $226.99 Costco Paid by John
> $30.96 Van 1 Gas Bill by John
> $69 Van 1 Gas paid by Brian
> $109 Van 2 Gas paid by Tony (ESTIMATE -- Tony still hasn't gotten back to me)
> $250 for hotel paid by Eryn
> $185.45 Van 2 Rental Paid by Gabe
> $18 Van 1 Car Wash paid by Brian
> GRAND TOTAL divided among 12: $2,394.20
> Each person's share before deductions: $199.51
> (Do you want to do it this way, or have only Van 2 pick up Van 2's rental, and only Van 1 paying for the car wash? That's nitpicky given everyone had the same odds of being in those vans, and people switched at the last minute, but I'll do the math however you want)
>
> John owes nothing -- will send Eryn $250
> Tony owes $90.51
> Larissa owes $199.51
> Gabe owes $14.06
> Peter owes $199.51
> Dustin owes $199.51
> Chris owes $199.51 (Do we want to ask Chris to pay reg. fee? I think he's fine to cover it--we never promised otherwise)
> Bridget owes $199.51
> Tamara owes $199.51
> Emily owes $199.51
> Brian owes $150.55
> Vivek: No registration (covered by Clay), Misc costs owes $72.61 (Do we want to ask him to pay this since he covered us at the last min?)
> Clay owes $126.90
>
> Shall instructions be:
> Send a check to 3743 Brandywine St NW, Washington DC 20016

--
Eryn M. Sepp
Cell: 818-456-2881

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Jennifer Palmieri" <jennifer.m.palmieri@gmail.com>
	"Kristina Schake" <kschake@hillaryclinton.com>
Date:	9/24/2015 7:54:21 AM
Subject:	Fwd:

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: "Jeffrey Katzenberg" <jeffreyk@dreamworks.com >
Date: Sep 24, 2015 2:04 PM
Subject: Fwd:
To: "Podesta John" <john.podesta@gmail.com >
Cc:

Fyi. I spoke to Ben about town hall concept and he's offered any and all ABC News platforms.

Begin forwarded message:

> From: "Sherwood, Ben" <Ben.Sherwood@disney.com >
> Date: September 24, 2015 at 10:51:50 AM PDT
> To: Jeffrey Katzenberg <jeffreyk@dreamworks.com >
>
> Ta-da!
>
> You work fast!
>
> Only wish she were doing ABC instead of NBC ☺
>
> http://www.adweek.com/tvnewser/nbcs-today-to-host-hillary-clinton-live-town-hall/272658

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	4/29/2014 5:28:27 AM
Subject:	Auto-reply Re: Margorie Margolies

Thank you for your message. If your email is regarding White House business and/or John Podesta's schedule, please resend your email to esepp@who.eop.gov. Thank you.

Eryn

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	Apple <News@InsideApple.Apple.com>
To:	john.podesta@gmail.com
Date:	7/4/2015 2:05:12 PM
Subject:	Get to know your new iPad mini 3.

Welcome to your new iPad mini.

The more you use your new iPad, the more you'll love it.
Here are a few things to help get you off to a great start.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

iCloud

Sign in and get everything you need, everywhere you go.

iCloud helps keep you organized and up to date. Using iCloud Drive, all your presentations, spreadsheets, PDFs, images, and other important documents can be stored securely, so you can access them on all your devices, whenever and wherever it's convenient. iCloud also makes sure you always have the latest versions of documents, apps, notes, and contacts on all your devices. It even helps you find your iPad if you lose it. And you can set it up in a few easy steps.[1]

Set up iCloud ›

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Apps

Discover all the amazing things your iPad can do.

Whether it's gaming, managing your finances, making movies, photography, traveling, working out, or anything else you're into, there are hundreds of thousands of apps to help you do it better. And they're all designed specifically for iPad. We've organized them in the App Store in categories to make finding the perfect app fast and easy.

Learn more about apps for iPad › View the Apps Starter Kit › iTunes and iBooks

Explore a world of entertainment.

Millions of albums, a huge selection of movies and TV shows, and an amazing library of books are all waiting for your enjoyment.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Family Sharing

Give those you love access to the entertainment and apps you love.

To share purchases from iTunes, iBooks, and the App Store with up to five other people, simply go to Settings and tap iCloud, tap Set Up Family Sharing, then tap Get Started. Confirm that you want to be the family organizer and that you're signed in with your personal Apple ID. Then just follow the onscreen instructions and you're ready to go.[2]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Photos

Access all your photos from anywhere.

iCloud Photo Sharing lets you view and download your photos and instantly see your edits across all your devices and on the web. And it couldn't be easier to set up. Just go to Settings, tap iCloud, tap Photos, then turn on iCloud Photo Sharing. Done.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Continuity

Connect your iPad, iPhone, and Mac like never before.

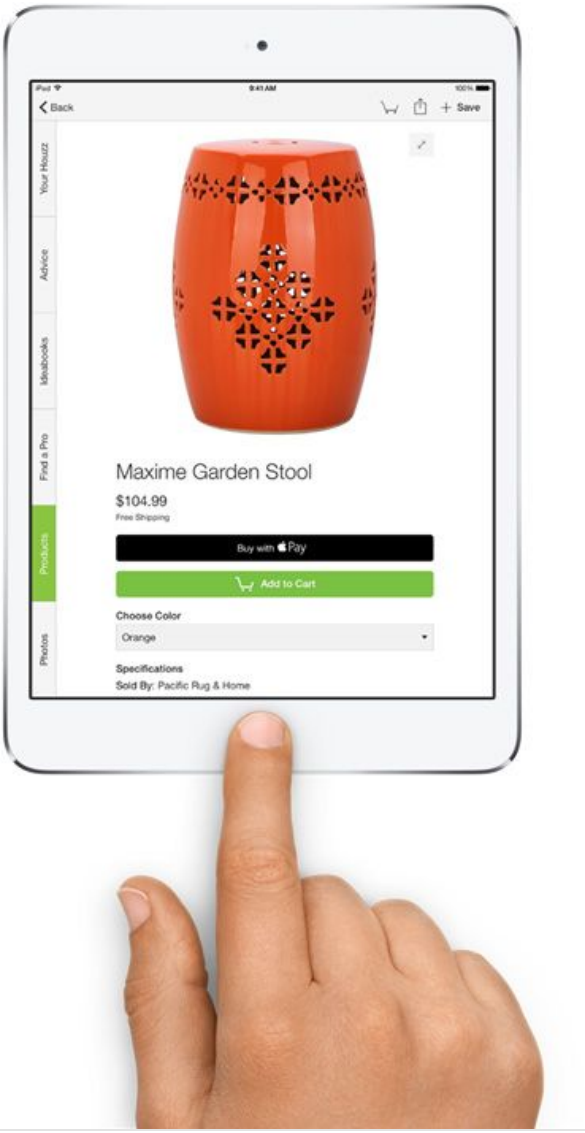
Continuity features ensure your iPad and all your devices are always in sync and working together.[3] With Handoff, when you start an email on your iPad, an icon appears on the lock screen of your iPhone. All you do is swipe up and the email is there waiting for you to continue. Continuity also allows you to receive phone calls on your iPad when your iPhone isn't nearby. Just swipe the notification to answer, ignore, or respond with a quick message. You can even browse the web on your Mac and continue from the same link on your iPad. All you have to do is go to Settings, tap iCloud, and turn on whatever you want to share between devices.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Touch ID

Make your fingerprint your password.

With Touch ID, your iPad is more secure since your fingerprint is now your passcode. It's also easier to log into secure apps and sites and make purchases within apps. Your iPad can even recognize the fingerprints of up to five others you want to grant access to. Getting started is easy. Just go to Settings, then tap Touch ID & Passcode.



Pay

Pay for purchases with a single touch.

Apple Pay makes online shopping easier than ever. To get started, you can add the credit or debit card from your iTunes account to Passbook simply by entering the card security code. To add a new card, use the iSight camera to capture the card information or enter your card number manually. When you're ready to check out, select Apple Pay, touch your finger lightly on the Home button, and you're done — no need to type in shipping and billing information.[4]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Sign up with a carrier and stay connected.

Once you sign up for a cellular plan, your iPad stays connected anywhere, even when you're not on a Wi-Fi network. You can browse the web, send messages, stream movies and music, and make FaceTime calls from more places. Even better, plans are flexible with no long-term commitments. And you can also use your iPad as a personal hotspot for your Mac or other devices.[5]

Learn more about cellular data and Wi-Fi ›

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

A smart way to protect your iPad.

Check out the new, more colorful covers and cases designed just for iPad. And see other Apple-designed accessories for your photos, music, and more — all built for iPad.

Learn more about iPad accessories ›

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Support and workshops.
Get the help you need when you need it.

Get additional protection and support for your new iPad. Learn the basics of using it.
Or take your skills even further.

AppleCare+ for iPad.

Buy AppleCare+ within the first 60 days of purchasing your new iPad and get up to two years of telephone technical support and additional hardware coverage. AppleCare+ even includes accidental damage protection. To learn more, call (800) 275 2273, or visit the AppleCare+ site.

Go further with free workshops.

Attend free workshops at your favorite Apple Retail Store and learn about all the great things you can do with your new iPad from the people who know it best. You'll learn to browse and download apps easily, share amazing moments while they happen with instant video and photo messaging, create documents, and a whole lot more.
Find an Apple Retail Store ›

Get your questions answered.

Our Apple Support team is available by phone to answer your questions. Support calls are free for the first 90 days after you purchase your iPad.
Get help now ›

iPad User Guide. Discover great things to know.

Want to learn even more about your new iPad? Dive into the details with the iPad User Guide.
Read the user guide ›

1. iCloud requires an iCloud-enabled device. Some features require iOS 8 and OS X Yosemite. Some features require a Wi-Fi connection. Some features are not available in all countries. Access to some services is limited to 10 devices.
2. Family Sharing requires a personal Apple ID signed in to iCloud and iTunes. Music, movies, TV shows, and books can be downloaded on up to 10 devices per account, five of which can be computers. iOS 8 and OS X Yosemite are required to set up or join a Family Sharing group and are recommended for full functionality. Not all content is eligible for Family Sharing. Content can be hidden by family members; hidden content is not available for download. Content downloaded from family members or acquired via redemption codes is not subject to Ask to Buy.
3. Continuity features are available on iPhone 5 or later, iPad (4th generation), iPad Air, iPad mini, and iPod touch (5th generation).
4. Apple Pay is available in the U.S.
5. Check with your carrier for hotspot availability.

TM and copyright © 2015 Apple Inc. 1 Infinite Loop, MS 96-DM, Cupertino, CA 95014.

All Rights Reserved | Privacy Policy | My Apple ID

If you prefer not to receive commercial email from Apple, or if you've changed your email address, please click here .

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To:	"Eryn Sepp" <eryn.sepp@gmail.com>
Date:	3/9/2015 6:05:20 AM
Subject:	Fwd: Call with Senator Boxer

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Ordal, Paul (Boxer) <Paul_Ordal@boxer.senate.gov >
Date: Mon, Mar 9, 2015 at 12:48 PM
Subject: Call with Senator Boxer
To: "podesta@law.georgetown.edu " <podesta@law.georgetown.edu >
Cc: "Henry, Alicia (Boxer)" <Alicia_Henry@boxer.senate.gov >

Mr. Podesta,

Senator Boxer would like to have a brief call with you as soon as possible. She is traveling back to DC today (Monday, March 9) and arrives late afternoon.

Are you available after 4:30pm today? If not, what times might work for your schedule?

-Paul Ordal

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "Cheryl Mills" <cheryl.mills@gmail.com>
To: "Nick Merrill" <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com>
Date: 10/25/2014 10:05:24 PM
Subject: Re: Messaging Memo for 9:30am Call

A two assumptions:

1. That we will run draft framework and message by others.

2. That we will put ourselves on timeline to discuss this with her this week.

On draft - My comments below are in text in caps in relevant sections (cut where i agreed to reduce length) - sorry on iPhone so no track changes or separate document:

Introduction

[AGREE WITH OBSERVATIONS AND AUDIENCE TARGET OF THE INTRODUCTION]

Talking points

NOTE: These are written in HRC's voice but once agreed upon can be adapted for the communications team, surrogates, etc.

Q: Are you running for President?

I have not made a final decision. Ultimately though, I am hoping to get to "Yes"

But this is a very personal decision for me, as I IMAGINE IT IS FOR OTHERS weighing something like this. HAVING WALKED THIS PATH UNSUCCESSFULLY BEFORE, HOW HARD YOU MUST WORK TO EARN THE TRUST OF AMERICANS WHO [WANT|NEED FILL IN]. THAT'S WHY I WANT to make THIS DECISION on my own schedule, with as much thought AND INFORMATION as possible to GUIDE ME.

I've had a wonderful year and a half since stepping down as Secretary. I launched my Foundation programs, wrote a book about my TIME as Secretary of State, I gave speeches to organizations and causes. ONLY IN THE LAST FEW MONTHS, HAVE I GONE out and fought for THE values I WANT FOR OUR COUNTRY IN OUR ELECTED LEADERS in the midterms.

[TKTK language based on the outcome of the election]

So the next few months are going to be invaluable as I turn my attention to this decision in earnest. I'm going to be talking to all kinds of people around the country about how to keep moving this country forward, about how we can do better. And I'm going to be talking to people who have insight into how a presidential campaign needs to look in 2015 & 2016 to have the best chance of success. I'm going to LEARN as much as possible so I can make an informed a decision about what's best for me and what's best for our country.

Managing the Message

[AGREE WITH SURROGACY FRAMEWORK]

Transparency

We should view this period as a pre-cursor to what would give way to a larger strategy should she decide to run. Central to that will be communicating to the press how HRC is approaching this next phase.

[AGREE]

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Our message, put simply, is this:

“HRC is talking to a wide swath of people about all of the issues that will affect the future of this country, how she can impact that debate, and how a campaign TODAY SHOULD WORK. SHE WANTS TO FIND AND UNDERSTAND the best, forward-looking ideas. SO SHE WILL cast a wide net. She may not agree with everyone, and they may not agree with her; but she wants to hear from people.

Execution

After Election Day, we work with a reporter to write about what the coming months will look like. We convey that while HRC has not decided whether to run, we expand on her public answers by explaining that she plans to spend time talking to people who have new ideas. Elements of such a story should include:

A sampling of people she will be reaching out to, with a heavy does on new faces and previously unsupportive faces;
Her reaching out to several key power centers, such as Elizabeth Warren;

THE LIST BELOW WORRIES ME - IT IS CLOSE TO THE SAME LIST YOU COULD HAVE PUT IN 2008 (WHICH YOU FLAG AS IMPORTANT TO ADDRESS FURTHER DOWN IN THIS SECTION). I WOULD SHORTEN AND/OR CATEGORIZE DIFFERENTLY AND I WOULD CONSIDER INTRODUCING NEW NAMES - REALIZE THIS IS HARD AS IT ALSO GOES TO WHO YOU WANT PRESS REACHING OUT TO AS AN AUTHORITATIVE VOICE BUT I WANT TO FLAG THIS AS AN AREA I WOULD WELCOME DISCUSSION ON OUR CALL

A basic list of those who legitimately have insight into the process and her thinking – including:

- Maggie
- CDM
- John
- Huma
- Jake
- Philippe
- Capricia
- Minyon
- HRC Personal Staff

Similar thought needs to be given to who – if anyone – around WJC & CVC should be named – or if the point should be conveyed that they are holding their advice close to the vest. Obviously this is not as much of an issue with CVC, but the extended WJC network remains the most difficult to stay synced up with; [WE NEED TO TRY WITH "THE CLOSE TO THE VEST" APPROACH YOU OFFER FOR WJC BECAUSE HE TOO NEEDS A NARRATIVE CHANGE FROM HOW HE IS PERCEIVED TO HAVE ENGAGED LAST TIME AND WE SHOULD BE SMART ABOUT HOW SHE, HE AND THOSE TALKING CONVEY THAT BEGINNING NOW]

State clearly and strongly that no personnel decisions have been made of any kind, and any assumptions of such are only that – assumptions, unfounded at that;

Once the story runs, we determine a natural time and place for HRC to convey her evolution of thought to a public audience. We will work with the schedule to determine what timing and setting works best.

[AGREE WITH REST]

Conclusion

The goal of the next 8 weeks should be to practice discipline by conveying a simple message to a wide audience to preserve HRC’s ability to be thoughtful and make decisions on her own terms, with an increasing eye toward how such a strategy would evolve if/when she “Gets to yes.”

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

And as stated at top, she and we need to do so as genuinely and as authentically as possible.

[TOTALLY AGREE]

cdm

cdm

On Oct 25, 2014, at 11:12 PM, Nick Merrill <nmerrill@hrcoffice.com > wrote:

Hi everyone,

Attached please find a memo that Philippe and I put together that we think captures our conversation last weekend on a beginning frame for how to position HRC, ourselves, and our surrogates following Election Day, along with some of our ideas on how to execute.

Talk to you all in the morning.

Nick

On 10/22/14, 11:19 AM, "Joanne Laszczych" <jlaszczych@cdmillsGroup.com > wrote:

Call is confirmed for 9:30am EDT on Sunday, 10/26.

Please use:

Dial i: 1-530-881-1000

Code: 742374#

-----Original Message-----

From: Cheryl Mills [mailto:cheryl.mills@gmail.com]

Sent: Wednesday, October 22, 2014 3:24 AM

To: Jake Sullivan

Cc: Philippe Reines; Nicholas S Merrill; John Podesta; Robby Mook; Joanne Laszczych

Subject: Re: Follow - up Call

Does 930am work better for folks then?

cdm

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

On Oct 21, 2014, at 11:45 PM, Jake Sullivan <jake.sullivan@gmail.com >

wrote:

I'll be on a flight and could do 930 (Robby and I were skedded to speak then)

> On Oct 21, 2014, at 8:17 PM, Cheryl Mills <cheryl.mills@gmail.com >
>
> wrote:
>
> Dear all
>
> Can you advise Joanne if a call at 9am Sunday will work for a follow > up call?
>
>
> Best.
>
> cdm

<Memo 11.5.docx>

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Clinton, Press Office \(Clinton\)" <Press_Office@clinton.senate.gov>
To:
Date:	12/21/2007 8:36:57 AM
Subject:	RELEASE: Senator Clinton Announces Department of Homeland Security Inspector General to Launch Investigation of Contractor Bonuses at Her Urging

NEW YORK

Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton

PRESS RELEASE

Home | News | Contact | About | Services | Issues | New York

For Immediate Release
December 21, 2007

Contact: Press Office
202-224-2243

SENATOR CLINTON ANNOUNCES DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY INSPECTOR GENERAL TO LAUNCH INVESTIGATION OF CONTRACTOR BONUSES AT HER URGING

Washington, DC – Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton today announced that the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Inspector General (IG) has agreed to examine award fees for DHS contractors. In particular, the DHS IG will investigate the award fees paid to Chenega Technology Services Corporation and will work with DHS to collect information on the number and value of contracts DHS awarded during the 2007 fiscal year that include award fee provisions, and the oversight mechanisms DHS has to ensure that award fees are awarded in a proper manner. In addition to calling for the investigation, Senator Clinton secured a measure in the FY2008 Omnibus Appropriations bill to bar DHS from awarding bonuses to contractors without regard to performance.

"The American people deserve to know that precious homeland security funds are being used appropriately. It is critical that the Department of Homeland Security hold contractors accountable, not reward bad behavior. With high risk areas like New York fighting for limited homeland security funds, it is beyond the pale that DHS is awarding bonuses to contractors that they haven't even earned," said Senator Clinton.

In announcing the investigation, Senator Clinton noted that she had requested a broader based investigation and expressed serious concern about the inability of the DHS IG to undertake such an investigation. In a letter to Senator Clinton, the DHS IG indicated that, "Generally, insufficient record-keeping, extensive staff turnover in key acquisition roles, and inadequate data systems are common challenges we encounter in accomplishing our DHS acquisition reviews."

Senator Clinton wrote to the Department of Homeland Security Inspector General in November calling on the IG to expand an investigation of federal contracting practices to investigate the practice of award fees by DHS, especially when it comes to no-bid contracts. Senator Clinton's call came following a recent report by the DHS Inspector General that DHS improperly awarded a $475 million no-bid contract to Chenega Technology Services Corporation, which according to the report "likely did not provide the government the best value" and that DHS "did not comply with federal regulations." According to the IG's office, the agency also provided award fees to the company as part of its contract.

The following is Senator Clinton's letter to DHS Inspector General Richard L. Skinner requesting an investigation:

November 26, 2007

Mr. Richard L. Skinner
Inspector General
United States Department of Homeland Security
Washington, D.C. 20528

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Dear Mr. Skinner:

I write regarding a disturbing report you issued last month that raises serious questions about contracting practices at the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). The report – Customs and Border Protection Award and Oversight of Alaska Native Corporation Contract for Enforcement Equipment Maintenance and Field Operations Support (OIG-08-10) – details how DHS improperly awarded a $475 million, no-bid contract to Chenega Technology Services Corporation to maintain X-ray, radiation and other screening machines at U.S. border checkpoints. Your report concludes the contract "award likely did not provide the government the best value" and that DHS "did not comply with federal regulations."

Additionally, your staff informs me that award fees were given to Chenega as a part of its contract with DHS. Given that your report did not focus on award fees to Chenega, the details of these fees are unclear. However, taken together with your conclusion that the Department improperly awarded the underlying contract to Chenega, it is disturbing to hear that DHS has provided an award fee to this corporation.

This disconnect between performance and award fees appears to be part of a troubling pattern. The Federal Acquisition Regulations (FAR) state clearly that cost-based award fee contracts are intended to motivate excellent contractor performance in areas such as quality, timeliness, technical ingenuity, and cost-effective management. Despite this guidance, during the course of the past several years there have been a number of reports documenting how award fees are being doled out by DHS to contractors regardless of performance:

• Evaluation of TSA's contract for the installation and maintenance of explosive detection equipment at United States Airports (DHS Inspector General, September 2004) – TSA awarded a contract to Boeing for the installation and maintenance of explosive detection equipment at airports. TSA paid more than $44 million to Boeing without any evaluation of Boeing's performance.

• Transportation Security Administration Review of the TSA Passenger and Baggage Screening Pilot Program (DHS Inspector General, September 2004) – TSA awarded four pilot program contracts to determine whether private companies could provide and maintain passenger screening performance at levels equal to or greater than the TSA screener force. The Inspector General found the award fee determinations lacked performance criteria, were highly subjective and based primarily on contractor self-assessments and input from TSA officials.

• Observations on the Department of Homeland Security's Acquisition Organization and on the Coast Guard's Deepwater Program (GAO-07-453T) (February 8, 2007) – GAO found that despite documented problems in schedule, performance, cost control, and contract administration throughout the first year of the Deepwater contract, the contractor had received a rating of 87 percent, which fell in the "very good" range and resulted in an award fee of $4 million.

In too many cases, DHS appears to be awarding bonuses despite poor performance, or worse, without even evaluating work. Failing contractors should be rooted out, not rewarded. Given your report of what appears to be noncompliant federal contracting practices on the part of the DHS and a pattern of providing award fees to contractors without justification, I request that you expand your investigation into the practice of award fees by the Department, especially when it comes to no-bid contacts. Specifically, I would ask that your investigation review the following questions:

• Section 3501 of the U.S. Troop Readiness, Veterans' Care, Katrina Recovery, and Iraq Accountability Appropriations Act, 2007 (P.L. 110-28) states, "The Secretary of Homeland Security shall require that all contracts of the Department of Homeland Security that provide award fees link such fees to successful acquisition outcomes (which outcomes shall be specified in terms of cost, schedule, and performance)." DHS has engaged in a number of contracts in Fiscal Year 2007. How many of these contracts included award fees and were these award fees based on successful acquisition outcomes? What was the total amount of these award fees?

• Did the Department of Homeland Security violate P.L. 110-28 in providing award fees to contractors Fiscal Year 2007?

• Were award fees given to Chenega Technology Services Corporation justified and based on successful acquisition outcomes?

• What mechanisms are currently in place at DHS to ensure that award fees are awarded in a proper manner? Are these mechanisms enforced in providing award fees for DHS contracts? What can the Department of Homeland Security do to ensure that award fees are justified and based on successful acquisition outcomes?

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Thank you for attention to this matter.

Sincerely,
Hillary Rodham Clinton

###

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Margolis, Jim" <Jim.Margolis@gmmb.com>
To:	"Ron Klain" <ron.klain@revolution.com> "Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com> "Karen Dunn" <karen.l.dunn@gmail.com> "Karen?? Dunn \(KDunn@BSFLLP.com\)" <KDunn@BSFLLP.com> "Sara Solow?? \(ssolow@hillaryclinton.com\)" <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com> "Jake Sullivan" <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com> "Kristina Costa \(kcosta@hillaryclinton.com\)" <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com> "Tony Carrk \(tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com\)" <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com> "Robert Barnett \(RBarnett@wc.com\)" <RBarnett@wc.com> "Mandy Grunwald" <gruncom@aol.com> "Jennifer Palmieri?? \(jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com\)" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com> jbenenson@bsgco.com ha16@hillaryclinton.com
Date:	12/19/2015 11:13:21 AM
Subject:	Re: REVISED list of to do at prep today

Christmas-week-Saturday-night-debates as part of the rigged system attack…

From: Ron Klain <ron.klain@revolution.com >
Date: Saturday, December 19, 2015 at 11:26 AM
To: Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >, Karen Dunn <karen.l.dunn@gmail.com >, Karen Dunn <KDunn@BSFLLP.com >, "Sara Solow (ssolow@hillaryclinton.com)" <ssolow@hillaryclinton.com >, Jake Sullivan <jsullivan@hillaryclinton.com >, Kristina Costa <kcosta@hillaryclinton.com >, Tony Carrk <tcarrk@hillaryclinton.com >, Bob Barnett <RBarnett@wc.com >, Mandy Grunwald <gruncom@aol.com >, "Jennifer Palmieri (jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com)" <jpalmieri@hillaryclinton.com >, GMMB GMMB <jim.margolis@gmmb.com >, Joel Benenson <jbenenson@bsgco.com >, Huma Abedin <ha16@hillaryclinton.com >
Cc: "John Podesta (john.podesta@gmail.com)" <john.podesta@gmail.com >, Ron Klain <ron.klain@revolution.com >
Subject: REVISED list of to do at prep today

1. Opening Statement
2. Answer on Data Breach
3. Practice Exchange on Data Breach
    a. If data is back to Sanders … or not
    b. If Bernie is hot .. or not
4. Practice Domestic Exchanges
    a. Basic economy
    b. Taxes / pay for your plans / middle class tax pledge
    c. Wall Street
    d. Health Care
    e. Min wage
    f. Guns
5. Practice Foreign Policy Exchanges
    a. Basic ISIS/Terror Answer
    b. Sanders/OMalley/Moderator hit: She was in charge when all this was put in motion
    c. Sanders/ OMalley hit on regime change
    d. Iraq War hit
    e. Climate Change
6. Any NH updates / topics we didn't cover in prep
7. The military readiness question / answer
8. James Foley
9. Closing Statement
10. Last look at Debate on a Page (attached)

Let me know if you think I am missing anything.

Ron

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

This email is intended only for the named addressee. It may contain information that is confidential/private, legally privileged, or copyright-protected, and you should handle it accordingly. If you are not the intended recipient, you do not have legal rights to retain, copy, or distribute this email or its contents, and should promptly delete the email and all electronic copies in your system; do not retain copies in any media. If you have received this email in error, please notify the sender promptly. Thank you.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From: "John Podesta" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
To: "Tony Podesta" <podesta@podesta.com>
Date: 5/28/2015 3:47:54 AM
Subject: Re: A small request

Tried to hand off to Brian, but I think it is mostly back at NSC. Don't know who replaced Phil.

On Thursday, May 28, 2015, Tony Podesta <podesta@podesta.com > wrote:

Didn't answer one question

Who now has india portfolio at white house

From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, May 28, 2015 10:41 AM
To: Tony Podesta
Subject: Re: A small request

Yes on Ambassador. Of course on apt. It's yours!

I might be there, but I think Mae will be away. In NYC over the weekend.

On Thursday, May 28, 2015, Tony Podesta <podesta@podesta.com > wrote:

Who took over your India portfolio in casa Bianca

Wanna do lunch with Indian ambassador and me

Happy to talk to them

You here over weekend?

Im in nyc Tuesday night ok for me at apartment?

From: John Podesta [mailto:john.podesta@gmail.com]
Sent: Thursday, May 28, 2015 9:29 AM
To: Tony Podesta
Subject: Fwd: A small request

Want to talk to the head of Greenpeace? Kumi Naidoo is a very well known South African with a big international following, but I think GOI likely to stick it to them. Separately, I am trying to help Ford Foundation which also got on the wrong side of GOI, but whose case I think can be more easily resolved.

---------- Forwarded message ----------
From: Karen Sack <Karen.Sack@oceanunite.org >
Date: Tuesday, May 26, 2015
Subject: A small request
To: John Podesta <john.podesta@gmail.com >

Dear John,

I hope you are enjoying this gorgeous Washington weather. I have had a request from some colleagues at Greenpeace as they are facing facing a very serious situation in India. In a nutshell: an Indian Intelligence Bureau report was "leaked" alleging Greenpeace India was responsible for a loss of 2-3% of the country's GDP. Since then the Ministry of Home Affairs has kept up a relentless attack of allegations of irregularities in their registration and has now frozen all their bank accounts, both foreign and domestic, despite a Delhi High Court ruling there was no basis for doing so. The bottom line is that without some kind of intervention, they will have to close down by the end of June. This has never happened to a Greenpeace office in the entire history of the organization.

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

Kumi Naidoo was hoping to speak with you or to get advice on who might be able to help behind the scenes explaining to people close to the Prime Minister that their campaigns are about the issues of clean air and clean water and not personal and their office should not be forced to close because they have a different vision of India's future.

Apparently The Podesta Group has the contract for the Republic of India in the US, but Kumi has no way to reach Tony or another prinicipal.

Thanks in advance for any thoughts you might have.

Best,

Karen

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

From:	"Tom Matzzie" <tom@zzranch.com>
To:	"Tara McGuinness" <tara@campaigntodefendamerica.org> "Rebecca Buckwalter-Poza" <rebecca@campaigntodefendamerica.org> "Tom Matzzie" <tom@zzranch.com> "Paul Begala" <pbegala@hatcreekent.com> "Susan McCue" <susan@messageinc.com> "John Podesta" <John.Podesta@gmail.com>
Date:	2/6/2008 8:30:52 AM
Subject:	Re: Breakdown of Guide: Clips, Ads, Facts, and Thematic Statements

I agree. Rebecca, can you ask GQR about that.

-----Original Message-----
From: "tara mcguinness" <tara@campaigntodefendamerica.org>

Date: Wed, 6 Feb 2008 10:19:29
To:"'Rebecca Buckwalter-Poza'" <rebecca@campaigntodefendamerica.org>,"'mattzie Tom'" <tom@zzranch.com>,"'Paul Begala'" <pbegala@hatcreekent.com>,"'susan'" <susan@messageinc.com>,"'John Podesta'" <john.podesta@gmail.com>
Cc:"'Lori Lodes'" <lori@iraqcampaign.org>
Subject: RE: Breakdown of Guide: Clips, Ads, Facts, and Thematic Statements

I feel strongly that the attack on McCain as just like Bush needs to be in the guide (right now it is on the cut list). A lot of our ads are on that theme… I think we need to probe more about that.

tara

From: rebecca@iraqcampaign.org [mailto:rebecca@iraqcampaign.org] On Behalf Of Rebecca Buckwalter-Poza
Sent: Wednesday, February 06, 2008 7:40 AM
To: mattzie Tom; tara@campaigntodefendamerica.org; Paul Begala; susan; John Podesta
Cc: Lori Lodes
Subject: Breakdown of Guide: Clips, Ads, Facts, and Thematic Statements

All,

Since we're shooting for noon with the focus group guide, I've broken the guide down for review in hopes that it might make giving quick feedback easier. In particular the facts and thematic statements need attention. We have nearly double the number of thematic statements we can test and need to cut 7.

Thank you,
Rebecca

These are the clips that will be used:

A. [SHOW MCCAIN POSITIVE- EARMARKS WILL END- CLIP 1]

B. [SHOW MCCAIN RECESSION (GROUP 1 OHIO, 4 NEVADA)- CLIP 2

C. [SHOW MCCAIN NO IDEA ON INTEREST RATES (GROUP 2 OHIO, 3 NEVADA)-CLIP 2

This version of Total Mail Converter is not registered.

D. [SHOW MCCAIN 100 YEARS CLIP 3]

Here are the ads we're showing -- 4 ads in each group for a total of 25 minutes of ad-testing:

1. Rose: Our children (GROUP 1 OHIO, 4 NEVADA)
2. Rose: Priorities 1- health care/jobs (GROUP 2 OHIO, 3 NEVADA)
3. American Reformer: Pro McCain (GROUP 1 OHIO, 4 NEVADA)
4. McCain POW: Pro McCain (GROUP 2 OHIO, 3 NEVADA)
5. Happy Together 1- Iraq (GROUP 1 OHIO, 4 NEVADA)
6. Happy Together 2- Medicare/Min Wage/Tax cuts (GROUP 2 OHIO, 3 NEVADA)
7. Dating (GROUP 1 OHIO, 4 NEVADA)
8. McSame (GROUP 2 OHIO, 3 NEVADA)

Here's the McCain Positive Statement:

McCain has long been known as a straight talking maverick because he tells people the truth rather than what will get him elected. He has won the "Taxpayer's Hero Award" three times for his efforts to fight pork barrel spending and special interests. McCain is a true American hero with decades of foreign policy and military service in the Vietnam War during which he spent over five years as a Prisoner of War. As president he will continue General Petreaus' (Puh-TRAY-us) successful strategy in Iraq and will modernize our armed services so they can better fight Islamic extremism.

These are the McCain facts -- we have to be at 10, so if you want to add one, please suggest one to cut:

1. McCain wants to send more troops to Iraq and has said he's alright with keeping our troops there for the next 100 years or more.
2. In 2000 John McCain called Reverend Jerry Falwell an "agent of intolerance." This year he has embraced Falwell in an attempt to pander to the far-right.
3. John McCain is seventy-one (71) years old and has had cancer twice. If elected, he will be the oldest man ever to assume the office of the presidency
4. After initially opposing President Bush's tax cuts because he said they were unfair to the middle class, he now wants to make these tax cuts permanent.
5. In 2006, McCain led the fight to give illegal immigrants citizenship, but now that he is running for president he won't say if he would vote for his own bill.
6. McCain has 59 lobbyists among his chief fundraisers, more than any other presidential candidate, and his campaign manager and chairman are both corporate lobbyists.
7. In 2000, McCain opposed overturning Roe v. Wade, but now that he's running for president he says we should ban all abortions, even in the case of rape and incest.
8. McCain says there will be other wars after Iraq and has suggested we should bomb Iran.
9. McCain insists that the economy is fundamentally strong and that we are not heading toward a recession.
